But others seem to be general psalms that arose from no specific life situation (53, 55, 58). Knowing the particular historical background of a psalm can help the student interpret it correctly and apply its message to life today.

Theological Contribution. We may think of the psalms as a description of our human response to God. At times God is presented in all His majesty and glory. Our response is wonder, awe, and fear: “Sing to God, you kingdoms of the earth” (68:32). But other psalms portray God as a loving Lord who is involved in our lives. Our response in these cases is to draw close to His comfort and security: “I will fear no evil; for You are with me” (23:4).

God is the same Lord in both these psalms. But we respond to Him in different ways, according to the specific needs of our lives. What a marvelous God we worship, the psalmist declares—One who is high and lifted up beyond our human experiences but also one who is close enough to touch and who walks beside us along life’s way.

Other psalms might be described as outcries against God and the circumstances of life rather than responses to God because of His glory and His presence in our lives. The psalmist admits he sometimes feels abandoned by God as well as his human friends (88). He agonizes over the lies directed against him by his false accusers (109). He calls upon God to deliver him from his enemies and to wipe them out with His wrath (59). Whatever else we may say about the psalms, we must admit they are realistic about human feelings and the way we sometimes respond to the problems and inequities of life.

But even in these strong psalms of lament, the psalmist is never totally engulfed by a feeling of despair. The fact that he uttered his protest to the Lord is a sign of hope in God and His sense of justice. This has a significant message for all believers. We can bring all our feelings to God, no matter how negative or complaining they may be. And we can rest assured that He will hear and understand. The psalmist teaches us that the most profound prayer of all is a cry for help as we find ourselves overwhelmed by the problems of life.

The psalms also have a great deal to say about the person and work of Christ. Psalm 22 contains a remarkable prophecy of the crucifixion of the Savior. Jesus quoted from this psalm as He was dying on the cross (Ps. 22:1; Matt. 27:46; Mark 15:34). Other statements about the Messiah from the psalms that were fulfilled in the life of Jesus include these predictions: He would be a priest like Melchizedek (Ps. 110:4; Heb. 5:6); He would pray for His enemies (Ps. 109:4; Luke 23:34); and His throne would be established forever (Ps. 45:6; Heb. 1:8).

Special Considerations. The Book of Psalms is the best example in the Bible of the nature of Hebrew poetry. The principle upon which this poetry is based is not rhythm or rhyme but parallelism. In parallelism, one phrase is followed by another that says essentially the same thing but in a more creative, expressive way. Here is a good example of this poetic technique:

> The Lord of hosts is with us;
> The God of Jacob is our refuge (46:11).

This example is known as synonymous parallelism because the second phrase expresses the same thought as the first. But sometimes the succeeding line introduces a thought that is directly opposite to the first idea. This is known as antithetic parallelism. Here is a familiar couplet that demonstrates this form:

> For the Lord knows the way of the righteous,
> But the way of the ungodly shall perish (1:6).

A third kind of parallelism in Hebrew poetry may be called progressive, or climbing—in which part of the first line is repeated in the second, but also something more is added. For example:

> The floods have lifted up, O Lord,
> The floods have lifted up their voice (93:3).

Another literary device the Hebrew writers used to give their psalms a peculiar style and rhythm was the alphabetical acrostic. The best example of this technique is Psalm 119—the longest in the collection—which contains twenty-two different sections of eight verses each. Each major section is headed by a different letter of the Hebrew alphabet. In the original language, each verse in these major divisions of the psalm begins with the Hebrew letter that appears as the heading for that section. Many modern translations of the Bible include these Hebrew letters as a part of the structure of this psalm. Writing this poem with such a structure required a high degree of literary skill.

The peculiar poetic structure of the 150 psalms makes them ideal for believers who like to create their own devotional exercises. You can easily combine the lines from many different psalms into a fresh, authentic expression of praise to God. Here is an example of such a combined psalm:

Oh, give thanks to the LORD, for He is good!
For His mercy endures forever (136:1).
He has not dealt with us according to our sins,
Nor punished us according to our iniquities (103:10).
For You, O God, have heard my vows;
You have given me the heritage of those who fear Your name (61:5).
Your testimonies are very sure;
Holiness adorns Your house, O LORD, forever (93:5).
So teach us to number our days,
That we may gain a heart of wisdom (90:12).
The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom;
A good understanding have all those who do His commandments (111:10).
Oh, give thanks to the God of heaven!
For His mercy endures forever (136:26).

PSALMS OF SOLOMON (see PSEUDEPIGRAPHA).

PSALTERY (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

PSEUDEPIGRAPHA—a collection of Jewish books containing various forms of literature, using names of famous people in Israel's history for the titles of the books. The real authors are unknown. Such names as Ezra, Baruch, Enoch, Solomon, Moses, and Adam are used to add authority to the writing.

A few of these books are folk tales or sacred legends. These include the Letter of Aristeas, the Book of Adam and Eve, and the Martyrdom of Isaiah. One book of psalms, the Psalms of Solomon, has been included in the Pseudepigrapha. Ethical and wisdom writings are also part of this collection.

One problem addressed by the pseudepigraphal books is, Why do the wicked seem to prosper and the righteous suffer? Books like Jubilees, Enoch, and IV Ezra develop a careful scheme of history that shows the power of the world in the hands of the ruler of this age. The ruler of this age is Satan or Belial. The present age will end with God as Lord of all nations.

The books in the Pseudepigrapha were written by pious Jews living in either Palestine or Egypt. They were concerned that the Jews live according to the Law of Moses.

The Book of Jubilees describes a conversation that took place on Mt. Sinai between Moses and an angel of the Lord. The Martyrdom of Isaiah reports the sad news of the death of the great prophet. Through this story, the writer (using Isaiah's name) emphasizes how far Israel has gone astray. To protest against the growing secularization of the Pharisees, The Assumption of Moses was written around A.D. 7 to 29.

The Book of Adam and Eve, written in the middle of the first Christian century, is probably a protest against Christians. It tells about the future resurrection that was promised to Adam. The Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs is a book with many sub-books, describing the patriarch Jacob blessing his twelve sons before his death. Written about 105 B.C. by a Pharisee, it tells about the intense hope for a Messiah held by some Jews during this period. The value of this book is the contribution it makes to an understanding of forgiveness, the two great commandments, the Messianic expectation, the resurrection, the Antichrist, demonology, and other teachings that were later developed in the New Testament.

Some collections of pseudepigraphal works include The Sayings of the Fathers. This work is actually a collection of wisdom sayings from the rabbis that is included in the MISHNAH and TALMUD.

PTOLEMAIS [tahl uh MAY iss]—a seaport in northern Palestine between Tyre and Caesarea (see Map 6, B–2). The apostle Paul visited Ptolemais for one day on his return to Jerusalem during his third missionary journey (Acts 21:7). In the Old Testament the city is known as ACCO (Judg. 1:31; Accho, KJV). Today the city is about 15 kilometers (9 miles) north of Haifa and about 19 kilometers (12 miles) south of Lebanon.

PTOLEMY [TOL eh mih]—a general title (similar to pharaoh) of the fourteen Greek kings who ruled Egypt between the conquest of Alexander the Great and the Roman conquest of Egypt in 30 B.C.

After the death of Alexander the Great in 323 B.C., his empire eventually fell into the hands of two of his generals, Seleucus I and Ptolemy I Soter. Seleucus established a dynasty in Syria, Asia, and the east, while Ptolemy I Soter and his descendants ruled in Egypt. During this period the Ptolemies engaged in many wars with the Seleucid rulers in Syria over the control of Palestine. Daniel 11 contains a prediction of many of these events.

Ptolemy I Soter (323–285 B.C.) conducted three campaigns in Palestine against the SELEUCIDS (Dan. 11:5), and by 301 B.C. he controlled Phoenicia and Palestine, which his successors retained for a century. His capital, Alexandria, situated on the northern coast of Egypt, became the center of intellectual life for the eastern Mediterranean. Ptolemy settled many Jewish prisoners of war in Alexandria.

Ptolemy’s son, Ptolemy II Philadelphus (285–246 B.C.), continued to battle the Seleucids (Dan. 11:6). At Alexandria he established a famous library and museum that comprised a university promoting the spread of Greek culture throughout the ancient world.

Along with prisoners of war, many Jews chose to migrate to Alexandria and elsewhere in Egypt. In Alexandria they eventually adapted to the prevailing culture, producing learned Jewish writings in the fields of philosophy, history, and biblical interpretation.

Ptolemy II Philadelphus commissioned seventy Jewish students of the Bible to translate the Old Testament from Hebrew to Greek (this is called the SEPTUAGINT). This translation was the Bible for many Greeks and Greek-speaking Jews for years to come.

Judea, a state ruled by a high priest and his council, the SANHEDRIN, was content under Ptolemaic rule; it was allowed a certain measure of self-rule as long as it paid taxes to the Ptolemy and abided under his ultimate rule. There was an influx of Greeks and Hellenistic culture into Palestine during this era.

During the reign of Ptolemy III Euergetes (246–222 B.C.), the fighting between the Ptolemies and the Seleucids continued (Dan. 11:7–9). During this time synagogues were established for the Jews who lived in Egypt.

Ptolemy IV Philopater (222–205 B.C.) defeated Antiochus III (Dan. 11:11–12), but his successor, Ptolemy V Epiphanes (205–180 B.C.), brought about a measure of peace by forming an alliance through intermarriage (Dan. 11:14–16). It was this Ptolemy who wrote the ROSETTA STONE that led to the decipherment of the mysterious Egyptian HIEROGLYPHICS.

Judea passed into Seleucid control in 200 B.C. From that time on, Egypt began to decline in power.

During the reign of Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–146 B.C.), the Jewish priest Onias III from Jerusalem was allowed to build a Jewish temple in Egypt at Leontopolis. The Egyptian and Seleucid wars continued (Dan. 11:25–29). Some of these events are described in the apocryphal books of Maccabees, and by Josephus and Aristobulus. Murder, revolt, bribery, and trickery characterized the last group of Ptolemies.

During the reign of Ptolemy VI Philometor, Egypt was attacked by Antiochus IV. Only Roman intervention forced his withdrawal. This was the beginning of the end for the Ptolemies. Externally, Egypt was doomed to be incorporated into Rome’s spreading sphere of influence and power. Internally, native revolts grew more frequent in response to crippling taxation and injustice in bureaucratic, nationalized Egypt.

The line of Ptolemies came to an end with Cleopatra VII (51–30 B.C.)—the daughter of Ptolemy XI—and her son by Julius Caesar, Ptolemy

XIV Caesarion (36–30 B.C.), when Cleopatra committed suicide. Egypt then passed into Roman hands (30 B.C.) and became a lucrative province of the Roman Empire. The Ptolemies had ruled Egypt with selfish motives without gaining much support from the native population.

The clashes between Seleucid Syria and Ptolemaic Egypt are mentioned in Daniel 11 to illustrate God's control over His people. "The king of the South" is the representative Ptolemy, as the references to Egypt in verses 8, 42, and 43 indicate: Ptolemy I (v. 5), Ptolemy II (v. 6), Ptolemy III (vv. 7–9), Ptolemy IV (v. 11), Ptolemy V (vv. 14–15), and Ptolemy VI (vv. 25, 27). Daniel's descriptions of these events long before they took place is proof of God's sovereign control over nations.

PUA [POO uh]—a form of PUAH.

PUAH [POO uh]—the name of two men and one woman in the Old Testament:

1. The second son of Issachar (1 Chr. 7:1), also called Puvah (Gen. 46:13, NRSV), Phuvah (KJV), and Pua (Num. 26:23, KJV).
2. One of two midwives whom Pharaoh ordered to kill Hebrew males at their birth (Ex. 1:15). The midwives courageously disobeyed Pharaoh's command.
3. The father of Tola, of the tribe of Issachar (Judg. 10:1).

PUBLICAN—KJV word for TAX COLLECTOR.

PUBLIUS [PUHB lih uhs] (pertaining to the people)—the leading citizen of the island of Malta (Melita, KJV) who showed hospitality to the apostle Paul and his companions when they were shipwrecked (Acts 28:1–10). Publius may have been a native official or perhaps the chief Roman official on Malta, which at that time was part of the province of Sicily. Paul healed Publius' father, who suffered from a fever and dysentery (Acts 28:8).

PUDENS [POO denz] (modest)—a Christian at Rome who joined Claudia, Eubulus, Linus, and the apostle Paul in sending greetings to Timothy (2 Tim. 4:21).

PUHITES [POO hights]—a form of PUTHITES.

PUL [pool]—the name of a man and a place in the Old Testament:

1. An Assyrian king who invaded Israel during the reign of King Menahem. When Menahem paid tribute to Pul, giving him 1,000 talents of silver (2 Kin. 15:19), Pul withdrew his army from Israel (v. 20). Pul did, however, carry the tribes east of the Jordan River into captivity (1 Chr. 5:26). Pul is the same person as TIGLATH–PILESER III. Tiglath–Pileser was the throne-name he bore as king of Assyria; Pul was the throne-name he bore in Babylonia as king of Babylon.
2. An African country and its people (Is. 66:19), identical with Libya.

PULPIT—KJV word for a raised platform reached by steps, or a desk used for preaching and teaching in a service of worship (Neh. 8:4; platform, NKJV). Such a platform is mentioned in connection with the gathering of the people of Israel to hear the reading of the Law of God and its interpretation.

PULSE—a KJV word for vegetables, or edible seeds—a simple diet that Daniel and his friends requested instead of the rich dishes offered by the Babylonians (Dan. 1:12, 16; vegetables, NKJV).

PUNISHMENT—payment for crime or sin. Punishment of sin is one of the basic truths of the Old Testament. Mosaic Law spelled out the proper punishments for each crime. The punishments generally took the form of retribution, "eye for eye" (Ex. 21:24) and other punishment in kind being the most memorable. Retribution such as this was only a small part of the ideas of compensation and restitution of value emphasized under the Old Testament law (Ex. 21:18–36). For example, if one person injured another in a fight, he was required to repay the victim for any time lost from his job because of the injury. In the case of disfigurement, the person committing the crime might also suffer the same violence as a punishment handed down by the court.

Since punishment was tied so closely to crime and sin, it was only natural that this concept should extend from the temporal world into the spiritual world. God meted out His own punishment to those who broke His moral law, notably against Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 19:12–29) and the Hebrew people wandering in the wilderness (Num. 14:26–35).

The Suffering Servant of the Lord would bear our punishment so that we could be at peace with God (Is. 53:5).

In the New Testament, the concern with temporal punishment became secondary to Christ's message of redemption. An eternal spiritual punishment falls upon those who refuse to accept God's message.

PUNISHMENT, EVERLASTING—the final judgment of God upon the wicked. The classic example of eternal punishment in the Old Testament is the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 19:15–28). While speaking about wicked angels who are being held in "everlasting chains," the writer of Jude in the New Testament likened these wrongdoers to the wicked men of Sodom and Gomorrah, who "are set forth as an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire" (Jude 7).

In his second letter to the Thessalonians, the apostle Paul wrote about the final judgment. He explains that those who do not know God "shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power" (2 Thess. 1:9). This same idea was expressed by Jesus in the parable of the sheep and the goats (Matt. 25:31–46). After separating the two, Jesus blessed the sheep—those who have cared for the unfortunate and poor. Then he pronounced judgment upon the goats—those who did not have compassion: "Depart from Me, you cursed, into the everlasting fire" (v. 41).

The essential meaning of the phrase "everlasting punishment" involves banishment from the presence of God and Christ forever—a fate made vivid by the image of eternal fire (Rev. 19:20; 21:8).

Also see HELL.

PUNITES [PUE nites]—the descendants of PUAH, of the tribe of Issachar (Num. 26:23; Puite, NIV, REB).

PUNON [POO nahn]—an Israelite encampment (see Map 2, C–1) occupied during the last part of the wilderness wandering (Num. 33:42–43). Punon is probably modern Khirbet Feinan on the east side of the Arabah about 40 kilometers (25 miles) south of the Dead Sea.

PURAH [PYUR uh]—one of Gideon's servants, probably his armor-bearer, who went with Gideon under cover of darkness to scout the enemy camp of the Midianites (Judg. 7:10–11; Phurah, KJV).

PURE (see CHASTE).

PURGE—to cast out whatever is impure or undesirable; to refine or free from impurities (Dan. 11:35; 1 Cor. 5:7; Heb. 9:14). In his religious reformation King Josiah purged the temple of Jerusalem and the land of Judah by destroying the altars of the Baals and all idolatrous images (2 Chr. 34:1–8). After he had committed adultery with Bathsheba and sent her husband to his death, David prayed, “Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow” (Ps. 51:7). In His atonement Christ purged our sins by His own blood (Heb. 1:3; 9:22).

PURIFICATION—the act of making clean and pure before God and people. The Mosaic Law provided instructions for both physical and spiritual purification. These laws and regulations were much more than sanitary instructions. The act of purification also involved religious and spiritual cleansing.

The Mosaic Law recognized and detailed purification rituals for three distinct categories of uncleanness. These were skin diseases (Leviticus 13–14), sexual discharges (Leviticus 15), and contact with a dead body (Num. 19:11–19).

By the time of Jesus, much had been added to the laws of purification, making them a burden to the people. Jesus denounced such rituals, teaching that defilement and uncleanness came from the inner motives of the mind and heart (Mark 7:14–23). He taught that genuine purification is possible only by following Him and giving heed to His message of love and redemption (John 15:3).

PURIM [POOR im] (lots)—a Jewish holiday observed on the 14th and 15th of the month of Adar, a month before Passover, in commemoration of the deliverance of the Jews, by ESTHER and MORDECAI, from a massacre plotted by HAMAN (Esth. 3:7; 9:24–32). Also see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS.

PURITY—the quality or state of being free from mixture, pollution, or other foreign elements. The term purity may refer to things (gold, Ex. 25:17; oil, Lev. 24:2) or people. Purity with reference to people may be ethnic (Phil. 3:5), ceremonial (Lev. 19:16–33; Luke 2:22), ethical (Prov. 22:11), or spiritual (1 Tim. 1:5; 4:12).

The Jews of Jesus' day often took ceremonial purity beyond what Scripture commanded. They considered ceremonial purity more valuable than spiritual purity (Mark 7:3–4; Luke 11:39–41). For this error they were soundly rebuked by Jesus (Mark 7:1–13; Luke 11:39–41). The purity a Christian should strive for is spiritual in nature (Matt. 5:8; James 1:27). Also see CHASTE.

PURPLE (see COLORS OF THE BIBLE).

PURPLE GARNET (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

PURSE—a container for carrying money or other objects. In the Old Testament the word for "purse" is used of a small bag or of the gold carried in such a bag (Is. 46:6). A second word is used of the moneybags belonging to Joseph's brothers (Gen. 42:35). David's shepherd pouch (1 Sam. 17:40, 49) was probably a leather bag that shepherds threw over their shoulders and in which they carried food.

The New Testament uses several words to describe bags and purses. One refers to the shepherd's bag carried over the shoulder (Luke 10:4) and to a smaller money purse (Luke 12:33). Another word represents the money box in which Judas kept the disciples' funds (John 12:6; 13:29).

PUT [put]—the name of a man and a land or people mentioned in the Old Testament:

1. One of the sons of Ham (Gen. 10:6; Phut, KJV; 1 Chr. 1:8). Put was a grandson of Noah.
2. The land where Put's descendants lived (see Map 1, A–2). This nation is mentioned in the Bible in connection with Egypt and Ethiopia (Cush). Some scholars identify this land with Punt, an area on the eastern shore of Africa (possibly Somaliland), famous for its incense. Since Put and Punt are not identical in spelling and because Put was known for its warriors rather than its incense, other scholars believe Put refers to certain Libyan tribes west of Egypt.

Men from Put and LUBIM (Libya) were used as mercenary soldiers by the King of Tyre (Ezek. 27:10) and Magog (Ezek. 38:5). But most references in the Bible picture them as allies with Egypt (Jer. 46:9; Ezek. 30:5; Nah. 3:9). Although the warriors of Put were hired to help these different nations secure their borders and win their wars, the prophets point to the futility of such forces in the face of God's mighty power and judgment.

PUTEOLI [poo TEE uh lih]—a seaport on the western shore of southern Italy (see Map 8, A–1) visited by the apostle Paul (Acts 28:13). Puteoli was one of the most important harbors in Italy. At Puteoli the great grain ships from Alexandria were unloaded. Paul stayed with the Christians at Puteoli for a week before he traveled overland toward Rome (Acts 28:14).

Puteoli is now called Pozzuoli, across the Bay of Naples from Pompeii and Mount Vesuvius. The city boasts an ancient Roman amphitheater, built like the Colosseum of Rome. With a capacity of 40,000 to 60,000 people, it was overshadowed in size only by the Colosseum and the amphitheater at nearby Capua.

• The modern wharf at Puteoli surrounds the site where Paul landed on his way to Rome (Acts 28:13–14).

PUTHITES [POO thights]—a family of the tribe of Judah in Kirjath Jearim (1 Chr. 2:53; Puhites, KJV).

PUTIEL [POO tih uhl]—the father-in-law of Aaron’s son Eleazar (Ex. 6:25).

PUVAH [POO vuh]—a form of PUAH.

PYGARG (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

PYRAMID—an ancient massive structure of Egypt with a rectangular base, outside walls in the form of four triangles that meet in a point at the top, and inner chambers used as tombs for Egyptian royalty. Such monuments were constructed over about 80 royal tombs in ancient Egypt.

The first pyramid was the Step Pyramid of King Djoser (about 2600 B.C.). The structure was made of six ascending “steps,” each one smaller than the one below. Most of the other major pyramids were built during the Old Kingdom (2600–2200 B.C.), before the time of Abraham and well before the Israelite sojourn in Egypt.

The Great Pyramid of Khufu, or Cheops, is the largest of the pyramids. One of the seven wonders of the ancient world, it covered 13 acres and was originally 768 feet square and 482 feet high. It is situated at Giza, a city of northern Egypt, on the Nile River near Cairo. Some blocks of the Great Pyramid are estimated to weigh more than 54,400 kilograms (60 tons).

As a sacred symbol, the pyramid played an important part in the religious beliefs of the Egyptians.

The pyramids of Egypt are not mentioned in the Bible. Some scholars, however, believe the Tower of Babel (Gen. 11:1–9) was a stepped structure somewhat like the Egyptian pyramids. “Come, let us build ourselves a city, and a tower whose top is in the heavens” (v. 4).

PYRRHUS [PIR uhs] (flame-colored)—the father of Sopater of Berea (Acts 20:4, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV). Sopater was a friend and companion of the apostle Paul. Some ancient Greek manuscripts do not contain the name Pyrrhus; the name is omitted by the KJV and NKJV.

Q

Q—the letter Q (from the German word Quelle, meaning "source") refers to a hypothetical document that contained material from which Matthew and Luke drew as they wrote certain sections of their gospels. This document supposedly consisted mostly of sayings of Jesus in narrative form. Not all scholars accept the existence of Q as a background document to these gospels. Also see GOSPEL.

QOPH [kofe]—the nineteenth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:145–152. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter qoph. Also see ACROSTIC.

QUAIL (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

QUARRY—an open excavation from which stone is cut, usually for building purposes. Archaeologists have discovered quarries throughout Palestine. The most notable quarries built during the Old Testament period are those near Megiddo, Samaria, Jerusalem, and Ramat Rahel. These four quarries date to about 850 B.C.

The most common method of quarrying was to cut deep, vertical slits on the four sides of the desired block. The stones then were separated from the stone underneath by wedges. While building stones were occasionally finished at the quarry (1 Kin. 6:7), the final dressing was usually completed at the building site.

• This massive cut stone was never removed from an ancient quarry at the Phoenician city of Baalbek, perhaps because of its weight and size.

QUARRYMAN (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

QUARTERMASTER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

QUARTUS [KWOR tus] (fourth)—a Christian who probably lived in Corinth and who sent greetings to the church in Rome (Rom. 16:23). According to early church tradition, Quartus was one of the seventy disciples whom Jesus sent out and who eventually became a bishop at Berytus.

QUARTZ (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

QUATERNION [kwah TURN ih on]—KJV translation of the Greek word tetradion, meaning a guard of four soldiers (Acts 12:4; squad, NKJV).

QUEEN—a female member of the royal house, either the wife of a king, or a woman who reigns by her own power. The term may refer to an actual ruler of state, such as the queen of Sheba (1 Kings 10) or Candace the queen of the Ethiopians (Acts 8:27). BATHSHEBA and JEZEBEL are not called queens, but certainly they ruled with their husbands (1 Kin. 1:21). On the other hand, a queen might be simply the king's favorite mate or wife—as probably was the case with both Vashti and Esther (Esther 1–2).

The term is also used for the queen mother (1 Kin. 15:13, NKJV). The queen mother's name is consistently included in the summaries of the reigns of the kings of Judah (1 Kin. 15:1–2). MAACHAH, King Asa's grandmother, served as queen mother until she was removed by her grandson (1 Kin. 15:9–13). Some years later, Athaliah was a queen mother who seized the throne and ruled in Judah for about six years (2 Kings 11; 2 Chronicles 22–23).

QUEEN OF HEAVEN—a fertility goddess to whom the Israelites, especially the women, offered sacrifice and worship in the days before the fall of the southern kingdom of Judah (Jer. 7:18; 44:17–19, 25). In the time of Jeremiah, many people in Jerusalem and other cities of Judah worshiped the queen of heaven. Their worship included burning incense and pouring out drink offerings to her (Jer. 44:17). This was obviously a form of idolatry, but it is not clear exactly which pagan god was worshiped.

The phrase "queen of heaven" may be a title for the goddess Ishtar (perhaps the same goddess as the biblical ASHTORETH). Cakes were also baked in honor of the "queen of heaven" (Jer. 7:18). These cakes may have been in the shape of stars, crescent moons, or the female figure. The worship of this goddess was one of the evils that brought God's judgment upon Judah. "Behold, My anger and My fury will be poured out on this place," (Jer. 7:20).

QUEEN OF SHEBA (see SHEBA).

QUICK, QUICKEN—KJV translation of several Hebrew and Greek words translated by the NKJV as "alive" (Ps. 55:15), "living" (Acts 10:42), “revive” (Ps. 119:25), and “gives life to” (John 5:21).

QUICKSANDS, THE (see SYRTIS SANDS).

QUIRINIUS [kwy REN ih us]—Roman governor of Syria at the time of Jesus’ birth (Luke 2:1–5; Cyrenius, KJV). Quirinius is mentioned in connection with a census taken for tax purposes. The census was not a local affair; the Roman emperor Augustus (ruled 31 B.C.–A.D. 14) had decreed that all the world, or the Roman Empire, should be taxed. For this purpose, Joseph and Mary made their pilgrimage to Bethlehem. While they were there, Jesus was born.

The Gospel of Luke reports that Quirinius was governor of Syria at a time when HEROD was still alive. According to historians, the governor of Syria at this time was Quintilius Varus. Quirinius may have been a military commander who shared civil duties with Varus.

QUIVER (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

QUMRAN, KHIRBET [KIR beht KOOM rahn]—an ancient ruin on the northwestern shore of the Dead Sea (see Map 6, B–4). In 1947 a wandering goatherder looking for his goats in caves above the dry river bed, or wadi, of Qumran found several large jars. These jars contained ancient scrolls that have since become known as the DEAD SEA SCROLLS. Following this discovery, the area was opened for extensive archaeological research.

From 1951 to 1956 excavation of the area revealed more scrolls, as well as dated coins, pottery, and fragments from scrolls. These items made it possible to connect the Dead Sea Scrolls discovered in nearby caves to the Qumran community, which lived in Khirbet Qumran.

Excavations reveal that Khirbet Qumran was a Jewish community that was active from 130 B.C. to A.D. 135. In 31 B.C. an earthquake destroyed the settlement and made it uninhabitable. In 4 B.C. another group of Jews rebuilt on the site, enlarged it, and occupied it until the war with Rome in A.D. 68, when the Roman garrison sent to destroy Jericho took command of this outpost in the desert. Jewish zealots reestablished themselves at Qumran in A.D. 90 and defended their position until A.D. 135, when the Romans again fought and conquered Jewish resistance.

Some of the remains of walls and pottery in Khirbet Qumran date to the eighth and seventh centuries B.C.—the time of King Uzziah of Judah. The significant period is much later, around 50 B.C. to A.D. 68, when a group of pious Jews built and occupied the fortress, or monastery-like dwelling, at Qumran. The people who occupied the fortress committed themselves to a disciplined life of obedience to the Law as interpreted by the leader of the community, known as the Teacher of Righteousness. Some of the writings found here may be a collection of teachings from the Teacher of Righteousness himself.

The exact identity of the people who lived in Qumran in this later period is not known. Scholars have suggested that they were a small group of Jews who were disgusted with the corruption and lawlessness of the priests and leaders responsible for worship at the temple in Jerusalem. The Qumran community sought to purify itself from the sin of those who distorted the law. Large baths or pools were found in Khirbet Qumran and were probably used for daily ritual baths. Twelve hundred grave sites were found just east of the ruin. The skeletal remains were simply laid to rest in the ground without any burial objects. This indicates that a large number of people inhabited Qumran at one time.

Josephus and Philo, both first-century A.D. Jewish writers, describe a group known as ESSENES who occupied communities similar to Qumran. This has led some scholars to the conviction that Essenes were the residents of Khirbet Qumran and were the authors of the Dead Sea Scrolls. During the Jewish wars with Rome (A.D. 66–73 and A.D. 132–135) ZEALOTS joined the people of Qumran for what they believed to be the final war with evil. The Romans won the war and destroyed the memory of these people until the discovery of the caves at Qumran in 1947.

QUOTATIONS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT. Several different kinds of quotations appear in the New Testament. It includes quotations of pagan authors (Acts 17:28; 1 Cor. 15:33; Titus 1:12) and at least one quotation of a statement of Jesus that is not recorded in any of the four gospels (Acts 20:35).

The New Testament also contains statements that parallel noncanonical literature from the New Testament era. For example, Jude 14 and 15 parallel 1 Enoch 1:9, a book of the APOCRYPHA. The New Testament also quotes itself (Luke 10:7; 1 Tim. 5:18). But more than anything else, it quotes the Old Testament. This indicates how important each testament is for an understanding of the other.

The number of quotations from and allusions to the Old Testament in the New varies with the counter. Direct quotations have been numbered from less than 150 to more than 300. When allusions are added to this number, the total number rises to anywhere from 600 to more than 4,000, again according to the person doing the counting.

A number of verses from the Old Testament are quoted more than once in the New Testament. The majority of quotations are taken from the SEPTUAGINT, the Greek translation of the Old Testament.

The New Testament authors used the Old Testament Scriptures to do several things: (1) to provide authority for their statements or conclusions, (2) to answer questions or to rebuke opponents' claims, (3) to provide further interpretations of the Old Testament, (4) to call attention to parallel situations, (5) to show continuity in the revelation of God, and (6) to demonstrate that the Old Testament predicted the coming of Jesus the Messiah.

R

RAAMA, RAAMAH [RAY uh muh]—the name of a man and a place in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Cush (Gen. 10:7). Raama's sons were Sheba and Dedan.
2. A country or region in southwest Arabia. The merchants of Sheba and Raamah traded in the markets of Tyre. "The merchants of Sheba and Raamah were your merchants. They traded for your wares the choicest spices," (Ezek. 27:22).

RAAMIAH [ray uh MIGH uh]—a form of REELAIAH.

RAAMSES [ray AM sez]—a form of RAMESES.

RABBAH [RAB uh] (great)—the name of two cities in the Old Testament:

1. The chief city of the Ammonites. Known as Rabbah of the people of Ammon (Deut. 3:11; 2 Sam. 12:26), Rabbah (see Map 3, C���4) was at the headwaters of the Jabbok River, 37 kilometers (23 miles) east of the Jordan.

   Rabbah is first mentioned as the place where the giant King Og had his massive iron bedstead (Deut. 3:11; Rabbath, KJV). Rabbah remained the capital of Ammon during David's reign, when the Ammonites and Arameans joined forces to fight against Israel. While Joab and the Israelites camped before the gate of Rabbah, the Arameans marched to MEDEBA (1 Chr. 19:7). In the decisive battle the Israelite armies defeated both the Arameans and the Ammonites, also subjecting the Ammonites to forced labor (2 Sam. 12:27–31; 1 Chr. 20:1–3). During this conflict, Uriah the Hittite was killed at David's orders (2 Sam. 11:1, 15). Later the Ammonites recovered the city. Throughout its history Israel's prophets denounced Rabbah (Jer. 49:2–6; Ezek. 21:20; Amos 1:14).

   Sitting astride the King's Highway, Rabbah's strategic location put it in the middle of most of the conflicts and wars of the biblical period. Consequently, it repeatedly was destroyed and rebuilt. Under Ptolemy Philadelphus (285–246 B.C.) the city became an important trading center renamed Philadelphia. It was the southernmost of the ten cities of the DECAPOLIS. During the Byzantine period of the fourth century A.D., Rabbah ranked in importance with Gerasa (Jerash). Destroyed during the Muslim conquest, Rabbah has once again gained its ancient splendor. Today it is one of the most important Arab cities of the Middle East—Amman, Jordan.

2. A city in the hill country of Judah mentioned with Kirjath Jearim (Josh. 15:60). Some archaeologists have equated it with Rubute of the Amarna Letters and have identified it with Khirbet Bir el-Hilu, 8 kilometers (5 miles) east of Gezer on the road to Jerusalem.

• This Roman amphitheater at Amman, Jordan, is an excellent example of the architecture that dominated Palestine at the time of Jesus. In Old Testament times Amman was known as Rabbah (Amos 1:14).

RABBI [RAB eye] (my teacher)—a title of honor and respect given by the Jews to a doctor (teacher) of the Law. In our day rabbi means a Jew trained for professional religious leadership. The ordained spiritual leader of a Jewish congregation, the rabbi is an official formally authorized to interpret Jewish law. In Jesus' day, however, the term had not yet become a formal title. Instead, it was a term of dignity given by the Jews to their distinguished teachers. The Pharisees loved to be called "Rabbi," but Jesus told his disciples, "Do not be called 'Rabbi'; for One is your Teacher, the Christ, and you are all brethren" (Matt. 23:7–8).

The word rabbi comes from a Semitic root word meaning "great" or "head." It is only used in the gospels, usually of Jesus. The disciples of John the Baptist also addressed him as rabbi. "And they came to John and said to him, 'Rabbi, He who was with you beyond the Jordan, to whom you have testified—behold, He is baptizing, and all are coming to Him!'" (John 3:26).

RABBIT (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

RABBITH [RAB ith] (great)—a border town in the territory of Issachar (Josh. 19:20), perhaps the present village of Raba, about 13 kilometers (8 miles) south of Mount Gilboa.

RABBONI [rab BOE nigh]—a form of RABBI.

RABMAG, THE [RAB mag]—the title of Nergal-Sharezer, a chief officer in the army of Nebuchadnezzar (Jer. 39:3, 13). Rabmag is not a proper name; it is an official position.

RABSARIS, THE [RAB suh ris] (chief official)—the title of two men in the Old Testament:

1. One of three officials sent from Lachish by Sennacherib, king of Assyria (2 Kin. 18:17).
2. An officer under Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and possibly the one who ordered the release of Jeremiah (Jer. 39:3, 13).

Rabsaris was a title of a high government official. The official in Nebuchadnezzar's court known as "the master of his eunuchs" (Dan. 1:3) probably held this office.

RABSHAKEH, THE [RAB shuh kuh] (chief cupbearer)—the title of an Assyrian military official under Sennacherib, king of Assyria (2 Kin. 18:17–37; Is. 36:2–22). The Rabshakeh accompanied the RABSARIS and the TARTAN from Lachish to Jerusalem. They presented Sennacherib's demand that Hezekiah, king of Judah, surrender the city of Jerusalem.

RACA [RAH kah] (stupid)—an expression of contempt (Matt. 5:22). The word appears often in the writings of the Jewish rabbis with the meaning of "ignorant, senseless, empty-headed." To say "Raca" to a person was like saying, "You idiot!"

RACAL [RAY kal]—a form of RACHAL.

RACE—1. A contest that involves speed and endurance.

Races in the Bible are restricted to footraces. With one possible exception (Eccl. 9:11) they are mentioned not for their own sake but to illustrate a spiritual truth (Ps. 19:5; Acts 20:24; 1 Cor. 9:24; 2 Tim. 4:7; Heb. 12:1). Also see GAMES.

2. A group of humans possessing characteristics passed down genetically that are sufficiently recognizable for distinguishing between groups. Such characteristics may be physical, including such external and visible features as height, color of hair, kind of hair, and skin pigmentation. Others may be more subtle and involve such matters as blood types (O, A, B, AB). It is unlikely any one individual ever possesses all of the characteristics or traits that mark his or her race.

Although the only reference to "race" in the NKJV is Zechariah 9:6, and the subject of race is not developed in any comprehensive way in the Bible, various passages of Scripture have often been used to promote racial prejudice. Ranging from relatively harmless to extremely vicious, they tend to cluster around the early chapters of Genesis.

If the Bible speaks anywhere of the origin of what we would today refer to as "races," it is in Genesis 10 (often called the Table of Nations). In that chapter the peoples of the Biblical world (basically the eastern Mediterranean basin) are divided on the basis of their descent from one or more of Noah's three sons (Shem, Ham, and Japheth). Since the Hebrew word for "son" can also mean "descendant" or "successor" or even "nation," and since the word "father" can also mean "ancestor" or "predecessor" or even "founder," we should not be surprised that some of the "sons" listed in Genesis 10 are in fact ethnic or tribal groups (see Gen. 10:13–14 and especially 10:16–18). As it turns out, therefore, the Table of Nations is a kind of literary map of the ancient Near East. The "sons" of Japheth (10:2–4) inhabited the territories north of Canaan and also lived in the maritime regions of southeast Europe. The "sons" of Ham (10:6–19) settled down in Canaan and along the southern shores of the Red Sea (including northeast Africa, notably Egypt). The "sons" of Shem included the Hebrew people (the "children of Eber," 10:21) and other S(h)emitic peoples such as the Assyrians, Arameans and Arabs (10:22–30). They occupied large tracts of territory in western Asia.

It is important to observe that the three main divisions of peoples in the listing of nations (Gen. 10:32) are not always (or only) racial in origin. With respect to the "sons" of Ham, for example, we are told that they were separated out "according to their families, according to their languages, in their lands and in their nations" (10:20; see similarly 10:5, 31). "Families" is an ethnic term, "languages" is a linguistic term, "lands" is geographic, and "nations" is political. It is clear, therefore, that several criteria were used in describing the "ancestry" or location of this or that group of people. This may help to explain why a few of them, such as Sheba (10:7, 28) and Havilah (10:7, 29), are listed more than once. Perhaps, in one case, the division was based on ethnic or linguistic considerations while in another case a geographic or political concern was most important. It is worth noting that skin color and other "racial" characteristics are totally absent from the Table of Nations.

Conveniently summarized in the genealogical lists of 1 Chronicles 1, the total of nations is seventy, a number that often symbolizes completion: fourteen from Japheth (1 Chron. 1:5–7), thirty from Ham (1:8–16), and twenty-six from Shem (1:17–23). Before the Israelites occupied Canaan, seven (again, a number signifying completion) groups of people inhabited it: Amorites, Canaanites, Girgashites, Hittites, Hivites, Jebusites, and Perizzites (Deut. 7:1; Josh. 3:10; 24:11). Sometimes the list is reduced to as few as two (Gen. 13:7; 34:30; Judg. 1:4–5) or expanded to as many as ten (Gen. 15:19–21)—another number often symbolizing completion.

Israelites sometimes intermarried with people from one or more of those nations (Gen. 34:2, 9, 16, 21). Since all members of the human race are of the biological species Homo sapiens, such intermarriage is not wrong in and of itself. But since marrying into a foreign tribal group implied accepting that group's religion, the people of God were warned not to do so. Indeed, Nehemiah called curses down on a number of Jewish men in his day because they had married women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab (Neh. 13:23–25). He reminded them that King Solomon had committed a grave error in this regard: "Pagan women caused even him to sin. Should we then hear of your doing all this great evil, transgressing against our God by marrying pagan women?" (13:26–27). The fact that the women were foreign, or of another racial or ethnic stock, was not the issue. The sin was in marrying someone who was "pagan."

The teachings of Jesus and the apostles in the New Testament are equally clear. Christ died to redeem everyone, and the gospel is to be "preached in His name to all nations" (Luke 24:46–47). God loved all the people in the whole world so much that He gave His Son for them (John 3:16). Although in Jesus' day Jews had "no dealings with Samaritans" (John 4:4), He made a special effort to minister to the needs of a Samaritan woman (4:4, 10–26). Christ draws all people to Himself without regard for race or nationality (John 12:32). The distinguishing mark of true disciples is love for every believer, regardless of race or color (John 13:34–35). No ethnic group is inferior to any other (Acts 10:28). All nations have a common origin and constitute a single human family (Acts 17:26).

RACHAB [RAY kab]—a form of RAHAB.

RACHAL [RAY kal]—a town in southern Judah to which David sent some of the spoils of battle taken from the Amalekites (1 Sam. 30:29; Racal, NIV, NRSV).

RACHEL [RAY chuhl] (lamb)—the younger daughter of Laban; the second wife of Jacob; and the mother of Joseph and Benjamin.

Jacob met Rachel, the beautiful younger daughter of his uncle Laban, at a well near Haran in Mesopotamia as he fled from his brother Esau (Gen. 29:6, 11). Jacob soon asked Laban for Rachel as his wife (Gen.

29:15–18). However, it was customary in those days for the groom or his family to pay the bride's family a price for their daughter. Having no property of his own, Jacob served Laban seven years for Rachel, only to be tricked on the wedding day into marrying Rachel's older sister, Leah (Gen. 29:21–25). Jacob then had to serve another seven years for Rachel (Gen. 29:26–30).

Although Rachel was Jacob's favorite wife, she envied Leah, who had given birth to four sons—Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah—while she herself had remained childless (Gen. 29:31–35). Her response was to give her handmaid Bilhah to Jacob. According to this ancient custom, the child of Bilhah and Jacob would have been regarded as Rachel's. Bilhah bore Dan and Naphtali (Gen. 30:1–8), but Rachel named them, indicating they were her children. Rachel's desperate desire to become fruitful is illustrated by her asking for Reuben's mandrakes, which she believed would bring fertility (Gen. 30:14–16). Mandrakes were considered love potions or magic charms by people of the ancient world.

Only after Zilpah, Leah's handmaid, produced two sons—Gad and Asher (Gen. 30:9–13)—and after Leah had borne two more sons and a daughter—Issachar, Zebulun, and Dinah (Gen. 30:17–21)—did Rachel finally conceive. She bore to Jacob a son named Joseph (Gen. 30:22–24), who became his father's favorite and who was sold into Egypt by his jealous brothers. Rachel died following the birth of her second son, whom she named Ben-Oni (son of my sorrow). But Jacob later renamed him Benjamin (son of the right hand). Jacob buried Rachel near Ephrath (or Bethlehem) and set a pillar on her grave (Gen. 35:16–20). Jews still regard Rachel's tomb with great respect. The traditional site is about a mile north of Bethlehem and about four miles south of Jerusalem.

Although Rachel was Jacob's favorite wife, the line of David and ultimately the messianic line passed through Leah and her son Judah, not Rachel. "Rachel weeping for her children" (Jer. 31:15; Rahel, KJV; Matt. 2:18) became symbolic of the sorrow and tragedy suffered by the Israelites. Matthew points out that the murder of all the male children in Bethlehem, from two years old and under, by Herod the Great, was the fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecy (Matt. 2:16–18).

RADDAI [RAD igh]—a son of Jesse (1 Chr. 2:14) and brother of David.

RAFT—a collection of logs or timber fastened together for transportation by water. In the days of King Solomon of Israel and King Hiram of Tyre, cedar and cypress logs were hauled down from Mount Lebanon, floated in rafts southward to Joppa, and then carried overland to Jerusalem (1 Kin. 5:9, floats, KJV). In Jerusalem they were used in the construction of Solomon's TEMPLE. These logs may have been conveyed to Joppa not in a raft, but as a raft—roped together for easy transportation.

RAGAU [RAG oe]—a form of REU.

RAGUEL [RAG yoo uhl]—a form of REUEL.

RAHAB [RAY hab]—a harlot of Jericho who hid two Hebrew spies, helping them to escape, and who became an ancestor of David and Jesus (Josh. 2:1–21; 6:17–25; Matt. 1:5). Rahab's house was on the city wall of Jericho. Rahab, who manufactured and dyed linen, secretly housed the two spies whom Joshua sent to explore Jericho and helped them escape by hiding them in stalks of flax on her roof (Josh. 2:6).

Rahab sent the king's messengers on a false trail, and then let the two spies down the outside wall by a rope through the window of her house (Josh. 2:15). When the Israelites captured Jericho, they spared the house with the scarlet cord in the window—a sign that a friend of God's people lived within. Rahab, therefore, along with her father, her mother, her brothers, and all her father's household, was spared. Apparently she and her family were later brought into the nation of Israel.

Matthew refers to Rahab as the wife of Salmon (Ruth 4:20–21; Matt. 1:4–5; Luke 3:32; Salma, 1 Chr. 2:11). Their son Boaz married Ruth and became the father of Obed, the grandfather of Jesse, and the great-grandfather of David. Thus, a Canaanite harlot became part of the lineage of King David out of which the Messiah came (Matt. 1:5; Rachab, KJV)—perhaps an early sign that God's grace and forgiveness is extended to all, that it is not limited by nationality or the nature of a person's sins.

The Scriptures do not tell us how Rahab, who came out of a culture where harlotry and idolatry were acceptable, recognized the Lord as the one true God. But her insights recorded in Joshua 2:9–11 leave no doubt that she did so. This Canaanite woman's declaration of faith led the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews to cite Rahab as one of the heroes of faith (Heb. 11:31), while James commended her as an example of one who has been justified by works (James 2:25).

According to rabbinic tradition, Rahab was one of the four most beautiful women in the world and was the ancestor of eight prophets, including Jeremiah and the prophetess Huldah.

RAHAB-HEM-SHEBETH [RAY hab hem SHEH beth] (Rahab sits idle)—a name given by the prophet Isaiah to Egypt (Is. 30:7), comparing that nation to RAHAB THE DRAGON, a mythological sea monster or primeval dragon of chaos. The context of this passage is that Israel had sought to establish a political and military alliance with Egypt under the threat of Assyrian aggression. The prophet Isaiah warned that such an alliance was worthless. Trust in God alone, warned Isaiah; Egypt cannot save others, for she cannot even save herself.

RAHAB THE DRAGON [RAY hab]—a mythological sea monster or dragon representing the evil forces of chaos that God subdued by His creative power. The name Rahab as it occurs in Job 9:13 (NIV), Job 26:12 (NIV), Psalm 87:4 and 89:10, Isaiah 30:7 (NIV), and Isaiah 51:9 has no connection with the personal name of Rahab, the harlot of Jericho, in Joshua 2:1–21. The references to Rahab in the books of Job, Psalms, and Isaiah speak of an evil power overcome by God.

God's smiting of Rahab is described in Job 26:12 (NIV) to signify God's power over the chaos of primeval waters at the Creation. The NKJV translates as the storm for Rahab.

Because the Rahab-dragon imagery was used in describing the deliverance from Egypt, the name Rahab also became a synonym for Egypt itself (Ps. 87:4; Is. 30:7; RAHAB-HEM-SHEBETH, NKJV). In its widest sense, the dragon can represent any force that opposes God's will. It is a fitting symbol for Satan (Rev. 20:2).

RAHAM [RAY ham] (pity)—a son of Shema, of the family of Caleb (1 Chr. 2:44).

RAHEL [RAY huhl]—a form of RACHEL.

RAIL—KJV translation of Hebrew and Greek words rendered by the NKJV as revile (2 Chr. 32:17; 1 Sam. 25:14), blasphemed (Mark 15:29; Luke 23:39), reviling (1 Tim. 6:4; 1 Pet. 3:9; 2 Pet. 2:11; Jude 9), and reviler (1 Cor. 5:11). Also see REPROACH.

RAIMENT (see DRESS OF THE BIBLE).

RAIN—liquid precipitation that provides essential moisture for plants, animals, and man. The biblical writers believed that only the Lord, and not the pagan gods, had control over the rain. This belief was strikingly confirmed several times in the Old Testament, especially through the predictions of Moses (Ex. 9:33–34) and Samuel (1 Sam. 12:17–18), the prayers of Elijah (1 Kin. 18:42–45), and God's announcement of the Flood (Gen. 7:4, 10–12).

In addition to these special occasions, God promised to send rain at the proper time (Lev. 26:4; Deut. 11:14), a promise that applied to all nations (Matt. 5:45; Acts 14:17). The rain was a sign of God's blessing to the Israelites (Deut. 28:12), although He could also hold back the rain, either as a warning (Amos 4:6–7) or as an expression of His judgment (1 Kin. 17:1; Jer. 3:3).

Belief in God's power to send the rain was not easy in an area like Palestine, where the timing, quantity, and distribution of rainfall were uncertain. The rainy season was synonymous with winter (Song 2:11; Prov. 26:1), but it could begin any time from mid-October to January. It generally ended in April or early May. The early and latter rains were especially significant in the Old Testament period (Deut. 11:14; Joel 2:23). The people longed for the rain (Jer. 14:4), and waterless clouds were the source of frustration and irritation (Prov. 25:14; Jude 12).

Rainfall was much heavier in the north, the west, and on sea-facing hills. For example, in modern times the average annual rainfall in the mountains of Upper Galilee is 738 millimeters (29 inches); at Jerusalem, 560 millimeters (22 inches); but only 50 millimeters (2 inches) at Sodom at the southern end of the Dead Sea. Storms were often very heavy. This truth is reflected in Jesus' parables (Matt. 7:25, 27) and in the experiences of Elijah (1 Kin. 18:45) and Ezra (Ezra 10:9, 13).

Rain is often a symbol of abundance in the Bible, a further testimony to the occasional heaviness of Palestine's rain. This abundance is compared with the effectiveness of God's Word (Deut. 32:2; Is. 55:10), with the righteousness and peace of God's kingdom (Ps. 72:6–7; Hos. 10:12), and with God's provision of food in the wilderness (Ex. 16:4; Ps. 78:24, 27). But rain could also be destructive (Prov. 28:3; Is. 4:6). The Bible sometimes speaks of the rain as a sign of God's judgment, when He might rain down hail, fire, or brimstone (Ex. 9:18).

RAINBOW—an arch of colors in the sky, caused by light passing through moisture in the air. The most important reference to the rainbow in the Bible occurs in Genesis 9:13–17, where the rainbow serves as a sign of God's covenant with Noah. This covenant was a promise by God to the world that it would never again be destroyed by a flood. The rain clouds and the rainbow were never again to be regarded by people as a threat of ultimate judgment, but as an unchanging indicator of God's mercy. This passage does not state that this was the first rainbow, but that it gained this new significance after the Flood.

The remaining references to the rainbow in the Bible develop this symbolism. They all occur in passages where judgment is to be announced, notably in Revelation 4:3 and 10:1 in connection with God's judgment of the world (Ezek. 1:28). In all these cases, however, the rainbow is a sign of the glorious presence of God. It is a reminder that His mercy and grace will finally triumph.

RAISIN CAKE—a dessert or delicacy in Solomon's time (Song 2:5; flagon, KJV). These cakes were made from dried raisins. Raisin cakes were also connected by the prophet Hosea with sacrifices made to the pagan god Ishtar (Hos. 3:1).

RAISINS—dried grapes prepared by soaking grapes in water and oil and drying them in the sun. Raisins were usually made into cakes. Slow to spoil and high in sugar, raisin cakes were ideal food for fighting men and travelers (1 Sam. 30:12).

RAKEM [RAY kem]—a descendant of Manasseh (1 Chr. 7:16).

RAKKATH [RAK uhth]—a fortified city in the territory of Naphtali, on the west shore of the Sea of Galilee, apparently situated between Hammath and Chinnereth (Josh. 19:35).

RAKKON [RAK ahn]—a city in the original territory of Dan (Josh. 19:46).

RAM [ramm] (high, exalted)—the name of three men in the Bible:

1. The father of Amminadab of the tribe of Judah (Ruth 4:19; 1 Chr. 2:9–10). Ram was an ancestor of Jesus Christ through King David (Matt. 1:3–4; Luke 3:33; Aram, KJV).
2. The firstborn son of Jerahmeel of Judah (1 Chr. 2:25, 27). This Ram is apparently the nephew of No. 1.
3. The founder of a family or clan that included Elihu, one of the friends of Job (Job 32:2).

RAMA [RAY muh]—Greek form of RAMAH.

RAMAH [RAY mah] (height)—the name of six cities in the Old Testament:

1. Ramah of Benjamin, one of the cities allotted to the tribe of Benjamin (Josh. 18:25) in the vicinity of Bethel (Judg. 4:5) and Gibeah (Judg. 19:13). According to Judges 4:5, Deborah lived between Ramah and Bethel.

   Shortly after the division of the nation of Israel into two kingdoms, King Baasha of Israel fortified Ramah against King Asa of Judah (1 Kin. 15:16–17). Ramah lay on the border between the two kingdoms. The fortification was done to guard the road to Jerusalem so no one from the Northern Kingdom would attempt to go to Jerusalem to worship. Baasha was also afraid these people would want to live in the Southern Kingdom.

   When Asa learned that Baasha was fortifying the city, he bribed the Syrians to invade the north (1 Kin. 15:18–21) so Baasha's attention would be turned away from Ramah. Meanwhile, Asa dismantled Ramah and used the stones to build two forts of his own nearby at Geba and Mizpah (1 Kin. 15:22; 2 Chr. 16:6).

   When Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah, he detained the Jewish captives, including Jeremiah, at Ramah (Jer. 40:1). The captives who were too old or weak to make the trip to Babylonia were slaughtered here. This was the primary fulfillment of the prophecy, "A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children" (Jer. 31:15), although Matthew also applies it to Herod's slaughter of children after the birth of Christ (Matt. 2:18). This city also figures in the prophecies of Isaiah (10:29) and Hosea (5:8).
2. Ramah of Ephraim, the birthplace, home, and burial place of the prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 7:17; 19:18–23; 28:3). It is elsewhere referred to as Ramathaim Zophim (1 Sam. 1:1). The exact location of this Ramah is unknown.

   It was at Ramah that the elders of Israel demanded a king (1 Sam. 8:4) and Saul first met Samuel (1 Sam. 9:6, 10). David sought refuge from Saul in Ramah as well (1 Sam. 19:18; 20:1). In New Testament times the name of this town was ARIMATHEA.

3. Ramah of Naphtali, one of the fortified cities of Naphtali (Josh. 19:36). Ramah appears to have been in the mountainous country northwest of the Sea of Galilee. It is identified with Khirbet Zeitun er-Rama, about 3 kilometers (2 miles) southwest of the modern village of er-Rama.
4. Ramah of Asher, a town on the border of Asher (Josh. 19:29). Ramah is mentioned only once in the Bible and was apparently near the seacoast. It has been identified both with er-Ramia, about 21 kilometers (13 miles) south of Tyre, and with an unknown site north of Tyre but south of Sidon.
5. Ramah of the South, a town of Simeon in the Negev (South country) of Judah (Josh. 19:8; Ramah in the Negev, NIV; Ramah of the Negeb, NRSV; Ramah of the Negev, NASB; Ramath-negeb, NEB; Ramath of the south, KJV). Joshua 19:8 identifies this town as BAALATH BEER.
6. Ramah of Gilead (2 Kin. 8:29; 2 Chr. 22:6), elsewhere known as Ramoth Gilead. This was an important town on the Syrian border, about 40 kilometers (25 miles) east of the Jordan River. King Ahab was killed in a battle for this site after failing to heed the prophet Micaiah’s warning (1 Kin. 22:1–40). Ahab’s son Joram was wounded in a battle at Ramah (2 Kin. 8:28). Here too Jehu was anointed to succeed Joram as king of Israel (2 Kin. 9:1–13).

RAMATH [RAY math]—a form of RAMAH.

RAMATH LEHI [RAY muhth LEE high] (the high place of the jawbone)—a place in Judah where Samson killed a thousand Philistines with the jawbone of a donkey (Judg. 15:17). The place is also called LEHI (Judg. 15:9, 14, 19), which means "jawbone" or "cheek." This site was probably northwest of Bethlehem.

RAMATH MIZPAH [RAY muhth MIZ puh] (high place of the watchtower)—a city in TRANSJORDAN, in the territory of Gad (Josh. 13:26; Ramath-mizpeh, NASB, RSV; Ramoth-mizpah, NEB).

RAMATH-MIZPEH [RAY muhth MIZ puh]—a form of RAMATH MIZPAH.

RAMATH-NEGEB [ray math NEG ebb]—a form of RAMAH.

RAMATH OF THE SOUTH [RAY math]—a form of RAMAH.

RAMATHITE [RAY muhth ight]—a native or inhabitant of RAMAH. Shimei the Ramathite was overseer of the vineyards of David (1 Chr.

RAMESES, RAAMSES [RAM uh seez, RAM seez] (the god Ra has fathered a son)—the royal city of the Egyptian kings of the nineteenth and twentieth dynasties (about 1300–1100 B.C.) situated in the northeastern section of the Nile Delta. While the people of Israel were slaves in Egypt, they were forced to work on at least two of Pharaoh's vast construction projects—building the supply cities of Pithom and Raamses (Ex. 1:11, KJV, NASB, NKJV; Rameses, NIV, NRSV, REB).

The reference to "the land of Rameses" (Gen. 47:11) in the story of Joseph, well before Pharaoh Ramses II lived, suggests that the author of Genesis used the "modern" name (Rameses)—the name that was common in his day and not the earlier name of the city, which was used during the time of Joseph. This may also be true of the use of Rameses in the account of the Exodus, because the Hebrews apparently left Egypt around 1446 B.C., well before the time of King Ramses.

"The land of Rameses" (Gen. 47:11) was "the best of the land"—the most fertile district of Egypt. This almost certainly refers to the Land of Goshen, in the northeastern Nile Delta.

RAMIAH [ruh MIGH uh] (the Lord is exalted)—a son of Parosh who divorced his pagan wife after the captivity (Ezra 10:25).

RAMOTH [ray MOTH]—a form of REMETH.

RAMOTH GILEAD [RAY muhth GIL ee uhd] (heights of Gilead)—an important fortified city in the territory of Gad near the border of Israel and Syria (see Map 4, C–3). It was approximately 40 kilometers (25 miles) east of the Jordan River. Ramoth Gilead was designated by Moses as one of the CITIES OF REFUGE (Deut. 4:43; Josh. 20:8). In the time of Solomon, one of the king's twelve district officers was stationed at Ramoth Gilead to secure food for the king's household, since it was a commercial center.

Because of its strategic location near the border of Israel and Syria, Ramoth Gilead was frequently the scene of battles between the two nations. The Jewish historian Josephus says that the city was captured by King Omri from Ben-Hadad I. It then changed hands several times. King Ahab enlisted the aid of King Jehoshaphat to retake the city, but he was mortally wounded in the attempt (2 Chr. 28–34). Ahab’s son Joram was likewise wounded while attacking Ramoth Gilead (2 Kin. 8:28). While Jehu was maintaining possession of Ramoth Gilead, Elisha sent his servant to anoint Jehu king of Israel (2 Kin. 9:1–13).

RAMOTH-NEGEB [RAY moth NEG ebb]—a form of RAMAH.

RAMPART—a fortification consisting of an elevation or embankment, often provided with a wall to protect soldiers. A rampart was used as a protective barrier against an attacking army. The Hebrew word translated as rampart (Lam. 2:8; Nah. 3:8) means encirclement; it is variously translated by the KJV as army, bulwark, host, rampart, trench, and wall. The general sense of the word is that of the outer fortification, or the front line of defense, encircling a city (2 Sam. 20:15; Hab. 2:1). This fortification included moats and towers as well as walls and earthworks. Also see FORT, FORTIFICATION; WAR, WARFARE.

RAM’S HORN (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

• A ram’s horn, or shofar, used by the Israelites as a trumpet to summon the people to battle or to gather for worship.

RAMS’ SKINS—the tanned hides of male sheep, usually dyed. Rams’ skins were worn as garments by shepherds. They were also used as the inner covering of the TABERNACLE.

RANSOM (see REDEMPTION).

RAPE—the crime of forcing another person to submit to sexual intercourse. The word “rape” does not occur in many English translations of the Bible (KJV, NKJV). The NIV, NRSV, and the REB, however, do use the word (Judg. 20:5; Zech. 14:2). The account given in the Book of Judges tells of the “filthy outrage” (Judg. 20:6) of the men of Gibeah who assaulted and abused a woman so that she died.

Zechariah the prophet predicted that Jerusalem would be captured, “the houses plundered and the women raped” (Zech. 14:2, REB). This prophecy did come true. The Book of Lamentations records that “women were raped in Zion, virgins raped in the cities of Judah” (Lam. 5:11, REB).

The Mosaic laws concerning rape and seduction are recorded in Exodus 22:16–17 and Deuteronomy 22:25–29.

RAPHA [RAY fuh] ([God] has healed)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. An ancestor of four Philistines from Gath who fell at the hands of David (2 Sam. 21:15–22).
2. The fifth son of Benjamin (1 Chr. 8:2).

RAPHAH [RAY fah] ([God] has healed)—a descendant of King Saul of the tribe of Benjamin (1 Chr. 8:37; Rapha, KJV), also called Rephaiah (1 Chr. 9:43).

RAPHU [RAY foo] (healed)—the father of Palti (Num. 13:9). Palti was one of twelve men sent by Moses into Canaan as spies.

RAS SHAMRA [rahs SHAHM ruh] (fennel mound)—the modern name of the mound (Minet el-Beida) that marks the site of the ancient city of UGARIT. The site is on the coast of Syria, opposite the island of Cyprus.

Beginning in 1929 a team of French archaeologists worked at excavating Ras Shamra-Ugarit. Many clay tablets, inscribed in CUNEIFORM, were unearthed. These tablets were written in Ugaritic, a Semitic language closely related to Phoenician and Hebrew. They contain mythological texts and religious poetry of the ancient Canaanite religions, indicating that although El was the head of the Canaanite gods, he was being replaced by Baal.

The excavations at Ras Shamra-Ugarit also brought to light a great palace and two temples, dedicated to the pagan gods Baal and Dagon. Ras Shamra-Ugarit disappeared about 1200 B.C.

RAT, RAVEN (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

RAZOR (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

REAIA [ree AY uh]—a form of REAIAH No. 2.

REAIAH [ree AY uh] (the Lord sees)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Shobal (1 Chr. 4:2), also called Haroeh (1 Chr. 2:52).
2. A son of Micah (1 Chr. 5:5; Reaia, KJV).
3. The founder of a family of temple servants whose descendants returned with Zerubbabel from the captivity (Ezra 2:47; Neh. 7:50).

REAPING—the practice of harvesting grain. A sickle, with a short handle and a curved blade, was normally used for reaping. These tools were made of flint, bone, bronze, and iron. A supervisor organized the reapers (Ruth 2:5), who were often hired for daily wages (Deut. 24:15; Matt. 20:1–16) and provided with food (Job 24:10–11). The workers were followed by the poor and the foreigners such as RUTH, who gathered the leftover grain from the harvest (Deut. 24:19; Ruth 2:23).

REBA [REE buh]—one of five Midianite kings killed by the Israelites in the plains of Moab (Num. 31:8).

REBECCA [ruh BEK uh]—a form of REBEKAH.

REBEKAH [ruh BEK uh]—the wife of Isaac and the mother of Esau and Jacob. The story of Rebekah (Genesis 24) begins when Abraham, advanced in age, instructs his chief servant to go to Mesopotamia and seek a bride for Isaac. Abraham insisted that Isaac marry a young woman from his own country and kindred, not a Canaanite.

When Abraham's servant arrived at Padan Aram, he brought his caravan to a well outside the city. At the well he asked the Lord for a sign that would let him know which young woman was to be Isaac's bride. When Rebekah came to the well carrying her water pitcher, she not only gave the servant a drink of water from her pitcher but she also offered to draw water for his camels. These actions were the signs for which the servant had prayed, and he knew that Rebekah was the young woman whom the Lord God had chosen for Isaac.

When the servant asked Rebekah her name and the name of her family, he learned that she was the granddaughter of Nahor (Abraham's brother) and, therefore, was the grandniece of Abraham. The servant then told Rebekah and her father the nature of his mission, and she chose to go to Canaan and become Isaac's wife.

When a famine struck the land of Canaan, Isaac took Rebekah to Gerar, a city of the Philistines (Gen. 26:1–11). Fearful that Rebekah's beauty would lead the Philistines to kill him and seize his wife, he told them she was his sister. Abimelech, king of the Philistines, criticized Isaac for this deception. A similar story is told of Abraham and Sarah, who were scolded for their deception by Abimelech, king of Gerar (Gen. 20:1–18).

Nor was Rebekah above deception. When the time came for Isaac to give his birthright to Esau, she conspired with Jacob and tricked Isaac into giving it to Jacob instead. Jacob was forced to flee to Padan Aram to escape Esau's wrath.

As a result of her scheming, Rebekah never again saw her son. Apparently she died while Jacob was in Mesopotamia. She was buried in the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 49:30–31), where Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Sarah, and Leah were also buried.

Rebekah's name is spelled Rebecca in the New Testament (Rom. 9:10).

RECAB [REE kab], RECABITES [REE kab ights]—forms of RECHAB and RECHABITES.

RECAH [REE kuh]—a form of RECHAH.

RECHAB [REE kab] (charioteer)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Rimmon, a Benjamite from Beeroth (2 Sam. 4:2, 5, 9; Recab, NIV). Rechab and his brother Baanah were both captains in the army of Ishbosheth with whom David struggled for Israel's throne after Saul's death. While Ishbosheth was lying in his bed, Rechab and Baanah stabbed him and beheaded him. The next day they brought Ishbosheth's head to David, thinking he would be pleased and would reward them. Instead, "David commanded his young men, and they executed them, cut off their hands and feet, and hanged them by the pool in Hebron" (2 Sam. 4:12).
2. The father of JEHONADAB (2 Kin. 10:15, 23). Jehonadab assisted Jehu in his violent purge of the house of Ahab and zealous war against Baal worshipers. Jehonadab was the ancestor of the RECHABITES (Jer. 35:1–19).
3. The father of Malchijah (Neh. 3:14). Malchijah may have been the head of the Rechabites after the captivity. Malchijah helped Nehemiah rebuild the wall of Jerusalem.

RECHABITES [REE kab ights]—a Kenite tribe founded by Jonadab, the son of Rechab (Jer. 35:1–9; Recabites, NIV). The Rechabites were convinced it was easier to live a godly life as nomads than in the settled life of the cities, where they would be tempted with idolatry and immorality. They did not drink wine or other intoxicating drink; they chose to live in tents rather than houses; and they refused to plant crops or own vineyards. This strict lifestyle was similar to the law of the NAZIRITE (Num. 6:1–21).

The only biblical description of the Rechabites occurs in Jeremiah 35. When Nebuchadnezzar's army attacked Judah and besieged Jerusalem, the Rechabites sought refuge in the city (Jer. 35:11). At God's command, Jeremiah tested them to see if they would live up to their vows. He set wine before them and encouraged them to drink, but they refused. Jeremiah praised them and held them up as an object lesson to the people of Judah who had disobeyed the laws of God.

Because of their faithfulness, Jeremiah promised that the Rechabites would never cease to exist (Jer. 35:18–19). A rabbinic tradition says that the daughters of the Rechabites were married to the sons of the Levites and that their children ministered in the temple. Followers of this group still live in the Middle East—in Iraq and Yemen.

RECHAH [REE kuh]—a village in Judah (1 Chr. 4:12; Recah, NASB, NIV, NRSV).

RECONCILIATION—the process by which God and people are brought together again. The Bible teaches that they are alienated from one another because of God's holiness and human sinfulness. Although God loves the sinner (Rom. 5:8), it is impossible for Him not to judge sin (Heb. 10:27). Therefore, in biblical reconciliation, both parties are affected. Through the sacrifice of Christ, people's sins are atoned for and God's wrath is appeased. Thus, a relationship of hostility and alienation is changed into one of peace and fellowship.

The initiative in reconciliation was taken by God—while we were still sinners and "enemies," Christ died for us (Rom. 5:8, 10; Col. 1:21). Reconciliation is thus God's own completed act, something that takes place before human actions such as confession, repentance, and restitution. God Himself "has reconciled us to Himself through Jesus Christ" (2 Cor. 5:18).

Paul regarded the gospel as "the word of reconciliation" (2 Cor. 5:19). And knowing "the terror of the Lord," Paul pleaded, implored, and persuaded people to be "reconciled to God" (2 Cor. 5:20).

RECORDER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

RED (see COLORS OF THE BIBLE).

RED HEIFER—a young cow "without blemish" that was slaughtered outside the camp of the Israelites and then burned in the fire. Its ashes were used as a SIN OFFERING to bring about PURIFICATION from uncleanness. The need for purification from uncleanness would arise when a person touched a corpse, a human bone, or a grave (Num. 19:2–17).

The entire heifer—its hide, flesh, blood, and intestines—was to be burned. A priest would cast into fire cedar wood (symbolic of durability), hyssop (symbolic of healing, cleansing power), and scarlet thread (probably symbolic of the blood that atones for sin). When a case of uncleanness arose, the ashes of the red heifer were to be mixed in a vessel with “living” (fresh spring) water and sprinkled with hyssop over the unclean person and his dwelling.

Also see SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS.

RED JASPER (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

RED SEA—a narrow body of water (see Map 1, B–3) that stretches in a southeasterly direction from Suez to the Gulf of Aden for about 2,100 kilometers (1,300 miles). It is an important section of a large volcanic split in the earth that goes southward into east Africa and continues north along the Jordan Valley to the Lebanon mountain range.

The Red Sea separates two large portions of land. On the east are Yemen and Saudi Arabia. On the west are Egypt, the Sudan, and Ethiopia. From ancient times the Red Sea has been an impressive sea covering some 169,000 square miles. It measures about 310 kilometers (190 miles) at its widest part and almost 2,900 meters (about 9,500 feet) at its greatest depth. The Red Sea branches at its northern end into two distinct channels, the northeasterly one being the Gulf of Aqaba and the northwesterly one named the Gulf of Suez. The Suez branch is fairly shallow and has broad plains on either side. By contrast, the Gulf of Aqaba is deep and clear, with a narrow shoreline.

The Red Sea is usually bright turquoise, but periodically algae grow in the water. When they die, the sea becomes reddish-brown, thus giving it the name, the Red Sea. This body of water has the reputation of being one of the hottest and saltiest on earth. The reason for this is the presence of volcanic slits in the ocean floor that have become filled with salt deposits and other minerals. The sea is heavily traveled because the Suez Canal links it with the Mediterranean. But navigation is difficult at the southern end because of outcroppings of coral reefs that force ships into a narrow channel of water. No large rivers flow into the Red Sea, and there is little rainfall in the area it crosses.

The name “Red Sea” has found its way into the Bible as a translation of the Hebrew yam suph, which means “sea of reeds” and not “Red Sea.” The term suph comes from the Egyptian twf, meaning “papyrus.” This confusion is unfortunate because papyrus reeds and similar vegetation do not grow in the Red Sea or in the Gulf of Suez. This fact excludes them as the area that witnessed the deliverance of the Hebrew captives at the time of the Exodus.

The term yam suph, however, seems to have been applied from the time of Solomon onwards to some area near to, or identical with, the Gulf of Aqaba. In 1 Kings 9:26 Ezion Geber, Solomon's port in the Gulf, is described as being on the shore of the yam suph in the land of Edom. A further possible reference to the Gulf of Aqaba is in Jeremiah 49:21. In this prophecy dealing with Edom, Jeremiah spoke of their desolation being heard as far as the yam suph.

Perhaps the place-name Suph in Deuteronomy 1:1, where Moses spoke God's words to the Israelites, was either a shortened form of yam suph, indicating the Gulf of Aqaba, or some settlement in that area. Just before Korah, Dathan, and Abiram met their end as the result of an earthquake, the Israelites had been instructed to go into the wilderness by way of the yam suph (Deut. 1:40). At a later stage, after the death of Aaron, the Hebrews left Mount Hor by a route near the yam suph to go around hostile Edomite territory (Num. 21:4). Such a journey would have brought them to the northeast of the Gulf of Aqaba, which might suggest that this body of water was being described by the term yam suph.

There is a strong argument against identifying the Gulf of Aqaba with the yam suph, or "Red Sea," that the fleeing Israelites crossed under the leadership of Moses. A crossing of the Gulf of Aqaba would have taken the Israelites much too far from the Goshen area. To reach the gulf they would have had to skirt the western edge of the Wilderness of Shur and make a direct southeast journey through the rugged central Sinai region and the Wilderness of Paran. Having crossed this yam suph, the Israelites would then have had to go north and then return to the Sinai Peninsula to meet with God at Mount Horeb.

An alternative suggestion is to regard the term yam suph not merely as describing a specific body of water, but as a general title that could be applied to any marshy area where reeds and papyri grew. The Egyptians used such terms in a wide sense. In the 15th century B.C. they spoke of both the Mediterranean and the Red Sea as the "Great Green Sea." Since there were several marshes in the Nile Delta, yam suph could apply to any one of them. It is even possible that the yam suph of Numbers 33:10–11 referred to the Gulf of Suez but that the Israelite visit there occurred after the Exodus. The view that the Gulf of Suez extended much further northward into the area of the Bitter Lakes during the time of the Exodus cannot be supported by archaeological evidence or other studies.

The best understanding of yam suph is that it does not refer to the Red Sea or any of its branches. Instead, it probably refers to water bordered by papyrus reeds and located somewhere between the southern edge of Lake Menzaleh and the lakes close to the head of the Gulf of Suez that were drained when the Suez Canal was constructed. Such a location for the Exodus would be directly opposite the Wilderness of Shur, which was the first encampment of the Israelites after crossing the yam suph (Ex. 15:22).

REDEEM (see REDEMPTION).

REDEEMER—one who frees or delivers another from difficulty, danger, or bondage, usually by the payment of a ransom price. In the Old Testament the redeemer could function in several ways. He could buy back property (and even enslaved people) sold under duress (Lev. 25:23–32). He (usually as owner, not as a relative) often redeemed from the Lord dedicated property and firstborn livestock (Lev. 27:1–33; also Ex. 21:28–30). He could (as “legal avenger”) take the life of one who had murdered his relative as a blood price (Num. 35:12–28).

Boaz’s function as redeemer for Ruth (Ruth 3:13—4:10) is well known, as is Job’s resurrection hope in God, his Redeemer (Job 19:25). God Himself is the Redeemer of Israel, a fact mentioned eighteen times—especially by the prophet Isaiah (Ps. 78:35; Is. 41:14).

In the New Testament, Christ is viewed as the ultimate Redeemer. Jesus gave His life as “a ransom for many” (Mark 10:45). Thus, the apostle Paul speaks of believers as having “redemption through His blood” (Eph. 1:7).

REDEMPTION—deliverance by payment of a price. In the New Testament, redemption refers to salvation from sin, death, and the wrath of God by Christ’s sacrifice. In the Old Testament, the word redemption refers to redemption by a KINSMAN (Lev. 25:24, 51–52; Ruth 4:6; Jer. 32:7–8), rescue or deliverance (Num. 3:49), and ransom (Ps. 111:9; 130:7).

In the New Testament it refers to loosing (Luke 2:38; Heb. 9:12) and loosing away (Luke 21:28; Rom. 3:24; Eph. 1:14).

In the Old Testament redemption was applied to property, animals, persons, and the nation of Israel as a whole. In nearly every instance, freedom from obligation, bondage, or danger was secured by the payment of a price, a ransom, bribe, satisfaction, or sum of money paid to obtain freedom, favor, or reconciliation. People may redeem property, animals, and individuals (slaves, prisoners, indentured relatives) who are legally obligated to God or in bondage for other reasons. God alone, however, is able to redeem from the slavery of sin (Ps. 130:7–8), enemy oppressors (Deut. 15:15), and the power of death (Job 19:25–26; Ps. 49:8–9).

The New Testament emphasizes the tremendous cost of redemption: “the precious blood of Christ” (1 Pet. 1:19; Eph. 1:7), which is also called an atoning sacrifice, “a propitiation by His blood” (Rom. 3:25). Believers are exhorted to remember the “price” of their redemption as a motivation to personal holiness (1 Cor. 6:19–20; 1 Pet. 1:13–19). The Bible also emphasizes the result of redemption: freedom from sin and freedom to serve God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

How can we fail to rejoice, having been freed from the oppressive bondage of slavery to sin (John 8:34; Rom. 6:18), the law (Gal. 4:3–5; 5:1), and the fear of death (Heb. 2:14–15)? “Therefore if the Son makes you free, you shall be free indeed” (John 8:36).

REED (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE; WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

REED-PIPE (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

REED, VESSELS OF—boats or seagoing vessels made of reed (Is. 18:2; vessels of papyrus, NRSV; vessels of bulrushes, KJV). Some boats on the Nile River were made by tying together long bundles of papyrus or reeds and daubing them with pitch. In Mesopotamia similar vessels were made of reeds, caulked with bitumen, and used on the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers.

REELAIAH [ree uh LIGH uh]—an Israelite chief who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:2), also called Raamiah (Neh. 7:7).

REFINE—to separate pure metal from the impurities in the ore in the smelting process. This procedure is spoken of in the Old Testament as a symbol of God’s purification of the nation of Israel when he sent hardship and affliction upon them in punishment for their sins (Jer. 9:7; Zech. 13:9).

REFINER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

REFINING POT—a vessel used in the production of silver (Prov. 17:3; 27:21). The smelting done in this pot could have been either the last of several steps in the refining process or the remelting of scraps to recover precious metals.

REFORMATION—an improvement by change or correction. The Old Testament priesthood and sacrifices, along with its food laws and ritual washings, was “imposed until the time of reformation” (Heb. 9:10; the new order, NIV). The reformation referred to in this verse is the NEW COVENANT established by Jesus Christ, who is both the eternal High Priest and the sacrifice offered once and for all for our sins.

REFUGE, CITIES OF (see CITIES OF REFUGE).

REFUSE (see DUNG).

REFUSE GATE (see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE).

REGEM [REE guhm]—a son of Jahdai, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:47).

REGEM-MELECH [ree guhm MEE lek]—one of a group of men sent to the temple to ask about a day of national mourning (Zech. 7:2). They were instructed to ask the priests and prophets whether they should continue to observe fasts in remembrance of the destruction of the temple.

REGENERATION—the spiritual change brought about in a person's life by an act of God. In regeneration a person's sinful nature is changed, and that person is enabled to respond to God in faith.

The word "regeneration" occurs only in the New Testament (Matt. 19:28; Titus 3:5), but the concept or idea is common throughout the Bible. The literal meaning of regeneration is "being born again." There is a first birth and a second birth. The first, as Jesus said to Nicodemus (John 3:1–12) is "of the flesh"; the second birth is "of the Spirit." Being born of the Spirit is essential before a person can enter the kingdom of God. Every biblical command to people to undergo a radical change of character from self-centeredness to God-centeredness is, in effect, an appeal to be "born again" (Ps. 51:5–11; Jer. 31:33; Zech. 13:1).

Great religious experiences like that of Jacob at the Jabbok (Gen. 32:22–32), Moses at the burning bush (Ex. 3:1), Josiah on hearing the reading of the Law (2 Kin. 22:8–13), or Isaiah in the temple (Is. 6:1–8) might well be regarded as "new birth." Thus, regeneration involves an enlightening of the mind, a change of the will, and a renewed nature. It extends to the total nature of people, changing their desires and restoring them to a right relationship with God in Christ.

The need for regeneration grows out of humanity's sinfulness. It is brought about through God's initiative. God works in the human heart, and the person responds to God through faith. Thus, regeneration is an act of God through the Holy Spirit, resulting in resurrection from sin to a new life in Jesus Christ (2 Cor. 5:17).

REGIMENT—one of ten divisions of an ancient Roman legion. The traditional Roman legion consisted of 6,000 soldiers. A regiment, or cohort, consisted of about 600 men, although this number varied. The Book of Acts mentions the ITALIAN REGIMENT (Acts 10:1; band, KJV; cohort, NRSV, REB, NASB) and the AUGUSTAN REGIMENT (Acts 27:1; band, KJV; Imperial Regiment, NIV).

REGISTER (see CENSUS).

REHABIAH [ree uh BIGH uh]—a son of Eliezer and grandson of Moses (1 Chr. 23:17; 26:25).

REHOB [REE hahb] (open space)—the name of three cities and two men in the Old Testament:

1. A city in northern Canaan in the upper Jordan River Valley (Num. 13:21). Rehob is the same place as BETH REHOB (Judg. 18:28; 2 Sam. 10:6).
2. A city in the territory of Asher, near Sidon (Josh. 19:28).
3. Another city in the territory of Asher (Josh. 19:30). The Israelites did not drive the Canaanites out of one of these Rehobs; the other Rehob was occupied by the Gershonite Levites.
4. The father of Hadadezer (2 Sam. 8:3–12), king of Zobah.
5. A Levite who sealed Nehemiah’s covenant (Neh. 10:11).

REHOBOAM [ree uh BOE uhm] (the people is enlarged)—the son and successor of Solomon and the last king of the united monarchy and first king of the southern kingdom, Judah (reigned about 931–913 B.C.). His mother was Naamah, a woman of Ammon (1 Kin. 14:31).

Rehoboam became king at age forty-one (1 Kin. 14:21) at a time when the northern tribes were discontented with the monarchy. They were weary of Solomon’s heavy taxation and labor conscription. To promote unity, Rehoboam went to Shechem—center of much of the discontent among the northern tribes—to be made king officially and to meet with their leaders. They in turn demanded relief from the taxes and conscription.

Rehoboam first sought advice from older men who were of mature judgment and who had lived through Solomon’s harsh years. They assured him that if he would be the people’s servant, he would enjoy popular support.

When he also sought the counsel of younger men, his arrogant contemporaries, he received foolish advice that he should rule by sternness rather than kindness. Misjudging the situation, he followed the foolish advice. The northern tribes immediately seceded from the kingdom and made JEROBOAM king.

When Rehoboam attempted to continue his control over the northern tribes by sending Adoram to collect a tax from the people (1 Kin. 12:18), Adoram was stoned to death. Rehoboam fled in his chariot to Jerusalem. The prophet Shemaiah prevented Rehoboam from retaliating and engaging in civil war (1 Kin. 12:22–24).

To strengthen Judah, Rehoboam fortified fifteen cities (2 Chr. 11:5–12) to the west and south of Jerusalem, undoubtedly as a defensive measure against Egypt. The spiritual life of Judah was strengthened, too, by the immigration of northern priests and Levites to Judah and Jerusalem because of the idolatrous worship instituted at Bethel and Dan by Jeroboam (2 Chr. 11:13–17).

Rehoboam’s military encounters were primarily with Jeroboam and Egypt. No specific battles with Jeroboam are described in the Bible, but “there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days” (1 Kin. 14:30). This warring probably involved border disputes over the territory of Benjamin, the buffer zone between the two kingdoms.

In Rehoboam’s fifth year Judah was invaded by Shishak (Sheshonk I), king of Egypt, who came against Jerusalem and carried away treasures from the temple and from Solomon’s house. When Shemaiah told him that this invasion was God’s judgment for Judah’s sin, Rehoboam humbled himself before God and was granted deliverance from further troubles (2 Chr. 12:1–12).

Rehoboam did not follow the pattern of David. Instead, he was an evil king (2 Chr. 12:14). During his seventeen-year reign, the people of Judah built “high places, sacred pillars, and wooden images” (1 Kin. 1:23) and permitted “perverted persons” to prosper in the land (1 Kin. 14:24). When he died, he was buried in the City of David (1 Kin. 14:31).

REHOBOTH [rih HOE buhth] (broad places)—a well dug by Isaac in the Valley of Gerar (Gen. 26:22). Rehoboth is probably present-day Wadi Ruheibeh, about 31 kilometers (19 miles) southwest of Beersheba.

REHOBOTH-BY-THE-RIVER [rih HOE buhth] (broad places)—a city somewhere in northern Edom (Gen. 36:37; 1 Chr. 1:48). The city was the home of Saul, an early king of Edom.

REHOBOTH IR [rih HOE buhth ur] (broad places of the city)—a suburb or outlying area of the city of Nineveh (Gen. 10:11) in Assyria.

REHUM [REE huhm] (compassion)—the name of five men in the Old Testament:

1. A chief Israelite who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:2), also called Nehum (Neh. 7:7).
2. A Persian official in Samaria during the reign of Artaxerxes I (king of Persia, 465–425 B.C.). Rehum opposed the rebuilding of the walls and the temple of Jerusalem (Ezra 4:8–9, 17, 23).
3. A leader of the Levites who helped repair the wall of Jerusalem (Neh. 3:17).
4. A leader of the people who sealed the covenant after the captivity (Neh. 10:25).
5. A group of priests and Levites who returned with Zerubbabel from the captivity (Neh. 12:3).

REI [ree] (friendly)—a man who supported Solomon when Adonijah, the son of David, tried to take over the throne (1 Kin. 1:8).

REINS—KJV word for KIDNEYS when kidneys are spoken of in a symbolic rather than a literal sense. For God to examine a person's reins and heart (Jer. 11:20) means that He knows a person's inner thoughts and motives.

REKEM [REE kuhm]—the name of two men and a city in the Old Testament:

1. A king of Midian killed by the Israelites during the time of Moses (Num. 31:8).

2. A city in the territory of Benjamin (Josh. 18:27).
3. A son of Hebron, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:43–44).

RELEASE, YEAR OF—a term applied to the Year of JUBILEE, the end of a cycle of seven sabbatical years. To safeguard against a small group gaining control of much land and people falling into poverty because of high interest, the Year of Jubilee was established (Lev. 25:8–17; 23–55). It occurred every fifty years.

During this year, land that had been sold during the past fifty years was returned to its original owner, and Israelite slaves were released. The principle behind this custom was the belief that land does not belong to Israel but to God, who permits its use (Lev. 25:23). Another principle was that human beings are not to be in lifelong service to other people, but to God, who freed all Israel from slavery in Egypt (Lev. 25:38, 55).

RELIGION—belief in and reverence for God or some supernatural power that is recognized as the creator and ruler of the universe; an organized system of doctrine with an approved pattern of behavior and a proper form of worship. The classic New Testament passage on religion is James 2:17. Faith divorced from deeds, says James, is as lifeless as a corpse.

REMALIAH [rim uh LIE uh]—the father of King Pekah of Israel (2 Kin. 15:25–37; Is. 7:1–9).

REMETH [REE mith] (height)—a border town in the territory of Issachar (Josh. 19:21). Remeth is probably the same place as Ramoth (1 Chr. 6:73) and Jarmuth (Josh. 21:29).

REMISSION—release from sin (Acts 2:38; Heb. 9:22). The active nature of the word for “remission” in the Greek language indicates that forgiveness is more than a passive act on God’s part. Through the death of His Son, God has taken the initiative to break the grip of sin and set people free for a new way of life in God’s Spirit. Also see FORGIVENESS; REPENTANCE.

REMMON [REM ahn]—a form of RIMMON No. 1.

REMNANT—the part of a community or nation that remains after a dreadful judgment or devastating calamity, especially those who have escaped and remain to form the nucleus of a new community (Is. 10:20–23). The survival of a righteous remnant rests solely on God's providential care for His Chosen People and His faithfulness to keep His COVENANT promises.

The concept of the remnant has its roots in the Book of Deuteronomy (4:27–31; 28:62–68; 30:1–10), where Moses warned the people of Israel that they would be scattered among the nations. But God also promised that He would bring the people back from captivity and establish them again in the land of their fathers. This concept was picked up by the prophets, who spoke of the Assyrian and Babylonian captivities. The concept was extended to apply also to the gathering of a righteous remnant at the time when the Messiah came to establish His kingdom.

In Amos and Isaiah the remnant consisted of those chosen by God who were rescued from the impending doom of the nation (Is. 1:9; Amos 5:14–15). As such, they were labeled "the poor," those who suffer for God (Is. 29:19; 41:17). At the same time, they serve God and stand before the nation as witnesses, calling the people to repent of their rebellion.

In the New Testament the apostle Paul picked up the teaching of Isaiah and other prophets about the remnant and applied it to the church (Rom. 11:5). Paul showed that God's purpose is seen in the "remnant" out of Israel who have joined the Gentiles to form the church, the new people of God. Further, Jesus' choice of twelve apostles built upon remnant themes. Symbolizing the twelve tribes, the apostles became the remnant who erected a new structure, the church, upon the foundation of Israel. In the church, both Jews and Gentiles, circumcised and uncircumcised, find their true spiritual home when they believe in Christ.

REMPHAN [RIM fan]—KJV word for Rephan, a pagan god of the Babylonians. Also see GODS, PAGAN.

REND—to tear or pull apart. In the ancient world, rending one's garments was a sign of grief, despair, or sorrow. To "rend your heart" (Joel 2:13) signified inward, spiritual repentance and sorrow for sin.

God’s primary requirement from sinners is “a broken and a contrite heart” (Ps. 51:17). Also see MOURN.

REPENTANCE—a turning away from sin, disobedience, or rebellion and a turning back to God (Matt. 9:13; Luke 5:32). In a more general sense, repentance means a change of mind (Gen. 6:6–7) or a feeling of remorse or regret for past conduct (Matt. 27:3). True repentance is a “godly sorrow” for sin, an act of turning around and going in the opposite direction. This type of repentance leads to a fundamental change in a person’s relationship to God.

In the Old Testament the classic case of repentance is that of King David, after Nathan the prophet accused him of killing Uriah the Hittite and committing adultery with Uriah’s wife, Bathsheba. David’s prayer of repentance for this sin is found in Psalm 51.

In the New Testament the keynote of John the Baptist’s preaching was, “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand” (Matt. 3:2). To the multitudes he declared, “Bear fruits worthy of repentance” (Matt. 3:8; Luke 3:8). When Jesus began His ministry, He took up John’s preaching of the message of repentance, expanding the message to include the good news of salvation: “The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand. Repent and believe in the gospel” (Matt. 4:17; Mark 1:15).

In Jesus’ preaching of the kingdom of God is seen the truth that repentance and faith are two sides of the same coin: by repentance, one turns away from sin; by faith, one turns toward God in accepting the Lord Jesus Christ. Such a twofold turning, or conversion, is necessary for entrance into the kingdom (Matt. 18:3). “Unless you repent,” said Jesus, “you will all likewise perish” (Luke 13:3, 5). This is the negative, or judgmental, side of Jesus’ message. The positive, or merciful, side is seen in these words: “There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents” (Luke 15:10).

After Jesus’ crucifixion and resurrection, His disciples continued His message of repentance and faith (Acts 2:38; 3:19; 20:21; 26:20). Repentance is a turning from wickedness and dead works (Acts 8:22; Heb. 6:1) toward God and His glory (Acts 20:21; Rev. 16:9), eternal life (Acts 11:18), and a knowledge of the truth (2 Tim. 2:25).

Repentance is associated with prayer (1 Kin. 8:47), belief (Mark 1:15), baptism (Acts 2:38), and conversion (Acts 3:19) and is accompanied by humility (Matt. 11:21). Repentance is God’s will and pleasure (Luke 15:7–10; 2 Pet. 3:9), as well as His command (Mark 6:12; Acts 17:30). It is a gift of His sovereign love (Acts 5:31; 11:18; Rom. 2:4; 2 Tim. 2:25), without which we cannot be saved (Luke 13:3).

REPHAEL [REF ay el] (God heals)—gatekeeper of the sanctuary during the time of King David (1 Chr. 26:7).

REPHAH [REE fuh]—a descendant of Ephraim (1 Chr. 7:25) who became an ancestor of Joshua.

REPHAIAH [rih FAY uh] (the Lord heals)—the name of five men in the Old Testament:

1. The head of a family of the house of David (1 Chr. 3:21).
2. A son of Ishi, of the tribe of Simeon (1 Chr. 4:41–43).
3. A son of Tola, of the tribe of Issachar (1 Chr. 7:2).
4. A son of Binea (1 Chr. 9:43), also called Raphah (1 Chr. 8:37).
5. A son of Hur (Neh. 3:9) who helped Nehemiah rebuild the wall of Jerusalem.

REPHAIM [REF ih yuhm]—the name of a race of giants and a valley in the Old Testament:

1. A race of giants who lived in Palestine before the time of Abraham (Gen. 14:5; 15:20). The last survivor of the Rephaim was OG, king of Bashan (Deut. 3:11). The kingdom of Og—Gilead, Bashan, and Argob—was called “the land of the giants [Rephaim]” (Deut. 3:13).
2. A valley in Judah where David defeated the Philistines (2 Sam. 5:17–22). Rephaim lies between Jerusalem and Bethlehem (2 Sam. 23:13).

REPHAN (see GODS, PAGAN).

REPHIDIM [REF uh dim]—an Israelite encampment in the wilderness (Ex. 17:1–7). The Amalekites attacked the Israelites at Rephidim (Ex. 17:8–16). During the battle Moses stood on a hill and held the rod of God aloft. Aaron and Hur supported his arms until sundown, and the Israelites won the battle. Rephidim is probably the modern Wadi Feiran in south central Sinai.

REPROACH—scorn, rebuke, or shame (1 Tim. 3:7). On the cross Christ bore the shame of our sin. Followers of Jesus are called to bear the reproach of Christ and to suffer for His name (2 Cor. 12:10; 1 Pet. 4:14).

REPROBATE—one who fails to pass a test and is rejected. While the word "reprobate" only appears in the KJV, it speaks graphically of those whom God has rejected and left to their own corruption (Rom. 1:28). The prophet Jeremiah speaks of "reprobate silver" (Jer. 6:30, KJV).

REPTILE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

REPUTATION—the general estimation in which a person is held by others. A person's reputation may be ruined by careless deeds or words (Prov. 25:8–10). The apostle Paul declared that Christ "made Himself of no reputation" by dying on the cross for our sins (Phil. 2:7).

RESEN [REE zuhn]—an ancient Assyrian city built by NIMROD between Calah and Nineveh (Gen. 10:12).

RESERVOIR—any large storage place for water. The frequent threat of an extended siege and the infrequent rain in Palestine made it necessary for the people to store water in large quantities. The normal way to do this was to catch rainfall and channel it to a storage area.

There were basically two types of reservoirs. One was a large, open pool for public use. The other type was an underground pit or cistern, lined with plaster, to which the rain that fell on the roof was diverted.

RESH [raysh]—the twentieth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:153–160. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter resh.

Also see ACROSTIC.

RESHEPH [REE shef] (a flame)—the name of a man and a pagan god:

1. A son of Beriah (1 Chr. 7:25).
2. A Canaanite god worshiped as the lord of the underworld.

RESIN (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

RESPECT OF PERSONS—showing favoritism or partiality toward some people as opposed to others (Acts 10:34; James 2:1, 9).

Also see PARTIALITY.

RESTITUTION—the act of restoring to the rightful owner something that has been taken away, stolen, lost, or surrendered. Leviticus 6:1–7 gives the Mosaic Law of restitution; this law establishes the procedure to be followed in restoring stolen property.

Full restitution of the property had to be made and an added 20 percent (one-fifth of its value) must be paid as compensation (Lev. 5:16). If a man stole an ox or donkey or sheep, and the animal was recovered alive, the thief had to make restitution of double the value stolen (Ex. 22:4). If the thief had killed or sold the animal, however, he had to make a fourfold (for a sheep) or a fivefold (for an ox) restitution (Ex. 22:1; 2 Sam. 12:6).

Zacchaeus, a chief tax collector, said to Jesus, “If I have taken anything from anyone by false accusation, I restore fourfold” (Luke 19:8).

Also see LAW.

RESURRECTION—being raised from the dead. Resurrection has three primary meanings in the Bible.

1. Miraculous healings. In this usage, resurrection refers to individuals who have been brought back to life (resuscitated) in this present world. Such raisings were performed by Elijah on the Zarephath widow’s son (1 Kin. 17:20–24), by Elisha on the Shunammite woman’s son (2 Kin. 4:32–37) and the dead man who touched Elisha’s bones (2 Kin. 13:21), by Jesus on Jairus’ daughter (Mark 5:41–43) and Lazarus (John 11:43–44), by Peter on Dorcas (Acts 9:40–41), and by Paul on Eutychus (Acts 20:9–12). In these raisings there is no suggestion that the person will not again experience death.

2. Our Lord’s resurrection. This resurrection is clearly linked with the overcoming of the powers of evil and death. For Paul, Christ’s resurrection is the basis for the doctrine of general resurrection (1 Cor. 15:12–19).

See RESURRECTION OF JESUS CHRIST.

3. The hope of a general resurrection. Many of the Greek philosophers, such as Plato, believed that an immortal soul inhabited a body and that at death the soul left its bodily prison and soared upward to the divine spirit.

In the Old Testament Sheol is the place of the rephaim (shades), the Hebrew term for a weakened existence (Is. 14:9–11). These beings, however, are not souls without bodies. Therefore, the psalmist expected that God would ransom his soul from Sheol (Ps. 49:15). It was Israel's firm belief in the goodness of God that led the Jewish people to believe that the righteous dead would yet see God (Job 19:26). This expectation was the foundation upon which the Jewish ideas concerning the resurrection were built.

By the time of Jesus, two positions were firmly entrenched within Judaism. The SADDUCEES, who were oriented to this world, rejected any belief in the resurrection. They believed that such an idea was irrelevant to this life and was not part of the revelation in the Law that God gave to Moses. When they encountered Jesus, the Sadducees sought to trap Him by their question concerning the seven brothers who married one woman. Jesus criticized their view of resurrection life by indicating that earthly marriage patterns are not repeated in heaven. He also condemned their understanding of Moses and the Scriptures (Mark 12:18–27).

The PHARISEES, in contrast, believed in resurrection. The Jewish historian Josephus reported that the Pharisees held that the good dead are transferred into other bodies. Although this report is not totally clear, it is certain that the Pharisees proclaimed a life after death that required a resurrection. It was from the ranks of these scholarly Pharisees that the apostle Paul came (Phil. 3:5). Luke records that in his defense before the Sanhedrin (Jewish Council), Paul stressed that he was a Pharisee of Pharisaic descent and that he was on trial for affirming the resurrection (Acts 23:6).

Israel's concepts of resurrection were born out of her relationship to God in her tumultuous history. At first glance the prophet Isaiah seems to express a view that the resurrection is for the faithful and that the wicked may not arise (Is. 26:10–19). The Jewish loyalist of the apocryphal book of 2 Maccabees apparently agreed that for some there will be no resurrection to life. But Daniel announced, “Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, some to shame and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2).

The New Testament consistently teaches hope in the resurrection of the believer based upon the resurrection of Christ as the “firstborn from the dead” (1 Cor. 15:12–58; Col. 1:18; 1 Thess. 4:14–18; 1 Pet. 1:3–5). This idea of resurrection is expressed in terms of such images as a transformed body (Phil. 3:21), a new dwelling (2 Cor. 5:2), and new clothing (2 Cor. 5:4; Rev. 6:11). The New Testament also contrasts resurrection to life with resurrection to judgment (John 5:29; Acts 24:15). Apparently a similar contrast lies behind the statements in Revelation 20 about “the first resurrection” (20:5) and “the second death” (20:14).

But not all who sought identification with the Christian church proclaimed a future resurrection. Some preached a spiritual awakening, or resurrection, that was already past. Such a view, adopted by Hymenaeus and Philetus and by later Gnostic heretics, was sternly condemned by Paul (2 Tim. 2:17–19).

RESURRECTION OF JESUS CHRIST—a central doctrine of Christianity that affirms that God raised Jesus from the dead on the third day. Without the resurrection, the apostle Paul declared, Christian preaching and belief are meaningless (1 Cor. 15:14). The resurrection is the point at which God’s intention for Jesus becomes clear (Rom. 1:4) and believers are assured that Jesus is the Christ.

So significant is the resurrection of Jesus that without it there would be no church or Christianity, and we would still be in our sins (1 Cor. 15:17). In spite of the centrality of the resurrection, however, scholars have frequently debated a number of the elements in the resurrection accounts in the New Testament.

Empty Tomb. Some critics argue that because Paul does not speak of an empty tomb, the idea of the resurrection of Jesus must have developed years after His earthly life and ministry was over. But Paul refers to the burial (1 Cor. 15:4), which argues both for a proper tomb and against the body being dumped into a pit or a common criminal's grave.

Critics have also pointed to variations in the accounts of Jesus' resurrection in the gospels, such as how many women came to the tomb and who they were. Why did they come: to anoint the body (Mark and Matthew) or to see the tomb (Matthew)? Was there one angel (Mark and Matthew) or were there two (Luke and John) at the tomb? Did the angel say, "He is going before you into Galilee" (Mark and Matthew) or "Remember how He spoke . . . when He was still in Galilee" (Luke)? Did the women say "nothing to anyone" (Mark) or did they report the message to the disciples (Matthew)? (Note that most ancient manuscripts of Mark do not have 16:9–20—a fact noted in many modern English translations.)

It is well to remember that these variations were recognized by early Christians and were not discovered by recent critics. As early as the second century, Tatian wrote his Diatessaron, or harmony of the gospels, expecting that Christians would gladly accept his work as a substitute for the four gospels. But while Christians read Tatian, they refused to substitute his harmony for the witnesses of the four gospel writers. The faithfulness of these writers in transmitting to us the gospel texts is a testimony to Christian integrity. It is also a witness to their early understanding that the gospels were Holy Scripture, inspired by God.

Furthermore, these writers knew the tomb was empty; because if it had not been empty, the body would soon have been supplied. The only other alternative is that the disciples stole the body as the Jews (Matt. 28:13) and some modern critics have suggested. But such a view is self-defeating because the gospel accounts themselves witness to the surprise of both the women and the disciples about the empty tomb.

Moreover, while it may seem incredible to us, the gospel writers generally refrain from using the empty tomb as a basis for faith! Furthermore, the stone was not rolled away to let Jesus out; he did not need open doors to move about (Luke 24:31, 36; John 20:19, 26). The stone was removed to begin communicating the resurrection to the followers of Jesus. But the empty tomb did not convince them that Jesus was alive! It was at first frustrating to the disciples and "seemed to them like idle tales" (Luke 24:11). Would anyone constructing a story and trying to prove the resurrection use such an approach? These testimonies have an element of authenticity that inventors of stories seldom duplicate.

The Appearances. While the above testimonies about the empty tomb seem to have little to do with the faith of these early Christians, the appearances of Jesus are clearly at the heart of early Christian belief. The consistent witness of the New Testament is that in the appearances of Jesus something incredible happened. The two followers in Emmaus, upon realizing it was the risen Jesus, forgot their concern with the lateness of the hour and rushed back to Jerusalem to tell the others (Luke 24:29–33). The doubting Thomas uttered Christianity's greatest confession when he realized that the risen Christ was actually addressing him (John 20:27). Peter left his fishing nets for good when the risen Savior asked him, "Do you love Me?" (John 21:15). And at a later time (1 Cor. 15:8), the persecutor Paul was transformed into a zealous missionary as the result of a special appearance by the risen Lord (Acts 9:1–22).

But what was the nature of these appearances? Some have suggested that the appearance of Jesus to Paul seemed to be of a spiritual nature, similar to the revelation of Jesus to Christians today. Since Paul lumps all of the appearances together in 1 Corinthians 15:5–8, these critics argue that all the appearances must be spiritual in nature. They reject the idea that the risen Jesus could be touched (Matt. 28:9; Luke 24:39; John 20:27) or that He could eat (Luke 24:41–42).

Such a line of argument not only judges the witnesses on the basis of rationalistic assumptions, but it flies in the face of Paul's own admission that his experience was somewhat irregular. Another approach is that advocated by the German theologian Rudolph Bultmann, who speaks of an "Easter faith" of the disciples rather than an actual bodily resurrection of Jesus. Accordingly, he splits the Jesus of history from the spiritual experience of the Christ of faith.

But when the New Testament writers speak of the resurrection of Jesus, they are bearing witness not to what God did for them but what God did to Jesus. Certainly, as a result of the resurrection of Jesus human lives were transformed. For Paul this transformation of Christians is not termed resurrection but salvation. "In Christ" is the expression Paul uses for the spiritual experience of the living Christ.

Finally, the resurrection of Jesus, His exaltation to the right hand of the Father (Acts 2:33), and the giving of the Spirit (John 20:22) are all to be seen as a single complex of events. Although the elements may be viewed as separate happenings, the New Testament writers see them as closely integrated theologically. Together they represent the firstfruits of the new age.

RETRIBUTION—the act of receiving what one deserves. While retribution may be used in the sense of a reward for doing good, it usually refers to punishment for doing evil, especially in the world to come. The word “retribution” appears only once in the NKJV (2 Chr. 6:23). Other translations use the word more frequently (Rom. 11:9; Heb. 2:2, RSV; Deut. 32:35; 2 Thess. 1:8, NASB; Rom. 1:18; Rev. 11:18, NEB).

The principle of retribution is found often in the Bible; it is indicated by words such as wrath, vengeance, punishment, judgment, and hell. Retribution is the judgment of a holy God upon sin. Eventually it becomes the eternal punishment of the ungodly—unless the sinner turns in faith to Christ, who took the punishment the sinner deserves upon Himself on the cross.

REUBEN [ROO ben] (behold a son)—the firstborn son of Jacob, born to Leah in Padan Aram (Gen. 29:31–32; 35:23). Leah named her first son Reuben because the Lord had looked upon her sorrow at being unloved by her husband. By presenting a son to Jacob, she hoped he would respond to her in love.

The only reference to Reuben's early childhood is his gathering of mandrakes for his mother (Gen. 30:14). Years later, as the hatred of Jacob's sons for Joseph grew, it was Reuben who advised his brothers not to kill their younger brother. He suggested that they merely bind him, which would have allowed him to return later to release Joseph to his father (Gen. 37:20–22). It also was Reuben who reminded his brothers that all their troubles and fears in Egypt were their just reward for mistreating Joseph (Gen. 42:22).

When Jacob's sons returned from Egypt, Reuben offered his own two sons as a guarantee that he would personally tend to the safety of Benjamin on the next trip to Egypt (Gen. 42:37). In view of these admirable qualities, it is tragic that he became involved in incest with Bilhah, his father's concubine (Gen. 35:22).

As the firstborn, Reuben should have been a leader to his brothers and should have received the birthright—the double portion of the inheritance (Deut. 21:17). His act of incest, however, cost him dearly. He never lost his legal standing as firstborn, but he forfeited his right to the birthright. When Reuben made his descent into Egypt with Israel, he was father of four sons who had been born to him in Canaan (Gen. 46:9).

REUBEN, TRIBE OF—the tribe whose ancestor was Reuben (Num. 1:5). During 430 years in Egypt, the descendants of Reuben increased from four sons to 46,500 men of war (Num. 1:20–21). In the wilderness the tribe of Reuben was represented in a conspiracy against Moses. As representatives of the tribe, Dathan and Abiram tried to assert their legal rights as descendants of Jacob's oldest son to a role of leadership in Israel (Num. 16:1–3), but their efforts failed.

The Reubenites were a pastoral people. The tribe requested an early inheritance east of the Jordan River where the land was suitable for cattle (Num. 32:1–33). They helped the other tribes claim their land, however, and Joshua commended them for their efforts (Josh. 22:9–10). The tribe also built an altar—along with the tribe of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh—in the Jordan Valley as a witness to their unity with the tribes west of the Jordan (Josh. 22:11–34).

Later, members of the tribe of Reuben refused to assist Deborah and Barak in fighting the Canaanite Sisera (Judg. 5:16), although the tribe apparently assisted the other tribes in their war against Benjamin (Judg. 20:11). During Saul's reign, Reuben joined Gad and Manasseh in fighting the Hagrites (1 Chr. 5:18–22). When the kingdom divided under Rehoboam, Reuben joined the Northern Kingdom under Jeroboam.

While never prominent, the tribe of Reuben was never forgotten. Ezekiel remembered Reuben in his description of Israel (Ezek. 48:6). The tribe is also represented in the 144,000 sealed—12,000 from each of the twelve tribes of Israel (Rev. 7:5).

REUBENITES [ROO ben ights]—the descendants of REUBEN, the oldest son of Jacob (Num. 26:7). The Reubenites were taken into exile by Tiglath-Pileser III, king of Assyria (1 Chr. 5:6, 26).

REUEL [ROO uhl] (friend of God)—the name of four men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Esau and Basemath, the daughter of Ishmael (Gen. 36:4, 10; 1 Chr. 1:35).
2. A priest of Midian who became Moses' father-in-law (Num. 10:29; Raguel, KJV). Reuel is also called Jethro (Ex. 3:1).
3. The father of Eliasaph (Num. 2:14), also called Deuel (Num. 10:20).
4. A son of Ibnijah (1 Chr. 9:8).

REUMAH [ROO muh]—a concubine of Nahor, Abraham's brother (Gen. 22:24).

REVELATION—God's communication to people concerning Himself, His moral standards, and His plan of salvation.

God is a personal Spirit distinct from the world; He is absolutely holy and is invisible to the view of physical, finite, sinful minds. Although people, on their own, can never create truth about God, God has graciously unveiled and manifested Himself to mankind. Other religions and philosophies result from the endless human quest for God; Christianity results from God's quest for lost mankind.

God has made Himself known to all people everywhere in the marvels of nature and in the human conscience, which is able to distinguish right from wrong. Because this knowledge is universal and continuous, by it God has displayed His glory to everyone (Ps. 19:1–6).

Some Christians think that only believers can see God's revelation in nature, but the apostle Paul said that unbelievers know truth about God: The unrighteous must have the truth to "suppress" it (Rom. 1:18); they "clearly see" it (Rom. 1:20); knowing God, they fail to worship Him as God (Rom. 1:21); they alter the truth (Rom. 1:25); they do not retain God in their knowledge (Rom. 1:28); and knowing the righteous judgment (moral law) of God, they disobey it (Rom. 1:32). The reason the ungodly are "inexcusable" (Rom. 2:1) before God's righteous judgment is that they possessed but rejected the truth God gave them.

What can be known of God from nature? God's universal revelation makes it clear that God exists (Rom. 1:20), and that God, the Creator of the mountains, oceans, vegetation, animals, and mankind, is wise (Ps. 104:24) and powerful (Psalm 29; 93; Rom. 1:20). People aware of their own moral responsibility, who know the difference between right and wrong conduct and who have a sense of guilt when they do wrong, reflect the requirements of God's moral law (the Ten Commandments) that is written on their hearts (Rom. 2:14–15).

What is the result of divine revelation in nature? If people lived up to that knowledge by loving and obeying God every day of their lives, they would be right with God and would not need salvation. However, people do not love God with all that is in them. Nor do they love their neighbors as themselves. People worship and serve things in creation rather than the Creator (Rom. 1:25). The problem does not lie with the revelation, which like the Law is holy, just, and good (Rom. 7:12); the problem is with the sinfulness of human lives (Rom. 8:3). The best human being (other than Jesus Christ) comes short of the uprightness God requires.

Because of God's universal revelation in nature, the philosopher Immanuel Kant could say, "Two things fill the mind with ever new and increasing admiration and awe . . . the starry heavens above me and the moral law within me."

When Christians defend justice, honesty, and decency in schools, homes, neighborhoods, businesses, and governments, they do not impose their special beliefs upon others. They merely point to universal principles that all sinners know but suppress in their unrighteousness (Rom. 1:18).

As valuable as general revelation is for justice, honesty, and decency in the world today, it is not enough. It must be completed by the good news of God's mercy and His gracious gift of perfect righteousness. Nature does not show God's plan for saving those who do wrong: that Jesus was the Son of God, that He died for our sins, and that He rose again from among the dead. The message of salvation was seen dimly through Old Testament sacrifices and ceremonies. It was seen more clearly as God redeemed the Israelites from enslavement in Egypt and as God disclosed to prophets the redemptive significance of His mighty acts of deliverance.

The full and final revelation of God has occurred in Jesus Christ. "God, who at various times and in different ways spoke in time past to the fathers by the prophets, has in these last days spoken to us by His Son, whom He has appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the worlds" (Heb. 1:1–2). Christ has "declared" God to us personally (John 1:18). To see Christ is to see the Father (John 14:9). Christ gave us the words the Father gave Him (John 17:8). At the cross Jesus revealed supremely God's self-giving love. There He died, "the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God" (1 Pet. 3:18). And the good news is not complete until we hear that He rose again triumphantly over sin, Satan, and the grave, and is alive forevermore.

Christ chose apostles and trained them to teach the meaning of His death and resurrection, to build the church, and to write the New Testament Scriptures. We are to remember the words of these eyewitnesses to Christ's resurrection. The content of God's special revelation concerning salvation, given to specially gifted spokesmen and supremely revealed in Christ, is found in "the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of . . . the apostles of the Lord and Savior" (2 Pet. 3:2). "The Holy Scriptures . . . are able to make you wise for salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Tim. 3:15).

REVELATION OF JOHN—the last book of the Bible, and the only book of APOCALYPTIC LITERATURE in the New Testament. Apocalypsis, the title of this book in the original Greek, means “unveiling” or “disclosure” of hidden things known only to God. Other examples of apocalyptic literature can be found in the Old Testament in Daniel (chaps. 7–12), Isaiah (chaps. 24–27), Ezekiel (chaps. 37–41), and Zechariah (chaps. 9–12).

Like its counterparts, the Book of Revelation depicts the end of the present age and the coming of God’s future kingdom through symbols, images, and numbers. These symbols include an angel whose legs are pillars of fire, men who ride on horses while smiting the earth with plagues of destruction, and a fiery red dragon with seven heads and ten horns who crouches before a heavenly woman about to deliver a child.

Why was apocalyptic literature written in such imagery? One reason is that these books were written in dangerous times when it was safer to hide one’s message in images than to speak plainly. Moreover, the symbolism preserved an element of mystery about details of time and place. The purpose of such symbolism, however, was not to confuse, but to inform and strengthen believers in the face of persecution.

Although the keys to some symbols have been lost, the overall message of this book is clear: God is all-powerful. No countermoves of the devil, no matter how strong, can frustrate the righteous purposes of God.

Structure of the Book. The Book of Revelation contains seven visions.

The first vision (chaps. 1–3) is of Christ Almighty exhorting His earthly church to remain loyal against all hostile attacks.

The second vision (chaps. 4–7) is of Christ the Lamb standing with a sealed scroll before God in heaven. As the Lamb opens each of the seven seals, which symbolize knowledge of the destinies of individuals and nations, a series of disasters befalls the earth.

A series of seven angels blowing seven trumpets forms vision three (chaps. 8–11). At the sound of these trumpets more disasters occur.

The fourth vision (chaps. 12–14) consists of the persecution of the church—symbolized by a heavenly woman and by two witnesses (Moses and Elijah)—by Satan and the beast.

Vision five (chaps. 15–16) is another series of seven: seven bowls pouring out God’s wrath.

The judgment of Babylon (a symbol for Rome) forms the sixth vision (chaps. 17:1—19:10).

The final victory, final judgment, and final blessedness form the seventh and final vision (chap. 19:11–21).

The consummation of God’s eternal kingdom finds expression in the word “new.” Christ comes with the promise to make all things new: a new heaven, a new earth, and a new Jerusalem (chap. 21). The book closes with the sigh and longing of all Christians, “Come, Lord Jesus!” (22:20).

Authorship and Date. The author identifies himself as John (1:4, 9; 21:2; 22:8), a prophet (1:1–4; 22:6–7). He was familiar enough with his readers to call himself their “brother and companion in tribulation” (1:9). He indicates that he was exiled to the island of PATMOS (1:9) off the west coast of ASIA MINOR (modern Turkey) and that on the “Lord’s Day” (Sunday) he was caught up “in the Spirit” (1:10) and saw the visions recorded in his book. An examination of the Greek language of the book of Revelation reveals that it has some strong similarities with the Gospel and Epistles of John, but also some striking stylistic differences. The author seems to think in Hebrew and write in Greek.

As a whole, this evidence points to John the Apostle, who spent his latter years in Ephesus or on the island of Patmos. The earliest church tradition was unanimous in attributing the Book of Revelation to John. Although later voices have found problems with this identification, the apostle John remains the strongest candidate for authorship. The book was probably written during the latter years of the reign of the Roman Emperor Domitian (A.D. 81–96).

Historical Setting. John tells us, “The seven heads [of the beast] are seven mountains” (17:9), undoubtedly a reference to the famed seven hills of Rome. Chapter 13 tells us that the dragon (Satan) gave authority to the beast (Rome) to exact worship from its inhabitants (v. 4). The first Roman emperor to demand that his subjects address him as “Lord and God” on an empire-wide basis was Domitian. It was under Domitian that the apostle John was banished to Patmos. Christians, of course, were forbidden by the First Commandment (Ex. 20:3) to worship anyone other than God. In the Book of Revelation, John sounded the trumpet alert to Domitian’s challenge.

Theological Contribution. The grand theme of the Book of Revelation is that of two warring powers, God and Satan, and of God’s ultimate victory. It would be a mistake to consider the two powers as equal in might. God is stronger than Satan, and Satan continues his scheming plots only because God permits him to do so. Thus, at the final battle Satan and his followers are utterly destroyed—without a contest—by fire from heaven (20:7–10).

John portrays God’s majesty and power through two key words. The first is the image of the throne. Elsewhere in the New Testament this word is found fifteen times, but in Revelation it occurs forty-two times. The throne stands for the rightful reign of God over the course of history. Angelic choruses bow before God’s throne and chant, “Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty” (4:8).

The second term is “Almighty.” Outside Revelation this term is found only once in the New Testament (2 Cor. 6:18), but here it occurs nine times (once as Omnipotent in 19:6). Almighty means “without contenders.” No matter how fierce and wicked Satan may be, he cannot defeat God. In God’s time and in His way He will fulfill His promises and accomplish His sovereign purpose in history.

The central figure in the army of God the King is Jesus Christ. The Book of Revelation begins with the words, “The Revelation of Jesus Christ” (1:1). This is not a book of revelations, but of one revelation—Jesus Christ. John’s first vision is of Christ standing in the midst of His churches with eyes like fire (all-seeing), feet like fine brass (all-powerful), hair like wool, white as snow (eternal and all-knowing), and with a sharp two-edged sword coming out of His mouth (the word of truth). Christ is “the First and the Last” (1:11; 22:13), whose final promise is “Surely I am coming quickly” (22:20).

Throughout the Book of Revelation Christ appears in various images, each illuminating a special function or characteristic. He appears as a lion (5:5), representing royal power. As a root (5:5; 22:16), He represents Davidic lineage. As the rider on a white horse (19:11), He symbolizes victory over evil. Most important is the symbol of the Lamb who was slain (5:6). By His sacrifice on the cross, Christ has redeemed humankind (1:5). Because of His humble obedience to the will of the Father, He alone is worthy to open the sealed book that discloses events to come (5:6–10).

This Lamb is victorious. He shares in the power of God’s throne (7:17). At the end of time, He will come in judgment (19:11). Then He will reveal Himself as the Lord of the world who was foretold in the Old Testament (2:26; 12:5; 19:15) and the source of new life with God in the heavenly Jerusalem (21:22; 22:1).

In its own way, each metaphor tells an important truth about Christ. Christ is before all things, and all things were created in Him and for Him. This is the abiding message of Revelation: Jesus Christ is the fulfillment of the hopes of believers, no matter how grim circumstances may appear.

Special Considerations. Revelation was written originally for first-century Christians who faced severe trials under a totalitarian political system. Its imagery reflects the historical realities of that time. This is not to say, however, that it is not also addressing succeeding generations, including our own. As is true of all biblical prophecy, God’s Word comes to a particular situation; but it yields a harvest to later generations as they receive it. Thus, Revelation assures us that God is present, purposeful, and powerful today, no matter what forms the beast may take.

One of the unique characteristics of Revelation is its use of four, twelve, and seven. Thus, we find four living creatures, four horsemen, and four angels; twelve elders, twelve gates to the city of God, twelve foundations, and twelve varieties of fruit on the tree of life; and seven churches, seven spirits of God, seven thunders, seven seals, seven trumpets, seven bowls, and seven beatitudes. In apocalyptic literature these numbers represent completeness and perfection. Conversely, three-and-a-half is a number frequently associated with Satan (11:2; 13:5; forty-two months or three-and-a-half years); this number symbolizes a fracturing and diminishing of God’s unity.

With this in mind, the 144,000 elect in chapter seven should not be taken literally. Immediately following this passage (v. 9), John mentions that he saw “a great multitude [of the redeemed] which no one could number.” Actually, the 144,000 refers to martyrs—12,000 from each of the twelve tribes of Israel. One hundred and forty-four thousand (a multiple of 12,000 times 12) stands for totality. This means that no martyr will fail to see God’s reward.

Finally, the number of the beast, 666 (Rev. 13:18), probably refers to Nero, or more specifically to the idea that Nero would return alive to lead the armies of Satan against God. In Hebrew and Greek, letters of the alphabet also served as numbers, and in this case the numerical value of “Nero Caesar” amounts to 666, the number of the beast.

• Remains of the altar for worship of the pagan god Zeus at Pergamos. The writer of Revelation may have had this idolatrous shrine in mind when he spoke of “Satan’s throne” at Pergamos (Rev. 2:12–13).

REVELRY—boisterous merrymaking or noisy partying. This word means any form of indulgence, usually in connection with the worship of pagan gods (Rom. 13:13; 1 Pet. 4:3; carousing, NASB; orgies, NIV).

REVENGE—inflicting punishment or harm on another to pay back for an injury or insult. Revenge was a way of life among the Hebrew people in Old Testament times. But Jesus taught that we should love our enemies (Luke 6:27).

REVERENCE—a feeling of profound awe and respect. Because of His majesty and holiness, God arouses a feeling of reverence in those who worship and serve Him (Heb. 12:28–29).

REVILE (see SCORN).

REWARD—something offered in return for some service or benefit received. In the Bible, a reward can refer to something given for either a good or bad act. The psalmist, for example, speaks of "a reward for the righteous" (Ps. 58:11) and of "the reward of the wicked" (Ps. 91:8). When the Son of Man returns in glory, "He will reward each according to his works" (Matt. 16:27).

REZEPH [REE zef]—a city in eastern Syria, mentioned in the message of Sennacherib to King Hezekiah of Judah (Is. 37:12).

REZIA [ree ZIGH uh]—a form of RIZIA.

REZIN [REE zin]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The last king of Syria. Rezin was killed by Tiglath-Pileser III, king of Assyria, in 732 B.C. Rezin allied himself with Pekah, king of Israel, to try to take away Judah's throne from Ahaz and the line of David (2 Kin. 15:37; 16:5–9). Together Rezin and Pekah besieged Jerusalem, but they were unable to capture Ahaz's stronghold. The prophet Isaiah counseled Ahaz not to fear Rezin and Pekah (Is. 7:4).

   Instead of trusting the Lord, however, Ahaz panicked. He appealed for help to Tiglath-Pileser III, king of Assyria, by sending him silver and gold from the temple and Ahaz's palace. The Assyrian king marched against Damascus and besieged it in 734 B.C. After a two-year siege, Damascus fell to the Assyrians, Rezin was killed by Tiglath-Pileser, and the Syrians were carried away as captives to Kir (2 Kin. 16:9).

2. The founder of a family of NETHINIM, or temple servants, whose descendants returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:48).

REZON [REE zuhn]—a son of Eliadah (1 Kin. 11:23). Rezon was a subject of Hadadezer, king of Zobah; he fled from Hadadezer, perhaps at the time of his defeat by David (2 Sam. 8:3). Rezon then became captain over a band of raiders and went to Damascus, where he founded a dynasty. He opposed Israel in Solomon's time (1 Kin. 11:23–25).

RHEGIUM [REE jee uhm]—a seaport on the coast of southern Italy, across the Strait of Messina from the island of Sicily (see Map 8, A–2). The apostle Paul stopped at Rhegium, apparently staying for only one day (Acts 28:13), on his way from Syracuse to Puteoli, before continuing on to Rome.

RHESA [REE suh]—a son of Zerubbabel and an ancestor of Jesus (Luke 3:27).

RHODA [ROE duh] (rose)—a servant girl in the home of Mary, the mother of John Mark (Acts 12:13). According to tradition, this house in Jerusalem was the site of the Last Supper; it may also have been the headquarters of the early church in Jerusalem. Following his miraculous release from prison, the apostle Peter went to Mary's house. Rhoda answered his knock and was filled with such surprise and joy that she forgot to let him in and ran back to tell the others. Peter had to continue knocking until someone let him in (Acts 12:16).

RHODES [roedz] (a rose)—a large island in the Aegean Sea off the southwest coast of ASIA MINOR (see Map 8, C–2) visited by the apostle Paul (Acts 21:1). The island is about 68 kilometers (42 miles) long and about 24 kilometers (15 miles) wide; it lies about 19 kilometers (12 miles) off the coast of the province of CARIA.

On the northeast corner of the island was the city of Rhodes, an important commercial, cultural, and tourist center for the Greeks as well as the Romans. At the entrance to the harbor of Rhodes stood the famous Colossus of Rhodes, a huge bronze statue of the sun-god Apollo built by the Greek sculptor Chares between 292 and 280 B.C. This towering statue was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

Because the island of Rhodes was on the natural shipping route from Greece to Syria and Palestine, the ship on which Paul traveled during his third missionary journey stopped at Rhodes (Acts 21:1). There is no evidence that Paul conducted any missionary activity on the island during his brief visit; he was in a hurry to get to Jerusalem for the Day of Pentecost. “For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus . . .” (Acts 20:16).

RIBAI [RIGH bigh]—the father of Ittai (2 Sam. 23:29) or Ithai (1 Chr. 11:31).

RIBLAH [RIB luh]—the name of a city (see Map 4, C–1) and a landmark in the Old Testament:

1. A Syrian city in the land of Hamath (2 Kin. 23:33; 25:21). Situated at the headwaters of the Orontes River in the broad plain between the Lebanon and the Anti-Lebanon Mountains, Riblah was approximately 105 kilometers (65 miles) north of Damascus and about 57 kilometers (35 miles) northeast of Baalbek. This area was blessed with abundant water, fertile lands, and the famous cedar forests of the nearby Lebanon Mountains. Consequently, it was an ideal campsite for the armies that regularly invaded the land of Israel. Riblah was easy to defend, and it commanded a main route from Egypt to the Euphrates.

   Following Josiah's defeat at Megiddo and the sack of Kadesh-on-the-Orontes in 609 B.C., Pharaoh Necho made Riblah his headquarters. Here he deposed King Jehoahaz, appointed Eliakim (Jehoiakim) as king in his place, and forced Judah to pay him tribute (2 Kin. 23:31–34). A few years later (605 B.C.), Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, defeated the Egyptians at Carchemish (2 Chr. 35:20). He, too, chose Riblah as his command post. He directed the capture of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. from Riblah. Once he had subdued the city, he brought King Zedekiah to Riblah in captivity. There he forced Zedekiah to watch his sons killed, after which he was blinded (2 Kin. 25:6–21; Jer. 52:9–11).
2. A landmark on the eastern boundary of Israel (Num. 34:11).

RICHES (see WEALTH).

RIDDLE—a puzzling question posed as a problem to be solved or guessed; an enigma. "Riddle" is a translation of a Hebrew word that means "something twisted, bent, or tied in a knot." While the word "riddle" appears in the Old Testament occasionally, other words are also used to translate the Hebrew word (for instance, dark sayings, Ps. 49:4; hard questions, 1 Kin. 10:1; and sinister schemes, Dan. 8:23; intrigue, NIV).

The classic use of riddle in the Old Testament occurs in the story of Samson. Samson posed it to the Philistines at Timnah: "Out of the eater came something to eat/and out of the strong came something sweet"

(Judg. 14:14). This riddle was suggested to Samson by a swarm of bees and honey that he saw in the carcass of a lion (v. 8).

When the Queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to Jerusalem “to test him with hard questions” (1 Kin. 10:1; 2 Chr. 9:1). Literally, she tested his wisdom with riddles. According to the Jewish historian Josephus, King Solomon was particularly fond of riddles; he and Hiram, king of Tyre, engaged in a contest of riddles.

The “riddle” or “parable” of the eagles and the vine posed by Ezekiel (Ezek. 17:1–21) actually is an allegory. Ezekiel’s parable may have been a riddle to some, had he not chosen to give its interpretation.

In the New Testament there is one instance where the Greek word often translated “riddle” is used: “For now we see in a mirror, dimly [ainigma], but then face to face” (1 Cor. 13:12).

Our present life, and even God’s revelation to us, contains riddles; but one day the riddles will be solved.

RIGHTEOUSNESS—holy and upright living, in accordance with God’s standard. The word “righteousness” comes from a root word that means “straightness.” It refers to a state that conforms to an authoritative standard. Righteousness is a moral concept. God’s character is the definition and source of all righteousness (Gen. 18:25; Deut. 32:4; Rom. 9:14). Therefore, the righteousness of human beings is defined in terms of God’s.

In the Old Testament the term “righteousness” is used to define our relationship with God (Ps. 50:6; Jer. 9:24) and with other people (Jer. 22:3). In the context of relationships, righteous action is action that promotes the peace and well-being of human beings in their relationships to one another.

For example, Adam and Eve would have acted righteously in their relationship with God if they had obeyed Him, because His commands defined that relationship. The Ten Commandments and related laws defined Israel’s relationship with God. To obey those laws was to act righteously, because such obedience maintained the covenant relationship between God and His people.

The sacrificial system in the Old Testament and the cross of Jesus in the New Testament show people’s need for righteousness. Sin is disobedience to the terms that define our relationship with God and with other people. Since the FALL in the Garden of Eden, people have been inherently unrighteous. As the prophet Isaiah said, “We are all like an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are like filthy rags; we all fade as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away” (Is. 64:6). We cannot be righteous in the sight of God on our own merits. Therefore, people must have God’s righteousness imputed, or transferred, to them.

The cross of Jesus is a public demonstration of God’s righteousness. God accounts or transfers the righteousness of Christ to those who trust in Him (Rom. 4:3–22; Gal. 3:6; Phil. 3:9). We do not become righteous because of our inherent goodness; God sees us as righteous because of our identification by faith with His Son.

RIM—the inner part of the wheels of a cart in Bible times (1 Kin. 7:33). The word is also used for the outer edges of the altar in the tabernacle and temple (Ex. 38:4).

RIMMON [RIM uhn] (pomegranate)—the name of two towns, a rock, a man, and a pagan god in the Old Testament:

1. A town in southern Judah allotted to the tribe of Simeon (Josh. 19:7; Remmon, KJV). Today it is identified with Khirbet Umm er-Ramamim, about 14.5 kilometers (9 miles) northeast of Beersheba.
2. A town on the border of Zebulun assigned to the Levites (Josh. 19:13; Rimmon-methoar, KJV; 1 Chr. 6:77).
3. A rock near Gibeah, in the territory of Benjamin, where 600 Benjamites took refuge for four months (Judg. 20:45, 47).
4. A man from Beeroth in the territory of Benjamin. His two sons, BAANAH and RECHAB, murdered Saul’s son Ishbosheth, beheaded him, and took his head to David—an act for which they were executed (2 Sam. 4:1–12).
5. A Syrian god whose temple was at Damascus. NAAMAN the Syrian and his lord, the king of Syria, worshiped Rimmon (2 Kin. 5:18). Rimmon was the god of rain and storm, lightning and thunder. Also see GODS, PAGAN.

RIMMON-METHOAR [RIM uhn meh THOW ahr]—a form of RIMMON No. 2.

RIMMON-PAREZ [RIM uhn PAR iz]—a form of RIMMON PEREZ.

RIMMON PEREZ [RIM uhn PIR iz] (pomegranate of the breach)—a campsite of the Israelites during their wilderness wanderings (Num. 33:19–20; Rimmon-parez, REB, KJV).

RIMMON, ROCK OF [RIM uhn]—a form of RIMMON No. 3.

RING (see JEWELRY).

RINGLEADER—a troublemaker; one who leads others in disruptive activities. The apostle Paul was accused by his enemies of being “a ringleader” of a sect referred to in contempt as “the Nazarenes,” or followers of Jesus (Acts 24:5).

RINNAH [RIN uh] (a loud cry)—a son of Shimon, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:20).

RIPHATH [RYE fath]—a son of Gomer (Gen. 10:3). The same as Diphath (1 Chr. 1:6).

RISSAH [RIS uh]—a campsite of the Israelites during their wilderness wanderings (Num. 33:21–22).

RITHMAH [RITH muh]—a campsite of the Israelites during their wilderness wanderings (Num. 33:18–19).

RITUAL—the prescribed order of conducting a religious ceremony. The people who were resettled in Samaria by the king of Assyria did not know “the rituals of the God of the land” (2 Kin. 17:26–27; law, NRSV; custom, NASB; manner, KJV; established usage, REB). They continued to serve their own gods according to their former customs.

RIVER—a large stream of water emptying into an ocean, lake, or other body of water and usually fed along its course by smaller streams. Rivers served as ideal places for cities and settlements, as well as religious events, such as John’s baptism (Matt. 3:6; Mark 1:5), or Naaman’s dipping (2 Kin. 5:14) in the Jordan.

In the Old Testament the Euphrates River has a distinct place; it is often called simply “the River” (Ezra 4:10). It served as the ideal eastern boundary of Israel (Gen. 15:18; Deut. 1:7), briefly achieved under David and Solomon (2 Sam. 8:3; 1 Kin. 4:21). This frontier was soon lost, but it was reaffirmed by the prophets as a national promise (Is. 27:12; Mic. 7:12). The Euphrates also served as a geographical marker for the border between Mesopotamia (Josh. 24:3, 14–15) and Assyria (Is. 7:20; 8:7).

The rivers of the Garden of Eden, including the Euphrates and the Tigris (or Hiddekel), represent God's rich provision for the fertility of the garden (Gen. 2:10–14). The idea is transferred to Zion as a source of divine blessing (Ps. 46:4; Ezek. 47:5–12) and to the heavenly Jerusalem (Rev. 22:1–2).

The word "river" is also used to symbolize God's delights (Ps. 36:8), peace (Is. 48:18; 66:12), life (John 7:38), and tears (Lam. 3:48). It also illustrates God's providential control over nature (Ps. 107:33; Is. 42:15).

RIVER OF EGYPT (see EGYPT, BROOK OF).

RIZIA [rih ZIGH uh]—a son of Ulla (1 Chr. 7:39; Rezia, KJV).

RIZPAH [RIZ puh]—a daughter of Aiah who became a concubine of King Saul (2 Sam. 3:7; 21:8, 10–11). She bore two sons, Armoni and Mephibosheth. After Saul's death, Abner had sexual relations with Rizpah (2 Sam. 3:7)—an act that amounted to claiming the throne of Israel. Ishbosheth (also called Esh-Baal), one of Saul's sons by another woman, accused Abner of immorality and, by implication, of disloyalty to Ishbosheth's authority. This accusation so enraged Abner that he transferred his loyalty from Saul to David.

Rizpah is a good example of the undying devotion of a mother. After the death of her sons, she kept vigil over their bodies for several months. When David heard of this, he ordered that Saul and Jonathan's bones, still unburied, be mingled with those of Saul's sons and grandsons and that they be buried "in the country of Benjamin in Zelah, in the tomb of Kish his [Saul's] father" (2 Sam. 21:14).

ROAD—an open public way for the passage of vehicles, persons, and animals.

Three types of roads existed in Palestine: (1) international roads that passed through the land, giving armies and caravans access to the great empires of the ancient world; (2) an internal system of roads that provided communication between the many regions of the country; and (3) the local roads, which were often little more than paths or trails.

The most important international highways were "the way of the sea," which followed the coastline of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, and the "King's Highway," which ran north-south through TRANSJORDAN. The coastal route is designated "the way to the sea" (Is. 9:1), as well as "the way of the land of the Philistines" (Ex. 13:17). This route was later known as the Via Maris because of the way Latin versions of the Bible translate the Isaiah passage.

The Via Maris, the most important international highway throughout the biblical period, originated in Egypt and then ran north by way of the Plain of Philistia and the Plain of Sharon. The road crossed the Carmel ridge at Megiddo, passed through the Valley of Jezreel, and continued by way of Hazor to Damascus. Some of the most important cities in this region of the world were situated along this road and its branches.

The King’s Highway (Num. 20:17; 21:22) was next in importance to the Via Maris. The northern section of the King’s Highway was also called “the way to Bashan” (Num. 21:33) or “the road to Bashan” (Deut. 3:1). This route ran the length of the Transjordanian Highlands, beginning at the Gulf of Aqaba and continuing north to Damascus. The campaign of Abraham against Chedorlaomer and his allies (Genesis 14) was conducted along the King’s Highway. It was along this road also that the Israelites were refused permission to pass on their march from Kadesh Barnea to the plains of Moab (Num. 20:19; 21:22).

The King’s Highway, which gave access to the spice routes from Arabia, was often controlled by semi-nomadic people who prevented the founding of settlements along its length. In certain periods, however, the route was guarded by a network of fortresses. Another north-south route was located to the east of the King’s Highway, along the fringe of the desert in order to avoid the four great dry stream beds whose deep canyons divide the Transjordanian highlands into their main geographical regions.

The Via Maris and the King’s Highway were joined by roadways that connected regions within the country. Thus, the network of roadways among the various regions was also used as part of the system for international travel. Regional roads mentioned in the Bible include “the way to the mountains of the Amorites” (Deut. 1:19), “the road . . . to Beth Shemesh” (1 Sam. 6:9), “the road to Beth Horon” (1 Sam. 13:18), and “the way of the wilderness” (Josh. 8:15).

ROBBER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

ROBE (see DRESS OF THE BIBLE).

ROCK—a large mass of stone that formed a cliff or peak, as well as broken pieces of such masses. Rocks abounded in the rough terrain of Palestine, especially in the central highlands. Some had specific names, including “the rock of Oreb” (Judg. 7:25) and “the rock of Etam” (Judg. 15:8). Huge rocks were used to construct the walls of fortified cities.

The word “rock” is often used figuratively in the Bible to speak of God and Christ. As Rock, God is the Creator (Deut. 32:18), His people’s strength (Deut. 32:4), His people’s defense and refuge (Ps. 31:2–3; 94:22), and His people’s salvation (Deut. 32:15; Ps. 89:26). In the New Testament, Christ is the Rock from whom the Spirit of life flows (John 4:13–14; 1 Cor. 10:4), the foundation of the church (Matt. 16:18) and its cornerstone (Eph. 2:20).

ROCK BADGER, ROCK GOAT, ROCK HYRAX (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

ROD—a staff, pole, or stick with many uses: a staff upon which a person may lean (Gen. 32:10; staff, KJV; Ex. 4:2); a club-like weapon (Ex. 21:20; 1 Sam. 14:27; Ps. 23:4); an instrument of punishment (2 Sam. 7:14; 1 Cor. 4:21); a shepherd's crook (Ezek. 20:37); a mark of authority, a scepter—such as Moses' rod (Ex. 4:20) and Aaron's rod (Num. 17:2–10); a measuring stick (Ezek. 40:3; Rev. 11:1); and a tool used to thresh grain (Is. 28:27).

RODANIM [ROE duh nim]—a tribe descended from JAVAN (1 Chr. 1:7; Dodanim, KJV). The NKJV refers to these people as Dodanim in Genesis 10:4 (Rodanim, NIV, REB). The Rodanim were probably the inhabitants of the island of RHODES.

ROE, ROEBUCK (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

ROGELIM [ROE guh lim]—a city in East Gilead probably near the River Jabbok (2 Sam. 17:27). It was the hometown of BARZILLAI the Gileadite (2 Sam. 19:31–39).

ROHGAH [ROE guh]—a son of Shemer, of the tribe of Asher (1 Chr. 7:34).

ROLL (see SCROLL.)

ROMAMTI-EZER [roe MAM tigh EE zur] (I have exalted help)—a singer in the 24th division of sanctuary musicians during David's reign (1 Chr. 25:4, 31).

ROMAN EMPIRE—the powerful pagan empire that controlled most of the known world during New Testament times.

Rome was founded in 753 B.C. by Romulus, who became its first king. The little kingdom grew in size and importance, absorbing its immediate neighbors through the reign of seven kings, until the tyranny of Tarquinius Superbus drove the people to revolt and to take the government into their own hands. A republic was established, and Roman citizens had a voice in governmental affairs. During the period of the republic, Rome extended her borders throughout all of Italy and the known world.

In 63 B.C., Judea became formally subject to Rome and this was the case during the entire New Testament period.

The republic was subject to internal strife that eventually led to the decline of a people-oriented government. The emperor Octavian, who was also known as Augustus, became emperor in 27 B.C. He was still reigning at the time of Jesus' birth.

Roman Religion. The religion that was native to Rome was basically primitive in nature. The Romans believed that impersonal spirits or supernatural powers inhabited such natural objects as trees, streams, and earth. They believed that these spirits affected one's personal life for good or evil.

But the most striking feature of Roman religion was its ability to merge the best features of several religions. As the empire expanded, it imported and assimilated many religious ideas and pagan gods from Greece and the Orient. Roman gods were fused and identified with the gods of the Greeks. Buildings, temples, and monuments to these gods were erected. Astrological beliefs and magical practices flourished.

An "imperial ruler cult" developed in the first century B.C. when the Roman senate voted to deify Julius Caesar and to dedicate a temple in his honor. Among all the emperors, only Julius Caesar, Augustus, and Claudius were deified. This phenomenon apparently had more political than religious meaning.

Throughout the entire New Testament period, various emperors ruled over the Roman Empire. During the reign of Augustus, Christ was born. His crucifixion occurred during the reign of the succeeding emperor Tiberius. The martyrdom of James, the brother of John, took place in the reign of the emperor Claudius (Acts 11:28; 12:1–2). It was to the emperor Nero that Paul appealed (Acts 25:11). The destruction of Jerusalem prophesied by Jesus (Matthew 24; Mark 13; Luke 19:41–44) was accomplished in the year A.D. 70 by Titus, who later became emperor. Thus, all of the New Testament story unfolded under the reign of Roman emperors.

The Roman Empire reached the height of its power from about A.D. 100 to 175. By the end of the second century, however, the Romans and their power had begun to decline. Because of the vast expanse of its territory, the Empire grew increasingly difficult to administer. High taxation and political infighting also took their toll.

Morally, Rome was also a sick society; its life of sin and debauchery served to hasten its collapse from within, even as barbaric tribes moved in to challenge the Romans' military rule. By A.D. 450 the Roman Empire was only a skeleton of its former self, reduced to a third-rate power among the nations of the ancient world.

The Jews Within the Empire. Contact between Rome and the Jews took place when some of the Jews were scattered to various parts of the Mediterranean world and when Rome moved into Palestine as a part of its eastern expansion. Technically, however, contact between the Romans and the Jews began in 63 B.C., when Pompey marched into the land of Palestine.

From the time of the captivity in Babylon—or perhaps even earlier—many Jews made their homes outside Palestine. While some of them did this for economic reasons, others had been deported as prisoners of war to such places as Assyria and Babylon. The prophet Jeremiah indicated that some Jews had settled in Egypt during his time (Jer. 44:1).

Under Roman rule the Jews were given a special status with certain legal rights. They were permitted to practice their own religion and to build their synagogues. They also were exempt from military service and were not required to appear in court on the Sabbath.

Relationships between the Jews and the Romans were mostly positive. But a few major disturbances did occur. The emperor Caligula alienated the Jews by opposing their belief in one God and forcibly erecting a statue of himself in their synagogues. Also, in A.D. 19, the emperor Tiberius expelled some Jews from Italy. This edict was renewed under Claudius in A.D. 49 (Acts 18:2). Apparently this edict did not last long, because Jews were living in Rome when Paul arrived there about A.D. 62.

The situation of the Jews varied considerably under the different Roman rulers. Basically, the Romans treated the Jews fairly. Herod the Great began to rebuild the temple in 20 B.C., and Herod Agrippa sought Jewish favor by persecuting the Christians (Acts 12:1–3). Archelaus, on the other hand, was a cruel and tyrannical ruler who massacred many Jews (Matt. 2:22).

Resentful of the presence of these foreign oppressors, the Jews refused to recognize anyone but God as sovereign. Revolutionary activities of Jewish nationalists such as the ZEALOTS increased and threatened the peace in Palestine. By A.D. 66, Rome was forced to subdue a Jewish revolt in Judea. And in A.D. 70, Titus, a Roman general who later became emperor, marched on the city of Jerusalem to destroy Jewish resistance. Many Jews lost their lives by crucifixion and other violent means. A small group of freedom fighters held out at Masada, but they took their own lives just before the Roman soldiers broke into their fortress.

The destruction of Jerusalem did not wipe out the Jewish state or religion. In some ways, it made the Jews more determined to resist. During the next sixty years Rome and the Jews clashed on a number of occasions. From A.D. 132–135 a second rebellion was led by a self-proclaimed messiah, Simon Bar Koseba. Hadrian, emperor at the time, issued an edict that virtually destroyed Judaism. Jerusalem was rebuilt as a Roman colony, complete with a pagan Roman temple, erected on the site of the Jewish temple. The province of Judea was replaced by Syria Palestine. In this rebellion, some 500,000 Jews were killed and many others were sold into slavery. Those who survived were scattered beyond this new province.

Christianity Within the Empire. The birth and development of Christianity took place within the borders of the Roman Empire. The New Testament contains several references to Romans who were ruling at this time. Among them were AUGUSTUS; CAESAR (Luke 2:1), QUIRINIUS (Luke 2:2), and CAESAR; TIBERIUS (Luke 3:1; 20:22). Other minor officials ruled on behalf of Rome, particularly those of the Herodian dynasty.

The Book of Acts shows how Christianity spread throughout the Roman Empire. Under Paul, the great missionary to the Gentiles, the gospel may have been preached as far west as Spain (Rom. 15:28). A Christian church existed in Rome as early as A.D. 50 (Acts 18:2–3). By the time Paul wrote his Epistle to the Romans (A.D. 58), a large Christian community existed in the imperial city.

Paul’s appearance in Rome was ironic, because he came as a prisoner and not as a missionary (Acts 25:12; 27:1; 28:19–31). Here he was held in confinement awaiting a trial that apparently never took place.

According to tradition, Paul lost his life under Nero's persecution about A.D. 64.

In its early stages, Christianity was regarded by Rome as a sect of Judaism. This is why it was ignored during its early years. On several occasions, Roman authorities viewed conflicts between Jews and Christians as an internal matter, not worthy of their attention (Acts 18:12–17). When Christians were accused by the Jews of breaking the law, they were acquitted (Acts 16:35–39). Rome even protected Christians from Jewish fanatics (Acts 19:28–41; 22:22–30; 23:23–24) and assured Paul the right of a proper trial (Acts 23:26; 28:31).

Most Christians had a positive and respectful attitude toward Roman authority. They were careful not to promote any revolutionary or treasonous acts. Jesus spoke about paying taxes (Mark 12:17). Paul reminded his readers to respect, pray for, and honor governing authorities (Rom. 13:1–7; 1 Tim. 2:1–2; Titus 3:1). Peter admonished the churches: "Honor all people. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king" (1 Pet. 2:17).

The first known persecution of Christians by the Roman authorities took place under Nero. But this was an isolated case and not a general policy. Many Christians, including Paul, lost their lives at this time. Tacitus, a Roman historian, refers to vast multitudes of Christians who were arrested, tortured, crucified, and burned.

Hardships came to Christians in parts of Asia while Domitian was emperor. Later, under Trajan, there were further problems, especially in Bithynia, where Pliny was governor (A.D. 112). Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, was martyred during this persecution. Rome may have feared that Christians could become a political threat because they would not acknowledge Caesar as lord.

Marcus Aurelius took official action against Christianity. As emperor, he was responsible for the death of Justin Martyr (A.D. 165). Celsius (A.D. 249–251) launched attacks against Christians and, like Nero, used them as scapegoats for his own failures.

Under Diocletian intense persecution of the church took place for three years (A.D. 303–305). Many churches were destroyed. Bibles were burned, and Christians were martyred. With the coming of Constantine, however, this policy of persecution was reversed. His Edict of Milan in A.D. 313 made Christianity the official religion of the Roman Empire.

A pedestrian on the streets of Rome

“Hurry as we may, we are blocked by a surging crowd in front, and by a dense mass of people pressing in on us from behind: one man digs an elbow into me, another a hard sedan-pole; one bangs a beam, another a wine-cask, against my head. My legs are beplastered with mud; soon huge feet trample me on every side, and a soldier plants his hob-nails firmly on my toe.”

Juvenal

On the Appian Way

“Our next stop was Forum Appii which was packed with boatman and also some roguish innkeepers. We were lazy and took two days over this stage, which more energetic travelers usually manage in one. But the Appian Way is less tiring if taken leisurely. Here I declared war on my stomach because of the appalling water...Sleep was quite impossible because of the dreadful mosquitoes and the marsh frogs . . .”

Horace

Interrupted journey

“Halt, muddy river! Rest awhile among your reeds. Make way for a lover in a hurry, for you haven't a bridge, or a chain-ferry, to take me across without oars. I remember you as a little stream easily forded, hardly deep enough to wet my ankles. Now you're in spate, swollen by melting snow from the mountain, swinging along brown and turbid.”

Ovid

Complaints of a traveler

“I have been in three shipwrecks, and once I spent 24 hours in the water. In my many travels I have been in danger from floods and from robbers, in danger from fellow-Jews and from Gentiles. There have been dangers in the cities, dangers in the wilds, dangers on the high seas, and dangers from false friends. There has been work and toil; often I have gone without sleep; I have been hungry and thirsty; I have been without enough food, shelter or clothing.”

Paul

Good and bad food guide

“Next day we traveled 24 miles by coach to stay at a village. You have to buy the water there, cheapest commodity as it is. But the bread is so marvelous that travelers who know about it often carry it with them on their shoulders; for the bread at Canusium is rather gritty, and a jug of water is no better.”

Horace

Despite the complaints of travelers, the Roman Empire opened up the Mediterranean world to (relatively) easy travel for the first time. Frontiers were easy to cross. Roman roads were good, pirates had been swept from the seas, and there was peace. All this meant that the Christian message was able to spread rapidly.

ROMAN LAW—the unique laws and judicial codes by which the Roman Empire governed itself and the various nations and foreign provinces under its control.

Judicial authority ranged from the absolute power of the emperor to the function of the senate and the imperial civil service (GOVERNOR; PROCURATOR, PREFECT, MAGISTRATE, etc.). Judicial procedure in Rome generally included appearance before a magistrate, a trial, and the selection of a judge who would then render judgment on a case.

In the provinces, Roman law was administered by Roman officials. Pontius Pilate, for example, was the Roman governor involved in the trial of Jesus. The gospel accounts of this episode give considerable insight into the judicial procedure of the Romans and how they related to local Jewish officials (Matthew 27; Mark 15; Luke 23; John 18–19).

The apostle Paul's Roman citizenship granted him certain privileges as well as protection from Jewish and Roman fanaticism (Acts 16:35–39; 22:22–29). His imprisonment in Caesarea and defense before Felix, Festus, and King Agrippa (Acts 23:26—26:32), as well as his specific appeal to plead his case before Caesar (25:10–12), are good examples of Roman civil and legal law.

Christianity began in Roman territory and expanded into additional areas controlled by Rome. Christians were expected to observe Roman law and not to get involved in any disorderly, suspicious, or treasonous activity.

The Book of Acts shows that the early Christians were protected and acquitted by the Roman authorities. They recognized Christianity as a legal and valid religion with the right to exist. Paul affirmed that he had not broken any Jewish, religious, or Roman law (Acts 25:8).

ROMANS, EPISTLE TO THE—the most formal and systematic of Paul's epistles. The main theme of Romans is that righteousness comes as a free gift of God and is receivable by faith alone. Romans stands at the head of the Pauline epistles because it is the longest of his letters, but it is also Paul's most important epistle.

Repeatedly in its history, the church has found in this epistle a catalyst for reform and new life. In the fourth century a troubled young man, sensing a divine command to open the Bible and read the first passage he came to, read these words: "Not in revelry and drunkenness, not in licentiousness and lewdness, not in strife and envy. But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill its lusts" (13:13–14).

"In an instant," says St. Augustine, "the light of confidence flooded into my heart and all the darkness of doubt was dispelled." In the 16th century a young monk found release from his struggles with God by claiming salvation by grace through faith (Rom. 1:17; 3:24). This truth caused Martin Luther to launch the greatest reform the church has ever known. Romans, perhaps more than any single book of the Bible, has exerted a powerful influence on the history of Christianity.

Structure of the Epistle. The Epistle to the Romans consists of two halves, a doctrinal section (chaps. 1–8) and a practical section (chaps. 12–16), separated by three chapters on the place of Israel in the history of salvation (chaps. 9–11).

Paul declares his main theme in the first chapter—that the gospel is the power of salvation to everyone who believes (1:16–17). This declaration is then held in suspension until 3:21, while Paul digresses to show that all peoples are in need of salvation: the Gentiles have broken the law of conscience, and the Jews the law of Moses (1:18—3:20).

Paul then returns to his opening theme. In a classic statement of the Christian gospel, he explains that righteousness comes by the grace of God through people's trust in the saving work of Christ (3:21–31). The example of Abraham testifies that the promise of God is realized through faith (4:1–25). The benefits of JUSTIFICATION are peace and confidence before God (5:1–11). Thus, Christ's ability to save is greater than Adam's ability to corrupt (5:12–21).

Paul then takes up the problem of SIN in the Christian life. Rather than acting as a stimulus to sin, GRACE draws us into a loyal union with Christ (6:1–14). Christ has freed us from slavery to sin so that we may become slaves of righteousness (6:15—7:6). Paul admits that the law brings sin to light, but sin convinces us of our need for a Savior (7:7–25). Paul concludes the doctrinal section by one of the most triumphant chapters in all the Bible: believers are not condemned by God, but are raised by the power of the Holy Spirit to face all adversity through the redeeming love of God (8:1–39).

In chapters 9–11 Paul discusses the question of why Israel rejected the Savior sent to them.

Paul then discusses a number of practical consequences of the gospel. A proper response involves the sacrifice of one's entire life to the gospel (12:1–2). The gifts of grace to the church are complementary, not competitive or uniform (12:3–8). He lists insights for Christian conduct (12:9–21). Christians are instructed on the attitudes they should have toward the government (13:1–7), neighbors (13:8–10), the Second Coming (13:11–14), and judging (14:1–12) and cooperating with others (14:13—15:13). Paul closes with his travel plans (15:14–33) and a long list of greetings (16:1–27).

Authorship and Date. There can be no doubt that Romans is an exposition of the content of the gospel by the strongest thinker in the early church—the apostle Paul. The epistle bears Paul's name as author (1:1). Throughout, it reflects Paul's deep involvement with the gospel. Paul most likely wrote the epistle during his third missionary journey as he finalized plans to visit Rome (Acts 19:21). His three-month stay in Corinth, probably in the spring of A.D. 56 or 57, would have provided the extended, uninterrupted time needed to compose such a reasoned commentary on the Christian faith.

Historical Setting. Romans was written to a church that Paul did not found and had not visited. He wrote the letter to give an account of his gospel in preparation for a personal visit (1:11). Paul wrote most probably from Corinth, where he was completing the collection of money from the Macedonian and Achaian Christians for the "poor saints" in Jerusalem. After delivering the money, he planned to visit Rome and, with the Romans' support, to travel to Spain. The epistle, therefore, served as an advanced goodwill ambassador for Paul's visit to Rome and his later mission to Spain (15:22–33).

Theological Contribution. The great theme of Romans is God's power to save. The Romans understood power; when Paul wrote this epistle to the capital of the ancient world, Rome ruled supreme. The gospel, however, is nothing to be ashamed of in comparison; for it, too, is power—indeed the "power of God to salvation for everyone" (1:16). In the gospel both Jews and Gentiles find access to God, not on the basis of human achievement, but because of God's free grace bestowed on those who accept it in faith.

Paul emphasizes that everyone stands in need of God's grace. This was apparent in the case of the Gentiles, who, instead of worshiping the Creator, worshiped the things created (1:25). But the Jews, in spite of their belief that they were superior to Gentiles, were also bankrupt. The Jews knew the revealed will of God and they judged others by it; but they failed to see they were condemned by the very law under which they passed judgments (2:1—3:8). Thus, "there is no difference, for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (3:22–23).

But "good news" is that God's love is so great that it reaches humankind even in their sin. The form it took was the death of the beloved Son of God on the cross. The righteous one, Jesus, died on behalf of the unrighteous. Therefore, God pronounces persons justified, not when they have attained a certain level of goodness—thus excluding justification by works—but in the midst of their sin and rebellion (5:8–10). Such grace can be received only by grateful and trusting surrender, which is FAITH.

In light of this magnificent salvation, Paul urged the Romans not to return to their old human nature, which always stands under condemnation of the law. Rather, he called on them to live free from sin and death through the power of the indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit (8:10–11).

Special Considerations. Romans reflects Paul's deep concern with the relation between Jew and Gentile (chaps. 9–11). The Jews are indeed God's Chosen People, although their history is one of rebellion against God. Their rejection of Christ is consistent with their history, although a remnant does remain faithful. The rejection of the Jews, ironically, has increased the truly faithful because the cutting off of the native olive branch (Israel) has allowed a wild branch (Gentiles) to be grafted onto the tree (11:13).

Paul also declared that the inclusion of the Gentiles in the household of God aroused the Jews to jealousy, moving them to claim God's promised blessings. Thus, the hardened response of the Jews to the gospel is only temporary, until the Gentiles are fully included into the faith. At some future time the Jews will change and, like the remnant, "all Israel will be saved" (11:26).

Paul's wrestling with this problem caused him not to doubt or condemn God, but to marvel at God's wisdom (11:33). This marvelous epistle has kindled the same response in Christians of all generations.

ROME, CITY OF—capital city of the ancient Roman Empire and present capital of modern Italy (see Map 8, A–1).

Founded in 753 B.C., Rome was situated 24 kilometers (15 miles) from where the Tiber River flows into the Mediterranean Sea. From its initial settlement on the Palatine Hill near the river, the city gradually grew and embraced the surrounding area. Ultimately, the city was situated on seven hills: Capital, Palatine, Aventine, Caelian, Esquiline, Viminal, and Quirinal.

As capital of the Roman Empire, the city was the seat of Roman government. During its long history, Roman government went through the forms of a monarchy, a republic, and an empire.

The monarchy lasted from 753 to 510 B.C. when Rome was ruled by kings. After Romulus, the first king (ruled 753–714 B.C.), Rome was ruled by six other princes until the decline of the monarchical form of government in 510 B.C.

As a republic, Rome was governed by elected consuls who in turn presided over the senate. Under the republic, Rome expanded its borders and engaged in major internal reforms. The period of the republic lasted until 31 B.C. when Caesar Augustus became the first emperor. He developed Rome into a beautiful and stately city.

During the reign of Augustus as emperor in Rome, Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea. At that time and during the entire New Testament period, Judea was under Roman rule. Roman influence penetrated the entire Jewish community and continued to be felt in the life and mission of the New Testament church. During the reign of Tiberius, successor to Augustus, Jesus' public ministry occurred. The great missionary endeavors of the apostle Paul took place during the reign of Claudius. Under Nero, the city of Rome was burned, Christians were persecuted, and the apostle Paul was martyred.

The Book of Acts describes the thrilling story of the early church as it shared the gospel, beginning at Jerusalem and finally reaching Rome.

The apostle Paul's first known connection with Rome was when he met Aquila and Priscilla at Corinth (Acts 18:2). They had left Rome when Claudius expelled all the Jews from the city. Some few years after meeting Aquila and Priscilla, Paul decided that he "must also see Rome" (Acts 19:21). When he wrote his letter to the Christians at Rome, his plan was to visit friends in the city on his way to Spain (Rom. 15:24).

However, Paul actually went to Rome under very different conditions than he had originally planned. To keep from being killed by hostile Jews in Jerusalem, Paul appealed to Caesar. The binding effect of that appeal ultimately brought him to the capital city as a prisoner. Here he waited for his trial. The Book of Acts closes at this point, and one must rely on secular history and references in the Pastoral Epistles for the rest of the story. Tradition holds that Paul was ultimately martyred by Nero during the emperor's persecution of Christians.

The city to which Paul came was very similar to a modern city. The public buildings and other structures were lavishly constructed. A new senate house and a temple to honor Caesar had been constructed in A.D. 29. In A.D. 28 the senate had authorized Augustus to rebuild or restore some eighty-two temples in need of repair. In the process, he built a great temple to Apollo near his palace on the Palatine Hill. Other buildings included the Colosseum, where Roman games occurred.

The houses of the wealthy people of Rome were elaborately constructed and situated on the various hills, but most of the people lived in tenements. These crowded apartment dwellings were multistoried buildings that engulfed the city. Over a million people lived in these tenements, which were surrounded by narrow and noisy streets with a steady flow of traffic day and night.

The people of Rome were provided with food and entertainment by the state. Wine was also plentiful and cheap. Admission to the games was free. Large crowds attended these games, which included chariot racing, gladiatorial contests, and theatrical performances.

Like Babylon, the city of Rome became a symbol of paganism and idolatry in the New Testament. The Book of Revelation contains several disguised references to the pagan city. Most scholars agree that Revelation 17–18 should be interpreted as predictions of the fall of Rome.

ROOF—the top of a house. The roof of a typical house in Palestine usually was flat and often was used as a sitting area. The roof was used as a place both to relax and to observe the surrounding area (2 Sam. 11:2). The phrase, “under my roof,” suggested hospitality. Thus, when the centurion whose servant Jesus healed did not feel worthy of having Jesus “under my roof” (Matt. 8:8), he was saying that he had no right to entertain Him. Also see HOUSE.

ROOF-CHAMBER (see CHAMBER).

ROOMS—separate compartments into which buildings were divided. Typical houses in Bible times had few rooms. The upper room, enclosed on the housetop, was the most desirable one in the house, and it usually was given to house guests. Jesus probably held the Last Supper in a room like this (Mark 14:14; Luke 22:11). The houses of the poor did not have such special rooms. They usually contained only one allpurpose room. Also see HOUSE.

ROOSTER—the adult male of the common domestic fowl. All four gospels tell how Jesus predicted Peter's denial: "Assuredly, I say to you that this night, before the rooster crows [or crows twice, Mark 14:30], you will deny Me three times" (Matt. 26:34; also Luke 22:34; John 13:38).

ROOT—the part of a plant that provides stability and nourishment for the plant. Most of the references to roots in the Bible are symbolic, based on this important relationship of the root to the plant. As a metaphor, to be rooted means to be established; to be uprooted means to be dispossessed.

The highest use of the metaphor of the word "root" comes in the messianic passages that refer to Jesus as the descendant of David: "And in that day there shall be a Root of Jesse who shall stand as a banner to the people" (Is. 11:10). The Book of Revelation speaks of Christ as "the Root of David" (5:5) and "the Root and Offspring of David" (22:16), indicating that Jesus is both human and divine, both the Offspring and the Origin of the messianic line.

ROPE (see CORD).

ROSE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

ROSETTA STONE—a black basalt tablet unearthed in August, 1799, near the village of Rosetta, Egypt, then taken to the British Museum in 1802. The stone was inscribed in three languages: hieroglyphic, demotic Egyptian, and Koine Greek. This stone was the key that the brilliant young French scholar and Egyptologist, Jean Francois Champollion, used to decipher Egyptian hieroglyphics. Champollion broke the hieroglyphic code by comparing it with the other two languages, which were translations of the same text. The discovery of this stone made it possible for scholars to translate Egyptian texts and to understand various aspects of the background of Israel's history.

• The famous Rosetta Stone, showing the three distinct ancient languages with which the stone was inscribed.

ROSH [rahsh] (chief)—the name of a man and a tribe in the Old Testament:

1. A descendant of Benjamin (Gen. 46:21) and one of those who went to Egypt with Jacob and Jacob's sons.
2. A northern people mentioned with Meshech and Tubal (Ezek. 38:2–3; 39:1). Some scholars believe Rosh was the name of one of the three northern tribes over which Gog ruled.

ROYAL CITY—a headquarters or capital city, or the center of a king's royal rule in Bible times. Notable capital cities of the Bible included JERUSALEM (Judah), SAMARIA (Israel), and DAMASCUS (Syria). The term royal city is also applied to RABBAH, capital of the AMMONITES (2 Sam. 12:26).

RUBBISH—(see DUNG).

RUBY (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

RUDDER—a flat piece of wood or metal attached to a ship's stern that causes the ship to turn as it is moved (Acts 27:40; steeringpaddles, REB; James 3:4; helm, KJV). "Look also at ships," James wrote. "Although they are so large and are driven by fierce winds, they are turned by a very small rudder wherever the pilot desires. Even so the tongue is a little member and boasts great things" (James 3:4–5). Also see SHIPS.

RUDDY—a healthy, reddish color. In two places in the Bible the word refers to the rosy complexion of vigorous health (Song 5:10; Lam. 4:7). As a boy, David was also described as ruddy (1 Sam. 16:12; 17:42). Some scholars believe the word in this case may mean that David had red hair.

RUDIMENTS—KJV word for fundamental elements, principles, or skills (Col. 2:8, 20; basic principles, NKJV). The word rudiments may refer to "the elemental spirits of the universe" (RSV), demons (1 Cor. 10:20–21), or to principles of human philosophy in contrast to the truths of Christ. In Galatians 4:3, 9, the apostle Paul uses the same word to refer to the "weak and beggarly elements" to which believers were in bondage before they came to Christ.

RUE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

RUFUS [ROO fuhs]—the name of two men in the New Testament:

1. A son of Simon of Cyrene (Mark 15:21). Simon was the man who was compelled by the Romans to carry the cross of Jesus (Matt. 27:32; Luke 23:26).
2. A Christian in Rome to whom Paul sent greetings (Rom. 16:13).

RUHAMAH [roo HAH muh] (mercy is shown)—a symbolic name given to Israel by the prophet Hosea to indicate the return of God's mercy (Hos. 2:1, KJV, NASB; mercy is shown, NKJV).

RUIN, RUINS—a total disintegration or collapse; the remains of something destroyed. The Bible also speaks of moral and spiritual ruin, which can come to those who worship idols (2 Chr. 28:23) or who hear the words of Christ and do nothing (Luke 6:46–49).

RULER OF THE SYNAGOGUE—the leader or president of a SYNAGOGUE. As an administrator, he was charged with supervision of all matters pertaining to the synagogue. He was not a dictator over the congregation. He was elected by the board of elders to oversee the worship services and the upkeep of the building. He chose the men to read the Scriptures, to offer prayer, and to preach or explain the Scripture for each meeting.

If discipline was called for, the ruler of the synagogue could reprimand or excommunicate a member (John 9:22; 16:2), or even order that a scourging or a whipping be carried out (Matt. 10:17; Mark 13:9). Rulers of the synagogue mentioned by name in the New Testament are JAIRUS (Mark 5:22; Luke 8:41), CRISPUS (Acts 18:8), and SOSTHENES (Acts 18:17).

RUMAH [ROO muh] (elevated)—the hometown of Pedaiah (2 Kin. 23:36).

RUSH (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

RUST—corrosion of metal. This term is often used symbolically in the Bible. In the Old Testament, the prophet Ezekiel’s parable of the corroded copper cauldron (Ezek. 24:6–13, NASB; pot, NRSV) speaks of the rust (or scum, NKJV, KJV) that has become encrusted on the cooking pots as a symbol of the ingrained filthiness of the unbelievers in Jerusalem. In the New Testament, Jesus contrasted “treasures on earth” that moth and rust destroy with “treasures in heaven” (Matt. 6:19–20).

In an indictment of the rich who have oppressed the poor, James said that the rich would be judged: “Your gold and silver are corroded and their corrosion will be a witness against you” (James 5:3).

RUTH [rooth] (friendship)—the mother of Obed and great-grandmother of David. A woman of the country of Moab, Ruth married Mahlon, one of the two sons of Elimelech and Naomi. With his wife and sons, Elimelech had migrated to Moab to escape a famine in the land of Israel. When Elimelech and both of his sons died, they left three widows: Naomi, Ruth, and Orpah (Ruth’s sister-in-law). When Naomi decided to return home to Bethlehem, Ruth chose to accompany her, saying, “Wherever you go, I will go” (Ruth 1:16).

In Bethlehem, Ruth was permitted to glean in the field of Boaz, a wealthy kinsman of Elimelech (Ruth 2:1). At Naomi’s urging, Ruth asked protection of Boaz as next of kin—a reflection of the Hebrew law of LEVIRATE MARRIAGE (Deut. 25:5–10). After a nearer kinsman waived his right to buy the family property and provide Elimelech an heir, Boaz married Ruth. Their son, Obed, was considered one of Naomi’s family, according to the custom of the day.

Ruth’s firm decision—“Your people shall be my people, and your God, my God” (Ruth 1:16)—brought a rich reward. She became an ancestor of David and Jesus (Matt. 1:5).

RUTH, BOOK OF—a short Old Testament book about a devoted Gentile woman, Ruth of Moab, who became an ancestor of King David of Israel.

Structure of the Book. The Book of Ruth tells the story of a Moabite woman who married into a family of Israelites. But her husband and all the other men of the family died, leaving Ruth and her mother-in-law Naomi in a desperate situation. Ruth accompanied Naomi back to Judah, where they scratched out an existence by gathering leftover grain in the fields. This led to Ruth’s encounter with Boaz, a wealthy Israelite and distant kinsman of Naomi, who eventually married the Moabite woman. Their son became the father of David’s father, making Ruth and Boaz the great-grandparents of Judah’s most famous king.

Authorship and Date. The author of Ruth is unknown, although some scholars credit it to the prophet Samuel. The book had to be written some time after David became king of Judah, since it refers to his administration. This would place its writing at some time around 990 B.C.

Historical Setting. The events in the book occurred at a dark time in Israel’s history—in “the days when the judges ruled” (1:1), according to the historical introduction. This was a period when the nation lapsed again and again into worship of false gods. What a contrast this is to Ruth, who remained faithful to God, although she was a Moabite by birth—one considered an alien by God’s Chosen People!

Theological Contribution. Ruth's life gives us a beautiful example of the providence of God. He brought Ruth to precisely the right field where she could meet Boaz. God is also portrayed in the book as the model of loyal and abiding love (2:20).

Special Considerations. The name Ruth means "friendship," and this book contains one of the most touching examples of friendship in the Bible. Ruth's words to her mother-in-law are quoted often as a pledge of love and devotion. "Entreat me not to leave you, or to turn back from following after you; for wherever you go, I will go; wherever you lodge, I will lodge; your people shall be my people, and your God, my God" (1:16).

SABBATH [SAB bahth]—the practice of observing one day in seven as a time for rest and worship. This practice apparently originated in creation, because God created the universe in six days and rested on the seventh (Genesis 1). By this act, God ordained a pattern for living—that people should work six days each week at subduing and ruling the creation and should rest one day a week. This is the understanding of the creation set forth by Moses in Exodus 20:3–11, when he wrote the Ten Commandments at God’s direction.

History of the Sabbath. The practice of the weekly Sabbath is suggested at several places in the Bible, long before the Ten Commandments were given at Mt. Sinai. In Genesis, for example, starting with Seth (Gen. 4:26), people began to call upon the name of the Lord in acts of worship. Thus, periods of seven days play a prominent role at crucial points throughout Genesis (Gen. 7:4, 10; 8:10, 12). The mention of a seven-day week and a seven-year cycle in the life practice of Laban, Abraham’s relative, is striking.

The formal institution of the Sabbath is a basic part of the Mosaic Law system. Each division of the law contains specific sections relating to the practice of the Sabbath: the moral law (the Ten Commandments), the civil law (Ex. 31:14), and the ceremonial law (Lev. 23:3). The keeping of the Sabbath was a sign that God truly ruled Israel. To break His Sabbath law was to rebel against Him—an action meriting death (Ex. 21:14). Society was not to seek advancement outside of submission to God. Therefore, all work except acts of mercy, necessity, and worship were forbidden on the Sabbath (Is. 58:13; Matt. 12:1–13).

The Old Testament prophets recounted God’s blessings upon those who properly observed the Sabbath (Is. 58:13). They called upon the people to observe the Sabbath (Neh. 10:31; 13:15–22), while soundly condemning those who made much of external observance and ignored the heart and moral issues to which the Sabbath bound them (Is. 1:13; Hos. 2:11; Amos 8:5).

During the period between the Old and New Testaments, Jewish religious leaders added greatly to the details of Sabbath legislation. They sought to insure proper and careful observance by making certain that people did not even come close to violating it. This substituted human law for divine law (Matt. 15:9), made the law a burden rather than a rest and delight (Luke 11:46), and reduced the Sabbath to little more than an external observance (Matt. 12:8). Jesus, like the Old Testament prophets, kept the Sabbath Himself (Luke 4:16) and urged others to observe the day (Mark 2:28). But He condemned the pharisaical attitude that missed the deep spiritual truth behind Sabbath observance (Matt 12:14; Mark 2:23; Luke 6:1–11; John 5:1–18).

The Christian Sabbath. Many Christians feel that God still expects His people to set aside one day in seven to Him. They argue that such an observance is a creation ordinance that is binding until this creation comes to an end and our ultimate rest as Christians is realized in heaven (Hebrews 4). They also believe that as part of the moral system known as the Ten Commandments, the Sabbath is morally binding upon all people for all time.

Historically, Christians of this persuasion usually observe Sunday, the first day of the week, as the Christian Sabbath. They note that Christ arose on the first day of the week (Matt. 28:1) and, thereafter, the New Testament church regularly worshiped on Sunday (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 16:2; Rev. 1:10). This day on which Jesus arose was called the LORD’S DAY (Rev. 1:10). A few Christian groups, however, deny that observance of the seventh day as the Sabbath was ever abolished. Among them are Seventh-Day Adventists and Seventh-Day Baptists.

Meaning of the Sabbath. The Sabbath is a means by which our living pattern imitates God’s (Ex. 20:3–11). Work is followed by rest. This idea is expressed by the Hebrew word for Sabbath, which means “cessation.”

Sabbath rest is also a time for God's people to think about and enjoy what God has accomplished. Another Hebrew word meaning "rest" embodies this idea, "But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the LORD your God. In it you shall not do any work," (Deut. 5:14). God's people are directed to keep the Sabbath because God delivered and redeemed His people from the bondage in Egypt. Thus, the Sabbath is an ordinance that relates redemption directly to history.

Sabbath rest also holds promise of the ultimate salvation that God will accomplish for His people. As certainly as He delivered them from Egypt through Moses, so will He deliver His people from sin at the end of the age through the Great Redeemer (Gen. 3:15; Hebrews 4).

Finally, the Sabbath includes the idea and practice of celebrating rest, or salvation. To this end, God declared that His Sabbath was a day for public convocation (Lev. 23:3; Ex. 31:13; Ezek. 20:12).

The concept of celebration also presents the Sabbath as a delight (Ps. 92; Is. 58:13; Hos. 2:11). The sabbatical holy days (holidays) prescribed rest from work for everyone (Ex. 23:21; Num. 15:32). To this end the daily morning and evening sacrifices were doubled on the weekly Sabbath day (Num. 28:9; Ps. 92).

On the Sabbath the SHOWBREAD was to be renewed (Lev. 24:8). The people were to meet together to praise God and to be instructed in His law (Lev. 10:11; Deut. 14:29; 33:10).

SABBATH DAY'S JOURNEY—the distance a Jew could travel on the Sabbath without breaking the law. This phrase occurs in the Bible in Acts 1:12, where Mount Olivet is described as being "near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey." This distance is usually reckoned to be about a thousand yards (Josh. 3:4, NIV; two thousand cubits, REB, NRSV, NKJV), because of the distance between the ARK OF THE COVENANT and the rest of the Israelite camp in the wilderness.

The idea behind the Jewish law (see Ex. 16:29) was that every person within the camp or city would be close enough to the center of worship to take part in the services without having to travel such a great distance that the Sabbath became a harried and busy day. This law, although noble in intent, was soon abused by a strict legalism. In the New Testament, Jesus often clashed with the Pharisees because of their blind legalism over observance of the Sabbath (Matt. 12:1–9).

SABBATICAL YEAR—a year of rest and redemption that occurred every seven years in the Hebrew nation. By God's prescription, Israel was to set apart every seventh year by letting the land go uncultivated (Lev. 25:4–5). The crops and harvest that were reaped during this year were considered the common possession of all people and animals (Ex. 23:11; Deut. 15:1–18). None of this harvest was to be stored for future use.

During a sabbatical year, Israelites were to cancel all debts owed to them by their fellow Israelites (Deut. 15:1–5). At the least, a period of grace was to be set aside in which payment was not required. The people of Israel were also to free their Hebrew slaves, remembering that they were also slaves in the land of Egypt at one time and that God had redeemed them by His goodness.

God's anger fell on Israel because the sabbatical year was not observed from the time of Solomon (Jer. 34:14–22). This was one reason why Israel spent seventy years in bondage at the hands of the Babylonians.

SABTA, SABTAH [SAB tuh]—the third son of Cush and grandson of Ham (Gen. 10:7, Sabtah; 1 Chr. 1:9, Sabta). Sabta's descendants lived in Arabia, perhaps along the southwestern coast of the Red Sea.

1. The father of Ahiam (1 Chr. 11:35; Sachar, NRSV). Sacar is also called Sharar (2 Sam. 23:33).

2. A son of Obed-Edom (1 Chr. 26:4).

SACKBUT (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

SACKCLOTH—a rough, coarse cloth, or a baglike garment made of this cloth and worn as a symbol of mourning or repentance. In the Bible sackcloth was often used to symbolize certain actions. In the case of mourning, either over a death (Gen. 37:34; Joel 1:8) or another calamity (Esth. 4:1–4; Job 16:15), the Israelites showed their grief by wearing sackcloth and ashes. This was done also in instances of confession and grief over sin (1 Kin. 21:27).

Sackcloth was often worn by prophets, perhaps to show their own brokenness in the face of their terrible message of judgment and doom (Is. 20:2; Rev. 11:3). The word for sackcloth in the Bible can also mean sack. Joseph ordered that the sacks of his brothers be filled with grain (Gen. 42:25). Rizpah spread sackcloth on a rock, using it as bedding material (2 Sam. 21:10). But sackcloth was most commonly used as an article of clothing.

SACRAMENT—a formal religious act in which the actions and materials used are the channels by which God’s grace is communicated, either actually or symbolically. The word “sacrament” is not used in most English versions of the Bible. It comes from the Latin sacramentum, which was the word for a soldier’s oath of allegiance. The word also came to have the idea of mystery associated with it. The Eastern Orthodox churches usually refer to the sacraments as mysteries.

Roman Catholics and the Orthodox have seven sacraments: the Eucharist (Lord’s Supper), baptism, confirmation, penance (the forgiveness of sins), matrimony, holy orders, and extreme unction (the anointing of those in danger of death). They hold that these sacraments are means of grace, or channels through which God imparts spiritual blessedness.

Protestant Christians consider baptism and the Lord’s Supper the only true sacraments instituted by the Lord Jesus. These are the only two actions involving visible symbols (the water, and the bread and wine) that were clearly observed by Christ (Luke 22:14–20) and commanded by Him (Matt. 28:19–20). Some Christians object to calling baptism and the Lord’s Supper sacraments, insisting that these “ordinances” are not means to grace but symbols of grace.

SACRIFICE—the ritual through which the Hebrew people offered the blood or the flesh of an animal to God as a substitute payment for their sin. Sacrifice and sacrificing originated in the Garden of Eden soon after the FALL of mankind. Various principles of sacrifice are confirmed in the account of Cain and Abel (Gen. 4:3–5). Abel offered a better sacrifice than Cain for two reasons. First, he gave the best that he had, whereas Cain simply offered whatever happened to be available. Second, Abel’s offering demonstrated that he was motivated by faith in God and that his attitude was pleasing to God (Gen. 4:4–5; Heb. 11:4). Cain, by contrast, would soon demonstrate that his attitude was displeasing to God. He would become selfish, angry, and deceitful. He would then murder his brother, lie to God, and refuse to confess his sin or show remorse.

It is a serious mistake to affirm that Abel’s sacrifice was acceptable to God because it was an animal sacrifice and that Cain’s sacrifice was unacceptable because he did not bring an animal. Genesis 4 makes no mention of offerings for the atonement of sin, and therefore to insist that the blood of an animal is mandated here is to read more into the account than is warranted. Attitude on the part of the offerer, not the nature of the offering, is in the forefront of the author’s concern in Genesis 4.

Nor is it helpful to claim that God’s provision of animal skins in Genesis 3, in contrast to the fig leaves used by Adam and Eve, presupposes the slaughter of a sacrificial animal. Warmth and comfort are in view, not atonement.

When Noah came out of the ark, his first act was to build an altar upon which he sacrificed animals to God. This pleased God not because God was hungry but because Noah’s act was a recognition that God understood his sinfulness, its penalty, and the necessity of blood sacrifice as a divine provision (Heb. 11:39–40). Noah represented all mankind who now recognized God’s gracious provision and promise. God pledged never again to curse the ground (Gen. 8:20–22), and He blessed Noah because of his faith.

Eventually, God called Abraham, who rejoiced in anticipation of the appearance of a promised redeemer (John 8:56). Abraham regularly worshiped God by offering sacrifices to Him. God taught Abraham that the ultimate sacrifice would be the sacrifice of a human being, one of Adam’s descendants—an only son provided miraculously by God.

The fullest explanation of the concept of sacrifice is found in the Mosaic Law. In this code sacrifice has three central ideas: consecration, expiation (covering of sin), and propitiation (satisfaction of divine anger). Only consecration had a kind of sacrifice which spoke of it alone. This was the vegetable or grain offerings. These could not be brought to God, however, unless they were preceded by an expiatory offering, or an animal or bloody sacrifice. There was no consecration (commitment) to God apart from expiation (dealing with the penalty and guilt of sin). People could not approach God and be right with Him without the shedding of blood.

The general word for sacrifices in the Mosaic Law was qorban—literally “that which is brought near.” The fuller designation of these sacrifices was a gift of holiness (Ezek. 20:40). The word qorban was used of anything given or devoted to God (Mark 7:11), so it included more than sacrifices presented at the altar. Sacrifice, however, referred to items placed on the altar to be consumed by God. Hence, there was no sacrifice apart from the altar.

The Old Testament also referred to sacrifices as food for the Lord (Lev. 3:11, 16; 22:7) and an offering made by the fire for the satisfaction of the Lord (Lev. 2:2, 9). As a spiritual being, God did not need physical food. Nevertheless, He did insist that these sacrifices be given to Him. Sacrifice as worship is people giving back to God what God has previously given them as a means of grace. Ultimately, these sacrifices speak of the one final and perfect sacrifice of Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:11–18).

The gift aspect of sacrifice was emphasized by the many divine regulations determining what was acceptable to God. For people to determine what pleased God would put them in the place of God.

Therefore, God determined what was pleasing to Him. Whatever was offered had to be "clean" (acceptable, or symbolically without sin). Not everything designated "clean," however, was to be offered as a sacrifice. Of the clean animals, only oxen, sheep, goats, and pigeons were acceptable offerings. Likewise, of the clean vegetables, only grain, wine, and oil were proper.

These materials were selected perhaps to teach that people should give to God from that which sustains their lives. In short, people were required to give God the gift of their lives. Therefore, God repeatedly emphasized that He did not need or desire food and sacrifices themselves. He wants our love, commitment, and service (Deut. 6:5; 1 Sam. 15:22).

Both the Old Testament and the New Testament confirm that sacrifices were presented as a symbolic gesture. People were obligated, because of their sins, to present offerings by which they gave another life in place of their own. These substitutes pointed forward to the ultimate substitute, Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:1–18).

According to God's command, the animal sacrificed had to be physically perfect in age and condition. Through the perfection of this animal, perfection was presented to God. Ultimately, this symbolized the necessity for people to present themselves perfect before God by presenting the perfect one in their place (1 Pet. 1:18–19). The true Lamb of God, innocent of all sin, took away sin (John 1:29).

After the animal was selected and presented at the altar, the first act was the laying on of hands by the person presenting the offering. By this act the worshipers symbolically transferred their sin and guilt to the sacrificial animal that stood in their place. The sacrifice symbolically pointed to the Savior who would do for the believers what they could not do for themselves. He would take upon Himself sin and guilt and accomplish redemption for His people (Is. 53:4–12; Matt. 1:21).

In the festival of the Day of Atonement, two goats depicted this redemptive act. One goat died, its death symbolizing how the ultimate sacrifice in the future would pay the penalty for the believer's sin. Its blood was applied to the MERCY SEAT in the HOLY OF HOLIES, symbolizing how the great sacrifice would cover people's sin, bring them into God's presence, and make full restitution to God. To the head of the second goat the priest symbolically transferred the sin of God’s people. Then this goat, known as the SCAPEGOAT, was sent into the wilderness to symbolize the removal of the people’s sin (Leviticus 16).

SACRIFICE, HUMAN (see HUMAN SACRIFICE).

SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS—offerings brought periodically (sometimes daily; Ex. 29:38; Heb. 10:11) to God in Old Testament times by which people hoped to atone for their sins and restore fellowship with God. The Bible depicts us as sinners abiding in death and destined for death. We abide in death because we are separated from fellowship with God and unable to restore that life-giving fellowship (Rom. 5:12; 8). The sentence of death hangs over us because of our identity with Adam’s fall (Rom. 5:14), our enmity toward God, and our constant sinning (Gen. 6:5; 8:21; Rom. 3:10). Ultimately, this will result in physical death and eternal suffering in hell.

God, however, provided a method by which our penalty can be paid and fellowship with God can be restored. This method is the sacrificial offering of Jesus Christ (Hebrews 9–10). This perfect offering was anticipated throughout the Old Testament by various sacrificial offerings. These Old Testament sacrifices were effective only when offered in faith in the promised sacrifice (Gen. 3:15; Heb. 9:8–9; 10:8–9, 16–17).

The first sacrifices were the offerings of Cain and Abel. Only Abel’s offering was a true sacrifice made in faith because Abel recognized his unworthiness and the divine promise of a true and perfect redeemer (Gen. 4:3–5; Heb. 1:4). The sacrifice of Christ is most clearly and fully anticipated in the Mosaic system of sacrificial offerings. The following specific sacrificial offerings were provided for in the Mosaic Law:

Burnt Offering. This kind of offering was described as “that which goes up (to God).” It was termed “whole” (Lev. 6:22) because the entire offering was to be burnt upon the altar. It was termed “continual” (Ex. 29:38–42) to teach the nation of Israel that their sinfulness required a complete and continual atonement and consecration. This sacrifice, offered every morning and evening, pointed to Christ’s atoning death for sinners (2 Cor. 5:21) and His total consecration to God (Luke 2:49). The burnt offering spoke of Christ’s passive obedience and His submission to the penalty required by human sinfulness. It also refers to His perfect obedience to God’s law by which He did for us what we are unable to do for ourselves.

Drink Offering. An offering of liquid, such as wine (Ex. 29:40).

Fellowship Offering (see Peace Offering).

Grain Offering (see Meal Offering).

Guilt Offering (see Sin Offering).

Heave Offering (see Peace Offering).

Meal Offering. This offering is translated meat offering in some versions, but since this offering was bloodless and meatless, it is more meaningfully rendered meal (NKJV) or grain (NIV); sin offering (NRSV) cereal offering. Meal offerings were prepared and presented to God as a meal, symbolically presenting the best fruits of human living to God to be consumed or used as He desired (Heb. 10:5–10). A notable exception to this is that poor people could present meal offerings as sin offerings.

In the meal offering a person presented to God a vicarious consecration of the perfect life and total property of another (Christ). There is no ground in this offering for human boasting as though the offerer were received by God on the grounds of human effort. Rather, the recognition of the person’s unworthiness is emphasized by the fact that meal offerings must be accompanied by a whole burnt offering or a peace offering (Lev. 2:1; Num. 15:1–16). Both offerings were made to atone for human sin.

Meat Offering (see Meal Offering).

Peace Offering. This sacrificial offering was also called a heave offering and a wave offering. This was a bloody offering presented to God (Lev. 3:1; fellowship offering, NIV). Part of the offering was eaten by the priest (representing God’s acceptance) and part was eaten by worshipers and their guests (nonofficiating priests or Levites and the poor, Deut. 12:18; 16:11). Thus, God hosted the meal, communing with the worshiper and other participants. This sacrifice celebrated covering of sin, forgiveness by God, and the restoration of a right and meaningful relationship with God and with life itself (Judg. 20:26; 21:4).

There were three kinds of peace offerings: (1) thank offerings in response to an unsolicited special divine blessing; (2) votive (vowed) offerings in pursuit of making a request or pledge to God; and (3) freewill offerings spontaneously presented in worship and praise.

Sin Offering. This bloody offering, also known as a guilt offering, was presented for unintentional or intentional sins for which there was no possible restitution (Lev. 4:5–13; 6:24–30). If the offering was not accompanied by repentance, divine forgiveness was withheld (Num. 15:30). Expiation or covering (forgiveness) of sin was represented by the blood smeared on the horns of the altar of incense or burnt offering and poured out at the base of the altar.

The size and sex of the beast offered depended on the rank of the offerers. The higher their post the more responsibility they bore. The penalty for all sin, death, was vicariously inflicted on the animal. Guilt for the worshiper's sin was transferred symbolically through the laying on of the offerer's hands.

Thank Offering (see Peace Offering).

Trespass Offering. This was a bloody offering presented for unintentional or intentional sins of a lesser degree and for which the violator could make restitution (Lev. 5:15). The sprinkling of the blood on the sides of the altar rather than on its horns gave further evidence that this offering addressed sins of a lesser degree. Special provisions were made for the poor by allowing less valuable offerings to be substituted in this kind of sacrifice.

The amount of restitution (money paid) was determined by the officiating priest. Restitution declared that the debt incurred was paid. Significantly, Christ was declared a trespass offering in Isaiah 53:10 (guilt offering, NIV). He not only bore the sinner's penalty and guilt but made restitution, restoring the sinner to right standing with God.

SADDLE—a seat for a rider, strapped to the back of an animal (Lev. 15:9). The saddle of Old Testament times had little resemblance to the modern saddle. It probably consisted of little more than a flat piece of leather or cloth.

SADDUCEES [SAJ uh seez]—members of a Jewish faction that opposed Jesus during His ministry. Known for their denial of the bodily resurrection, the Sadducees came from the leading families of the nation—the priests, merchants, and aristocrats. The high priests and the most powerful members of the priesthood were mainly Sadducees (Acts 5:17).

Some scholars believe the name "Sadducees" came from Zadok, the high priest in the days of David (2 Sam. 15:24) and Solomon (1 Kin.

1:34–45). Many wealthy laypeople were also Sadducees. This may be the reason why the Sadducees gave the impression of wanting to preserve things as they were. They enjoyed privileged positions in society and managed to get along well under Roman rule. Any movement that might upset order and authority was bound to appear dangerous in their eyes.

The Sadducees rejected “the tradition of the elders,” that body of oral and written commentary that interpreted the law of Moses. This automatically placed them in direct conflict with another Jewish group, the PHARISEES, who had made the traditions surrounding the Law almost as important as the Law itself. The Sadducees insisted that only the laws that were written in the law of Moses (the PENTATEUCH, the first five books of the Old Testament) were really binding. The Sadducees thought this way because of religious practices that had taken place for several centuries.

For many years the priests were in charge of teaching the law of God to the Israelites; they were the authorities to go to for interpretation or application of the law (Deut. 17:8–13). Unfortunately, the leading priests lost the respect of the people by becoming corrupt. When this happened, many Jews began to respond to the SCRIBES, people who had become experts in God’s law and who usually lived pious, disciplined lives, although many of them were not priests. People began to follow the teaching of the scribes and to let the scribes interpret the law of God for them. The “tradition of the elders” that followed was made up of customs, rulings, and interpretations that the scribes passed on as the authoritative way in which God’s law should be applied.

The Sadducees rejected this approach to authority in favor of the written law of Moses. They felt the original law alone could be trusted. Naturally, they felt Sadducean priests should be the ones to serve as the law’s interpreters.

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection of the dead or the immortality of the soul, since these doctrines are not mentioned in the law of Moses. Neither did they believe in rewards or punishments handed out after death, as in the doctrines of heaven and hell. Acts 23:8 indicates that they did not believe in angels or spirits, either. They believed in free will—that people are responsible for their own prosperity or misfortune. They interpreted the law literally and tended to support strict justice as opposed to mercy toward the offender.

Only a few references are made to the Sadducees in the New Testament. They opposed the early church (Acts 4:1–3; 5:17–18), much more so than even the Pharisees (Acts 5:34–39; 15:5; 23:6–9). Since the chief priests usually came from among the Sadducees, it is clear that they played a major role in the arrest of Jesus and the preliminary hearing against Him (Mark 14:60–64), and that they urged Pilate to crucify Him (Mark 15:1, 3, 10–11). Jesus warned His disciples about the "leaven"—the "doctrine" or teaching—of the Sadducees (Matt. 16:1–12). John the Baptist was suspicious of their supposed "repentance" (Matt. 3:7–12).

One incident when Jesus clashed with the Sadducees is recorded in all three of the synoptic gospels (Matt. 22:23–33; Mark 12:18–27; Luke 20:27–40). Apparently one of the favorite sports of the Sadducees was to make fun of their opponents by showing how their beliefs led to ridiculous conclusions. They approached Jesus with a "what if" question, designed to show the absurd consequences that can arise from believing in the resurrection of the dead. "Suppose," they asked, "a woman had seven husbands in this life, and each of them died without leaving children? Whose wife would she be in the world to come?"

Jesus replied with a two-part answer. First, He said that they were wrong to suggest that earthly relationships, such as marriage, will continue after the resurrection. Second, Jesus pointed out that they were wrong in not believing in the resurrection at all: "Have you not read what was spoken to you by God, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living" (Matt. 22:31–32; also Ex. 3:6, 15–16).

Jesus' argument was that God told Moses that He was the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Of course, these three men had died long before the time of Moses. Yet, if they were not "alive" at the time of Moses (that is, if they did not live on after their deaths), then God would not have called Himself their God, for "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob must live on if God is still their God; therefore, it is wrong to deny life after death and the resurrection of the dead.

After posing His reasons, Jesus stated that the Sadducees were “greatly mistaken” in their beliefs (Mark 12:27). The multitude who heard Jesus’ argument were “astonished at His teaching” (Matt. 22:33) and the Sadducees were “silenced” (Matt. 22:34).

SAFFRON (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SAGE, SAILOR (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SAINTS—people who have been separated from the world and consecrated to the worship and service of God. Followers of the Lord are referred to by this phrase throughout the Bible, although its meaning is developed more fully in the New Testament. Consecration (setting apart) and purity are the basic meanings of the term. Believers are called “saints” (Rom. 1:7) and “saints in Christ Jesus” (Phil. 1:1) because they belong to the One who provided their sanctification.

When Christ returns, the saints will be clothed in their “righteous acts” (Rev. 19:8) because they will have continued to live in faith through God’s power (1 Sam. 2:9) and Christ’s praying for them (Rom. 8:27). The saints are also those to whom the privilege of revelation (Col. 1:26; Jude 3) and the task of ministry (Eph. 4:12) are committed.

SALAMIS [SAL uh mis]—a port city on the east coast of the island of Cyprus visited by Paul and Barnabas during Paul’s first missionary journey (see Map 7, D–2). These two missionaries preached in several Jewish synagogues at Salamis, assisted by John Mark (Acts 13:5). The city has traditionally been recognized as the birthplace of Barnabas.

According to tradition, Barnabas was stoned to death here by a Jewish mob. Salamis was famous for its copper mines, flax, wine, fruit, and honey.

SALATHIEL [suh LAY thih uhl]—a form of SHEALTIEL.

SALCAH [SAL kuh]—a city in the territory of Gad near the eastern border of Bashan. Part of the former kingdom of Og, Salcah was conquered by the Israelites before they settled the land of Canaan (Deut. 3:10; Salecah, NIV, NRSV; Salchah, KJV). The site is now known as Salkhad, about 106 kilometers (66 miles) east of the Jordan River, opposite Beth Shean in Samaria.

SALCHAH, SALECAH [SAL kuh]—forms of SALCAH.

SALEM [SAY luhm] (peaceful)—a city ruled by Melchizedek, the king to whom Abraham gave a tithe (Gen. 14:18). Salem is usually identified with ancient Jerusalem, or Jebus, the Jebusite city captured by David and turned into the capital city of the nation of Judah (1 Chron. 11:4–9).

SALIM [SAY lim] (peaceful)—a place near Aenon, where John the Baptist baptized (John 3:23). "Beyond the Jordan," probably indicates the city was located east of the Jordan River in Perea.

SALIVA—the watery secretion of the saliva glands (1 Sam. 21:13; John 9:6). Job spoke of saliva in a figurative sense when he indicated he was tormented continuously by God, unable even to swallow his saliva in peace (Job 7:19).

SALLAI [SAL eye]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A leading Benjamite who lived in Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 11:8).
2. A priest who returned to Jerusalem with Zerubbabel after the captivity (Neh. 12:20). He is also called Sallu (Neh. 12:7).

SALLU [SAL oo]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A chief of a family living at Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 11:7).
2. A chief priest who came to Jerusalem with Zerubbabel after the captivity (Neh. 12:7). He is also called Sallai (Neh. 12:20).

SALMA [SAL muh]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The father of Boaz and an ancestor of Jesus (1 Chr. 2:11). Salma is also called Salmon (Ruth 4:20–21; Matt. 1:4–5) and Sala (Luke 3:32, NRSV).
2. A son of Hur, of the family of Caleb (1 Chr. 2:51).

SALMAI [SAL migh]—a temple servant whose descendants returned to Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 7:48). Salmai is also called Shalmai (Ezra 2:46) and Shamlai (Ezra 2:46, REB, NRSV).

SALMON [SAL muhn] (peaceable)—the name of a man and a mountain in the Old Testament:

1. The father of Boaz and an ancestor of Jesus (Ruth 4:20–21; Matt. 1:4–5). He is also called Salma (1 Chr. 2:11) and Sala (Luke 3:32, NRSV).
2. A snow-covered hill where Israel’s enemies were defeated (Ps. 68:14, KJV; Zalmon, NKJV, NIV).

SALMONE [sal MOE nih] (peace)—a high cliff on the shore of Crete, around which Paul sailed on his voyage to Rome (Acts 27:7). Salmone is now known as Cape Sidero.

SALOME [suh LOE mee] (peace)—the name of two women in the New Testament:

1. The daughter of HERODIAS by her first husband Herod Philip, a son of Herod the Great. The New Testament identifies her only as Herodias’ daughter (Matt. 14:6–11; Mark 6:22–28). At the birthday celebration of Herod Antipas, who was now living with Herodias, Salome danced before the king and pleased him greatly. He offered to give her anything she wanted. At her mother’s urging, Salome asked for John the Baptist’s head on a platter. Salome later married her uncle Philip, tetrarch of Trachonitis (Luke 3:1), and then her cousin Aristobulus.
2. One of the women who witnessed the crucifixion of Jesus and who later brought spices to the tomb to anoint His body (Mark 15:40; 16:1). Salome apparently was the mother of James and John, two of the disciples of Jesus. She is pictured in the Gospel of Matthew as asking special favors for her sons (Matt. 20:20–24). Jesus replied that Salome did not understand what kind of sacrifice would be required of her sons.

SALT (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

SALT, CITY OF—a city near the Dead Sea allotted to the tribe of Judah (Josh. 15:62; Irmelach, REB). Many scholars identify this city with Khirbet Qumran, about 13 kilometers (8 miles) south of modern Jericho—a site made famous by the discovery of the DEAD SEA SCROLLS.

SALT, COVENANT OF—an Old Testament expression for an everlasting covenant (Num. 18:19). Salt was an important commodity in the ancient world. It was used for seasoning foods as well as to purify and preserve certain substances. Thus, a covenant of salt indicated faithfulness, dependability, and durability. Nomads of the Middle East still eat "bread and salt" together as the sign and seal of a covenant of brotherhood.

SALT HERB (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SALT, PILLAR OF (see LOT).

SALTPITS—pits from which salt is obtained. The prophet Zephaniah predicted that MOAB and the people of AMMON would become like Sodom and Gomorrah, "overrun with weeds and saltpits, and a perpetual desolation" (Zeph. 2:9). This was a bitter picture of the barrenness that would befall these peoples who rebelled against the Lord.

SALT SEA—an Old Testament name for the body of water at the southern end of the Jordan Valley (Gen. 14:3). It contains no marine life because of its heavy mineral content. The Salt Sea is also called the Sea of the Arabah (Deut. 3:17). Its modern name is the DEAD SEA.

SALT, VALLEY OF—a barren valley, probably south of the Dead Sea, where the nation of Israel won two important victories over the Edomites. The army of King David killed 18,000 Edomites (2 Sam. 8:13; Syrians, KJV, NKJV; Arameans, NASB) in the Valley of Salt. Two centuries later the army of King Amaziah of Judah killed another 10,000 Edomites in this valley (2 Kin. 14:7).

SALTWORT (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SALU [SAY loo]—a Simeonite and the father of Zimri (Num. 25:14).

SALUTATION—an expression of greeting or the word or phrase of greeting with which a letter begins.

In the Old Testament, people often were greeted with the phrase, "God be gracious to you" (Gen. 43:29) or some similar expression (Ps. 129:8). Another typical Hebrew greeting was the word "peace." In the New Testament, Jesus criticized the scribes and Pharisees for their elaborate salutations, or greetings, in the marketplaces (Mark 12:38).

Apparently the rabbis claimed such public recognition on the basis of their office. When Jesus sent out the seventy disciples, He told them, “Greet no one along the road” (Luke 10:4). The work of the disciples was so important that they had no time for idle ceremonies and prolonged greetings; they must hasten to carry out their mission.

The apostle Paul used the word “salutation” three times in his writings (1 Cor. 16:20–21; Col. 4:18; 2 Thess. 3:17). Each time he indicated that he had written the salutation in his own hand. Paul must have had his letters transcribed by a secretary or scribe. But at the end he often included a few words in his own handwriting. This added a personal touch and established the letter as his own.

SALVATION—deliverance from the power of sin; redemption.

In the Old Testament, the word “salvation” sometimes refers to deliverance from danger (Jer. 15:20), deliverance of the weak from an oppressor (Ps. 35:9–10), the healing of sickness (Is. 38:20), and deliverance from blood guilt and its consequences (Ps. 51:14). It may also refer to national deliverance from military threat (Ex. 14:13) or release from captivity (Ps. 14:7). But salvation finds its deepest meaning in the spiritual realm of life. Our universal need for salvation is one of the clearest teachings of the Bible.

The need for salvation goes back to the removal of Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden (Genesis 3). After the Fall, the lives of people were marked by strife and difficulty. Increasingly, corruption and violence dominated their world (Gen. 6:11–13). When God destroyed the world with the Flood, He also performed the first act of salvation by saving Noah and his family. These eight people became the basis of another chance for mankind. The salvation of Noah and his family was viewed by the apostle Peter as a pattern of the full salvation we receive in Christ (1 Pet. 3:18–22).

The central Old Testament experience of salvation is the Exodus (Ex. 12:40—14:31). Much of Israel’s worship of God was a renewal of this mighty experience that brought them from tyranny in Egypt to freedom in the Promised Land (Ex. 13:3–16). The mighty saving power of God was demonstrated dramatically as the Israelites formed a holy nation of priestly servants of the Lord (Ex. 19:4–6). The Exodus became a pattern of salvation by which God's future deeds of redemption would be understood.

But just as the Exodus symbolized their salvation, the captivity of the Israelites in Babylon was a disastrous return to bondage. The people responded to this plight with expectations of a new and better Exodus (Is. 43:14–16) in which God would forgive their sins and restore their hearts to faithfulness (Jer. 31:31–34).

This hope for a new Exodus merged with expectation of a full realization of the rule of God (Ezek. 36:22–38). Since God was Lord and had shown Himself to be righteous and faithful, He must one day overpower His enemies and perfect the life of His people. This hope is expressed through the concept of the "day of the Lord" as described by the Old Testament prophets (Joel 2:1–11; Amos 9:11–15). But this hope also focused on the role of the Anointed King and the coming of the Messiah (Psalm 2).

Even Israel's return from the captivity, however, failed to fulfill all their hopes (Hag. 2:3). So a new understanding arose: the full realization of God's purpose of salvation would involve the coming of a completely new age (Is. 65:17–25). This doctrine of salvation reached its fulfillment in the death of Christ on our behalf. Jesus' mission was to save the world from sin and the wrath of God (Matt. 1:21; John 12:47; Rom. 5:9). During His earthly ministry, salvation was brought to us by His presence and the power of faith (Luke 19:9–10). Now, our salvation is based on His death and resurrection (Mark 10:25).

The salvation that comes through Christ may be described in three tenses: past, present, and future. When people believe in Christ, they are saved (Acts 16:31). But we are also in the process of being saved from the power of sin (Rom. 8:13; Phil. 2:12). Finally, we shall be saved from the very presence of sin (Rom. 13:11; Titus 2:12–13). God releases into our lives today the power of Christ's resurrection (Rom. 6:4) and allows us a foretaste of our future life as His children (2 Cor. 1:22; Eph. 1:14). Our experience of salvation will be complete when Christ returns (Heb. 9:28) and the kingdom of God is fully revealed (Matt. 13:41–43).

SALVE—a medical ointment used to soothe the eyes (Rev. 3:18; ointment, REB; eyesalve, KJV, NASB). A popular eye medicine known as “Phrygian powder” was one of Laodicea’s sources of wealth. The medical school at Laodicea was famous for the preparation and use of this eye salve. The lukewarm church at Laodicea, however, needed something greater than eye salve to heal its faltering spiritual vision.

SAMARIA, CITY OF [suh MAR ih uh] (lookout)—the capital city of the northern kingdom of Israel (see Map 6, B–3).

Built about 880 B.C. by Omri, the sixth king of Israel (1 Kin. 16:24), Samaria occupied a 91-meter (300-foot) high hill about 68 kilometers (42 miles) north of Jerusalem and 40 kilometers (25 miles) east of the Mediterranean Sea. This hill was situated on the major north-south road through Palestine. It also commanded the east-west route to the Plain of Sharon and the Mediterranean Sea. Because of its hilltop location, Samaria could be defended easily. Its only weakness was that the nearest spring was a mile distant, but this difficulty was overcome by the use of cisterns.

Samaria withstood an attack by Ben-Hadad, king of Syria (2 Kin. 6:24–25), but it finally fell to the Assyrians, in 722 B.C., and its inhabitants were carried into captivity. The city was repopulated by “people from Babylon, Cuthah, Ava, Hamath, and from Sepharvaim” (2 Kin. 17:24), all bringing their pagan idolatries with them. Intermarriage of native Jews with these foreigners led to the mixed race of SAMARITANS so despised by full-blooded Jews during the time of Jesus (John 4:1–10).

In excavations of Samaria, archaeologists have uncovered several different levels of occupation by the Israelites. The first two levels, from the reigns of Omri and Ahab, show careful construction, apparently by Phoenician craftsmen. At this time, the city may have been 20 acres in extent, enclosed by an outer wall 6 to 8 meters (20 to 30 feet) thick, with a more narrow inner stone wall about 2 meters (5 feet) thick. A two-story palace was constructed at the higher western end of the hill around some courtyards. In one of these courtyards a pool about 5 by 9 meters (17 by 33 feet) was discovered. This may have been the pool where the blood of Ahab was washed from his chariot after he was killed in a battle against the Syrians (1 Kin. 22:38).

The palace was described as an “ivory house” (1 Kin. 22:39; Amos 3:15). Excavations near the pool uncovered a storeroom housing 500 plaques or fragments of ivory used for inlay work in walls and furniture.

The third level of the city, from the period of Jehu (about 841–813 B.C.), gave evidence of additions and reconstruction. Levels four to six covered the period of Jereboam II and showed that repairs had been made to Samaria before the Assyrians captured it in 722 B.C. From this period came several pieces of pottery inscribed with administrative records describing shipments of wine and oil to Samaria. One potsherd recorded the name of the treasury official who received the shipment, the place of origin, and the names of the peasants who had paid their taxes. Structures from the Greek period can still be seen in ruined form. A round tower is a magnificent monument of the Hellenistic age in Palestine. Roman remains include a colonnaded street leading from the west gate, an aqueduct, a stadium, and an impressive theater.

The small village of Sebastiyeh—an Arabic corruption of the Greco-Roman name Sebaste—now occupies part of the ancient site of this historic city. Even after the Israelite residents of Samaria were deported, the city continued to be inhabited by several different groups under the successive authority of Assyria, Babylonia, Persia, Greece and Rome. Herod the Great, ruler in Palestine (ruled 37 B.C.—A.D. 4) when Jesus was born, made many improvements to Samaria and renamed it Sebaste—the Greek term for Augustus—in honor of the emperor of Rome. This Herodian city is probably the “city of Samaria” mentioned in the book of Acts (8:5).

SAMARIA, REGION OF [suh MAR ih uh]—a territory in the uplands of central Canaan that corresponded roughly with the lands allotted to the tribe of Ephraim and the western portion of Manasseh. Samaria consisted of about 1,400 square miles of attractive, fertile land, bounded by Bethel on the south and Mount Carmel on the north. Its rich alluvial soil produced valuable grain crops, olives, and grapes. This productivity was made all the more important by the presence of two north-south and three east-west roads. Samaria was able to engage in commerce with neighboring Phoenicia as well as the more distant nations of Syria and Egypt.

Because Samaritan soil was considerably more fertile than the soil in Judah, the Northern Kingdom was always more prosperous. But the very attractiveness of the territory brought invaders, while trade with such pagan nations exposed the people to corrupt foreign religions. The prophets strongly condemned the wickedness of Samaria—its idolatry, immorality, idle luxury, and oppression of the poor (Hos. 7:1; 8:5–7).

In the time of Jesus, Palestine west of the Jordan River was divided into the three provinces of Galilee, Samaria, and Judea. Because of their intermarriage with foreigners, the people of Samaria were shunned by orthodox Jews. Situated between Galilee and Judea, Samaria was the natural route for traveling between those two provinces. But the pure-blooded Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans (John 4:9). They would travel east, cross the Jordan River, and detour around Samaria.

SAMARITAN PENTATEUCH—an ancient version of the first five books of the Old Testament as preserved by the Samaritans. The manuscript copies of the Samaritan Pentateuch use a form of letters similar to that which was in general use before the captivity—the old Hebrew, or “Phoenician” script. The origin of this version of the Law is difficult to determine, but the events recorded in 2 Kings 17:24–28 suggest that the Law was the basis of the instruction given by the exiled priest that enabled the newly settled Samaritans to worship the God of Israel.

Since only the PENTATEUCH (the first five books of the Old Testament) was accepted as authentic Scripture by the Samaritans, it must have been available in complete form as early as 681 B.C. Some scholars claim that the Samaritans had no copy of the Law before about 450 B.C. But there is no reason why copies of the Law should not have been circulating in Israel during Jeroboam II’s rule (about 793–753 B.C.).

This means they could have been taken to Assyria when the citizens of Samaria were deported by this pagan nation in 722 B.C. Nor is there any difficulty in supposing that the priest who returned to Samaria brought with him a copy of the Law for traditional teaching purposes.

Because of their differences with the pure Hebrew tradition, the Samaritans occasionally changed the wording of their books of the Law to give preference to Mount GERIZIM to show that their temple there was the authentic place for worship. In other respects the Samaritans promoted their own ceremonies and beliefs, but they emphasized the place of Moses as the lawgiver who acted by direct divine command. Despite scribal additions and variations in spelling, the Samaritan Pentateuch is very similar to the Hebrew Pentateuch.

Several fragments related to the text of the Samaritan Pentateuch were discovered among the Dead Sea Scrolls. These prove that this text was handed down in Samaritan circles in the same way that the Hebrew Law and other parts of the Old Testament were preserved by the Jews. Certain groups among the Samaritans probably made copies of individual books as well as the entire Pentateuch. These valuable manuscript fragments support the idea of such activity without actually indicating that the Samaritan Pentateuch's text was earlier than that of the traditional Hebrew Bible.

SAMARITANS [suh MAR ih tuhns]—natives or inhabitants of Samaria, a distinct territory or region in central Canaan.

Until the rise of Assyrian power in the ancient Near East, Samaria was occupied by the tribes of Ephraim and the western portion of the tribe of Manasseh. Many of the sites in Samaria held important places in Israelite history. Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal were the scene of the covenant-renewal ceremony in Joshua's time (Josh. 8:30–35). Shechem, situated near Mount Gerizim, was an ancient Canaanite town that regained its earlier prosperity during the monarchy. It became capital of the northern kingdom of Israel briefly under Jeroboam I (about 931–910 B.C.; 1 Kin. 12:25), but it was replaced by Penuel and then Tirzah.

Construction on the city of Samaria was begun by Omri about 880 B.C. and completed by his son Ahab (about 874–853 B.C.). Samaria became the new capital of Israel, and successive kings added to it and rebuilt sections to make it a well-fortified capital. But the city fell to the Assyrians in 722–721 B.C. Most of the leading citizens of the Northern Kingdom were deported to places in Syria, Assyria, and Babylonia.

Sargon replaced the deported Israelites with foreign colonists (2 Kin. 17:24). These newcomers intermarried among the Israelites who remained in Samaria. Later their numbers were increased when Esarhaddon and Ashurbanipal (the biblical Osnapper; Ezra 4:10) sent more Assyrian colonists to the district of Samaria. These people took the name "Samaritans" from the territory and attempted to settle the land. However, "they did not fear the LORD, and the Lord sent lions among them, which killed some of them" (2 Kin. 17:25). In despair they sent to Assyria for "one of the priests" who would "teach them the rituals of the God of the land" (2 Kin. 17:27). Thereafter the Samaritans worshiped the God of Israel. But they also continued their idolatry, worshiping the pagan gods imported from foreign lands (2 Kin. 17:29).

So the Samaritans were a "mixed race" contaminated by foreign blood and false worship. The Jewish historian Josephus indicates that the Samaritans were also opportunists. When the Jews enjoyed prosperity, the Samaritans were quick to acknowledge their blood relationship. But when the Jews suffered hard times, the Samaritans disowned any such kinship, declaring that they were descendants of Assyrian immigrants.

When a group of Jews, led by Zerubbabel, returned from the Babylonian captivity, the Samaritans offered to help Zerubbabel rebuild the temple. When their offer was rejected, they tried to prevent the Jews from finishing their project (Ezra 4:1–10). When Nehemiah attempted to rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, he was opposed by Arab and Samaritan groups (Neh. 2:10—6:14). The breach between the Samaritans and the Jews widened even further when Ezra, in his zeal for racial purity, pressured all Israelite men who married during the captivity to divorce their pagan wives (Ezra 10:18–44).

The final break between the two groups occurred when the Samaritans built a rival temple on Mount Gerizim, claiming Shechem rather than Zion (Jerusalem) as the true “Bethel” (house of God), the site traditionally chosen and blessed by the Lord.

Present-day Samaritans trace their beginnings to the time of Eli, who established the sanctuary for worship of God in Shiloh. They also believe their religion is distinctive because they base their beliefs and practices on the Torah, or the Law—the first five books of the Old Testament. They recognize no other Hebrew Scriptures as authoritative.

At what stage the pagan elements of Mesopotamian religion were removed from Samaritan belief is impossible to determine. But probably by the time of Nehemiah (about 450 B.C.), the Samaritans considered themselves orthodox. The Samaritans also claimed that Ezra changed the Hebrew text to favor Jerusalem over Mount Gerizim as the site for the second temple. But the Samaritans themselves may also be guilty of changing the wording of the Law to reflect favorably on their traditions.

In the Roman period the Samaritans appeared to prosper. Their religion was made legal in the Empire, being practiced in synagogues in Italy and Africa. Suffering persecution from Christians, they finally revolted in the fifth and sixth centuries. The Roman emperor Justinian (ruled A.D. 527–565) suppressed the Samaritans and brought them almost to extinction, a condition from which they never recovered. But two small units of Samaritans survive until the present time—one group in Nablus (ancient Shechem) and a second group near Tel Aviv.

The pride of the modern Samaritan community at Nablus is a large scroll of the books of the Law, inscribed in an angular script much as Hebrew was written long before the time of Christ.

The Samaritans retained their belief in God as the unique Creator and Sustainer of all things. They also worshiped Him in the three feasts prescribed in the books of the Law—Passover, Pentecost, and Booths (or Tabernacles)—and the solemn Day of Atonement. But their faith was influenced in later periods by Islamic and other beliefs, unlike the orthodox Jewish community. To this day they sacrifice one or more lambs on Mount Gerizim during the Feast of Passover.

SAMECH, SAMEKH [SAH mik]—forms of SAMEK.

SAMEK [SAH mik]—the fifteenth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:113–120. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter Samek (Samech, KJV; Samekh, NIV, NASB). Also see ACROSTIC.

SAMGAR-NEBO [SAM gahr NEE boe]—a Babylonian prince, an officer of King Nebuchadnezzar, who participated in the siege (588–586 B.C.) and capture of Jerusalem (Jer. 39:3). He took his seat with other nobles in the Middle Gate of Jerusalem after the Chaldean army had taken the city.

SAMLAH [SAM luh]—the fifth of the ancient kings of Edom (Gen. 36:36–37).

SAMOS [SAY muhs]—an island of Greece in the Aegean Sea (see Map 8, C–2), about 1.61 kilometers (1 mile) off the coast of Lydia in Asia Minor (modern Turkey). On his voyage from Assos to Miletus, the apostle Paul sailed between Samos and the mainland as he returned to Jerusalem at the end of his third missionary journey (Acts 20:15).

SAMOTHRACE [SAM uh thrays]—a small island in the Aegean Sea, about 50 kilometers (31 miles) off the southern coast of Thrace. Samothrace is mentioned in connection with the second missionary journey of the apostle Paul (Acts 16:11). The most important archaeological find on the island was the famous Winged Nike (or Victory) of Samothrace, now housed in the Louvre, Paris.

SAMSON [SAM suhn] (sunny)—a hero of Israel known for his great physical strength as well as his moral weakness. The last of the "judges," or military leaders, mentioned in the Book of Judges, Samson led his country in this capacity for about 20 years.

Samson lived in a dark period of Israelite history. After the generation of Joshua died out, the people of Israel fell into a lawless and faithless life. The author of the Book of Judges summarized these times by declaring, "There was no king in Israel; everyone did what was right in his own eyes" (Judg. 17:6; 21:25). The standard of God's Word, His Law as handed down by Moses, was ignored.

Samson was a product of that age, but his parents gave evidence of faith in the Lord. During a time when the Philistines were oppressing the Israelites (Judg. 13:1), the Lord announced to Manoah and his wife that they would bear a son who would be raised as a NAZIRITE (Judg.

13:5, 7). This meant that Samson should serve as an example to Israel of commitment to God. Through most of his life, however, Samson fell far short of this mark.

Samson’s mighty physical feats are well-known. With his bare hands he killed a young lion that attacked him (Judg. 14:5–6). He gathered 300 foxes (jackals; Judg. 15:4, REB) and tied them together, then sent them through the grain fields with torches in their tails to destroy the crops of the Philistines.

On one occasion, he broke the ropes with which the enemy had bound him (Judg. 15:14). He killed a thousand Philistine soldiers with the jawbone of a donkey (Judg. 15:15). And, finally, he carried away the massive gate of Gaza, a city of the Philistines, when they thought they had him trapped behind the city walls (Judg. 16:3).

But in spite of his great physical strength Samson was a foolish man. He took vengeance on those who used devious means to discover the answer to one of his riddles (Judg. 14). When deceived by his enemies, his only thought was for revenge, as when his father-in-law gave away his wife to another man (Judg. 15:6–7). He had not learned the word of the Lord, “Vengeance is mine” (Deut. 32:35).

Samson’s life was marred by his weakness for pagan women. As soon as he became of age, he fell in love with one of the daughters of the Philistines. He insisted on marrying her, in spite of his parents’ objection (Judg. 14:1–4).

This was against God’s law, which forbade intermarriage of the Israelites among the women of Canaan. On another occasion he was almost captured by the Philistines while he was visiting a prostitute in the city of Gaza.

Samson eventually became involved with DELILAH, a woman from the Valley of Sorek (Judg. 16:4), who proved to be his undoing (Judges 16). The Philistines bribed her to find out the key to his strength. She teased him until he finally revealed that the secret was his uncut hair, allowed to grow long in accord with the Nazirite law. While Samson slept, she called the Philistines to cut his hair and turned him over to his enemies. Samson became weak, not only because his hair had been cut but also because the Lord had departed from him (Judg. 16:20).

After his enslavement by the Philistines, Samson was blinded and forced to work at grinding grain. Eventually he came to his senses and realized that God had given him his great strength to serve the Lord and his people. After a prayer to God for strength, he killed thousands of the enemy by pulling down the pillars of the temple of Dagon (Judg. 16:28–31). That one great act of faith cost Samson his life, but it won for him a place among the heroes of faith (Heb. 11:32). Out of weakness he was made strong by the power of the Lord (Heb. 11:34).

Samson was a person with great potential who fell short because of his sin and disobedience. Mighty in physical strength, he was weak in resisting temptation. His life is a clear warning against the dangers of self-indulgence and lack of discipline.

SAMUEL [SAM yoo uhl] (name of God)—the earliest of the great Hebrew prophets (after Moses) and the last judge of Israel. Samuel led his people against their Philistine oppressors. When he was an old man, Samuel anointed Saul as the first king of Israel and later anointed David as Saul’s successor. Samuel is recognized as one of the greatest leaders of Israel (Jer. 15:1; Heb. 11:32).

Samuel’s birth reveals the great faith of his mother, HANNAH (1 Sam. 1:2–22; 2:1). Unable to bear children, she prayed earnestly for the Lord to give her a child. She vowed that if the Lord would give her a son she would raise him as a NAZIRITE (1 Sam. 1:11) and dedicate him to the Lord’s service. Eventually, Samuel was born as an answer to Hannah’s prayer.

Hannah made good on her promise to dedicate her son to the Lord’s service. At a very early age, Samuel went to live with Eli the priest, who taught the boy the various duties of the priesthood. Here Samuel heard the voice of God, calling him to special service as a priest and prophet in Israel (1 Sam. 3:1–20). After Eli’s death, Samuel became the judge of Israel in a ceremony at Mizpah (1 Samuel 7). This event was almost turned to disaster by an attack from the Philistines, but the Lord intervened with a storm that routed the enemies and established Samuel as God’s man. The godly Samuel erected a memorial stone, which he called “Ebenezer,” meaning “Stone of Help.” “Thus far the LORD has helped us,” he declared (1 Sam. 7:12).

In the early part of his ministry, Samuel served as a traveling judge. With his home in Ramah, he made a yearly circuit to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah. In the person of Samuel, judges became more than military leaders called upon for dramatic leadership in times of national crises. Samuel became a judge with a permanent leadership office, an office approaching that of a king.

When the people clamored for a king like those of the surrounding nations (1 Sam. 8:5), Samuel was reluctant to grant their request. He took this as a rejection of his long years of godly service on behalf of the people. He also was aware of the evils that went along with the establishment of a royal house. But the Lord helped Samuel to see the real issue: “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have not rejected you, but they have rejected Me, that I should not reign over them” (1 Sam. 8:7).

The person whom Samuel anointed as first king of Israel turned out to be a poor choice. Saul was handsome, likeable, and tall. But he had a tragic flaw that led ultimately to his own ruin. He disobeyed God by taking spoils in a battle rather than wiping out all living things, as God had commanded (1 Sam. 15:18–26). Saul’s false pride and extreme jealousy toward David also led him into some serious errors of judgment.

When God rejected Saul as king, He used Samuel to announce the prophetic words (1 Sam. 15:10–35). Samuel was faithful in presenting the stern words of rejection. Although he had no further dealings with Saul, Samuel mourned for him and for the death of the dream (1 Sam. 15:35). Samuel was then sent by the Lord to Bethlehem, to the house of Jesse, where he anointed the young man David as the rightful king over His people (1 Sam. 16:1–13).

In addition to his work as judge, prophet, and priest, Samuel is also known as the traditional author of the Books of First and Second Samuel. He may have written much of the material contained in 1 Samuel during the early years of Saul’s reign. After Samuel’s death (1 Sam. 25:1), these books were completed by an unknown writer, perhaps Abiathar, the priest who served during David’s administration.

When Samuel died, he was buried in his hometown of Ramah and was mourned by the nation (1 Sam. 25:1; 28:3). But he had one more message to give. After Samuel’s death, Saul visited a fortune teller at En dor (1 Samuel 28). This fortune teller gave Saul a message that came from the spirit of Samuel: “The LORD has departed from you and has become your enemy" (1 Sam. 28:16). Even from the grave Samuel still spoke the word of God!

In many ways Samuel points forward to the person of the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. In the story of Samuel's birth, the direct hand of the Lord can be seen. In his ministry as judge, prophet, and priest, Samuel anticipates the ministry of the Lord as well as the work of his forerunner, John the Baptist. As Samuel marked out David as God's man, so John the Baptist pointed out Jesus as the Savior.

SAMUEL, BOOKS OF—two historical books of the Old Testament that cover the nation of Israel's transition from a loose tribal form of government to a united kingship under Saul and David. The books are named for the prophet Samuel, who anointed these two leaders.

Structure of the Books. In the Bible used by the Hebrew people during Old Testament days, the books of Samuel consisted of one continuous narrative. This long book was divided into 1 and 2 Samuel when the Hebrew Bible was translated into the Greek language in the second century B.C. All Bibles since that time have followed the two-book pattern.

First Samuel covers the lives of the prophet Samuel and King Saul, introducing David as a warrior and a successor to the throne. Second Samuel focuses on David's career as Israel's greatest king.

Some of the most dramatic stories in the Bible are found in these two Old Testament books. First Samuel reports Samuel's own experience as a boy when he heard God's call to a prophetic ministry (chap. 2). It also reveals that David was a shepherd boy destined for greatness when he defeated the Philistine giant Goliath with nothing but a slingshot and a stone (1 Sam. 17:19–51).

Contrast this triumphant moment, however, with David's great sin, when he committed adultery with Bathsheba, then arranged for the killing of her husband, Uriah (2 Samuel 11). David repented of his sin and claimed God's forgiveness, but from that day on his fortunes were clouded and his family was troubled.

Authorship and Date. Since the name of the great prophet Samuel is associated with these books, it is logical to assume that he wrote 1 and 2 Samuel. But the problem with this theory is that all of 2 Samuel and a major portion of 1 Samuel deal with events that happened after Samuel's death. However, there is strong support for Samuel's authorship of some of the material, since the Book of 1 Chronicles refers to "the book of Samuel the seer" (1 Chr. 29:29).

Before Samuel's death about 1000 B.C., he must have written accounts of the kingship of Saul and the early life of David that appear as part of 1 Samuel. Many scholars believe that Abiathar the priest wrote those parts of these two books that deal with the court life of David. He served as a priest during David's administration; so he may have had access to the royal records that provided the historical facts for these accounts.

Historical Setting. The Books of 1 and 2 Samuel describe a turning point in Israel's history. This was a time when the people became dissatisfied with their loose tribal form of organization and insisted on a united kingdom under the ruling authority of a king. For hundreds of years they had existed as a tribal society, with each tribe living on its own portion of the land and minding its own affairs. If a superior enemy threatened the entire nation, they depended on deliverance at the hands of JUDGES, those military leaders described in the Book of Judges, who would raise a volunteer army to make their borders secure.

This system of defense, however, proved woefully inadequate when the Philistines began to flex their muscles against the nation with renewed intensity about 1100 B.C. These warlike people boasted of iron chariots, a wellorganized army, and other superior weapons that they used with military precision against the poorly organized Israelites. The threat of this superior force led the nation to clamor for a king—a ruler who could unite all the tribes against a common enemy.

Saul was anointed by Samuel about 1050 B.C. to serve as first king of the nation. A gifted young man of great promise, he ruled for forty years (Acts 13:21) before taking his life by falling on his own sword when the Philistines prevailed against him in a decisive battle (1 Sam. 31:1–7). David, his successor, also ruled forty years (2 Sam. 5:4; 1 Chr. 29:27), from 1010 to 970 B.C. Building on Saul's beginning, David succeeded in driving out the Philistines, unifying the people, and conquering or establishing peaceful relationships with surrounding nations.

Theological Contribution. The major theological contribution of 1 and 2 Samuel is the negative and positive views of the kingship that they present. On the negative side, the books make it clear that in calling for a king the people were rejecting God’s rule. Because Israel was unable to live under God’s rule through the judges, God gave in to their demands and granted them a king. But He also warned them about the dangers of the kingship (1 Sam. 8:9–21).

On the positive side, 1 and 2 Samuel portray the kingship as established through David as a clear picture of God’s purpose for His people. The COVENANT that God established with David demonstrated God’s purpose through David’s family line; David’s ancestors would be adopted as the sons of God in a special sense (2 Samuel 7). David’s line would continue through the centuries, and his throne would be established forever (2 Sam. 7:13). In the person of Jesus Christ the Messiah, this great covenant came to its fulfillment.

Special Considerations. The story of David and Goliath (1 Samuel 17) presents more than a dramatic encounter between two warriors. It also points up the contrast between David and Saul. Since he was tall himself, Saul should have been the one to face the giant (1 Sam. 9:2). By his failure to meet Goliath, Saul demonstrated both his folly and his inability to rule. By rising to the challenge, David demonstrated his wisdom and faith, proving that he was God’s man for the throne of Israel.

In addition to its stories, the books of 1 and 2 Samuel contain several poems, or psalms of praise and lament. One such poem is the lovely prayer of Hannah (1 Samuel 2), in which Hannah rejoices in God’s goodness in allowing her to conceive. The dramatic Psalm of the Bow (2 Samuel 1), in which David laments the death of Saul and Jonathan, is another of these poems.

SANBALLAT [san BAL uht] (the god Sin has given life)—a leading opponent of the Jews after their return from the captivity; he tried to hinder Nehemiah in his work of rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem (Neh. 2:10, 19–20; 4:1–23; 6:1–19; 13:28).

Sanballat’s designation as the Horonite probably indicates the town of his origin, possibly Horonaim of Moab (Is. 15:5; Jer. 48:3, 5, 34) or Beth Horon in Ephraim near Jerusalem (2 Chr. 8:5). In papyri found at the Jewish settlement in Elephantine, Egypt, Sanballat is called the governor of Samaria. His daughter married “one of the sons of Joiada, the son of Eliashib the high priest” (Neh. 13:28). Nehemiah viewed such a “mixed marriage” as a defilement of the priesthood, so he drove Joiada away.

Sanballat’s opposition to Nehemiah’s work may have stemmed from jealousy. He may have felt that his authority was threatened by the reawakening of the land of Judah. After mocking Nehemiah and his crew, he tried to slip through the broken wall of Jerusalem with people from other enemy nations to kill the Jews. Nehemiah thwarted this plot, setting up guards from half the people while the other half worked (Neh. 4:7–23). Neither did he fall for Sanballat’s ploy to come outside the wall for a “friendly” discussion (Neh. 6:3).

In spite of Sanballat’s open opposition and trickery, Nehemiah carried out the task he felt called by God to accomplish. After the wall was completed, he reported that even the enemies of the project realized “this work was done by our God” (Neh. 6:16).

SANCTIFICATION—the process of God's grace by which the believer is separated from sin and becomes dedicated to God's righteousness. Accomplished by the Word of God (John 17:7) and the Holy Spirit (Rom. 8:3–4), sanctification results in holiness, or purification from the guilt and power of sin.

Sanctification as separation from the world and setting apart for God's service is a concept found throughout the Bible. Spoken of as "holy" or "set apart" in the Old Testament were the land of Canaan, the city of Jerusalem, the tabernacle, the temple, the Sabbath, the feasts, the prophets, the priests, and the garments of the priests. God is sanctified by the witness of believers (1 Pet. 3:15) and by His judgments upon sin (Ezek. 38:16). Jesus also was "sanctified and sent into the world" (John 10:36).

Sanctification in the Atonement. As the process by which God purifies the believer, sanctification is based on the sacrificial death of Christ. In his letters to the churches, the apostle Paul noted that God has “chosen” and “reconciled” us to Himself in Christ for the purpose of sanctification (Eph. 1:4; 5:25–27; Titus 2:14).

Old Testament sacrifices did not take away sin, but they were able to sanctify “for the purifying of the flesh” (Heb. 9:13). The blood of the new covenant (Heb. 10:29), however, goes far beyond this ritual purification of the body. The offering of Christ’s body (Heb. 10:10) and blood (Heb. 13:12) serves to purge our conscience from “dead works to serve the living God” (Heb. 9:14). Because our cleansing from sin is made possible only by Christ’s death and resurrection, we are “sanctified in Christ Jesus” (1 Cor. 1:2; Acts 20:32; 1 Cor. 1:30; 6:11).

Sanctification: God’s Work. We are sanctified by God the Father (Jude 1), God the Son (Heb. 2:11), and God the Holy Spirit (2 Thess. 2:13; 1 Pet. 1:2). Perfect holiness is God’s command (1 Thess. 4:7) and purpose. As Paul prayed, “Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you completely” (1 Thess. 5:23). Sanctification is a process that continues during our lives as believers (Heb. 10:14). Only after death are the saints referred to as “perfect” (Heb. 12:23).

Sanctification: The Believer’s Work. Numerous commands in the Bible imply that believers also have a responsibility in the process of sanctification. We are commanded to “be holy” (Lev. 11:44; 1 Pet. 1:15–16); to “be perfect” (Matt. 5:48); and to “present your members as slaves of righteousness for holiness” (Rom. 6:19). Writing to the church of the Thessalonians, the apostle Paul made a strong plea for purity: “This is the will of God, your sanctification: that you should abstain from sexual immorality; that each of you should know how to possess his own vessel in sanctification and honor, not in passion of lust, like the Gentiles who do not know God” (1 Thess. 4:3–5).

These commands imply effort on our part. We must believe in Jesus, since we are “sanctified by faith in Him” (Acts 26:18). Through the Holy Spirit we must also “put to death the evil deeds of the body” (Rom. 8:13). Paul itemized the many “works of the flesh” from which we must separate ourselves (Gal. 5:19–21). Finally, we must walk in the Spirit in order to display the fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22–24).

SANCTUARY—a holy place set apart for worship of God or refuge from danger. The word has at least five different meanings in the Bible:

1. Israel's earliest sanctuary was the portable tent known as the TABERNACLE, where the ARK OF THE COVENANT containing the Ten Commandments was housed (Ex. 25:8; 36:1). After the conquest of the land of Canaan by Joshua, the tabernacle with its sanctuary was placed at Shiloh, a town in central Canaan (Josh. 18:1).
2. When David became king he planned the TEMPLE in Jerusalem and it was eventually built by his son Solomon. This became a more permanent place of worship (1 Chr. 22:19).
3. The prophets refer to the heathen sanctuaries, where pagan gods were worshiped (Is. 16:12).
4. The word "sanctuary" is applied also to the most holy place, or the Holy of Holies, in the tabernacle and the temple (Lev. 4:6).
5. The word is also used of God's holy habitation in heaven (Ps. 102:19). In the New Jerusalem there will be no sanctuary, "for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are its temple" (Rev. 21:22). Where all is made sacred, consecrated, and holy by God's presence, there is no need for one specific holy place.

SAND (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

SAND FLY, SAND LIZARD, SAND PARTRIDGE, SAND VIPER (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SANDALS, SHOES—footwear of Bible times. The sandal and shoe were very important cultural and status symbols.

Although the word "shoe" is sometimes used in the NKJV (Ps. 60:8; 108:9), sandal is a much better description of biblical footwear. A basic sandal was made up of a flat piece of leather, wood, or matted grass, with a leather strap attached on both sides to secure it to the foot. Wealthy people often wore sandals made from badger skin (Ezek. 16:10). Shepherds needed a tougher, more durable sandal to wear outside in the fields.

Poorer people sometimes did not have sandals at all (Luke 15:22). The absence or removal of sandals was a sign of humiliation (Is. 20:2–4). People who entered the presence of God to stand on holy ground were ordered to remove their sandals (Ex. 3:5; Josh. 5:15). When a person refused to bear responsibility for other family members, part of his public humiliation and condemnation was the removal of his sandal (Deut. 25:9). Transfer of a sandal from one party to another was a method of legalizing transactions in ancient Israel (Ruth 4:7).

It was a customary expression of hospitality for the lowest slave of a household to remove the traveler's sandals and wash his feet (1 Sam. 25:41). Jesus washed the feet of His disciples to demonstrate His attitude of humility and service (Luke 7:44).

SANHEDRIN [SAN hee drun] (a council or assembly)—the highest ruling body and court of justice among the Jewish people in the time of Jesus. Headed by the high priest of Israel, the Sanhedrin was granted limited authority over certain religious, civil, and criminal matters by the foreign nations that dominated the land of Israel at various times in its history. The Sanhedrin was exercising this limited power when it charged Jesus with the crime of blasphemy but then sent him to Pilate, the Roman official, for a formal trial and sentencing.

The word "Sanhedrin" is not found in the NKJV; instead the word "council" is used. Usually the assembly itself is meant, although the word may also refer to the assembly meeting (John 11:47) or to the place where the assembly met (Luke 22:66; Acts 4:15). The same word is also used for smaller, local courts of justice (Matt. 10:17; Mark 13:9). The Sanhedrin is also implied in Bible passages that mention a meeting of the various groups that made up the council: the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes (Mark 14:53–55). Sometimes some of the members of the Sanhedrin are simply called rulers (Luke 24:20; Acts 4:5).

The Sanhedrin had seventy-one members. The New Testament mentions some of them by name: Joseph of Arimathea (Mark 15:43), Gamaliel (Acts 5:34), Nicodemus (John 3:1; 7:50), the high priests Annas and Caiaphas (Luke 3:2) and Ananias (Acts 23:2). The high priest was always president of the Sanhedrin. Some scholars suggest that the apostle Paul was a member of the Sanhedrin before his conversion to Christianity, but this is not known for sure.

The Sanhedrin grew out of the council of advisors for the high priest when the Jewish people lived under the domination of the Persian and Greek empires. In the beginning, the council was made up of the leading priests and the most distinguished aristocrats among the laypeople. Later, however, as the influence of the scribes grew, they were also given some positions on the Sanhedrin. In this way, the Sanhedrin came to include both Sadducees—or “chief priests” and “elders”—and Pharisees or scribes. These were the two main groups within Judaism, and the Sanhedrin usually tried to maintain a balance of power between them. But Acts 23:1–10 shows that the Sanhedrin would sometimes divide along party lines. As he stood before the Sanhedrin, the apostle Paul was shrewd enough to pit the Pharisees against the Sadducees to his own advantage.

After A.D. 6 the official authority of the Sanhedrin extended only to the province of Judea in southern Palestine. Still, Jews living elsewhere respected the Sanhedrin highly and would often be guided by its decisions. Within the province of Judea, which included the city of Jerusalem, the Romans left most of the business of governing the Jews to the Sanhedrin. The Sanhedrin even had its own police force, or temple police, so it could make arrests on its own. This is the force that arrested Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane (Mark 14:43; Acts 4:1–3).

The Sanhedrin also served as the supreme court of the Jews. This does not mean that people who were dissatisfied with the verdict of the lower court could appeal to the Sanhedrin for a different decision. But matters of special importance and other matters that lower courts were unable to resolve were brought to the Sanhedrin. The Roman rulers did, however, reserve the right to interfere with what the Sanhedrin was doing, as happened in the case of Paul (Acts 23:10; 24:7), but this probably happened very seldom. The Romans denied the power of capital punishment to the Sanhedrin. This is why the Jews said to Pilate after they had tried Jesus, “It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death” (John 18:31).

In the New Testament the Sanhedrin was involved in hearings against Jesus (Matt. 26:59; Mark 14:55), Peter and John and the other apostles (Acts 4:1–23; 5:17–41), Stephen (Acts 6–7), and Paul (Acts 22–24). Jesus probably was not officially tried by the Sanhedrin. It is more likely that He was given a preliminary hearing to establish the charges against Him and then taken to Pilate. It is also not clear whether Stephen was officially condemned and executed by the Sanhedrin or simply was stoned by an angry mob without due process of law (Acts 7:54–60).

SANSANNAH [san SAN uh] (thornbush)—a city in the Negev, the extreme southern part of Judah (Josh. 15:31). It is probably present-day Khirbet esh-Shamsaniyat.

SAPH [saf]—a Philistine giant killed by one of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 21:18), also called Sippai (1 Chr. 20:4).

SAPHIR [SAY fur]—a form of SHAPHIR.

SAPPHIRA [suh FIGH ruh]—a dishonest woman who, along with her husband Ananias, held back goods from the early Christian community after they had agreed to share everything. Because of their hypocrisy and deceit, they were struck dead by God (Acts 5:1–11). This may seem like a severe punishment for such an offense. But it points out the need for absolute honesty in all our dealings with God.

SAPPHIRE (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

SARAH, SARAI [SAR uh, SAR eye] (noble lady)—the name of two women in the Bible:

1. The wife of ABRAHAM, and the mother of ISAAC. Sarah's name was originally Sarai, but it was changed to Sarah by God, much as her husband's name was changed from Abram to Abraham. Ten years younger than Abraham, Sarah was his half-sister; they had the same father but different mothers (Gen. 20:12).

   Sarah was about sixty-five years old when she and Abraham left Haran (Gen. 12:5; 17:7). Passing through Egypt, Abraham introduced Sarah as his sister, apparently to keep himself from being killed by those who would be attracted by Sarah's beauty (Gen. 12:10–20; also see 20:1–18).

   In spite of God's promise to Abraham that he would become the father of a chosen nation, Sarah remained barren. When she was seventy-five, she decided that the only way to realize God's promise was to present to Abraham her Egyptian maidservant, HAGAR, by whom he could father a child. Hagar bore a son named ISHMAEL (Gen. 16:1–16).

   When Sarah was ninety years old, far beyond her childbearing years, she gave birth to a son, Isaac—the child of promise (Gen.

21:1–7). After Isaac was born, Sarah caught Ishmael mocking the young child and, with God’s approval, sent both Ishmael and Hagar into the wilderness.

At the age of 127, Sarah died at Kirjath Arba (Hebron) and was buried by Abraham in the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 23:1–20). Sarah is the only woman in the Bible whose age was recorded at death—a sign of her great importance to the early Hebrews. The prophet Isaiah declared Abraham and Sarah as the father and mother of the Hebrew people: “Look to Abraham your father, and to Sarah who bore you” (Is. 51:2).

In the New Testament the apostle Paul pointed out that “the deadness of Sarah’s womb” (Rom. 4:19) did not cause Abraham to waver in his faith; he believed the promise of God (Rom. 9:9). The apostle Peter cited Sarah as an example of the holy women who trusted in God, possessed inward spiritual beauty, and were submissive to their husbands (1 Pet. 3:5–6). The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews also includes Sarah as one of the spiritual heroines in his roll call of the faithful (Heb. 11:11).

2. A daughter of Asher (Num. 26:46, KJV; Serah, NKJV, NIV).

SARAPH [SAR if]—a descendant of the tribe of Judah. At one time Saraph ruled in Moab (1 Chr. 4:22).

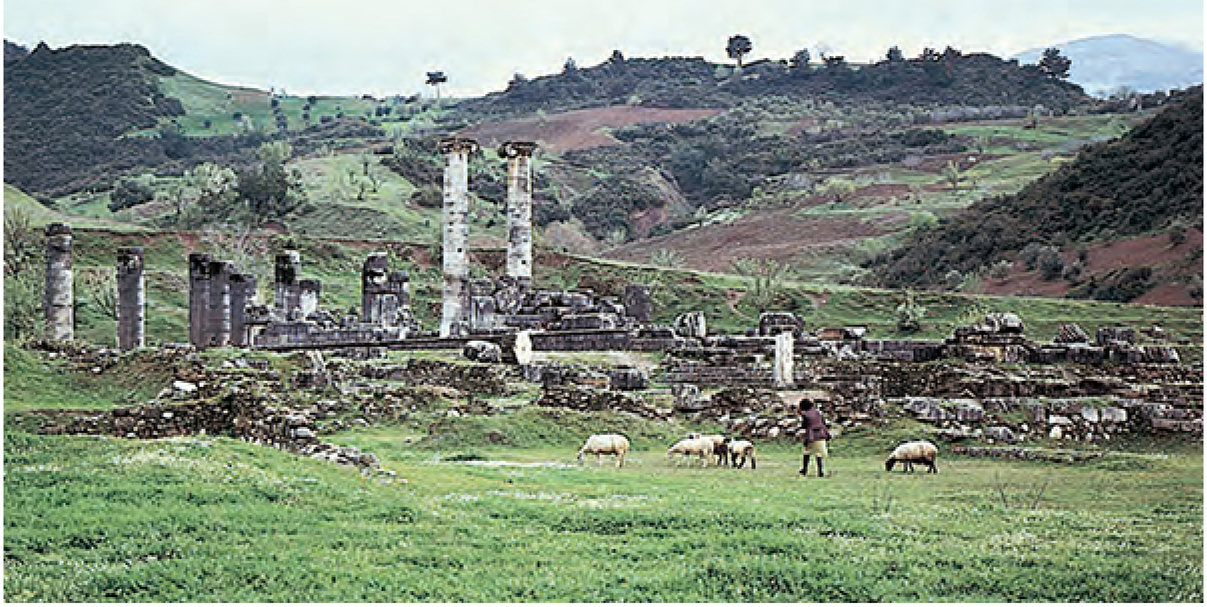
SARDIN, SARDIUS (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

SARDIS [SARR dis]—the capital city of Lydia in the province of Asia, in western Asia Minor (modern Turkey). The church at Sardis was one of the seven churches mentioned by John in the Book of Revelation (Rev. 3:1–6).

Sardis was situated on the east bank of the Pactolus River about 80 kilometers (50 miles) east of Smyrna; it occupied a rocky spur of Mount Tmolus and a valley at the foot of this mountain. In ancient times Sardis was well fortified and easily defended. It became the capital of the ancient Lydian empire, then passed successively to the Persians, the Greeks, and the Romans during their respective dominance of the ancient world.

During its days as a Roman city, Sardis became an important Christian center. However, the church at Sardis was evidently affected by the complacency of the city and its reliance on past glory: “You have a name that you are alive, but you are dead” (Rev. 3:1). Sardis, the dead church, was like “whitewashed tombs which . . . appear beautiful outwardly, but inside are full of dead men’s bones” (Matt. 23:27). Its thriving, healthy appearance masked an inner decay.

The most impressive building of ancient Sardis must have been its magnificent temple of Artemis, built in the fourth century B.C. The temple was 100 meters (327 feet) long and 50 meters (163 feet) wide and had seventy-eight Ionic columns, each 17.7 meters (58 feet) high. Some of these columns remain standing until this day.



• Ruins of the Temple of Artemis at Sardis. The Romans referred to this goddess as Diana (Acts 19:24–35).

SARDITES [SAR dights]—a tribal family (Num. 26:26; Seredites, NIV, NRSV) founded by SERED (Gen. 46:14).

SARDONYX (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

SAREPTA [suh REP tuh]—a form of ZAREPHATH.

SARGON [SAHR gahn] (the king is legitimate)—the name of three kings of ancient Mesopotamia:

1. Sargon, king of Akkad (or Agade) in Mesopotamia. He began ruling about 2360 B.C. and ruled for about fifty-six years. His kingdom, extending from the Mediterranean Sea to the Persian Gulf, was the first true world empire in history.
2. Sargon I, king of Assyria (about 1850 B.C.). The only reference to him is the impression of his seal on Old Akkadian tablets from Cappadocia.
3. Sargon II (722–705 B.C.), king of Assyria and Babylonia, whose military campaigns are important for understanding the prophecies of Isaiah. Sargon's predecessor Shalmaneser besieged Samaria for three years (2 Kin. 17:3–6; 18:9–12) and apparently died shortly before its fall in 722 B.C. Nevertheless, Sargon claimed credit for the victory. On an inscription found in his palace he says: "The city of Samaria I besieged, I took; 27,290 of its inhabitants I carried away; fifty chariots that were among them I collected."

   The people of Samaria were deported to Mesopotamia, where they were resettled; and people from the east were brought to Samaria (2 Kin. 17:6, 24). In 720 B.C. the kingdom of Judah, under King Ahaz, paid tribute to Sargon II, along with Edom, Moab, and Philistia.

   At about this same time (720 B.C.) Sargon II also defeated the Egyptian king So (2 Kin. 17:4). So had come to the aid of the people of Gaza, who also were defying the Assyrians. In 717 B.C. Sargon put down a rebellion by Carchemish in Syria and destroyed that ancient center of Hittite culture.

   The city of Ashdod rebelled in 713 B.C. under the promise of Egyptian aid (Isaiah 20). Egyptian ambassadors tried to enlist the aid of Hezekiah, king of Judah (Isaiah 18). But Isaiah the prophet opposed such action, symbolizing the folly of trusting in Egypt by walking about Jerusalem "naked and barefoot" (Is. 20:1–6). Apparently Judah listened to Isaiah's wise counsel, because the nation escaped harm during the time of Ashdod's rebellion. In 1963, several fragments of an Assyrian monument containing Sargon's name were found during archaeological excavations at Ashdod.

Merodach-Baladan, a king of Babylon, convinced the nations subject to Sargon to revolt against Assyrian rule. In 712 B.C., Sargon sent troops against Ashdod, capturing it the following year (Is. 20:1—the only verse in the Bible in which Sargon's name appears). In 710 B.C. Sargon captured Merodach-Baladan's capital and took the title "king of Babylon."

After a reign of seventeen years, Sargon apparently was murdered by one of his own soldiers.

SATAN [SAY tuhn] (adversary)—the great opposer, or adversary, of God and humankind; the personal name of the devil.

The Hebrew word from which Satan comes sometimes refers to human enemies (1 Sam. 29:4; Ps. 109:6). Once it refers to the angel of the Lord who opposed Balaam (Num. 22:22). But whenever this word is used as a proper name in the Old Testament, it refers to the great superhuman enemy of God, people, and good (1 Chr. 21:1; Job 1–2). This use of the word also occurs frequently in the New Testament.

Another common name for Satan in the New Testament is “the devil,” meaning “slanderer” or “false accuser.” Other titles by which Satan is identified in the New Testament include “the tempter” (1 Thess. 3:5); “Beelzebub” (Matt. 12:24); “the wicked one” (Matt. 13:19, 38); “the ruler of this world” (John 12:31); “the god of this age” (2 Cor. 4:4); “Belial” (2 Cor. 6:15); “the prince of the power of the air” (Eph. 2:2); and “the accuser of our brethren” (Rev. 12:10).

History. Genesis 3 describes a serpent who tempted the first human couple. That serpent was none other than Satan himself (Rev. 12:9; 20:2).

Two Old Testament passages—Isaiah 14:12–15 and Ezekiel 28:11–19—have been held to furnish a picture of Satan’s original condition and the reasons for his loss of that position. These passages were addressed originally to the kings of Babylon and Tyre. But in their long-range implications, some scholars believe, they refer to Satan himself.

Revelation 12 sketches the further stages in Satan’s work of evil. In his fall from God’s favor, Satan persuaded one third of the angels to join him in his rebellion (Rev. 12:3–4). Throughout the Old Testament period he sought to destroy the messianic line. When the Messiah became a man, Satan tried to eliminate Him (Rev. 12:4–5). During the future period of tribulation before the Messiah’s second coming, Satan will be cast out of the heavenly sphere (Rev. 12:7–12). Then he will direct his animosity toward the Messiah’s people (Rev. 12:13–17). Revelation 20 notes the final phases of Satan’s work. He will be bound for a thousand years and then finally cast into the lake of fire (Rev. 20:2, 10).

Characteristics. As a result of his original status and authority, Satan has great power and dignity. So great is his strength that Michael the archangel viewed him as a foe too powerful to oppose (Jude 9).

Satan's influence in worldly affairs is also clearly revealed. His various titles reflect his control of the world system: "the ruler of this world" (John 12:31), "the god of this age" (2 Cor. 4:4), and "the prince of the power of the air" (Eph. 2:2). The Bible declares, "The whole world lies under the sway of the wicked one" (1 John 5:19).

Satan exercises his evil power through demons (Matt. 12:24; 25:41; Rev. 12:7, 9). An outburst of demonic activity occurred when Jesus came to earth the first time because of the Savior's attack against Satan's kingdom (Matt. 12:28–29; Acts 10:38). Another such outburst is expected just before the second coming of Christ, because this will bring about the downfall of Satan and his angels (Rev. 9:3–17; 12:12; 18:2).

Satan also has high intelligence. Through it he deceived Adam and Eve and took over their rule of the world for himself (Gen. 1:26; 3:1–7; 2 Cor. 11:3). His cleverness enables him to carry out his deceptive work almost at will.

Yet Satan's attributes, impressive as they are, are not limitless. His power is subject to God's restrictions (Job 1:12; Luke 4:6; 2 Thess. 2:7–8). The reins of God on his activities are illustrated by Satan's request to God for permission to afflict Job (Job 1:7–12).

Satan is permitted to afflict God's people (Luke 13:16; 1 Thess. 2:18; Heb. 2:14). But he is never permitted to win an ultimate victory over them (John 14:30–31; 16:33).

A part of Satan's continuing ambition to replace God is his passionate yearning to have others worship him (Matt. 4:8–9; Rev. 13:4, 12). Since God has frustrated this desire and put down Satan's rebellion, he has become God's exact opposite. He is "the wicked one" (Matt. 13:19, 38), while God is "the Holy One" (Is. 1:4).

Satan's nature is malicious. His efforts in opposing God, His people, and His truth are tireless (Job 1:7; 2:2; Matt. 13:28). He is always opposed to our best interests (1 Chr. 21:1; Zech. 3:1–2). Through his role in introducing sin into the human family (Genesis 3), Satan has gained the power of death—a power that Christ has broken through His crucifixion and resurrection (Heb. 2:14–15).

Methods. Of the various methods used by Satan in carrying out his evil work, none is more characteristic than TEMPTATION (Matt. 4:3; 1 Thess. 3:5). Satan leads people into sin by various means. Sometimes he does it by direct suggestion, as in the case of Judas Iscariot (John 13:2, 27); sometimes through his agents who disguise themselves as messengers of God (2 Thess. 2:9; 1 John 4:1); and sometimes through a person's own weaknesses (1 Cor. 7:5). He tempted Christ directly, trying to lead Him into compromise by promising Him worldly authority and power (Luke 4:5–8).

Along with his work of tempting mankind, Satan also delights in deception (1 Tim. 3:6–7; 2 Tim. 2:26). His lying nature stands in bold contrast to the truth for which Christ stands (John 8:32, 44). The great falsehood he uses so frequently is that good can be attained by doing wrong. This lie is apparent in practically all his temptations (Gen. 3:4–5). As the great deceiver, Satan is an expert at falsifying truth (2 Cor. 11:13–15).

Satan's methods are designed ultimately to silence the gospel. He seeks to stop the spread of God's Word (Matt. 13:19; 1 Thess. 2:17–18). When the gospel is preached, Satan tries to blind people's understanding so they cannot grasp the meaning of the message (2 Cor. 4:3–4; 2 Thess 2:9–10). At times he opposes the work of God by violent means (John 13:2, 27; 1 Pet. 5:8; Rev. 12:13–17). He brings disorder into the physical world by afflicting human beings (Job 1–2; 2 Cor. 12:7; Heb. 2:14). Sometimes God allows him to afflict His people for purposes of correction (1 Tim. 1:20).

Defeat. Satan is destined to fail in his continuing rebellion against God. His final defeat is predicted in the New Testament (Luke 10:18; John 12:31; Rev. 12:9; 20:10). The death of Christ on the cross is the basis for Satan's final defeat (Heb. 2:14–15; 1 Pet. 3:18, 22). This event was the grand climax to a sinless life during which Jesus triumphed over the enemy repeatedly (Matt. 4:1–11; Luke 4:1–13). The final victory will come when Jesus returns and Satan is cast into the lake of fire (Rev. 20:1–15).

Strength for a Christian's victory over sin has also been provided through the death of Christ. We have assurance that "the God of peace will crush Satan under your feet" (Rom. 16:20). But such personal victory depends on our will to offer resistance to Satan's temptations (Eph. 4:25–27; 1 Pet. 5:8–9). To help Christians win this battle against Satan, God has provided the power of Christ's blood (Rev. 12:11), the continuing prayer of Christ in heaven for believers (Heb. 7:25), the leading of the Holy Spirit (Gal. 5:16), and various weapons for spiritual warfare (Eph. 6:13–18).

Reality. Some people have trouble admitting the existence of such an enemy as Satan. But his presence and activity are necessary to explain the problems of evil and suffering. The Bible makes it plain that Satan exists and that his main work is to oppose the rule of God in the affairs of humankind.

Many wonder why God would allow Satan, this great embodiment of evil, to exist in His creation. No completely satisfying answer to this question has been found. Perhaps He allows it to show that evil and wrongdoing do not provide the key to the ultimate meaning of life that we so desperately desire. Also see DEVIL.

SATISFACTION (see ATONEMENT).

SATON (see WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

SATRAP [SAY trap]—the governor of a province in the ancient Persian Empire; a subordinate ruler who ruled over a region on behalf of the emperor (Ezra 8:36; Esth. 3:12; lieutenants, KJV). For all practical purposes, a satrap was a vassal king who had great authority.

SATYR (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE; GODS, PAGAN).

SAUL [sawl] (asked [of God])—the name of three men in the Bible:

1. The sixth of the ancient kings of Edom (Gen. 36:36–38; 1 Chr. 1:48–49).
2. The first king of Israel (1 Sam. 9:2—31:12; 1 Chr. 5:10—26:28). Saul lived in turbulent times. For many years, Israel had consisted of a loose organization of tribes without a single leader. In times of crisis, leaders had arisen; but there was no formal government. SAMUEL was Saul's predecessor as Israel's leader; but he was a religious leader, not a king. Threatened by the warlike Philistines, the people of Israel pressured Samuel to appoint a king to lead them in their battles against the enemy. Samuel gave in to their demands and anointed Saul as the first king of the nation of Israel.

Saul's Qualifications. Saul had several admirable qualities that made him fit to be king of Israel during this period in its history. He was a large man of attractive appearance, which led to his quick acceptance by the people. In addition, he was from the tribe of Benjamin, situated on the border between Ephraim and Judah. Thus, he appealed to both the northern and southern sections of Israel. Furthermore, he was a capable military leader, as shown by his victories early in his career.

One of the most important episodes of Saul's career was his first encounter with the Philistines. Saul took charge of 2,000 men at Michmash, leaving his son Jonathan with 1,000 men at Gibeah. After Jonathan made a successful, but unplanned, attack on a company of Philistines at Geba, the reaction of the Philistine forces drove the Israelites back to Gilgal. The Philistines gained control of central Canaan, and Saul's defeat seemed imminent.

But Jonathan burst in unexpectedly upon the Philistines at Michmash, succeeding in starting a panic in their camp. Saul took advantage of this and routed the Philistines. This victory strengthened Saul's position as king.

Saul's Mistakes. Saul's first sin was his failure to wait for Samuel at Gilgal (1 Sam. 13:8–9). There he assumed the role of a priest by making a sacrifice to ask for God's blessing. His second sin followed soon afterward. After defeating Moab, Ammon, and Edom, Saul was told by Samuel to go to war against the Amalekites and to "kill both man and woman, infant and nursing child, ox and sheep, camel and donkey" (1 Sam. 15:3). Saul carried out his instructions well except that he spared the life of Agag, the king, and saved the best of the animals. When he returned, he lied and told Samuel that he had followed instructions exactly.

Saul's disobedience in this case showed that he could not be trusted as an instrument of God's will. He desired to assert his own will instead. Although he was allowed to remain king for the rest of his life, the Spirit of the Lord departed from Saul. He was troubled by an evil spirit that brought bouts of madness. Meanwhile, Samuel went to Bethlehem to anoint DAVID as the new king.

Saul and David. Saul's last years were tragic, clouded by periods of depression and gloom. David was brought into Saul's court to play soothing music to restore him to sanity. Saul was friendly toward David at first, but this changed as David's leadership abilities emerged. Enraged by jealousy, Saul tried to kill David several times. But David succeeded in eluding these attempts on his life for many years, often with the aid of Saul's son JONATHAN and his daughter Michal.

Saul's Death. The closing years of Saul's life brought a decline in his service to his people and in his personal fortunes. Rather than consolidating his gains after his early victories, Saul wasted his time trying to kill David. Meanwhile, the Philistines sensed Israel's plight and came with a large army to attack the Hebrew nation. Saul's army was crushed, and three of his sons, including Jonathan, were killed. Wounded in the battle, Saul committed suicide by falling on his own sword.

An Appraisal of Saul. Saul is one of the most tragic figures in the Old Testament. He began his reign with great promise but ended it in shame. As Israel's first king, he had the opportunity to set the pattern for all future leaders. His weakness was his rebellious nature and his inability to adapt to the necessity of sharing power and popularity.

Saul also used his power to pursue unworthy purposes and wasted much time and energy in fruitless attempts on David's life. Commercial enterprises were not encouraged during his reign. As a result, the economic condition of the nation was not good. Saul also failed to unite the various tribes into one nation.

Saul allowed the religious life of his people to deteriorate as well. However, he did provide distinct services to his people through his military actions. His victories paved the way for the brilliant career of his successor David.

3. The original name of PAUL, a persecutor of the church, who became an apostle of Christ and a missionary of the early church (Acts 7:58—9:26; 11:25—13:9).

SAVIOR—a person who rescues others from evil, danger, or destruction. The Old Testament viewed God Himself as the Savior: “There is no other God besides Me, a just God and a Savior” (Is. 45:21). Because God is the source of salvation, He sent human deliverers to rescue His people, Israel (Ps. 106:21; Is. 43:3, 11). This word was also used to describe the judges of Israel, those “saviors” or “deliverers” who rescued God’s people from oppression by their enemies (Judg. 3:9, 15).

In the New Testament the word for “savior” describes both God the Father (1 Tim. 1:1; Jude 25) and Jesus Christ the Son (Acts 5:31; Phil. 3:20). The apostles rejoiced that in Christ, God had become the “Savior of all men” (1 Tim. 4:10). He was the Savior of Gentiles as well as Jews. As Christians, we are exhorted to “grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ” (2 Pet. 3:18). Also see JESUS CHRIST.

SAW (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

SCABS (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

SCABBARD (see SHEATH).

SCALE—a word used in the Bible at least four different ways:

1. The outer covering of fish or reptiles (Lev. 11:9–12). The scales of LEVIATHAN are described as impenetrable, a reference to his pride (Job 41:15).
2. A balance for determining weight. The prophet Isaiah pictured God weighing out the mountains on a scale like a merchant weighing a portion of grain (Is. 40:12).
3. A scaly substance peeled off the body, as the scales that fell from Paul's eyes (Acts 9:18).
4. Used as a verb, "to scale" means "to climb up or over," as the wise man scales a mighty city in the wisdom and power of God (Prov. 21:22).

SCALL (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

SCAPEGOAT—a live goat over whose head AARON confessed all the sins of the people of Israel. The goat was then sent into the wilderness on the Day of Atonement, symbolically taking away their sins (Lev. 16:8, 10, 26; Azazel, NRSV).

The derivation of "scapegoat" is not clear. Scholars suggest it communicates such ideas as "passing away in his strength," "strength of God," "loneliness," or "desert." The most probable meaning is the idea of "far removed" or "going far away."

The scapegoat was one of two goats that served as a sin offering on the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:5). One of the goats was sacrificed as a part of the sin offering (Lev. 16:9). The other was kept alive so it could be taken into the wilderness by an escort (Lev. 16:10, 21). The person who released the goat was to wash his clothes and bathe afterwards (Lev. 16:26). The goat symbolized the removal of the sins of the people into an uninhabited land (Lev. 16:21–22). The process represented the transfer of guilt from the people of Israel, the complete removal of guilt from their midst.

SCARLET (see COLORS OF THE BIBLE).

SCENT (see SWEET INCENSE).

SCEPTER—the official staff of a ruler, symbolizing his authority and power. Originally the scepter was the shepherd's staff, since the first kings were nomadic princes (Mic. 7:14). In some instances the scepter was a strong rod (Ezek. 19:11, 14).

Sometimes the symbolism of a scepter refers to the Messiah who will rule from Israel, from the tribe of Judah in particular (Gen. 49:10). In the New Testament, the Book of Hebrews describes Christ as the Son who rules with a scepter of righteousness (Heb. 1:8, quoting Ps. 45:6).

The breaking of a scepter signified the downfall of the one who possessed it. This symbolism was used by several of the Old Testament prophets to predict what would happen to the enemies of the nation of Israel (Is. 14:5; Ezek. 19:1–14).

When the Roman soldiers mocked Jesus before His crucifixion, they placed a reed in His hand as a mock scepter and saluted Him as "King of the Jews" (Matt. 27:29).

SCEVA [SEE vuh]—a Jewish chief priest at Ephesus during Paul's time (Acts 19:14). Sceva's seven sons attempted to cast out an evil spirit in the name of Jesus. But they were wounded instead by the demon-possessed man and had to flee naked and humiliated.

SCHIN [shin]—a form of SHIN.

SCHISM—a separation or division into factions, especially a break in church fellowship (1 Cor. 12:25; dissension, NRSV; division, NASB, NIV). The apostle Paul was concerned about the divisions within the church at Corinth (1 Cor. 1:10, 11:18). Jealousy, mistrust, and party strife must be replaced, said Paul, by mutual respect and unity of mind and heart in the Holy Spirit.

SCHOLAR—a person who has done advanced study in a special field (Eccl. 12:11). A footnote to this verse (NKJV) points out that "scholars" means, literally, "masters of the assemblies."

SCHOOLMASTER—KJV word for TUTOR. Also see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES.

SCHOOLS (see EDUCATION).

SCIENCE—the systematic organization of knowledge about the laws that govern the world and the universe. The word "science" occurs twice in the KJV (Dan. 1:4; 1 Tim. 6:20), but in both cases the NKJV renders the word as "knowledge." All truth, whether revealed in Scripture or gained from experimentation and observation of God's creation, is God's truth. Ultimate knowledge comes from God and His Word.

SCOFFER—one who shows contempt by mocking, sneering, or scorning (Gen. 21:9; Ps. 73:8). Unlike the good man, who walks the path of wisdom, the scoffer is a wicked man who follows the path of folly, refusing to listen to the wisdom of others.

SCORN—mockery, ridicule, or contempt. This concept appears in several passages in the Bible. Among the more significant is Psalm 22:7, where Jesus Christ is prophesied as One who will become the object of scorn. This is because of the seeming contradiction between His claims and His death in suffering and disgrace. In the same way, those who continue to follow the Lord in the midst of adverse circumstances are scorned by others (Ps. 44:13; 79:4). Nevertheless, the righteous will be vindicated as Christ was in His resurrection. Therefore, God's blessing rests on those who refuse to join with the scornful (Ps. 1:1).

SCORNFUL—the act of expressing contempt toward others (Ps. 1:1). The scornful are proud, arrogant people who scoff at the way of peace and make mockery of goodness. Also see SCOFFER.

SCORPION (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SCOUNDREL—a wicked or worthless person. Nabal, a foolish man who refused to provide food for David and his men, was called a scoundrel (1 Sam. 25:17, 25; a son of Belial, KJV; a wicked man, NIV).

SCOURGE—a whip used as a means of punishment. In the Old Testament, "scourge" is generally a word that describes punishment, either by people (1 Kin. 12:11) or by God (Is. 10:26). The Mosaic Law prescribed that a wicked person could be beaten with forty blows (Deut. 25:2–3).

In the New Testament, to be "examined under scourging" (Acts 22:24) referred to an investigation that began with the beating of the prisoner. Another word describes the "whip of cords" with which Jesus cleansed the temple (John 2:15). It also graphically describes the beating Jesus received before His crucifixion (Matt. 27:26).

The whip used for this type of punishment consisted of a handle to which one or more leather cords or thongs were attached. Sometimes these cords were knotted or weighted with pieces of metal or bone to make the whip more effective as a flesh-cutting instrument. In his prediction of the coming of the Messiah, the prophet Isaiah declared, "He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities" (Is. 53:5), referring to the scourging of Jesus.

SCREECH OWL (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SCRIBES—members of a learned class in ancient Israel through New Testament times who studied the Scriptures and served as copyists, editors, and teachers.

In the Old Testament the Hebrew word translated as scribe identified a person who numbered or mustered the troops (Jer. 52:25). Such a steward controlled the access of the people to the throne rooms of David and Solomon (2 Sam. 8:17). Gradually, the word came to refer to those who chose a profession of literary studies.

Hezekiah, king of Judah, chose a body of men who transcribed the ancient records for preservation, including the proverbs of Solomon (Prov. 25:1). The nature of the scribe's work had changed by this time. He was no longer an officer of the king's court; he had become a person who interpreted the Scriptures. The scribes soon became known for their study and knowledge of the Mosaic Law.

After the Jews returned from the captivity in Babylon, the era of the scribes began. The reading of the Law before the nation of Israel by Ezra (Nehemiah 8–10) signaled the nation's return to exact observance of all the laws and rites that had been given. Following the Law and the traditions that had grown up around it became the measure of devotion and spirituality.

At first the priests were responsible for the scientific study and professional communication of this legal code. But this function eventually passed to the scribes. Their official interpretation of the meaning of the Law eventually became more important than the Law itself.

This position of strength allowed these early scribes to enforce their rules and practices with a binding authority. To speak of the scribes as interpreters of Scripture means that they provided rules for human conduct out of their study.

By the time of Jesus, the scribes were a new upper class among the Jewish people. Large numbers of priests in Jerusalem before A.D. 70 served as scribes. One of these was JOSEPHUS, the Jewish historian. Some scribes came from among the SADDUCEES. Others came from the ordinary priestly ranks. But the largest group of scribes came from among every other class of people, including merchants, carpenters, flax combers, tentmakers, and even day laborers, like HILLEL, who became a famous Jewish teacher.

The young Israelite who devoted his life to become a scribe went through a set course of study for several years. Josephus began his preparation when he was fourteen. Students were in continual contact with the teacher, listening to his instruction. The disciple-scribe first had to master all the traditional material and the unique method of interpretation of the Jewish Halakah. The aim was to give the apprentice competence in making decisions on questions of religious legislation and penal justice.

According to the tradition of the scribes, there were "secrets" of interpretation, forbidden degrees of knowledge, that were not to be expounded before three or more persons. Some chapters in the Bible were to be explained only to sages (2 Esdras 14:1–5).

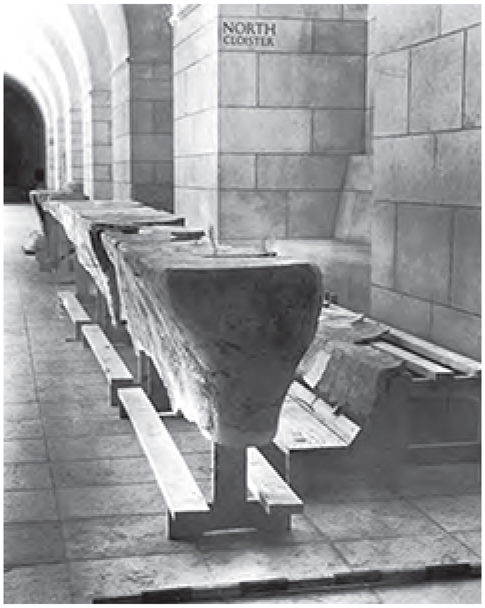
The apocalyptic writings of late Judaism contained great theological systems that were understood only by the specially initiated. This was left to the confidential teaching of the scribes. They believed that God intended to leave the mass of people ignorant of His reasons for requiring certain things under the Law. These truths were hidden from the masses because they could not be trusted to understand and apply the Law.

The city of Jerusalem was the center of this scribal knowledge and interpretation of the Law. Only ordained teachers could transmit and create the tradition; this was the matter studied to perfection by students often beginning at age fourteen. When they completed their study at the age of forty, they could be ordained. As members with full rights, they could act as judges, be called rabbis, and occupy positions in administration of justice, government, and education. They joined the chief priests and aristocratic families who made up the SANHEDRIN. The scribes were held in greatest esteem by the people.

Sometimes the gospels refer to the scribes as lawyers (Matt. 22:35; Luke 7:30)—a title that identifies them as experts in the Mosaic Law. This Law was regarded as the sole civil and religious authority governing Jewish life. In Jesus' day, the scribes were usually associated with the PHARISEES (Matt. 12:38; Mark 7:5; Luke 6:7; teachers of the law, NIV). In the gospels, they are sometimes called "the scribes of the Pharisees" (Mark 2:16, NRSV, NASB; the teachers of the law who were Pharisees, NIV). This phrase identifies scribes who were members of the Pharisaic party.

Many of the scribes were members of the SANHEDRIN, the highest legal and administrative body in the Jewish state in Roman times. Gamaliel was one of these (Acts 5:34), as was Nicodemus (John 3:1). They sat as administrators of the Law "in Moses' seat" (Matt. 23:2). This administration intensified after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans.

Since a scribe was not paid for his services, he had to earn a livelihood in another way. This rule may have been enforced to keep down the problem of bribery among the scribes in their application of the Law. The scribes often developed attitudes based on their professional privileges, and this often resulted in pride (Matt. 23:5–7). Jesus warned against these excesses, and He boldly attacked the religious hypocrisy of the scribes (Matthew 23).



• Restored writing tables and benches used by scribes in the settlement at Qumran. Many of the Dead Sea Scrolls discovered at Qumran may have been written on tables such as these.

SCRIBE'S KNIFE—a small knife used by scribes to sharpen their writing pens and cut PAPYRUS scrolls. King Jehoiakim used such a knife to destroy the scroll containing Jeremiah's prophecies (Jer. 36:23; penknife, KJV).

SCRIPT—an ancient system of characters used in writing (Ezra 4:7; Esth. 1:22). From the Aramaic script the square characters of the Hebrew alphabet were developed. Also see LANGUAGES OF THE BIBLE.

SCRIPTURE—the Old and New Testaments, which make up the Bible, God's written Word. God gave to the world His living Word, Jesus Christ, and His written Word, the Scriptures. Although the Bible was written by prophets and apostles, the Bible originated not with their wills, but with God's (2 Pet. 1:20–21). "All Scripture," Paul wrote, "is given by inspiration of God" (2 Tim. 3:16).

After Jesus, God's living Word, returned to heaven, the Bible, God's written Word, remained on earth as God's eternal guide for mankind. The written Word is durable and universally available and has remained essentially unchanged in its message since it was first inspired by God.

Because the Bible is God's inspired Word, it is able to make us "wise for salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Tim. 3:15). The Scriptures testify of Christ (John 5:39) and are understood and received as He opens our understanding to the revealed will of His Father (Luke 24:27). Like the Berean Christians, we should search the Scriptures daily (Acts 17:11) to discover God's message for our lives.

SCROLL—a roll of papyrus, leather, or parchment on which an ancient document—particularly a text of the Bible—was written (Ezra 6:2). Rolled up on a stick, a scroll was usually about 11 meters (35 feet) long—the size required, for instance, for the Book of Luke or the Book of Acts. Longer books of the Bible required two or more scrolls.

One of the scrolls written by the prophet Jeremiah was read in the temple and in the king's palace, then destroyed by King Jehoiakim. The king cut it into pieces and threw it into the fire to show his contempt for God's prophet. But Jeremiah promptly rewrote the scroll through his scribe, Baruch (Jer. 36:1–32).

Books did not exist until the second or third century A.D., when the CODEX was introduced. The codex had a page arrangement much like our modern books.

• These copper scrolls were discovered among the Dead Sea Scrolls at Qumran. Most scrolls in ancient times were written on papyrus, parchment, or leather.

SCRUPLES—a conviction of conscience that causes a person to hesitate about participating in some action. More mature Christians, said the apostle Paul, ought to bear with the tender scruples of weak Christians, by always acting in love and unselfishness (Rom. 15:1; failings, NIV).

SCUM—rust, symbolizing sin (Ezek. 24:6–12; rust, NRSV, NASB; corrosion, REB; deposit, NIV). The prophet Ezekiel compared the sin of Jerusalem to rust on a cooking pot. To remove the rust, the pot was heated on a fire. This action was to symbolize the purging fire of God’s judgment (Ezek. 24:13).

SCURVY (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

SCYTHIANS [SITH ee uhns]—a barbaric race who lived in Scythia, an ancient region of southeastern Europe and southwestern Asia (see Map 1, D–1), now generally identified as Russia. In biblical times, the Scythians were a tribe of nomadic raiders notorious for their cruelty and barbarism.

Originally from western Siberia, the Scythians migrated to southern Russia about 2000 B.C. Several centuries later they moved into northern Persia. Eventually they became allies of the Assyrians and oppressed western Persia for almost three decades. After the Medes became a world power, they finally drove the Scythians back to southern Russia.

Famous as raiders, the Scythians carried out a major campaign of plunder against Syria and Palestine in the late seventh century B.C. The prophets Zephaniah and Jeremiah may have referred to this raid. Jeremiah spoke of waters that would rise out of the north and eventually become "an overflowing flood" of God's judgment against the nations of that region of the world (Jer. 47:2).

SEA—a major body of water that served as an important shipping route in the ancient world. But biblical writers had several different meanings in mind when they spoke of "the sea."

1. The phrase usually refers to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA off the western coast of Palestine (Gen. 49:13; Ps. 80:11).
2. In Genesis, the phrase "the sea" refers to the ocean, the "gathering together of the waters" (Gen. 1:10) as distinguished from the dry land.
3. Sometimes the phrase refers to a large river, with its network of branches, channels, and irrigating canals, such as the Nile (Is. 19:5; Ezek. 32:2).
4. "The sea" is also used of the Red Sea (Ex. 14:16, 27; 15:4; Josh. 24:6) or one of its gulfs (Num. 11:31; Is. 11:15), and perhaps the sea crossed by Solomon's fleet (1 Kin. 9:26; 10:22).
5. In the New Testament, the large lake in Galilee, an inland freshwater lake, is also called the Sea of Galilee (Matt. 4:18).
6. The phrase is also used of the Dead Sea, variously known as the Salt Sea (Gen. 14:3), the Eastern Sea (Joel 2:20), and the Sea of the Arabah (Deut. 3:17).

The Hebrews were a land-loving people who distrusted a large body of water such as the Mediterranean Sea. To them the sea was a perilous and forbidding place. The sea therefore became a symbol of the seething nations of the world and of the troubled lives of the unrighteous (Dan. 7:2–3; Matt. 13:47; Rev. 13:1). Perhaps this is why the apostle John spoke of the glorious new heaven and new earth as a place in which “there was no more sea” (Rev. 21:1).

SEA, BRAZEN (see SEA, MOLTEN).

SEA, CHINNERETH (see CHINNERETH).

SEA COW, SEA GULL, SEA MEW, SEA MONSTER (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SEA, DEAD (see DEAD SEA).

SEA, MOLTEN—a large laver, or basin, of cast bronze used in Solomon’s temple. The KJV uses the term “molten sea” (1 Kin. 7:23; the Sea, NIV), describing its method of manufacture. The bronze was melted and cast into the proper mold.

The molten sea was larger than a normal laver. It measured 5 meters (15 feet) in diameter, 2$^1/_2$ meters (7$^1/_2$ feet) in height and 15 meters (45 feet) in circumference (1 Kin. 7:23). Its thickness was “a handbreadth,” estimated at 7$^1/_2$ centimeters (3 inches). It contained 2,000 baths, or about 38,000 liters (10,000 gallons) of water (1 Kin. 7:26).

Below the brim, shaped “like a lily blossom” (1 Kin. 7:26), were two rows of gourd-shaped “ornamental buds” (1 Kin. 7:24). The sea rested on the backs of 12 oxen. The oxen were separated into four groups of three, facing north, south, east, and west (1 Kin. 7:25).

SEA OF GALILEE (see GALILEE, SEA OF).

SEA OF GLASS—a sea that stood before God’s throne in the Book of Revelation, symbolizing the Lord’s holiness and purity. This sea is “like crystal” (Rev. 4:6), and it is also “mingled with fire” (Rev. 15:2). These descriptions are similar to the language used in the Old Testament, when the Lord revealed Himself in all His glory to the people of Israel (Ex. 24:10), and in the prophet Ezekiel’s vision of God’s throne (Ezek. 1:22–28). The message of this image is that the Lord is a God of holiness who demands righteous living from His people.

SEA, THE GREAT—another name for the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, a major body of water along the western coast of the land of Palestine (Josh. 15:47).

SEA OF JAZER [JAY zur]—a lake in Gilead, east of the Jordan River (Jer. 48:32). Also see JAZER.

SEA, SALT (see DEAD SEA).

SEA, TIBERIAS (see TIBERIAS).

SEAH [SEE uh] (see WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

SEAL—a device such as a signet ring or cylinder, engraved with the owner's name, a design, or both (Ex. 28:11; Esth. 8:8). A medallion or ring used as a seal featured a raised or recessed signature or symbol so it could be impressed on wax, moist clay, or ink to leave its mark (Job 38:14).

The seal was strung on a cord and hung around the neck or worn on one's finger (Gen. 38:18, NRSV; signet ring, Jer. 22:24). A seal usually served to certify a signature or authenticate a letter or other document (Neh. 9:38; Esth. 8:8; John 3:33).

In the New Testament, Pilate authorized a guard to be sent to secure the tomb where the body of Jesus had been laid: "So they went and made the tomb secure, sealing the stone and setting the guard" (Matt. 27:66).

The word "seal" is used also in a figurative sense of an outward condition (John 6:27; 1 Cor. 9:2; 2 Tim. 2:19). The Book of Revelation uses the word frequently in this sense (Rev. 5:1; 7:2–8; 10:4).

SEAMSTER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SEANCE—a ritual in which persons try to communicate with the dead. King Saul of Israel asked a medium (the woman of En Dor) to conduct a seance so he could communicate with the spirit of the deceased prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 28:8–11). Also see MAGIC AND SORCERY.

SEAR—to burn with an iron. Warning of the danger of adultery, the writer of Proverbs asked, "Can one walk on hot coals, and his feet not be seared?" (Prov. 6:28; burned, KJV; scorched, NASB, NIV; scorching, NRSV). Paul warned Timothy of the denial of Jesus that would be prevalent in the end times. False teachers, whose consciences will be burned away or "seared with a hot iron" (1 Tim. 4:2), will abound. Christians must beware of the doctrine of such teachers even today.

SEASON—one of the four natural divisions of the year: spring, summer, autumn, and winter (Lev. 26:4; Deut. 11:14). However, there are only two seasons in the Palestinian year: the dry season, which is hot, and the wet season, which is cool or cold. Also see WEATHER.

SEAT—a sitting place of great importance. The mercy seat on the ARK OF THE COVENANT was reserved only for the Lord (Ex. 25:22). A seat could also refer to a royal throne (Judg. 3:20; Esth. 3:1). In the New Testament, the word often refers to a judgment seat, sometimes Christ's judgment seat in particular (Rom. 14:10; 2 Cor. 5:10).

SEBA [SEE buh]—the name of a man and a place in the Old Testament:

1. The oldest son of Cush (Gen. 10:7). Seba was a grandson of Ham and a great-grandson of Noah.
2. A country, probably in northeastern Africa, since it is mentioned along with Egypt and Ethiopia (Is. 43:3). Some scholars believe Seba refers to the Sudan or northern part of Ethiopia.

Also see SABEANS.

SEBAM [SEE bam]—a form of SHEBAM.

SEBAT [SEE bat]—a form of SHEBAT.

SECACAH [sih KAY kuh] (thicket)—a city in the Valley of Achor in the Wilderness of Judah (Josh. 15:61). Secacah has been identified with Khirbet es-Samrah, near the northwest shore of the Dead Sea.

SECHU [SEE koo]—a place in the territory of Benjamin between Gibeah (Saul's residence) and Ramah (Samuel's residence). Sechu was noted for its "great well." When King Saul arrived at Sechu, in pursuit of David, he was directed to NAIOTH (1 Sam. 19:22; Secu, NIV, NRSV).

Some scholars identify Sechu as Khirbet Shuweikeh, about 5 kilometers (3 miles) northwest of er-Ram.

Some Greek and Latin texts of 1 Samuel 19:22 do not treat Sechu as a proper name but translate it "on the bare hilltop." The "great well" at Sechu may have been a large cistern that served as a gathering place.

SECOND COMING—Christ's future return to the earth at the end of the present age. Although the Bible explicitly speaks of Christ's appearance as a "second time," the phrase "second coming" occurs nowhere in the New Testament. Many passages, however, speak of His return. In fact, in the New Testament alone it is referred to over 300 times.

The night before His crucifixion, Jesus told His apostles that He would return (John 14:3). When Jesus ascended into heaven, two angels appeared to His followers, saying that He would return in the same manner as they had seen Him go (Acts 1:11). The New Testament is filled with expectancy of His coming, even as Christians should be today.

Various opinions exist about what is meant by the Second Coming. Some regard it as the coming of the Holy Spirit on the day of PENTECOST. Others regard it as the coming of Christ into the heart at conversion. Christ's coming for the believer at the time of death is still another view. Careful examination of the New Testament, however, makes it clear that the Second Coming will be a climactic historical event. The Lord will return in the same manner in which He left. His coming will be personal, bodily, and visible.

The time of the Second Coming is unknown. In fact, Jesus stated that only the Father knew the time. Therefore, the return of the Lord should be a matter of constant expectancy. As He came the first time, in the "fullness of time" (Gal. 4:4), so will the Second Coming be. The believer's task is not to try to determine the time of the Second Coming. We should share the gospel message diligently until He returns (Acts 1:8–11).

SECOND DEATH (see ESCHATOLOGY).

SECOND QUARTER, THE—a district of Jerusalem in which Huldah the prophetess lived (2 Kin. 22:14; Second District, NIV). This district lay in the angle formed by the west wall of the temple and the ancient wall of the city. It was later included within the wall restored by Nehemiah.

SECOND SABBATH—a term found only in Luke 6:1: “On the second Sabbath after the first” (KJV, NKJV). The Greek word means literally “the second-first (sabbath).”

SECRET (see MYSTERY).

SECRETARY (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SECT—a small faction or party united by common interests or beliefs. Before the apostle Paul became a Christian, he was a Pharisee, a member of the strictest sect (party, NRSV; group, REB) of the Jewish religion (Acts 26:5). The early Christians were also criticized by the Jewish people because they were members of a hated sect known as the WAY—an early name for Christianity (Acts 24:14).

SECU [SEE koo]—a form of SECHU.

SECUNDUS [sih KUN duhs] (second)—an early Christian who lived in Thessalonica (Acts 20:4). Secundus was one of seven friends and companions who accompanied the apostle Paul from Greece to Asia Minor, as Paul returned from his third missionary journey.

SEDITION—conduct or language inciting rebellion against the authority of a state or other lawful government (Ezra 4:15; revolt, NASB; rebellion, NIV).

SEDUCTRESS—a female seducer; a woman who induces men to have sexual intercourse with her. The Book of Proverbs is filled with warnings against the temptations of such a woman (Prov. 2:16; 7:5; 27:13).

SEED—a fertilized and ripened egg cell of a plant, capable of sprouting to produce a new plant. The word seed is also used figuratively in the Bible to express several important truths. It refers to human descendants or offspring (Gen. 21:12). The apostle Paul explained that the seed of Abraham not only referred to his physical descendants, “but also to those who are of the faith of Abraham” (Rom. 4:16). In Galatians 3:16, Paul went even further, stating that Abraham’s seed is Jesus Christ rather than the nation of Israel.

Jesus often used the imagery of seeds in His parables. In the thirteenth chapter of Matthew, He told three different parables involving seeds: the parable of the sower (Matt. 13:3–9, 18–33), the parable of the wheat and the tares (Matt. 13:24–30, 36–43), and the parable of the mustard seed (Matt. 13:31–32). He compared His own death and resurrection in a figurative sense to the sowing of seeds (John 12:24).

SEEDTIME—the time for planting seeds (Gen. 8:22). In Palestine grain crops were sown in late October or November. The seed for summer produce, such as beans, cucumbers, and melons, were sown between January and March.

SEGUB [SEE guhb]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The youngest son of Hiel of Bethel (1 Kin. 16:34). Segub may have been buried beneath the city gate as a foundation sacrifice when his father rebuilt the city of Jericho.
2. A son of Hezron and a grandson of Judah (1 Chr. 2:21–22).

SEIR [SEE ur] (hairy, rough)—the name of two places and one person in the Old Testament:

1. The mountainous country stretching from the Dead Sea to the Red Sea, east of the gorge called the Arabah (Gen. 14:6). The elevations of Seir range from 183 meters (600 feet) to 1,830 meters (6,000 feet).

   Two of Seir’s outstanding features are Mount Hor, where Aaron died (Num. 20:27–28), and the ancient city of rock, Petra or Sela (Is. 16:1). The region was named after a Horite (Hurrian) patriarch whose descendants settled in this area.

   God gave this land to Esau and his descendants, who drove out the Horites, or Hurrians (Deut. 2:12). Esau and his descendants, the Edomites, lived in Seir (Deut. 2:29). This explains why God directed the people of Israel not to invade this territory when they moved from Egypt toward the Promised Land (Deut. 2:4–5).

Although Seir was originally the name of the mountain range in Edom, the name came to signify the entire territory of Edom south of the Dead Sea (2 Chr. 20:10). King David made these people his servants (2 Sam. 8:14).

Later, in the days of King Jehoshaphat of Judah, the people of Mount Seir (the EDOMITES) joined the Ammonites and the Moabites in an invasion against Judah (2 Chr. 20:10, 22–23). Later, the prophet Ezekiel predicted God's destruction of "Mount Seir" because of their strong hatred of Israel and their desire to possess the lands of Israel and Judah (Ezek. 35:1–15).

2. The grandfather of Hori, ancestor of the Horites (1 Chr. 1:39).
3. A mountain on the northern border of the territory of Judah (Josh. 15:10). Some have identified Seir with the rocky point near Chesalon on which the present-day village of Saris stands, about 19 kilometers (12 miles) west of Jerusalem.

SEIRAH [SEE uh ruh]—an unknown city in the mountains of Ephraim west of Jericho (Judg. 3:26; Seirath, KJV). Seirah was the place to which Ehud the judge escaped after murdering Eglon, king of Moab.

SEIRATH [SEE uh rath]—a form of SEIRAH.

SELA [SEE luh] (rock, cliff)—the name of three places in the Old Testament:

1. A fortress city, the capital of Edom, situated on the Wadi Musa ("the Valley of Moses") between the Dead Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba (2 Kin. 14:7; Selah, KJV). A rock formation about 1,160 meters (3,800 feet) above sea level, now known as Umm el-Bayyarah, the great acropolis of the Nabatean city of PETRA dominates the site.

   Sela was near Mount Hor, close to the Wilderness of Zin. Its name was changed to Joktheel by Amaziah, king of Judah, after he captured it (2 Kin. 14:7). Amaziah's men took 10,000 of the people of Seir (Edomites), "brought them to the top of the rock, and cast them down . . . so that they all were dashed in pieces" (2 Chr. 25:12).

2. A place apparently in the territory of Judah near the boundary of the Amorites (Judg. 1:36; the rock, KJV). Some scholars believe the site was in Amorite territory.
3. An unidentified site in Moab mentioned by Isaiah in a prophecy of doom (Is. 16:1).

SELAH [SEE luh]—a form of SELA No. 1. Also see MUSIC.

SELA-HAMMAHLEKOTH [SEE luh huh MAH luh kahth] (rock of divisions)—a cliff in the Wilderness of Judah, where David escaped from Saul (1 Sam. 23:28; the Rock of Escaping, NKJV; the Dividing Rock, REB). Scholars have identified this site with a gorge at Wadi el-Malaki, about 13 kilometers (8 miles) northeast of Maon, toward En Gedi.

SELED [SEE led]—a descendant of Jerahmeel, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:30).

SELEUCIA [sih LOO shuh]—a seaport near Antioch of Syria from which Paul and Barnabas began their first missionary journey (see Map 7, D–2). Apparently they also landed at Seleucia when they returned to Antioch (Acts 14:26). Seleucia was an important Roman city because of its strategic location on the trade routes of the Mediterranean Sea.

SELEUCUS [sih LOO kuhs]—the name of six different kings who ruled ancient Syria during the period between the close of the Old Testament and the beginning of the New Testament.

SELF-CONTROL—control of one's actions or emotions by the will. The New Testament teaches that self-control is a fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22–23). The Christian is to be governed by God, not by self.

SELF-DENIAL—the act of refusing to partake of anything not necessary for life or service to God. Sometimes self-denial can become extreme, in which case it is called asceticism.

SELF-INDULGENCE—excessive indulgence of one's sensual appetites and desires. The Pharisees were hypocrites, Jesus declared, because they cleansed the outside of the cup—or their lives—but inside they were full of extortion and self-indulgence (Matt. 23:25; excess, KJV; self-indulgence, NRSV).

SELF-SUFFICIENCY—the capability of providing for oneself without the help of others. In the view of the Bible, sinners are self-sufficient people who declare their independence of God and boast of their own accomplishments. In his sermon on the wicked man, Zophar declared, “In his self-sufficiency he will be in distress” (Job 20:22).

SELF-WILL—the act of stubbornly and arrogantly insisting on one’s own way, as opposed to following the will of God. In the New Testament, the idea of self-will appears twice. In Titus 1:7 Paul indicated that a candidate for bishop, or pastor, must not be self-willed. And in 2 Peter 2:10 those persons “who walk according to the flesh” are said to be “presumptuous” as well as “self-willed.”

SELVEDGE [SELL vij]—a narrow border of different or heavier threads around the edge of a piece of fabric or cloth. Both references to selvedge in the NKJV (Ex. 26:4; 36:11) describe the fringe of the curtains in the tabernacle.

SEM [sem]—a form of SHEM.

SEMACHIAH [sem uh KIGH uh] (the Lord sustains)—a gatekeeper of the tabernacle in the days of David (1 Chr. 26:7).

SEMEI [SEM ih eye]—a man in Luke’s genealogy of Jesus Christ (Luke 3:26; Semein, NRSV, REB, NASB, NIV).

SEMEIN [SEM ih in]—a form of SEMEI.

SEMEN—a fluid filled with sperm and secreted by the male reproductive organs (Gen. 38:9; Lev. 15:16–18, 32; 22:4; seed of copulation, KJV). Semen is mentioned in the section of Leviticus that deals with bodily discharges.

SENAAH [sih NAY uh]—the head of a family that returned from the captivity. According to Ezra, 3,630 of the “people of Senaah” returned to Jerusalem with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:35). The name Senaah is probably identical with HASSENAAH, an ancestor of the people who built the Fish Gate in the rebuilt wall of Jerusalem (Neh. 3:3). This group may also be the same as the SENUAH (Neh. 11:9; Hassenuah, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV)—a clan of the tribe of Benjamin.

SENEH [SEE nuh]—one of two sharp rocks in the mountain pass between Michmash and Gibeah. Jonathan and his armorbearer climbed this pass to attack the Philistines (1 Sam. 14:4). Seneh was the southern rock, while BOZEZ was the northern rock. These rocks were situated along the Wadi es-Suweinit, about 11 kilometers (7 miles) northeast of Jerusalem.

SENIR [SEE nur]—the Amorite name for Mount Hermon, the highest mountain in the Anti-Lebanon range. Senir was famous for its fir trees used in shipbuilding (Ezek. 27:5). Psalm 29:6 uses the name Sirion to refer poetically to this mountain.

SENNACHERIB [suh NAK uh rib] (Sin [the moon-god] has compensated me with brothers)—an Assyrian king (705–681 B.C.) noted for his military campaigns against the southern kingdom of Judah. He was the son and successor of Sargon II and was succeeded by his son Esarhaddon in 681 B.C. after a reign of 24 years.

Upon taking the throne, Sennacherib led his armies south, removing Merodach-Baladan (Is. 39:1), also called Berodach-Baladan (2 Kin. 20:12), from the throne of Babylon and reducing the city to ruins in 689 B.C. Sennacherib then marched his army east against the Kassites in the Zagros mountain range.

Sennacherib's military campaigns in the west have caused a great deal of controversy because his account and the Bible's (2 Kin. 18:13—19:37; 2 Chr. 32:1–22; Is. 36:1—37:38) describe the events so differently. Earlier, during the military campaign of Sargon II in 711 B.C., King Hezekiah of Judah (reigned 716–687 B.C.) had been asked to join the rebellion against the Assyrians, but he refused. During the reign of Sennacherib, Hezekiah went against the wise counsel of the prophet Isaiah and joined a coalition against Assyria led by Tyre and Egypt.

Sennacherib began his western military campaign in 701 B.C., when Tyre and Sidon refused to pay tribute to Assyria. He marched down the Phoenician coast and captured Sidon and many other cities. The cities that refused to submit were destroyed. After the Assyrians defeated the Egyptians, they laid siege to LACHISH, which, along with Jerusalem, was one of the bestfortified cities in Judah. The account of his campaign in Judah is found in 2 Kings 18:13—19:37 and Isaiah 36–37. After a cruel siege, Lachish fell. Sennacherib sacked forty-six towns and villages in Judah, taking away thousands of prisoners and much spoil. Hezekiah refused Sennacherib's demand to surrender Jerusalem (2 Kin. 18:17; Is. 36:1–21), but he did agree to pay 300 talents of silver and thirty talents of gold in tribute.

The siege of Jerusalem proved unsuccessful for two reasons: (1) Hezekiah protected his water supplies (2 Kin. 20:20) and (2) Hezekiah steadfastly trusted in God rather than in material and military support from his allies (2 Kin. 19:32–34).

Although Sennacherib, in his description of the siege of Jerusalem, boasts of shutting up Hezekiah "like a bird in a cage," he makes no reference to the outcome of the siege—evidence that his campaign failed. The Bible narrates what happened in dramatic words: "And it came to pass on a certain night that the angel of the LORD went out, and killed in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when people arose early in the morning, there were the corpses—all dead" (2 Kin. 19:35).

The ancient Greek historian Herodotus tells of a similar incident, although he sets the scene in Egypt: "Thousands of fieldmice swarmed over them during the night, and ate their quivers, their bowstrings, and the leather handles of their shields, so that on the following day, having no arms to fight with, they abandoned their position and suffered severe losses during their retreat."

The "fieldmice" mentioned by Herodotus may have been plague-carrying rodents, instruments of the Lord's judgment. An army of mice bearing the "Black Death" (the bubonic plague) would have been more than a match for the mighty Assyrian army.

After the destruction of his army, Sennacherib returned to Nineveh. While worshiping in the temple of his god Nisroch, he was assassinated by his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer. He was succeeded by Esarhaddon, another son (2 Kin. 19:36–37; Is. 37:37–38).

SENSUAL—pertaining to or given to life according to one's physical appetites and desires rather than in obedience to the Holy Spirit (James 3:15; Jude 19).

SENTRY (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SENUAH [suh NOO uh]—a Benjamite whose son Judah was second in command in Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 11:9; Hassenuah, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV). Also see SENAAH.

SEORIM [see OHR im]—a priest in the fourth division of priests in the sanctuary at Jerusalem in David's time (1 Chr. 24:8).

SEPARATION—the state of being set apart; avoidance of contact. The NKJV uses the word "separation" only in Numbers 6:4–21, in a passage describing the law of the Nazirites. During the days of their vow, they were to drink no wine nor eat anything produced by the grapevine; they were to place no razor upon their head; and they were to separate themselves from all dead bodies (Num. 6:1–21).

The KJV uses the word "separation" in several other places (Lev. 12:2, 5; Num. 19:9–21; Ezek. 42:20). Various defilements rendered people unclean and separated them from the sanctuary or from association with others: childbearing (Leviticus 12), leprosy (Leviticus 13–14), certain bodily discharges (Leviticus 15), and contact with a corpse (Num. 19:11–22).

SEPHAR [SEH fur]—an unknown city or "mountain of the east" (Gen. 10:30). Some scholars believe Sephar may have been the ancient city of Zhafar between the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf.

SEPHARAD [seh FA rid]—a place where Jewish exiles lived during the days of the prophet Obadiah (Obad. 20). Sepharad may be SARDIS, in the province of Lydia in western Asia Minor, or perhaps Sparta in Greece. Spanish Jews today are called Sephardim, which causes speculation that Sepharad may have been in Spain.

SEPHARVAIM [seh fur VAY uhm]—a city conquered by Assyria, and one of the places from which Sargon II sent people to colonize Samaria, capital of Israel (2 Kin. 17:24, 31; Is. 36:19). Some scholars believe Sepharvaim was the Syrian city of Sibraim, situated between Hamath and Damascus (Ezek. 47:16). Other scholars believe the reference in Ezekiel is to two Babylonian cities.

SEPHARVITES [SEH fur vights]—natives or inhabitants of SEPHARVAIM. These people apparently sacrificed their children to their gods, even after being resettled by the king of Assyria in Samaria (2 Kin. 17:31).

SEPTUAGINT [SEP too uh jint] (see BIBLE VERSIONS AND TRANSLATIONS).

SEPULCHER, SEPULCHRE (see TOMB).

SERAH [SEE ruh]—a granddaughter of Jacob by Zilpah, the handmaid of Jacob's wife Leah (Gen. 46:17; 1 Chr. 7:30). Serah was a daughter of Asher (Num. 26:46; Sarah, KJV). With her four brothers she went into Egypt with Jacob.

SERAIAH [sih RAY uh]—the name of several men in the Old Testament:

1. David's scribe, or secretary (2 Sam. 8:17). Also see SHEVA.
2. A son of Azariah and chief priest at Jerusalem when this city was captured by Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon (2 Kin. 25:18). Nebuchadnezzar executed Seraiah at Riblah. Seraiah was the father of Jehozadak, the grandfather of the high priest Jeshua; he was an ancestor of Ezra.
3. A son of Tanhumeth, from Netophah in southern Judah (Jer. 40:8).
4. A son of Kenaz, brother of Othniel, and father of Joab (1 Chr. 4:13–14).
5. A Simeonite, son of Asiel (1 Chr. 4:35).
6. A priest who returned with Zerubbabel from the captivity (Ezra 2:2). In Nehemiah 7:7, he is called Azariah.
7. A priest and clan leader who signed the new covenant under Nehemiah (Neh. 10:2). He is probably the same as Seraiah No. 6.
8. A son of Hilkiah (Neh. 11:11). A priest, Seraiah was a ruler of the house of God after the captivity.

9. A chief priest who returned from Babylon with Zerubbabel (Neh. 12:1). He may be the same person as No. 6.
10. A priest, son of Azriel. Seraiah was sent by Jehoiakim to capture Jeremiah and his secretary-scribe, Baruch (Jer. 36:26).
11. A son of Neriah. Seraiah was the "quartermaster" who accompanied Zedekiah, king of Judah, to Babylon (Jer. 51:59, 61; staff officer, NIV).

SERAPHIM [SER uh fim] (fiery, burning ones)—angelic or heavenly beings associated with Isaiah's vision of God in the temple when he was called to his ministry (Is. 6:1–7). This is the only place in the Bible that mentions these mysterious creatures. Each seraph had six wings. They used two to fly, two to cover their feet, and two to cover their faces (Is. 6:2). The seraphim flew about the throne on which God was seated, singing His praises as they called special attention to His glory and majesty.

These beings apparently also served as agents of purification for Isaiah as he began his prophetic ministry. One placed a hot coal against Isaiah's lips with the words, "Your iniquity is taken away and your sin is purged" (Is. 6:7).

SERED [SIR ed]—the oldest son of Zebulun (Gen. 46:14) and founder of the SARDITES (Num. 26:26; Seredites, NIV, NRSV).

SEREDITES [SIR eh dights]—a form of SARDITES.

SERGEANT (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SERGIUS PAULUS [SUR jee uhs PAW luhs]—the Roman proconsul, or governor, of Cyprus who was converted to Christianity when the apostle Paul visited that island on his first missionary journey, about A.D. 46 (Acts 13:7). Luke describes Sergius Paulus as an intelligent man. This Sergius Paulus may have been the same man as L. Sergius Paulus, a Roman official in charge of the Tiber during the reign of the emperor Claudius (ruled A.D. 41–54).

SERMON ON THE MOUNT—the title given to Jesus' moral and ethical teachings as recorded in Matthew 5 through 7.

The Sermon on the Mount was brought on by Jesus' growing popularity (Matt. 4:25). At first, the people were attracted to Him because of His healing ministry. When Jesus began to teach, the people remained to hear what He said. They also were impressed with the authority with which He taught. Although many people heard the Sermon on the Mount, it was primarily directed to Jesus' followers or disciples.

The central theme of the Sermon is summarized in Matthew 5:48, "You shall be perfect just as your Father in heaven is perfect." The word "perfect" does not refer to sinless or moral perfection. It means completeness, wholeness, maturity—being all that God wants a person to be. It is a goal that is never attained in our earthly life, but it continuously challenges us to greater achievements for the Lord.

The Beatitudes (5:2–12). Jesus began His teachings by stating the way to happiness. The word "blessed" is appropriately translated as "happy." The poor in spirit, those who recognize their spiritual poverty, will attain the kingdom of heaven. Those who mourn, who are truly sorry for their sins, will receive comfort. The meek, those who have disciplined strength, will inherit the earth. The quest for righteousness will be satisfied. The merciful will receive mercy; the pure in heart will see and understand the heart of God; the peacemakers shall be called God's children. And those who endure persecution for doing God's commands will inherit the kingdom of God.

Influence (5:13–16). Jesus used two symbols, salt and light, to describe the influence that His followers should have on the world. Salt has a preserving quality, and light clears away the darkness. Salt and light bring about noticeable changes, but they are seldom noticed themselves.

Righteousness (5:17–48). Jesus did not come to give a new law. He came to uncover the intentions of the law and the prophets and to bring them to their fullest expression. He gave five illustrations of what it means to fulfill the law: (1) Murder is wrong, but so is the hateful attitude that leads to it. (2) The act of adultery is wrong, but so is the lustful look. (3) The marriage relationship should be permanent. (4) We should be honest in our words and deeds. (5) We should love our enemies. Each of these righteous admonitions was contrasted with the legalistic teachings of the Pharisees.

Giving, Praying, and Fasting (6:1–18). Good religious practices may be done for the wrong reasons. Jesus called attention to three: (1) Almsgiving, kind deeds to help the needy, should be done, but not for the personal recognition the giver might receive; (2) prayer should be offered, but not in a way to seek the recognition of others; (3) fasting should be a sincere spiritual experience and not an attempt to impress others with our goodness and spirituality.

Material Resources (6:19–24). Jesus used three concepts—treasures, light, and slavery—to remind us that we cannot serve two masters. We must have singleminded devotion to the values of God's kingdom if we are to be His loyal followers.

Anxiety (6:25–34). Worldly people are those who live only for material things: food, drink, clothes. Jesus' disciples are to place God's kingdom first and to live with faith that God will provide for their needs.

Judgment: Right and Wrong (7:1–6). Disciples should not be judgmental in their attitude toward others. They should continuously judge themselves in terms of God's expectations.

Persistence (7:7–12). Jesus challenged His followers to maintain persistence in their commitment to God, to ask God to empower them to persevere, and to take the initiative to treat other people as they would like to be treated.

Choosing (7:13–14). Jesus stated that there are two lifestyles, or roads, that a person can take. The broad road leads to destruction; the narrow road leads to life. Every person is on one or the other of these two roads.

Performance (7:15–23). As Jesus neared the end of His teachings, He began to focus on the need to put His teachings into action. He warned against following false teachers and instructed His followers to put truth into action.

Life's Foundation (7:24–27). Although much attention has been focused on the two houses in this story, Jesus emphasized the builders. The difference between the two builders is the obedience of one and the other's failure to obey God's command.

SERPENT—a crawling reptile, or snake, often associated in the Bible with temptation, sin, and evil.

A serpent appears early in the Scriptures in the account of the temptation and fall of Adam and Eve (Genesis 3). Satan, or the Devil, is the Tempter; but he made his approach to Eve by speaking through a serpent, which is described as "more cunning than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made" (Gen. 3:1). Because of the serpent's role in the temptation, God pronounced a curse on the animal, sentencing it to crawl on its belly and eat dust "all the days of your life" (Gen. 3:14).

This account of the temptation and fall of humankind helps us understand many of the references to serpents throughout Scripture. Serpents are mentioned under various names (for example, asp, cobra, and viper), and they pose a life-threatening danger to people because of their poisonous bite (Deut. 8:15). They are also mentioned as instruments of God's wrath upon rebellion or apostasy (Jer. 8:17). The best-known incident of this kind happened during the wilderness journey to the Promised Land when "the LORD sent fiery serpents among the people" (Num. 21:5–6). Wicked and rebellious persons are addressed as "serpents" or are compared to serpents because of their destructive influence (Ps. 58:4; Matt. 3:7).

In line with the theme of Genesis 3:15, redemption is sometimes described as the destruction or subduing of serpents (Is. 27:1; Mic.

7:17). In Numbers 21, the threat of the fiery serpents was overcome when, at the command of the Lord, Moses fashioned a serpent of bronze and put it on a pole: “And so it was, if a serpent had bitten anyone, when he looked at the bronze serpent, he lived” (Num. 21:9). The bronze serpent raised up by Moses in the wilderness serves as a symbol of the saving power of Christ on the cross (John 3:14). By His crucifixion and resurrection, Christ has crushed the head of the serpent (Gen. 3:15; Rom. 16:17–20).

The prophet Isaiah used the taming of the serpent to describe the peace that will prevail in the messianic kingdom (Is. 11:8; 65:25). And Jesus gave His disciples “authority to trample on serpents and scorpions” (Luke 10:19).

SERPENT, BRONZE (see BRONZE SERPENT).

SERPENT CHARMERS (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SERPENT WELL—a well, fountain, or spring between the Valley Gate and the Refuse (Dung) Gate in Jerusalem in Nehemiah’s time (Neh. 2:13; dragon well, KJV; Dragon’s Spring, NRSV).

SERUG [SIR uhg]—a son of Reu and the father of Nahor (Gen. 11:20–23). Serug is listed as an ancestor of Jesus in Luke’s genealogy (Luke 3:35; Saruch, KJV).

SERVANT (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES; SLAVE, SLAVERY).

SERVANT OF THE LORD—a theological concept in the Book of Isaiah that points forward to Jesus the Messiah. Passages in the book that express this idea are Isaiah 42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–9; and 52:13—53:12.

But even before Isaiah’s time, the concept of God’s servant was deeply rooted in the history of the nation of Israel. The term “servant” was frequently applied to those who performed some service, task, or mission for the Lord. It was applied to Abraham (Gen. 26:24), Isaac (Gen. 24:14), Jacob (Ezek. 28:25), and Moses (Deut. 34:5), as well as many of the prophets of the Old Testament.

But in the “Servant Songs” of his book, the prophet Isaiah used the phrase “Servant of the Lord” in a specialized or messianic sense. The Servant of the Lord not only would encounter and accept suffering in the course of His work, but He also would realize that His vicarious suffering would become the means by which He would give His life as a ransom for others.

The New Testament writers are unanimous in stating that the Servant of the Lord is a messianic figure and that Jesus is that Servant. The first of Isaiah’s “Servant Songs” (Is. 42:1–4) was quoted by Matthew as being fulfilled in Jesus (Matt. 12:18–21). The Book of Acts emphasized the suffering and hostility the Messiah underwent to accomplish redemption (Acts 3:13, 26; 4:27, 30). In these passages Jesus is referred to as “His Servant Jesus” (Acts 3:13, 26) and “Your holy Servant Jesus” (Acts 4:27, 30). The violent treatment suffered by Jesus was precisely what the “Servant Songs” of Isaiah prophesied about God’s Servant. Jesus saw His role as that of a servant (Mark 10:45, in fulfillment of Isaiah 53:10–11). He taught His followers to view His mission, and theirs as well, in terms of servanthood. Thus the Servant of the Lord, spoken of by Isaiah the prophet, is preeminently Jesus Himself.

According to Isaiah, the Servant of the Lord would “bring forth justice to the Gentiles” (Is. 42:1) and establish “justice in the earth” (Is. 42:4). He would bring Jacob back to the Lord (Is. 49:5) and would be “a light to the Gentiles” (Is. 49:6). He would not hide His face from shame and spitting (Is. 50:6). He would be the sin-bearing Servant, giving His life for the redemption of His people (Is. 52:13—53:12).

Through Jesus the ancient mission given by God to Abraham—to be a blessing to all the families of the earth (Gen. 12:1–3)—is now entrusted to the church. The church’s responsibility is to preach the gospel to Jew and Gentile, bondslave and freeman, male and female, rich and poor. To be a servant of God is to serve Him continually (Dan. 6:20). As His mission was that of a servant, so must ours be (Mark 10:42–45).

SERVICE, SERVITUDE (see SLAVE, SLAVERY).

SETH [seth] (appoint, compensate)—the third son of Adam and Eve, born after Cain murdered Abel (Gen. 4:25–26; 5:3–8; Sheth, KJV). The father of Enosh (or Enos) and an ancestor of Jesus Christ (Luke 3:38), Seth died at the age of 912.

SETHUR [SEE thur]—a spy, representing the tribe of Asher, sent by Moses to spy out the land of Canaan (Num. 13:13).

SETTINGS OF GOLD—sockets or cavities in which gems were set (Ex. 28:11; ouches, KJV). The Hebrew word translated “settings of gold” comes from a verb meaning to weave; thus, it probably refers to a filigree setting—woven gold wire or thread. Most of the Old Testament references deal with the gold settings of the engraved stones in the EPHOD, or breastplate, of the high priest (Ex. 28:13–14).

SEVEN CHURCHES OF ASIA—the seven Christian congregations to which John addressed special messages in the Book of Revelation. From the Isle of Patmos John wrote seven messages to “the seven churches which are in Asia” (Rev. 1:4, 11). These seven messages, found in Revelation 2–3, were to Ephesus, the Loveless Church (2:1–7); Smyrna, the Persecuted Church (2:8–11); Pergamos, the Compromising Church (2:12–17); Thyatira, the Corrupt Church (2:18–29); Sardis, the Dead Church (3:1–6); Philadelphia, the Faithful Church (3:7–13); and Laodicea, the Lukewarm Church (3:14–22).

The Roman province of Asia included more churches than these seven. Why did John single them out?

One theory is that these seven cities may have been centers of seven postal districts. These seven churches all stand on the great circular road that formed a rough circle around the west central part of the Roman province of Asia. As such, these seven sites served as good centers of communication for the surrounding districts. Letters in the first century had to be handwritten, and a letter sent to one church would be passed on to be read by Christians in other congregations.

The letters to the seven churches called for the Christians to repent of sin and return to faithfulness and good works; encouraged them to stand firm for Christ against the temptations, trials, and persecutions of the Roman Empire; and promised specific rewards to the martyrs who faced death without denying Christ.

SEVEN, SEVENTH—a sacred number to the ancient Hebrew people. The word is used often in the Bible to symbolize perfection, fullness, abundance, rest, and completion. This number was also considered holy or sacred by other cultures of the ancient world. It may have received its significance from the seven "planets" visible in the heavens—the sun and moon and the five planets known to the ancients. Or perhaps it was chosen because the lunar month is composed of four periods of about seven days each.

The first mention of the number seven occurs in Genesis 2:2–3. God created the world in six days, but on the seventh day he rested from His work. The fourth of the Ten Commandments states, "Remember the Sabbath day [that is, the seventh day], to keep it holy" (Ex. 20:8).

The number seven also had a ritual importance to the Hebrews. Several of the religious acts of the Old Testament received a sevenfold repetition, for instance, the sprinkling of blood (Lev. 4:6), or the dipping of Naaman the leper in the Jordan River (2 Kin. 5:10, 14). Periods of time composed of seven units are often used in the Old Testament (Gen. 2:2; Dan. 9:25). Within visions and dreams, the number seven often plays a prominent part. Pharaoh dreamed of two herds composed of seven animals each. These symbolized the seven years of famine and the seven years of plenty, as did the two groups of seven heads of grain (Gen. 41:1–36).

In the New Testament, Jesus cast seven demons out of Mary Magdalene (Luke 8:2) and fed the 4,000 with seven loaves of bread and a few small fish (Matt. 15:32–39). The number seven appears frequently in the Book of Revelation.

Also see NUMBER; SEVENTY.

SEVEN WORDS FROM THE CROSS—the seven utterances of Jesus from the cross:

1. "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they do" (Luke 23:34). Jesus taught that we should forgive those who sin against us. How appropriate that His first words from the cross should be words of forgiveness.
2. "Assuredly, I say to you, today you will be with Me in Paradise" (Luke 23:43). As He hung on the cross, Jesus certainly did not appear to be a king. Yet, what faith the repentant thief displayed when he asked, "Lord, remember me when You come into Your kingdom" (Luke 23:42). Jesus' reply was good news indeed to this dying sinner.
3. "Woman, behold your son! . . . Behold your mother!" (John 19:26–27). In spite of His grief and pain, Jesus continued to think of others. His earthly father, Joseph, probably had died by this time. Jesus asked his beloved disciple, John, to take care of His mother, Mary.
4. "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? . . . My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" (Matt. 27:46; Mark 15:34). These words came from Jesus' lips about 3 p.m., after He had hung on the cross for nine hours. Death was near, and Jesus was feeling the pain and loneliness that sin causes. But the sin in this case was our sin and not His. To express His anguish and grief, Jesus quoted the opening words of Psalm 22, using the same words that King David had used a thousand years earlier (Ps. 22:1).

5. "I thirst!" (John 19:28). The Old Testament had prophesied that Jesus would suffer for the sins of the world. In His death, that prophecy was being fulfilled. Jesus suffered spiritual torment as well as physical agony as He hung on the cross. His spirit thirsted to win the spiritual battle against evil while His body thirsted for water.
6. "It is finished!" (John 19:30). The word translated "finished" shows clearly that Jesus' victory has been achieved. It carries the idea of perfection or fulfillment. God's plan of salvation had been accomplished through Jesus' sacrifice on the cross.
7. "Father, into Your hands I commend My spirit" (Luke 23:46; also see Ps. 31:5; Matt. 27:50; Mark 15:37). Jesus did not die a failure. He died a victorious Savior. He finished His work triumphantly and entrusted His spirit to God His Father.

SEVENTH MONTH FESTIVAL (see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS).

SEVENTY—a number of great significance in the Bible because it is a multiple of the number seven, considered a sacred number by the Hebrew people (Ex. 1:1–5). Seventy is the number of persons of the house of Jacob (Gen. 46:27). And when Jacob (Israel) died, he was mourned seventy days (Gen. 50:3). Seventy elders of Israel accompanied Moses to Mount Sinai (Ex. 24:1). Psalm 90:10 says that the days of our lives are 70. Jesus emphasized that we should forgive others not seven times but "up to seventy times seven" (Matt. 18:22). Also see SEVEN.

SEVENTY, THE—in Luke's Gospel, a group of seventy disciples sent out by Jesus to heal the sick and preach the good news of the kingdom of God (Luke 10:1–17; seventy-two, NIV). Jewish writings often spoke of the Gentile nations as numbering seventy. Among the four gospels, Luke is known as the one with a universal, worldwide view. By speaking of the seventy disciples, Luke probably wanted to show that the gospel of Christ is not only for Jews, the twelve tribes of Israel, but also for the Gentiles, the “seventy nations” of the world.

SEVENTY WEEKS—a term that the prophet Daniel used in his prophecy of the future (Dan. 9:24–27). In Daniel’s vision, God revealed that the captivity of His people in Babylon would come to an end and they would be restored to glory as a nation within a period of seventy weeks of seven years each—or a total of 490 years.

Scholars interpret this seventy weeks prophecy in different ways. Some insist that Daniel is not a book of prophecy at all but that he was writing about events that had already happened. Others believe the 490-year period came to a grand climax with Jesus’ death on the cross. Still others believe this prophecy is yet to be fulfilled in the future.

Also see DANIEL, BOOK OF.

SEVENTY YEARS (see CAPTIVITY).

SEX—the concept of male and female; pertaining to the reproductive function of human beings; sexual intercourse.

Although the idea and fact of sex repeatedly appear in Scripture, the word “sex” never appears (KJV and NKJV). The NKJV, however, does refer often to “sexual immorality” (Matt. 5:32; Acts 15:20) and to the “sexually immoral” (1 Cor. 5:9–10; Rev. 22:15).

God created mankind in His own image as “male and female” (Gen. 1:27; 5:2). The act of sexual intercourse is part of God’s first command to mankind: “Be fruitful and multiply; fill the earth” (Gen. 1:28). Although the primary reason for intercourse was procreation, God created mankind with a capacity to enjoy sex.

The Old Testament records legislation that sought to restrict premarital and extramarital sex (Ex. 20:14; Lev. 20:10). In addition, homosexuality, bestiality, and incest were condemned (Lev. 18:6–18, 22–23). Distinctions between the sexes also involved clothing; articles of clothing of the opposite sex were not to be worn (Deut. 22:5).

Sexual intercourse within marriage was considered “honorable” (Heb. 13:4). According to the Old Testament, however, a couple was to refrain from sex during the wife’s monthly menstruation (Lev. 15:19–24). In addition, if the husband was involved in war, he was to abstain until God gave them the victory (1 Sam. 21:4; 2 Sam. 11:11). In the New Testament, the apostle Paul stated that since sex is such an integral part of marriage, the spouse always should be sexually available. If the couple refrains from intercourse, the decision should be mutual, should be for a spiritual reason, and should be only for a stated period (1 Cor. 7:1–5).

Sex played an important role in the religious beliefs and practices of the Canaanites. For instance, Baal was considered to be the god of fertility, and both male and female prostitutes were kept at the temples dedicated to Baal. Through sexual intercourse with these prostitutes, the Canaanites believed they could influence Baal to give them large herds, abundant crops, and many children. While these beliefs attracted a number of the Israelites (1 Kin. 14:24), these practices were condemned by those who continued to believe that the Lord alone was God and that only He was the giver of life (1 Kin. 15:12).

A number of sexual taboos are declared in Scripture. The Jewish people believed it wrong for sexual organs to be exposed. For instance, Noah's son placed a covering over his father to conceal his nakedness, and David was denounced by his wife for dancing immodestly before the Lord (2 Sam. 6:20).

The vocabulary dealing with sexual matters is often veiled in Scripture. The male sexual organs are variously referred to as a man's "feet" (Ex. 4:25), "nakedness" (Ex. 28:42), "privy member" (Deut. 23:1, KJV), and "unpresentable parts" (1 Cor. 12:23). The female sexual organs are called "nakedness" (Lev. 18; 20) and "feet" (Deut. 28:57). To "become one flesh" (Gen. 2:24), to "know" (Gen. 4:1), and to "lie with" (Lev. 18:20, 22) are euphemisms for sexual intercourse.

SHAALABBIN [shay AHL uh bin]—an Amorite city in the territory of Dan (Josh. 19:42), also called Shaalbim (Judg. 1:35). The Amorites did not give up this city until long after the Israelites had settled the area (Judg. 1:35). Shaalabbin was about 24 kilometers (15 miles) west of Jerusalem.

SHAALBIM [shay AHL bim]—a form of SHAALABBIN.

SHAALBON [shay AHL bahn]—the home of Eliahba, one of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 23:32). It may be the same place as SHAALABBIN.

SHAALBONITE [shay AHL bahn ight]—a native or inhabitant of SHAALBON (2 Sam. 23:32).

SHAALIM [SHAY uh lim]—an unidentified region, perhaps in the territory of Ephraim or Benjamin, where Saul searched for his father's donkeys (1 Sam. 9:4; Shalim, KJV).

SHAAPH [SHAY af]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A descendant of Caleb through Jahdai (1 Chr. 2:47).
2. A son of Caleb by his concubine Maachah (1 Chr. 2:49).

SHAARAIM [shay uh RAY uhm] (two gates)—the name of two cities in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the lowland hills of Judah (1 Sam. 17:52), also called Sharaim (Josh. 15:36).
2. A Simeonite city in southern Judah (1 Chr. 4:31). It is identified with Tell el-Far'ah, southeast of Gaza.

SHAASHGAZ [shay ASH gaz]—a servant (chamberlain, KJV; eunuch, NIV) in the household of Ahasuerus, king of Persia (Esth. 2:14).

SHABBETHAI [SHAB uh thigh] (born on the Sabbath)—a Levite mentioned in connection with Ezra's order to the people to divorce their foreign wives (Ezra 10:15). Shabbethai probably was the same man who helped the people understand the Law after Ezra read it to them (Neh. 8:7).

SHACHIA [shah KIGH uh]—a form of SACHIAH.

SHACKLE—a metal clamp that holds the ankle or wrist of a prisoner or captive. The demon-possessed man of Gadara, whom Jesus healed, had broken the shackles with which he was bound (Mark 5:4; Luke 8:29; fetters, KJV, chains and shackles, NRSV).

SHADDAI [SHAD eye] (see GOD, NAMES OF).

SHADOW—the dark figure cast by a solid object when it intercepts the rays from a source of light. Shadow symbolizes the brevity of life and the impermanent nature of things (Eccl. 6:12); physical weakness and death (Job 14:2); God's protection of His people (Ps. 17:8); and the Messiah's blessings—"as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land" (Is. 32:2). The Bible also uses the word to contrast the Jewish and Christian periods. The Jewish regulations, rituals, and rules are "a shadow of things to come, but the substance is of Christ" (Col. 2:17).

SHADRACH [SHAD rak] (command of [the god] Aku)—the name that Ashpenaz, the chief of Nebuchadnezzar's eunuchs, gave to Hananiah, one of the Jewish princes who were carried away to Babylon in 605 B.C. (Dan. 1:7; 3:12–30).

Shadrach was one of the three faithful Jews who refused to worship the golden image that King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon set up (Dan. 3:1). Along with his two companions, MESHACH and ABED-NEGO, Shadrach was "cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace" (Dan. 3:11, 21). But they were protected by a fourth "man" in the fire (Dan. 3:25), and they emerged without even the smell of fire upon them (Dan. 3:27).

SHAGE, SHAGEE [SHAY gih]—forms of SHAGEH.

SHAGEH [SHAY gih]—the father of one of David's mighty men (1 Chr. 11:34; Shage, KJV, REB; Shagee, NASB, NIV, NRSV). Shageh may be the same person as Agee (2 Sam. 23:11).

SHAHAR [SHAY hahr] (dawn)—a word used in the title of Psalm 22 (KJV). In Canaanite mythology, Shahar was the god of dawn. He and his twin brother, Shalem (the god of sunset), were sons of El, the chief god of the Canaanites.

SHAHARAIM [shay uh RAY uhm] (double dawn)—a Benjamite whose nine sons became the heads of tribes (1 Chr. 8:8–11).

SHAHAZIMAH [shay uh ZIH muh]—a northern border town of the territory of Issachar, between Mount Tabor and Beth Shemesh (Josh. 19:22; Shahazumah, NIV, NRSV, NASB).

SHAHAZUMAH [shay uh ZOO muh]—a form of SHAHAZIMAH.

SHALEM [SHAY luhm] (peaceful, safe)—according to the KJV, a city near Shechem (Gen. 33:18). Most modern versions, however, do not regard the word as a proper name. They translate the word for Shalem as "peace" or "safely."

SHALIM [SHAY lim]—a form of SHAALIM.

SHALISHA [SHAL uh shuh] (a third part)—a region through which Saul passed when searching for his father's donkeys (1 Sam. 9:4; Shalishah, NASB). It was probably the district of Baal Shalisha (2 Kin. 4:42) in the Plain of Sharon.

SHALISHAH [SHAL uh shuh]—a form of SHALISHA.

SHALLECHETH GATE, SHALLEKETH GATE (see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE).

SHALLUM [SHAL uhm] (the requited one)—the name of thirteen or fourteen men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Jabesh (2 Kin. 15:10). Shallum became the sixteenth king of Israel by assassinating Zechariah and claiming the throne.
2. The husband of Huldah the prophetess in the days of Josiah, king of Judah (2 Chr. 34:22).
3. A son of Sismai (1 Chr. 2:40–41).
4. A son of King Josiah of Judah (1 Chr. 3:15). Shallum is better known by the name JEHOAHAZ, given to him when he became king of Judah after his father's death. After reigning three months in Jerusalem, Jehoahaz was deposed by Pharaoh Necho and replaced by Eliakim (whose name was changed to Jehoiakim), another of the sons of Josiah. Pharaoh Necho took Jehoahaz to Egypt, where he died.
5. A son of Shaul (1 Chr. 4:24–25). Shallum was the father of Mibsam and a descendant of Simeon.
6. A son of Zadok (1 Chr. 6:12–13). Shallum was the father of Hilkiah and an ancestor of Ezra (Ezra 7:2).
7. A son of Naphtali (1 Chr. 7:13), also called Shillem (Gen. 46:24).

8. Chief of the gatekeepers of the sanctuary in David’s time (1 Chr. 9:17).
9. The father of Jehizkiah (2 Chr. 28:12).
10. A Levite and gatekeeper of the sanctuary in Ezra’s time (Ezra 10:24). During the captivity, Shallum had married a pagan wife and was told to divorce her.
11. A son of Bani (Ezra 10:42). During the captivity, Shallum had married a pagan wife and was told to divorce her.
12. A son of Hallohesh (Neh. 3:12). A leader in Jerusalem, Shallum helped Nehemiah repair the city wall.
13. The uncle of Jeremiah the prophet (Jer. 32:7). He may be the same person as No. 2.
14. The father of Maaseiah (Jer. 35:4).

SHALLUN [SHAL uhn] (the requited one)—a ruler of part of Mizpah who repaired the Fountain Gate at Jerusalem (Neh. 3:15; Shallum, NRSV, NASB).

SHALMAI [SHAL migh]—a temple servant whose descendants returned to Jerusalem after the captivity (Ezra 2:46). He is also called Salmai (Neh. 7:48) and Shamlai (Ezra 2:46, REB, NRSV).

SHALMAN [SHAL muhn]—an unidentified king or conqueror mentioned by the prophet Hosea (Hos. 10:14). This name may be an abbreviated form of Shalmaneser V, king of Assyria. But other scholars believe it refers to a ruler of Moab or even to Shallum, a king of Israel.

SHALMANESER [shal muh NEE zur]—the name of five Assyrian kings, only one of whom is mentioned in the Bible. Another is important because he mentions an Israelite king in an inscription:

1. Shalmaneser I (1274–1245 B.C.), son of Adadnirari I, restored Assyrian power after it had been overshadowed by the Hittites and by the kingdom of Mitanni.
2. Shalmaneser II (1031–1020 B.C.), son of Ashurnasirpal I. Although he was a weak king, he took action to strengthen Assyria after a period of domination by Aramean tribes.
3. Shalmaneser III (859–824 B.C.), son of Ashurnasirpal III, and first Assyrian king to come into direct contact with Israel. He is not mentioned in the biblical narrative about the reign of Ahab of Israel (2 Chr. 18:1–34), but he does appear in an inscription that recounts a coalition composed principally of Syria (Hadadezer of Damascus, the biblical Ben-Hadad II) and of Israel ("Ahab, the Israelite"), a coalition that Shalmaneser met and presumably defeated at the famous Battle of Qarqar, on the Orontes River (853 B.C.). According to this inscription, Ahab supplied 2,000 chariots and 10,000 men.

This reference to Ahab is one of the most important nonbiblical archaeological references to a person mentioned in Scripture. The famous Black Obelisk mentions "Jehu, son of Omri" and describes him paying tribute to Shalmaneser. Jehu or his representative is portrayed on his hands and knees, kissing the ground at the feet of Shalmaneser. Jehu's Israelite servants are portrayed as bearing bars and vessels of precious metals, extended as presents for the Assyrian king.

4. Shalmaneser IV (783/82–772 B.C.), son of Adad-nirari III, and the first of three weak rulers who preceded the reign of Tiglath-Pileser III.
5. Shalmaneser V (727–722 B.C.), the son and successor of Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.; called "Pul" in 2 Kin. 15:19). He is the only Assyrian king named Shalmaneser mentioned in the Bible (unless SHALMAN of Hosea 10:14 is a contraction of the name). Shalmaneser received tribute from Hoshea, king of Israel. Then he imprisoned Hoshea and besieged Samaria for three years (2 Kin. 17:3–6; 18:9–10), until it fell in 722 B.C. This marked the end of the northern kingdom of Israel.

SHAMARIAH [sham uh RIGH uh] (whom the Lord guards)—a son of Rehoboam (2 Chr. 11:19; Shemariah, NRSV, NIV, REB, NASB).

SHAME—a negative emotion caused by an awareness of wrongdoing, hurt ego, or guilt. In the Bible, the feeling of shame is normally caused by public exposure of one’s guilt (Gen. 2:25; 3:10). Shame may also be caused by a hurt reputation or embarrassment, whether or not this feeling is due to sin (Ps. 25:2–3; Prov. 19:26; Rom. 1:16).

Joseph, not wishing to shame Mary, desired to divorce her secretly (Matt. 1:19). Ultimately, God will expose the guilt of the ungodly, putting them to shame (Dan. 12:2). God also puts to shame the wise of the world by exposing their guilt before Him and by choosing to save the foolish of this world by a “foolish” message (1 Cor. 1:18–31).

Finally, our Lord Jesus suffered the shame of the cross because He was put on public display as the recipient of God's wrath (2 Cor. 5:21; Heb. 12:2).

SHAMED [SHAH med]—a form of SHEMED.

SHAMER [SHAY mur] ([God is] preserver)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

SHAMGAR [SHAM gahr]—the third judge of Israel (Judg. 3:31) who delivered the nation from oppression by the Philistines. Using an ox goad as a weapon, Shamgar killed 600 Philistines who were terrorizing the main travel routes. SHAMHUTH [SHAM huhth]—a captain of David's army who commanded 24,000 men (1 Chr. 27:8). Shamhuth is probably the same person as Shammah the Harodite (2 Sam. 23:25) and Shammoth the Harorite (1 Chr. 11:27).

SHAMIR [SHAY mur]—the name of two cities and a man in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the hill country of Judah (Josh. 15:48), identified with Khirbet Somerah, about 21 kilometers (13 miles) southwest of Hebron.

3. A son of Agee the Hararite (2 Sam. 23:11). Shammah was one of David's mighty men.
4. Another Hararite and also one of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 23:33). He may be the same person as No. 3.
5. A Harodite and another of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 23:25). He is also called Shammoth the Harorite (1 Chr. 11:27).

SHAMMAI [SHAM eye]—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Onam and great-grandson of Judah (1 Chr. 2:28, 32).
2. A son of Rekem, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:44–45).
3. A descendant of Judah (1 Chr. 4:17).

SHAMMOTH [SHAM ahth]—one of David's mighty men (1 Chr. 11:27). Shammoth is probably the same person as Shamhuth (1 Chr. 27:8) and Shammah the Harodite (2 Sam. 23:25).

SHAMMUA [sha MOO uh]—the name of four men in the Old Testament:

1. The representative of the tribe of Reuben among the twelve spies who explored the land of Canaan (Num. 13:4).

SHAPHAM [SHAY fuhm]—a chief of the tribe of Dan (1 Chr. 5:12).

SHAPHAN [SHAY fuhn] (rock badger)—the name of several men in the Old Testament:

1. A scribe during the reign of King Josiah of Judah who helped Josiah carry out his religious reform (2 Kin. 22:3–14).
   He is probably the same person as Shaphan No. 2, 3, or 4.
2. The father of Ahikam (2 Kin. 22:12). A chief officer in Josiah's court during the prophet Jeremiah's time, Ahikam protected Jeremiah from death (Jer. 26:24).
3. The father of Elasah, who carried a letter from Jeremiah to the Babylonian captives (Jer. 29:3).
4. The father of Gemariah (Jer. 36:10–12). It was in the house of Gemariah that Baruch the scribe read Jeremiah's scroll to the people during the reign of Jehoiakim.

SHARAI [SHAR eye]—a Jew who divorced his pagan wife after the captivity (Ezra 10:40).

SHARAIM [shuh RAY uhm] (two gates)—a city in the lowland hills of Judah, apparently west of Azekah and Socoh (or Sochol) and southwest of Jerusalem (Josh. 15:36; Shaaraim, NASB, REB, NIV, RSV). It probably is Tell Zakariyeh in the Valley of Elah.

SHARAR [SHAH rur]—the father of Ahiam the Hararite (2 Sam. 23:33). Sharar is also called Sacar (1 Chr. 11:35; Sachar, KJV, NRSV).

SHARD—a fragment of broken pottery (Is. 30:14; sherd, KJV; fragment, NIV). When archaeologists excavate sites where ancient peoples lived, they usually find such broken pieces of clay pottery.

SHAREZER [shuh REE zur] (protect the king)—a son of the Assyrian king Sennacherib (2 Kin. 19:37). In 681 B.C. Sharezer killed his father and fled to the land of Ararat.

Also see SHEREZER.

SHARON [SHAR uhn]—the name of a plain and a district in the Old Testament:

1. The chief coastal plain of Palestine, running approximately 80 kilometers (50 miles) from south of the Carmel Mountain range to the vicinity of Joppa (1 Chr. 27:29). This lowland region was extremely fertile and was known for its agriculture (Is. 33:9).

   In ancient times, an important caravan route ran along the Plain of Sharon, connecting Egypt, Mesopotamia, and Asia Minor. The flowers of Sharon (Is. 35:2), particularly the rose of Sharon (Song 2:1), were beautiful. Sharon is also called Lasharon (Josh. 12:18).
2. A district in Transjordan, the area east of the Jordan River, occupied by the tribe of Gad (1 Chr. 5:16).

1. The founder of a tribal family known as the Shaulites (Num. 26:13).
2. A Levite descended from Kohath (1 Chr. 6:24).

SHAVEH [SHAY vuh]—a valley near Jerusalem where Abraham was met by the king of Sodom and by Melchizedek after the defeat of Chedorlaomer (Gen. 14:17–18). This valley was the place where Absalom erected a monument to himself, a pillar that came to be called "Absalom's Monument" (2 Sam. 18:18).

SHAVEH KIRIATHAIM [SHAY vuh kir ih uh THAY uhm]—a plain in Transjordan near the city of Kiriathaim of Moab (Gen. 14:5). The Emim were defeated on this plain by Chedorlaomer in the days of Abraham and Lot.

SHAVING—removal of the beard or other body hair, as with a razor. Among the Israelites, beards were common, especially in early times when they lived as wandering shepherds. But the Egyptians shaved their faces closely and preferred short hair. The Greeks and Romans also preferred the clean-shaven style.

Shaving was a part of the ritual by which a Levite was set apart for priestly service (Num. 8:7). Shaving was also required for those unclean with plague (Lev. 13:33) or leprosy (Lev. 14:8).

Refusing to allow a man-made instrument to touch their heads, a group of Hebrews known as the NAZIRITES kept their hair uncut until a particular vow had been fulfilled (Num. 6:18; Acts 18:18). But if Nazirites touched a dead body, they were required to cut their hair immediately (Num. 6:9).

Shaving the head was often a sign of mourning (Deut. 14:1; Job 1:10). Although priests did not follow this practice, “They shall not make any bald place on their heads, nor shall they shave the edges of their beards nor make any cuttings in their flesh” (Lev. 21:5).

SHAVSHA [SHAV shuh]—the scribe, or state secretary, in David’s administration (1 Chr. 18:16; secretary, NIV, NASB, NRSV).

Also see SHEVA.

SHEAF—stalks of grain gathered and tied into a bundle after harvesting. The reapers either gathered the cut grain into sheaves themselves (Ruth 2:7) or left it to be collected by the sheafbinder (Jer. 9:22). The sheaves were then gathered into stacks (Ex. 22:6) and loaded into carts (Amos 2:13). The law directed that some stray stalks and sheaves should be left in the field for the poor and hungry to glean (Deut. 24:9).

The first sheaves of harvest were to be given as a firstfruit offering to the Lord (Lev. 23:10). The grain was threshed from the remainder for grinding into flour.

SHEAL [SHEE uhl]—a Jew who divorced his foreign wife after the captivity (Ezra 10:29).

SHEALTIEL [shee AL tih uhl] (I asked from God)—a son of Jehoiachin (Jeconiah), king of Judah (1 Chr. 3:17; Matt. 1:12; Salathiel, KJV). Shealtiel apparently was an ancestor of Zerubbabel, the Jewish governor of Jerusalem after the captivity. Shealtiel may have been Zerubbabel’s father (Ezra 3:2), or his uncle or grandfather (1 Chr. 3:17–19). In the New Testament, Shealtiel is listed in the genealogy of Jesus Christ (Luke 3:27; Salathiel, KJV). He was a descendant of David through his son Nathan (2 Sam. 5:14).

SHEAR-JASHUB [shee ur JAY shuhb] (a remnant shall return)—a symbolic name given to a son of the prophet Isaiah in the days of King Ahaz of Judah (Is. 7:3). The name emphasized Isaiah’s prophecy that a remnant of the nation would return to the land after their years of captivity in a foreign country (Is. 10:21–22).

SHEARIAH [shee uh RIGH uh]—a son of Azel, of the tribe of Benjamin (1 Chr. 8:38). Sheariah was a descendant of King Saul.

SHEARING HOUSE—KJV form of BETH EKED OF THE SHEPHERDS (2 Kin. 10:12–14).

SHEATH—the carrying case for a knife, dagger, or sword. The Bible mentions the sheaths of Goliath (1 Sam. 17:51; scabbard, NIV), Joab (2 Sam. 20:8), and Simon Peter (John 18:11), and symbolically the sheath from which God's sword is drawn in judgment (1 Chr. 21:27; Ezek. 21:3–5, 30).

SHEBA [SHEE buh] (oath)—the name of five men, a city, and a country in the Old Testament:

1. A descendant of Ham (Gen. 10:7). Sheba's descendants are believed to have settled on the shores of the Persian Gulf.
2. A son of Joktan of the family of Shem, whose descendants have been traced to southern Arabia (Gen. 10:28).
3. A grandson of Abraham (Gen. 25:3). Sheba was a son of Jokshan, who was a son of Abraham by Keturah. Sheba and his descendants probably lived in Edom or northern Arabia.
4. A city of the territory of Judah assigned to the tribe of Simeon (Josh. 19:2). Some modern translations of the Bible (NKJV, NIV, NASB) equate Sheba with Beersheba.
5. A son of Bichri, of the tribe of Benjamin (2 Sam. 20:1–22). After the death of Absalom, Sheba led a short-lived rebellion against King David and was forced to retreat inside the city of Abel of Beth Maachah. This city was then besieged by Joab, the captain of David's army. In order to save their city, the people of Abel cut off Sheba's head and threw it over the wall to Joab (2 Sam. 20:1–22).
6. A mountainous country in southwest Arabia (1 Kin. 10:1–13), identified as the land of "the queen of the South" (Luke 11:31) who came to investigate Solomon's fame and wisdom. By means of its international trade and control of trade routes through its land, Sheba developed into a strong commercial power. Its trade specialties were perfumes and incense. Camel caravans followed routes northward across its dry regions, bearing their precious commodities for the royal courts of the countries bordering the Mediterranean Sea. Thus the Queen of Sheba's visit to Solomon may have been motivated also by her interest in trade and in the unhindered movement of her caravans into the large territory under Solomon's control.

7. A chief of the tribe of Gad who lived in Gilead in Bashan during the reign of Jeroboam II of Israel (1 Chr. 5:13).

SHEBA, QUEEN OF—a queen who came to visit King Solomon. She tested him with "hard questions" and found that Solomon's wisdom and prosperity exceeded his fame (1 Kin. 10:1–13). Some scholars believe she represented the region of Ethiopia, south of Egypt. But others insist she ruled among the tribes of southwestern Arabia. In the New Testament, Jesus referred to her as "the queen of the South," who "came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon" (Matt. 12:42).

Also see SHEBA.

SHEBAH [SHEE buh] (seven, oath)—the famous well from which Beersheba derived its name; it was dug by Isaac's servants near Beersheba in Judah (Gen. 26:33; Shibah, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV).

SHEBAM [SHEE bam]—a city east of the Jordan River in the Plain of Moab near Heshbon. After the conquest of the land of Canaan, Shebam was assigned to the tribes of Reuben and Gad (Num. 32:3; Sebam, NASB); but it fell back under Moabite control. It probably was the same place as Shibmah (Num. 32:38) and Sibmah (Josh. 13:19).

SHEBANIAH [sheb uh NIGH uh]—the name of four men in the Old Testament:

1. A Levite trumpeter who helped transport the ARK OF THE COVENANT to the temple in Jerusalem (1 Chr. 15:24).
2. A Levite who helped at the Feast of Tabernacles after the captivity (Neh. 9:4–5).
3. A priestly family that lived one generation after the captivity (Neh. 12:14). A representative of this family sealed the covenant with Nehemiah (Neh. 10:4).

4. A priest who sealed the covenant with Nehemiah after the captivity (Neh. 10:12).

SHEBARIM [SHEB uh rim]—a place where the Israelites fled after their defeat at Ai (Josh. 7:5).

SHEBAT [SHEE bat]—the fifth month of the civil year in the Hebrew calendar (Zech. 1:7; Sebat, KJV).
Also see CALENDAR.

SHEBER [SHEE bur]—a son of Caleb and a descendant of David (1 Chr. 2:48).

SHEBNA [SHEB nuh]—a high official in the court of Hezekiah, king of Judah (2 Kin. 18:18, 26; Shebnah, NRSV; 18:37; 19:2; Is. 36:3, 11, 22; 37:2). Shebna is described as a scribe (NKJV, NASB), a secretary (NIV, NRSV), and an adjutant-general (REB), probably indicating he held an office similar to secretary of state. As the administrator of Hezekiah's palace, Shebna was a man of great influence. But the prophet Isaiah predicted he would fall from power and die as an outcast because of his pride (Is. 22:15–25). An inscription bearing what appears to be his name was found on the lintel of a tomb near Jerusalem.

SHEBUEL [shih BOO uhl]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A descendant of Gershon (1 Chr. 23:16). Shebuel was ruler of the tabernacle treasury in the time of David (Shubael, 1 Chr. 24:20).
2. A son of Heman the musician (1 Chr. 25:4; Shubael, 1 Chr. 25:20).

SHECANIAH [shek uh NIGH uh] (the Lord is a neighbor)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A priest whose descendants were organized for special service during David's reign (1 Chr. 24:11).
2. A priest during the reign of King Hezekiah of Judah (2 Chr. 31:15). Shecaniah helped distribute the temple offering among the priests.
3. The descendant of a family, perhaps that of Shecaniah No. 1, that returned from the captivity (Ezra 8:3; Shechaniah, KJV).

SHECHANIAH [shek uh NIGH uh] (the Lord is a neighbor)—the name of six men in the Old Testament:

1. The head of a family in the lineage of David (1 Chr. 3:21–22).
2. A person who returned with Ezra from the captivity (Ezra 8:5).
3. A son of Jehiel (Ezra 10:2). Shechaniah divorced his foreign wife after the captivity.
4. The father of Shemaiah (Neh. 3:29). Shemaiah was the keeper of the East Gate in Jerusalem in Nehemiah's time.
5. The father-in-law of Tobiah the Ammonite (Neh. 6:17).
6. A chief priest who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Neh. 12:1–3).

SHECHEM [SHEK uhm] (shoulder)—the name of a city and three men in the Bible:

1. An ancient fortified city in central Canaan and the first capital of the northern kingdom of Israel (see Map 4, B–3). Its name means "shoulder," probably because the city was built mainly on the slope, or shoulder, of Mount Ebal. Situated where main highways and ancient trade routes converged, Shechem was an important city long before the Israelites occupied Canaan. The city has been destroyed and rebuilt several times through the centuries.

   Shechem is first mentioned in connection with Abraham's journey into the land of Canaan. When Abraham eventually came to Shechem, the Lord appeared to him and announced that this was the land He would give to Abraham's descendants (Gen. 12:6; Sichem, KJV). This fulfilled God's promise to Abraham at the time of his call (Gen. 12:1–3). In response, Abraham built his first altar to the Lord in Canaan at Shechem (Gen. 12:7). Because of this incident, Shechem is an important place in the religious history of the Hebrew people.

   Upon his return from Padan Aram, Jacob, a grandson of Abraham, also built an altar to the Lord at Shechem (Gen. 33:18–20). This marked Jacob's safe return to the Promised Land from the land of self-imposed exile. According to Jewish tradition, Jacob dug a deep well here (John 4:12). Jacob's Well is one of the few sites visited by Jesus that is identifiable today.

After the Israelites conquered Canaan under the leadership of Joshua, an altar was built at Shechem. Its building was accompanied by a covenant ceremony in which offerings were given and the blessings and curses of the Law were recited (Josh. 8:30–35). This was done in obedience to the command of Moses, given earlier in Deuteronomy 27:12–13. Because Shechem was situated between Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim, this covenant ceremony took on a symbolic meaning. To this day Mount Gerizim is forested while Mount Ebal is barren. Thus the blessings of faithfully keeping the covenant were proclaimed from Mount Gerizim, while the curses of breaking the covenant were proclaimed from Mount Ebal.

At the close of his life, Joshua gathered the tribes of Israel at Shechem. Here he reviewed God's gracious dealings with Israel and performed a covenant-renewing ceremony on behalf of the nation. He closed his speech with his famous statement, "Choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve . . . but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD" (Josh. 24:15).

The significance of Shechem in Israel's history continued into the period of the Divided Kingdom. Rehoboam, successor to King Solomon, went to Shechem to be crowned king over all Israel (1 Kin. 12:1). Later, when the nation divided into two kingdoms, Shechem became the first capital of the northern kingdom of Israel (1 Kin. 12:25). Samaria eventually became the permanent political capital of the Northern Kingdom, but Shechem retained its religious importance. It apparently was a sanctuary for worship of God in Hosea's time in the eighth century B.C. (Hos. 6:9).

At Shechem (sometimes identified with Sychar) Jesus visited with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's Well (John 4). The SAMARITANS had built their temple on Mount Gerizim, where they practiced their form of religion. To this outcast woman of a despised sect Jesus offered salvation. This is a vivid example of the truth that the gospel of Christ is meant for all people.

2. A son of Hamor, a Hivite prince (Gen. 33:19; 34:1–31). Shechem raped Dinah, the daughter of Jacob. When Shechem later wanted to marry her, Dinah's half-brothers, Simeon and Levi, agreed to give Shechem permission only if "every male of you is circumcised" (Gen. 34:15). When Hamor, Shechem, and their followers agreed to the procedure, Simeon and Levi killed them before the circumcision operations had healed.

3. A son of Gilead and grandson of Manasseh (Num. 26:31; Josh. 17:2).

SHEEP BREEDER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SHEEPCOTE—KJV word for SHEEPFOLD.

SHEEPFOLD—a pen or shelter for protecting sheep (Num. 32:16; sheepcote, KJV). A permanent sheepfold was enclosed by stone walls. The New Testament portrays Jesus as the Good Shepherd who protects His sheep (John 10:7–30).

SHEKINAH [shuh KIGH nuh] (dwelling)—a visible manifestation of the presence of God (also spelled Shechinah and Shekhinah). Although the word is not found in the Bible, it occurs frequently in later Jewish writings. It refers to the instances when God showed Himself visibly, as, for example, on Mount Sinai (Ex. 24:9–18) and in the Holy of Holies of the tabernacle and in Solomon’s temple. The Shekinah was a luminous cloud that rested above the altar in the place of worship and lit up the room. When the Babylonians destroyed the temple, the Shekinah glory vanished. There was no Shekinah in the temples rebuilt later under Zerubbabel and Herod.

He was one of eight people who entered Noah's ark and survived the Flood (Gen. 7:7, 13). Shem was married at the time of the Flood but had no children. After the Flood he became the father of Elam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud, and Aram (usually identified by scholars as Persia, Assyria, Chaldea, Lydia, and Syria, respectively). Thus Shem was the ancestor of the people of the ancient Near East generally, and the Hebrews specifically.

SHEMA, THE [shuh MAH] (hear thou)—the Jewish confession of faith that begins, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the LORD is one!" (Deut. 6:4). The complete Shema is found in three passages from the Old Testament: Numbers 15:37–41, Deuteronomy 6:4–9 and 11:13–21.

The first of these passages stresses the unity of God and the importance of loving Him and valuing His commands. The second passage promises blessing or punishment according to a person's obedience of God's will. The third passage commands that a fringe be worn on the edge of one's garments as a continual reminder of God's laws. These verses make up one of the most ancient features of worship among the Jewish people. Jesus quoted from the Shema during a dispute with the scribes (Mark 12:28–30).

SHEOL [SHE ole]—in Old Testament thought, the abode of the dead. Sheol is the Hebrew equivalent of the Greek Hades, which means “the unseen world.”

Sheol was regarded as an underground region (Num. 16:30, 33; Amos 9:2), shadowy and gloomy, where disembodied souls had a conscious but dull and inactive existence (2 Sam. 22:6; Eccl. 9:10). The Hebrew people regarded sheol as a place to which both the righteous and unrighteous go at death (Gen. 37:35; Ps. 9:17; Is. 38:10; death, NIV; Deut. 32:22; the realm of death, NIV), a place where punishment is received and rewards are enjoyed. Sheol is pictured as having an insatiable appetite (Is. 5:14; Hab. 2:5; the grave, NIV.

However, God is present in sheol (Ps. 139:8; hell, NKJV; the depths, NIV). It is open and known to Him (Job 26:6; Prov. 15:11; Death, NIV). This suggests that in death God’s people remain under His care, and the wicked never escape His judgment. Sheol gives meaning to Psalm 16:10. Peter saw the fulfillment of this messianic psalm in Jesus’ resurrection (Acts 2:27). Also see HELL.

SHEPHER, MOUNT [SHEE fur]—a mountain encampment of the Israelites during their wanderings in the wilderness (Num. 33:23–24; Shapher, KJV, REB).

SHEPHERD—a person who takes care of sheep. Figuratively, the Old Testament pictures God as Israel’s Shepherd-Leader (Ps. 80:1; Ezek. 34:14). The New Testament reveals Jesus as the Good Shepherd who gave His life for His sheep. When He said, “I am the good shepherd” (John 10:11), Jesus linked His own divine nature with one of the most ordinary occupations in Israel.

Abel is the first shepherd mentioned in the Bible (Gen. 4:2). Kings who led Israel (Jer. 6:3; 49:19) and certain ministers (Jer. 23:4) are also called shepherds.

The sons of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob herded sheep (Gen. 13:7; 26:20; 30:36). Rachel was a shepherdess (Gen. 29:3). David (2 Sam. 5:2; Ps. 78:70–72), Moses (Ex. 3:1), and Amos (Amos 1:1) found herding to be excellent preparation for future leadership roles.

Jesus’ life exemplifies these leadership traits. Jesus knows each of His sheep intimately (John 10:3–5). Sometimes several shepherds will pen their sheep together in a cave or a sheepfold at night. The next morning the shepherds call out to their own sheep. Each sheep knows its shepherd’s voice and responds immediately. Even in a large flock, one individual sheep will run to its shepherd when its own pet name is called. “My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me,” (John 10:27).

Sheep are curious but dumb animals, often unable to find their way home even if the sheepfold is within sight. Knowing this fault, shepherds never take their eyes off their wandering sheep (Ps. 32:8). Often sheep will wander into a briar patch or fall over a cliff in the rugged Palestinian hills. The shepherds tenderly search for their sheep and carry them to safety (Luke 15:6).

In water-hungry Syria and Palestine, shepherds have always had to search diligently for water, sometimes for hours every day. Sheep must be watered daily. The shepherd might find a bubbling stream for the sheep that are always on the move and needing fresh pastures every day

(Ps. 23:2). An old well with a quiet pool or trough close by might provide the water (Gen. 29:7; 30:38; Ex. 2:16). Often the shepherd carries a small pail, patiently filling it many times for the thirsty sheep who cannot reach the available water.

A trusted shepherd also provides loving protection for the flock. Shepherds on the Bethlehem hillsides still use a sling, made of goat's hair or leather and immortalized by David against Goliath (1 Sam. 17:49). At times shepherds will throw their rods at a stubborn, straying sheep that refuse to hear their voice. At other times shepherds gently nudge the strays with the end of a six-foot staff, crooked at one end. Both the rod and the staff work together to protect the sheep (Ps. 23:4).

The presence of the shepherd also offers comfort to the flock. David recognized this in Psalm 23. Sheep are content merely to be in the same field with their shepherd; Christians are comforted by the very presence of the Lord. This thought is especially comforting when darkness overshadows the believer. Jesus is our Door; nothing can touch our lives without touching Him first. This is a perfect picture of shepherds, who literally become the living door of the sheepfold. They curl up in the door or in the entrance of a cave. They put their bodies between the sleeping sheep and ravenous animals or thieves.

One day Jesus the Chief Shepherd will return, gather His whole flock into one fold, and divide the sheep from the goats (Matt. 25:31–33). Until that time, Jesus continues His search for every lost sheep (Matt. 18:12–14). His sheep are to yield themselves to Him for His useful service until, at last, they "will dwell in the house of the LORD forever" (Ps. 23:6).

In a conflict between the people of Ephraim, who lived west of the Jordan, and the people of Gilead, who lived east of the Jordan, the Gileadites were victorious. Led by the judge Jephthah, the Gileadites seized the fords of the Jordan, where they met the fleeing invaders and asked them to say "Shibboleth."

Because of a difference in dialect, an Ephraimite "could not pronounce it right" (v. 6), saying "Sibboleth" instead. Betrayed by his own speech, the unlucky Ephraimite was then killed at the fords of the Jordan by Jephthah and his men.

SHILOAH, WATERS OF [shigh LOE uh] (sent)—a water channel in Jerusalem (Is. 8:6), carrying water from the spring of Gihon to the lower pool of SILOAM.

SHILOH [SHIGH loe]—a city in the territory of Ephraim which served an Israelite religious center during the days before the establishment of the United Kingdom (see Map 3, B–3). Shiloh was “north of Bethel, on the east side of the highway that goes up from Bethel to Shechem, and south of Lebonah” (Judg. 21:19). This pinpoints Khirbet Seilun, about 16 kilometers (10 miles) northeast of Bethel.

At Shiloh the tabernacle received its first permanent home, soon after the initial conquest of Canaan by the children of Israel (Josh. 18:1). This established Shiloh as the main sanctuary of worship for the Israelites during the period of the judges (Judg. 18:31). Here the last seven tribes received their allotments of land (Josh. 18:8–10).

Hannah prayed for a son at Shiloh (1 Sam. 1:3, 11). God granted her request by giving her SAMUEL. The TABERNACLE, with the ARK OF THE COVENANT, was still located in Shiloh during Samuel’s early years as priest and prophet (1 Sam. 1:9; 4:3–4). However the ark was captured by the Philistines because God had forsaken Shiloh as the center of worship (Ps. 78:60).

When the ark was returned to the Israelites by the Philistines, it was not returned to Shiloh (2 Sam. 6:2–17). Archaeologists have determined that Khirbet Seilun (Shiloh) was destroyed about 1050 B.C.

After the ark was moved to another city, Shiloh gradually lost its importance. This loss was made complete when Jerusalem was established as capital of the kingdom. After the division of the kingdom, Jeroboam established worship centers at Dan and Bethel; but Ahijah, the prophet of the Lord, still remained at Shiloh (1 Kin. 14:2, 4). From here, Ahijah pronounced the doom of Jeroboam’s rule (1 Kin. 14:7–16).

In the days of the prophet Jeremiah, Shiloh was in ruins (Jer. 7:12, 14), although some people continued to live on the site of this former city (Jer. 41:5). Shiloh became an inhabited town again in the days of the Greeks and Romans several centuries later.

SHILONI [shih LOE nigh]—the father of Zechariah (Neh. 11:5; the Shilonite, NRSV, NASB; a descendant of Shelah, NIV). Zechariah was an ancestor of Maaseiah, one of the Jewish princes who lived in Jerusalem in Ezra's time.

SHILONITE [SHIH loe night]—a name given to Ahijah the prophet, who was a native or resident of Shiloh (1 Kin. 11:29).

The references to Shilonites in Nehemiah 11:5 (NRSV) and 1 Chronicles 9:5 probably should be to Shelanites, to indicate a descendant of Shelah (Gen. 38:5; Num. 26:20).

SHILSHAH [SHIL shuh] (triad)—a son of Zophah, of the tribe of Asher (1 Chr. 7:37).

He insulted David when the king was fleeing from his own son, Absalom. When David finally won the struggle for the throne, Shimei repented. David accepted Shimei's apology and promised to let him live. After David's death, his son and successor, Solomon, would not allow Shimei to go beyond Jerusalem's walls. Shimei obeyed Solomon's command at first, but eventually he left the city and was promptly executed at Solomon's command.
3. One of David's officers. Shimei remained loyal to David and Solomon when Adonijah attempted to seize the throne (1 Kin. 1:8).

4. One of Solomon’s twelve supply officers who provided food for the king’s household (1 Kin. 4:18).

Also see ACROSTIC.

SHINAB [SHIGH nab] ([the god] Sin is my father)—the king of Admah defeated by Chedorlaomer and his allies in the time of Abraham (Gen. 14:2).

SHINAR [SHIGH nahr]—the land of southern Mesopotamia, later known as Babylonia or Chaldea, through which the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers flow (Gen. 10:10; 11:2). Secular historians sometimes refer to the area as SUMER.

Nimrod's kingdom in Shinar consisted of the cities of Babel (Babylon), Erech (Uruk), Accad (Akkad or Agade), and Calneh (Gen. 10:10). It was here that the Tower of Babel was situated (Gen. 11:2).

In the days of Abraham, Amraphel, a king of Shinar, was involved in the attack and defeat of five kings of Canaan, including the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 14:1, 9).

In about 605 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took the temple vessels from Jerusalem to Shinar (Dan. 1:2), from where Isaiah had predicted God's people would return to Israel (Is. 11:11). After the return from the captivity, the prophet Zechariah saw a vision of the removal of a woman from Israel to Shinar (Zech. 5:11). Some scholars associate this woman with the great harlot, "Babylon the great" (Rev. 17:5), a symbol of imperial Rome.

SHION [SHIGH uhn]—a border city in the territory of Issachar (Josh. 19:19; Shihon, KJV). It may be Sirin, about 23 kilometers (14 miles) southeast of Mount Tabor.

SHIPHRAH [SHIF ruh]—one of two Hebrew midwives (also see PUAH) in Egypt at the time of the birth of Moses. These women defied Pharaoh's command to kill all the male babies of the Hebrew people (Ex. 1:15).

SHIPHTAN [SHIF tuhn] (judging)—the father of Kemuel (Num. 34:24). Kemuel assisted Moses in dividing the land west of the Jordan River among the tribes of Israel.

SHIPMASTER—the person responsible for the navigation of a ship (Rev. 18:17; sea captain, REB, NIV). The shipmaster often was the owner of the ship he piloted.

SHIPS—seagoing vessels used mainly for carrying cargo in Bible times. The Jews were never a seafaring people. For them, the sea was a barrier and danger to be feared. Note the hope expressed in Revelation 21:1. In the heavenly realm there will be "no more sea." Yet both the Old and New Testaments do contain many references to ships and shipping.

By about 2800 B.C., the nations of Egypt and Babylonia, as well as Assyria, were involved in traffic on the Nile and the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. From these rivers they eventually ventured into the Persian Gulf and the Mediterranean Sea. But the most venturesome sailors and international traders were the Phoenicians, who worked out of the port cities of Acco, Tyre, Sidon, and Byblos.

The judgment on Tyre recorded in Ezekiel 27, while coming a thousand years after the beginning of Tyrian trade, reflects the wealth this trade provided. Verses 12 to 25 list many nations that Tyre traded with and the many cargoes they brought. Verses 5 to 11 describe the various parts of the ships and the materials from which they were made.

Merchant Ships. Merchant ships were of varying size. The smaller coastal traders were from 19 to 22 meters (50 to 60 feet) long and 5 to 7 meters (15 to 20) feet wide. The larger ones that sailed the open water were frequently well over 38 meters (100 feet) long—sometimes as long as 66 meters (180 feet)—and up to 19 meters (50 feet) wide. These ships were usually made of fir, pine, or cedar boards over a hardwood frame. The whole structure was held together with hardwood dowels.

Early Egyptian ships had no central keel. They were strengthened by a heavy rope fastened to the bow and stern and supported on three or four vertical posts stretching throughout the ship and kept taut with wooden levers. Keeled hulls appear to have been introduced by the Phoenicians.

Cargo ships usually had little space for passengers. Occasionally they would carry voyagers either on the open deck or in the hold with the cargo (Jon. 1:5). The biblical "ships of Tarshish" (2 Chr. 9:21, KJV) were these merchant vessels, large enough to carry considerable cargo and sturdy enough to survive the stormy open sea.

Egyptian ships usually had a single mast and a large rectangular sail, while Phoenician ships were usually double-masted with a large square sail on the mainmast and a smaller square sail on the foremast. Since the wind could be contrary, these ships were also equipped with banks of oars, although Phoenician ships in the 13th century B.C. still relied exclusively on sail power and used oars only for steering.

Egyptian cargo vessels, since they were primarily river ships, made use of oars much earlier than those of the Phoenicians. Raised platforms at the bow for the navigator and the rear for the helmsman were usual features. Steering was done with one or two large paddles over the stern.

Warships. Warships (Is. 33:21) were of similar construction but of very different proportions, being anywhere from 38 to 55 meters (100 to 150 feet) long but less than 7 meters (20 feet) wide. This ratio of length to width with as many as 50 oars in two rows on each side made for a very fast ship. Some of the older vessels were powered by five banks of oars on each side, but these were difficult to maneuver in the heat of battle. These multiple rows of oars soon gave way to three banks and eventually two.

Except for the Egyptian craft, warships usually had single or double rams built into the prow at the water line. With two or even three decks to carry armed soldiers, these war vessels could be formidable instruments of destruction.

Warships as well as cargo vessels frequently had carved or painted figureheads of animals, plants, or pagan gods on the bow and stern.

Israelite Ships. Israel did not have a naval fleet except for a short time during the reign of Solomon. As part of the great expansion in international trade during his reign, Solomon contracted with Hiram of Tyre to build the nation of Israel a fleet of cargo and naval vessels and to provide sailors to man them (1 Kin. 9:26–28; 10:22; 2 Chr. 8:18; 9:21).

Solomon's maritime trade took his ships down the coast of Africa and as far east as India. This trade probably continued, although on a smaller scale, until the fleet was wrecked in fulfillment of the prophecy of Eliezer (2 Chr. 20:37).

The fishing vessels used on the Sea of Galilee in Jesus' time were large enough to accommodate all the disciples (Matt. 8:23–27), but small enough to be in danger of sinking under the weight of a large catch of fish. "And they came and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink" (Luke 5:7).

It appears from some biblical accounts (Mark 6:48) that they did not have sails. Luke 5:2, John 6:17–22, and John 21:8 distinguish between "boats" and "little boats." A remarkably well-preserved boat from the time of Christ was recently discovered in the mud at the bottom of the Sea of Galilee.

Paul's Shipwreck. Paul's trip to Rome recorded in Acts 27 is one of the most complete accounts of a sea voyage from ancient times. The account indicates that the ship they traveled on was carrying a cargo of grain (v. 38) from Alexandria to Rome. In addition to the cargo, it carried a total of 276 passengers and crew, including the guard under the centurion Julius (vv. 1, 37).

The ship was probably a double-master (vv. 17, 40), with possibly an extra topsail on the main mast. Four anchors were carried in the stern (v. 29). An additional two or more anchors were carried on the prow (v. 30). A small rowboat (vv. 16, 30) was standard equipment for use when the ship was in harbor. Normally it was towed behind the ship. But it would be brought on board during storms to keep it from being destroyed or swamped (v. 16).

Navigation depended on visual sightings of the sun or stars (v. 20). The depth of the water was checked by a sounding line (v. 28).

The heavy seas threatened to break up the ship. The hull was strengthened by passing ropes around the beam and tightening them with wooden levers. Ships may have carried net-like webs for use in such emergencies, although ordinary ropes could be used if needed. A similar arrangement is known from Egyptian ships as early as 2500 B.C.

When the ship finally did run aground, the passengers escaped by using broken pieces of the ship as life preservers (v. 44). The dangers of winter navigation are clearly indicated in this account. But God’s providence in rescuing Paul and the other people on the ship also comes through clearly in the graphic narrative.

SHIPWRECK—the destruction or loss of a ship at sea. The apostle Paul declared that he had been involved in three shipwrecks (2 Cor. 11:25). The same word is also used figuratively of an irretrievable loss or a complete failure by those who renounced Christianity (1 Tim. 1:19).

SHISHAK [SHIGH shak]—a Libyan war chieftain who became pharaoh of Egypt (reigned from about 940 B.C. to about 915 B.C.). Shishak (Sheshonk in Egyptian) is known for his expedition against the southern kingdom of Judah after the United Kingdom split into two nations following Solomon’s death about 920 B.C.

In about 926 B.C., in the fifth year of the reign of King Rehoboam (reigned about 931–913 B.C.), Shishak invaded Judah and captured many of its fortified cities (1 Kin. 14:25). He then marched against Jerusalem, Rehoboam’s capital city, forcing Rehoboam to pay tribute and plundering the treasures of the temple and Rehoboam’s palace (1 Kin. 14:25–26).

The Egyptian account of Shishak’s invasion of Judah was recorded on the wall of the temple of the Egyptian god Amon at Karnak (ancient Thebes), in southern Egypt. More than 100 cities captured or destroyed by Shishak are listed, including Adoraim, Aijalon, and Socoh. Cities from the northern kingdom of Israel, such as Shechem, Beth Shean, and Megiddo, are also listed on this monument as being captured by Shishak.

2. A son of Hur (1 Chr. 2:50, 52). Shobal was the founder of Kirjath Jearim.
3. A descendant of Judah (1 Chr. 4:1–2). He may be the same person as No. 2.

SHOPHAN [SHOW fan]—a fortress city east of the Jordan River (Num. 32:35).

SHOPHAR [show FAR] (see RAM'S HORN).

SHORE—land at the edge of a body of water. The word “shore” is used to describe the number of descendants that God promised to Abraham: “As the sand which is on the seashore” (Gen. 22:17). This speaking of people as grains of sand to indicate a host beyond counting is used vividly to describe the battle between Israel and the Canaanites (Josh. 11:4) and Saul’s first major battle with the Philistine army (1 Sam. 13:5). Solomon’s “largeness of heart,” or the breadth and scope of his knowledge, is also compared to the sand on the seashore (1 Kin. 4:29).

SHOSHANNIM [show SHAN em] (see MUSIC).

SHOULDER—the place on the human body where the arm is joined to the trunk. The shoulder is spoken of both literally and figuratively in the Bible. Abraham placed a waterskin on Hagar’s shoulder before she departed for the Wilderness of Beersheba (Gen. 21:14). Rebekah bore a pitcher of water on her shoulder (Gen. 24:15, 45–46).

People who “shrugged their shoulders” also “stiffened their necks” and “stopped their ears so that they could not hear” (Neh. 9:29; Zech. 7:11). Such people refused the responsibility of keeping the law, preferring to rebel against God. The word “shoulder” is also used figuratively of destruction (Ezek. 29:7), servitude (Is. 10:27), deliverance from bondage (Ps. 81:6), and security (Deut. 33:12).

The New Testament uses the Greek word for shoulder only twice. Jesus said that the scribes and the Pharisees “bind heavy burdens, hard to bear, and lay them on men’s shoulders” (Matt. 23:4). In His parable of the lost sheep, Jesus described the joy of the shepherd when the sheep is found: “He lays it on his shoulders, rejoicing” (Luke 15:5).

SHOULDER PIECE—the shoulder straps that joined the front and back halves of the EPHOD, an apron-like garment worn by the high priest of Israel. The shoulder straps were engraved with the names of the twelve tribes of Israel (Ex. 28:5–14). Also see PRIEST, HIGH.

SHOVELS—ceremonial instruments used by priests in the tabernacle (Ex. 27:3) and in the temple (Jer. 52:18) for placing coals on the altar and for removing the fat-soaked ashes. Archaeologists who excavated Megiddo found a 22-inch bronze shovel with a rectangular shape and a long, thin handle.

SHOWBREAD—holy or consecrated bread placed in the sanctuary of the tabernacle or temple every Sabbath to symbolize God's presence and His provision for His people. The ritual always involved twelve loaves of bread, representing the twelve tribes of the nation of Israel. It was called showbread (shewbread, KJV; bread of the Presence, NIV) because it was kept continually before God's presence in the tabernacle.

The Levites descended through the family of Kohath were in charge of preparing the showbread each week. On each Sabbath they placed fresh bread on the table of showbread and removed the week-old bread from the sanctuary (1 Chr. 9:32). The older bread was eaten by the priests; whatever was left was burned with incense as an offering to the Lord (Lev. 24:5–9).

When David fled from King Saul, he and his men came to Nob, where the tabernacle was located. David and his men were hungry, but Ahimelech, the high priest, had no ordinary food. So David asked for the "holy bread," the showbread that had been taken from the Holy Place (1 Sam. 21:1–6).

When the Pharisees criticized Jesus' disciples for picking and rubbing heads of grain to eat as they walked through the fields on the Sabbath, Jesus reminded them of what David had done (Mark 2:25–26). In this situation, Jesus and His disciples were also hungry and in need of nourishment. This illustrated His teaching that human need often was more important than a legalistic keeping of the law. Or, as He declared to the Pharisees, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath" (Mark 2:27).

The showbread symbolized the continual presence of the Lord and the people's dependence on God for their spiritual and physical needs.

SHRINE—a sanctuary or sacred place set apart for worship. The Israelites worshiped God first in the tabernacle and later in the temple after its completion by Solomon. But they never spoke of worshiping God in a shrine. This word was always used to describe the temples or sacred places where pagan gods were worshiped (Judg. 17:1–5). The prophet Ezekiel spoke of adulterous and idolatrous Jerusalem erecting a pagan shrine at every road and building (Ezek. 16:24, 31).

SHUHAM [SHOO ham]—a son of Dan and founder of the SHUHAMITES (Num. 26:42), also called Hushim (Gen. 46:23).

SHUHAMITES [SHOO hum ites]—the descendants of SHUHAM, of the tribe of Dan (Num. 26:42).

SHUHITE [SHOO hite]—a descendant of SHUAH, son of Abraham and Keturah (Gen. 25:1–2; 1 Chr. 1:32).

In the Bible the word "Shuhite" always occurs in the phrase "Bildad the Shuhite" (Job 2:11; 8:1; 18:1), one of Job's friends.

SHULAMITE [SHOO lum ite]—a young woman mentioned in Song of Solomon 6:13 (Shulammite, NRSV, NIV, REB, NASB). Many scholars interpret Shulamite as Shunammite—a woman from the city of SHUNEM (1 Sam. 28:4).

Others believe this woman was ABISHAG, the lovely young Shunammite brought to David in his old age (1 Kin. 1:1–4, 15) and who later apparently was a part of Solomon's harem (1 Kin. 2:17–22).

SHULAMMITE [SHOO lum ite]—a form of SHULAMITE.

SHUMATHITES [SHOO muh thites]—a family of Kirjath Jearim descended from Hur (1 Chr. 2:53).

SHUNAMMITE [SHOO nam ite]—a female native or inhabitant of SHUNEM. Two different Shunammites are mentioned in the Bible:

1. ABISHAG, a lovely young woman who ministered to King David in his old age (1 Kin. 1:3, 15).
2. A woman who befriended the prophet Elisha (2 Kin. 4:8–36).

SHUNEM [SHOO num]—a border city (see Map 3, B–2) allotted to the tribe of Issachar (Josh. 19:18). Shunem was about 5 kilometers (3 miles) north of Jezreel, near Mount Gilboa. The site is present-day Solem or Sulam.

SHUNI [SHOO nih]—a son of Gad (Gen. 46:16) and founder and chief of a tribal family, the SHUNITES (Num. 26:15).

SHUNITES [SHOO nights]—a tribal family founded by SHUNI (Num. 26:15).

SHUPHAM [SHOO fam]—a son of Benjamin (Num. 26:39; Shephupham, NRSV) and founder of a tribal family, the SHUPHAMITES (Num. 26:39). His name is also spelled Shephuphan (1 Chr. 8:5), Shuppim (1 Chr. 7:12, 15), and Muppim (Gen. 46:21).

SHUPHAMITES [SHOO fum ites]—the descendants of SHUPHAM (Num. 26:39).

SHUPPIM [SHUP em]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A descendant of Benjamin (1 Chr. 7:12, 15), also called Shupham (Num. 26:39), Shephuphan (1 Chr. 8:5), and Muppim (Gen. 46:21).
2. A Levite gatekeeper of the tabernacle in David's time (1 Chr. 26:16).

SHUR [shoor] (enclosure)—a desert in the northwest part of the Sinai Peninsula (see Map 2, A–2) where the Angel of the Lord found Hagar by a spring in the wilderness (Gen. 16:7). Shur was probably a caravan route from Beersheba to Egypt known as Darb esh-Shur.

The Wilderness of Shur must have been immediately east of the Red Sea. As soon as Moses brought the people of Israel from the Red Sea, they went out into the Wilderness of Shur (Ex. 15:22). Some scholars believe the name Shur comes from a series of fortifications built by the Egyptians on their northeastern frontier as a defense against invaders.

SHUSHAN [SHOO shan]—the ancient capital of Elam, in southwestern Iran; later a royal residence and capital of the Persian Empire (Neh. 1:1; Susa, NASB, NIV, NRSV). The site is present-day Shush, about 240 kilometers (150 miles) north of the Persian Gulf.

Long before the time of Abraham in the Old Testament, Shushan was the center of Elamite civilization. Some scholars believe it was a cult city centering around worship of one of the chief Elamite gods. The city had frequent contacts with Mesopotamia.

The Assyrian King Ashurbanipal (the biblical OSNAPPER, Ezra 4:10) led a military campaign against Shushan about 642–639 B.C. In about 640 B.C. he sacked the city and carried some of its inhabitants (Susanchites, Ezra 4:9, KJV) into exile in Samaria (v. 10).

When Cyrus the Great (reigned 550–529 B.C.) established the Persian Empire, he made Shushan its capital. At Shushan Darius the Great (ruled about 521–486 B.C.) built his magnificent royal palace. This palace, when occupied by Ahasuerus (Xerxes, 486–465 B.C.), figured prominently in the story of Esther.

In fact, most of the events recorded in the Book of Esther took place in Shushan (Esth. 1:2–5; 2:3–8; 3:15; 4:8–16; 8:14–15; 9:6–18). It was in Shushan also that the prophet Daniel had his vision of the ram and the goat (Dan. 8:2) and where Nehemiah lived in exile (Neh. 1:1).

According to a tradition of the Shiite Muslims, the present-day village of Shush (ancient Shushan) is the site of the tomb of the prophet

Daniel.

SHUSHAN EDUTH [SHOO shan EE duth] (see MUSIC).

SHUTHALHITES [SHOO thul hites]—descendants of SHUTHELAH (Num. 26:35; Shuthelahites, NIV, NRSV).

SHUTHELAH [SHOO thuh lah]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Ephraim and founder of a tribal family, the SHUTHALHITES (Num. 26:35–36).
2. A descendant of Ephraim (1 Chr. 7:21).

SHUTTLE—an instrument on a LOOM to which thread or yarn was attached. The shuttle was used to pull the thread back and forth for the weaving of fabric. Two men were required to operate the large, upright Egyptian-type looms. Job used the word in a figurative sense: “My days are swifter than a weaver’s shuttle” (Job 7:6).

SIA, SIAHA [SEE ah, SEE a hah]—a family of NETHINIM (temple servants) who returned with Zerubbabel from the captivity (Siaha, Ezra 2:44; Sia, Neh. 7:47).

SIBBECAI [SIB uh kie]—a form of SIBBECHAI.

SIBBECHAI [SIB uh kie]—one of David's mighty men (1 Chr. 11:29; Sibbecai, NRSV). Sibbechai killed the giant Saph during a battle with the Philistines. Sibbechai is also called Mebunnai (2 Sam. 23:27).

SIBBOLETH [SIB oh lehth]—a form of SHIBBOLETH.

SIBMAH [SIB mah]—a form of SHEBAM.

SIBRAIM [sib RAH em]—a city of Syria on the northern border of Israel (Ezek. 47:16).

SIBYLLINE ORACLES [sib uh LEAN] (see APOCALYPTIC LITERATURE).

SICARII [sih KAH rih eye]—a word for ASSASSINS.

SICHEM [SIGH chem]—a form of SHECHEM.

SICK (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

SICKLE (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

SIDDIM [SID em]—a valley at the southern end of the Dead Sea where Chedorlaomer and his allies defeated the kings of the five cities of the plain—Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim, and Zoar (Gen. 14:3, 8, 10). The Valley of Siddim was full of asphalt pits (tar pits, NIV; bitumen pits, NRSV), which became a deathtrap to those who fled from Chedorlaomer.

The most likely site of this valley is the area south of the peninsula that juts out from the east shore of the Dead Sea.

SIDE—the right or left part of the trunk of the body. Warriors wore their swords at their sides (Neh. 4:18). God ordered the prophet Ezekiel to lie on his side as a symbolic action (Ezek. 4:4–9). Blood and water gushed from Jesus' side when He was pierced with a spear, proving He was truly dead (John 19:34).

SIDON [SIGH dun]—an ancient Phoenician city on the Mediterranean coast in northern Palestine (see Map 3, B–1). Sidon dominated the coastal plain in the area of the Lebanon Mountains. Built on a hill across several small islands, it was connected by bridges.

Sidon was the oldest of the Phoenician cities. Founded by the son of Canaan (Gen. 10:15), it became a principal Canaanite stronghold (Gen. 10:19; 1 Chr. 1:13; Zidon, KJV). So dominant was Sidon originally that Sidonian and Phoenician became interchangeable terms. Even after the city of Tyre on the coast to the south assumed a position of dominance, Ethbaal, king of Tyre, was called king of the Sidonians (1 Kin. 16:31).

After the Israelites settled the land of Canaan, Sidon was near the territory of Zebulun (Gen. 49:13) and Asher (Josh. 19:28). But the tribe of Asher failed to drive out the inhabitants of Sidon (Judg. 1:31). This indicates something of the strength of the city. Sidon, however, frequently was destroyed by foreign invaders during the next several centuries. But it was rebuilt following each defeat and restored to a position of prominence.

By the time of ALEXANDER the Great in the fourth century B.C., Sidon was still a major Phoenician city. Alexander was received by the Sidonians as a deliverer, and they assisted Alexander as he besieged their neighboring city of Tyre. Later, under Roman rule Sidon was given the privilege of self-government, which it enjoyed during New Testament times.

Not only did the city of Sidon resist the efforts of the tribe of Asher to inhabit that region, but it also oppressed Israel during the period of the judges (Judg. 10:12). Once they were settled in the land, the Israelites began to worship the gods of Sidon, including their chief god Baal (1 Kin. 16:31) but especially Ashtoreth, the goddess of fertility (2 Kin. 23:13). Ethbaal, the king of Sidon, was the father of JEZEBEL (1 Kin. 16:31), who was mainly responsible for introducing the worship of pagan gods into Israel.

The people of Sidon came to Galilee to hear the preaching of Christ and to be healed by His touch (Mark 3:8; Luke 6:17). Jesus even went to the borders of Tyre and Sidon (Matt. 15:21–28; Mark 7:24–31), where He healed the Syro-Phoenician woman’s daughter. Herod Agrippa I was displeased by the people of Tyre and Sidon, but they won over his servant Blastus and begged for peace “because their country was supplied with food by the king’s country” (Acts 12:20).

The apostle Paul stopped briefly at Sidon on his way to Rome, meeting with Christian friends there (Acts 27:3). In early Christian history, the city became an important Christian center, sending a bishop to the Council of Nicea in A.D. 325.

Frequently Sidon was the subject of prophecies of judgment. Isaiah predicted that Sidon would pass into the control of Cyprus (Is. 23:12). Jeremiah predicted its defeat by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon (Jer. 27:3, 6). Ezekiel denounced Sidon (Ezek. 28:20–24) because her inhabitants had been “a pricking brier [and] a painful thorn for the house of Israel” (Ezek. 28:24). Joel denounced Sidon for helping to plunder Jerusalem (Joel 3:4–6).

In the eighth century B.C. Sidon was noted for its artistic metalwork and skilled tradesmen who made objects of silver and gold. Like the citizens of Tyre, the Sidonians were also known for their purple dye. The art of glass blowing was in evidence in the first century B.C. at Sidon. In the first century learned Sidonians were also noted for their study in the sciences of astronomy and arithmetic. Sidon also had a law school that was famed throughout the ancient world.

SIDONIANS [sigh DAWN ih uns] (see SIDON).

SIEGE—a prolonged military blockade of a city or fortress to force it to surrender. The purpose of a siege was to take away the advantage of the city’s massive defensive walls by cutting off its supplies and contacts from the outside. Without supplies, the defending city would be forced to surrender or to attack the besieging army.

The attacking army would sometimes press the siege by trying to scale the walls with ladders or ramps. Other techniques included battering down the walls or tunneling under them. But attack was dangerous because the city’s defenders were well protected and could carry on the battle from a superior position.

A siege might continue for several months. To shorten a siege, the attacking army usually tried to capture a city’s water supplies. These were usually situated outside the city walls.

Much of the warfare described in the Old Testament is siege warfare. For instance, Joab laid siege to Rabbah (2 Sam. 12:26–31) and Sennacherib besieged Jerusalem and all the fortified cities of Judah (Is. 36:1). In the New Testament Jesus predicted the Roman siege of Jerusalem (Luke 19:43–44).

SIEVE (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

SIGN—something that points to, or represents, something larger or more important than itself. By far the most important use of the word is in reference to the acts of God. Thus, it is often linked with "wonders." In the Old Testament most references point to the miracles produced by God to help deliver the Hebrew people from slavery in Egypt (Ex. 7:3; Is. 8:18).

In the New Testament the word "signs" is linked with both "wonders" and "miracles" (Acts 2:22; 2 Cor. 12:12; Heb. 2:4). Signs point primarily to the powerful, saving activity of God as experienced through the ministry of Jesus and the apostles. The word occurs frequently in the Gospel of John, pointing to the deeper, symbolic meaning of the miracles performed by Jesus. Throughout the Bible the true significance of a sign is understood only through faith.

SIGNET—a seal or ring used by an official much like a personal signature to give authority to a document. The Old Testament indicates several uses of the ring seal.

Pharaoh gave his ring to Joseph (Gen. 41:42) as a badge of his delegated authority. Ahasuerus gave his ring to the wicked Haman (Esth. 3:10, 12), then gave it to Mordecai after Haman's treachery was exposed (Esth. 8:2). King Darius of Persia sealed the lion's den after Daniel was placed in it (Dan. 6:17).

The signet was an emblem of royal authority (Gen. 41:42). Zerubbabel, who had been chosen by God to lead the returned captives in Jerusalem (Hag. 2:23), was compared to a signet ring, signifying that God had invested him with the highest honor.

Also see SEAL.

SIGNPOST—a sign with information or directions for travelers. The prophet Jeremiah encouraged the citizens of Judah to set up signposts

(Jer. 31:21; waymarks, KJV; roadmarkers, NRSV; road signs, NIV) to mark their route into Babylon so they could return to Israel by the same route once the CAPTIVITY was over.

SIHON [SIGH hun]—a king of the Amorites defeated by the Israelites during their journey toward the land of Canaan. Moses asked Sihon to let the Israelites pass peacefully through his kingdom, located east of the Jordan River. Sihon refused and later attacked the Israelites at Jahaz. In the battle that followed Sihon and his army were killed (Num. 21:21–32), and his territory was given to the tribes of Gad and Reuben (Num. 32:33). Sihon's defeat is mentioned often in the Old Testament (Deut. 1:4; Josh. 2:10; Ps. 135:11; Jer. 48:45).

SIHOR [SIGH hawr]—a form of SHIHOR.

SIKKUTH [SICK uth]—a Babylonian god mentioned by the prophet Amos (Amos 5:26; Sakkuth, NRSV; shrine, NIV). Some scholars identify Sikkuth with Ninurta, the god of war and chase. Also see GODS, PAGAN.

SILAS [SIGH lus] (person of the woods)—a prominent member of the early church at Jerusalem and companion of the apostle Paul. Silas accompanied Paul to Antioch of Syria to report the decision of the Jerusalem Council to accept Gentile Christians into the church (Acts 15:22, 27, 32).

Paul chose Silas as his companion on his second missionary journey. During their travels, Paul and Silas were imprisoned at Philippi (Acts 16:19, 25, 29). Silas and Paul were also together during the riot at Thessalonica (Acts 17:4). Later they were sent to Berea, where Silas remained with Timothy; both Silas and Timothy soon followed Paul to Athens (Acts 17:14–15), although they may not have caught up with him until reaching Corinth (Acts 18:5). Silas played an important role in the early Christian work in Corinth.

In his letters, Paul referred to Silas as Silvanus (1 Thess. 1:1, 2 Thess. 1:1). The time, place, and manner of his death are unknown.

SILENCE—the absence of noise or sound. The word silence is used in the Bible to symbolize death (Ps. 94:17) and SHEOL (Ps. 115:17). Silence can express a mood of gloom and despair, as after the destruction of Jerusalem (Lam. 2:10). Silence can also express fear and reverence: “The LORD is in His holy temple. Let all the earth keep silence before Him” (Hab. 2:20).

SILK—cloth woven from thread that was made from the Chinese silkworm. Although the word “silk” occurs a few times in the KJV and the NKJV, many scholars think the Hebrew word for silk should be rendered “fine linen” or “costly fabric” (Ezek. 16:10, 13; Prov. 31:22).

The use of silk among the Egyptians is unknown, but it did appear among the Chinese and other people of ancient Asia. From the earliest times trade existed between India and China on the one hand and India and the Mesopotamian valley on the other. So it is possible that Solomon’s extensive trade could have brought silk to Israel. Certainly after the campaigns of Alexander the Great, silk reached the Near East.

As one of the finest and most vividly colored fabrics, silk was highly prized. The rich and powerful people called the Babylonians wore it, according to Revelation 18:12. At one time people of the ancient world bought silk for its weight in gold (around A.D. 275).

SILLA [SILL ah]—an unknown place near Jerusalem where Joash (or Jehoash), king of Judah, was killed by his servants (2 Kin. 12:20).

SILOAM [sigh LOW um] (sent)—a storage pool and water tunnel that provided a water supply for early residents of the city of Jerusalem. The pool and tunnel drew water from the GIHON spring outside the city wall.

Under the peril of an impending invasion by the armies of Sennacherib, king of Assyria (reigned about 705–681 B.C.), King Hezekiah of Judah “made a pool and a tunnel [or conduit] and brought water into the city” (2 Kin. 20:20). The parallel account in 2 Chronicles says he “stopped the water outlet of Upper Gihon, and brought the water by tunnel to the west side of the City of David” (2 Chr. 32:30).

Hezekiah’s tunnel was discovered accidentally in 1838 and was explored by the American traveler, Edward Robinson, and his missionary friend, Eli Smith. They found the Siloam tunnel to be about 518 meters (1,750 feet) long, although the straight line distance between the storage pool and the Gihon spring is only 332 meters (1,090 feet). The course has numerous twists and turns. Some scholars have suggested that by following such a crooked course, the tunnel builders were trying to avoid the royal tombs cut into the same area through which the conduit was cut. But it is just as possible that more accurate surveying methods were unavailable to Hezekiah’s technicians. By any standards, however, Hezekiah’s tunnel was a notable achievement.

The tunnel was explored in 1867, but it was not until 1880 that an important Hebrew inscription was discovered near the entrance to the reservoir. It gave a graphic description of how the tunnel was built. Two work crews cut the tunnel through solid rock, working from opposite ends until they met in the middle.

It may have been through another tunnel or gap such as this that David’s warriors entered the ancient city of Jerusalem about 1000 B.C. The city was known as Jebus at that time. David captured it and turned it into the capital city of his kingdom.

The Bible does contain some puzzling references to a more ancient pool. The prophet Isaiah, for instance, speaks of Hezekiah’s “reservoir between the two walls for the water of the old pool” (Is. 22:11). Perhaps Hezekiah and his craftsmen used an existing reservoir and linked it to his tunnel and pool. Also see SHELAH.

• The tunnel of Siloam was dug through solid rock to insure a supply of water to Jerusalem in case of an Assyrian attack.

SILOAM, TOWER OF [sigh LOW um]—a tower near the Pool of Siloam inside the walls of Jerusalem. The exact site of this tower is unknown. In the time of Christ, a local disaster in which 18 lives were lost by a collapse of this structure was fresh in the minds of the people (Luke 13:4). Also see SILOAM.

SILOAM, VILLAGE OF [sigh LOW ahm]—although this village is not mentioned in the Bible, there exists today a village of Siloam (Silwan), situated across the valley from the Gihon spring. Some scholars believe the tower of Siloam (Luke 13:4) was located at this site. Also see GIHON; SILOAM, TOWER OF.

SILVANUS [sill VAIN us]—a form of SILAS.

SILVER (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

SILVERLING—a word for the standard silver coin used as a medium of exchange during Bible times. The word appears only once in the Bible (Is. 7:23, KJV). Also see MONEY OF THE BIBLE.

SILVER, PIECE OF (see MONEY OF THE BIBLE).

SILVERSMITH (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SIMEON [SIM ih un] ([God] hears)—the name of four men in the Bible:

1. The second son of Jacob and Leah (Gen. 29:33). Simeon's descendants became one of the twelve tribes of Israel. He and his brother Levi tricked the Hivites of Shechem and massacred all the males because one of them had raped Dinah, their sister (Gen. 34:2, 25, 30). Simeon was the brother whom Joseph kept as security when he allowed his brothers to leave Egypt and return to their father Jacob in the land of Canaan (Gen. 42:24).
2. A devout Jew who blessed the infant Jesus in the temple (Luke 2:25, 34). The Holy Spirit had promised Simeon that he would not die until he had seen the long-awaited Messiah. Simeon recognized the child as the Messiah when Mary and Joseph brought him to the temple to present Him to the Lord.
3. An ancestor of Joseph listed in the genealogy of Jesus Christ (Luke 3:30).
4. A Christian prophet or teacher in the church at Antioch of Syria (Acts 13:1). Some scholars believe Simeon was the same person as Simon of Cyrene, who bore Jesus' cross (Luke 23:26).

SIMEON, TRIBE OF—One of the twelve tribes of Israel, descended from Simeon No. 1 (Rev. 7:7). Simeon had six sons—Jemuel (Nemuel), Jamin, Ohad, Jachin (Jerib), Zohar (Zerah), and Shaul—and all but Ohad founded tribal families (Ex. 6:15).

The tribe of Simeon numbered 59,300 fighting men at the first census in the wilderness (Num. 1:23; 2:13) and 22,200 at the second (Num. 26:12–14). This tribe was omitted in Moses' blessing of the nation of Israel (Deuteronomy 33). A comparison of the cities assigned to Simeon with those assigned to Judah (Josh. 15:20–63; 19:1–9; 1 Chr.

4:28–33) makes it appear that the tribe of Simeon had been assimilated into the tribe of Judah, thus fulfilling Jacob’s prophecy (Gen. 49:5–7).

When the land of Canaan was divided, the second lot fell to Simeon. The tribe received land in the extreme southern part of Canaan, in the middle of Judah’s territory (Josh. 19:1–9). Simeon united with Judah in fighting the Canaanites (Judg. 1:1, 3, 17). Among the Simeonite cities were Beersheba, Hormah, and Ziklag (Josh. 19:1–9). Although the descendants of Simeon disappeared as a tribe, Ezekiel mentions it in his prophecies about a future land of Canaan (Ezek. 48:24–25, 33). The Book of Revelation mentions 12,000 of the tribe of Simeon who were sealed (Rev. 7:7).

SIMEONITES [SIMM ee un ites]—the descendants of SIMEON, the second son of Jacob and Leah (Gen. 29:33; Num. 25:14; 1 Chr. 27:16).

SIMILITUDE—a similarity or resemblance. James pointed out that with the tongue, we sometimes both bless and condemn people “who have been made in the similitude of God” (James 3:9). This is a reference to the image of God in humankind (Gen. 1:26–27). By referring to the original creation story, James emphasized the seriousness of the sin of the tongue; it violates God’s creation.

SIMON [SIME un] ([God] hears)—the name of nine men in the New Testament:

1. Simon Peter, the Galilean fisherman who became an apostle of Christ (Matt. 4:18; 10:2). Simon was the son of Jonah (Matt. 16:17; John 21:15) and a brother of the apostle ANDREW (John 1:40). Also see PETER, SIMON.
2. Another of the Twelve, called the Canaanite to distinguish him from Simon Peter. The name may also indicate he was a member of a fanatical Jewish sect, the ZEALOTS (Matt. 10:4; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13). Members of this group were fanatical opponents of Roman rule in Palestine. As a Zealot, Simon would have hated any foreign domination or interference.
3. One of Jesus’ brothers (Matt. 13:55).
4. A former leper in whose house Mary, the sister of Lazarus, anointed Jesus’ feet with a precious ointment (Matt. 26:6–13; Mark 14:3–9;

John 12:1–8). Mary, Martha, and Lazarus were present when this happened, and Martha took an active part in serving the dinner. This has led to speculation that Simon was a member of the family or at least was a very close friend.

5. A man of Cyrene who was forced to carry Jesus' cross (Matt. 27:32; Mark 15:21; Luke 23:26). Simon was the father of Alexander and Rufus, men who were known to the early Christians in Rome (Rom. 16:13).
6. A Pharisee in whose house Jesus ate (Luke 7:36–50). On that occasion a woman who was a sinner anointed Jesus' feet. Simon felt that Jesus should not have allowed her to come near Him. But Jesus explained that sinners like her were the very ones who needed forgiveness.
7. The father of Judas Iscariot (John 13:2). Both father and son are called Iscariot. The NRSV has "Judas the son of Simon Iscariot" (John 6:71; 13:26).
8. A sorcerer known as Simon Magus, or Simon the magician, who tried to buy spiritual powers from the apostle Peter (Acts 8:9–24). Simon's feats were so impressive that the people of Samaria declared, "This man is the great power of God" (Acts 8:10) and followed him. But when Philip the evangelist preached, the Samaritans believed and were baptized. Simon also believed and was baptized.

   Later the apostles Peter and John visited Samaria to make sure these believers received the power of the Holy Spirit. When Simon saw that the Holy Spirit was bestowed by the laying on of hands, he attempted to buy this power. Peter rebuked him, "Your money perish with you, because you thought that the gift of God could be purchased with money! You have neither part nor portion in this matter, for your heart is not right in the sight of God" (Acts 8:20–21).
9. A tanner of Joppa and friend of the apostle Peter (Acts 9:43; 10:6, 17, 32).

SIMON MACCABAEUS [mack kuh BEE us] (see MACCABEES).

SIMON PETER (see PETER, SIMON).

SIMPLICITY—NKJV word used in both a negative and a positive way:

1. A lack of good sense or intelligence; foolishness or ignorance (Prov. 1:22).
2. The absence of pretense and hypocrisy (Acts 2:46; 2 Cor. 1:12; 11:3).

SIMRI [SIM rih]—a form of SHIMRI.

SIN—lawlessness (1 John 3:4) or transgression of God's will, either by omitting to do what God's law requires or by doing what it forbids. The transgression can occur in thought (1 John 3:15), word (Matt. 5:22), or deed (Rom. 1:32).

Mankind was created without sin, morally upright and inclined to do good (Eccl. 7:29). But sin entered into human experience when Adam and Eve violated the direct command of God by eating the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 3:6). Because Adam was the head and representative of the whole human race, his sin affected all future generations (Rom. 5:12–21). Associated with this guilt is a corrupted nature passed from Adam to all his descendants. Out of this perverted nature arise all the sins that people commit (Matt. 15:19); no person is free from involvement in sin (Rom. 3:23).

God is holy and cannot sin (James 1:13). Jesus Christ, the Son of God who came to earth in human form, is also sinless. His perfection arises from His divine nature, as well as His human nature (1 Pet. 2:22). Although the story of the Bible focuses on the sin of mankind and God's provision for our redemption, the angels are also described as capable of sinning. Some have fallen away from God's service (Jude 6). But animals are not morally responsible creatures; so they cannot sin.

Mankind originally fell into sin at the temptation of Satan. As the tempter, he continues to lure people into sin (1 Pet. 5:8); nevertheless, people remain fully responsible for what they do. God is not the author of sin, but His plan for world redemption does include His dealing with the reality of sin (2 Sam. 24:1; 1 Chr. 21:1). This truth is dramatically witnessed in the death of Jesus Christ. The crucifixion happened according to God's will; but at the same time, it was the worst crime of human history (Acts 2:23).

Sin is not represented in the Bible as the absence of good, or as an illusion that stems from our human limitations. Sin is portrayed as a real and positive evil. Sin is more than unwise, inexpedient, calamitous behavior that produces sorrow and distress. It is rebellion against God's law—the standard of righteousness (Ps. 119:160).

Since God demands righteousness, sin must be defined in terms of mankind's relation to God. Sin is thus the faithless rebellion of creatures against the just authority of their Creator. For this reason, breaking God's law at any point involves transgression at every point (James 2:10).

Violation of the law of God in thought, word, and deed shows the sinfulness of the human heart. Sin is actually a contradiction to the holiness of God, whose image mankind bears. This depraved condition is called "original sin" because it comes from Adam and characterizes all persons from the moment of their birth.

The moral depravity of mankind is total in that "the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, nor indeed can be" (Rom. 8:7). Apart from Christ, all are "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1). But this does not mean that people behave as wickedly as they might, for God restrains the outworkings of the sinful heart. At times He even helps sinners to do things that conform to the law (Gen. 20:6). The corruption of sin is not developed or expressed to the same degree in every person. Neither is it expressed in the same way in any person at all times.

Sin involves the denial of the living God from whom human beings draw their life and existence (Acts 17:28); the consequence of this revolt is death and the torment of hell. Death is the ultimate penalty imposed by God for sin (Rom. 6:23).

Against this dark background of sin and its reality, the gospel comes as the good news of the deliverance that God has provided through His Son. Jesus bears the penalty of sin in place of His people (Mark 10:45). He also redeems us from lawlessness and makes us long for good works in service to God and others (Titus 2:14).

SIN [sin] (the moon-god)—the name of a wilderness and a city in the Old Testament:

1. A wilderness through which the Israelites passed on their journey toward Mount Sinai (Ex. 16:1; 17:1; Num. 33:11–12). In the Wilderness of Sin the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron. The Lord sent quail and manna to feed the people. The Wilderness of Sin should not be confused with the Wilderness of Zin (Num. 13:21; 27:14; Josh. 15:1, 3).
2. A city of Egypt on the eastern side of the Nile (Ezek. 30:15–16). It is possibly Pelusium (Ezek. 30:15–16, NIV, NRSV), or Tell Farama; but it also has been identified with Syene (Ezek. 30:16, REB), which is present-day Aswan in Egypt.

SIN, MAN OF (see ANTICHRIST).

SIN OFFERING (see SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS).

SIN, UNPARDONABLE (see HOLY SPIRIT, SIN AGAINST).

SIN, WILDERNESS OF (see SIN No. 1).

SINAI [SIGH nih eye]—the name of a peninsula, a wilderness, and a mountain in the Bible (see Map 9, B–5). All three of these played a prominent role in the life of God’s Covenant People as they searched for the Land of Promise following their miraculous deliverance from enslavement in Egypt.

The Peninsula. Shaped like a triangle, the peninsula of Sinai is an area of great contrasts. It appears to hang from the southeast corner of the Mediterranean Sea with its base serving as the land bridge between Egypt and Israel. The peninsula is bounded on the west by the Gulf of Suez and on the east by the Gulf of Aqaba.

The Sinai peninsula is about 240 kilometers (150 miles) wide at the northern end and about 400 kilometers (250 miles) long. Its land area is desert and a tableland rising to about 762 meters (2,500 feet). On the north the Sinai plateau slopes away to the Mediterranean Sea. Near the south end of the peninsula a series of granite mountains rise 1,209 to 2,743 meters (4,000 to 9,000 feet) high, in striking contrast to the surrounding wastelands.

The Wilderness. Exodus 19:1 indicates that “in the third month after the children of Israel had gone out of the land of Egypt, on the same day, they came to the Wilderness of Sinai.” This phrase may refer only to the particular desert that lies at the foot of Mount Sinai and in which the Israelites pitched their camp. But the phrase may also refer in a broader sense to the entire desert area of the Sinai Peninsula. If this is the case, it would include the Wilderness of Sin, through which the Israelites passed between Elim and Mount Sinai (Ex. 16:1); the Wilderness of Paran, in the central Sinaitic Peninsula (Num. 10:12); the Wilderness of Shur, east of Egypt in the northern Sinai (Gen. 16:7); and the Wilderness of Zin, close to the border of Canaan (Num. 13:21).

The Mountain. Perhaps the most frequent use of the word “Sinai” is in connection with the mountain. This was the mountain where God met Moses and gave him the Law (Ex. 19:3, 20). This mountain is to be identified with Mount Horeb (Ex. 3:1), or perhaps Horeb refers to a mountain range or ridge and Sinai to an individual summit on that ridge. The name Sinai is used at the time when the Israelites were actually at the foot of the mountain (Ex. 19:11), whereas Horeb is used upon reflection about the events that happened here.

Although several mountains have been identified as possibilities, there are only two serious contenders for the title—Jebel Serbal (2,070 meters; 6,791 feet) in central Sinai and Jebel Musa (2,286 meters; about 7,500 feet) in southern Sinai. One of a cluster of three peaks, Jebel Musa, Arabic for “Mount Moses,” has a broad plain at its base, where the Israelites may have camped.

Biblical References. After the Israelites left Egypt, they camped first in the Wilderness of Sin, then at Rephidim, and finally at Sinai. Moses climbed the mountain and received the tablets of the Law from God. A stirring atmospheric disturbance accompanied God’s meeting with the people (Ex. 19:18–19; 20:18).

During their years of wandering in the Sinai wilderness, the census was taken (Num. 1:1–46), the firstborn were redeemed (Num. 3:40–51), the office and duties of the Levites were established (Num. 4:1–49), and the first tabernacle was built (Num. 9:15).

- The Wilderness of Sinai. Three months after leaving Egypt, the Israelites arrived in this rugged, barren region (Ex. 19:1–2).

SINCERITY—freedom from hypocrisy; purity of motive. The apostle Paul compared sincerity to unleavened bread (1 Cor. 5:8), a biblical symbol of purity. The sincerity with which Christians conduct their lives is a testimony to their godliness. “For our boasting is this: the testimony of our conscience that we conducted ourselves in the world in simplicity and godly sincerity” (2 Cor. 1:12).

SINEW—fibrous tissue that connects muscles to bones in the body. The word “sinew” is used literally in passages such as Job 10:11; 30:17 (KJV); 40:17; and Ezekiel 37:6, 8. In Isaiah 48:4 an “iron sinew” is a figure of speech for rebellion. The Israelites’ custom to cut away the sinew of the thigh joint of meat before cooking it (Gen. 32:32, KJV, RSV; tendon, NIV) was in memory of Jacob’s wrestling with the angel, in which the angel injured Jacob’s thigh to gain an advantage (Gen. 32:24–31).

SINGER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES; MUSIC).

SINGING (see MUSIC).

SINGLENESS OF HEART—undivided purpose; total dedication and commitment (2 Chr. 30:12; one heart, KJV, NRSV, NASB; unity of mind, NIV).

SINIM [SIH nem]—a land from which the scattered Israelites were to be gathered, according to the prophet Isaiah (Is. 49:12). It refers to Syene, present-day Aswan in southern Egypt.

SINITE [SIGH night]—a tribe of Canaanites in northern Phoenicia (modern Lebanon; 1 Chr. 1:15). Some scholars believe the Sinites were inhabitants of Sin, a city near Arka at the foot of Mount Lebanon, now in ruins.

SINNER—any person who sins. Because sin is natural to people, every person sins and must be considered a sinner (Rom. 3:23).

Many times in the Bible, the word "sinner" is contrasted with the term "righteous." God told Noah he was righteous (Gen. 7:1), but, by definition, Noah was also a sinner. Although Noah did fall into sin (Gen. 9:21), his attitude toward God and what is right made him a "righteous" man (Gen. 6:9).

Jesus also contrasted "sinner" with "righteous." He said, "I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance" (Mark 2:17). In this verse the term "sinner" refers to those who consciously make a lifestyle of sin, rather than the righteous who occasionally fall into sin. In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus taught that sin lies within people's attitudes rather than their actions (Matt. 5:21–30). Thus, those with sinful attitudes have separated themselves from God, while those with righteous attitudes and trust in Christ have united with God.

SION [SIGH un]—the name of a mountain and a city in the Bible:

1. The peak of Mount Hermon (Deut. 4:48; Siyon, NIV), perhaps identical with Sirion (Deut. 3:9).
2. The Greek form of Mount Zion, referring specifically to the temple mount and generally to the city of Jerusalem (Rom. 9:33, KJV; Zion, NKJV).

SIPHMOTH [SIF mahth]—a city in southern Judah where David hid from King Saul (1 Sam. 30:28). Also see SHIPHMITE.

SIPPAI [SIP pih eye]—a form of SAPH.

SIR—a title of respect for gentlemen of rank, position, or power. The Philippian jailer asked Paul and Silas, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" (Acts 16:30). John also used this word in addressing one of the 24 elders (Rev. 7:14).

SIRAH [SIH rah]—a well (cistern, NRSV; Pool of Sirah, REB) near Hebron where Abner was murdered by Joab and Abishai (2 Sam. 3:26). The well of Sirah is probably present-day 'Ain Sarah, about 2.5 kilometers (1.5 miles) northwest of Hebron.

SIRION [SEAR ih un] (breastplate)—the Sidonian name for Mount Hermon in Canaan (Deut. 3:9).

SISAMAI [SIS ah my]—a form of SISMAI.

SISERA [SIS uh rah]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The commander of the army of Jabin, king of Canaan. Deborah and Barak defeated Jabin's army under Sisera's command at the River Kishon. Sisera was later killed by a Kenite woman who drove a tent peg into his temple (Judg. 4:1–22).
2. One of the NETHINIM who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Neh. 7:55).

SISMAI [SIS my]—a son of Eleasah and father of Shallum (1 Chr. 2:40; Sisamai, KJV).

SISTER—a female offspring of one's parents or of one's father or mother. The word "sister" was also used by the Hebrews to indicate a female relationship comparable to the brotherly male relationship. Sometimes the term was applied to any blood female relative, such as a niece or a cousin (Matt. 13:56). Also see FAMILY.

SISTRUM (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

SITHRI [SITH rih]—a form of ZITHRI.

SITNAH [SIT nah] (enmity)—a well dug by the servants of Isaac near the Philistine city of Gerar after a dispute over water rights (Gen. 26:21). Some scholars identify Sitnah with present-day Shutneh, about 32 kilometers (20 miles) south of Beersheba.

SIVAN [sih VAN]—the third month of the sacred Hebrew year (Esth. 8:9). Sivan went from the new moon of May to the new moon of June. Also see CALENDAR.

SIX, SIXTY (see NUMBER).

SIYON [SIGH un]—a form of SION.

SKIFF—a small rowboat (Acts 27:16–32; boat, KJV, NRSV; lifeboat, NIV).

SKIN—the outer protective covering of the bodies of people and animals. When the Bible speaks of skin, it always does so literally. This is in contrast to the word for FLESH, which is often used symbolically to refer to sinful human nature. Animal skin (leather) was used to make the first garments worn by people, but it was generally used this way only in unusual situations (Gen. 3:21; Mark 1:6; Heb. 11:37). The most prominent mention of animal skins is in the description of the various coverings over the tabernacle (Ex. 25:5; 35:7; 39:34; Num. 4:6–25).

Human skin is fragile, and it deteriorates in the sick or the elderly (Job 7:5; Lam. 3:4). Various skin diseases of Bible times were referred to by the general term LEPROSY. Many references to skin occur in Leviticus 13, where the diagnosis and treatment of leprosy are described.

SKINK (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SKIRT—an item of dress in Bible times whose exact nature is unknown. Other translations use the word “collar” (NKJV, NASB, NRSV). Also see DRESS OF THE BIBLE.

SKULL—the bony foundation of the human face. Three of the gospels state that Jesus was crucified at Golgotha, or Place of a Skull (Matt. 27:33; Mark 15:22; John 19:17). Some scholars believe this name was given to the site because it looks like a skull from a distance. Also see CALVARY; GOLGOTHA.

SKY—the upper atmosphere, appearing as a great vault or arch above the earth. In the Bible the sky is the home of the sun (Job 37:21), moon (Ps. 89:37), and stars (Heb. 11:12). Sailors and navigators knew how to "discern the face of the sky" for weather signs (Matt. 16:2–3). Also see FIRMAMENT; HEAVEN.

SLABS—huge pieces of stone, or marble, gathered by David for the building of the temple in Jerusalem (1 Chr. 29:2). These materials were later used by Solomon in the actual construction of the building.

SLACK, SLACKNESS—not lively or moving; sluggish. The Greek word translated as slackness occurs only in 2 Peter 3:9: "The Lord is not slack [slow, NIV] concerning His promise, as some count slackness [slowness, NIV], but is long-suffering toward us, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." Unbelievers scoff at the Lord's delay in returning, not knowing that His "tardiness" is a mark of His mercy and grace.

SLANDER—evil, malicious talk intended to damage or destroy another person (Ps. 31:13; 50:20; Ezek. 22:9). Slander is prohibited in the ninth commandment: "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor" (Ex. 20:16; Deut. 5:20). The greatest slanderer of all is the DEVIL, or SATAN—the adversary who opposes God's people and accuses them before God (Job 1:9–11; Rev. 12:10).

SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS (see INNOCENTS, SLAUGHTER OF).

SLAUGHTER, VALLEY OF (see TOPHET).

SLAVE, SLAVERY—a person bound in servitude to another human being as an instrument of labor; one who is no longer free and has no rights.

An ancient practice (Gen. 9:25), slavery existed in several different forms in biblical times. Household or domestic slavery was its most common form; this is illustrated by HAGAR, who lived in the home of Abram and Sarai (Gen. 16:1) and by Jesus in His parables (Matt. 13:24–30; 21:33–44). State slavery, another common form, is illustrated by the Israelites' experience under their Egyptian taskmasters (Ex. 5:6–19; 13:3), and later by Solomon, who enslaved some of the Canaanite peoples (1 Kin. 9:20–21). Temple slavery is illustrated by the practice of Moses and Joshua, who assigned certain people as slaves to the Levites for temple service (Num. 31:25–47; Josh. 9:21–27).

One could purchase slaves, as in the case of Joseph. He was sold into slavery by his brothers for 20 shekels of silver (Gen. 37:28). Israelites could also buy foreign slaves (Lev. 25:44). People captured in war frequently became slaves (Gen. 14:21; Num. 31:9). Occasionally those who wanted slaves might kidnap them, but this practice was forbidden by Israelite law (Ex. 21:16; 1 Tim. 1:10).

People could become slaves in several ways. The poor who were unable to pay their debts could offer themselves as slaves (Ex. 21:2–6; Neh. 5:1–5). A thief who could not repay what he had stolen could also be sold as a slave. Children born of slave parents became "house-born slaves" (Gen. 15:3; 17:12–13). Sometimes children would be taken as slaves in payment for debts (2 Kin. 4:1–7).

Treatment of slaves generally depended on the character of the master (Gen. 24; 39:1–6). But a set of regulations governed the treatment of domestic slaves (Ex. 21; Deut. 15). Repeatedly, Israel was instructed by the law not to rule over a fellow Israelite harshly (Lev. 25:39; Deut. 15:14). If a master beat a slave or harmed him, the law provided that the slave could go free (Ex. 21:26–27); and the killing of a slave called for a penalty (Ex. 21:20).

Slaves were allowed to secure their freedom. Under the law, no Hebrew was to be the permanent slave of another Hebrew. After six years of service, a slave was to be released (Ex. 21:2; Deut. 15:12). In the Year of JUBILEE, no matter how long a slave had served, he was to be released (Lev. 25:37–43). If a slave desired to continue with his master, he would have a mark made in the ear; this mark would signify that he had chosen to remain a slave (Ex. 21:5–6). A slave could also buy his freedom, or another person could buy his freedom for him (Lev. 25:47–49).

Among the Romans in New Testament times, freedom for a slave could be arranged if ownership was transferred to a god. The slave could then receive his freedom in return for contracting his services. He would continue with his master, but now as a free man.

The Bible contains warnings about the practice of slavery. The prophet Amos spoke woe to Gaza and Tyre for their practices of slave-trading entire populations (Amos 1:6–9). The Book of Revelation declares that disaster awaits those who sell slaves (Rev. 18:13). As for Christians, the apostle Paul advised slaves to obey their masters (Eph. 6:5; Col. 3:22; Titus 2:9). Paul appealed to Philemon to receive back Onesimus, a runaway slave who was now a Christian and therefore a brother (Philem. 1:16). Elsewhere Paul counseled believing slaves to seek freedom if they could (1 Cor. 7:21). Since slave practices were part of the culture in biblical times, the Bible contains no direct call to abolish slavery. But the implications of the gospel, especially the ethic of love, stand in opposition to slavery.

Both slave and free are called upon to receive the gospel of Jesus Christ. In Christ, social distinctions such as slavery no longer apply (Gal. 3:28; Col. 3:11); in Christ all are brothers and sisters. The excitement of such new relationships is expressed by Paul: “Therefore you are no longer a slave but a son, and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ” (Gal. 4:7).

In a spiritual sense, people apart from Christ are slaves to sin. To commit sin is to demonstrate that sin has control of one’s life (John 8:34). Christ can set us free from this kind of slavery (John 8:36)—to be obedient to Christ and to do righteousness (Rom. 6:16–18).

Paul spoke of himself as a “servant,” a word sometimes rendered as “bondservant” but frequently also as “slave” (Rom. 1:1; Titus 1:1). Christians, especially ministers, are not hired servants but slaves committed to service to Jesus. Slaves do not manage their own lives. People who call themselves slaves of Christ acknowledge that the Savior has power over them.

SLEEP—a natural period of rest during which consciousness is suspended. In the Bible, sleep is a common metaphor for death. In 1 and 2 Kings, especially, the phrase, “he rested (slept, KJV) with his fathers,” occurs many times (1 Kin. 2:10; 11:43). The Christian dead “sleep in Jesus” (1 Thess. 4:14). Sleep also can symbolize physical laziness, which brings poverty (Prov. 6:9–11). In the New Testament sleepoften suggests spiritual or moral laziness (1 Thess. 5:6). On the other hand, sleep can be a symbol of living in safety (Ezek. 34:25). God gives sleep to the righteous and to the hard worker (Ps. 4:8; Eccl. 5:12).

SLIME (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

SLING (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

SLINGSTONES—stones hurled from a sling by shepherds and warriors (Job 41:28; Zech. 9:15). Slingstones were usually small stones or clay pebbles. But sometimes they were made of limestone or flint and were as large as a baseball. Also see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE.

SLOOPS—small, single-masted sailing boats (Is. 2:16).

SLOTHFUL—idle, lazy, sluggish (Prov. 15:19; 26:13–15). The Book of Proverbs contrasts two paths, or ways of life: the way of wisdom and the way of folly. The slothful person is foolish, while the diligent, hardworking person is wise.

SMELTER—a large container for heating ore and separating the metal from the dross; a person engaged in the smelting industry. The people of Jerusalem and Judah were so corrupted with the impurity of wickedness that they were almost beyond redemption. The prophet Jeremiah declared, "The smelter refines in vain" (Jer. 6:29).

SMITH (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SMYRNA [SMER nuh] (myrrh)—a city in western Asia Minor (modern Turkey) where one of the seven churches in the Book of Revelation was situated (Rev. 1:11; 2:8–11). Smyrna's superb natural harbor made the city an important commercial center. In spite of keen competition from the neighboring cities of Ephesus and Pergamum, Smyrna called itself "the first city of Asia."

As early as 195 B.C., Symrna foresaw the rising power of Rome and built a temple for pagan Roman worship. In 23 B.C., Smyrna was given the honor of building a temple to the Emperor Tiberius because of its years of faithfulness to Rome. Thus, the city became a center for the cult of emperor worship—a fanatical "religion" that later, under such emperors as Nero (ruled A.D. 54–68) and Domitian (ruled A.D. 81–96), brought on severe persecution for the early church. The apostle John encouraged the persecuted Christians of Smyrna to be "faithful unto death" and they would receive a "crown of life" (Rev. 2:10).

Smyrna, known today as Izmir, is the chief city of Anatolia and one of the strongest cities in modern Turkey. Excavations in the central part of Izmir have uncovered a Roman marketplace from the second century A.D.

SNAIL, SNAKE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SNARE—a device for trapping birds and small animals; figuratively, anything alluring and attractive that entangles the unwary (Job 18:8–10). In the Old Testament, the pagan gods of the Canaanites became a snare to Israel (Judg. 2:3). In the New Testament, the leaders of the church were warned not to fall into the "snare of the devil" (1 Tim. 3:7).

SNOW—solid precipitation in the form of white crystals originating in the upper atmosphere. Snow is relatively rare in the land of Israel. Although snow is mentioned frequently, the Bible records only one instance where snow actually fell. Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, "went down and killed a lion in the midst of a pit on a snowy day" (2 Sam. 23:20).

Snow-covered Mount Hermon was visible year-round from many parts of the Holy Land. This served as the source of the Jordan River and much of Israel’s water supply (Jer. 18:14). Snow is noted for its whiteness (Num. 12:10), cleanness (Job 9:30), and refreshing coolness (Prov. 25:13). The Bible uses snow as a symbol of cleansing (Job 9:30), purity (Is. 1:18), and brilliance (Dan. 7:9).

SNUFFDISHES, SNUFFERS (see WICK-TRIMMERS).

SO [soh]—a king of Egypt whom Hoshea, the last king of Israel (ruled about 732–723 B.C.), tried to enlist as an ally against Assyria (2 Kin. 17:4). Some scholars identify So with Sib’e. In 720 B.C. this Egyptian king allied himself with Hanunu, the king of Gaza, against Sargon of Assyria. Sargon soundly defeated this coalition at the Battle of Raphia, about 32 kilometers (20 miles) south of Gaza. Other scholars regard So as the name of a city, Sais, in the western delta of Egypt. This was the residence of Tefnakhte, an Egyptian ruler during the days of King Hoshea. If this theory is correct, then 2 Kings 17:4 would read: “He had sent messengers to So [Sais], to the king of Egypt.”

SOAP—an alkaline substance used as a cleaning agent. The prophet Jeremiah referred to soap as a symbol of people’s inability to purify themselves: Soap can accomplish an external cleansing, but more is required (Jer. 2:22). Malachi spoke of God as a fuller, or laundryman, who would purge His sinful people with soap (Mal. 3:2). Job felt that God was determined to find him guilty and that no amount of washing or cleansing with soap or water could cleanse him (Job 9:30).

The exact nature of the soap used in Bible times is open to question. Most scholars believe the alkaline used to make it came from plants.

SOBER—marked by self-control; of sound moral judgment. Sober Christians deny themselves worldly pleasures (Titus 2:12). This allows them to be always alert, able to guard against Satan’s attacks (1 Pet. 5:8) and ready to receive the revelation of Christ (1 Pet. 1:13).

SOCHOH, SOCO, SOCOH [SOW koe]—the name of three cities and one man in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the lowland of Judah (Josh. 15:35), also spelled Shochoh (1 Sam. 17:1, KJV), and Shoco (2 Chr. 11:7, KJV). It has been identified with Khirbet ’Abbad, about 23 kilometers (14 miles) southwest of Bethlehem.
2. A city in the hill country of Judah (Josh. 15:48). Its site is Khirbet Shuweikeh, about 16 kilometers (10 miles) southwest of Hebron.
3. A city in one of Solomon’s administrative districts (1 Kin. 4:10). It is present-day Tell er-Ras, about 16 kilometers (10 miles) northwest of Samaria.
4. A son of Heber listed in the genealogy of Judah (1 Chr. 4:18; Shocho, KJV). A comparison with Joshua 15:48–56, however, suggests that Sochoh (1 Chr. 4:18) may be a city rather than a person. If so, this Sochoh would be identical with Sochoh No. 2.

SODA—a form of sodium bicarbonate. According to Proverbs, a person who sings songs to a person with a heavy heart is like one who pours vinegar on soda (Prov. 25:20; nitre, KJV).

SODI [SOW dih] ([God is] my secret counsel)—the father of Gaddiel (Num. 13:10).

SODOM [SOD um]—a city at the southern end of the Dead Sea destroyed because of its wickedness (Gen. 10:19; Rom. 9:29). Together with her sister cities—Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim, and Zoar—Sodom formed the famous pentapolis of the plain or circle of the Jordan (Gen. 10:19; 13:10; 14:2) in the valley that surrounded the Dead Sea (Gen. 14:3).

Although Sodom was a notoriously wicked city, when Lot separated himself and his herdsmen from Abraham, he chose to pitch his tent toward Sodom (Gen. 13:5–13). This was because the fertile plain that surrounded the city “was well watered everywhere” (Gen. 13:10).

When Sodom was plundered by CHEDORLAOMER, the goods and captives he carried away had to be rescued by Abraham (Gen. 14:11, 21–24). However, the wickedness of the people of the city continued, and God finally had to destroy Sodom.

Fire and brimstone fell from heaven and consumed Sodom and Gomorrah and the other cities of the plain. When Lot’s wife looked back at Sodom, she was instantly changed into a pillar of salt (Gen. 19:26).

Early tradition held that the northern end of the Dead Sea was the Valley of Sodom. But the geological conditions of the southern end of the Dead Sea matched those of the area around Sodom. Salt formations, asphalt, and sulfur are found in large quantities here. Many scholars believe the cities of the plain may be located beneath the shallow end of the Dead Sea. The basin surrounding the shallow southern end of the Dead Sea is fed by five streams, including the Wadi Zered (Num. 21:12), which would have provided for a fertile, well-watered plain. In addition, Zoar, one of the cities of the plain (Gen. 13:10), is reported by the Jewish historian Josephus to have been visible during his time at the southern end of the sea. Other scholars have recently claimed that the most likely site for the cities of the plain is on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea opposite Masada.

The sin, vice, and infamy of Sodom and the judgment of God on this city is referred to often throughout the Bible (Is. 1:9–10; Ezek. 16:46–49; Amos 4:11; Rom. 9:29).

SODOM, VINE OF (see VINE OF SODOM).

SODOMITE, SODOMY [SAHD um ite, SAHD uh me]—one who practices sodomy; unnatural sexual intercourse, especially that between two males. These English words are derived from SODOM, an ancient city in the land of Canaan noted for such depraved activities.

The men of Sodom came to Lot’s house, demanding that he allow them to have sexual relations with two men inside (Gen. 19:5). But Lot refused. The next day Lot escaped from Sodom and God destroyed the city because of its great sin (Gen. 19).

SOJOURNER (see FOREIGNER).

SOLDIER (see ARMY; OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

SOLOMON [SAHL uh mun] (peaceful)—the builder of the temple in Jerusalem and the first king of Israel to trade commercial goods profitably to other nations; author of much of the Book of Proverbs and perhaps also the author of the Song of Solomon and Ecclesiastes.

Solomon succeeded David his father as king of Israel. Solomon's rise met with widespread approval from the people, but David's officials were slow to accept the new king. They did warm up considerably, however, when they realized David was determined to anoint Solomon as his heir. Solomon became Israel's king because God had told David that Saul's heirs would not follow him to the throne. Thus, Solomon became king although there was no clear precedent for his succession.

According to the chronology in 1 Kings 11:42, Solomon was about twenty years old when he was crowned. He assumed leadership of Israel at a time of great material and spiritual prosperity. During his forty-year reign (970–931 B.C.), he expanded his kingdom until it covered about 50,000 square miles—from Egypt in the south to Syria in the north to the borders of Mesopotamia in the east.

Great Beginnings. One of the first things Solomon did as king was to go to Gibeon to offer sacrifices to the Lord. God appeared to the new king at night and asked him, "What shall I give thee?" Solomon asked for an understanding heart to judge the people of Israel and the ability to tell good from evil. God not only granted Solomon's request, but He also promised him riches and honor if he would walk in the steps of his father (1 Kin. 3:4–15).

Solomon organized Israel much as David had done, but he enlarged and expanded its government. He divided the country into twelve districts, each of which was responsible for providing the court with regular supplies one month out of the year, with a supply officer in charge of each district. As the years passed, Solomon's court reached a standard of luxury that had never existed in Israel's history.

Wisdom. Solomon is usually remembered as a wise man. His Proverbs and his "Song of Songs" demonstrate his deep knowledge of the natural world (plants, animals, etc.). He also had a profound knowledge of human nature, as demonstrated by the two women who claimed the same child. His suggestion that the child be physically divided between the two was a masterful strategy for finding out who was the real mother (1 Kin. 3:16–28). Solomon's concern with the ethics of everyday life is evident in his Proverbs. They show that Solomon loved wisdom and was always trying to teach it to others. They also indicate he was a keen observer who could learn from the mistakes of others.

Solomon’s sayings in these Proverbs are so true that they sound almost trite today. Their clarity sometimes hides their depth. During his lifetime, Solomon’s fame as a man of wisdom spread to surrounding lands, and leaders came from afar to hear him speak. When the Queen of Sheba came to test his wisdom, he answered all her questions with ease. After she saw the extent of his empire and the vastness of his knowledge, she confessed that she had underestimated him (2 Chr. 9:1–12).

Solomon’s Temple. One of Solomon’s first major feats was the construction of the TEMPLE in Jerusalem as a place for worship of the God of Israel. The task was enormous, involving much planning and many workers. A work force of 30,000 was employed in cutting timber from the cedars of Lebanon. Also working on this massive project were 80,000 cutters of stone in the quarries of Jerusalem, 70,000 ordinary workers, and many superintendents. Gold, silver, and other precious metals were imported from other lands. Hiram, king of Tyre, sent architects and other craftsmen to assist with the project. The building was completed after seven years. The temple was famous not for its size—since it was relatively small—but for the quality of its elaborate workmanship (1 Kings 6–7).

After the temple was completed, Solomon planned an elaborate program of dedication. He invited the leaders of all twelve tribes to attend as he presided over the ceremony. The ARK OF THE COVENANT was brought into the most sacred place in the temple as a cloud filled the room to hide God’s presence. King Solomon then blessed the crowd, recounted the history of the building of the temple, and offered long prayers of dedication while standing at the altar. This reveals the admirable spirit of devotion in Solomon’s heart. The dedication ceremony lasting seven days was followed by observance of the Feast of Tabernacles (1 Kings 8–9).

Immediately after the dedication, the Lord appeared to Solomon once again. He assured the king that his prayers had been heard and that the temple had been blessed. He also warned Solomon that the divine favor and protection which had been bestowed upon Israel would continue only if their faith remained uncorrupted by other beliefs. If idolatry should be introduced, Israel would be punished and the temple would be destroyed (1 Kin. 9:1–9).

Other Buildings. After completing the temple, Solomon built the palace complex, a series of five structures that took 13 years to complete. He also built many cities to assist the development of his trade empire. Among these were Tadmor (also called Palmyra) and Baalath (also called Baalbek) in Syria. To protect his kingdom, he built fortresses and lodgings for his army. These fortifications, especially the ones at Jerusalem, Gezer, Megiddo, and Hazor, had strong double walls and massive gateways.

Commercial Enterprises. Trade with other nations was another of Solomon's contributions to the nation of Israel. The international situation was favorable for a strong leader to emerge in Israel; traditional centers of strength in Egypt and Syria were at an all-time low. Solomon entered into trade agreements with a number of nations, increasing Israel's wealth and prestige.

Although Solomon had a strong army, he relied upon a system of treaties with his neighbors to keep the peace. Egypt was allied with Israel through the marriage of Solomon to the daughter of the Pharaoh. The seafaring cities of Tyre and Sidon were also united to Israel by trade agreements.

Some of Israel's trade was conducted overland by way of camel caravans. But the most significant trade was by sea across the Mediterranean Sea through an alliance with Tyre. Solomon's ships apparently went as far west as Spain to bring back silver.

Soon Solomon became the ruler of a huge commercial empire. Archaeologists believe that Solomon's trading may have brought him into conflict with the Queen of Sheba. One purpose of her famous visit to Solomon may have been to establish trade agreements between Solomon's kingdom and her own nation (1 Kin. 10:1–13).

Solomon's Sins. Solomon's reign brought changes not only to Israel but also to his own life. Near the end of his life, the king lost the ideals of his youth, becoming restless and unsatisfied. The Book of Ecclesiastes, proclaiming that "all is vanity" ("meaningless," NIV), supports the view that the world's wisest man had become a pathetic figure in his old age.

Solomon's greatest sin was his loss of devotion to the God of the Hebrew people. In this, he fell victim to his own trade agreements. By custom, beautiful women were awarded to the most powerful member of a treaty to seal the covenant. The constant influx of wives and concubines in Solomon's court led eventually to his downfall.

Thus, Solomon broke the Mosaic Law and violated the warning not to stray from the path of his father David.

The large number of foreign women in Solomon's court made many demands upon the king. He allowed these "outsiders" to practice their pagan religions. The result was that Jerusalem, and even its holy temple, was the scene of pagan practices and idol worship (1 Kin. 11:1–13).

Solomon's own faith was weakened. Eventually he approved of, and even participated in, these idolatrous acts. The example he set for the rest of the nation must have been demoralizing. This unfortunate error was a severe blow to the security of Solomon's throne and to the nation he had built.

The End of Solomon's Throne. Years before Solomon's death, his heavy taxation of the people brought unrest and rebellion. Surrounding nations began to marshal their forces to free themselves of Israel's tyranny, but the most serious uprising came from within the nation itself. When Solomon's son Rehoboam ascended the throne after his father, Jeroboam, a young leader who had been exiled to Egypt, returned to lead a successful civil war against him. The result was a division of Solomon's United Kingdom into two separate nations—the southern kingdom of Judah and the northern kingdom of Israel.

Solomon's Character. In many ways, Solomon's forty-year reign as king of the Hebrew people is a puzzle. In his early years he was both noble and humble—undoubtedly one of the best rulers of his day. Although he was surrounded by wealth and luxury as a young man, he seemed to be a person of honor and integrity. He was the first king in Israel who was the son of a king. The glory of his empire was a reflection of his own royal tastes, which he satisfied through a shrewd and successful foreign policy.

Unfortunately, Solomon was not strong enough to withstand the temptations that go along with a long life of luxury. His contribution to the nation of Israel is figured largely in material terms. He made Jerusalem one of the most beautiful cities of the ancient world, and he will always be remembered as a great builder. The tragedy is that after the building of the temple, Solomon did very little to promote the religious life of his people.

SOLOMON, WISDOM OF (see APOCRYPHA).

SOLOMON'S POOLS—three storage reservoirs, probably constructed some time after the reign of King Solomon, to provide water for the capital city of Jerusalem (Eccl. 2:6).

SOLOMON'S PORCH—the name of two porches associated with the temple in Jerusalem:

1. The outer corridor of Solomon's temple (1 Kin. 6:3, KJV; portico, NIV).

2. A roofed portico on the east side of Herod's temple in Jerusalem (John 10:23; Solomon's Portico, REB; Solomon's Colonnade, NIV).

SOLOMON'S SERVANTS—Canaanites who served as forced laborers during the reign of King Solomon of Judah (1 Kin. 9:20–22). These people labored in the stone quarries and did much of the difficult construction work on Solomon's massive building projects. The descendants of Solomon's servants returned with the NETHINIM (temple servants) from the captivity in the time of Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:55–58). On their return from Babylon, they did lowly jobs in the temple.

SON—the male offspring of a husband and wife. The birth of a son brought great joy to the Hebrew family, because a family's heritage and inheritance was preserved through its sons. The word "son" is also used in a figurative sense in the Bible. Occasionally it refers to remote relatives and dwellers in a specific place, as in the "sons of Javan" (Gen. 10:4). Also see FAMILY.

SONG OF SOLOMON, THE—an Old Testament book written in the form of a lyrical love song. Some interpreters believe this song speaks symbolically of the love of God for the nation of Israel. But others insist it should be interpreted literally—as a healthy expression of romantic love between a man and a woman. No matter how the book is interpreted, it is certainly one of the most unusual in the Bible. Its title, "the song of songs" (1:1), implies it was the loveliest and best-known of all the songs of Solomon.

Structure of the Book. The Song of Solomon is a brief book of only eight chapters. But in spite of its brevity, it has a complicated structure that sometimes confuses the reader. Several different characters or personalities have speaking parts within this long lyrical poem. In most translations of the Bible, these speakers change abruptly with no identification to help the reader follow the narrative. But the NKJV clears up this confusion by publishing identification lines within the text. This helps the reader gain a clearer understanding of this beautiful song.

The three main parties with speaking parts in this long poem are: (1) the groom, King Solomon; (2) the bride, a woman referred to as “the Shulamite” (6:13); and (3) the “daughters of Jerusalem” (2:7). These women of Jerusalem may have been royal servants who served as attendants to Solomon’s Shulamite bride. In this love song, they serve as a chorus to echo the sentiments of the Shulamite, emphasizing her love and affection for Solomon.

In addition to these main personalities, the brothers of the Shulamite bride are also mentioned in the poem (8:8–9). These may have been her stepbrothers. The poem indicates she worked under their command as “the keeper of the vineyards” (1:6).

This beautiful love song falls naturally into two major sections of about equal length—the beginning of love (chaps. 1–4) and the broadening of love (chaps. 5–8).

In the first section, the Shulamite tells about Solomon’s visit to her home in the country in the springtime (2:8–17). She also recalls the many happy experiences of their courtship when she visited Solomon in his palace in Jerusalem (2:4–7). She thinks about the painful separations from his love during this time (3:1–5), as well as the joyous wedding procession to Jerusalem to become the king’s bride (3:6–11). Solomon also praises his bride-to-be in a beautiful poem on the magic and wonder of love (chap. 4).

In the second section of the book, the love of the Shulamite and Solomon for each other continues to deepen after their marriage. She has a troubled dream when he seems distant and unconcerned (5:2–8). But Solomon assures her of his love and praises her beauty (6:4—7:9). Longing to visit her country home (7:10—8:4), she finally makes the trip with Solomon; and their love grows even stronger (8:5–7). The song closes with an assurance of each to the other that they will always remain close in their love.

Authorship and Date. Traditionally, authorship of the Song of Solomon has been assigned to Solomon, since the book itself makes this claim (1:1). But some scholars reject this theory. They insist it was a later collection of songs attributed to Solomon because of his reputation as a writer of psalms and proverbs (1 Kin. 4:32). A careful analysis of the internal evidence, however, gives support to the view that Solomon wrote the book.

Solomon is mentioned by name several times in the song (1:1, 5; 3:7, 9, 11; 8:11–12), and he is specifically identified as the groom. The book also gives evidence of wealth, luxury, and exotic imported goods (3:6–11)—a characteristic of his administration. The groom of the song also assures the Shulamite bride that she is "the only one" (6:9) among his "sixty queens and eighty concubines" (6:8)—probably a reference by Solomon to his royal harem. At the height of his power and influence, Solomon was known to have 700 wives and 300 concubines (1 Kin. 11:3).

This internal evidence supports the traditional view that Solomon himself wrote this song that bears his name. It must have been written early in his reign, probably about 965 B.C.

Historical Setting. With his large harem, how could King Solomon write such a beautiful love song to one specific wife? Perhaps his union with the Shulamite woman was the only authentic marriage relationship Solomon ever knew. Most of his marriages were political arrangements, designed to seal treaties and trade agreements with other nations. In contrast, the Shulamite woman was not a cultured princess but a lowly vineyard keeper whose skin had been darkened by her long exposure to the sun (1:6). Yet, she was the bride to whom Solomon declared, "How much better than wine is your love, and the scent of your perfumes than all spices!" (4:10).

This has a real message about the nature of true love. Authentic love is much more than a surface relationship; it extends to the very core of one's being. Love like this cannot be bought and sold like some commodity on the open market. Solomon had many wives, but the Shulamite may have been the only one with whom he enjoyed a warm, enriching relationship.

Theological Contribution. The great message of the Song of Solomon is the beauty of love between a man and a woman as experienced in the relationship of marriage. In its frank but beautiful language, the song praises the mutual love that husband and wife feel toward each other in this highest of all human relationships.

The sexual and physical side of marriage is a natural and proper part of God's plan, reflecting His purpose and desire for the human race.

This is the same truth so evident at the beginning of time in the Creation itself. God created man and woman and brought them together to serve as companions and to share their lives with one another: "Therefore a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). Like the Book of Genesis, the Song of Solomon says a bold "yes" to the beauty and sanctity of married love.

But this book also points beyond human love to the great Author of love. Authentic love is possible in the world because God brought love into being and planted that emotion in the hearts of His people. Even husbands and wives should remember that the love they share for one another is not a product of their human goodness or kindness. We are able to love because the love of God is working in our lives: "In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another" (1 John 4:10–11).

Special Considerations. The symbols and images that the groom uses to describe the beauty of his Shulamite bride may seem strange to modern readers. He portrays her hair as "a flock of goats, going down from Mount Gilead" (4:1). Her neck, he says, is like "the tower of David, built for an armory, on which hang a thousand bucklers" (4:4).

In his use of these symbols, the groom is reflecting the cultural patterns of the ancient world. To those who lived in Solomon's time, the rippling effect of a flock of goats moving down a hillside was, indeed, a thing of beauty. And a stately tower atop a city wall reflected an aura of stability and nobility. The Shulamite woman would have been very pleased at such creative compliments from her poetic groom.

Scholars are not certain of the exact meaning of the phrase, "the Shulamite" (6:13), which has come to be used as a title for the bride in this song. Since the word is a feminine form of the Hebrew word for "Solomon," perhaps Shulamite simply means "Solomon's bride." Because the poem makes several references to Lebanon (3:9; 4:8, 11, 15; 5:15; 7:4), some scholars believe she came from this mountainous territory along the Mediterranean coast in northwestern Palestine.

SONG OF SONGS (see SONG OF SOLOMON, THE).

SONG OF THE THREE YOUNG MEN (see APOCRYPHA).

SONS OF GOD—a phrase with three different meanings in the Bible:

1. In the Book of Job the phrase is used for angelic or nonhuman beings (Job 1:6; 2:1). These sons of God presented themselves before God in what might be called a heavenly assembly. Satan appeared with them, although this does not necessarily mean he was one of the “sons of God.” Thus the stage was set for the telling of the story of Job.
2. The phrase, “sons of God” appears in the New Testament as a name for people who are in a covenant relationship with God. This exact phrase never appears with this meaning in the Old Testament, although the idea is implied. For example, God referred to the scattered children of Israel, whom He promised to gather together again, as His sons and daughters (Is. 43:6; 45:11).

The classic New Testament passage where this phrase occurs is Romans 8:12–19. The apostle Paul encouraged the Christians at Rome to live not "according to the flesh," but "by the Spirit," because those who "are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God" (v. 14).

The process is described as one of adoption, by which the believer becomes a child of God, and thus an heir of God, a joint-heir with Christ (Gal. 4:5; Heb. 2:10; 12:7). Other passages use the phrase "children of God" with the same basic meaning (John 1:12; Phil. 2:15; 1 John 3:1–2).

3. The third usage of the phrase occurs in Genesis 6:1–4. Certain "sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful; and they took wives for themselves of all whom they chose" (v. 2). The offspring of these unions are described as "giants," "mighty men," and "men of renown" (v. 4). The question centers on the identity of these "sons of God" mentioned in this passage. There are two basic possibilities. The phrase could refer to nonhuman beings such as those mentioned in Job (1:6; 2:1). Or, the phrase may be an unusual way of referring to human beings.

   The context of the verse gives important clues that the "sons of God" in this case are not angelic beings. Nowhere else in the Bible is there even a hint that nonhuman and human beings can mate. There are many parallels in pagan thought, but none in biblical thought. A second clue occurs right in the passage itself. The Hebrew verb in verse two translated as "took them wives" is the standard verb in the Old Testament for marriage. In the New Testament, Jesus stated that angels do not marry (Matt. 22:30). Thus, "sons of God" in this passage must refer to human beings.

SOOT—the fine, black powder, consisting chiefly of carbon, that gives smoke its distinct color. The Nazirites of Jerusalem, once "brighter [purer, NRSV] than snow and whiter than milk," became degraded, said the prophet Jeremiah, so that "now their appearance is blacker than soot" (Lam. 4:7–8; a coal, KJV).

SOP—KJV word for a piece of bread that Jesus dipped in the common dish and then handed to Judas at the Last Supper (John 13:26–30; piece of bread, NKJV, NIV). In Bible times, a small piece of bread like this often served as a makeshift spoon (Ruth 2:14).

SOPATER [SOW pa tur]—a Christian from Berea who accompanied the apostle Paul from Greece to the province of Asia (Acts 20:4; son of Pyrrhus, NRSV). Sopater may be the Sosipater who joined Paul in sending greetings to fellow Christians (Rom. 16:21).

SOPHERETH [so FEH reth] (scribe)—a servant of Solomon whose descendants returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:55; Hassophereth, NRSV; Neh. 7:57).

SORCERY, SORCERER (see MAGIC, SORCERY, AND DIVINATION).

SORES (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

SOREK [SOW reck] (choice vine)—the valley in southern Palestine where DELILAH, Samson's mistress, lived (Judg. 16:4). The valley contained such sites as Timnah, where another of Samson's lovers lived; Zorah, Samson's birthplace; and Beth Shemesh, a fortified outpost near the border of Philistia.

SORREL—a color of a distinct reddish-brown shade or an animal of this color (Zech. 1:8). Also see COLORS OF THE BIBLE.

SORROW—extreme sadness or mental distress; the opposite of joy. The psalmist spoke of the shadows of sorrow that hung over his life when he felt persecuted by people (Ps. 16:4) or rejected by God (Ps. 38:17). In the New Testament, the apostle Paul spoke of a "godly sorrow" (2 Cor. 7:10) for sin that can lead to repentance and a renewed relationship with God.

SOSIPATER [soh SIP ah tur]—a believer who joined the apostle Paul in sending greetings to the Roman Christians (Rom. 16:21). Sosipater may be the same person as SOPATER (Acts 20:4).

SOSTHENES [SOS thuh knees]—the ruler of the synagogue at Corinth during the apostle Paul's first visit to this city (Acts 18:17). When the Roman ruler of the area refused to deal with the angry mob's charges against Paul, they beat Sosthenes. This may be the same Sosthenes as the one greeted by Paul in one of his Corinthian letters (1 Cor. 1:1). If so, he must have become a Christian some time after the mob scene in his city.

SOTAI [SOW tih]—a servant of Solomon (Ezra 2:55) whose descendants returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel.

SOUL—a word with two distinct meanings in the Bible:

1. That which makes a human or animal body alive. This usage of the word "soul" refers to life in the physical body. The best example of this usage are those passages in the New Testament in which the Greek word for soul is translated as "life." "For whoever desires to save his life [soul] will lose it," Jesus declared, "but whoever loses his life [soul] for My sake and the gospel's will save it. For what will it profit a man if he gains the whole world, and loses his own soul?" (Mark 8:36–37).

   This idea is also present in the Old Testament. For example, the soul of a dying person departed at death (Gen. 35:18). The prophet Elijah brought a child back to life by stretching himself upon the child three times and praying that God would let the child's soul come back into him (1 Kin. 17:19–23).
2. The word soul also refers to the inner life of a person, the seat of emotions, and the center of human personality. The first use of the word soul in the Old Testament expresses this meaning: "And the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being (soul)" (Gen. 2:7). This means more than being given physical life; the biblical writer declares that man became a "living soul," or a person, a human being, one distinct from all other animals.

   The soul is described as the seat of many emotions and desires: the desire for food (Deut. 12:20–21), love (Song 1:7), longing for God (Ps. 63:1), rejoicing (Ps. 86:4), knowing (Ps. 139:14), and memory (Lam. 3:20).

   In the New Testament, Jesus spoke of his soul as being "exceedingly sorrowful" (Matt. 26:38). Mary, the mother of Jesus, proclaimed that her soul "magnifies the Lord" (Luke 1:46). John prayed that Gaius would “prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers” (3 John 2).

SOUTH (see DIRECTION).

SOUTH GATE (see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE).

SOUTH RAMOTH [RAY mahth]—a form of RAMAH.

SOUTH, THE (see NEGEV).

SOVEREIGNTY OF GOD—a theological term that refers to the unlimited power of God, who has sovereign control over the affairs of nature and history (Is. 45:9–19; Rom. 8:18–39). The Bible declares that God is working out His sovereign plan of redemption for the world and that the conclusion is certain. Immediately after the Fall He talked about the curse of human sin and specified the cure for it. To the serpent He said, “I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her seed; He shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise His heel” (Gen. 3:15). The whole redemptive story of the Bible is the fulfillment of this prophecy by the sovereign God, as Paul clearly teaches in Romans 8–11.

The story of redemption from Genesis to Revelation is possible only because the sovereign God loves the created world, fallen though it is, and is able to do something about it. Without the sovereign love of the Father ministered to us through the Son and the Holy Spirit, there would be no real human freedom and no hope of everlasting life.

SOW (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SOWER, SOWING (see AGRICULTURE).

SPAIN [spane]—the large peninsula of Europe, now comprising Spain and Portugal, at the western end of the Mediterranean Sea. The Phoenicians had established trading posts here by the time the Israelites conquered Canaan. The Greeks called this peninsula Iberia and the Romans referred to it as Hispania.

By New Testament times Spain was a part of the Roman Empire. The apostle Paul had a deep desire to visit Spain and preach the gospel

(Rom. 15:24, 28). This reflects his plan to preach the gospel and establish the church throughout the Roman Empire. But whether he actually visited Spain is uncertain.

SPAN (see WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

SPARKS—fiery particles thrown from a fire or burning substance (Is. 1:31; 50:11). Eliphaz, one of Job’s friends, remarked, “Man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward” (Job 5:7).

SPARROW (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SPEAR (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

SPECK—a splinter or chip of wood (Matt. 7:3–5; Luke 6:41–42; mote, KJV; speck of sawdust, NIV; speck, REB). Jesus used the word in his parable about self-righteous people who looked for specks of dust in the eyes of other people while ignoring entire planks—logs or beams of wood—in their own eyes. He was referring to the hypocrisy of people who try to improve others while remaining blind to their own faults.

SPECKLED—several different colors mixed together; spotted or mottled in appearance. As payment for Jacob’s work, Laban gave Jacob all the speckled livestock from his herds (Gen. 30:32–39; 31:8, 12; dappled, REB).

SPECTACLE—an object of curiosity or contempt (Nah. 3:6; Heb. 10:33). The apostles of Christ were made a spectacle to the world and ridiculed because of their faith (1 Cor. 4:9). The same Greek word translated as spectacle here is translated as theater in Acts 19:29, 31. The verb form of this word is used in Hebrews 10:33. It means to make a public show of or to expose to public shame.

SPELT (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SPHERE—a field or range of influence. God assigned to the apostle Paul his sphere of work (2 Cor. 10:13–16), an area of activity (v. 15, NIV) that included Corinth.

SPICE, SPICES—sweet-smelling plant substances used as incense, holy anointing oil, cosmetics, and perfume. Such spices were also used to prepare bodies for burial.

Myrrh, cinnamon, calamus (or aromatic cane), and cassia were mixed with pure olive oil to make a holy anointing oil (Ex. 30:23–33). This was used to anoint items of worship in the temple or tabernacle sanctuary. Holy anointing oil was also used to consecrate Aaron, the high priest, and his sons for their service in the priesthood.

Stacte, onycha, and galbanum were mixed with pure frankincense to make incense or perfume. This was placed in the tabernacle of the congregation where God would meet with Moses (Ex. 30:34–36).

Spices were also used to prepare bodies for burial (2 Chr. 16:14). Nicodemus brought “a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds” (John 19:39), with which he prepared the body of Jesus for burial after His death on the cross.

Most spices used in Canaan came from Southern Arabia (Ezek. 27:22), but some came from Syria (Gen. 37:25). Spices were valuable and expensive, and they were considered a luxury among the Jewish people. The disciples rebuked a woman for her indulgence when she anointed Jesus with a costly oil. But Jesus replied, “Let her alone. . . . She has done what she could. She has come beforehand to anoint my body for burial” (Mark 14:6, 8).

SPIDER (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SPIES—agents who operate in undercover fashion to obtain information about the enemy. Spies are mentioned in two specific places in the Old Testament.

In Numbers 13–14 Moses sent twelve men into the land of Canaan to gather information about its manpower, defenses, and fertility. They returned forty days later with samples of fruit and produce of the land. Their opinion was unanimous concerning the fertility of Canaan: “It truly flows with milk and honey” (Num. 13:27). But they were divided on whether the land should be invaded. Because of their lack of faith in God, the Hebrew people were forced to wander for forty additional years in the wilderness.

Spies are also mentioned in Joshua 2. After the Israelites had crossed the Jordan, Joshua sent two men to gather information about the city of Jericho (Heb. 11:31; James 2:25).

SPIKENARD (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SPINDLE—a round stick with tapered ends used to form and twist the yarn in hand spinning. The spindle and the DISTAFF are the most ancient of all instruments used in the craft of spinning (Prov. 31:19). About eight to twelve inches long, spindles were used to guide the thread as it was fashioned into cloth. The weaver sometimes turned the spindle by rolling it across her thigh. Also see CLOTH.

SPINNING—the art of twisting natural fibers and converting them into yarn or thread for making cloth. Among the Hebrew people, as in many ancient cultures, spinning was the work of women. Spinning was done by hand, because the spinning wheel was unknown at that time. In hand spinning the DISTAFF and SPINDLE were used.

The wool or flax was wound on the distaff, which was stuck upright in the ground or held under the arm, and the thread was drawn out by hand. The spindle, which had a circular rim to steady it when revolving, was attached to the thread being drawn out from the distaff. By rotating the spindle, the spinner twisted the thread.

SPIRIT—a word with three distinct meanings in the Bible:

1. The word is used as a general reference in the New Testament to the spirit of human beings (Matt. 5:3; Rom. 8:16; Heb. 4:12). Jesus made several specific references to His spirit in a human sense (Mark 2:8; John 11:33), as did Paul (Acts 17:16; 2 Cor. 2:13). Paul sometimes referred to the spirits of those to whom he wrote (Gal. 6:18; 2 Tim. 4:22).
2. A second common usage of the word is in reference to good and evil spirits, meaning the beings other than God and humans. An example of a good spirit is an angel (Ps. 104:4). The Bible also contains many references to evil spirits (Mark 9:25; Acts 19:12–17; Rev. 18:2).
3. The word "spirit" also refers to the Spirit of God, the Holy Spirit. In the Old Testament, the Spirit occasionally came upon people to give them power to do God's will or to enable them to serve God in a special way. For example, the Spirit of the Lord enabled Samson to kill a young lion with his bare hands (Judg. 14:5–6). Earlier the Spirit of God had given Bezaleel wisdom and skill to build the tabernacle (Ex. 31:3). The Spirit of the Lord also enabled the judges to lead Israel to military victory (Judg. 3:10; 11:29) and the prophets to prophesy (Num. 24:2; Ezek. 11:5).

   In the New Testament, the Holy Spirit was an even more active presence among the people of God. The Holy Spirit was the agent of fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies (Acts 1:16; 2:16–21; 3:18; 28:25–27), and He continued to inspire Christian prophets and workers in order to work His will on earth (Acts 2:4; 19:6). The Holy Spirit came upon new Christians (Acts 10:44–48), purified and sanctified them (2 Cor. 3:18; 2 Thess. 2:13), and guided the direction of early Christian missionary work (Acts 10:19–20; 16:6–7).

This Holy Spirit is the Spirit of Jesus (2 Cor. 3:17). A person can relate to Jesus only by means of the Holy Spirit (Rom. 8:9; Gal. 4:6). In the Gospel of John, He is called the Helper (John 14:16–17).

SPIRIT, HOLY (see HOLY SPIRIT).

SPIRITS, FAMILIAR (see MAGIC, SORCERY, AND DIVINATION).

SPIRITS IN PRISON—those to whom Jesus preached in connection with His death and resurrection (1 Pet. 3:19). Several interpretations have been suggested for this puzzling passage.

Some believe the reference is to departed human spirits, especially those of Noah's day who heard preaching by the Spirit or by the preincarnate Christ through Noah. These spirits, who are disembodied, now await final judgment. Others believe the phrase refers to the spirits of the departed saints of the Old Testament to whom Christ, at His death, proclaimed liberty from the bonds of death. However, the Greek word for spirits used in this verse is never applied to human spirits. It is always used to refer to supernatural beings, both good and evil (Luke 10:20; Heb. 1:14).

The most logical explanation of this passage is that Jesus made a proclamation of His victory over death to the rebellious angels who had been placed in prison. His proclamation was also a form of judgment on them because of their sin and rebellion. This idea also seems to be supported by 2 Peter 2:4 and Jude 6.

SPIRITUAL—of the spirit or nonmaterial. The word spiritual refers to nonmaterial things, including a spiritual body (1 Cor. 15:44–46) and spiritual things as distinct from earthly goods (Rom. 15:27; 1 Cor. 9:11). But the most important use of the word is in reference to the Holy Spirit. The Spirit gave the law (Rom. 7:14) and supplied Israel with water and food (1 Cor. 10:3–4).

Our every blessing is from the Spirit (Eph. 1:3), as is our understanding of truth (1 Cor. 2:13–15; Col. 1:9). Our songs should be sung in the Spirit (Eph. 5:19; Col. 3:16), and our ability to understand Scripture correctly is given by the Spirit (Rev. 11:8). We are to be so dominated by the Spirit that we can be called spiritual (1 Cor. 2:15; Gal. 6:1).

SPIRITUAL BLESSINGS (see BLESSINGS).

SPIRITUAL BODY (see BODY, SPIRITUAL).

SPIRITUAL GIFTS—special gifts bestowed by the Holy Spirit upon Christians for the purpose of building up the church. The list of spiritual gifts in 1 Corinthians 12:8–10 includes wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discerning of spirits, speaking in tongues, and interpretation of tongues. Similar lists appear in Ephesians 4:7–13 and Romans 12:3–8.

The apostle Paul indicated that these gifts are equally valid but not equally valuable. Their value is determined by their worth to the church. In dealing with this matter, he used the analogy of the human body. All members of the body have functions, Paul declared, but some are more important than others. The service of each Christian should be in proportion to the gifts that person possesses (1 Corinthians 12–14).

Since these gifts are gifts of grace, according to Paul, their use must be controlled by the principle of love—the greatest of all spiritual gifts (1 Corinthians 13).

SPIRITUALITY—sensitivity or commitment to religious values and sacred matters. In the New Testament a person is spiritual because of the indwelling presence and power of the Holy Spirit and the spiritual gifts He imparts to the believer (1 Cor. 12:1; Col. 1:9).

SPIT, SPITTLE—saliva, the liquid formed in the mouth. Under the Mosaic Law, the spit of certain sick persons was recognized as unclean (Lev. 15:8). Lack of control of one’s own saliva indicated insanity (1 Sam. 21:13).

Spitting in the face was a gesture of contempt, a deliberate insult (Num. 12:14; Job 17:6; 30:10). Isaiah prophesied that our Lord would be so humiliated, as indeed He was (Is. 50:6; Matt. 27:30; Mark 15:19). Jesus Himself had spoken of such humiliation (Mark 10:34; Luke 18:32).

SPLINT—a rigid device, such as a piece of wood or other hard material, used to immobilize a broken bone or to maintain any part of the body in a fixed position. Through the prophet Ezekiel, the Lord declared that He would break the arm of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and would not allow it to be treated with a splint (Ezek. 30:21). This broken arm refers to the defeat of Pharaoh Hophra, who sent an army to relieve the siege of Jerusalem in 588 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, withdrew from the battle just long enough to smash the Egyptian army.

SPOIL (see BOOTY).

SPOKES—the rods or braces that connect the hub and the rim of a wheel (1 Kin. 7:33).

SPOKESMAN—a person who speaks as a representative of another person. When Moses balked at obeying God's call to be a leader of the Hebrews because of his lack of speaking ability, God replied that Aaron would be his spokesman (Ex. 4:14, 16).

SPONGE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SPOONS—KJV word for PANS.

SPORTS (see GAMES).

SPOT—KJV word for a discoloration or blemish on the skin. In Old Testament times, a certain spot on a person's body could indicate the presence of a serious skin disease. The word is also used in connection with sacrificial animals. Only perfect animals—those without spot or blemish—were to be offered to God. This Old Testament terminology is echoed in the New Testament, where Jesus is described as "a lamb without blemish and without spot" (1 Pet. 1:19)—the perfect sacrifice for our sin. Also see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE.

SPRING (see FOUNTAIN).

SPRINKLING—a ceremonial act of consecration. God often commanded that an unclean object be sprinkled with water, olive oil, or blood (Lev. 14:48–52; Num. 19:18–20). Sprinkling signified that an impurity had been recognized and then cleansed. In symbolic recognition that blood would be required to cleanse a person's sinful heart, the Old Testament priests would sprinkle the blood of an unblemished lamb around the altar (Lev. 3:7–8). These acts were in preparation for the sacrifice of Christ. In His death, Christ would “sprinkle many nations” (Is. 52:15), thus cleansing the hearts of all people who accept Him and ending the necessity for ceremonial sprinkling (Heb. 9:13–14).

SPRINKLING-BOWLS—large bowls, made of bronze, silver, or gold, used in the tabernacle and the temple for holding the grain offering and for receiving the blood of sacrifices (2 Kin. 12:6–14).

SQUAD—a group of four Roman soldiers on guard duty (Acts 12:4; quaternion, KJV). Herod the king (Herod Agrippa I) captured the apostle Peter, put him in prison, and delivered him to “four squads of soldiers.” Each squad of soldiers guarded Peter for a WATCH, which lasted three hours. There were four such watches in any night. Peter was chained between two soldiers; the other two stood guard at the door (Acts 12:6).

STABLE (see STALL).

STACHYS [STAY kis]—a Christian at Rome to whom the apostle Paul sent greetings (Rom. 16:9).

STACTE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

STADION (see WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

STAFF—a short pole or stick used for many different purposes in Bible times. A staff was used much like a walking cane by travelers (Gen. 32:10), the elderly (Heb. 11:21), and the lame (2 Sam. 3:29); but it could also serve as a simple weapon, especially in the hands of a SHEPHERD (1 Sam. 17:40). A staff also symbolized a leader’s authority (Ex. 9:23; Is. 14:5), as well as God’s protection of the believer (Ps. 23:4). Also see ROD.

STAG (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

STAIRS—a series of steps for passing from one level to another. In Bible times, the typical house had a flat roof where many family activities took place. A flight of stairs outside the house provided access to the roof. Stairs, or wide steps on the city streets, also made travel between various levels of the city easier (Neh. 12:37).

Archaeologists have discovered stairs leading down into deep wells or cisterns at such sites as Beth Zur, Gezer, Gibeon, Megiddo, and Qumran.

STAKES—long, pointed pegs used to anchor tents, such as the tabernacle (Is. 33:20). The stakes of the tabernacle were made of bronze. Stakes could be made of metal (such as bronze, iron, or silver), but wood was by far the most common substance used.

STALL—a place where livestock were kept and fed. In biblical times, the animal quarters were usually connected to the house, rather than in separate buildings. In two-story houses domestic animals were usually kept on the ground level; the family lived upstairs.

King Solomon's stables had stalls for thousands of horses (2 Chr. 9:25). King Hezekiah had "stalls for all kinds of livestock" (2 Chr. 32:28).

The Greek word for stall appears only once in the New Testament: Mary wrapped the baby Jesus in swaddling clothes and laid him in a "stall." This word is rendered as "manger" in most translations.

STAMMER—to speak with spasmodic repetitions of syllables and sounds (Is. 32:4; 33:19). The prophet Isaiah realized that the people of Jerusalem had closed their ears to the plain words of God. Therefore, "with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people" (Is. 28:11). Isaiah declared that a barbarian conqueror, uttering a strange, jabbering language, would eventually capture Jerusalem and take God's people into captivity. This prophecy was fulfilled when the Babylonians overran Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

STANDARD—a symbol carried on a pole and raised high in the air, much like a flag, to rally a tribe or a group of warriors in battle (Num. 2:10; Is. 59:19). These standards or ensigns were probably carvings or likenesses of animals raised on a spear or pole (Num. 21:8–9). These were usually set on a hill and often were accompanied by the sound of a trumpet.

The eagle was one of the earliest known standards. In fact, it became the official standard or symbol of the Roman Empire. Other popular animal standards were stags, steers, horses, lions, unicorns, serpents, and wolves. Assyrian armies carried the moon sickle mounted on a spear in honor of their god, Ashur.

STAR—any of the heavenly bodies visible in the night sky. In the Bible the word “star” is used as a generic term for all the heavenly bodies—including stars, planets, comets, and meteors—but excluding the sun and the moon. In this general sense, the phrase “the host of heaven” sometimes refers to all the astronomical phenomena visible in the night sky (2 Kin. 17:16; 21:3–5; 23:4–5). Stars are usually referred to either in connection with God’s power in creation (Gen. 1:16), the promised number of Abraham’s descendants (Gen. 22:17), or God’s power exhibited in judgment (Joel 2:10; Matt. 24:29).

The word “star” is also used as a figure of speech for angels. Job 38:7 speaks of “the morning stars” singing together and all “the sons of God” shouting for joy. The morning stars are a poetic way of speaking of angels. This symbolic usage is most obvious in the Book of Revelation (Rev. 8:10–11; 9:1–2).

STAR OF BETHLEHEM—the heavenly sign by which God announced the birth of Christ. The star is mentioned only in the Book of Matthew in connection with the visit of the wise men (Matt. 2:2, 7, 9–10). “Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? For we have seen His star in the East and have come to worship Him” (v. 2). This star, observed by wise men from the East (probably Mesopotamia), may be what the Mesopotamian prophet Balaam refers to in Numbers 24:17: “A Star shall come out of Jacob.”

Various attempts have been made to explain the star in scientific terms. Since the wise men were Babylonian astrologers, it is reasonable to assume they were men who had seen the star during their regular observations of the heavens. Men who were familiar with the night sky would readily identify any new object.

Some scholars suggest that a supernova, or exploding star, recorded by Chinese astronomers at about the time of Christ, might have led the wise men to Bethlehem. Others argue that a rare alignment of planets in the sky signaled a highly unusual event to the astrologers. The appearance of a meteor or an unidentified comet has also been suggested.

The event as recorded in Matthew indicates the star was a supernatural phenomenon. The Bible clearly declares that the star “went before them, till it came and stood over where the young Child was” (Matt. 2:9). None of the proposed natural explanations fits this description adequately. Matthew obviously understood the star as an occurrence beyond the reach of rationalistic explanations. At the same time, our attention should be focused not on the Star of Bethlehem, but on the Messiah, Jesus Christ, whose birth the star proclaimed.

STARGAZER (see MAGIC, SORCERY, AND DIVINATION).

STARS, THE ELEVEN—a symbolic reference to the eleven brothers of Joseph. Of all his twelve sons, Jacob loved Joseph the most “because he was the son of his old age” (Gen. 37:3). This favoritism aroused the jealousy of Joseph’s brothers. Joseph did not help the situation when he related his dreams of greatness. He told his brothers he had a dream in which “the sun, the moon, and the eleven stars bowed down to me” (Gen. 37:9). This dream came true years later when Joseph arose to become a high official in the Egyptian government. Because of a famine in Canaan, his brothers were forced to go to Egypt to ask Joseph for grain (Genesis 42–45).

STATURE—a person’s height (1 Sam. 2:26). Jesus increased in wisdom and stature (Luke 2:52). Zacchaeus was of short stature (Luke 19:3). The apostle Paul encouraged his readers to measure up to the “stature of the fullness of Christ” (Eph. 4:13). Stature can also refer to one’s age, or span of life. When Jesus said, “Which of you by worrying can add one cubit to his stature?” (Matt. 6:27), He may have been saying that one cannot prolong life by worrying about the time of death.

STATUTE—a decree or law issued by a ruler or governing body, or especially by God as the supreme ruler (Gen. 26:5; Ps. 18:22; Ezek. 5:6).

STAVE—KJV word for POLE.

STEADFASTNESS—stability in commitment or belief. The apostle Paul referred to “the steadfastness of your faith in Christ” (Col. 2:5).

The loss of stability may be avoided if one will “grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ” (2 Pet. 3:18).

STEALING (see LAW).

STEALTH—acting in a secret, undercover way. The apostle Paul said that certain false believers had come into the church by stealth (privily, KJV; secretly, NRSV) to spy out the liberty of the Christian fellowship and make them slaves to the old Jewish law (Gal. 2:4).

STEEL (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

STEPHANAS [STEFF ah nus] (crown-bearer)—a Christian in the church at Corinth who was baptized by the apostle Paul (1 Cor. 1:16). The church at Corinth sent Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus to Paul while he was at Ephesus, informing him of the situation in Corinth. Paul apparently was encouraged by the good news they brought (1 Cor. 16:17).

STEPHEN—one of the first seven deacons of the early church and the first Christian martyr. The story of Stephen is found in Acts 6:7—7:60.

In the period following PENTECOST, the number of Christians in the New Testament church grew steadily. Followers were eventually recruited not only from among the Jews in Palestine but also from among the Jews in Greek settlements. The church had to appoint several men to handle the work of providing aid to these needy Christians.

Stephen was one of the first seven “good and worthy men” chosen to provide relief to these needy Christians from Greek backgrounds. Since Stephen is mentioned first in the list of the seven administrators, he was probably the most important leader in this group. Although they are not specifically named as deacons, these seven men are considered to be the forerunners of the office of deacon that developed later in the early church. Stephen assumed a place of prominence among these seven leaders as the church grew (Acts 6:7).

Stephen was probably critical of the system of Old Testament laws, claiming they had already lost their effectiveness because they had reached fulfillment in Christ. This viewpoint, which Stephen argued very skillfully, brought him into conflict with powerful leaders among the Jewish people. Stephen became well known as a preacher and a miracle worker (Acts 6:8). His work was so effective that renewed persecution of the Christians broke out.

Members of certain Jewish synagogues felt that Stephen had blasphemed Moses and God. They accused him of being disloyal to the temple and rejecting Moses. He was also accused of hostility toward Judaism—a charge that had never been made before against other disciples. In debates the Jews were no match for Stephen; even Saul was outwitted by him. Thus, they resorted to force.

Stephen was arrested and brought before the SANHEDRIN, the Jewish council, where charges were placed against him. False witnesses testified against him. The high priest then asked Stephen if these things were true. Stephen was not dismayed. When he stood before them his face was "as the face of an angel" (Acts 6:15).

The lengthy speech Stephen made in his own defense is reported in detail in Acts 7:2–53. Stephen summarized Old Testament teachings, showing how God had guided Israel toward a specific goal. He reviewed Israel's history in such a way that he replied to all the charges made against him without actually denying anything. This amounted to a criticism of the Sanhedrin itself. Stephen denounced the council as "stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears" and accused them of resisting the Holy Spirit. Then he charged that they had killed Christ, just as their ancestors had killed the prophets. He accused them of failing to keep their own law (Acts 7:51–53).

Stephen's speech enraged the Sanhedrin so that they were "cut to the heart, and they gnashed at him with their teeth" (Acts 7:54). At this moment Stephen had a vision of God in heaven, with Jesus on His right hand. Stephen's fate was sealed when he reported this vision to his enemies. The crowd rushed upon him, dragged him out of the city, and stoned him to death (Acts 7:55–58).

Among the people consenting to Stephen's death that day was Saul, who later became the apostle Paul—great Christian missionary to the Gentiles. As he was being stoned, Stephen asked God not to charge his executioners with the sin of his death (Acts 7:59–60).

Stephen's martyrdom was followed by a general persecution that forced the disciples to flee from Jerusalem into the outlying areas. This scattering led to the preaching of the gospel first to the Samaritans and then to the Gentiles in the nations surrounding Palestine.

STEW—a dish of boiled food, usually of vegetables such as lentils, beans, or peas (Gen. 25:29–30, 34; pottage, KJV; stew, NRSV; broth, REB). Jacob bought Esau's birthright for a red stew made of lentils, a dish that would have been part of the everyday diet of that time. Such a stew provided an inexpensive source of protein. A stew, or thick vegetable soup, was eaten by Elisha's disciples (2 Kin. 4:38–40); such a broth was mentioned by the prophet Haggai, along with bread and wine, as a common food (Hag. 2:12).

STEWARD (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

STEWARDSHIP—the management of another person’s property, finances, or household affairs. As far as Christians are concerned, stewardship involves the responsibility of managing God’s work through the church. God has appointed all Christians to be His stewards on earth. Stewardship is not an option, as Paul points out about his own call. Being a steward is a necessary part of believing the gospel, even if it involves sacrificing personal rewards (1 Cor. 9:17).

As the parable of the talents (Matt. 25:14–30) shows, Christians will be held accountable for the way in which they manage God’s affairs as stewards. These matters include extending the church’s ministry through the preaching of the gospel (Col. 1:24–28), supporting the church financially (Acts 4:32–37), and ministering to the sick and needy (Matt. 25:31–46).

STIFF-NECKED—stubborn, unyielding, arrogant, and proud. The phrase “a stiff-necked people” is a figure of speech for rebellion and disobedience taken from stubborn domestic animals, such as oxen that turn their shoulders away from the yoke and refuse to follow directions. Israel was stiff-necked in refusing to obey the Word of God and in following after idolatry and immorality (Deut. 31:27; Neh. 9:16–17, 29; Jer. 17:23).

STOCKS—an instrument of confinement and punishment. Stocks were heavy wooden frames with holes into which a person’s arms and legs were clamped to hold the prisoner in a sitting position. A collar was also used at times to hold the head in place. The prophet Jeremiah was put into stocks (Jer. 20:2–3; 29:26) as was (probably) Hanani the seer (2 Chr. 16:10, REB; prison, NKJV). The author of the Book of Job spoke of stocks as a symbol of suffering (13:27; 33:11).

In New Testament times, stocks used by the Romans had a number of holes so the prisoner’s legs could be spread widely, causing great discomfort. Paul and Silas were thrown into prison and put in stocks at Philippi. Instead of moaning in pain, they sang hymns and praised God until they were freed by an earthquake (Acts 16:24–26).

STOICISM [STOW uh siz em]—the doctrine of the Stoics, a Greek school of philosophy that taught that human beings should be free from passion, unmoved by joy or grief, and submissive to natural law, calmly accepting all things as the result of divine will.

Stoicism was one of the most influential Greek schools of philosophy in the New Testament period. It took its name from the Stoa Poikile, the portico or lecture place in Athens where its founder, Zeno, taught.

The Stoics believed that people are part of the universe, which itself is dominated by reason. God is identified with the world-soul and so inhabits everything. Therefore, one's goal is to identify oneself with this universal reason that determines destiny, to find one's proper place in the natural order of things. Since people cannot change this grand design, it is best for them to cooperate and to take their part in the world order. Moreover, they must live above any emotional involvement with life, exemplifying a detached virtue in serving others. Above all, they must be self-sufficient, living life with dignity and pride.

The apostle Paul used the word "self-sufficient" in a radically different sense in Philippians 4:11. Here Paul spoke of the believer's self-sufficiency in God. Paul's speech on the AREOPAGUS, or Mars' Hill (Acts 17:16–34), interacts with Stoic ideas, arguing that the highest good is not internal (in our union with nature) but external (in a right relationship with God).

In his address, Paul quoted one of the Stoic poets (Aratus), who said, "For we are also His offspring" (Acts 17:28). Some of these philosophers ridiculed Paul, but others invited him to address them again about the Christ in whom he believed so strongly (Acts 17:32).

STOMACH—the digestive tract of the body. The word BELLY was preferred by the KJV translators. "Stomach" occurs in the KJV only in 1 Timothy 5:23. Modern versions have used "stomach" instead of "belly" in many instances (for example, Matt. 15:17; Luke 15:16; Rev. 10:9–10).

STONE—a hardened, granite-like mass formed from soil, clay, and minerals. The soil of Palestine was rough and rocky. The most common stones were limestone (Is. 27:9) and flint. Because wood was scarce, city walls, houses (Lev. 14:45; Amos 5:11), palaces (1 Kin. 7:1, 9), temples (1 Kin. 6:7), courtyards, columns, and streets were built of hewn stone.

The abundance of stones cleared from fields (Is. 5:2) provided the people with excellent weapons against their enemies. Stones were thrown on an enemy's field to ruin it and were used to stop up his wells (2 Kin. 3:19, 25; Eccl. 3:5). Knives were made from flint stones. Larger weapons of war, such as slings (1 Sam. 17:40, 49), catapults (2 Chr. 26:15), and bows also made use of stones. Stoning was a common form of capital punishment. Stones served also as boundary and treaty markers (Gen. 31:46; Deut. 19:14; 27:17; Job 24:2) for individuals and nations.

In addition to their practical uses, stones were also used for sacred, spiritual purposes. Memorials were built from large stones to mark an unusual event (Gen. 28:18; 31:45; Josh. 4:9; 1 Sam. 7:12). Stone mounds also marked graves (2 Sam. 18:17). Small, smooth stones occasionally became a part of the Israelites' idol worship (Is. 57:6). The Hebrew people were apparently influenced by surrounding pagan cultures and believed that meteorites were sacred. While the Gentiles believed that meteorites talked and served as protection from evil, the Israelites often dedicated them to God (Gen. 28:18–22; Is. 19:19) but did not worship them as heathen nations did.

In a figurative way, stones imply firmness and strength (Gen. 49:24), as well as insensibility and hardness (1 Sam. 25:37; Ezek. 11:19). "Jesus Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone" (Eph. 2:20) describes best the stone's symbolism for Christ as the strength and foundation of Christianity. The references to the cut stone from the mountainside in Daniel 2:34–35, 45 have been interpreted to represent Christ and the church.

• Both large and small stones were used in the construction of walls, fortresses, residences, and public buildings in Bible times.

STONECUTTER, STONEMASON, STONEWORKER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

STONES, PRECIOUS (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

STONING—the usual method of capital punishment in ancient Israel. People who broke specific statutes of the law of Moses were put to death by stoning. Stoning was usually carried out by the men of the community (Deut. 21:21), upon the testimony of at least two witnesses, who would then cast the first stones (Deut. 17:5–7; John 8:7; Acts 7:58). Stoning usually took place outside the settlement or camp (Lev. 24:14, 23; 1 Kin. 21:10, 13).

Acts punishable by stoning were certain cases of disobedience (Josh. 7:25), child sacrifice (Lev. 20:2), consultation with magicians (Lev. 20:27), blasphemy (John 10:31–32), Sabbath-breaking (Num. 15:32–36), the worship of false gods (Deut. 13:10), rebellion against parents (Deut. 21:21), and adultery (Ezek. 16:40).

Jesus once encountered a woman who was about to be stoned because she had been found guilty of adultery. Her accusers walked away when He declared, “He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first” (John 8:7).

STOOL (see BIRTHSTOOL).

STORAGE CITY, STOREHOUSE—a supply depot or warehouse for the storage of government supplies, such as food, treasures, and military equipment (1 Chr. 26:15; 27:25; 2 Chr. 11:11). The difference between a storehouse and a storage city may be only one of size or complexity.

The Hebrew slaves in Egypt were forced to build PITHOM and RAAMSES, “supply cities” for Pharaoh (Ex. 1:11; store cities, REB, NIV; treasure cities, KJV; storage cities, NASB). Various kings of the Israelites also built storage cities. These included Solomon (1 Kin. 9:19; 2 Chr. 8:4, 6), who built facilities to house his chariots, horses, and cavalry; Baasha (2 Chr. 16:5–6); Jehoshaphat (2 Chr. 17:12); and Hezekiah (2 Chr. 32:27–29).

The concept of the storage city or storehouse is at least as old as the time of Joseph. He established a food reserve that saved Egypt from famine (Genesis 41). During seven years of plenty, Joseph had the Egyptian farmers store one-fifth of their produce. Then, when seven years of famine struck, the grain in the storehouses kept starvation from the land.

In the ancient world, storehouses were sometimes situated underground. Oil and wine were often kept in cellars. At Megiddo archaeologists discovered a large underground silo pit for grain storage. This pit, with a capacity of almost 13,000 bushels of grain, apparently dates back to the time of King Solomon.

The prophet Malachi accused the people of his day of robbing God by withholding from Him their tithes and offerings (Mal. 3:8–9). Then he said, “Bring all the tithes into the storehouse” (Mal. 3:10). “Storehouse” apparently refers to a special treasury chamber, probably within the temple precincts and administered by LEVITES.

STORK (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

STOVE—an oven for cooking (Lev. 11:35). Stoves as such were not used in biblical times, since cooking was done over an open fire or in an oven. Ovens ranged from a heated stone on which dough was spread to cone-shaped earthenware structures. The bread dough was spread on the heated surface of these ovens for baking.

STRAIGHT STREET—a main thoroughfare in the ancient city of Damascus where the apostle Paul was visited by Ananias (Acts 9:11).

STRAIN OUT—to separate impurities from a liquid, such as wine (Matt. 23:24; strain at, KJV; strain off, REB). In this verse, Jesus criticized the hypocrisy of the Pharisees. He described them as zealously trying to strain a gnat out of a liquid before they drank it, while at the same time swallowing a camel—a graphic picture of their sin and self-righteousness.

STRANGER (see FOREIGNER).

STRANGLING—to kill an animal without bloodshed by choking or squeezing its throat and cutting off its oxygen supply. According to the law of Moses, the Israelites were forbidden to eat "flesh with its life, that is, its blood" (Gen. 9:4). Therefore, they could not eat strangled animals because these still contained blood.

STRAW (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

STREETS—roadways through cities and villages. In Bible times, streets were little more than twisting paths, dusty or muddy and unpaved. The psalmist spoke of taking revenge against his enemies, whom he cast out "like dirt in the streets" (Ps. 18:42).

Business streets of biblical cities were lined with open-front stores, each devoted to one kind of trade or selling items of one specific type. Proof of this comes from the time of the prophet Jeremiah. King Zedekiah threw Jeremiah in prison with the sarcastic words, "Give him daily a piece of bread from the bakers' street, until all the bread in the city [is] gone" (Jer. 37:21).

A few of the larger cities of Bible times had wide streets or major thoroughfares, similar to modern boulevards. Three rows of columns divided the street called Straight in Damascus (Acts 9:11) into three avenues. Similar boulevards also existed in such major cities as Babylon in Babylonia and Alexandria in Egypt.

• This street in the Roman city of Pompeii had raised stepping stones that allowed pedestrians to avoid standing rainwater. The stones were spaced to allow chariot wheels to pass between them.

STRINGED INSTRUMENTS (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

STRIPES—blows or lashes dealt out as punishment during Bible times. Stripes could be inflicted with blows from a rod or lashes from a whip. Mosaic Law spelled out that no more than 40 blows should be given to a condemned person (Deut. 25:3). Isaiah’s prophecy of the future Messiah declared, “By His stripes we are healed” (Is. 53:5). Jesus fulfilled this prophecy (1 Pet. 2:24).

STRONG DRINK (see DRINK, STRONG).

STUBBLE—that part of grain plants left in the ground after the crop has been harvested. God’s judgment upon unrighteousness is often pictured as a destroying fire raging through a field of stubble (Ex. 15:7; Joel 2:5). In several places, the NKJV translates as straw (Job 21:18; 41:29; 1 Cor. 3:12) or chaff (Ps. 83:13).

STUMBLING BLOCK—a cause of stumbling; anything that leads others to sin. The word is used literally (Lev. 19:14) as well as symbolically (Jer. 6:21; Zeph. 1:3). Christ was a stumbling block to the unbelieving people of His own nation, just as He continues to be a stumbling block today to all those without faith in Him (1 Cor. 1:23). Christians may also be stumbling blocks when they exercise their freedom at the expense of those who are weak (1 Cor. 8:9). Also see OFFENSE.

SUAH [SUE ah]—a son of Zophah, of the tribe of Asher (1 Chr. 7:36).

SUBTLE (see CRAFTINESS).

SUBURBS (see COMMON-LANDS).

SUCATHITES [SUE kuh thites]—a form of SUCHATHITES.

SUCCOTH [SUK oth] (booths)—the name of a town and a district in the Bible:

1. An ancient town in Transjordan where Jacob built booths for his cattle and a dwelling for his family after he and Esau separated (Gen. 33:17). During the period of the judges, this town was severely punished by Gideon for refusing to help him as he chased the defeated Midianites (Judg. 8:5–16).
2. A district or region where the people of Israel pitched their first encampment after leaving Rameses in Egypt (Ex. 12:37). Succoth may be the same place as Thuku, the area around the Egyptian city of PITHOM. Some scholars identify this Succoth with Tell el-Maskhutah, west of the Bitter Lakes, in the northeastern part of the Nile delta.

• The mound of Tell Deir Alla, identified as Succoth—a city where Jacob lodged (Gen. 33:17).

SUCCOTH BENOTH [SUK oth bih NAHTH] (see GODS, PAGAN).

SUCHATHITES [SUE kah thites]—a family of scribes who lived at Jabez in the territory allotted to Judah (1 Chr. 2:55; Sucathites, NASB, NIV, NRSV). The Suchathites were descendants of Caleb.

SUFFERING—agony, affliction, or distress; intense pain or sorrow. Suffering has been part of the human experience since people fell into sin (Genesis 3). The Psalms, one-third of which are laments, include graphic descriptions of suffering (Psalm 22). A theme of the Book of Job is the problem of suffering and why God permits the righteous to suffer.

The Bible makes it clear that some suffering is the result of evil action or sin in the world. This type of suffering came upon people after the FALL in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 3:16–19). But some suffering is not related to the past. It is forward-looking in that it serves to shape and refine God's children (1 Pet. 1:6–7; 5:10). The Book of Hebrews declares that Jesus learned obedience by the things He suffered (Heb. 5:8), and that He was perfected through suffering (Heb. 2:10). Suffering has the potential of demonstrating God's power (2 Cor. 12:7). Those who suffer are in a position to comfort others (2 Cor. 1:3–6).

Suffering also helps believers to identify with Christ, which is more than suffering for Christ. Through persecution and tortures, people have suffered for the sake of Christ and His kingdom (Phil. 1:29; 2 Thess. 1:5; 2 Tim. 3:12). To suffer with Christ, however, is another matter. Paul speaks of the "fellowship of His [Christ's] sufferings" (Phil. 3:10). Believers share in the suffering of Christ in the sense that through suffering they identify with Christ. To be a disciple involves suffering like the Master. Christ as Lord and His believers as disciples are bonded even further through the experience of suffering.

Another type of suffering is that endured for the sake of others. The prophet Isaiah portrayed the Suffering Servant as sin-bearer when he declared, "By His stripes we are healed" (Is. 53:5). Jesus announced repeatedly that His suffering was His mission (Matt. 17:12; Luke 24:46). Looking back to the cross, Peter explained that "Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God" (1 Pet. 3:18).

SUFFERING SERVANT (see SERVANT OF THE LORD).

SUICIDE—the act of taking one's own life. The word "suicide" does not occur in the Bible. Neither are there any laws relating to it. But the Bible does give several examples of suicide, including Saul and his armorbearer (1 Sam. 31:4–5); and Zimri, king of Israel, who "burned the king's house down upon himself with fire" (1 Kin. 16:18), when Tirzah was besieged. In the New Testament, Judas killed himself because of his shame and grief at betraying Jesus (Matt. 27:5).

Human life is sacred, since we are created in God's image (Gen. 1:27). God as the Creator has power over all existence. He alone should control life, whether it continues or stops (Job 1:21; 1 Cor. 6:19).

SUKKIIM [SOOK ih eem]—a tribe that fought in the army of Shishak, king of Egypt (2 Chr. 12:3; Sukkims, KJV; Sukkites, NIV). Along with the Lubim and Ethiopians, the Sukkiim were part of Shishak's army when he attacked Jerusalem in the days of King Rehoboam of Judah (about 926 B.C.).

SUKKIMS [SOOK eems]—a form of SUKKIIM.

SUKKITES [SOOK ites]—a form of SUKKIIM.

SULPHUR (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

SUMER [SOO mehr]—the southern division of ancient BABYLONIA, consisting primarily of the fertile plain between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. This area is now the southern part of modern Iraq.

In the Old Testament Sumer is the territory referred to as “Shinar” (Gen. 10:10; Is. 11:11; Zech. 5:11) or Chaldea (Jer. 50:10; Ezek. 16:29). The term Shinar is also used to describe the land of the great tyrant and empire builder Nimrod, who founded his kingdom in Babel, Erech (Sumerian Uruk), Accad (Akkad or Agade), and Calneh, “in the land of Shinar” (Gen. 10:10). The Tower of Babel was also built “in the land of Shinar” (Gen. 11:2), or Sumer.

Archaeologists believe the inhabitants of ancient Sumer, or the Sumerians, developed the first high civilization in the history of mankind, before 3000 B.C. The Sumerians were the first people to develop writing, consisting of a form of CUNEIFORM script. Major cities of ancient Sumer included the biblical UR (Gen. 11:28, 31; 15:7), the city from which Abraham migrated.

Before 2100 B.C. Sumer was conquered by invading tribesmen from the west and north. A mighty warrior named Sargon (later known as Sargon I, Sargon the Great, and Sargon of Akkad) conquered this area and extended his empire from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean Sea. He founded a new capital city, Agade, which was, for more than half a century, the richest and most powerful capital in the world. This magnificent capital was destroyed during the reign of Naram–Sin, Sargon’s grandson, by the Guti, semibarbaric mountain tribes.

Sumer enjoyed a brief revival at Ur (about 2050 B.C.), only to decline before the rise of the Elamites, a people to their east. Finally, in about 1720 B.C., HAMMURAPI of Babylon united Sumer (the southern division of ancient Babylon) and Akkad (the northern division of ancient Babylon) into one empire. This conquest by Hammurapi marked the end of ancient Sumer. But the cultural and intellectual impact of the Sumerians continued until after the PERSIANS became the dominant force in this part of the ancient world.

SUN—a star that sustains life on the earth, being the source of heat and light. Usually the word “sun,” as used in the Bible, refers to the heavenly body that rises in the morning, shines through the day, and sets in the evening (Gen. 19:23; Ps. 121:6). But the biblical writers also used “sun” in a symbolic or figurative sense. In Psalm 19:4–6 and Isaiah 45:6, the sun speaks of universality. And in Psalm 84:11, God is called “a sun and shield,” meaning He sends light and heat and also gives protection.

God created the sun (Gen. 1:16), and therefore it was not worthy of worship by people. Along with the moon, the sun’s duty was to regulate the days and the seasons. The sun was also under God’s control. On at least two occasions, He interrupted the sun’s regular course for His purposes. The sun stood still for Joshua at Gibeon (Josh. 10:13), and it went backwards for Hezekiah when he prayed for an extension of his life (Is. 38:8).

God also has the power to darken the sun. The prophet Joel predicted He would do that on the day of the LORD (Joel 2:31). Three of the gospel writers (Matt. 27:45; Mark 15:33; Luke 23:44–45) tell us that the sun grew dark at the Crucifixion. At the end of the world, God will extinguish the sun (Rev. 6:12; 9:2; 21:23; 22:5).

SUN, WORSHIP OF—a form of pagan idolatry commonly practiced in the ancient world, especially by the Assyrians, Chaldeans (Babylonians), Egyptians, and Phoenicians. Worship of the sun and other heavenly bodies was specifically forbidden among the Hebrew people (Deut. 4:19). But a few cases of this form of idolatry did occur among the nation of Israel during their long history.

King Manasseh of Judah built altars for worship of “all the host of heaven” during his administration (2 Kin. 21:5). The prophet Ezekiel also portrayed the abomination of men who had rejected the temple of the Lord and had turned their faces toward the east to worship the rising sun (Ezek. 8:15–16).

SUNDAY (see LORD’S DAY).

SUNDIAL—a device for measuring time by the position of the sun in the sky. The word dial (KJV), or sundial (NKJV), occurs only twice in the Old Testament, both times in connection with the miracle of the healing of King Hezekiah (2 Kin. 20:11; Is. 38:8). The word itself is derived from a Hebrew verb that means “to go up.” This root word appears frequently in the Old Testament in its usual meaning of “step” or “stair.”

Some scholars suggest that the sundial mentioned in the Bible actually is not a dial at all but a stairway. This stairway may have been constructed in such a way that a shadow cast by a stationary post or pillar climbed the stairs at the rate of one every half hour. The Greek historian, Herodotus, mentions the use among the Babylonians of a sundial marked off in this fashion.

SUNDIAL OF AHAZ—timekeeping device by which God gave Hezekiah the sign that he would be healed (2 Kin. 20:1–11; Is. 38:4–8). Hezekiah asked that the sun’s shadow go backward ten degrees or steps as a sign of his healing. This “dial” was probably not a small disk, as modern readers might suppose, but an escalating stairway on which the sun cast its shadow higher and higher during the day. The biblical writers identified this stairway with Ahaz, probably because it was constructed during his reign. Also see SUNDIAL.

SUPERSCRIPTION (see INSCRIPTION).

SUPERSTITIOUS—KJV word used by the apostle Paul in his speech at Athens for the religious beliefs of the Greeks (Acts 17:22; very religious, NKJV, NIV). While the Athenian philosophers worshiped many pagan gods, Paul complimented them because of their respect for divine matters and challenged them to exercise faith in Jesus Christ.

SUPH [soof] (reeds)—a place in the wilderness where Moses explained the Law to the Israelites before they entered the Promised Land (Deut. 1:1; Red Sea, KJV).

SUPHAH [SOO fah]—a place near the border of Moab associated with the years of the wilderness wandering in Israel’s history (Num. 21:14).

SUPPER, LORD’S (see LORD’S SUPPER).

SUR [soor]—an unidentified gate in Jerusalem, probably leading from the king’s palace to the temple area (2 Kin. 11:6). The parallel passage calls it the Gate of the Foundation (2 Chr. 23:5). Also see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE.

SURETY—a pledge made to secure against default; one who contracts to assume the debts of another in the event of default. The practice of one man standing as surety for another apparently was prevalent in Old Testament times, judging from the frequency with which the Book of Proverbs warns against its dangers (Prov. 17:18; 22:26). And certainly as financial advice, the proverbial warnings are sound.

But there is a surety more significant than a financial pledge. Judah, for example, pledged to be surety for Benjamin (Gen. 43:9), thus taking responsibility for the life of his brother. This is the kind of far-reaching responsibility the psalmist had in mind when he asked God to stand as surety for him in the face of his oppressors (Ps. 119:122). This is the kind of responsibility Christ took by dying and becoming for all people "a surety of a better covenant" (Heb. 7:22; guarantee, NIV, NASB; guarantees, REB).

SURNAME—a nickname added to a person's formal name. It often is derived from one's physical characteristics, temperament, occupation, or hometown. Jesus gave Simon the surname, Peter ("a rock"). To James and John He gave the surname, Boanerges, meaning "Sons of Thunder" (Mark 3:16–17). Judas, the disciple who betrayed Jesus, was surnamed Iscariot, which may mean, "Man from Kerioth."

Also see NAME.

SUSA [SUE suh]—a form of SHUSHAN.

SUSANCHITES [SOO san kites]—the inhabitants of SHUSHAN, who were among those who repopulated Samaria after the city fell to the Assyrians (Ezra 4:9, KJV).

SUSANNA [SUE zan nah] (a lily)—a woman who provided food for Jesus and His disciples during His early ministry in Galilee (Luke 8:3). No further details of her life are known. Also see APOCRYPHA.

SUSI [SOO sih]—the father of Gaddi, of the tribe of Manasseh (Num. 13:11).

SWADDLE—to wrap in swaddling clothes. These were long, narrow strips of cloth wrapped around a newborn infant to restrict movement (Job 38:9; Luke 2:7, 12). Also see SWADDLING BAND.

SWADDLING BAND—a long, narrow strip of cloth used to wrap a newborn baby. To swaddle a child was to wrap an infant in strips of cloth, much like narrow bandages. This was believed to ensure the correct early development of the limbs. Thus, swaddling was a mark of parental love and care, while the need for swaddling symbolized the humble, dependent position of the newborn child (Ezek. 16:4).

Although she could offer Jesus no better crib than an animal's manger, Mary showed her mother's love by wrapping her baby in swaddling clothes (Luke 2:7, 12). The baby Jesus in swaddling bands reminds us of the great humility of our Lord in becoming a human being for our sakes.

SWALLOW, SWAN (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SWEARING (see OATH).

SWEAT—perspiration of the human body, caused by heat, physical labor, or emotional strain. In the Garden of Eden, Adam and Eve disobeyed God by eating the fruit of the forbidden tree. Because of this sin, God cursed the ground with thorns and thistles and said to Adam: "In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread till you return to the ground" (Gen. 3:19). Sweat symbolized the curse placed on mankind at the Fall.

In the Garden of Gethsemane, Jesus was in agony, or great fear, as he approached the cross. As he prayed earnestly, "His sweat became like great drops of blood" (Luke 22:44). Scholars are not sure whether this means Jesus perspired heavily or whether His sweat was actually mixed with blood. Such "bloody sweat" is a rare condition known medically as diapedesis—the passing of blood through the intact walls of blood vessels.

Also see BLOODY SWEAT.

SWEET INCENSE—a fragrant substance usually offered with animal sacrifices and burned daily at the altar of the tabernacle and the temple in connection with the morning and evening sacrifices (Ex. 30:1–10).

Sweet incense was also burned on special occasions such as the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:12).

The ingredients for sweet incense are given in Exodus 30:34–36 as stacte, onycha, galbanum, and frankincense. Stacte is probably myrrh. If so, stacte and frankincense became two of the three precious gifts brought by the wise men at Christ's birth.

Myrrh, galbanum, and frankincense were obtained from desert plants by stripping bark from the bush to let the sap ooze out. The sap became a resinous gum that yielded fragrant odors when burned. Onycha was a portion of the shell of a sea mollusk that gave off a fragrant odor when roasted.

SWELLING—a discoloration or inflammation of the skin. Under the leprosy laws of the Book of Leviticus, a certain swelling of the skin could indicate the presence of this disease (Lev. 13:2–43; 14:56). The priests were charged with the responsibility of examining these inflammations to diagnose the disease. Also see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE.

SWIFT, SWINE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

SWORD (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

SYCAMINE, SYCAMORE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

SYCHAR [SIGH car]—a city of Samaria (see Map 6, B–3) mentioned in connection with Jesus' visit to Jacob's Well (John 4:5). The reference indicates it was not a well-known spot—"a city of Samaria which is called Sychar." The fame of Sychar is associated with Jesus' conversation with the woman who came there to draw water, her conversion, and the conversion of many of the Samaritans during His two days in the area. Many scholars identify Sychar with ancient SHECHEM (Gen. 33:18). Jacob's Well, one of the best attested sites in Palestine, is situated on the eastern edge of the valley that separates Mount Gerizim from Mount Ebal.

SYENE [sigh EE neh]—a city in southern Egypt on the east bank of the Nile River near the border of Ethiopia (Ezek. 29:10). Syene is the site of modern Aswan, about 890 kilometers (550 miles) south of Cairo.

SYMBOL—an object or signal that stands for something else; usually a visible image that represents a concept. Obviously, concepts are invisible. We cannot point to the idea of democracy as we can point to a car or a dog. A symbol, however, gives us a visible point of reference for these invisible things.

Thus, the American flag is a symbol of those democratic ideas that unite fifty states under one government. Similarly, the rose has long been used by poets to symbolize the idea of beauty; and the lion has come to symbolize courage and strength. The Christian tradition has as its greatest symbol the cross, an object that represents the redeeming work of Christ.

In the Bible we should distinguish between three main kinds of symbols. The first, the poetic symbol, is found throughout the Bible, but especially in the Book of Psalms and the Song of Solomon. These symbols help define the way in which the writer views himself and his world. For instance, David—recognizing that people are vulnerable to the attack of sin—sees God as a "fortress of defense" (Ps. 31:2, 71).

The second kind of symbol, the symbol of religious ceremony, occurs most often in the PENTATEUCH, particularly in the Book of Exodus. These symbols were directly ordained by God for the benefit of the Israelites as they worshiped Him. They served as daily reminders of God's invisible presence and plan. Thus, the cherubim placed on the ARK OF THE COVENANT (Ex. 25:18–19) were symbols of God's presence among His people. The daily sacrifices were acts symbolic of God's plan of redemption.

The third kind of symbol, the symbol of prophetic vision, is found in books of prophecy, and in particular in the books of Ezekiel, Daniel, Zechariah, and Revelation. Like the ceremonial symbols, these symbols serve to reveal God's plan for humankind; but their emphasis is the future rather than the present. These symbols are generally very colorful images that evoke the mystery of the unseen future.

SYNAGOGUE—a congregation of Jews for worship or religious study. The word synagogue comes from the Greek synagoge (literally, "a leading or bringing together"), which refers to any assembly or gathering of people for secular or religious purposes. Eventually the term came to refer exclusively to an assembly of Jewish people.

The synagogue was a place where local groups of Jews in cities and villages anywhere could gather for the reading and explanation of the Jewish sacred Scriptures and for prayer. The original emphasis was not on preaching but instruction in the Law of Moses.

Function. A distinction must be made between synagogue worship and tabernacle or temple worship. The tabernacle of Moses' day was enclosed by a fence of curtains. None but the priests dared enter this area. The people brought their animals for sacrifice to the gate of the court but could go no further. The later temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel, and Herod (the temple of Jesus' day) did have courts or porches where the people could pray or have discussions (Matt. 26:55; Luke 2:46; Acts 2:46), but the temple precincts proper were for the priests only.

In synagogues, on the other hand, the people took part in worship, reading of the Scriptures, and prayer. By New Testament times synagogues were very numerous and popular. They became centers of community activity, playing a number of roles.

Sometimes they were local courts of justice that could sentence the offender as well as inflict the punishment of scourging (Matt. 10:17; 23:34). The synagogue was also an elementary school for teaching children to read. It was, no doubt, a center of social life for the Jewish community.

Origin. The Jewish captives in Babylon did not have a temple or an altar, but they longed for communion with God. This longing is clearly reflected in Psalm 137 and Daniel 9. It was only natural for them to meet in local groups for prayer and the reading of the Scriptures.

When the Jews returned to their land, Ezra the scribe promoted the reading of the Law and prayer (Nehemiah 8). But Zerubbabel had rebuilt the temple, giving the Palestinian Jews a worship center. Many Jews, however, lived in Persia (see ESTHER, BOOK OF) and others had fled to many countries. By about 300 B.C. a large community of Jews lived in Alexandria, Egypt. A marble slab found near Alexandria bears an inscription dedicating a synagogue to Ptolemy III (Euergetes), who ruled Egypt from 246–221 B.C., and his queen Berenice. This is the first solid evidence of a true synagogue. Within Palestine one of the oldest known synagogues is the one uncovered on Masada near the Dead Sea, built in the first century B.C.

In Jesus' day synagogues were common even in the villages. They must have been well-established with the customary officials and order of worship (Luke 4:14–30; 8:41). Paul found synagogues in cities throughout the Roman Empire (Acts 9:2, Damascus; 13:5, Salamis; 13:14, Antioch in Pisidia; 14:1, Iconium; 17:1, Thessalonica; 17:10, Berea; 17:16–17, Athens; 19:1, 8, Ephesus). This shows that the synagogue had existed for a long time.

The Building. Three types of synagogue architecture developed. The earliest was the basilica. This was a rectangular building with one of the narrower ends facing Jerusalem. The door on this side was a triple door with elaborate stone carvings above the doors. Inside were two rows of three or four pillars each. This made a large central seating area with two smaller areas, one on each side, beyond the pillars.

Along the side walls were some stone benches, but not enough to seat the congregation. Probably the people sat cross-legged on the floor as they still do in Eastern mosques. At the far end of the room was a platform that held the Torah Ark, a cabinet or chest that contained the scrolls of the sacred Scriptures, wrapped in linen. Here too were the lamps and the lectern on which the scrolls were laid to be read in the service. Arranged in front were the "best seats" of the elders (Matt. 23:6).

The basilica had an awkward problem. Prayer and the reading of Scripture had to be done facing Jerusalem, but the entrance door was toward Jerusalem; therefore, the Torah Ark had to be carried or wheeled to the other end of the building. The congregation had to stand up and turn around during the reading and prayer.

The broadhouse solved this problem by making the long side of the building face Jerusalem. This created room on each side of the door for a platform for the Torah Ark and the bema or lectern. Most broadhouses did not have pillars.

The apsidal synagogue was arranged like a modern church or synagogue. On the side toward Jerusalem was a platform with a niche or alcove back of it for the Torah Ark. The main door was at the rear.

The Officials. A synagogue could not be formed unless there were at least ten Jewish men in the community. Some synagogues paid ten unemployed men a small sum to be present at every service to be sure this rule was met. The following officials served in a synagogue.

Elders—A board of elders made up of devout and respected men of the community regulated the policies of the synagogue.

Ruler of the synagogue—There could be one or more rulers. They were appointed by the elders. Their duty was to attend to matters concerning the building and the planning of the services.

Minister—The minister (chazzan) had several duties. He had charge of the sacred scrolls that were kept in the Ark; he attended to the lamps; and he kept the building clean. If an offender was found guilty by the council of elders, the chazzan administered the number of lashes prescribed for the scourging. During the week the chazzan taught elementary children how to read.

Delegate of the congregation—This was not a permanent office. Before each service the ruler chose a capable person to read the Scripture lesson, to lead in prayer, and to preach or comment on the Scripture. Jesus was selected for this office in the synagogue in Nazareth (Luke 4:16–20).

Interpreter—The Scriptures were written in ancient Hebrew. By Jesus' day the people spoke Aramaic, a language related to Hebrew but different enough to call for an interpreter.

Almoners—These were two or three persons who received money or other necessities for the poor.

Order of Worship. The customary seating order placed the elders in the chief seats at the platform. Jesus rebuked some of those who loved the best seats merely for the praise and honor they conferred (Matt. 23:6). The front seats in the congregation were for the older spiritual leaders. The younger people and other individuals sat to the rear. A special section was reserved for lepers.

The service began with the recitation of the SHEMA by the people. Shema ("Hear") is the first Hebrew word in the passage in Deuteronomy 6:4–9: "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one!" The Shema includes Numbers 15:37–41 and Deuteronomy 6:4–9; 11:13–21.

The speaker for the day then led the congregation in prayer as they stood facing Jerusalem with hands extended. At the close of the prayer the people said "Amen."

Before the service the minister took from the Torah Ark the scrolls containing the lesson for the day and placed them on the lectern. The chosen speaker stood and read the lesson from the Law of Moses and the interpreter translated it verse by verse into Aramaic. Then the passage from the Prophets was read and translated.

For the commentary or sermon the speaker usually sat down (Luke 4:20). After the sermon, a priest, if one was present, pronounced a benediction and the people said "Amen." If no priest was present, a closing prayer was offered.

Influence. Synagogue worship has influenced both Christian and Moslem worship. The earliest Christians were Jews. Therefore, church worship followed the synagogue pattern with Scripture reading, prayer, and a sermon. In the seventh century A.D. Muhammad learned much from Jewish customs and also spent some time at Bosora or Bostra in the desert east of Gilead where a Christian bishopric was located. Hence, the mosques of Islam reflect worship patterns from both Jewish and Christian services.

SYNAGOGUE, GREAT—in Jewish tradition, an assembly of noted rabbis called together by the scribe Ezra or beginning with him (Nehemiah 8–10). This group supposedly determined what books belonged in the Old Testament. They also originated the prayers and benedictions used in synagogue worship. The Great Synagogue apparently began in the Persian period, an obscure time in Jewish history. Members of the Great Synagogue included Zerubbabel, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi, Mordecai, and Simon the Just. Many scholars doubt the whole tradition.

SYNTYCHE [SIN tih keh]—a woman in the church at Philippi who apparently was in conflict with another church member. The apostle Paul called upon them to settle their differences (Phil. 4:2).

SYRACUSE [SEAR ih coos]—a Greek city (see Map 8, A–2) on the southeast coast of the island of Sicily (Acts 28:12). The apostle Paul spent three days in Syracuse before he proceeded on to Rome as a prisoner.

SYRIA [SIHR ih uh]—a major nation northeast of Palestine that served as a political threat to the nations of Judah and Israel during much of their history (see Map 4, C–2). The name “Syria” comes from the Greek language. The Hebrew language of the Old Testament uses the word “Aram” for the region. Almost 2 percent of the Old Testament was originally written in the Aramaic language.

The boundaries of Syria changed often in biblical times. Often a particular group of Syrians such as those of Damascus or Zobah or else some combination of cities or regions are referred to as “Syria” or “the Syrians” in the Old Testament. Most of these references designate the region that makes up the southeastern part of the modern nation of Syria.

The Syrians (Arameans) were part of the massive migrations of population groups that occurred from about 3000 to 2100 B.C. They eventually settled in several parts of the ancient world, including much of northern Mesopotamia. One group, probably seminomads from the Arabian desert fringes, settled in force in the area north and east of Canaan. It is this group that the Israelites had most contact with during the time of the Israelite kings.

Gradually, these settlements produced the Aramean states known as Hamath, Zobah, and Damascus, each of which was an independent city-state. At times, all of these states were allied together against a common threat, such as that posed by the Assyrians. One or another of these “states” was often at war with Israel, until the Assyrians, under one of their kings, Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.), defeated Syria and annexed it to the Assyrian Empire.

After this conquest, many Syrians were exiled to various parts of the Assyrian Empire, just as many citizens of the northern kingdom of Israel were carried away (2 Kin. 17:23). Some Syrians were even forced to settle in Samaria (2 Kin. 17:24). Thereafter Syria was ruled as a province by Babylonia, Persia, the Seleucids, and Rome in successive conquests by these ancient world powers.

In New Testament times Syria was a Roman province, linked with Cilicia. Syrians were among those who first responded to Jesus’ preaching and healing ministry (Matt. 4:23–24). The gospel spread rapidly in Syria. Many of the places mentioned in the Book of Acts (Damascus, Antioch, Seleucia, Caesarea Philippi) were located in Syria.

Saul of Tarsus (the apostle Paul) was converted in Syria, while he was on the road to Damascus (Acts 9:3). His first missionary journey began from the great church at Antioch of Syria (Acts 13:1–3), and he traveled through Syria on several occasions (Acts 15:41; 18:18; Gal. 1:21).

SYRIAC VERSIONS (see BIBLE VERSIONS AND TRANSLATIONS).

SYRIANS [SIHR ih uns]—inhabitants or citizens of SYRIA, the ancient nation northeast of Palestine. The Hebrew people had many contacts with these people during their history.

Jacob was a Syrian (Deut. 26:5).

During the period of the JUDGES, one of the foreign oppressors of the Israelites was a Syrian (Aramean), Cushan-Rishathaim. He was king of Aram-Naharaim, a kingdom of Syrians in Mesopotamia. The NKJV and the KJV translate the term simply as Mesopotamia (Judg. 3:8, 10). The “gods of Syria” (Judg. 10:6) are mentioned among the various idols the Israelites began to worship at this time, as their faithfulness to the Lord faltered and they were influenced by the Syrians living in Canaan (Josh. 13:13).

David (1010–971 B.C.) fought against and either conquered or subdued several of the Syrian states, including Zoba, Rehob, Tob, Maacah, and Abel of Beth Maachah (2 Sam. 10:8; 20:15). Eventually David made even Damascus a part of his kingdom (2 Sam. 8:5), and he had influence over Toi, king of Hamath (2 Sam. 8:9–10). In fact, David’s victories over the Syrians were probably his most famous military achievements. He killed 18,000 Syrians in the Valley of Salt (2 Sam. 8:13).

Solomon (970–931 B.C.) won a military victory against Hamath Zobah, which some scholars interpret as the allied Syrian city-states of Hamath and Zobah (2 Chr. 8:3–4). He used the area of Hamath as a place to build storage cities—something he would not have done if he did not have military control of the area. Some time later in Solomon’s reign, however, a Syrian named Rezon seized power in Damascus and became an enemy of Solomon (1 Kin. 11:23–25; Rezon is probably to be identified with Hezion, the grandfather of Ben-Hadad, 1 Kin. 15:18).

The Bible says that Rezon “reigned over Syria” (1 Kin. 11:25). This can only mean that Solomon’s power began to wane so that he lost control of Syria. God caused Israel’s kingdom to weaken in order to punish Solomon and Israel for their idolatry (1 Kin. 11:14–40), and the Syrians were part of this process.

Once Rezon (or Hezion) had come to power, most of Syria, except for the area around Hamath, was under the control of Damascus. His son, Tabrimmon, and his grandson, Ben-Hadad I, succeeded him as kings over Syria, reigning in succession through the middle of the ninth century B.C. (1 Kin. 15:18). Ben-Hadad fought major wars with Israel, but was defeated by Ahab (ruled 874–853 B.C.) each time (1 Kin. 20:1–34).

Later in Ahab’s reign, however, Israel and Syria put aside their differences long enough to join a coalition in battle against the Assyrians at Qarqar (853 B.C.), on the Orontes River—a battle that kept the Asyrians from adding Syria and Palestine to the Assyrian Empire. But Ahab’s unwillingness to crush Ben-Hadad I and the Syrians brought on the wrath of God (1 Kin. 20:35–43).

After Hazael (843–796 B.C.) became king of Syria in Damascus by assassinating Ben-Hadad (2 Kin. 8:7–15), the Syrians again were at war with Israel (2 Kin. 8:28) and gained more and more against Israel as God planned (2 Kin. 10:32–33). King Joash of Judah had to pay tribute to Hazael to keep him from destroying Jerusalem (2 Kin. 12:17–18). God had caused the Syrians to turn the tables on Israel (2 Kin. 13:13).

In His mercy, however, God delivered Israel (2 Kin. 13:4) when Jehoahaz (ruled 814–798 B.C.) was king, probably by causing the Assyrians to attack the Syrians, thus relieving Israel. King Joash, or Jehoash (ruled 798–782 B.C.) of Israel was successful in battle against Ben-Hadad II of Syria, as the prophet Elisha had prophesied on his deathbed (2 Kin. 13:14–19, 25). Thereafter, Israel ruled over Syria once again (2 Kin. 14:28) under the powerful Israelite King Jeroboam II (ruled 793–753 B.C.).

When Rezin became king in Damascus, he threw off Israelite control. Then, in alliance with Pekah (740–732 B.C.), king of Israel, he attacked Judah, because King Ahaz (735–715 B.C.) of Judah refused to join a group of allies in rebelling against the control of the Assyrians. The war that followed is called the Syro-Ephraimite War (734–732 B.C.). Ahaz turned directly to the Assyrians for help. The Assyrians captured and annexed Syria (and most of Israel), thus ending the threat to Judah and ending Syria's existence as an independent nation (2 Kin. 16:9).

SYRIAC [SEER ih ack] (see LANGUAGES OF THE BIBLE).

SYRO-PHOENICIAN [sigh row feh KNEE shun]—a Gentile woman whose daughter was healed by Jesus (Mark 7:26). She was from Phoenicia, a nation northeast of Palestine that had been incorporated into the Roman province of Syria—thus the term, Syro-Phoenician. Although she was not a citizen of the Jewish nation, she believed Jesus could heal her daughter. Jesus commended her because of her great faith.

SYRTIS SANDS, THE [SUR tis]—the sandbanks of the northern coast of Africa that posed a danger to ships in Bible times. The ship on which the apostle Paul was traveling was in danger of running aground on these banks (Acts 27:17; the quicksands, KJV; the Syrtis, NRSV; the sandbars of Syrtis, NIV; the shallows of Syrtis, NASB; the sandbanks of Syrtis, REB).

TAANACH [TAY uh nak]—an ancient royal city of the Canaanites (see Map 4, B–3) whose king was conquered and slain by Joshua, but whose inhabitants were not driven out of the land (Josh. 12:21; Judg. 1:27). Tanaach was occupied by the tribe of Manasseh and was assigned to the Levites of the family of Kohath (Josh. 17:11–13; 21:25, Tanach, KJV). According to the Song of Deborah, the kings of Canaan fought against Deborah and Barak at Taanach, but they were defeated (Judg. 5:19).

The ruins of Taanach, Tell Taannek, are on the southwestern edge of the Valley of Jezreel about 8 kilometers (5 miles) southeast of Megiddo.

TAANATH SHILOH [TAY uh nahth SHY loe]—a city between Michmethath and Janoah (Josh. 16:6). The site has been identified as Khirbet Ta'nah el-Foqa, about 11 kilometers (7 miles) southeast of Shechem.

TABBAOTH [TAB ih ahth] (signets)—the head of a family of temple servants who returned from the captivity (Neh. 7:46).

TABBATH [TAB uhth]—a place near Abel Meholah mentioned in connection with Gideon's pursuit of the Midianite army (Judg. 7:22).

TABEEL [TAB ih uhl] (God is good)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. An Aramean in Samaria who protested the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem (Ezra 4:7).
2. The father of the man proposed by Rezin (king of Syria) and Pekah (king of Israel) to be the puppet king of Judah (Is. 7:6).

TABERAH [TAB uh ruh] (burning)—an encampment of the Israelites in the Wilderness of Paran where the Lord burned portions of the camp as punishment for their complaints (Num. 11:3).

TABERING—an archaic English word that means beating, as on a drum. Thus, "tabering upon their breasts" (Nah. 2:7, KJV) is translated "beating their breasts" (NKJV). The action expressed deep anguish.

TABERNACLE [TAB ur nack el]—the tent that served as a place of worship for the nation of Israel during their early history.

On Mount Sinai, after the Lord had given the commandments, judgments, and ordinances to Moses, He instructed Moses to construct the tabernacle. This was to be a center for worship and a place where the people could focus upon the presence of the Lord. This tabernacle was to replace the temporary tent that had been pitched outside the camp (Ex. 33:7–11). God began the description of this building by giving His people the opportunity to participate in its construction. They did this by giving an offering of the needed materials, including a combination of rare and beautiful fabrics and precious metals, along with supplies easily available in the wilderness.

After describing the offering (Ex. 25:1–9), the Lord proceeded to specify in minute detail the pattern for the tabernacle. He began by giving a description of the holiest item in the entire structure: the ARK OF THE COVENANT (Ex. 25:10–22). Other items in the tabernacle for which the Lord gave minute construction details included the seven-branched lampstand (Ex. 25:31–39); the intricate curtains of the tabernacle (Ex. 26:1–25); the veils, and the screen (Ex. 26:1–37); the large bronze altar of burnt offering (Ex. 27:1–8); and the hangings for the courtyard (Ex. 27:9–19).

A brief recipe for the oil to be used in worship is given in Exodus 27:20–21, followed by a description of the priests' garments and consecration (Exodus 28–29). Directions for making the golden incense altar are given in Exodus 30:1–10. After a brief statement about a tax assessment (Ex. 30:11–16), the Lord told Moses to build a bronze laver (Ex. 30:17–21).

Mixed in with these instructions about specific items of the tabernacle are plans for the architecture and design of the building. The tabernacle was in the form of a tent 10 cubits wide and 30 cubits long. It was to be set up with its only entrance toward the east. The tent consisted of a wooden framework made of 46 identical planks 10 cubits long and 1$^1/_2$ cubits wide; there were 20 planks each on the north and south sides. Six of the planks were on the west end, along with two additional planks that were $^1/_2$ cubit wide. All of these planks were acacia wood plated with gold.

Over this framework were four separate coverings that made up the roof of the structure. The first covering was made of fine-twined linen of blue, scarlet, and purple with intricately portrayed CHERUBIM. The second covering was of pure white goats' hair. The third was of rams' skins dyed red. The topmost covering was of material referred to in the NKJV as badger skins. Other English translations suggest that this should be translated porpoise skins, skins of sea cows, or possibly leather.

The tent constructed in this manner was then divided into two rooms divided by an intricate veil of blue, scarlet, and purple linen embroidered with cherubim.

The inner, western room was called the HOLY OF HOLIES. It was 10 cubits square, and it contained only one piece of furniture—the holiest item in the tabernacle, the Ark of the Covenant. The ark was a chest made of acacia wood covered with gold, 2$^1/_2$ cubits long and 1$^1/_2$ cubits in width and height. In addition, a gold border extended above the top of the ark to keep the lid stationary. The ark also had golden rings on each side so it could be transported with poles that were placed through the rings. The lid of the ark was called the MERCY SEAT. Upon it were two gold cherubim that faced each other. The ark contained a copy of the stone tablets with the TEN COMMANDMENTS, a gold pot filled with MANNA; and Aaron's rod that budded.

The outer, eastern room was called the Holy Place. Ten cubits wide and twenty cubits long, it was entered through the blue, scarlet, and purple linen curtains that served as a door. This door was always aligned toward the east. It contained three items. On its western side, next to the veil, was the altar of incense, or golden altar, one cubit square and two cubits high. Upon this altar, made of acacia wood overlaid with gold, the morning and evening incense was burned.

On the southern side of the Holy Place was the seven-branched golden lampstand, or candlestick, comprised of a pedestal, a shaft, and three branches extending to both sides of the shaft. This lampstand was made of a talent of fine gold. On the northern side of the Holy Place was the table for the SHOWBREAD, or bread of the Presence. This table was made of gold-covered acacia wood 2 cubits long, 1 cubit wide, and 1$^1/_2$ cubits high.

Surrounding the main building of the tabernacle was a spacious courtyard 100 cubits long in its east-west direction and 50 cubits wide from north to south. This courtyard was surrounded by a fence 5 cubits high, formed of bronze pillars with silverwork, resting in bronze sockets, placed 5 cubits apart, and hung with fine linen. In the western half of this courtyard the tabernacle itself was to be pitched, and in the eastern half stood two items—the altar of burnt offering or the great bronze altar, and the laver.

The description of the actual building of the tabernacle is recorded in Exodus 35–40. The workers were first enlisted. Then the building of each item of the tabernacle is described in Exodus 36–39. The record of the tabernacle's construction occurs in Exodus 40. Up to this time, the nation of Israel had used a temporary tent called the tabernacle of the congregation; it is mentioned in Exodus 33:7–11. The tabernacle continued to be called the tabernacle of the congregation, among other names, after its construction. When the Israelites pitched camp in the wilderness, the tabernacle was to be placed in the center, with the Levites camping next to it (Num. 1:53). Then the tribes were to be arrayed in specific order on the four sides of the tabernacle (Numbers 2).

Responsibilities for the care and moving of the tabernacle were delegated to various families of the tribe of Levi (Num. 1:50–52; Numbers 3–4). The Levitical family of Kohath was to disassemble the structure and cover the tabernacle furnishings with the badger skins. The tapestries were the responsibility of the family of Gershon. Merari's family had charge of the boards, pillars, foundations, pins, and cords. All these Levitical families were commissioned to care for the sanctuary.

The first day of tabernacle worship is described in Numbers 7–9. The guiding pillar of cloud and fire rested upon the tabernacle when the people were encamped. When the people were on the march, with the pillar serving as their guide, the tribes that camped on the east of the tabernacle were first in marching order. These were Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun. The tabernacle was carried by the assigned family members of Gershon and Merari.

The next group in the marching order were the tribes that camped on the south of the tabernacle. These were Reuben, Simeon, and Gad. Following these, the family of Kohath carried the holy objects of the tabernacle.

Then came the tribes that camped on the west of the tabernacle. These were Ephraim, Manasseh, and Benjamin.

The rear guard of the march was composed of the tribes that camped on the north of the tabernacle. These were Dan, Asher, and Naphtali.

When the tribes were camped, two silver trumpets were used to summon the tribes to gather at the tabernacle. The tabernacle was also the place where the seventy elders advised and counseled the people (Num. 11:16). It was also the place of specific judgments (Num. 12:4) and appointments (Deut. 31:14).

During the conquest of the land of Canaan by the Israelites, the tabernacle remained at Gilgal, while the ark of the covenant was evidently carried from place to place with the armies of Israel. The ark was reported at the crossing of the Jordan (Josh. 3:6), at Gilgal (Josh. 4:11), at the conquest of Jericho (Josh. 6:4), at the campaigns against Ai (Josh. 7:6), and at Mount Ebal (Josh. 8:33).

The tabernacle was finally placed on the site it was to occupy during the duration of the period of conquest and judges, at Shiloh (Josh. 18:1). Here the tribes were assigned their territorial allotments.

As the years passed, certain other structures were added to the tabernacle while it remained at Shiloh. These included living quarters for the priests and Levites who served at the tabernacle. By the end of the period of the judges, during the administration of Eli, at least some of the attendants lived on the premises (1 Sam. 3:3).

During the Israelites’ battle against the Philistines at Aphek, the ark of the covenant was removed from the tabernacle and taken into battle. Lost to the Philistines, it finally came to rest at Kirjath Jearim (1 Sam. 4:1—7:1). It remained here until the time of David’s reign.

With the departure of the ark, the tabernacle lost some of its esteem in the eyes of the Hebrew people (Ps. 78:60). During the reign of Saul, the tabernacle was at Nob (1 Sam. 21:1). From the latter part of David’s reign throughout the fourth year of Solomon’s reign, the tabernacle was at the high place of Gibeon (1 Chr. 16:39; 21:29). When the temple was completed, Solomon had the Levites bring the tabernacle to Jerusalem (1 Kin. 8:4; 2 Chr. 5:5), presumably to be stored in the temple area.

The New Testament uses some terminology and concepts drawn directly from the tabernacle. The supreme event of all the ages is the existence of God’s son in human form. The Bible declares that the Word became flesh and “tabernacled” (Greek word rendered as “dwelt” in the NKJV) among us (John 1:14). In his final speech, Stephen accepted the Old Testament account of the tabernacle as historical (Acts 7:44). In Romans 3:25, Paul used the word “propitiation,” which might also be translated “mercy seat.” Titus 3:5 probably refers to the laver. Revelation 8:3–5 speaks of the golden incense altar. In Revelation 13:6 and 15:5, reference is made to the heavenly tabernacle. Practically every feature of the tabernacle is found in the Book of Hebrews.

TABERNACLE OF THE CONGREGATION (see TABERNACLE OF MEETING).

TABERNACLE OF MEETING—the tent that Moses pitched outside the camp before the TABERNACLE was built (Ex. 33:7). After the tabernacle itself was built, it also was often called by this name (Ex. 38:8), signifying the meeting of God with His people. The phrase is also translated tabernacle of the congregation (Ex. 27:21, KJV) and tent of meeting (NIV, NRSV). Most of the references to the tabernacle of meeting occur in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers.

TABERNACLES, FEAST OF (see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS).

TABITHA [TAB ih thuh]—a form of DORCAS.

TABLE—an article of furniture used for ritual, eating, and money changing. The tabernacle had a table of acacia wood overlaid with gold on which the showbread was placed (Ex. 25:23; Num. 3:31; Heb. 9:2). A table of gold was in the temple (1 Kin. 7:48). Tables for the burnt offering were furnishings of Ezekiel's temple (Ezek. 40:39–43). There was also a table before the sanctuary (Ezek. 41:22; 44:16). The prophet Malachi spoke of the altar as the Lord's table (Mal. 1:7, 12).

Tables were used for serving meals (Judg. 1:7; Is. 28:8). The table depicted on an ivory piece found at Megiddo had legs quite similar to a modern table. Rulers had large groups at their tables. David offered places at his table to those to whom he felt indebted (2 Sam. 9:7–13; 1 Kin. 2:7). Solomon's table was supplied each month by separate officials (1 Kin. 4:27).

In the New Testament period, people reclined at the table (Luke 7:37) during meals. "Serving tables" (Acts 6:2) referred to looking after the material needs of the poor. The tables on which the moneychangers exchanged money were overthrown by Jesus when He cleansed the temple (Matt. 21:12; Mark 11:15; John 2:15).

In a symbolic way, the word "table" is sometimes used to describe abundant provision. The psalmist declared of God, "You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies" (Ps. 23:5).

TABLET—a word with several different meanings in the Bible:

1. The tablets of stone on which God wrote the law given to Moses at Mount Sinai (Ex. 24:12; Deut. 10:1–5).
2. Ordinary writing tablets made of clay or wood (Ezek. 4:1; Luke 1:63).
3. The Bible also uses the word "tablet" to speak of God's law written on the heart (Prov. 3:3; Jer. 17:1; 2 Cor. 3:3).

TABOR [TAY buhr]—the name of a mountain (see Map 3, B–2), a terebinth tree, and a city in the Old Testament:

1. A mountain of limestone in the northeastern part of the Valley of Jezreel (Josh. 19:22). Now called Jebel et-Tur, Tabor is 8.8 kilometers (5.5 miles) southeast of Nazareth and about 16 kilometers (10 miles) southwest of the Sea of Galilee. Mount Tabor rises some 411 meters (1,350 feet) above the plain. It rises steeply to form a dome-shaped summit. No other mountains are adjacent to Mount Tabor.

Because of its strategic location and commanding height, Mount Tabor frequently was fortified with protective walls. In 218 B.C. Antiochus III captured a town on the summit and fortified it. As a Jewish general, Josephus added a defensive rampart to the fortress in A.D. 66. The remains of this structure can still be seen today.

Situated where the borders of Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali meet (Josh. 19:22), Mount Tabor played an important role in Israel's history. Here Barak gathered 10,000 men of Naphtali and Zebulun and attacked the Canaanite armies of Sisera at Megiddo (Judg. 4:6, 12, 14; 5:18). Also at Tabor the Midianite kings Zebah and Zalmunna killed the brothers of Gideon (Judg. 8:18–19). During the time of the prophets, the top of the mountain was a sanctuary for idolatry (Hos. 5:1). In fact, the mountain may have been the site of a pagan sanctuary from ancient times (Deut. 33:19).

2. The "plain of Tabor" (1 Sam. 10:3, KJV), or more correctly, the "terebinth tree of Tabor" (NKJV), where Samuel told Saul he would find men bearing gifts as a sign of God's favor. It was situated in the territory of Benjamin by the road leading from Rachel's tomb to Gibeah.
3. A Levite city of the sons of Merari in the territory of Zebulun (1 Chr. 6:77).

TABRET (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TABRIMMON [tab RIM uhn] ([the god] Rimmon is good)—father of Ben-Hadad I, king of Syria (1 Kin. 15:18; Tabrimon, KJV).

TACHES [TACH ez]—KJV word for clasps (Ex. 26:6; 35:11). These clasps were hooks upon which the tabernacle curtains were hung.

TACHMONITE [TAK muh night]—the family name of Josheb–Basshebeth, chief captain in David's army (2 Sam. 23:8; Tahchemonite, NASB, NRSV; Tahkemonite, NIV).

TACKLE, TACKLING—the gear or rigging of a ship used to work the sails and handle cargo (Is. 33:23; Acts 27:19; tacklings, KJV; gear, REB). When a storm threatened to sink the ship on which the apostle

Paul was traveling to Rome, the tackle was thrown overboard to lighten the vessel (Acts 27:18–19). Also see SHIPS.

TADMOR [TAD mohr]—a city known to the Greeks and Romans as Palmyra, about 193 kilometers (120 miles) northeast of Damascus (1 Kin. 9:18). The city was built on an oasis in the Syrian desert, astride the main east-west trade route that ran from Mesopotamia to Canaan. The city was also situated on the main north-south trade route. Because of its strategic location, Tadmor became an important commercial center and military outpost.

According to 2 Chronicles 8:4, Solomon "built Tadmor in the wilderness." This city, which marked the northeastern boundary of his empire, helped Solomon control the entire region. After Solomon's death, Tadmor came under the control of the ARAMEANS.

In its subsequent history, Tadmor became the center of the kingdom ruled by Septimius Odaenathus and his wife, the legendary Queen Zenobia. The armies of the Roman Empire brought an end to Tadmor, laying siege to the city in A.D. 272.

Tadmor is one of the most impressive ruins of the ancient Near Eastern world. Here archaeologists have excavated an outer wall that enclosed the city—a wall dating from the time of Zenobia. The ruins of a great colonnade, an agora (marketplace), a theater, a senate building, and a huge sanctuary of Bel have been unearthed.

TAHATH [TAY hath] (that which is beneath)—the name of one place and three men in the Old Testament:

1. A desert encampment of the Israelites after they left Egypt (Num. 33:26–27).

2. A Kohathite Levite, a son of Assir (1 Chr. 6:24, 37).
3. A descendant of Ephraim (1 Chr. 7:20).
4. Another descendant of Ephraim (1 Chr. 7:20). He apparently was a grandson of Tahath No. 3.

TAHCHEMONITE, TAHKEMONITE [TAK uh muh night]—forms of TACHMONITE.

TAHPANHES [TAH puh neez]—a city on the eastern frontier of lower Egypt, in the area of the Nile delta (Jer. 2:16; Tahapanes, KJV; Ezek. 30:18, Tehaphnehes). This city was probably named for a powerful general who brought the surrounding area under firm Egyptian control in the 11th century B.C.

Tahpanhes became a place of refuge for Jews who fled their homeland after the assassination of GEDALIAH, the governor of Judah placed in power by the Babylonians. Jeremiah warned the Jews against this move (Jer. 42:16). He dramatically visualized this for them by hiding stones at Tahpanhes for the foundation of the throne of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon (Jer. 43:9–10).

Tahpanhes is identified with the modern Tell Defneh, a small mound bordering Lake Menzaleh in northern Egypt.

TAHPENES [TAH puh neez]—a queen of Egypt who lived during the time of David and Solomon (1 Kin. 11:19–20). The Pharaoh gave Tahpenes’ sister in marriage to HADAD the Edomite. But she died shortly after giving birth to her son, Genubath. Tahpenes raised the child in Pharaoh’s house.

TAHREA [tuh REE uh]—a form of TAREA.

TAHTIM HODSHI [TAH tim HAHD shy]—a district between Gilead and Dan Jaan, east of the Jordan River, visited by Joab and his officers during the census of Israel (2 Sam. 24:6).

TAILOR (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TALEBEARER—a person who spreads idle rumors or gossip that is likely to cause trouble or harm (Prov. 18:8; whisperer, NASB, NRSV).

TALENT (see MONEY; WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

TALITHA CUMI [TAL uh thuh KOO migh]—an Aramaic phrase spoken by Jesus when He raised the daughter of Jairus from the dead. The phrase means, "Little girl, arise" (Mark 5:41).

TALMAI [TAL migh]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. One of the three sons of Anak (Num. 13:22; Josh. 15:14; Judg. 1:10). They were known as ANAKIM, a race of giants who were driven out of Hebron by Caleb's army and were finally killed by the tribe of Judah.
2. A king of Geshur whose daughter Maacah was one of David's wives and the mother of Absalom (2 Sam. 3:3).

TALMON [TAL muhn]—a Levite gatekeeper whose descendants returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (1 Chr. 9:17; Neh. 7:45).

TALMUD—a collection of books and commentary compiled by Jewish rabbis from A.D. 250–500. The Hebrew word talmud means "study" or "learning."

This is a fitting title for a work that is a library of Jewish wisdom, philosophy, history, legend, astronomy, dietary laws, scientific debates, medicine, and mathematics.

The Talmud is made up of interpretation and commentary of the Mosaic and rabbinic law contained in the MISHNA, an exhaustive collection of laws and guidelines for observing the law of Moses. As a guide to following the law, the Talmud also serves as a basis for spiritual formation. More than 2,000 scholars or rabbis worked across a period of 250 years to understand the meaning of God's word for their particular situation. Out of these efforts they produced the Talmud.

The wide variety and comprehensive detail of the Talmud's subject matter conveys a deep thirst for learning. Questions as minute as why God created a gnat and as universal as the origin of the universe filled the teachers of Israel with wonder. A passion for truth and understanding led the Jewish teachers deep into the marvels of the human experience.

The Pharisees were the first to give greater attention to the laws of Moses. The Roman historian Josephus reported that their oral tradition included regulations that were not recorded in the Mosaic Law at all.

The Mishna collected all of these oral regulations into one permanent record. In response to the Mishna, wide discussions concerning its content and meaning began, resulting in the Talmud.

The centers for these learned discussions were the academies in Babylonia and Israel. As a result, two Talmuds, the Babylonian Talmud and the Jerusalem Talmud, were created. Because the Babylonian rabbis were far more thorough in word-by-word interpretation of the Mishna than were the rabbis in Israel, the Babylonian Talmud is much more complete. An English edition of this work fills thirty-six volumes and almost 36,000 pages.

The Talmud is divided into six major sections. The first of these deals with agriculture and crops and the offerings, tithes, and prayers associated with them. The second section is about holidays and festivals such as the Sabbath, Passover, Rosh Hashanah and others. A third section discusses laws about marriage, divorce, property, and related subjects. Another section concerns the rules governing the courts. The next section deals with the laws pertaining to the temple and the sacrifices and Jewish foods. The final section discusses the laws of ritual purity.

At some points during Jewish history, traditions and the Talmud have been considered equal to or better than the Scripture itself. Jesus encountered such an attitude among the Pharisees even before the existence of the Talmud (Matt. 15:3). Christians must be careful not to make the same mistake in regard to our own traditions.

TAMAH [TAH muh]—one of the Nethinim (temple servants) whose descendants returned from the captivity with Ezra (Ezra 2:53; Thamah, KJV; Neh. 7:55).

TAMAR [TAY mur] (palm)—the name of three women and a city in the Bible:

1. The widow of Er and Onan, sons of Judah (Gen. 38:6–30; Matt. 1:3; Thamar, KJV). According to the law of LEVIRATE MARRIAGE, Judah's third son, Shelah, should have married Tamar; their first child would have been regarded as his brother's and would have carried on his name. However, Judah withheld his third son from marrying Tamar. Undaunted, Tamar disguised herself as a harlot and offered herself to Judah. Twin sons, Perez and Zerah, were born of their union. Judah and Tamar became ancestors of Jesus through Perez (Matt. 1:3).

2. The lovely daughter of David by Maacah and sister of Absalom (2 Sam. 13:1–22, 32; 1 Chr. 3:9). Tamar was raped by her half-brother Amnon. She fled to Absalom, who plotted revenge. Two years later Absalom got his revenge for Tamar by arranging Amnon's murder.
3. Absalom's only surviving daughter, possibly named after his sister Tamar (2 Sam. 14:27).
4. A place southwest of the Dead Sea (Ezek. 47:19; 48:28).

TAMARISK (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

TAMBOURINE (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TAMMUZ (see CALENDAR; GODS, PAGAN).

TANACH [TAY nak]—a form of TAANACH.

TANHUMETH [tan HOO mith] (comfort)—a Netophathite whose son Seraiah remained with Gedaliah after the captivity (2 Kin. 25:23).

TANNER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TAPESTRY MAKER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TAPHATH [TAY fath]—one of Solomon's daughters (1 Kin. 4:11). She married the son of Abinadab, Solomon's supply officer in the district of Naphath-Dor.

TAPPUAH [TAP yoo uh] (apple)—the name of two cities and one man in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the lowland of Judah (Josh. 12:17).
2. A border city of Ephraim (Josh. 16:8; 17:8).
3. A son of Hebron, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:43).

Also see TIPHSAH.

TAR (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

TARAH [TAY ruh]—a form of TERAH.

TARALAH [TAR uh luh]—a city in the territory of Benjamin between Irpeel and Zelah (Josh. 18:27).

TAREA [tuh REE uh]—a son of Micah and a descendant of Saul (1 Chr. 8:35; Tahrea, 1 Chr. 9:41).

TARES (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

TARGUM—translations of the Old Testament from the Hebrew language into Aramaic. The word "Targum" is related to a Hebrew term meaning "translation." These translations were sometimes literal and exact, but often were paraphrased. Many translators took the opportunity to comment upon the Hebrew texts. In a sense, some Targumim (plural) are a form of commentary on the Bible.

Scholars question when and why the Old Testament was first translated into Aramaic. Some suggest that the Hebrew language had changed so much that an explanation of Mosaic Law helped the Israelites understand its true meanings. Ezra sometimes provided such explanations (Neh. 8:8). Other scholars think the Israelites adopted the Aramaic language during the Babylonian captivity. The Targumim, then, translated the Old Testament into a more understandable language.

By the time of Christ, Aramaic was the common language in Israel. During a synagogue service, one verse of the Hebrew text was read, followed by a translation and explanation in Aramaic. By the second or third century A.D., the common practice was to read only the Aramaic translation.

The best-known Targum was probably the Targum Onkelos, which translated the Pentateuch quite literally. The Targumim are helpful today in understanding ancient Jewish interpretations of the Old Testament. Because they are paraphrased, they cannot be used to attest the original Hebrew reading of a Bible passage.

TARPELITES [TAR puh lights]—members of an Assyrian tribe transported to Samaria by Shalmaneser of Assyria (Ezra 4:9; men from Tripolis, NIV).

TARSHISH [TAR shish] (jasper)—the name of a type of ship, a city or territory, a man, and a precious stone in the Old Testament:

1. The Hebrew name for a type of cargo ship fitted for long sea voyages (1 Kin. 10:22; Tharshish, KJV). Also see Tarshish No. 2.
2. A city or territory in the western portion of the Mediterranean Sea with which the Phoenicians traded (2 Chr. 9:21; Ps. 72:10). Tarshish is believed by some to be Tartessus, in southern Spain, near Gibraltar. When Jonah fled from God's instruction to go to Nineveh, he boarded a ship bound for Tarshish, in the opposite direction from Nineveh (Jon. 1:3; 4:2). Tarshish was famous for its ships (Ps. 48:7; Is. 2:16), which carried gold, silver, iron, tin, lead, ivory, apes, and monkeys (1 Kin. 10:22; Jer. 10:9).

   Because the ships of Tarshish carried such great riches, they became symbols of wealth, power, and pride. When God judged the nations for their sinful ways, He destroyed their "ships of Tarshish" to humble them and to demonstrate His great power (2 Chr. 20:35–37; Is. 2:16–17).
3. A high official at SHUSHAN (Susa). He was one of seven princes of Persia and Media "who had access to the king's presence" (Esth. 1:14). Tarshish was one of those present at the royal banquet of King Ahasuerus that Vashti, the queen, refused to attend.
4. The Hebrew name of a precious stone (Ex. 28:20; Ezek. 28:13). Its brilliant color is associated with the glorious appearance of God Himself (Ezek. 1:16; Dan. 10:6). Also see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES.

TARSHISHAH [TAR shish uh]—a son of Javan and great-grandson of Noah (Gen. 10:4; Tarshish, KJV, NIV).

TARSUS [TAHR suss]—the birthplace of the apostle Paul (Acts 21:39; 22:3), formerly known as Saul of Tarsus (Acts 9:11). Tarsus was the chief city of CILICIA, a province of southeast Asia Minor (modern Turkey; see Map 7, D–2). This important city was situated on the banks of the Cydnus River about 16 kilometers (10 miles) north of the shore of the Mediterranean Sea.

Because of its strategic location, protected on the north by the Taurus Mountains and open to navigation from the Mediterranean, the city of Tarsus was a prize location for the Hittites, Mycenean Greeks, Assyrians, Persians, Seleucids, and Romans. In the post-Roman period it dwindled to a small city in the wake of battles between various Christian and Muslim powers.

During the Seleucid period, however, Tarsus became a free city (about 170 B.C.), and was open to Greek culture and education. By the time of the Romans, Tarsus competed with ATHENS and ALEXANDRIA as the learning center of the world. “I am a Jew from Tarsus, in Cilicia,” wrote the apostle Paul, “a citizen of no mean city” (Acts 21:39).

North of Tarsus were the famous Cilician Gates, a narrow gorge in the Taurus Mountains through which ran the only good trade route between Asia Minor and Syria. The location of Tarsus in a fertile valley brought great wealth to the city.

The apostle Paul spent his early years at Tarsus (Acts 9:11; 21:39; 22:3) and revisited it after his conversion to Christianity (Acts 9:30; 11:25).

TARTAK (see GODS, PAGAN).

TARTAN [TAR tan]—the title of the commander-in-chief (supreme commander, NIV) of the Assyrian army. The Assyrian word turdennu (Tartan) means "first in rank." Two Tartans are mentioned in Scripture:

1. A messenger sent by Sennacherib to the surrender of Jerusalem (2 Kin. 18:17).
2. A general of Sargon sent to besiege and capture Ashdod (Is. 20:1).

TASKMASTER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TASSEL—a decorative ornament around the hems of the clothes of the Hebrew people, worn to remind them of God's commandments in the Law (Deut. 22:12) and to encourage them to do His will.

TATTENAI [TAT uh nigh]—the Persian governor of Samaria during the reign of Darius the Great (ruled 521–486 B.C.). When Tattenai sent a letter to Darius (Ezra 5:7–17) asking whether the work of restoring the temple was authorized, the decree of King Cyrus ordering that it should be rebuilt was found.

TATTOO—a permanent mark or design fixed upon the body by a process of pricking the skin and inserting an indelible color under the skin. The moral and ceremonial laws of Leviticus declare, “You shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor tattoo any marks upon you” (Lev. 19:28). Any kind of self-laceration or marking of the body was prohibited among the Hebrew people. Such cuttings were associated with pagan cults that tattooed their followers while they mourned the dead.

TAU [taw]—the twenty-second letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:169–176. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter tau. Also see ACROSTIC.

TAUNT-SONG—a song of contempt or mockery. Job said of his enemies, “And now I am their taunt-song” (Job 30:9; the target of their taunts, REB). Job’s tormentors believed that if he was suffering, he must have sinned to deserve such punishment. This is why they ridiculed Job’s claim of righteousness.

TAVERNS, THREE (see THREE INNS).

TAWNY OWL (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

TAX, TAXES—a compulsory fee or financial contribution for the maintenance of government. Taxes may have originated with the custom of giving presents for protection from harm (Gen. 32:13–21; 33:10; 43:11). When Joseph revealed to the Pharaoh in Egypt that there would be seven years of famine after seven years of abundance, Pharaoh put him in charge of raising revenues. During the time of famine as well as plenty, he collected a 20 percent tax to store up food and then to buy land for Pharaoh (Gen. 47:20–26).

During the time of the Exodus, Moses asked for voluntary revenues for the construction of the tabernacle (Ex. 25:2; 35:5, 21). The Mosaic Law prescribed that every male over the age of twenty was to give half a shekel for the service of the tabernacle (Ex. 30:11–16).

With the establishment of the United Kingdom under David and Solomon, several avenues of taxation were established: a 10 percent tax on the produce of land and livestock (1 Sam. 8:15, 17); compulsory military service for one month each year (1 Chr. 27:1); and import duties (1 Kin. 10:15). Tribute was also paid by subject peoples (2 Sam. 8:6; 2 Kin. 3:4). The oppressive taxation by Solomon was one of the causes of the split of the kingdom after his death (1 Kin. 12:4).

When the Persians came into power and ruled over Palestine, they set up a new system of taxation. Instead of paying tribute to a foreign master, each province in the Persian Empire was required to collect its own taxes. Each Persian SATRAP was to collect for his own province. The decree of Darius Hystaspis states that the satraps paid a fixed amount into the royal treasury. The revenue collected was derived from tribute, custom, and toll (Ezra 4:13). Priests and others involved in religious service were exempted from these taxes (Ezra 7:24). Beyond the central government's tax, a tax was also collected for the maintenance of the governor's household. The taxes were so heavy that many people were forced to mortgage their fields and vineyards. Some even sold their own sons and daughters into slavery (Neh. 5:1–5).

During the period between the Old and New Testament, the Jews were first under the Egyptian Ptolemaic rule (301–198 B.C.) and later under the Syrian Seleucid rule (198–63 B.C.). Under the Ptolemies taxes were not collected by an Egyptian representative. Instead, taxing privileges were farmed out to the highest bidders. From the various provinces people would come to Alexandria to bid for the privilege of collecting taxes from their own people. The bidder who won the contract would tax the people up to double the amount required by law in order to make a handsome profit. These contracted tax collectors were given military assistance to enable them to enforce their demands.

This same type of taxation system probably continued in Palestine under Syrian rule. A poll tax, a salt tax, and a crown tax were enforced during this time. The Syrians taxed as much as one-third of the grain, one-half of the fruit, and a portion of the tithes the Jews paid to support the temple.

When the Romans under Pompey captured Jerusalem in 63 B.C., a tax of 10,000 talents was temporarily imposed on the Jews. The tax-contracting system was reformed by Julius Caesar, who reduced the taxes and levied no tax in the sabbatic years. But soon after the Herods came to power in Palestine, they demanded heavy taxes.

The Herods instituted a poll tax and a tax on fishing rights in the rivers and lakes. Customs were collected on trade routes by men like Levi, who collected in Capernaum (Matt. 9:9; Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27). This city may have also been a place for port duties and fishing tolls. Some items sold for 1000 per cent above their original prices because of all the taxes. There may have been sales tax on slaves, oil, clothes, hides, and furs. Over and above these taxes were the religious dues. These were generally between 10 and 20 percent of a person's income before government tax.

During Jesus' time, the Jews were probably paying from 30 to 40 percent of their income on taxes and religious dues.

TAX COLLECTOR—an agent or contract worker who collected taxes for the government during Bible times. The Greek word translated "tax collector" (tax gatherer, NASB) is incorrectly rendered "publican" by the KJV. Publicans were wealthy men, usually non-Jewish, who contracted with the Roman government to be responsible for the taxes of a particular district of the imperial Roman state. These publicans would often be backed by military force.

By contrast, the tax collectors to which the New Testament refers (with the possible exception of ZACCHAEUS) were employed by publicans to do the actual collecting of monies in the restricted areas where they lived. These men were Jews, usually not very wealthy, who could be seen in the temple (Luke 18:13). They were probably familiar to the people from whom they collected taxes.

These tax collectors gathered several different types of taxes. Rome levied upon the Jews a land tax, a poll tax, even a tax for the operation of the temple. The distinctions between the kind of rule a given province received dictated the kinds of taxes its people had to pay. For example, since some provinces, like Galilee, were not under an imperial governor, taxes remained in the province rather than going to the imperial treasury at Rome. These differences within the taxation system prompted the Pharisees in Judea (an imperial province) to ask Jesus, "Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?" (Matt. 22:17).

As a class, the tax collectors were despised by their fellow Jews. They were classified generally as "sinners" (Matt. 9:10–11; Mark 2:15), probably because they were allowed to gather more than the government required and then to pocket the excess amount. John the Baptist addressed this when he urged tax collectors to gather no more money than they should (Luke 3:12–13). But even further, the tax collectors were hated because their fellow countrymen viewed them as mercenaries who worked for a foreign oppressor of the Jewish people.

Jesus, however, set a new precedent among the Jews by accepting and associating with the tax collectors. He ate with them (Mark 2:16), He bestowed His saving grace upon them (Luke 19:9), and He even chose a tax collector (Matthew) as one of His twelve disciples (Matt. 9:9). The message of Jesus was that God would welcome the repentant and humble tax collector, while He would spurn the arrogant Pharisee (Luke 18:9–14). His mission was to bring sinners—people like the tax collectors of His day—into God's presence (Matt. 9:11–13).

TEACHERS OF THE LAW (see SCRIBES).

TEACHING—the act of instructing students or imparting knowledge and information. As used in the New Testament, the concept of teaching usually means instruction in the faith. Thus, teaching is to be distinguished from preaching, or the proclamation of the gospel to the non-Christian world. Teaching in the Christian faith was validated by Jesus, who was called "Teacher" more than anything else.

Since sound instruction in the faith is essential to the spiritual growth of Christians and to the development of the church, the Bible contains numerous passages that deal with teaching (Matt. 4:23; Luke 4:14; Acts 13:1–3; Rom. 12:6–8; Gal. 6:6).

Special attention is directed to the danger of false teachings. Christians are warned to test those who pervert the true gospel (2 Tim. 3:1–7; 1 Pet. 2:1–3).

Sound teaching was a concept deeply engrained in the Jewish mind since Old Testament times. Moses and Aaron were considered teachers of God's commandments (Ex. 18:20). Parents were also directed to teach their children about God and His statutes (Deut. 4:9–10).

TEARS (see MOURN).

TEBAH [TEE buh]—a son of Nahor and Reumah (Gen. 22:24).

TEBALIAH [tee buh LIE uh] (the Lord has dipped)—a temple gatekeeper after the captivity (1 Chr. 26:11).

TEBETH [TEE beth]—the tenth month of the sacred year in the Jewish calendar (Esth. 2:16). Also see CALENDAR.

TEETH (see TOOTH).

TEHAPHNEHES [teh HAF nuh hez]—a form of TAHPANHES.

TEHINNAH [tih HIN uh] (supplication)—a son of Eshton, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:12).

TEIL TREE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

TEKEL (see MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN).

TEKOA [tuh KOE uh] (trumpet blast)—the birthplace of the prophet Amos (see Map 4, B–4). Situated in Judah (1 Chr. 2:24; 4:5), Tekoa is identified today with Khirbet Taqu'a, about 10 kilometers (6 miles) southeast of Bethlehem and about 16 kilometers (10 miles) south of Jerusalem. It was built on a hill in the wilderness of Tekoa toward En Gedi (2 Chr. 11:6; 20:20).

Tekoa is first mentioned in the Bible in connection with Joab employing a "wise woman" (2 Sam. 14:2) to bring reconciliation between David and Absalom (2 Sam. 14:2, 4, 9; Tekoah, KJV). Later Rehoboam, king of Judah (ruled 931–913 B.C.), fortified the site in order to prevent an invasion of Jerusalem from the south (2 Chr. 11:6).

Because of its elevation—about 850 meters (2,790 feet) above sea level—Tekoa became a station for warning Jerusalem of the approach of its enemies (Jer. 6:1). From Tekoa a person can see the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem and Mount Nebo beyond the Dead Sea. About two miles from Tekoa, Herod the Great (ruled 37–4 B.C.) built a fortress, the Herodium, in the Judean wilderness.

TEKOAH [tuh KOE uh]—a form of TEKOA.

TEKOITE [tuh KOE ight]—a native or inhabitant of TEKOA (2 Sam. 23:26; Neh. 3:5).

TEL ABIB [tel uh BIB] (mound of the flood)—a locality in Babylonia near "the River Chebar" (a great irrigation canal) where the prophet Ezekiel stayed among the captives for seven days (Ezek. 3:15). These captives had been taken prisoner in Judah and had been deported to Babylon in 597 B.C. The largest city in modern Israel, Tel Aviv, derives its name from Tel Abib.

TEL-HARESHA [tel ha RESH ah]—a form of TEL HARSHA.

TEL HARSHA [tel HAHR shuh]—a Babylonian city where the Jews gathered to return to Jerusalem after the captivity (Ezra 2:59; Tel-harsa, KJV; Neh. 7:61; Tel-haresha, KJV).

TEL MELAH [tel MEE luh] (hill of salt)—a place in Babylon from which the Israelites returned after the captivity (Ezra 2:59).

TELAH [TEE luh]—a son of Resheph and the father of Tahan (1 Chr. 7:25).

TELAIM [tuh LAY uhm] (young lambs)—a place where Saul gathered his fighting men before his campaign against the Amalekites (1 Sam. 15:4). The site probably was in southern Judah.

TELASSAR [tel ASS uhr] (hill of Asshur)—a city and district of Mesopotamia inhabited by "the people of Eden" (2 Kin. 19:12; Thelasar, KJV; Is. 37:12). Telassar may have been in Bit-Adini, a small Aramean kingdom on the upper Euphrates River.

TELEM [TEE lem] (a lamb)—the name of a city and a man in the Old Testament:

1. A city in southern Judah (Josh. 15:24).
2. A gatekeeper who divorced his pagan wife after the captivity (Ezra 10:24).

TELL—a mound of rubble that marks the site of an ancient city. When a city was destroyed, a new city would often be built on the rubble. Thus, these mounds grew higher and higher across the centuries. The ultimate prophetic judgment on a city was that it would become a "desolate mound" (Jer. 49:2).

The typical tell has a flat top and sloping sides. One of the largest tells in Palestine is at HAZOR.

TELL EL AMARNA (see AMARNA, TELL EL).

TEMA [TEE muh]—the name of a man and a city in the Old Testament:

1. The ninth of the twelve sons of Ishmael (Gen. 25:15; 1 Chr. 1:30).
2. An oasis, or desert city, in northwest Arabia (Job 6:19; Is. 21:14; Jer. 25:23). Tema was situated at the intersection of two important caravan routes—one from the Persian Gulf to the Gulf of Aqaba and the other from Damascus to Medina and Mecca—about midway between Babylon and Egypt. The site is present-day Teima.

TEMAN [TEE muhn] (on the right hand)—the name of a man and a city in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Eliphaz and a grandson of Esau (Gen. 36:11). Teman was an Edomite chief (Gen. 36:15; 1 Chr. 1:36) who gave his name to the region where his descendants settled (Gen. 36:34).
2. An important city (see Map 4, B–5) in southern Edom (Gen. 36:34; Hab. 3:3). Some scholars identify Teman with Tawilan, about 8 kilometers (5 miles) east of Petra.

TEMANITE [TEE mun ite]—a descendant of TEMAN or an inhabitant of the region occupied by the clan of Teman, in the land of Edom (Gen. 36:34; Temani, KJV; 1 Chr. 1:45). Eliphaz, one of Job's friends, was a Temanite (Job 2:11).

TEMENI [TEM uh nie]—a son of Ashhur and Naarah (1 Chr. 4:6).

TEMPERANCE—control over sensual desires. The meaning of the word "temperate" in English translations of the Bible should not be restricted to the kind of self-control a person exerts by abstaining from alcoholic beverages. The temperance of which the Bible speaks is far more inclusive. It indicates a self-control that masters all kinds of sensual desires, such as sexual desire or the desire for material comfort. Through temperance Christians can discipline body and spirit, so that they are more capable of striving for their spiritual reward (1 Cor. 9:24–27).

TEMPLE—a building in which a god (or gods) is worshiped. The Old Testament describes temples as some of the oldest buildings ever constructed. The Tower of Babel (Gen. 11:4) is the first recorded example of a structure that implies the existence of a temple, although this tower was not a temple itself. A temple was thought of as the building where the god manifested his presence, so the place the temple occupied was holy, or sacred. Because the god was thought to dwell in the temple, the Old Testament had no specific word for temple. It refers instead to the "house" of a deity.

Abraham was from Mesopotamia, where each city had a temple for its patron god. The Mesopotamians believed that the god owned their land, that the king was the vassal of the god, and that the land had to be blessed by the god in order to be fruitful. Their religious practices were, in part, designed to win the god's favor.

Several Canaanite temples are mentioned in the Old Testament. They include the temples of the god Berith in Shechem (Judg. 9:46) as well as Dagon in Ashdod (Judg. 16:23–30; 1 Sam. 5:2–5; 1 Chr. 10:10) and in Beth Shean (1 Sam. 31:12).

Because they were wandering herdsmen, the patriarchs such as Abraham and Jacob did not build temples. However, they did have shrines and altars in places where God had revealed Himself to them, such as by the oak of Moreh (Gen. 12:6–7; 33:20), at Bethel (Gen. 12:8; 28:18–22), and at Beersheba (Gen. 21:33; 26:23–25).

Even after Solomon's temple was completed, rival sanctuaries at Bethel and Dan (1 Kin. 12:28–33) competed with it. Later the Samaritans had a temple on Mount Gerizim (John 4:20). A Judeo-Aramaic colony founded a temple at Elephantine in Upper Egypt. According to the Jewish historian Josephus, Ptolemy VI Philometor (181–145 B.C.) granted Jewish refugees in Egypt the use of an ancient temple in the delta region.

Solomon's Temple. Once the land was fully conquered and all the tribes were properly settled, it was important that the worship of God be centralized. Because he was a man of war, David was not allowed to build the temple, but he was allowed to gather the materials for it and to organize the project (1 Chr. 22:1–19). The actual work began "in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel had come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel" (1 Kin. 6:1). Solomon began to reign about 970 B.C., so his fourth year would have been about 966 B.C. The temple was completed about seven years later (1 Kin. 6:37–38).

In biblical times three temples were built on the same site: Solomon's, Zerubbabel's, and Herod's. Solomon built the temple on the east side of Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, "where the Lord had appeared to his father David, at the place that David had prepared on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite" (1 Chr. 21:28; 2 Chr. 3:1). The highest part of Mount Moriah is perhaps now the site of the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem.

Solomon contacted Hiram, king of Tyre, to supply workmen and materials to help construct the temple (2 Chr. 2:3). First Kings 5:6 calls those workmen Sidonians. Additionally, Solomon "raised up a labor force out of all Israel" of 30,000 men to assist Hiram in the forests of Lebanon (1 Kin. 5:13). According to 1 Kings 5:15, "Solomon had seventy thousand who carried burdens, and eighty thousand who quarried stone in the mountains." The Gebalites also helped to quarry stones (1 Kin. 5:18). Those who quarried stones were overseen by 3,300 of Solomon's deputies (1 Kin. 5:16).

Solomon's temple is described, though incompletely, in 1 Kings 6–7 and in 2 Chronicles 3–4. The description of Ezekiel's temple (Ezek. 40– 43), an elaborate version of Solomon's, may supplement those accounts. Solomon's temple was in the shape of a rectangle that ran east and west. Like Ezekiel's temple (Ezek. 41:8), it may have stood on a platform. The accounts in Kings and Chronicles suggest that there was an inner and an outer courtyard.

Three main objects were situated in the inner courtyard. The bronze altar that was used for burnt offerings (1 Kin. 8:22, 64; 9:25) measured 20 cubits square and 10 cubits high (2 Chr. 4:1). Between that and the porch of the temple stood the bronze laver, or molten sea, that held water for the ritual washings (1 Kin. 7:23–26). It was completely round, 5 cubits high, 10 cubits in diameter, and 30 cubits around its circumference (1 Kin. 7:23). Twelve bronze oxen, in four groups of three, faced outward toward the four points of the compass, with the bronze laver resting on their backs (1 Kin. 7:25; Ahaz removed the bronze laver from the oxen; 2 Kin. 16:17).

Finally, at the dedication of the temple, Solomon is said to have stood on a "bronze platform 5 cubits long, 5 cubits wide, and 3 cubits high" that stood in the middle of the courtyard (2 Chr. 6:12–13).

The interior dimensions of the temple were 60 cubits long, 20 cubits wide, and 30 cubits high (1 Kin. 6:2). The ten steps to the porch of the temple were flanked by two bronze columns, Jachin and Boaz, each 25 cubits high (including the capitals) and 12 cubits in circumference (1 Kin. 7:15–16; 2 Chr. 3:15). The porch was 10 cubits long, 20 cubits wide, and, supposedly, 120 cubits high (2 Chr. 3:4). But since the rest of the building was only 30 cubits high, some scholars question this figure of 120 cubits.

To the west of the porch was the Holy Place, a room 40 cubits long, 20 cubits wide, and 30 cubits high where ordinary rituals took place. Windows near the ceiling provided light. In the Holy Place were the golden incense altar, the table for the showbread, five pair of lampstands, and the utensils used for sacrifice. Double doors, probably opened once a year for the high priest on the Day of Atonement, led from the west end of the Holy Place to the Holy of Holies, a twenty-cubit cube. In that room two wooden cherubim, each ten feet tall, stood with outstretched wings. Two of the wings met above the ark of the covenant and two of them touched the north and south walls of the room (1 Kin. 6:27). God’s presence was manifested in the Holy of Holies as a cloud (1 Kin. 8:10–11).

The outside of the temple building, excluding the porch area, consisted of side chambers, or galleries, that rose three stories high (1 Kin. 6:5). The rooms of the temple were paneled with cedar, the floor was cypress, and the ornately carved doors and walls were overlaid with gold (1 Kin. 6:20–22). Not a stone could be seen.

Shishak, king of Egypt, took away the temple treasures during the reign of Rehoboam, Solomon’s son (1 Kin. 14:26). Asa used the temple treasure to buy an ally (1 Kin. 15:18) and to buy off an invader (2 Kin. 16:8). Manasseh placed Canaanite altars and a carved image of Asherah, a Canaanite goddess, in the temple (2 Kin. 21:4, 7). Ahaz introduced an altar patterned after one he saw in Damascus (2 Kin. 16:10–16). By about 630 B.C., Josiah had to repair the temple (2 Kin. 22:3–7). After robbing the temple of its treasures and gold during his first attack (2 Kin. 24:13), in 586 B.C. the Babylonian King Nebuchadnezzar looted, sacked and burned the temple (2 Kin. 25:9, 13–17), but people still came to the site to offer sacrifice (Jer. 41:5).

Ezekiel’s Temple. Ezekiel’s vision of a future temple (Ezekiel 40–43) comforted the Jewish captives in Babylon (Psalm 137) who remembered the glory of Solomon’s temple and its destruction by the Babylonians. The temple in Ezekiel’s vision differs in its physical configuration and dimensions from Solomon’s.

The Second Temple. Cyrus, king of Persia, authorized the return of the Jewish captives, the return of the temple vessels Nebuchadnezzar had looted, and the reconstruction of the temple (about 538 B.C.), which was finished about 515 B.C. The completed temple was smaller than and inferior to Solomon’s (Ezra 3:12). The ark of the covenant was never recovered, and so the second temple (and Herod’s temple) had no ark. Neither were Solomon’s ten lampstands recovered. One seven-branched lampstand, the table of showbread, and the incense altar stood in the Holy Place of the second temple (as they did in Herod’s temple), but these were taken by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (about 175–163 B.C.), who defiled the altar in 167 B.C. The Maccabees cleansed the temple, restored its furnishings (164 B.C.; 1 Macc. 4:36–59), and later turned it into a fortress.

Herod’s Temple. King Herod, an Idumean, sought to appease his Jewish subjects by constructing an enormous, ornate, cream-colored temple of stone and gold that began in 19 B.C. The main building was finished by 9 B.C., but the entire structure was not completed until A.D. 64. The Romans destroyed it in A.D. 70. The gold and white stone shone so brightly in the sun that it was difficult to look directly at the temple.

The temple building occupied an area that measured about 446 meters (490 yards) from north to south and 296 meters (325 yards) from east to west. The entire temple complex was enclosed by a massive stone wall, the southeast corner of which stood about 45 meters (50 yards) above the floor of the Kidron ravine. The parapet above this corner may have been the “pinnacle of the temple” referred to in the gospels (Matt. 4:5). There was one gate in the north wall, one in the east wall, two in the south wall, and four in the west wall facing the city.

The Fortress of Antonia, the Jerusalem residence of the Roman procurators, stood at the northwest corner of the complex. The fortress housed a Roman garrison (Acts 21:31) and, as a symbol of submission, the robes of the High Priest.

Double porticos, 30 cubits wide and supported by shining marble columns 25 cubits high, were constructed along the inside of the main walls, surrounding the outer court of the temple, the Court of the Gentiles. Including the Tower of Antonia, these porticos were about 11,800 meters (3,600 feet) in circumference. The Royal Porch, along the south wall, had four rows of columns. Solomon’s Porch, located along the east wall, had two rows of columns (John 10:23; Acts 3:11; 5:12). This was the place where the scribes had their debates (Mark 11:27; Luke 2:46; 19:47) and where the merchants and moneychangers transacted business (Luke 19:45–46; John 2:14–16).

Inside of and slightly higher than the outer court (the Court of the Gentiles) was a smaller enclosure surrounded by a balustrade 3 cubits high. This enclosure was posted with recurring notices in Greek and Latin that any Gentile who entered the inner area was subject to death. After passing through one of several openings in the balustrade, fourteen steps led up to the inner area, which was surrounded by a wall 25 cubits high. This wall was separated from the steps by a terrace 10 cubits wide. Flights of five steps led from the terrace to eight gates in the wall, four on the north and four on the south side.

The inner area of Herod's temple contained three courts. The easternmost court was the Court of Women, and it contained the temple treasury where people donated their money (Mark 12:41–44). Three gates led into this court, one on the north, one on the south, and a third on the east. This third gate was probably the "Beautiful Gate" (Acts 3:2, 10). A fourth, larger, more massive and ornate gate led from the Court of the Women west into the Court of Israel (for male Jews), which was elevated fifteen steps above the Court of the Women.

Inside the Court of Israel was the innermost court, the Court of the Priests. During the Feast of Tabernacles, men could enter the Priest's Court to walk around the altar. The Court of the Priests immediately surrounds the temple building itself (the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies) and the altar of burnt offering.

The layout of Herod's temple was patterned after Solomon's. The two-story temple building was in the shape of a "T." The porch of the building (the cross member of the "T") was a vestibule 100 cubits long and 100 cubits high, with an opening 70 cubits high and 25 cubits wide. In front of the porch at the foot of the steps, surrounded by a cubit-high stone barrier, was the altar of burnt offering (15 cubits high and 50 cubits square). At the back of the vestibule were the main double doors (16 cubits wide and 55 cubits high) that led into the Holy Place.

The Holy Place was 40 cubits long, 20 cubits wide, and 60 cubits high. It contained the table of showbread, the seven-branched lampstand, and the altar of incense. The Holy Place was divided from the Holy of Holies by a curtain that stretched from floor to ceiling (Matt. 27:51; Mark 15:38; 2 Cor. 3:14). The Holy of Holies was 20 cubits by 20 cubits by 60 cubits high. It contained no furniture. The temple was surrounded on the north, south, and west sides by three stories of rooms that rose 60 cubits.

Temple in the New Testament. The New Testament uses two words for temple. One of these words refers to the collection of buildings that made up the temple in Jerusalem, while the other usually refers to the sanctuary of the temple.

Jesus related to the temple in four distinct ways. First, as a pious Jew who was zealous for the Lord, Jesus showed respect for the temple. He referred to it as "the house of God" (Matt. 12:4) and "My Father's house” (John 2:16). He taught that everything in it was holy because of the sanctifying presence of God (Matt. 23:17, 21).

Second, Jesus’ zeal led Him to purge the temple of the moneychangers (Mark 11:15–17; John 2:16) and to weep over it as He reflected on its coming destruction (Mark 13:1; Luke 19:41–44). Because Malachi 3:1 prophesied the cleansing of the temple as something the Lord and His Messenger would do, Jesus’ act implied His deity and messiahship. Consequently, the hard-hearted scribes and chief priests “sought how they might destroy Him” (Mark 11:18; Luke 19:47).

Third, because He was the Son of God incarnate, Jesus taught that He was greater than the temple (Matt. 12:6). Jesus’ teaching that if the temple of His body was destroyed in three days He would raise it up (John 2:19) likewise affirms His superiority to the temple building. That saying of Jesus may have provided the basis for the claim of the two false witnesses at His trial who stated that Jesus said, “I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days” (Matt. 26:60–61; 27:40; Mark 14:57–58; 15:29).

Finally, Jesus taught that the church (Matt. 16:18) is the new, eschatological temple (Matt. 18:19–20; John 14:23).

At Jesus’ death, the curtain of the temple was torn from top to bottom (Matt. 27:51; Mark 15:38; Luke 23:45). By His death, Jesus opened a new way into the presence of God. A new order replaced the old. No longer was the temple in Jerusalem to be the place where people worshiped God. From now on they would worship Him “in spirit and truth” (John 4:21–24).

The first Christians were converted Jews. They continued to worship at the temple as Jesus had (Luke 24:52; Acts 2:46; 3:1; 5:12, 20–21, 42). As they began to understand the meaning and significance of Jesus’ person, work, and teaching, they realized they were the new people of God, infused by God’s Spirit. As such, they were a new, living temple. A new order had replaced the old. Stephen, a Christian of Gentile background (Acts 6:1–5), was the first person to understand that the church had replaced the temple as the place where God’s presence was manifested in a special way among His people.

In Acts 15:13–18 Stephen’s insight was carried forward by James, who identified the church with Amos’ prophecy about the “tabernacle of David, which has fallen” (v. 16). According to James’ application of Amos’ prophecy about the end times, the restoration of David’s tabernacle, the temple, would serve as the rallying point for Gentiles who wished to come to the Lord (Amos 9:11–12). James understood the church as the new temple that fulfilled that prophecy.

According to the apostle Paul, “All the promises of God” are “Yes, and . . . Amen” in Christ (2 Cor. 1:20). Ezekiel and other prophets had prophesied a new temple (Ezekiel 40–43), and Paul understood the church as the fulfillment of those prophecies. Individually the Christian’s body is “the temple of the Holy Spirit” (1 Cor. 6:19). Corporately the church is “the temple of God” where the Spirit of God dwells (1 Cor. 3:16; 2 Cor. 6:16). Christians are growing “into a holy temple in the Lord . . . a dwelling place of God in the Spirit” (Eph. 2:21–22). Because we are God’s new temple where the Holy Spirit dwells, Christians are to be holy (1 Cor. 6:18–20; 2 Cor. 7:1).

Because God dwells in us, Christians are holy to God, and He will destroy anyone who defiles us (1 Cor. 3:16–17). Because there is only one new temple and all Christians—regardless of race or religious background—are members of it, all Christians have equal access to God (Eph. 2:19–22). Paul understood the church, then, as the eschatological temple to which God is gathering Israel and the other nations of the world (Is. 2:2–4; Mic. 4:1–5).

Paul used the metaphor of the temple to express the unity of the new people of God that God is bringing about through the preaching of the gospel. The members of this new race are Jews and Gentiles who formerly were separated by the “middle wall of separation” and the “ordinances” that forbade them to mix (Eph. 2:14–15). Christ’s sacrificial death on the cross ushered in a new age in God’s relationship with mankind and abolished the enmity between Jew and Gentile by abolishing the validity of the ordinances that gave expression to it (v. 15). He abolished those ordinances in order to create “one new man,” a new race composed of Jewish and Gentile Christians at peace with one another (v. 15, 17). This “new man” is a living temple (v. 21) that is based on the teaching of the New Testament apostles and prophets and on the teaching, work, and person of Christ (v. 20).

Jesus Himself is the chief cornerstone of the building and so gives it shape and character (v. 20). The building is holy because it is growing "in the Lord" (v. 21) and because God dwells there in the Spirit (v. 22). "Lord," "God," and "Spirit" define this new temple in a trinitarian fashion. The metaphors of God's new people being a temple ("building") and being a body ("growing") are blended in verse 21.

In a similar way, Peter used the word "house" to describe Christians as members of a new, spiritual temple (1 Pet. 2:4–10). Christ is the chief cornerstone (v. 6). He is "a stone of stumbling and a rock of offense" (v. 8), a "living stone, rejected . . . by men, but chosen by God and precious" (v. 4). Like Christ, Christians are "living stones" who are being built into a "spiritual house," or temple (v. 5). The metaphor of the "spiritual house" is combined with that of the "holy priesthood" that offers "spiritual sacrifices" (v. 5). And this "royal priesthood" of believers is a "holy nation," God's new people who proclaim His praises (vv. 9–10), the New Israel (Ex. 19:6).

In addition to understanding the church as the new, spiritual temple of God on earth that replaced the temple in Jerusalem, the New Testament alludes to a heavenly temple in whose life the church participates. John (John 1:51; 14:2) and Paul (Gal. 4:26; Phil. 3:20) both allude to the heavenly temple, but the idea is most developed in Hebrews and Revelation.

The author of Hebrews was concerned to demonstrate that the new covenant is better than the old. Among other things, Christians have a better covenant, a better sacrifice, a better high priest, and a better temple. The temple in Jerusalem was only a "copy and shadow," a type, of the true temple, which is in heaven (Heb. 8:5). Therefore the true, heavenly sanctuary into which Christ has entered on our behalf is better than its earthly copy (9:24). Because Christ our High Priest dwells in this heavenly sanctuary (9:24; 10:12; 19–22), we can enter the heavenly Holy of Holies and participate in the worship of the heavenly temple (10:19–22; 12:18–24). The author appears to define the heavenly temple as "the general assembly and church of the firstborn" (12:23).

According to John, the author of Revelation, there is a celestial Mount Zion (14:1; 21:10), a heavenly Jerusalem (3:12; 21:2), and a heavenly temple (11:19; 15:5—16:1). Christians who overcome temptation and trials are made pillars in the heavenly temple of God (3:12). As in Ephesians, then, the heavenly temple grows.

From this heavenly temple God will issue His judgments on the nations during the Tribulation (11:19; 14:14–20; 15:5—16:1). The martyrs of the Tribulation will serve God “day and night in His [heavenly] temple” (7:15). The temple in Jerusalem will be measured and judged during that time (11:1–2).

In the New Jerusalem there will not be a temple because “the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are its temple” (Rev. 21:22). In that city nothing will come between God and His people, and we “shall see His face” (22:4). In the new heaven and earth “the tabernacle of God” will be “with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people. God Himself will be with them and be their God” (21:3).

Paul identified the new temple with the church, but John and the author of Hebrews identified it with the heavenly realm where Christ dwells. Furthermore, just as there was no temple before the Fall, so John anticipated a new heaven and earth without a temple. These different ways of understanding the relation of the temple to the new people of God are complementary, not contradictory.

REBUILD MY TEMPLE

1 Ezra 3:1–6 On the site of Solomon's temple, 50 years after its destruction, returned exiles rebuild the altar and begin to worship God there daily.

2 Ezra 3:7–13 The site is cleared and foundations for the new temple laid. The people sing and shout for joy. Some people present had seen the previous temple.

3 Ezra 4:1–5 The work continues, but the local inhabitants try to stop the returned exiles from continuing.

4 Ezra 4:24 The work on the temple stops for 16 years. This is partly due to opposition, but also because of laziness (Haggai 1:2–8).

5 Ezra 5:1–6:15 Under the encouragement of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, the building begins again. The governor of the region complains, but Emperor Darius orders the temple to be built. It is finally completed after another 4 years.

6 Ezra 6:16–22 The temple is joyfully dedicated, and it starts to be used regularly for worship. This temple stood for nearly 500 years—longer than its predecessor (Solomon's) or its successor (Herod's).

TEMPLE SHEKEL (see WEIGHTS AND MEASURES).

TEMPTATION—an enticement or invitation to sin, with the implied promise of greater good to be derived from following the way of disobedience. In this sense, God does not tempt people, nor can He Himself as the holy God be tempted (James 1:13). God cannot be induced to deny Himself (2 Tim. 2:13). The supreme tempter is Satan (Matt. 4:3; 1 Cor. 7:5; 1 Thess. 3:5), who is able to play upon the weakness of corrupted human nature (James 1:14) and so to lead people to destruction.

The gospel of Jesus Christ directs us to resist temptation, promising blessedness to those who do (James 1:12). The gospel also directs us to pray for deliverance from exposure to temptation and from surrender to it (Matt. 6:13; Luke 11:4). The Lord will not allow His people to encounter temptation beyond their Spirit-given ability to resist (1 Cor. 10:13; 2 Pet. 2:9).

In the Old Testament, “tempting” by God can best be understood as testing or proving. The context is the covenant relation of mutual love and faithfulness between God and His people. The Lord tests Israel to prove the true nature of her faithfulness to Him (Gen. 22:1; Deut. 8:2, 16). His purpose is not to induce His people to sin but to confirm their faith (James 1:2–4). As in the case of Job, Satan the tempter can serve the Lord’s purpose. Satan’s temptation of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden was also the Lord’s testing of their faith.

The nation of Israel also “tempts,” or tests, the Lord by calling into question the Lord’s unswerving loyalty to His people (Ex. 17:2, 7; Ps. 78:18, 41, 56). God has promised to preserve Israel as His own everlasting possession, but His righteousness requires that He destroy a rebellious nation. His people’s disobedience tempts the Lord to break His promise to be their God.

In the temptation of Jesus (Matt. 4:1–11; Luke 4:1–13), Satan enticed the Son of God to forsake His messianic commitment. Jesus, however, did not prove to be a disloyal Son. He did not put the Lord to the test, or tempt God, like Israel of old. He lives “by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God” (Matt. 4:4). Having resisted satanic temptation Himself, Christ is able to comfort and aid His followers who are tempted in similar fashion (Heb. 2:18; 4:15).

TEMPTATION OF CHRIST—the forty-day period in the wilderness when Jesus was tempted by the devil (Matt. 4:1–13; Mark 1:12–13). Jesus’ first temptation (to turn stones to bread) was to use His divine power to satisfy His own physical needs. The second (to jump off the temple) was to perform a spectacular feat so the people would follow Him. The third was to gain possession of the world by worshiping Satan.

One motive lay behind all these temptations: Satan wanted to destroy Jesus’ mission. Because Jesus’ death would destroy Satan’s power, Satan wanted Jesus to pollute His life and ministry. The ultimate issue behind these temptations was idolatry. The real purpose of Satan's temptation was that he might be worshiped instead of God.

TEN (see NUMBER).

TEN COMMANDMENTS (see COMMANDMENTS, TEN).

TENDERHEARTED—easily moved by another's distress. The Greek noun translated "tenderhearted" (Eph. 4:32) literally means "having strong, kindly bowels." In the Bible the BOWELS are regarded as the source of kindness (Gen. 43:30, KJV; Phil. 1:8, KJV).

TENON—a projection on the end of a piece of wood shaped to fit into a socket. The tabernacle boards had tenons that fitted into sockets of silver (Ex. 26:17).

TENT—a temporary shelter made of cloth, supported usually by poles and ropes. In biblical times tents were frequently made of a cloth woven out of black goat's hair. The cloth was woven on a loom in long strips, which were then sewn together until the desired length was reached. Poles and rope held the tent upright and in the desired position. The ropes were usually tied to tent pegs driven into the ground. While tents came in a variety of sizes and shapes, the traditional shape has been a rectangle. The side and end walls were made of reed mats, which were removable to catch the breeze.

The interior of a tent was quite plain. The floor was covered with mats or a rug upon which the people sat. A chest or two and a low table might be the only furniture. Since a family's belongings had to be packed and moved frequently, even the wealthy did not accumulate numerous pieces of furniture.

Tents have been the housing of nomadic and semi-nomadic people in the Middle East since the beginning of history. The patriarchs—Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—all lived in tents as they crisscrossed the Promised Land. For forty years after they left Egypt, the Israelites lived in tents. The tabernacle, where the Israelites worshiped God before the building of Solomon's temple, is frequently called the "tent of meeting" (Ex. 29:32, 40). Tents continued to have several uses even after the Israelites settled into villages. Armies used tents during military campaigns. The Rechabites continued to dwell in tents. "You shall not build a house . . . but all your days you shall dwell in tents" (Jer. 35:7).

In later years, a tent came to stand symbolically for a number of abstract ideas. The most common usage is as a general term for a home or dwelling (Luke 16:9; Ps. 15:1). The apostle Paul used the word to refer to our bodies, calling them "earthly tents" (2 Cor. 5:1).

TERAH [TEE ruh]—the name of a man and a place in the Bible:

1. The father of Abraham and an ancestor of Christ (Gen. 11:26–27; Luke 3:34; Thara, KJV). Descended from Shem, Terah also was the father of Nahor and Haran. He lived at Ur of the Chaldeans most of his life; at Ur he worshiped the moon-god (Josh. 24:2). From Ur, Terah migrated with his son Abraham, his grandson Lot (Haran’s son), and his daughter-in-law Sarah (Abraham’s wife) to Haran, a city about 800 kilometers (500 miles) north of Ur and about 445 kilometers (275 miles) northeast of Damascus. Terah died in Haran, another city where the moon-god was worshiped, at the age of 205 (Gen. 11:24–32).
2. An encampment of the Israelites in the wilderness (Num. 33:27–28; Tarah, KJV).

TERAPHIM [TEHR uh fim]—figurines or images in human form used in the ancient world as household gods. Teraphim is a Hebrew word for idols that appears in the NKJV only once (Hos. 3:4).

But the Hebrew word appears 14 additional times in the Old Testament. It is translated in these various usages as household idols (Gen. 31:19, 34–35), household gods (2 Kin. 23:24), idolatry (1 Sam. 15:23), idols (Zech. 10:2), image (1 Sam. 19:13, 16), and images (Ezek. 21:21).

Teraphim were probably of Mesopotamian origin, but apparently they were widespread in Hebrew households. Possibly made of clay, these objects may have been similar to the objects in Rome that were connected with superstition, idolatry, and magic.

The term teraphim, translated as household idols (NKJV) occurs in Judges 17:5 and 18:14, 17–18, 20, where it is linked with an EPHOD and with carved images and molded images. All of these items formed part of the equipment of Micah’s idolatrous shrine. In Hosea 3:4 teraphim is again linked with ephod in a reference to the absence of all forms of religion from Israel during her time of punishment.

The household gods (teraphim) of Genesis 31:19, 34–35 were probably idolatrous images that Rachel wanted to bring with her to Palestine, perhaps for the safety they might provide on the perilous journey and in a strange land.

In other contexts teraphim are directly related to idolatry. The idols that speak delusion (Zech. 10:2) and the idolatry that is linked with iniquity (1 Sam. 15:23) both are translations of the word “teraphim.” In his reformation of religion, King Josiah of Judah sought to restore true worship by abolishing the practices of consulting mediums and spiritists and using household gods (teraphim) and images (2 Kin. 23:24).

TEREBINTH (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

TERESH [TEE resh]—one of the two eunuchs who conspired against King Ahasuerus (Xerxes) of Persia. When Mordecai discovered their plot, they were hanged (Esth. 2:21).

TERRACE—a type of landing or outer courtyard. King Solomon built terraces for the temple and his royal palace (2 Chr. 9:11, KJV). Ezekiel also mentioned terraces several times in his prophecy (Ezek. 17:7, 10; 41:9, 11). Also see HOUSE.

TERROR—a state of intense fear or dread (Gen. 35:5; Ps. 91:5; Rom. 13:3). The apostle Paul referred to the SECOND COMING of Christ as the “terror of the Lord” for those who have not professed Christ as Savior and Lord (2 Cor. 5:11).

TERTIUS [TUR shee uhs] (third)—the scribe or secretary to whom the apostle Paul dictated his letter to the Romans (Rom. 16:22).

TERTULLUS [tur TUHL uhs] (third)—a professional orator hired to prosecute the Jews’ case against the apostle Paul (Acts 24:1–2). Tertullus accompanied Ananias the high priest and the elders from Jerusalem to Caesarea to accuse Paul before Felix, the Roman governor of Judea.

Tertullus’ speech followed the common Roman pattern of his day. He began by flattering the judge, the “most noble Felix,” for the peace and prosperity he had brought to the nation. He then charged Paul with crimes the apostle had not committed (Acts 21:26–40; 23:26–30; 24:10–21).

TESTAMENT—a written document that provides for the disposition of one’s personal property after death; a bequest. The word “testament” occurs only two times in the NKJV (2 Cor. 3:14; Heb. 9:16–17). In the KJV the word appears in several additional places (Matt. 26:28; 2 Cor. 3:6; Rev. 11:19)—translated in all these cases as “covenant” by the NKJV.

The word “testament” also refers to either of the two main divisions of the Bible: the Old Testament and the New Testament, or, more accurately, the Old Covenant and the New Covenant (2 Cor. 3:14).

TESTICLES, CRUSHED (see DISABILITIES AND DEFORMITIES).

TESTIMONY (see WITNESS).

TESTIMONY, ARK OF THE (see ARK OF THE TESTIMONY).

TETH [tate]—the ninth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:65–72. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter teth.

Also see ACROSTIC.

TETRARCH [TEH trahrk] (ruler of a fourth part)—the ruler or governor of the fourth part of a country, which was divided into these parts for efficient government, especially under the Roman Empire. According to the Jewish historian Josephus, before Herod the Great was named king he was first named tetrarch. The title was also given to Herod Antipas, ruler of Galilee and Perea (Matt. 14:1; Acts 13:1). Philip, the brother of Herod Antipas, was tetrarch of Iturea and the region of Trachonitis; and Lysanias was tetrarch of Abilene (Luke 3:1).

TEXTS AND MANUSCRIPTS (see BIBLE).

THADDAEUS [tha DEE uhs]—one of the twelve apostles of Jesus (Matt. 10:3; Mark 3:18; Thaddeus, KJV), also called Lebbaeus (Matt. 10:3) and Judas the son of James (Luke 6:16; Acts 1:13). He is carefully distinguished from Judas Iscariot (John 14:22). Nothing else is known about this most obscure of the apostles, but some scholars attribute the Epistle of Jude to him.

THAHASH [THAY hash]—the third son of Reumah, the concubine of Nahor (Gen. 22:24; Tahash, NASB, NIV, NRSV). Nahor was the brother of Abraham.

THAMAH [THAY muh]—a form of TAMAH.

THAMAR [THAY mahr]—a form of TAMAR.

THANK OFFERING (see SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS).

THANKSGIVING—the aspect of praise that gives thanks to God for what He does for us. Ideally, thanksgiving should spring from a grateful heart; but it is required of all believers, regardless of their initial attitude (1 Thess. 5:18). We should be grateful to God for all things (Eph. 5:20; Col. 3:17; 1 Thess. 5:18), but especially for His work of salvation and sanctification (Rom. 7:25; Col. 1:3–5; 1 Thess. 1:2–7;

2:13). We ought also to thank God in anticipation of His answering our prayers (Phil. 4:6), knowing that His answers will always be in accord with His perfect will for our lives (Rom. 8:28–29).

Also see PRAISE.

THARA [THAR uh]—a form of TERAH.

THARSHISH [THAHR shish]—a son of Bilhan, of the tribe of Benjamin (1 Chr. 7:10). Also see TARSHISH.

THEATER—a semicircular structure with stone seats used as a place for dramatic productions. The theater was often the largest building in a city, capable of seating many people. Thus, it was often used for public meetings and for conducting public business. The apostle Paul was prevented by the disciples from entering the theater at Ephesus because of the hostile crowd (Acts 19:29, 31).

In biblical times the theater was a strictly Greek and Roman institution. The earliest Greek theaters took advantage of naturally sloping land for the typical outdoor semicircular seating arrangement.

The Greek theaters had rows of seats cut from rock, stone, or marble. Arranged in concentric semicircles, these seats were divided into two or more sections by gangways. Most theaters featured a raised wooden stage and a round space for the chorus or orchestra.

The beginning of the theater must be credited to the Greeks in the sixth and fifth centuries B.C. The Greek theaters were sites for dramatic performances taken from songs and dances in honor of the Greek god Dionysus, the god of wine (identified with the Roman god Bacchus).

In contrast to Greek theaters, Roman theaters were partly roofed. Theaters were built in Palestine under Roman rule. Herod the Great, a patron of Roman culture, built theaters in Caesarea, Damascus, Gadara, Philadelphia, and other cities. Herod built both a theater and an amphitheater in Jerusalem. Games were held every four years to honor the Roman emperor in the chief towns of Palestine. Remains of Greek and Roman theaters survive in cities visited by the apostle Paul, including Athens, Corinth, Ephesus, Miletus, and Philippi.

THEBES [theebz]—a form of NO, NO AMON.

THEBEZ [THEE biz]—a fortified city of Manasseh about 21 kilometers (13 miles) southwest of Beth Shean (Scythopolis). At Thebez Abimelech was killed by a woman who dropped a millstone on his head (Judg. 9:50–54).

THEFT (see LAW).

THELASAR [thih LAY zur]—a form of TELASSAR.

THEOCRACY [the OCK rih see]—direct government of the nation of Israel by God Himself or His earthly representatives. Although theocracy is not a biblical word, the concept of God's rule on earth is thoroughly biblical. In a theocracy human rulers interpret and carry out the divine ruler's will. In Israel's early days God ruled through men such as Moses, Aaron, and Joshua. Later, He ruled by using a group called the judges.

Deuteronomy 17:14–20 allows for an Israelite monarchy under God and in cooperation with other ruling officials. Later, when Israel finally demanded a king, it was their attitude of being "like all the nations" rather than the request itself that God considered a rejection of His kingship (1 Sam. 8:5). Samuel, the last judge and a great prophet, insisted that having an earthly king did not excuse Israel from obedience to the divine king (1 Sam. 12:1–25). The human king was not an absolute monarch.

After the return from the Babylonian captivity (about 538 B.C.), the priest became a more important agent of God's rule. Prophets such as Zechariah and Haggai mention the high priest as a ruler (Zech. 6:9–15). Apparently some Jews expected the Messiah to exercise priestly as well as kingly functions (Gen. 14:17–18; Ps. 110:4).

One of the purposes of the New Testament is to show God's kingly rule reestablished in Jesus Christ, the Prophet, Priest, and King appointed by God (Luke 24:19; Heb. 7:17; Rev. 19:16).

THEOPHANY [the AHF ih knee]—any direct, visual manifestation of the presence of God. The key word is visual, since God makes His presence and power known throughout the Bible in a variety of ways. But even in a theophany a person does not actually see God Himself. This is an impossibility, according to Exodus 33:20; 1 Timothy 6:16; and 1 John 4:12. What a person sees are the effects of God's unmediated presence.

Theophanies proper are limited to the Old Testament. They are most common in the books of Genesis and Exodus; but they also occur in the writings of the prophets, especially in connection with the calling of a prophet. The most frequent visible manifestation of God's presence in the Old Testament is the "Angel of the Lord." Other theophanies are the burning bush (Ex. 3:1–6), the pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire (Ex. 13:21–22), the cloud and fire of Sinai (Ex. 24:16–18), and the cloud of the glory of the Lord (Ex. 40:34–38).

The SHEKINAH glory that dwelt in the Holy of Holies in the tabernacle and the temple may also be thought of as a specialized, permanent theophany. Theophanies are never given for their own sake, to satisfy a curiosity about God, but to convey some revelation or truth about Him.

In the New Testament Jesus as the physical expression of God is a kind of theophany (John 1:14, 18; 14:9). But such is the uniqueness of His Incarnation that the word is not entirely appropriate.

The word "theophany" does not appear in the Bible.

THEOPHILUS [thih AHF uh luhs] (lover of God)—a Christian to whom Luke dedicated the Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts (Luke 1:3; Acts 1:1). The fact that Luke spoke of Theophilus as "most excellent" indicates that he was a prominent man of high rank and possibly a Roman. He may have chosen the name when he was converted to Christianity. According to tradition, both Luke and Theophilus were natives of Antioch in Syria. Much speculation surrounds Theophilus, but little is known for certain about him.

THESSALONIANS, EPISTLES TO THE—two letters written by the apostle Paul, which are among the earliest of Paul and of the New Testament. The major theological theme of 1 and 2 Thessalonians is the return of Christ to earth. Important as this theme is, however, the Thessalonian letters leave the reader wide awake to the responsibilities of the present, not gazing into the future. Both epistles aim to establish and strengthen a young church in a stormy setting (1 Thess. 3:2, 13; 2 Thess. 2:17; 3:3). In neither epistle does Paul fight any grave errors in the church. In both epistles the reader feels the heartbeat of Paul the pastor as he identifies with a young congregation taking its first steps in faith.

Structure of the Epistles. Paul begins the first epistle by thanking God for the faith, hope, and love of the Thessalonians, and marveling that they have become "examples to all in Macedonia and Achaia" (chap. 1). Paul recalls his sacrificial labor for the gospel (2:1–12), and the suffering the Thessalonians endured (2:13–16). Longing to see them again (2:17—3:5), Paul expresses his relief and encouragement upon hearing Timothy's report of their well-being (3:6–10). He prays for their growth in the gospel (3:11–13).

In chapters four and five Paul addresses three concerns. He reminds his converts that in sexual matters a Christian must conduct himself differently from a pagan (4:1–8). He adds a gentle reminder to work diligently and thus earn the respect of “those who are outside” (non-Christians, 4:9–12). Paul then devotes extended consideration to the most pressing questions in Thessalonica, the Second Coming of Christ (4:13—5:11).

The first letter concludes with a number of memorable exhortations and a charge to read the epistle “to all the holy brethren” (5:12–28).

Second Thessalonians is both shorter and simpler than 1 Thessalonians. Paul follows a nearly identical opening (1:1) with an assurance that when Christ returns He will punish those who persecute the Thessalonians (chap. 1). Chapter two brings Paul to the purpose of the letter—to clarify and expand his teaching on the Second Coming (1 Thess. 4:13—5:11). Certain signs will precede the return of Christ, in particular, an outbreaking of lawlessness, followed by the appearance of “the man of sin” or “lawless one” (Antichrist), who will escort to their doom those who have no love for the truth (2 Thess. 2:1–12). In contrast to those who are perishing, believers can give thanks to God for their call to salvation (2:13–17).

Paul concludes by requesting the prayers of the Thessalonians (3:1–5) and encouraging idlers to earn their living rather than live off their neighbors (3:6–15). He ends with a benediction in his own hand (3:16–18).

Authorship and Date. The vocabulary, style, and thought of the Thessalonian correspondence are genuinely Pauline. In 1 Thessalonians 2:1—3:10 Paul shares his point of view on some of the events described in Acts 16:16—18:7, thus supporting Luke’s description of Paul’s ministry in Acts. Both letters bear Paul’s name as author (1 Thess. 1:1; 2 Thess. 1:1). Paul’s co-workers, Silvanus (Silas) and Timothy, are both mentioned along with Paul in the opening greeting of both epistles.

It is possible to date the Thessalonian letters with some precision. Paul wrote both from Corinth (1 Thess. 1:1; 2 Thess. 1:1; Acts 18:5) while Gallio was proconsul (governor of a Roman province) of Achaia. We know from an inscription discovered at Delphi that Gallio ruled in Corinth from May, A.D. 51, to April, A.D. 52. If Paul spent 18 months in Corinth (Acts 18:11), and yet was brought to trial before Gallio (Acts 18:12–17), he must have arrived in Corinth before Gallio became proconsul. If he wrote to the Thessalonians shortly after leaving them, which seems probable, the letters would have to be dated in late A.D. 50 or early A.D. 51.

Historical Setting. Paul founded the church at Thessalonica in A.D. 49 or 50 during his second missionary journey (Acts 17:1–9). The church consisted of a few Jewish converts and a larger number of former pagans (1 Thess. 1:9; Acts 17:4). Desiring not to handicap the young church, Paul worked at his own job as a tentmaker—and at some sacrifice to himself, he adds (1 Thess. 2:7–12)—twice receiving aid from the ever-faithful Philippians (Phil. 4:16).

Paul's stay in Thessalonica was cut short, however, when the Jews gathered some local troublemakers and accused him before the city fathers of "turning the world upside down" by favoring Jesus as king instead of Caesar (Acts 17:1–7). This accusation was no small matter; it was a matter of treason, which in the Roman Empire was punishable by death. Not surprisingly, an uproar broke out; and Paul was escorted out of town, leaving Timothy to patch up the work (Acts 17:10, 15). Separated so suddenly from the infant church, Paul describes his feelings as one who had been "orphaned" (Greek text, 1 Thess. 2:17).

Once he was safe in Athens, Paul sent Timothy (who apparently had since rejoined him) back to Thessalonica to strengthen and encourage the believers (1 Thess. 3:2). When Timothy returned to Paul, who had since moved on to Corinth (Acts 18:1–5), he brought news of the love and faith of the Thessalonians. Paul was greatly relieved at this news.

In response to Timothy's encouraging report, Paul wrote the first epistle to Thessalonica. Evidently the Thessalonians were unsettled over the Second Coming of Christ, because Paul discusses the issue in both letters. In the first letter he informs them that at Christ's coming the dead in Christ must be raised first, then the living (1 Thess. 4:13–18). Since the time of Christ's coming will be as secretive as a thief's, Paul admonishes the believers to keep alert and be watchful (1 Thess. 5:1–11). Some, however, may have been too watchful, assuming that Christ would come any moment. In his second letter, therefore, Paul reminds the Thessalonians that certain events, namely, a rebellion against faith and the appearance of a "lawless one" (Antichrist), must happen before Christ returns (2 Thess. 2:8–9). In the meantime, Paul tells them to get back to work: "If anyone will not work, neither shall he eat" (2 Thess. 3:10).

Theological Contributions. Three themes appear in the Thessalonian correspondence: thanksgiving for their faith and example in the past; encouragement for those undergoing persecution in the present; and exhortation to further work and growth in the future.

Paul writes the epistles in the spirit of a true pastor. He is overjoyed with their enthusiastic response to the gospel (1 Thess. 1). He longs for the day when they will stand with him in the presence of the Lord Jesus (1 Thess. 2:19–20). At the same time, Paul is grieved at unjust charges leveled against him that his gospel is more talk than action (1 Thess. 1:5; 2:1–8). Cut off from his flock, he is anxious for their well-being (1 Thess. 2:17—3:5).

Paul compares himself to a nursing mother caring for her children (1 Thess. 2:7), and to a father working in behalf of his family (1 Thess. 2:9–12). He gives himself body and soul to the Thessalonians (1 Thess. 2:8) and dares to hope that they will give themselves likewise to God (1 Thess. 5:23). Such is the concern of a dedicated pastor.

Paul addresses the question of the return of Christ as a concerned pastor. He reminds them that confidence in Christ's return enables believers to be patient (1 Thess. 1:10), creates hope and joy (1 Thess. 2:19), and spurs them to pursue pure and blameless lives (1 Thess. 3:13; 5:23). Uncertainty as to when Christ will return demands alertness and watchfulness (1 Thess. 5:1–11), but the certainty that He will return makes present trials and sufferings bearable (2 Thess. 1:3–11). His return will come as a surprise, like a thief in the night (1 Thess. 5:4); but it will not be disorderly: those who have died first in Christ will proceed first to Christ, followed by the living, "And thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:17).

There is no mention in either letter of a MILLENNIUM, followed by a battle between Christ and Satan (Rev. 20:1–10). Paul simply states that at His coming Jesus will destroy the "lawless one" and will judge the unrighteous (2 Thess. 2:8–12). The end, however, will follow widespread rebellion and abandonment of the faith. Paul appeals for them to be levelheaded during the time of trouble and warns Christians not to despair when they see the Antichrist pretending to be God (2 Thess. 2:4). The schemes of "the man of sin" or "man of lawlessness" (2 Thess. 2:6, NIV) will be restrained until his treachery is fully disclosed, and then Christ will utterly destroy him (2 Thess. 2:8).

On the subject of the Second Coming, Paul assures the Thessalonians what will happen, but not when it will happen. His discussion throughout is dominated by an emphasis on practical living, rather than on speculation. The best way to prepare for Christ’s return is to live faithfully and obediently now.

• The ancient walls of Thessalonica, a city in Macedonia where Paul founded a church (Acts 17:1–4; 1 Thess. 1:1).

THESSALONICA [thes uh luh NIGH kuh]—a city in Macedonia (see Map 7, B–1) visited by the apostle Paul (Acts 17:1, 11, 13; 27:2; Phil. 4:16). Situated on the Thermaic Gulf, Thessalonica was the chief seaport of Macedonia. The city was founded in about 315 B.C. by Cassander, who resettled the site with inhabitants from 26 villages that he had destroyed. He named the city after his wife, the sister of Alexander the Great and daughter of Philip II of Macedonia. The Egnatian Way, the main overland route from Rome to the East, ran directly through the city and can still be traced today.

Under Roman rule, Thessalonica achieved prominence. In 167 B.C. the Romans divided Macedonia into four districts, Thessalonica becoming capital of the second district. Some 20 years later Macedonia became a Roman province with Thessalonica as its capital. After the battle of Philippi in 42 B.C., when Octavian and Mark Antony defeated Brutus and Cassius, the assassins of Julius Caesar, Thessalonica became a free city. It was the most populous city of Macedonia.

In the third century A.D. Thessalonica was selected to oversee a Roman temple, and under Decius (ruled A.D. 249–251), infamous for his persecution of Christians, the city achieved the status of a Roman colony, which entitled it to the rights and privileges of the Roman Empire. The city was surrounded by a wall, stretches of which still stand. Archaeologists have uncovered a paved Roman forum some 63 by 99 meters (70 by 110 yards) in size, dating from the first or second centuries A.D.

The apostle Paul visited Thessalonica in A.D. 49 or 50 during his second missionary journey (Acts 17:1–9). Paul's evangelistic efforts met with success. Within a short time a vigorous Christian congregation had blossomed, consisting of some members of the Jewish synagogue as well as former pagans.

The Book of Acts leads some to assume that Paul stayed in Thessalonica only a few weeks before being forced to leave because of Jewish opposition. But in reality he probably stayed at least two or three months. A shorter stay would scarcely account for Paul's receiving two gifts of aid from the Philippians (Phil. 4:16), or for the depth of affection that developed between Paul and the Thessalonians (1 Thess. 2:1–12). Thessalonica was also the home of two of Paul's co-workers, Aristarchus and Secundus (Acts 20:4; 27:2).

THEUDAS [THOO duhs]—a false leader of whom Gamaliel spoke before the Sanhedrin, about A.D. 32. According to Gamaliel's account, about 400 men joined Theudas, but "he was slain, and all who obeyed him were scattered and came to nothing" (Acts 5:36).

Scholars are uncertain of the identity of Theudas. Luke records that Judas the Galilean rose up in the days of the census. It is certain that this Judas was Judas the Gaulanite who, according to the Jewish historian Josephus, incited a riot over the census in the time of Quirinius, about A.D. 6. Then Josephus mentions a magician named Theudas who, acting as a false prophet, persuaded many people to cross the Jordan River and was beheaded for his efforts by the Romans. But this Theudas lived about 4 B.C., after Judas.

Josephus has rarely been found in error, but Luke has also been established as a reliable historian. It is not unlikely then that there were two insurrectionists named Theudas who lived many years apart. Perhaps Luke's Theudas was one of the revolutionaries who arose during the turbulent last year of Herod the Great's rule. Or Theudas may have been the Greek name for one of the three revolutionaries named by Josephus: Judas, Simon, or Matthias.

THIEF—any person who takes something he does not own. Mosaic Law provided strict penalties for thieves. A thief who slaughtered a stolen ox was required to pay back five. When a thief was killed while robbing a house, the killer of that thief was without guilt (Ex. 22:1–2). Jesus was crucified between two thieves who reviled Him. One later feared God and asked forgiveness. Jesus forgave this repentant sinner, assuring him of salvation (Luke 23:32–43).

THIEVES, TWO (see CRIMINALS, TWO).

THIGH—the part of the leg between the knee and the hip. A person struck his own thigh as a sign of sorrow, an action similar to beating his breast (Jer. 31:19; Ezek. 21:12). The Hebrews sometimes used the word "thigh" as a euphemism for the sexual organs. So during the time of the patriarchs, it was a custom that when one made an oath that had to do with family or descendants, he was to put his hand under the thigh of the one who required him to swear by his word (Gen. 24:2, 9; 47:29). When Jacob wrestled with the angel, his thigh joint at the hip was injured (Gen. 32:24–32).

For certain Israelite sacrifices, the right thigh of the slain animal was given to the priest for food (Lev. 7:32–34; 10:14–15). To smite "hip and thigh" (Judg. 15:8) indicated a violent, widespread slaughter.

THIMNATHAH [THIM nuh thuh]—a form of TIMNAH.

THIRD PART OF A SHEKEL (see MONEY OF THE BIBLE).

THISTLES, THORNS (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

THOMAS [TAHM uhs] (twin)—one of the twelve apostles of Jesus; also called Didymus, the Greek word for "twin" (Matt. 10:3; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:15). Thomas is probably best known for his inability to believe that Jesus had indeed risen from the dead. For that inability to believe, he forever earned the name "doubting Thomas."

Thomas was not present when Jesus first appeared to His disciples after His resurrection. Upon hearing of the appearance, Thomas said, "Unless I see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into His side, I will not believe" (John 20:25). Eight days later, Jesus appeared again to the disciples, including Thomas. When Jesus invited him to touch the nail prints and put his hand into His side, Thomas' response was, "My Lord and my God!" (John 20:28). Of that incident the great church father Augustine remarked, "He doubted so that we might believe."

Thomas appears three other times in the Gospel of John. (Except for the listing of the disciples, Thomas does not appear in the other three gospels.) When Jesus made known his intention to go into Judea, Thomas urged his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with Him" (John 11:16). Knowing that His earthly life would soon end, Jesus said He was going to prepare a place for His followers and that they knew the way. Thomas asked, "Lord, we do not know where You are going, and how can we know the way?" (John 14:5). To that Jesus gave his well-known answer: "I am the way, the truth, and the life" (John 14:6).

After the resurrection, Thomas was on the Sea of Galilee with six other disciples when Jesus signaled to them from the shore and told them where to cast their net (John 21:2). Thomas was also with the other disciples in the Jerusalem upper room after the Ascension of Jesus.

According to tradition, Thomas spread the gospel in Parthia and Persia, where he died. Later tradition places Thomas in India, where he was martyred. The Mar Thoma church in India traces its origins to Thomas.

THOMAS, GOSPEL OF (see APOCRYPHA).

THORN IN THE FLESH—a reference to some extreme difficulty "in the flesh" that the apostle Paul encountered in his ministry (2 Cor.

12:7). The context of this reference is Paul's experiences of visions and revelations that came to him from the Lord (2 Cor. 12:1–6). The purpose of this difficulty was to prevent Paul from being "exalted above measure." The thorn was designated as a "messenger of Satan," perhaps to indicate that Satan, as an adversary, resisted Paul's ministry. The Greek word for "thorn" may be used to refer to a stake, on which a person could be impaled.

Many explanations have been offered about the identity of Paul's "thorn in the flesh." If the best translation is "in the flesh," referring to the physical flesh, the thorn may refer to some physical infirmity such as epilepsy, malaria, or bad eyesight. An eye ailment seems to be supported by Galatians 4:13–15. If the translation is "for the flesh," referring to our lower nature, the thorn may refer to some painful experience that was spiritual in nature, such as temptation or the opposition of the Jews.

The purpose of the thorn, however, was to eliminate spiritual arrogance in Paul. Although Paul prayed for its removal, the Lord said to him, "My grace is sufficient for you, for My strength is made perfect in weakness" (2 Cor. 12:9). Thus Paul could boast in his "infirmities," because of the victorious power of Christ in his life (2 Cor. 12:9).

THOUSAND—a number with spiritual significance that occurs often in the Bible (Ps. 84:10; Dan. 7:10; Jude 14). In the Old Testament, according to some scholars, "thousand" is often used as a round number or as an approximation of a larger number or multitude (1 Sam. 21:11; Eccl. 6:6). The Book of Revelation declares that Satan will be bound for a thousand years at the end of time in connection with the Second Coming of Christ (Rev. 20:2).

THREE INNS—a village or town on the Appian Way (see Map 8, A–1) about 53 kilometers (33 miles) south of Rome (Acts 28:15; Three Taverns, NIV, KJV, NRSV). At Three Inns Christians met Paul as he approached Rome.

THREE TAVERNS (see THREE INNS).

THRESHING—removing the kernel of grain from its stalk. Different methods were used to accomplish this. The most basic method, beating the grain, was used by farmers with a small amount of grain to thresh. These farmers sometimes would walk their animals over the grain to thresh it.

For larger operations, animal-drawn machines were used. The most common of these was the threshing sledge (Is. 41:15). Made of planks with rocks or metal attached to its underside, the sledge was pulled back and forth over the grain. Weight was added by using stones or the weight of the driver and his children.

While threshing was an important part of the everyday life of the ancient Israelites, it formed an important backdrop for Old Testament picture language. Threshing is mentioned frequently as a symbol for destruction (2 Kin. 13:7; Amos 1:3) or divine judgment (Is. 28:27–28).

THRESHING FLOOR—a flat surface prepared for the threshing of grain. The threshing floor was usually located at the edge of a village, frequently on a large flat rock outcropping. When no flat rock was available, the threshing floor would be prepared by leveling the ground and pounding the earth to create a hard surface. Also see THRESHING.

THRESHING SLEDGE (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

THRESHOLD—the sill of a doorway and the place of entrance to a building. Because the threshold was part of a house's foundation, it was sometimes spoken of symbolically to represent the house as a whole. When the glory of the Lord "paused over the threshold of the temple," it filled the entire court with "the brightness of the Lord's glory" (Ezek. 10:4). Also see HOUSE.

THRONE—the chair of a king. The word may mean either "throne" or "chair" (stool, KJV), depending on the context (2 Sam. 3:10; 2 Kin. 4:10). The throne is a symbol of royal government and may refer to the king's role as a judge (Ps. 122:5; Is. 16:5). Since God alone is the true King, it is natural that the word throne should apply to His royal authority (Ps. 11:4; 45:6), especially His authority as Judge (Ps. 9:4, 7).

The image of God's throne is carried into the New Testament (Acts 7:49; Rev. 4:2). Here God's royal authority is given to Jesus, the heir to David’s throne (Luke 1:32; Acts 2:30). Jesus shares this throne with the Father (Rev. 3:21). Believers also will share in Christ’s authority and government (Rev. 3:21).

THROWING STICK (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

THRUSH (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

THUMMIM [THUHM im] (see URIM AND THUMMIM).

THUNDER—the sound that follows a flash of lightning. Thunder seldom occurred during Palestine’s long, dry summer (mid-April through mid-September). This scarcity meant that it naturally became a symbol of God’s power, wrath, and vengeance.

When Samuel called upon the Lord, thunder and rain came during the wheat harvest (a notoriously dry season), and the people greatly feared the Lord (1 Sam. 12:17–18). When Moses stretched his rod toward heaven, the Lord sent thunder and hail (Ex. 9:23–34); this was the seventh plague upon the land of Egypt. The Lord sent thunder at the giving of the law at Mount Sinai (Ex. 19:16; 20:18), when the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel (1 Sam. 7:10), and at David’s deliverance (2 Sam. 22:14–15).

In the New Testament, Jesus gave the nickname “Sons of Thunder” to two of His apostles, James and John, the sons of Zebedee (Mark 3:17). This name probably referred to their fiery, hot-tempered, stormy temperaments. When Jesus predicted His death on the cross, a voice came from heaven as a seal of approval upon His redemptive mission. Some people who heard the heavenly voice said that it had thundered; others said, “An angel has spoken to Him” (John 12:27–29).

Most of the New Testament references to thunder are in the Book of Revelation (Rev. 4:5; 14:2; 19:6). The imagery of thunder speaks of the powerful presence of God.

THUNDER, SONS OF (see THUNDER).

THYATIRA [thigh uh TIE ruh]—a city of the province of LYDIA in western Asia Minor (modern Turkey) situated on the road from Pergamos to Sardis. The city was on the southern bank of the Lycus River, a branch of the Hermus River.

Although never a large city, Thyatira was a thriving manufacturing and commercial center during New Testament times. Archaeologists have uncovered evidence of many trade guilds and unions here. Membership in these trade guilds, necessary for financial and social success, often involved pagan customs and practices such as superstitious worship, union feasts using food sacrificed to pagan gods, and loose sexual morality.

The Book of Revelation refers to a certain woman known as "Jezebel" who taught and beguiled the Christians at Thyatira to conform to the paganism and sexual immorality of their surroundings (Rev. 1:11; 2:18–29). In the church in Thyatira, one of the "seven churches which are in Asia" (Rev. 1:4), Jezebel's followers seem to have been a minority because the majority of Christians in this church are commended.

The apostle Paul's first convert in Europe was "a certain woman named LYDIA . . . a seller of purple from the city of Thyatira" (Acts 16:14). The modern name of Thyatira is Akhisar, which means "white castle."

THYINE (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

TIBERIAS [tigh BEER ee uhs]—the name of a city (see Map 6, C–2) and a lake in the New Testament:

1. A city on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. Tiberias stands on a rocky cliff about 19 kilometers (12 miles) south of where the Jordan River flows into the Sea of Galilee. Still, Tiberias is 208 meters (682 feet) below the level of the nearby Mediterranean Sea, and it has a semitropical climate that is mild in winter but humid in summer.

   The city was founded by Herod Antipas (about A.D. 20) and named after the emperor, Tiberius Caesar. It was said to have occupied the site of Rakkath, an old town of Naphtali (Josh. 19:35), and to have been built over a graveyard. Because of this, it was declared unclean by the Jews, who would not enter the city. Although Tiberias was an important city in the days of Christ, there is no record that He ever visited it. In fact, it is only mentioned once in the New Testament (John 6:23).

The city enjoyed a commanding view of the lake. Because of the numerous hot springs just south of the city, it was a popular resort for the Romans. Pliny the Elder mentions the healthful nature of the springs. Today the city contains a number of health spas.

Although the Jews would not enter the ancient Roman town, after the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 135, Tiberias ironically became the center of rabbinic learning. Here the MISHNA was completed about A.D. 200 and the Jerusalem (or Palestinian) TALMUD was finished about A.D. 400. The pointing system later used by the Masoretes to add vowels to the Hebrew text was first developed in Tiberias.

2. A lake in northern Galilee (John 6:1; 21:1), the same lake as the Sea of Galilee. Also see GALILEE, SEA OF.

TIBERIUS [tie BEER ih us] (son of the Tiber)—Tiberius Claudius Nero Caesar (42 B.C.—A.D. 37), the second emperor of Rome (A.D. 14–37). The adopted son and son-in-law of Octavian (Augustus Caesar), Tiberius succeeded Augustus as emperor.

Tiberius is mentioned by name only once in the Bible. Luke 3:1 states that John the Baptist began his ministry “in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar,” or A.D. 28. Luke 3:1 is very important in helping to establish the chronology of the life and ministry of Jesus. Tiberius is also frequently referred to simply as “Caesar” (Luke 23:2; John 19:12, 15). The Pharisees and Herodians sought to entrap Jesus by asking him a question concerning tribute to Caesar: “Tell us . . . is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?” The “Caesar” in question is Tiberius, and the coin they brought to Jesus bore Tiberius’ image (Matt. 22:15–22; Mark 12:13–17; Luke 20:20–26). Jesus began his ministry and was crucified during the reign of Tiberius.

Born in Rome on November 16, 42 B.C., Tiberius became emperor in his fifty-fifth year and reigned for twenty-three years, until his death in March, A.D. 37, at the age of seventy-eight. Some historians believe that Caligula, the mad successor to Tiberius, hastened Tiberius’ death.

The city of TIBERIAS, on the Sea of Galilee, was built in the emperor’s honor, about 20 B.C., by Herod, Roman governor of Galilee and Perea.

TIBHATH [TIB hath]—a city in ZOBAH, a kingdom in central Syria (1 Chr. 18:8). David captured Tibhath from Hadadezer, king of Zobah.

TIBNI [TIBB nie]—a man who is sometimes listed as the sixth king of Israel (884–880 B.C.). He and Omri were rival kings for three years, but Omri eventually emerged as victorious (1 Kin. 16:21–22).

TIDAL [TIE duhl]—the “king of nations” (king of Goiim, NASB, NIV, NRSV) who joined an alliance with three other kings—Chedorlaomer, Amraphel, and Arioch—and attacked the cities of the plain (Gen. 14:1, 9).

TIGLATH–PILESER [TIG lath puh LEE zur] (the firstborn of [the god] Esharra is my confidence)—a king of Assyria (ruled 745–727 B.C.) and, under the name Pul (2 Kin. 15:19), king of Babylonia (729–727 B.C.). He is also called Tilgath–Pilneser (1 Chr. 5:6, 26; 2 Chr. 28:20).

The accession of Tiglath–Pileser to the throne ended a period of political and military weakness in Assyrian history. He moved first to reestablish Assyrian dominance in Babylon and also attacked his powerful opponent to the north, Urartu. In 740 B.C. he conquered Arpad in northern Syria. The effect of this victory was far-reaching (2 Kin. 19:13; Is. 37:13). Tribute came in from Tyre, Damascus, Cilicia, and Carchemish. During this period, Tiglath–Pileser penetrated all the way to Israel, where he received tribute from Menahem. The fabulous sum of 1,000 talents of silver "from all the very wealthy" probably resulted in the unpopularity of Menahem (2 Kin. 15:17–22). When Pekahiah, Menahem's son, succeeded to the throne, he ruled for only two years before he was assassinated. In all likelihood, the murder was a result of his father's unpopular policy of submission to Assyria (2 Kin. 15:23–26).

While serving as king of Israel, Pekah adopted a strong anti-Assyrian policy by aligning himself with Rezin, king of Syria. Both Pekah and Rezin sought to force Ahaz, king of Judah, to join the revolt. But Ahaz appealed to Tiglath–Pileser for help. In 734 B.C. Tiglath–Pileser moved south along the coast to cut off possible Egyptian aid to the revolt. In 733 B.C. he marched into Israel, devastating much of Galilee and deporting many Israelites (2 Kin. 15:29). Finally, he moved against the real power of the region, Damascus, which fell in 732 B.C.

After devastating the countryside, Tiglath–Pileser captured the city of Damascus, executed Rezin, and sent much of the Syrian population into exile. Meanwhile, Hoshea had assassinated Pekah to become the new king of Israel (2 Kin. 15:30). Hoshea paid tribute to Tiglath–Pileser, as did the kings of Ashkelon and Tyre. When Tiglath–Pileser died in 727 B.C., the borders of his country had been dramatically enlarged and every enemy of Assyria had been severely weakened.

TIGRIS [TIE gris]—a major river of southwest Asia (see Map 1, C–1). Flowing about 1,850 kilometers (1,150 miles) from the Taurus Mountains of eastern Turkey, the Tigris joins the Euphrates River north of Basra. The Tigris and Euphrates flow roughly parallel to each other for hundreds of miles in the "Land of the Two Rivers," or Mesopotamia. The Tigris is identical with Hiddekel (Gen. 2:14, KJV, NKJV), one of the four branches of the river that flowed from the Garden of Eden.

TIKVAH [TICK vah] (expectation)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The father-in-law of Huldah the prophetess, wife of Shallum (2 Kin. 22:14; Tokhath, NASB, NIV; Tikvath, KJV). Tikvah is also spelled as Tokhath in the NKJV (2 Chr. 34:22).
2. The father of Jahaziah (Ezra 10:15).

TIKVATH [TIK vath]—a form of TIKVAH.

TILGATH–PILNESER [TIL gath pil NEE zur]—a form of TIGLATH–PILESER.

TILING—a surface of tiles, especially a roofing made of slabs or tablets of baked clay. Although clay tile roofs were common in Greek and Roman houses of the first century, they were rare in Palestine. The typical roof in Palestine was made of packed clay laid over thatch and branches.

Some men brought a friend who was paralyzed to Jesus, hoping he might be healed. When they saw the crowd around Jesus in a house, they went up on the roof, removed the tiles, and then lowered the friend. Jesus healed the man, who departed to his own house, glorifying God (Luke 5:19).

TILLER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TILON [TIE luhn]—a son of Shimon, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:20).

TIMAEUS [tih MEE uhs]—the father of the blind beggar Bartimaeus (Mark 10:46; Timeus, KJV).

TIMBREL (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TIME—a measurable period during which an action or condition exists or continues. Among the Hebrew people, units of time were measured in hours, days, weeks, months, and years. The more abstract concept of time is also mentioned in the Bible.

Present Time. The Bible speaks of God who exists eternally, as well as people who live in a time-space framework. A key passage for the present time is Ecclesiastes 3:1–11, which declares, “There is . . . a time for every purpose under heaven.” This passage goes on to note that there is a time for birth and death, mourning and dancing, keeping and throwing away, silence and speaking, and war and peace. People do not know their times (Eccl. 9:12), and their times are in the Lord’s hands (Ps. 31:15). We are warned not to plan our times as if they belonged to us, but to do what the Lord wills in our lives (James 4:13–17).

The accepted time of salvation is now (2 Cor. 6:2). We are to seek (Hos. 10:12) and trust the Lord at all times (Ps. 62:8) and practice righteousness during our lives on earth (Ps. 106:3). Since the days are evil, Christians are to make the most of their opportunities (Eph. 5:16). God is honored in these things. Scripture bears testimony that God is working out His purposes in people's time. He promised Abraham that he and Sarah would have a child (Gen. 18:10, 14), and the promise was fulfilled (Gen. 21:1–4). God also told the wicked Pharaoh of a plague that would come to him the next day (Ex. 9:18). God is working in our present time-space world; therefore, the present time is to be used for God's purposes and glory.

Fulfillment of Time. The fulfillment of time is an important concept, because it shows God's sovereign control of time in order to bring His promises to pass. Only the Lord knows the times and seasons for fulfillment (Acts 1:7; 1 Thess. 5:1). God has indicated that what He promised long ago would be fulfilled (Is. 37:26; Titus 1:3). God warned that Jerusalem would be destroyed if His people continued in disobedience. The prophet Jeremiah lamented after their downfall that their time was fulfilled (Lam. 2:17).

In the New Testament Jesus announced that the promised kingdom of God was at hand (Matt. 4:17). Jesus continually stated that His hour, or time, had not yet come (John 2:4; 7:6, 8, 30; 8:20); it was to be fulfilled when He was crucified (John 12:23; 13:1; 17:1). In fact, when Jesus came into Jerusalem in His triumphal entry, He stated that Israel should have known the time of the visitation of the Messiah (Luke 19:44). Jesus' death was prophesied in the Old Testament and the fulfillment of this was seen in His death at the appointed time (Rom. 5:6; Gal. 4:4; 1 Tim. 2:6).

The Future and the End Times. The future and the end times are in God's control. Many references to future time are related to judgment. Daniel's prophecy outlines the succession of world empires, and this prophecy involved judgments (Dan. 2:28–29). The nations will face a time of doom in the future (Ezek. 30:3; Dan. 8:17, 19). Israel will also suffer in "the time of Jacob's trouble" (Jer. 30:7). During that time many will fall (Matt. 24:10). Nations as well as individuals will face the future time of judgment (Ps. 81:15; Jer. 10:15). In fact, the demons realize that they will face a time of torment in the future (Matt. 8:29).

However, the future will not be all doom, because in that time Israel will be a restored kingdom (Joel 3:1; Zeph. 3:20). Messiah will endure forever (Dan. 2:44). The future of the unbeliever will be judgment (Rev. 11:18), while the believer will be exalted by God (1 Pet. 5:6). Believers eagerly await the time of the SECOND COMING (Heb. 9:28), which is nearer than when they first believed (Rom. 13:11). The future is in God's hands. This means the future is filled with hope and certainty for the believer.

Eternity. The Bible portrays God as existing eternally (Ex. 3:14; Ps. 90:2; Rev. 1:4; 15:7). This is also true for Christ, His Son (Is. 9:6; John 1:1–3, 18; Heb. 13:8). The unbelievers will face an eternity of punishment (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 14:11; 20:10–15). The eternal life of believers begins the moment they believe (John 3:16, 36; 5:24; 1 John 5:11). After this present time the believers will live eternally with God and His kingdom (Dan. 7:18, 27; Rev. 22:5).

Although people now live within a time-space framework, they will live eternally. God who exists eternally will remove time and space, and people will relate to God in an eternal relationship.

TIMEUS [tih MEE us]—a form of TIMAEUS.

TIMNA [TIM nuh]—the name of a woman and a man in the Old Testament:

1. A daughter of Seir the Horite and sister of Lotan (Gen. 36:22; 1 Chr. 1:39).
2. A son of Eliphaz and grandson of Esau (1 Chr. 1:36), also Timnah (Gen. 36:40; 1 Chr. 1:51).

TIMNAH [TIM nuh]—the name of a man and two cities in the Old Testament:

1. A chief of Edom (Gen. 36:40; 1 Chr. 1:51), also spelled Timna (1 Chr. 1:36).
2. A city on the northern border of Judah near Beth Shemesh (Josh. 15:10). Timnah was allotted to the tribe of Dan (Josh. 19:43; Thimnathah, KJV). Some scholars identify it with Tell el-Batashi, about 6 kilometers (4 miles) northwest of Beth Shemesh. At Timnah Samson married a Philistine woman and later told her his riddle of the lion and the honey (Judges 14).
3. A city in the hill country of Judah (Josh. 15:57). This Timnah is probably the same place to which Judah was traveling when he met Tamar (Gen. 38:12–14). Timnah is probably to be identified with present-day Tibnah, about 6 kilometers (4 miles) east of Beit Nettif.

TIMNATH HERES [TIM nath HEAR eez]—a city in the mountains of Ephraim that was both the inheritance and burial place of Joshua (Judg. 2:9). Timnath Heres is the same place as TIMNATH HERES (Josh. 19:50; 24:30). Some scholars suggest that the consonants for Heres (hrs) were deliberately written backwards as Serah (srh) as a reminder of these pagan worship practices. Also see TIMNATH SERAH.

TIMNATH SERAH [TIM nath SIR uh]—a city in the mountains of Ephraim that was the inheritance and burial place of Joshua (Josh. 19:50; 24:30). It is probably present-day Khirbet Tibneh, about 28 kilometers (17 miles) southwest of Shechem. Timnath Serah is the same place as TIMNATH HERES. “Now Joshua . . . died when he was one hundred and ten years old and they buried him within the border of his inheritance at Timnath Heres” (Judg. 2:8, 9).

TIMNITE [TIM night]—a native or inhabitant of TIMNAH (Judg. 15:6).

TIMON [TIE muhn]—one of the seven original “deacons” appointed to serve tables in the early church in Jerusalem (Acts 6:5).

TIMOTHY [TIM uh thih] (honored by God)—Paul’s friend and chief associate, who is mentioned as joint sender in six of Paul’s epistles (2 Cor. 1:1; Phil. 1:1; Col. 1:1; 1 Thess. 1:1; 2 Thess. 1:1; Philem. 1).

Timothy first appears in the second missionary journey when Paul revisited Lystra (Acts 16:1–3). Timothy was the son of a Gentile father and a Jewish-Christian mother named Eunice, and the grandson of Lois (Acts 16:1; 2 Tim. 1:5). Timothy may have been converted under Paul’s ministry, because the apostle refers to him as his “beloved and faithful son in the Lord” (1 Cor. 4:17) and as his “true son in the faith” (1 Tim. 1:2). Timothy was held in high regard in Lystra and Iconium, and Paul desired to take him along as a traveling companion (Acts 16:3).

Timothy played a prominent role in the remainder of the second missionary journey. When Paul was forced to leave Berea because of an uproar started by Jews from Thessalonica, Silas and Timothy were left behind to strengthen the work in Macedonia (Acts 17:14). After they rejoined Paul in Athens (Acts 18:5), Paul sent Timothy back to the believers in Thessalonica to establish them and to encourage them to maintain the faith (1 Thess. 3:1–9). Timothy’s report of the faith and love of the Thessalonians greatly encouraged Paul.

During Paul’s third missionary journey, Timothy was active in the evangelizing of Corinth, although he had little success. When news of disturbances at Corinth reached Paul at Ephesus, he sent Timothy, perhaps along with Erastus (Acts 19:22), to resolve the difficulties. The mission failed, perhaps because of fear on Timothy’s part (1 Cor. 16:10–11). Paul then sent the more forceful Titus, who was able to calm the situation at Corinth (2 Cor. 7). Later in the third journey, Timothy is listed as one of the group that accompanied Paul along the coast of Asia Minor on his way to Jerusalem (Acts 20:4–5).

Timothy also appears as a companion of Paul during his imprisonment in Rome (Col. 1:1; Phil. 1:1; Philem. 1). From Rome, Paul sent Timothy to Philippi to bring back word of the congregation that had supported the apostle so faithfully over the years.

Timothy's strongest traits were his sensitivity, affection, and loyalty. Paul commends him to the Philippians, for example, as one of proven character, faithful to Paul like a son to a father, and without rival in his concern for the Philippians (Phil. 2:19–23; also 2 Tim. 1:4; 3:10). Paul's warnings, however, to "be strong" (2 Tim. 2:1) suggest that Timothy suffered from fearfulness (1 Cor. 16:10–11; 2 Tim. 1:7) and perhaps youthful lusts (2 Tim. 2:22). But in spite of his weaknesses, Paul was closer to Timothy than to any other associate.

Writing about A.D. 325, Eusebius reported that Timothy was the first bishop of Ephesus. In 356 Constantius transferred what was thought to be Timothy's remains from Ephesus to Constantinople (modern Istanbul) and buried them in the Church of the Apostles, which had been built by his father Constantine.

Also see TIMOTHY, EPISTLES TO.

TIMOTHY, EPISTLES TO—two letters of the apostle Paul, which, along with the Epistle to Titus, form a trilogy called the Pastoral Epistles. These letters are called Pastoral Epistles because they deal with matters affecting pastors and congregations. In these letters to Timothy, Paul's primary concern is to instruct his young associate to guard the spiritual heritage that he has received (1 Tim. 6:20; 2 Tim. 1:12–14; 2:2) by establishing sound doctrine in the church.

Structure of the Epistles. First Timothy begins with a warning against false doctrine (1:1–11) and a reminder of God's mercy, illustrated by Paul's experience of salvation (1:12–20). This is followed by instructions on church practices: on prayer (2:1–8), on public worship (2:9–15), and on the qualifications of bishops (3:1–7) and deacons (3:8–13). A salute to Christ concludes the section (3:14–16).

Continuing with Timothy's responsibilities, Paul warns that false teachers will infiltrate the church (4:1–5). He instructs Timothy on the characteristics of a fit minister of the gospel (4:6–16), as well as his duties toward others (5:1–2), widows (5:3–16), elders (5:17–25), and servants (6:1–2). Following another warning against false teaching (6:3–10), Paul exhorts Timothy to "fight the good fight of faith" (6:11–21).

After a brief greeting (1:1–2), the second Epistle to Timothy begins by recalling Timothy's spiritual heritage (1:3–7), exhorting him to be strong under adversity and to keep the faith (1:8–18). In chapter two Paul uses the metaphors of soldier (2:3–5), farmer (2:6), experienced worker (2:15), and household utensils (2:20–21) as models for Timothy to imitate as a strong and worthy servant of the gospel. Paul declares what people will be like in the last days (3:1–9), although Timothy can take encouragement in the face of adversity from Paul's example and from the Scriptures (3:10–17).

The final chapter of 2 Timothy takes on a solemn tone as Paul appeals to Timothy to press forward in fulfilling his pastoral calling (4:1–5). Writing in the shadow of his impending death (4:6–8), Paul closes with personal greetings (4:9–22).

Authorship and Date. The authorship and date of the Pastoral Epistles remain an unresolved question in New Testament studies. On the one hand, the epistles bear the name of Paul as author (1 Tim. 1:1; 2 Tim. 1:1; Titus 1:1) and preserve personal references to him (1 Tim. 1:3, 12–16; 2 Tim. 4:9–22; Titus 1:5; 3:12–13). Other considerations, however, pose problems for Paul's authorship of the Pastorals. These can be listed under the following categories:

Historical—The Book of Acts makes no mention of a situation in which Paul goes to Macedonia, leaving Timothy behind in Ephesus (1 Tim. 1:3), or Titus in Crete (Titus 1:5).

Ecclesiastical—The description of church order in the Pastorals (for example, bishops, elders, deacons, an enlistment of widows) appears rather advanced for Paul's time.

Theological—Some ideas in the Pastorals differ from Paul's thought. For example, "faith" (Titus 1:13; 2:2) suggests orthodoxy or "sound doctrine," rather than a saving relationship with Christ; "righteousness" (Titus 3:5) suggests "good deeds," rather than a status of being justified before God. Likewise, the understanding of law (1 Tim. 1:8–11) differs from Paul's usual teaching on the subject (compare Rom. 3:19–20).

Literary—The vocabulary and style of the Pastorals differ from Paul's other writings. A significant number of words that appear in the Pastorals are not found in Paul's genuine letters, and the tone of the letters is uncharacteristically harsh at places (for example, Titus 1:12–13).

Each of these objections is not of equal weight, although taken as a whole they are impressive. If one assumes, as church tradition often has, that Paul was released following the Roman imprisonment mentioned in Acts 28 (2 Tim. 4:16) and later went to Spain (1 Clement 5, writing about A.D. 96), or revisited points eastward, many of the problems listed above are lessened. In this view, the circumstances of the Pastorals would fall after the events described in Acts. Thus, confronted by a rise in false teaching and by a need to increase church discipline and order, Paul could have written the Pastorals with the help of a secretary who expressed Paul's ideas in somewhat un-Pauline ways. This would date the letters between Paul's first and second Roman imprisonments, or about A.D. 65.

On the other hand, some feel that an admirer of Paul, using genuine notes or letters of the apostle, drafted the Pastorals to address the problems of a later day in the spirit of Paul. This view would date the letters at the close of the first century.

Historical Setting. First and Second Timothy differ in historical context. In the first epistle Paul writes from Macedonia to young Timothy (1 Tim. 4:12), who has been left in Ephesus to oversee the congregation (1 Tim. 1:3). The second epistle, also written to Timothy in Ephesus (2 Tim. 1:18), comes from Rome where Paul is undergoing a second (2 Tim. 4:16) and harsher imprisonment (2 Tim. 1:16, 18; 2:9). Paul is alone (except for Luke, 2 Tim. 4:11), and he knows the end of his life will come soon (2 Tim. 4:6). One can almost hear the plaintive echo of the apostle's voice as he bids Timothy to "come quickly before winter" (2 Tim. 4:9, 21).

The occasion for both epistles is much the same. Paul is deeply troubled by false teaching (1 Tim. 1:3–11; 2 Tim. 2:23) and apostasy (1 Tim. 1:6; 4:1; 2 Tim. 3:1–9), which endanger the church at Ephesus. He warns Timothy to beware of fables and endless genealogies (1 Tim. 1:4; 4:7; 2 Tim. 4:4), idle gossip (1 Tim. 5:13; 2 Tim. 2:16), rigid lifestyles based on the denial of things (1 Tim. 4:3), the snares of wealth (1 Tim. 6:9–10, 17–19), and religious speculations (1 Tim. 6:20). He warns that apostasy, in whatever form, will spread like cancer (2 Tim. 2:17). Paul urges Timothy to combat its malignant growth by teaching sound doctrine, promoting good works, and accepting one's share of suffering for the sake of the gospel (2 Tim. 1:8; 2:3, 11–13).

Theological Contribution. The message of 1 and 2 Timothy can be summed up by words like remember (2 Tim. 2:8), guard (1 Tim. 6:20), be strong (2 Tim. 2:1), and commit (1 Tim. 1:18; 2:2). For Paul, the best medicine for false teaching and apostasy is "sound doctrine" (1 Tim. 1:10; 4:3). The gospel is a spiritual inheritance to be received from faithful witnesses and passed on to such (2 Tim. 2:2). It brings about wholeness or health (which is the meaning of "sound" in Greek), not only in belief, but also in good deeds. So vital is sound doctrine to the health of the church that it is something to be pursued (1 Tim. 6:11), fought for (1 Tim. 6:12), and even suffered for (2 Tim. 1:8; 2:3, 11–13).

Special Consideration. The Epistles to Timothy might be considered our earliest manual of church organization. Within them we find guidelines for the selection of church leaders (1 Tim. 3:1–13). They also reveal an awareness of the need for standard forms of expressing the faith. For example, the words, "This is a faithful saying," appear four times in the epistles (1 Tim. 1:15; 3:1; 4:9; 2 Tim. 2:11). Two creeds, or perhaps hymns, also appear (1 Tim. 3:16; 2 Tim. 2:11–13). Finally, 2 Timothy presents the first (and only) pronouncement in the New Testament on the Bible as "Scripture" (referring to the Old Testament, 2 Tim. 3:14–17).

In Greek, the word for "inspiration" (2 Tim. 3:16) means "breathed into by God." As God breathed life into Adam (Gen. 2:7), so He breathes life into the written word, making it useful for teaching, reproof, and correction. Paul leaves us, therefore, not with a theory about Scripture, but with a description of its purpose and its power for salvation (2 Tim. 3:15).

TIN (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

TINDER—a highly combustible material, such as dry twigs or wood shavings, used to kindle fires (Is. 1:31).

TINKLING—a series of short jingling sounds. The word is found twice in the Bible. Isaiah refers to the wanton daughters of Jerusalem whose anklets make a tinkling noise (Is. 3:16, KJV). The apostle Paul said that the gift of tongues without love is like a “tinkling [clanging, NKJV, NIV] cymbal” (1 Cor. 13:1).

TIPHSAH [TIF suh]—the name of two cities in the Old Testament:

1. A city on the west bank of the Euphrates River that marked one of the boundaries of Solomon's kingdom (1 Kin. 4:24). Situated about 160 kilometers (100 miles) northeast of Tadmor (Palmyra), Tiphsah was an important caravan center.
2. A city in Judah defeated by Menahem, king of Israel (2 Kin. 15:16). Tiphsah is believed by many scholars to be Tafsah, about 10.5 kilometers (6.5 miles) southwest of Shechem.

TIRAS [TIRE us]—a son of Japheth (Gen. 10:2; 1 Chr. 1:5). Nothing else is known about Tiras. Some scholars believe Tiras' descendants were also an ancient people known by this name, but they are not mentioned in the Bible.

TIRATHITES [TIH ruh thights]—a family of scribes who lived in Jabez, probably in Judah (1 Chr. 2:55).

TIRE—Archaic KJV word for TURBAN.

TIRHAKAH [tur HAY kuh]—the third king of the twenty-fifth dynasty of Egypt (reigned 689–664 B.C.). During his reign he opposed three Assyrian kings—Sennacherib, Esarhaddon, and Ashurbanipal (the biblical Osnapper)—in a struggle for control of Israel. Tirhakah is mentioned twice in the Bible (2 Kin. 19:9; Is. 37:9). Tirhakah gave military aid to Hezekiah, king of Judah (reigned 715–686 B.C.) to aid his resistance against Sennacherib.

TIRHANAH [tur HAY nuh]—a son of Caleb and his concubine Maachah (1 Chr. 2:48).

TIRIA [TIR igh uh]—a son of Jahaleleel, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:16).

TIRSHATHA [tur SHAY thuh] (feared)—a title given to Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:63, KJV) and Nehemiah (Neh. 7:65, 70; 8:9; 10:1, KJV) as governors of Judah under Persian rule.

TIRZAH [TUR zuh]—the name of a woman and a city in the Old Testament:

1. The youngest of the five daughters of Zelophehad (Num. 26:33; Josh. 17:3).
2. One of thirty-one ancient Canaanite cities west of the Jordan River (see Map 3, B–3) conquered by Joshua (Josh. 12:24). Tirzah was the capital of the northern kingdom of Israel from the time of Jeroboam I until the time of Omri (reigned 885–874 B.C.), who moved the capital to Samaria after reigning in Tirzah six years (1 Kin. 16:23).

TISHBITE [TISH bite]—a name applied to Elijah the prophet (1 Kin. 17:1; 21:17; 2 Kin. 9:36). Some scholars believe Elijah was from a town named Tishbe, in Galilee (Naphtali). Most scholars, however, believe Elijah was from TRANSJORDAN, an area east of the Jordan River, specifically in the land of Gilead.

TISHRI [TISH rih]—the seventh month of the religious year in the Jewish calendar, also called Ethanim (1 Kin. 8:2).

Also see CALENDAR.

TITHE—the practice of giving a tenth of one's income or property as an offering to God. The custom of paying a tithe was an ancient practice found among many nations of the ancient world.

The practice of giving a tenth of income or property extends into Hebrew history before the time of the Mosaic Law. The first recorded instance of tithing in the Bible occurs in Genesis 14:17–20. After returning from rescuing Lot and defeating his enemies, Abraham met MELCHIZEDEK, the "king of Salem" and "priest of God Most High." The text states simply that Abraham gave Melchizedek a tithe of all the goods he had obtained in battle. The author of the Book of Hebrews, in recounting this episode, considered the Levitical priests who descended from Abraham and who appeared centuries later as having paid tithes to Melchizedek through Abraham (Heb. 7:1–10). There is no recorded demand of Abraham for a tenth. Neither is an explanation given about why Abraham gave a tithe to Melchizedek. Jacob also, long before the law of Moses, promised that he would give to the Lord a tenth of all he received (Gen. 28:22).

The law of Moses prescribed tithing in some detail. Leviticus 27:30–32 stated that the tithe of the land would include the seed of the land and the fruit of the tree. In addition the Hebrew people were required to set apart every tenth animal of their herds and flocks to the Lord.

Mosaic legislation on tithing is also found in two other passages. Numbers 18:21–32 stated that the tithes in Israel would be given to the Levites, because the Levites did not receive a land inheritance like the other tribes of Israel. The Levites, in turn, were to offer a heave offering to the Lord. This would constitute a tithe on their part of the goods which they received. The rest of the goods which the Levites received would provide their living as the reward for their work in the tabernacle.

The third passage dealing with the tithe is Deuteronomy 12:5–7, 11–12, 17–18. This passage instructed Israel to take their tithes to the place the Lord prescribes, eventually the city of Jerusalem. In Deuteronomy, only a vegetable tithe is mentioned. In 2 Chronicles 31:6, however, the tithe of cattle is mentioned.

In Deuteronomy 26:12–15 the third year is called the year of tithing. This may indicate that the tithes were not collected annually. Apparently in this year only the goods that were given as tithes could be offered and stored locally. The offering of the tithe also took the form of a ritual meal (Deut. 12:7, 12). Some suggest that there were three tithes, but this seems unlikely. There is no mention of a tithe in Exodus but only the giving of the FIRSTFRUITS (Ezek. 44:29–30). Finally, the prophet Malachi indicated that Israel had robbed God in withholding tithes and offerings. Thus the Israelites were exhorted to bring their tithes into the storehouse in order to enjoy the Lord's blessing (Mal. 3:8–12).

In the Old Testament the purpose of the giving of a tenth was to meet the material need of the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless (the orphan), and the widow (Deut. 26:12–13). The tithe was an expression of gratitude to God by His people. Basic to tithing was the acknowledgment of God's ownership of everything in the earth.

In the New Testament the words "tithe" and "tithing" appear only eight times (Matt. 23:23; Luke 11:42; 18:12; Heb. 7:5–6, 8–9). All of these passages refer to Old Testament usage and to current Jewish practice. Nowhere does the New Testament expressly command Christians to tithe. However, as believers we are to be generous in sharing our material possessions with the poor and for the support of Christian ministry. Christ Himself is our model in giving. Giving is to be voluntary, willing, cheerful, and given in the light of our accountability to God. Giving should be systematic and by no means limited to a tithe of our incomes. We recognize that all we have is from God. We are called to be faithful stewards of all our possessions (Rom. 14:12; 1 Cor. 9:3–14; 16:1–3; 2 Cor. 8–9).

TITIUS [TISH ee uhs]—a man of Corinth who worshiped God. His house was next door to the synagogue (Acts 18:7; Titius Justus, NRSV, NIV, REB, NASB; Justus, KJV, NKJV). Also see JUSTUS.

TITLE—a placard that Pilate ordered fastened to Jesus' cross (John 19:19–20; inscription, NASB, REB; notice or sign, NIV). "This is Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," was written in three languages (Hebrew, Greek, and Latin) so that all who passed by could understand its meaning.

TITTLE—an ornamental stroke decorating the letters of the Hebrew alphabet (Matt. 5:18; Luke 16:17; stroke, NRSV; the smallest stroke, NASB; the least stroke of a pen, NIV). The word “tittle” comes from a Greek word that means “little horn.” Jesus meant that even the smallest detail of the law of Moses would never fail or pass away. Also see JOT.

TITUS [TIGH tuhs]—a “partner and fellow worker” (2 Cor. 8:23) of the apostle Paul. Although Titus is not mentioned in the Book of Acts, Paul’s letters reveal that he was the man of the hour at a number of key points in Paul’s life.

Paul first mentions Titus in Galatians 2:1–3. As an uncircumcised Gentile, Titus accompanied Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem as a living example of a great theological truth: Gentiles need not be circumcised in order to be saved.

Titus next appears in connection with Paul’s mission to Corinth. While Paul was in Ephesus during his third missionary journey, he received disturbing news from the church at Corinth. After writing two letters and paying one visit to Corinth, Paul sent Titus to Corinth with a third letter (2 Cor. 7:6–9). When Titus failed to return with news of the situation, Paul left Ephesus and, with a troubled spirit (2 Cor. 7:5), traveled north to Troas (2 Cor. 2:12–13).

Finally, in Macedonia, Titus met the anxious apostle with the good news that the church at Corinth had repented. In relief and joy, Paul wrote yet another letter to Corinth (2 Corinthians), perhaps from Philippi, sending it again through Titus (2 Cor. 7:5–16). In addition, Titus was given responsibility for completing the collection for the poor of Jerusalem (2 Cor. 8:6, 16–24; 12:18).

Titus appears in another important role on the island of Crete (Titus 1:4). Beset by a rise in false teaching and declining morality, Titus was told by Paul to strengthen the churches by teaching sound doctrine and good works, and by appointing elders in every city (Titus 1:5). Paul then urged Titus to join him in Nicopolis (on the west coast of Greece) for winter (Titus 3:12). Not surprisingly, Titus was remembered in church tradition as the first bishop of Crete.

A final reference to Titus comes from 2 Timothy 4:10, where Paul remarks in passing that Titus has departed for mission work in Dalmatia (modern Yugoslavia).

Titus was a man for the tough tasks. According to Paul, he was dependable (2 Cor. 8:17), reliable (2 Cor. 7:6), and diligent (2 Cor. 8:17); and he had a great capacity for human affection (2 Cor. 7:13–15). Possessing both strength and tact, Titus calmed a desperate situation on more than one occasion. He is a good model for Christians who are called to live out their witness in trying circumstances.

TITUS, EPISTLE TO—one of three PASTORAL EPISTLES among Paul's writings, the others being 1 and 2 Timothy. The Pastoral Epistles are so named because they deal with matters concerning pastors and congregations. They are the only letters of Paul addressed to individuals (Philemon is addressed "to the church in your house," 1:2). The purpose of the epistle to Titus was to warn against false teaching and to provide guidance for one of Paul's younger associates on sound doctrine and good works.

Structure of the Epistle. Following an extended greeting (1:1–4), Paul advises Titus on the qualifications for church elders or bishops (1:5–9) and warns against false teachers (1:10–16). He proceeds to list ideal characteristics of older men (2:1–2), older women (2:3–5), younger men (2:6–8), and slaves (2:9–10) in the church. The grace of God as it is shown in Jesus Christ provides the foundation for such qualities of life (2:11–15). The final chapter lists ideal characteristics for Christians in society as a whole (3:1–2), again based on the goodness and grace of God (3:3–7); right beliefs thus lead to right actions (3:8–11). The letter closes with personal news and greetings (3:12–15).

Authorship and Date. The circumstances were the same as those under which the apostle Paul wrote the letters to Timothy. (See TIMOTHY, EPISTLES TO).

Historical Setting. According to Titus 1:5, Paul left Titus on the island of Crete to continue establishing churches by appointing "elders in every city." As soon as Artemas or Tychicus relieved him, Titus was to meet Paul in Nicopolis (on the west coast of Greece) where the apostle planned to spend the winter (Titus 3:12).

The occasion for the letter was clear enough—to warn against false teachers (1:10–16). The precise nature of the teaching was less clear, although it included “Jewish fables,” legalism, and disputes over genealogies (1:10, 14; 3:9–10). Paul urged Titus to avoid such traps, for people associated with them would get caught in their own schemes (3:11).

Theological Contribution. Titus emphasizes sound doctrine (1:9; 2:8, 10) and challenges believers to good works (1:16; 2:14; 3:14). Paul summons Titus “to affirm constantly that those who have believed in God should be careful to maintain good works” (3:8). This letter will allow no separation between belief and action. We often hear it said that it makes no difference what we believe, as long as we do what is right. The truth, however, is that we become what we think, and all action is shaped by belief.

Two passages (2:11–14; 3:4–7) remind us of this truth. In a world such as ours, we cannot be reminded too often to hold fast to the truth of the gospel of our salvation.

TOLL (see TAX).

TOMB—an elaborate burial place for the dead. In Palestine ordinary people were buried in shallow graves covered by stones or a stone slab. People of importance and wealth were placed in tombs.

The most elaborate examples of tombs are the pyramids of Egypt, which served as burial places for the pharaohs. Other and more conventional tombs are found in the Valley of the Kings near Luxor, Egypt. Placed in the tomb with the body were items needed in the afterlife—treasures often later taken by grave robbers. Such treasures were found in the tomb of Tutankhamun. His tomb escaped the robbers because he died as a teenager and was therefore thought to have been buried with relatively little wealth. Its location was unknown until Howard Carter discovered it in 1922.

Josephus, the Jewish historian, tells of the riches placed in David's tomb (1 Kin. 2:10) in Jerusalem. The traditional site of the tomb of Herod the Great is the Herodium, about 6 kilometers (4 miles) southeast of Bethlehem. At his request he was buried there in 4 B.C. Although the Herodium has been partially excavated, Herod's tomb has not yet been found there.

Tombs were of two types—natural caves and those hewn out of rock. The most famous natural tomb is the cave of Machpelah, which Abraham purchased from Ephron the Hittite as a burial place for Sarah (Genesis 23). Abraham himself was later buried there (Gen. 25:9–10). Isaac, Rebekah, Leah, and Jacob were also buried in this cave (Gen. 49:29–33; 50:12–13). Rachel, Jacob's other wife, died in childbirth near Bethlehem. She was buried in a grave upon which Jacob set a pillar (Gen. 35:16–20). Today a building stands over the site.

Tombs were usually at a distance from the places where the living dwelt. In special cases, such as David and other kings, they might be situated within the city walls (1 Kin. 2:10) or in a garden near a person's house (2 Kin. 21:18). Usually they were outside a city or town (Luke 8:27), but they might be in a garden (John 19:41).

If burial caves were not large enough to accommodate the number of bodies, they were enlarged by excavation (Gen. 50:5). In smaller families places for the bodies were hewn out of the cave or tomb floor. For instance, to the right of the entrance to the Garden Tomb in Jerusalem are places for two bodies side by side. To the left of the entrance beyond a dividing wall, the tomb is unfinished.

TONGS (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

TONGUE—the organ of taste and speech. In addition to its many literal references to the tongue, the Bible also uses the word "tongue" for a particular language or dialect (Deut. 28:49; Acts 1:19). The word "tongue" also refers to a people or race with a common language (Is. 66:18; Rev. 11:9).

Figuratively speaking, the tongue can be sharpened like a sword (Ps. 64:3) or like a serpent (Ps. 140:3)—a reference to its ability to utter caustic, poisonous words. Like a bow, the tongue can project lies (Jer. 9:3), or like an arrow, can be shot out, striking down with its deceit (Jer. 9:8). The tongue can be used as a weapon for attack (Jer. 18:18), wounding like a sharp sword (Ps. 57:4). The tongue can be used viciously for flattery (Ps. 5:9; Prov. 28:23), backbiting (Ps. 15:3; Prov. 25:23), deceit (Ps. 50:19), unrestrained speech (Ps. 73:9), lying (Ps. 109:2; Prov. 26:28), strife (Ps. 31:20), cursing (Hos. 7:16), destruction (Ps. 52:2), and craftiness (Job 15:5).

People may use the tongue to sin (Ps. 39:1) or to speak of the Lord's righteousness (Ps. 35:28) and sing praises to God (Ps. 126:2). The tongue of the wise promotes health (Prov. 12:18). The tongue of the righteous is a treasure, like choice silver (Prov. 10:20). The Bible speaks of keeping the tongue from evil (Ps. 34:13), of guarding the tongue (Prov. 21:23), and of bridling the tongue (James 1:26).

The tongue is an indicator of a person's spirit: It reveals what is in the heart (Matt. 12:33–37; 15:18; Luke 6:43–45). In the classic New Testament passage on the tongue, James warns specifically against the evil of an uncontrolled and uncharitable tongue (James 3:1–12).

TONGUES, CONFUSION OF (see BABEL, TOWER OF).

TONGUES, GIFT OF—the Spirit-given ability to speak in languages not known to the speaker or in an ecstatic language that could not normally be understood by the speaker or the hearers.

Apparently the only possibly direct reference in the Old Testament to speaking in another tongue or language is found in Isaiah 28:11: "For with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people." This seems to be a reference to an invasion of the Assyrians. They apparently would speak in another language, one probably unknown to the people of Israel. The apostle Paul later applied this verse to speaking in tongues (1 Cor. 14:21). The apostle Peter considered the phenomenon of speaking in tongues that occurred on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2) as the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecy (Joel 2:28–32).

In an appearance to His disciples after His resurrection, Jesus declared, "And these signs will follow those who believe: In My name they will cast out demons; they will speak with new tongues" (Mark 16:17).

On the Day of Pentecost, the followers of Christ "were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance" (Acts 2:4). The people assembled in Jerusalem for this feast came from various Roman provinces representing a variety of languages. They were astonished to hear the disciples speaking of God's works in their own languages. Some have suggested that the miracle was in the hearing rather than in the speaking. This explanation, however, would transfer the miraculous from the believing disciples to the multitude who may not have been believers.

Tongues as a gift of the Spirit is especially prominent in 1 Corinthians 12 and 14. In 1 Corinthians 12 the phenomenon of tongues is listed with other gifts of the Spirit. As one of the several gifts given to believers as a manifestation of the Holy Spirit, tongues is intended, with the other gifts, to be exercised for the building up of the church and the mutual profit of its members. In 1 Corinthians 13 the apostle Paul puts the gift of tongues in perspective by affirming that though we "speak with the tongues of men and of angels" (v. 1), if we do not have love, the gift of tongues has no value.

In 1 Corinthians 14 Paul deals more specifically with the gift of tongues and its exercise in the church. In this chapter the tongue is not an intelligible language, for it cannot be understood by the listeners. Therefore, a parallel to the gift of tongues is the gift of interpretation. The gift of tongues was used as a means of worship, thanksgiving, and prayer. While exercising this gift, individuals address God, not people; and the result is to edify themselves and not the church (1 Cor. 14:2, 4). This gift is never intended for self-exaltation but for the praise and glorification of God. Paul does not prohibit speaking in tongues in a public service (14:39). But he seems to assign it to a lesser place than the gift of prophecy. Paul claims for himself the gift of tongues-speaking, but apparently he exercised this gift in private and not in public (14:18–19).

The gift of tongues is to be exercised with restraint and in an orderly way. The regulations for its public use are simple and straightforward. People who speak in an unknown tongue are to pray that they may interpret (1 Cor. 14:13). Or, someone else is to interpret what is said. Only two or three persons are to speak, with each having an interpretation of what is said. Each is also to speak in turn. If these criteria are not met, they are to remain silent (1 Cor. 14:27–28). The gifts of speaking in tongues and their interpretation are to be Spirit-inspired. Paul also points out that tongues are a sign to unbelievers. If these guidelines are not observed, unbelievers who are present will conclude that the people of the church are out of their minds.

The phenomenon of speaking in tongues in the New Testament is not some psychological arousal of human emotions that results in strange sounds. This is a genuine work of the Holy Spirit.

TOOLS OF THE BIBLE—Tools in Bible times were used to form, shape, cut, measure, move, or fasten materials. Various types of knives, saws, hammers, drills, and other tools were common in the ancient world.

In the earliest times—long before Abraham—people used stone tools fixed to wooden handles. Many of these were naturally-shaped stones. Others were shaped by people for specific purposes. Flint, a very hard stone that can be shaped into sharp-edged blades by hammering or pressing it with another stone, was in use from the earliest days.

By about 3200 B.C., techniques for smelting copper had been discovered, and metalworking tools made their first appearance in Palestine. Copper is relatively soft and does not hold an edge well. It was soon replaced by bronze, an alloy of copper and tin that was much harder and more efficient. The older versions of the Bible use the term "brass" to refer to this alloy. But true brass, an alloy of copper and zinc, was not in use in Bible times.

Bronze tools and weapons were used by the Hebrews right down to the time of the judges and Saul (about 1050 B.C.). By then the secrets of smelting iron had been learned from the Philistines, and iron farm implements were available in Israel.

The Philistines tried to keep the secrets of the technology from the Israelites who had no iron spears or swords (1 Sam. 13:19–22). But with David's victory over the Philistines, iron became readily available to the Israelites (1 Kin. 6:7).

Many specific tools—from general and household tools to those used by specialists such as metalsmiths—are mentioned in the Bible. The following alphabetical list is keyed to the NKJV. But variant names from five additional translations—KJV, NASB, REB, NIV, and NRSV—are cross-referenced to this list.

Anvil. A large iron block on which metal was hammered and shaped. The only use of this word in the Bible occurs in Isaiah 41:7 where the word usually translated "foot" or "foundation" is translated as "anvil." Metalsmiths, whether working in delicate jewelry making or in heavy construction work, used anvils as bases on which to shape metal.

Awl. Awls were used by carpenters and leatherworkers to punch holes. The only biblical references to awls are in regard to the ceremony by which a slave had an earlobe pierced as a sign of his willingness to serve his master all his life (Ex. 21:6; Deut. 15:17). Archaeologists have found many samples of such tools. They are usually about 15 centimeters (6 inches) long, made of iron or bronze, and come to a sharp conical point.

Ax. A cutting and chopping tool. Eight different Hebrew words and one Greek word are translated "ax" in English versions of the Bible. Several of these axes were tools designed for specific jobs. One type of ax was a sort of pruning tool (Jer. 10:3) with a curved blade that could also be used by a blacksmith to pick up hot metal (tongs, Is. 44:12).

Iron axes were used to clear forests and cut wood (Deut. 19:5; Is. 10:15; Matt. 3:10). Sometimes the iron head would separate from the wooden handle and either be lost, as in the miracle of the floating ax head (2 Kin. 6:5–6), or possibly injure someone standing nearby. Deuteronomy 19:5 provides for this sort of accident. First Samuel 13:20–21 records the prices the Philistines charged for sharpening iron axes and agricultural tools.

Battle axes of various sorts are also mentioned in the Bible. They were used either as weapons or as tools to destroy captured cities (Ps. 74:5–6; Jer. 46:22; Ezek. 26:9). Some versions translate this tool as hatchet.

Another special type of ax was used by stonecutters to break out the large sawn blocks from a quarry or to shape the stone after it was quarried.

One other Hebrew word, translated ax (NKJV) in 2 Chronicles 34:6 (mattock, KJV) and Ezekiel 26:9, is more properly a weapon, either a large sword (Gen. 3:24; 1 Sam. 17:51) or a smaller dagger (Judg. 3:16). This word suggests a sturdy blade that could be used to cut down enemies as an ax cuts a tree.

Bellows. A device that provided a gust of air when squeezed. These small blowing instruments were made of leather and pottery and were operated by either hand or foot. To raise the temperature in the furnace high enough to work bronze or iron, it was necessary to get a good supply of air into the fire. The earliest furnaces were built so the prevailing wind blew through, increasing the draft. Later, in order to make it possible to work without the wind, bellows were used to force the air into the fire. The only biblical reference to this tool is in Jeremiah 6:29.

Brazier (see Oven).

Chisel. A chisel has a sharp metal blade and is commonly used for cutting and shaping wood or stone. Examples of chisels with bronze or iron blades from biblical times have been found. The only reference to a chisel in the Bible is as a stonecutter's tool (1 Kin. 6:7). The NIV uses "chisel" in Isaiah 44:13 for a word translated "plane" by the NKJV and other translations.

Compass. A device for drawing circles or parts of circles. The only mention of a compass in the Bible is in Isaiah 44:13. A primitive compass can be made by using a length of cord fixed at one end to a nail or pin and a marking instrument at the other. More accurate wooden or metal holders for the marking tool were also used.

Fan. The fan mentioned in the Old Testament was probably a type of long-handled fork used to toss the threshed grain into the air. The wind blew the chaff away, allowing the heavier grain to fall into a separate pile (Is. 30:24; Jer. 15:7). Some versions translate this tool as fork or winnowing fork.

John the Baptist's description of the Messiah as one who would separate good from evil in the last days uses this illustration (Matt. 3:12; Luke 3:17).

File. The file was probably some sort of stone used to sharpen the edge of metal blades. This word appears only in the KJV (1 Sam. 13:21).

Fire Pot (see Oven).

Forge (see Tongs).

Fork (see Fan).

Furnace. Many tradesmen needed the fiery heat provided by the furnace to perfect their goods. Furnaces made of stone or brick were used mostly by potters and metalsmiths. The word used for household furnaces or stoves in Bible times is usually translated as oven.

Clay pots and jars were of limited use unless they had been "fired" by being raised to a very high temperature. The heat changed the chemical makeup of the clay, leaving it very strong but brittle. By carefully controlling the amount of fuel and the air supply, the proper temperature was reached and maintained until the clay was cured.

Special furnaces were also necessary for smelting metal ores. Finely ground ores were mixed with charcoal and fluxes of limestone or crushed seashells and placed into the fire. Bellows kept the fire hot enough to melt the ore. As it melted, the liquid metal sank to the bottom of the furnace, allowing the waste slag to float to the top. This waste was removed through a small pipe. The metal was allowed to cool and then remelted in a crucible for purification. It was then cast into molds to be shaped into many useful items.

Large furnaces big enough for several people to walk into were used in Babylon to make bricks. This is probably the "burning fiery furnace" of Daniel 3:15–30. Also see Oven.

Goad. A sharpened metal point on the end of a long pole. Goads were used by farmers to prod animals to keep them moving, but they could also be dangerous weapons (Judg. 3:31). Ecclesiastes 12:11 notes that the wise instruction of a good teacher acts like a goad (also see Acts 26:14).

Hammer. Hammers and mauls were very useful to the people of the Bible. Four different Hebrew words are translated by these two English words. One refers to the small hammer used by stonecutters or carpenters to drive nails or shape stones (1 Kin. 6:7; Jer. 10:4). This same word is used in Judges 4:21 of the hammer that Jael used to kill the Syrian general Sisera. When the incident is related in Judges 5, the NRSV translates this word as hammer.

Another word translated as hammer is what would be known today as a sledgehammer. This tool was used to break up rocks (Jer. 23:29) or shape iron (Is. 41:7).

Harrow. A toothed bar, dragged by oxen, which was used to level plowed ground for planting. The harrow is not mentioned in the NKJV, but it does appear in the KJV (2 Sam. 12:31) and other translations (Job 39:10, NRSV, REB; Is. 28:24, NIV, NASB). No examples of this tool have been identified from the ancient world.

Hatchet (see Ax).

Hoe (see Mattock).

Knife. Three Hebrew words are sometimes translated as knife. The first describes either flint blades used for ritual circumcision or self-mutilation (Josh. 5:2–3; 1 Kin. 18:28), or short metal swords or daggers used in battle (Gen. 3:24; 34:25–26). The second word describes a knife used for the slaughter of animals for food or sacrifice (Gen. 22:6, 10; Judg. 19:29; Prov. 30:14). The third word occurs only in Proverbs 23:2. This tool was apparently similar to the second type of knife.

Knives were usually bronze or iron blades with the handle and the blade consisting of one piece of metal. Sometimes the blade was fastened to a wooden or bone handle with rivets.

Level (see Plumb Line/Plummet).

Mallet (see Hammer).

Marking Tool. Isaiah 44:13 describes a carpenter marking out divisions on a piece of wood. The Hebrew word occurs only here in the Bible, so the exact nature of the tool is not certain. It appears to be some sort of sharp-pointed instrument that was used to scratch marks in wood.

Mattock. A mattock was similar to a hoe. It was a flat iron head fastened to a wooden handle, used to weed the terraced gardens and fields. Mattock appears in only one passage in the NKJV (1 Sam. 13:20–21). The KJV translates two other Hebrew words as mattock (axes, 2 Chr. 34:6; hoe, Is. 7:25).

Maul (see Hammer).

Measuring Line (see Measuring Tools).

Measuring Rod (see Measuring Tools).

Measuring Tools. Both builders and surveyors used measuring tools. These were of two types: a solid rule, rod, or straight edge, up to 3 meters (10 feet) long; and a flexible rope, cord, or line that could be used to measure longer distances or irregularly shaped objects.

The prophet Ezekiel mentioned a measuring rod that was “six cubits long” (Ezek. 40:5). The ordinary cubit was about 45 centimeters (18 inches) long and the “long” cubit about 55 centimeters (22 inches), so Ezekiel’s rod was about 3.3 meters (11 feet) long.

Measuring lines were probably much longer. No definite length is mentioned, although 1 Kings 7:23 suggests at least 30 cubits, or 13.5 meters (45 feet), or more. According to Ezekiel 40:3, these lines were made of flax or linen, although other fibers were probably also used. The measuring line was used as a symbol of God’s judgment on evil (Lam. 2:8) or as a sign of His blessing and restoration (Jer. 31:39).

Mill. Mills and millstones were tools used to grind grain. The most common household mills of Bible times were flat stones on which grain was placed and crushed as other stones rolled over the grain.

Commercial mills were of different construction and considerably larger. One type was made of two round flat stones. A wooden peg was firmly fastened in the center of the bottom stone. The upper stone, which had a funnel-shaped hole through the center, was placed over the peg. Grain was poured between the stones and around the peg through the hole. The upper stone was turned by a peg handle placed near the outside edge, crushing the grain. Some of these larger mills required two operators.

A second type of commercial mill was similar in operation but of a different shape. The lower stone was in the shape of an upside-down cone. The upper stone, with a cone-shaped hollow cut into the bottom side, was placed over the lower stone. Grain was poured through a hole in the top. The upper stone was turned either by animals hitched to wooden arms attached to the stone or by slaves or prisoners (Judg. 16:21).

A third type of mill consisted of a large circular stone set on its edge and rolled around in a trough in the lower stone. This was also operated by animals or slaves.

The sound of grinding was heard constantly in the villages and towns. Its absence was a prophetic sign of famine and death (Jer. 25:10; Rev. 18:22). The loss of a millstone could mean disaster for a family (Deut. 24:6).

• Ancient grain mills at Pompeii. Poles were inserted through the holes in the mills, which were then turned to grind the grain.

Mirror. Many examples of small bronze mirrors on decorated handles are known from ancient times. It was impossible to get a perfectly flat surface on these metal mirrors, so the reflection was always somewhat distorted, like the mirrors in a fun house. Paul's comment in 1 Corinthians 13:12 recognized this problem.

Since glass mirrors were not made until after the time of the New Testament, the KJV references in 1 Corinthians 13:12, James 1:23, and Isaiah 3:23 are mistranslations.

Mortar and Pestle. A mortar was a cup, usually made of stone, in which various materials were ground to powder or mixed together. A pestle was a small stick with a knob on the end that did the actual grinding (Prov. 27:22).

Nail. Metal nails of either bronze or iron were commonly used by carpenters and cabinet makers. They were usually hand-forged and about the same size as our modern cut nails. First Chronicles 22:3 and 2 Chronicles 3:9 describe the large quantities of iron and bronze nails gathered by David for use in constructing the temple in Jerusalem. Jeremiah 10:4 describes fancy work done by craftsmen and goldsmiths, and the use of nails for decoration by these people. Archaeologists have found many samples of decorative nails with gold or silver heads.

A different word than the one for nail described the large iron spikes used in the crucifixion of Jesus (John 20:25). Another word, translated nail in the KJV, is translated peg by the NKJV and other translations (Ex. 35:18; Judg. 4:21–22; Zech. 10:4).

Needle. The Old Testament has many references to needlework or embroidery, particularly the woven linen used in the tabernacle hangings (Ex. 26:1–13) and the fine clothes of wealthy Israelites (Ezek. 16:10–18; 27:7, 16, 24). Needles must have been used also for sewing and repairing family clothing (Gen. 3:7; Job 16:15; Eccl. 3:7; Ezek. 13:18). Samples of needles found in numerous archaeological excavations are made of bone, bronze, or iron. They are of various sizes, from very fine to the size of large darning needles. Their shape is similar to the common needles of today.

Jesus' words in Matthew 19:24 (also Mark 10:25; Luke 18:25), that it is easier for a rich man to enter heaven than "for a camel to go through the eye of a needle," reflect an idea found in early rabbinic writing. There is no archaeological or historical support for the common idea that the "needle's eye" was a small pedestrian gate through the city wall. The statement simply means that humanly speaking, this is an impossible thing. Only a divine miracle can make it possible.

Oven. Cooking was usually done in small clay or stone ovens (Lev. 2:4; 26:26; Hos. 7:4). The word translated oven by the NKJV is translated in the KJV as furnace in Genesis 15:17 and Nehemiah 3:11 and 12:38. The REB translates Genesis 15:17 as brazier, while the NRSV and NIV use fire pot.

Ovens were either rectangular or circular, about 60 centimeters (two feet) in diameter and about 30 centimeters (one foot) high, with the top flattened and slightly hollow. The food was cooked on the flat top, with the fire inside the oven or stove. The usual fuel was animal dung or wood, but straw was used to make a quick fire and to rekindle the embers.

Malachi 4:1 describes the day of judgment when the evildoers will be destroyed in a day "burning like an oven." Nehemiah 3:11 and 12:28 mention the "Tower of the Ovens" on the city wall. This may have been a section of the city where commercial baking was carried on, but more likely it is a reference to either potter's or brickmaker's kilns or to metal smelters.

Peg (see Nail).

Pestle (see Mortar and Pestle).

Pick. An iron tool of uncertain use. It is listed, along with saws and axes, as a tool used by the people of Rabbah (2 Sam. 12:31; 1 Chr. 20:3).

Plane. The word "plane" occurs only in Isaiah 44:13. The exact nature of ancient Hebrew planes is not certain, but they were used to shape wood by scraping or shaving motions. The NIV translates this word as chisel.

Plow/Plowshare. The earliest plows were probably simple wooden sticks used to scratch furrows in the ground for planting seeds. Eventually, larger forked branches drawn by animals were used. These "single-handed" plows were light enough for one man to lift around obstructions. They had the advantage of leaving one hand free for the farmer to guide the animals.

By the time of Saul (about 1050 B.C.), iron tips were commonly fastened to the wooden plows. This made it easier to cultivate the stony soil of Israel. The Philistines were concerned that the Israelites not learn the secrets of iron smelting (1 Sam. 13:19–22). They apparently recognized it would be easy to make "plowshares into swords" for warfare (Joel 3:10). On the other hand, the age of the Messiah, the "Prince of Peace," was to be a time when "they shall beat their swords into plowshares" (Is. 2:4; Mic. 4:3).

Plumb Line/Plummet. A small heavy weight on the end of a long cord, used to make sure a wall is standing vertically (2 Kin. 21:13; level, Is. 28:17, NASB). In a vision, the prophet Amos saw the Lord measuring the nation of Israel with a plumb line. The people were not considered true and straight in their devotion to God because they had fallen into worship of false gods (Amos 7:7–8).

Press. A device used to crush fruits in order to make oil or juice. The cultivation of olives was an important part of the agricultural activity in Israel, since olive oil was a major item of trade and export. To extract the oil from the fruit, olives were placed in large shallow presses hewn out of rock and crushed with a large stone roller operated by two people. The oil was collected in a container, then strained to remove impurities before being bottled in clay pottery jars.

The New Testament name Gethsemane (Matt. 26:36; Mark 14:32) is a compound word meaning "oil press." Gethsemane was the place where the olives from the groves on the Mount of Olives were processed.

Wine presses were deep pits dug out of the rock. The grapes were put in and trampled by the workers with their bare feet (Amos 9:13). If the harvest was good, this was a joyous occasion and a time of singing and celebration (Is. 16:10; Jer. 25:30). The juice was channeled to another pit where it was allowed to settle before being put into skin bags or pottery jars for fermentation.

The description of Gideon threshing wheat in a winepress illustrates how carefully he had to hide the crop from the invading Midianites. Threshing such as this was normally done on the high ground to take advantage of the wind. But he was threshing in a pit in the valley (Judg. 6:11).

Pruninghook. A sickle-shaped knife used by the keepers of the vineyards to prune grapevines in the spring (Is. 18:5). This regular cutting was essential if the vines were to continue to produce good crops.

Razor. Razors of the ancient world were usually bronze or iron blades fastened to wooden handles. Those used by kings or for ritual purposes often had more elaborate bone or ivory handles. The prophet Isaiah predicted the Assyrians would conquer the northern kingdom of Israel, shaving Israel with a razor and bringing judgment on His people (Is. 7:20). The prophet Ezekiel (5:1–2) used a similar picture to illustrate the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians.

Rule (see Measuring Tools).

Saw. Saws were metal blades with a toothed edge. They were used by ancient peoples to cut wood or stone. Prisoners of war were sometimes put to work in the quarries cutting stone with saws. Marks left by the stonecutter’s saws can still be seen in many of the ancient quarries of Palestine.

Hebrews 11:37 describes the faithful Israelites who were killed for their faith. Some were “sawn in two,” a common method of execution among the Greeks. It is traditionally believed that the prophet Isaiah was killed in this way.

Shovel. According to Isaiah 30:24, shovels were sometimes used in the winnowing process. This was in addition to winnowing fans. Shovels were usually wooden paddle-type implements with long handles. These were different from the metal shovels used in the tabernacle and temple to remove the ashes from the altar (Ex. 27:3; 1 Kin. 7:40).

Sickle. A small hand tool used for cutting stalks of grain. The oldest known examples have flint teeth set in wood or bone handles. Later, metal blades were used. The grain was held in one hand and cut off near the ground by the sickle. The final judgment is sometimes pictured in terms of reaping with a sickle (Joel 3:13; Rev. 14:14–19).

Sieve. Scholars are not certain what kind of tool a sieve was. Two unrelated words, used once each in the Old Testament, are translated as sieve (Is. 30:28; Amos 9:9). In both places the word for sieve is used with a verb meaning "to sift."

Sledge (see Threshing Sledge).

Threshing Sledge. The purpose of threshing was to separate usable grain from the waste straw or chaff. This was usually done by spreading the stalks of grain several inches deep on a smooth flat area that was on a high piece of ground open to the wind. Specially shod animals walked around on the stalks until the grain separated from the hulls.

Frequently threshing sledges (Is. 28:27) made of wood (2 Sam. 24:22) with stone or metal teeth embedded in the bottom side were dragged over the grain by these animals.

The city of Damascus was called under judgment because that nation "threshed Gilead with implements of iron" (Amos 1:3–5) or behaved with unnecessary cruelty against a conquered people.

God promised to make His people into a "new threshing sledge" with sharp teeth and use them to bring judgment on those who oppress the godly (Is. 41:15).

Tongs. Tongs were a type of tool with a hook or a blade. They were used by blacksmiths to handle hot metal (Is. 44:12). These are called forges by the NIV and RSV. The same Hebrew word is translated ax in Jeremiah 10:3.

Wheel. The potter's wheel was a device used by potters to make their pottery even and symmetrical. Before its invention, pots and jars were built up of coils of clay smoothed and shaped by hand. The "slow wheel" was a small flat disk on a spindle, with a larger stone disk on the other end. It was spun by hand as the potter alternated between keeping the wheel in motion and shaping the clay.

The “fast wheel” was really two wheels, one above the other, with an axle joining them. The potter sat on a bench and turned the lower wheel with his feet. This way, he could keep it going rapidly, yet still have both hands free to shape the clay on the upper wheel.

The most symbolic and descriptive use of a potter’s wheel in the Bible appears in the Book of Jeremiah. Jeremiah visited a potter at his wheel. He compared the potter who molds his clay to God who has the power to mold the nation of Israel (Jer. 18:2–8).

Winnowing Fork (see Fan).

Yoke. A type of harness that connected a pair of animals to a plow or similar tool. Oxen were the most common animals used in working the land. A yoke of oxen was a pair (1 Sam. 11:7; Luke 14:19). Using a pair to pull a plow required a yoke to link them together so they could work efficiently. Yokes were usually made of a wooden beam shaped to fit over the necks of the two animals and held in place by wooden or leather fasteners.

The yoke was also used as a symbol of the burden or oppression of heavy responsibility, duty, sin, or punishment (1 Kin. 12:4–14; Jer. 27:8–12; Acts 15:10). In New Testament times the phrase “take the yoke of” was used by the Jewish rabbis to mean, “become the pupil of” a certain teacher. Jesus gave a gentle invitation to His disciples: “Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light” (Matt. 11:29–30).

TOOTH—a bonelike structure in the mouth used for chewing. In Bible times, clean, white teeth were desired for beauty (Song 4:2; 6:6). Many wild animals used their teeth to catch their prey (Deut. 32:24; Joel 1:6). This led naturally to biblical phrases that suggested that when one person destroyed another, it was through sharp teeth (Ps. 57:4; Prov. 30:14).

Teeth is also a familiar figure of speech in the Bible. "By the skin of my teeth" (Job 19:20) means a narrow escape; "children's teeth . . . set on edge" (Jer. 31:29; Ezek. 18:2) means children suffering for the sins of their "fathers," or ancestors—a doctrine the prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel repudiated. "Cleanness of teeth" means famine, hunger, or starvation (Amos 4:6). To break an enemy's teeth was a sign of his defeat (Ps. 3:7).

Gnashing one's teeth can symbolize intense anger (Job 16:9; Acts 7:54). Jesus described hell as an "outer darkness" and a "furnace of fire," a place of "weeping [wailing] and gnashing of teeth" (Matt. 8:12; 13:42; Luke 13:28). This is a graphic picture of the anguish and suffering of those excluded from the kingdom of God.

TOPAZ (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

TOPHEL [TOE fuhl]—a place in the Wilderness of Sinai near Paran (Deut. 1:1). It has been identified with et-Tafileh, an Arab village about 23 kilometers (14 miles) southeast of the Dead Sea.

TOPHET [TOE fet]—a place southeast of Jerusalem, in the Valley of Hinnom, where child sacrifices were offered and the dead bodies were buried or consumed (Is. 30:33; Jer. 7:31–32; 19:6, 11–14; Topheth, 2 Kin. 23:10). Chemosh, a Moabite god (1 Kin. 11:7, 33; 2 Kin. 23:13), and Molech, an Ammonite god (1 Kin. 11:7; 2 Kin. 23:10), were worshiped at Tophet through a practice despised by God—infant sacrifice (2 Kin. 16:3; Jer. 7:31; 19:5; 32:35).

Two kings of Judah—Ahaz, or Jehoahaz (2 Kin. 16:3), and Manasseh (2 Kin. 21:6)—made their own sons "pass through the fire." Godly King Josiah stopped this horrible practice (2 Kin. 23:10), possibly by dumping the garbage of Jerusalem at Tophet.

The prophet Isaiah used Tophet as a symbol of the death and destruction God would use as judgment against the king of Assyria (Is.

30:33). Jeremiah proclaimed that God's judgment would fall upon the people of Judah for sacrificing their infants to Baal (Jer. 19:5–6). The burial of slaughtered Judahites at this place would be so great, said Jeremiah, that the name Tophet would be changed to "Valley of Slaughter" (Jer. 7:31–32; 19:6). Jeremiah also announced that God would make Jerusalem itself a defiled place like Tophet because of the idolatry of the city (Jer. 19:6, 11–14).

TOPHETH [TOE feth]—a form of TOPHET.

TORAH [toe RAH]—guidance or direction from God to His people. In earlier times, the term Torah referred directly to the five books of Moses, or the PENTATEUCH. Moses told the people, "Command your children to observe to do all the words of this law." While the English word "law" does not suggest this, both the hearing and the doing of the law made the Torah. It was a manner of life, a way to live based upon the COVENANT that God made with His people.

Later the Hebrew Old Testament included both the books of wisdom and the prophets, but this entire collection was spoken of as the Torah. Jesus quoted Psalm 82:6, calling it a part of the law (John 10:34). Following the return from Babylon, the development of the synagogue gave rise to interpretations of the law by leading rabbis, which after a time were collected into 613 precepts. Considered part of the Torah, they were as binding as the law itself. Jesus referred to these additions to the original law of Moses as "the traditions of men."

The Torah, both then and now for Jewish people, should be seen as a total way of life. It requires complete dedication because it is seen as God's direction for living the covenant relationship.

TORCH—a light source consisting of a flaming stick of wood. Torches were used by the mob that arrested Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane (John 18:3).

TORMENT—to inflict physical pain or mental agony. Job cried out against his three friends who had come to comfort him, "How long will you torment my soul?" (Job 19:2). The rich man in Jesus' account of the rich man and Lazarus also described hell as a “place of torment” (Luke 16:28).

TORSO—the trunk of the human body. When the Philistines captured the ARK OF THE COVENANT, they took it into the temple, which contained a statue of their pagan god, Dagon. Later they found the statue fallen on its face before the ark; its head and hands had broken off and only the torso remained (1 Sam. 5:4; trunk, NASB, NRSV; stump, KJV; body, NIV, REB). This showed the powerlessness of the heathen idol and the strength of the Lord, the true God of Israel.

TORTOISE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

TOU [TOE oo]—a form of TOI.

TOW—KJV word for the refuse of flax produced in the manufacture of linen (Judg. 16:9; yarn, NKJV; Is. 1:31, KJV; tinder, NKJV, NIV).

TOWER—a tall building erected for defense. Some landowners used towers to protect their crops (Is. 5:2; Matt. 21:33; Mark 12:1). In the wilderness, towers were used to watch for approaching marauders (2 Kin. 17:9; 2 Chr. 26:10). In cities towers were part of the walls built for defensive purposes (2 Chr. 14:7; Neh. 3:1). They were erected at the corners of the wall, beside the city gates, and at intervals along the walls (2 Chr. 26:9). Watchmen secured the towers (2 Kin. 9:17), and military machines that threw arrows and stones could be mounted on the massive structures (2 Chr. 26:15).

The defensive nature of a tower led naturally to figurative references in the Bible. God is pictured as a high, strong tower sheltering His people from the enemy (Ps. 61:3; 144:2; Prov. 18:10).

• This massive stone tower was part of the defense system of the ancient city of Jericho. It dates back to about 6000 B.C., long before Joshua and his army destroyed the city.

TOWER OF BABEL (see BABEL, TOWER OF).

TOWER OF THE FURNACES (see FURNACES, TOWER OF THE).

TOWN—a cluster of homes that, in terms of size and organization, lies somewhere between a city and a village. A town is larger and more independent than a village, but it lacks many of the features (for example, a wall) that characterize a city.

While the English language preserves a neat distinction between city, town, and village, the same is not true for Hebrew and Greek. The main distinction in the Old Testament is between cities, which have defensive walls and are self-contained, and villages, which are without a wall and depend on large cities for protection. Many English translations confuse the issue by rendering various Hebrew words for city or village as town.

TOWN CLERK (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TRACHONITIS [trak uh NIGH tuhs]—a district in the tetrarchy of Philip (see Map 6, C–1), properly belonging to Arabia and not to Canaan (Luke 3:1). It was bordered by Iturea on the south, Bashan on the west, Damascus on the north, and the Arabian desert on the east. Trachonitis abounded with rocks and craggy mountains and, according to the Jewish historian Josephus, was infested with robbers and other predators who earned their living by violence.

TRADE AND TRAVEL—commercial buying and selling in Bible times and the travel required to conduct these activities.

The nation of Israel had little in the way of natural resources. But its geographic situation made the nation a strategic corridor through which all military and economic traffic between Europe, Asia, and Africa had to pass. Important roads from Egypt crossed the southern wilderness to Kadesh-Barnea and Elath and then proceeded north along the edge of the desert through Moab, Heshbon, Ammon, and Ramoth-Gilead to Damascus. Numerous secondary roads ran along the mountain ridge from Beersheba and Hebron to Jerusalem, Dothan, and Beth-Shean, then along the Jordan Valley from Jericho to Galilee. Several east-west roads linked the coast with the inland towns and cities.

The major route through Canaan was the “Way of the Sea,” an important highway that ran along the coast from Egypt through Gaza and Ashkelon to Joppa. Because of the swamps along the central coast, this road then swung inland to Aphek and up through the Aruna Pass through the Carmel mountains to Megiddo. At Megiddo the road divided, the western branch continuing along the coast to the Phoenician ports of Acco, Tyre, and Sidon. The eastern branch cut across the Esdraelon plain in Lower Galilee to Capernaum, Hazor, Dan, and Damascus, where it joined the highway coming up from Gilead.

The strategic military importance of this road meant that the nations struggled to control the key cities and passes at Megiddo and Hazor. Because of this constant ebb and flow of armies and traders, Israel was greatly influenced by neighboring nations. In turn, the nation became a major factor in international trade and commerce.

Israel’s wealth was primarily agricultural. Grain, especially wheat and barley, grew abundantly in the shallow valleys along the foothills of Judah and Samaria. These were major export crops. Figs, grapes, and olives were plentiful in the hill country of Judah.

The land around Hebron produced magnificent grapes (Num. 13:23–24). Large quantities of raisins and wine were produced around Hebron for home consumption and export. Olives were used either as food or crushed for cooking oil. Olive oil was also used in lamps or as a body rub, making it a major item in the economy of the region.

Large herds of sheep and goats were raised in Palestine (1 Sam. 16:11; John 10:1–16). Wool and the cloth made from this product were important sources of revenue.

Fish were taken along the Mediterranean Sea coast and in the Sea of Galilee. The northern part of the Mediterranean coast was also the source of the murex shell, which was used to make a very valuable purple dye. Extensive textile industries, using both wool and the linen made from the flax grown in the coastal plain, produced the distinctive Tyrian purple cloth that was in great demand all around the Mediterranean. Lydia of Philippi and Thyatira was engaged in this business (Acts 16:14).

The southern end of the Jordan Valley and the Dead Sea area was the source of a large and profitable salt-mining industry. The city of Jericho appears to have been involved in this trade as early as 6000 B.C.

Asphalt or bitumen was easily obtained from the tar pits in the Dead Sea area (Gen. 11:3; 14:10). This substance was used as caulking in boats and rafts, as mortar in building, and for making monuments and jewelry. Timber from the Lebanon mountains was also a significant trade item.

Little pottery was exported from Israel, except for simple containers for wine and oil. Israelite pottery was more practical and less artistic than Philistine and Greek pottery.

Neither did Israel export a great deal of metals, except during the time of Solomon when the copper mines in Sinai and the iron mines in Syria were worked commercially.

One major industry was the manufacture of mill stones from the high-quality basalt stone found in the volcanic hills of northern Galilee. These were shipped as far away as Spain, Italy, and North Africa.

During the early days of the United Kingdom under David and Solomon, Israel controlled all the major trade routes through the area.

It was impossible to ship anything anywhere between Asia Minor, the Mesopotamian Valley, and Egypt without going through Israelite-controlled territory. Heavy excise taxes and import and export duties on all goods traveling through Israel produced huge sums of money. These revenues went into the construction of elaborate palaces and temples and extensive public works and military projects (1 Kings 5–7; 1 Chr. 29:1–5; 2 Chr. 1:14–17).

Ezekiel 27:1–24 lists a number of products that were traded through the city of Tyre. Israel probably also traded in these items. Much of the material was carried by camel or donkey, but ox-drawn wagons were also extensively used (Gen. 37:25).

By New Testament times, travel was relatively simple and considerably safer than in the earlier periods. The establishment of Roman control over the Mediterranean Sea and the lands around it put an effective end to piracy and highway robbery in the Empire. The Roman road system linked every part of the Empire and made travel much easier.

For long distances, ship travel was common (Jonah 1; Acts 13:4; 27:1–44). Government officials and the wealthy frequently used various types of chariots (Acts 8:28) and portable chairs (Song 3:6–10). Horses were mostly used for military purposes (Acts 23:23–24).

But for most people, the only way of traveling was on foot or donkey back. Foot travelers could average about 16 miles a day. Under normal circumstances Mary and Joseph’s trip from Nazareth to Bethlehem (Luke 2:1–7) probably took at least five days. With Mary unable to travel easily because of her pregnancy, that trip could well have taken two weeks or more.

TRADER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES; COMMERCE).

TRADITION—customs and practices from the past that are passed on as accepted standards of behavior for the present. Jesus criticized the Pharisees for slavishly following their traditions and making them more authoritative than the Scripture (Matt. 15:2; Mark 7:3).

TRAIN—the lowest and back hem of the outer garment (Is. 6:1). The outermost garment worn by the Hebrew people was a long, loosely fitting robe. Usually sleeveless, its rear skirt was drawn up through the legs and attached around the waist by a belt or girdle when the person was working. This long skirt is called a train when it is not girded. To have a robe or cloak with a long train was a sign of favor and wealth (Ex. 28:33). Also see DRESS OF THE BIBLE.

TRAJAN [TRAY jan]—emperor of Rome, A.D. 98–117. Trajan is not mentioned in the New Testament. But scholars identify him as a bitter foe of Christianity soon after the close of the age of the apostles. Many Christians were martyred during his reign. When it was speculated that believers were engaging in a secret rite when they gathered for the Lord’s Supper, Trajan outlawed such meetings.

TRANCE—an ecstatic state of mind that gives people a sense of detachment from their physical surroundings.

The Greek word for trance literally means “standing outside” or “being put outside” of one’s normal state of mind. Peter had been in prayer when he “fell into a trance,” receiving the vision indicating that the Gentiles were to be included in the church (Acts 10:10). In his defense to the people in Jerusalem, the apostle Paul declared that after his conversion, he fell into a trance and Christ commanded him to leave the city and evangelize the Gentiles (Acts 22:17).

The trances of Peter and Paul involved their seeing and hearing senses. They saw and heard the Lord speaking to them. Both trances took place as they were in prayer, and in both cases the recipients were awake. Neither trance was self-induced; God revealed Himself in both.

Paul’s vision on the Damascus Road (Acts 9:3–9), the experience recorded in 2 Corinthians 12:2–4, and John’s experience of being “in the Spirit” (Rev. 1:10) are other examples of revelatory trances in the Bible.

In the Old Testament the word translated as blindness (Gen. 19:11; 2 Kin. 6:18) suggests that God caused a trancelike state to fall on the men at Lot’s house and on the Syrians. Trances are experiences through which God communicates His will and purpose to people. Also see VISIONS.

TRANSFIGURATION—a display of God’s glory in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ (Matt. 17:1–8; Mark 9:2–8; Luke 9:28–36). Peter cites the Transfiguration as historical proof of the true gospel of Christ (2 Pet. 1:16–18).

It is hard to imagine what Jesus looked like when He was transfigured, or changed in form. The gospel writers speak of His face becoming bright like the sun, and of His clothes being dazzling white. Peter explains that God gave Him honor and glory (2 Pet. 1:17).

Moses and Elijah appeared also. Both of these were Old Testament figures who did not have a normal death and burial. Luke indicates they discussed Jesus’ approaching death, which He was going to accomplish at Jerusalem (Luke 9:31). Throughout his gospel, Luke emphasizes that Jerusalem was the city of destiny for Jesus, who carefully accomplished all that the Old Testament prophesied and all that God wanted him to do. Jesus was destined for the cross.

Peter offered to make three tabernacles—one for Jesus, one for Moses, and one for Elijah. He may have been thinking that the Jews would have a final great celebration of the Feast of Tabernacles when the Messiah came. However, this was not the time for that, because Jesus still had to endure the cross.

A cloud overshadowed Jesus during His Transfiguration. This has symbolic as well as historical significance. It is a subtle reminder of the Exodus and the appearance of God to Moses on Mount Sinai (Exodus 24), when God also spoke from a cloud. The Transfiguration occurred about a week after Peter's confession of Jesus as the Messiah at Caesarea Philippi; Moses had to wait on the Mount about that long. Both Moses and Jesus were accompanied by three companions on their respective experiences. The word "decease" (Luke 9:31; exodus, KJV; departure, NIV) occurs in the conversation of Moses and Elijah. Thus the Old Testament Exodus points forward to Christ and His redeeming work.

At the same time, symbols of the SECOND COMING of Christ are also present in the Transfiguration account. Jesus will come with clouds and be revealed as God's chosen one. He will stand on a mountain, the Mount of Olives. The Feast of Tabernacles was associated in Jewish thinking with the return of the Messiah as well as with the journey in the wilderness after the Exodus. Moses gave the Law, yet also symbolized Jesus, the great prophet of the last days (Deut. 18:15). Elijah, too, was expected by the Jews to come in the last days (Mal. 4:5–6). The Transfiguration calls to mind both God's redemption through the Exodus and the future return and glory of Christ, His Son.

The Transfiguration concludes with God's voice speaking from the cloud, which marked God's presence (Ex. 40:34–38). When the disciples heard that Jesus was God's beloved Son, the chosen one with whom He was well pleased, they probably remembered Psalm 2:7, Isaiah 42:1, and possibly Genesis 22:2. All Scripture focuses on the person of the Lord Jesus Christ.

In the Transfiguration God showed clearly that Jesus is His one and only Son, superior even to the two great Old Testament figures, Moses and Elijah. His disciples are to listen to Him. At the conclusion of the Transfiguration, no one is seen but Jesus. He alone is worthy.

TRANSFORM—to change radically in inner character, condition, or nature. In Romans 12:2 the apostle Paul exhorted Christians, "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind." Followers of Christ should not be conformed, either inwardly or in appearance, to the values, ideals, and behavior of a fallen world. Believers should continually renew their minds through prayer and the study of God's Word, by the power of the Holy Spirit, and so be transformed and made like Christ (2 Cor. 3:18). When He returns, Christ will "transform our lowly body that it may be conformed to His glorious body" (Phil. 3:21).

In 2 Corinthians 11:13–15 Paul warned his readers to beware of "false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into apostles of Christ" (v. 13). One should not be surprised, said Paul, at such false apostles—people who are counterfeit and phony but who wear masks to deceive others—for "Satan himself transforms himself into an angel of light" (v. 14). Satan's workers, in imitation of their ruler, also disguise themselves as agents of good.

TRANSGRESSION—the violation of a law, command, or duty. The Hebrew word most often translated as "transgression" in the Old Testament means "revolt" or "rebellion." The psalmist wrote, "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered" (Ps. 32:1). In the New Testament every occurrence of the word "transgression" (NKJV) is a translation of a Greek word that means "a deliberate breach of the law" (Rom. 4:15; 1 Tim. 2:14; Heb. 2:2). Also see SIN.

TRANSJORDAN [trans JORE dahn]—a large plateau east of the Jordan River, the Dead Sea, and the Arabah. The term Transjordan is not used in the NKJV, KJV, or NRSV, but the general area is often called "beyond the Jordan" (Gen. 50:10–11; Deut. 3:20; Judg. 5:17; Is. 9:1; Matt. 4:15; Mark 3:8). The KING'S HIGHWAY (Num. 20:17; 21:22) crossed the entire length of Transjordan from north to south.

Before the time of Joshua, Transjordan was made up of the kingdoms of AMMON; BASHAN; GILEAD; MOAB, and EDOM. After the conquest, this area was occupied by the tribes of REUBEN and GAD and the half-tribe of MANASSEH.

Also see DECAPOLIS; PEREA.

TRANSLATE, TRANSLATION—to remove a person or thing from one condition, place, or state to another. In the Bible, the word "translation" or the concept of translation is used in three senses: (1) the physical translation of Enoch (Gen. 5:24; Heb. 11:5) and Elijah (2 Kin. 2:11) to heaven without the intervening experience of death; (2) the spiritual translation of Christians in their present experience from "the power of darkness" into "the kingdom of the Son of His love" (Col. 1:13); and (3) the future, physical translation and transformation of Christians at the SECOND COMING of Christ (1 Cor. 15:51–57; Phil. 3:21; 1 Thess. 4:13–18).

Translation is a special act of God. It is permanent in its results, it occurs in response to faith, and it has heaven as its reward.

TRANSLITERATION—the process by which letters or words are spelled in the corresponding characters of another alphabet. For example, Hades is a transliteration of a Greek word meaning "the unseen world" (Matt. 11:23; Luke 10:15; Acts 2:27). Amen is the transliteration of a Hebrew word meaning "so be it" or "let it be so" (Num. 5:22).

TRAP—a mechanical device such as a snare with bait, a striker-bar, a net, or a noose usually laid on the ground in which animals, birds, and even human beings are caught (Job 18:9; Ps. 140:5; 141:9; Is. 8:14; Amos 3:5). Also see SNARE.

TRAPPER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TRAVAIL—physical or mental pain or anguish. Rachel travailed in childbirth, dying as she gave birth to Benjamin (Gen. 35:16–19). The prophet Isaiah spoke of the Suffering Servant: "He [God] shall see the labor of His soul, and be satisfied" (Is. 53:11). Our salvation has been secured through the pain and suffering of God's Son.

TRAVEL (see TRADE AND TRAVEL).

TREASURE, TREASURY—something of value; a place for storing valuables. In the Old Testament a treasure was described as something “laid aside,” “possessed,” or “hidden,” and thus valuable (Gen. 43:23; Deut. 32:34). A treasury is a place to keep such valuables (Esth. 3:9; 4:7). A place where royal records are stored might, therefore, be called a “treasure house” (Ezra 5:17). Sometimes the term is used figuratively of the place where God keeps snow and hail (Job 38:22) or wind (Jer. 10:13; 51:16). Wisdom is called “hidden treasure” (Prov. 2:4).

The New Testament often uses the term literally to indicate something of value (Matt. 2:11). Or, it may be used in a figurative sense, as Jesus does to describe priorities as “treasures in heaven” (Matt. 6:19–21). Paul uses the term figuratively to speak of Jesus as the one “in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (Col. 2:3).

The temple at Jerusalem had treasuries, or rooms, for storing various kinds of treasures (1 Kin. 7:51; 1 Chr. 28:11–12). In Jesus’ day, Herod’s temple also had a treasury, where taxes and tithes were paid. Once Jesus sat opposite the treasury so he could see the rich and the poor putting in their contributions. He commended a poor widow for her contribution because she “put in all that she had, her whole livelihood” (Mark 12:44).

TREASURE CITY—KJV term for STORAGE CITY.

TREASURER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TREATY (see ALLIANCE; COVENANT).

TREE OF KNOWLEDGE—one of two special trees planted by God in the Garden of Eden. The other was the tree of life (Gen. 2:9). Since “the tree of the knowledge of good and evil” symbolized all moral knowledge, knowledge that only God could have, its fruit was forbidden to Adam and Eve (Gen. 2:17). But the tempter suggested to them that, by adding to their knowledge, the tree’s fruit would make them “like God” (Gen. 3:5). So they chose to disobey God. This act of rebellion marked the entrance of sin into the world.

The result was quite different than Adam and Eve expected. Instead of gaining superior knowledge that made them equal with God, they gained awareness or knowledge of their guilt, shame, and condemnation.

TREE OF LIFE—the tree in the Garden of Eden that bestowed continuing life (Gen. 2:9, 17; 3:1–24). Before Adam and Eve sinned, they had free access to the tree of life; after their act of rebellion, two CHERUBIM guarded the way to its fruit.

Adam and Eve's inability to eat from this tree after their sin showed that they failed to gain immortality, or eternal life. Because of their sin, they were subject to death and dying. This condition lasted until the coming of Jesus Christ, the second Adam, who offers eternal life to all who believe in Him (John 3:16; 1 John 5:11–12).

TRESPASS—the violation of a law. The Hebrew word translated as "trespass" means "a stepping aside from the (correct) path" (Gen. 31:36; Ex. 22:9). In the New Testament "trespass" is often a translation of a Greek word that means "a falling aside" (Mark 11:25–26; Eph. 2:1, 5). The apostle Paul wrote: "God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not imputing their trespasses to them" (2 Cor. 5:19). Also see SIN.

TRESPASS OFFERING (see SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS).

TRIAL—a temptation or an adversity, the enduring of which proves the merit of an individual's faith. For Christians, to encounter adversity is to undergo a trial in which their faith is proved either true or false before God, the highest judge. Since many positive things come about through such trials, Christians are urged to rejoice at their occurrence (James 1:2; 1 Pet. 4:13). Christ Himself set the example in how trials should be endured when He defeated Satan's temptations by appealing to the word and will of God (Luke 4:1–13).

TRIAL OF JESUS (see JESUS CHRIST).

TRIANGLE (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TRIBE—a social group composed of many clans and families, together with their dependents, outside the ties of blood kinship, who had become associated with the group through covenant, marriage, adoption, or slavery. The nation of ancient Israel, especially at the time of the events recorded in the Book of Judges, was a tribal society (Numbers 1; 2; 26; Joshua 13–21; Judges 19–21). Several neighboring nations also were organized along tribal lines (Gen. 25:13–16).

Israel was an association of twelve tribes, designated by the names of the ancestors from whom they were descended (Deut. 27:12–13; Ezek. 48:1–35). The historical origins of the tribal units may be traced to the Book of Genesis. Jacob, whose name was later changed to Israel (Gen. 32:28), was the father of twelve sons (Gen. 29:31—30:24; 35:18, 22–26). The sons of Jacob, excluding Levi and Joseph but including Joseph's sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, were the ancestors of the later tribal units in the nation's history. The development of the tribes begins with the events described in the Book of Exodus.

The sons of Jacob, together with their father and families, migrated to Egypt to join their brother Joseph and to escape the famine in Canaan (Gen. 46:1–27; Ex. 1:16). They grew significantly in number for the next 400 years (Gen. 15:13; Ex. 12:40). Then the descendants of Jacob's sons left Egypt in the EXODUS under the leadership of Moses. They were joined by many who were not descendants of Jacob. The Exodus people are thus characterized as a "mixed multitude" (Ex. 12:38; Num. 11:4).

The number of dependents, those not of blood kinship, continued to increase as the tribal units developed. Moses' father-in-law, whose clan joined Israel in the wilderness, was a Midianite (Num. 10:29). Caleb, who figured prominently in the conquest of the land of Canaan, was called a Kenizzite (Josh. 14:13–14). Later the Calebites were given an inheritance among the tribe of Judah (Josh. 15:13).

The tribal confederation with its institutions reached its highest form during the period recorded in the books of Joshua and Judges. The rigidity of Israel's tribal structure did weaken somewhat with the establishment of the United Kingdom under David and Solomon. But tribal organization and association was maintained throughout later biblical history (Luke 2:36; Acts 4:36; Rom. 11:1; Heb. 7:14).

TRIBULATION—great adversity and anguish; intense oppression or persecution. Tribulation is linked to God's process for making the world right again. His Son underwent great suffering, just as His people undergo a great deal of tribulation from the world (Rom. 5:3; Acts 14:22). This tribulation has its source in the conflict between God and the devil (Gen. 3:15), which will end with the devil being cast into the lake of fire to suffer eternal tribulation (Rev. 20:10). Also see TRIBULATION, THE GREAT.

TRIBULATION, THE GREAT—a short but intense period of distress and suffering at the end of time. The exact phrase, "the great tribulation," is found only once in the Bible (Rev. 7:14). The great tribulation is to be distinguished from the general tribulation a believer faces in the world (Matt. 13:21; John 16:33; Acts 14:22). It is also to be distinguished from God's specific wrath upon the unbelieving world at the end of the age (Mark 13:24; Rom. 2:5–10; 2 Thess. 1:6).

The great tribulation fulfills Daniel's prophecies (Daniel 7–12). It will be a time of evil from false christs and false prophets (Mark 13:22) when natural disasters will occur throughout the world.

Also see ANTICHRIST; MILLENNIUM.

TRIBUTE—a compulsory fee or financial contribution levied on an inferior by a superior ruler or nation. Before the establishment of the United Kingdom under David and Solomon, the judge Ehud brought tribute money to Eglon, the king of Moab (Judg. 3:15–18). During the time of the United Kingdom, Israel was strong and received tribute. David received tribute from Moab and Syria (2 Sam. 8:2, 6; 1 Chr. 18:2, 6), and Solomon accepted tribute from "all kingdoms from the River [Euphrates] to the land of the Philistines, as far as the border of Egypt" (1 Kin. 4:21).

After the division of the kingdom in 931 B.C., King Ahab of the northern kingdom of Israel received tribute from the king of Moab (2 Kin. 3:4–5). In the southern kingdom of Judah, Jehoshaphat received tribute from the Philistines and the Arabians (2 Chr. 17:11). Uzziah also forced the Ammonites to pay tribute to Judah (2 Chr. 26:8).

Even more is reported in the Bible about Israel and Judah paying tribute to foreign nations. Israel's king Jehoash paid tribute to Hazael of Syria to prevent attack (2 Kin. 12:17–18). Hoshea paid tribute to Shalmaneser V of Assyria (2 Kin. 17:3). Judah's King Ahaz sent tribute to Tiglath–Pileser III of Assyria (2 Kin. 16:7–8). King Hezekiah paid tribute to Sennacherib of Assyria (2 Kin. 18:13–16). Jehoiakim paid tribute to Pharaoh Necho II of Egypt just before Judah was captured by Babylon (2 Kin. 23:33–35). Although Israel was supposed to depend only on God for protection, the nation occasionally depended on foreign kings, paying heavily in tribute.

TRIBUTE MONEY (see MONEY OF THE BIBLE).

TRIFLES—rich, sweet desserts, usually fruit cakes topped with jam and soaked in wine (Prov. 18:8; 26:22; choice morsels, NIV; dainty morsels, NASB; delicious morsels, NRSV).

TRIGON (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TRIMMERS (see WICK-TRIMMER).

TRINITY—the coexistence of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit in the unity of the Godhead (divine nature or essence). The doctrine of the trinity means that within the being and activity of the one God there are three distinct persons: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Although the word "trinity" does not appear in the Bible, the "trinitarian formula" is mentioned in the Great Commission (Matt. 28:19) and in the benediction of the apostle Paul's Second Epistle to the Corinthians (2 Cor. 13:14).

God revealed Himself as one to the Israelites: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one!" (Deut. 6:4). This was a significant religious truth because the surrounding nations worshiped many gods and had fallen into idolatry, worshiping the creation rather than the true Creator (Rom. 1:18–25). "But when the fullness of the time had come," Paul wrote (Gal. 4:4), "God sent forth His Son, born of a woman, born under the law." In the New Testament, God revealed that He is not only one but a family of persons—an eternal, inexhaustible, and dynamic triune family of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, who are one in will and purpose, love and righteousness.

The relationship of Father and Son is prominent in the gospels because Jesus, the eternal Son who takes on human flesh, is most visible to us as He strikes a responsive chord through the Father-Son relationship. All the while the Holy Spirit is in the background, serving as our eyes of faith. The unity of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit is portrayed by Jesus' trinitarian teaching (John 14–16). This truth is expressed in the total ministry of Jesus as recorded in all four gospels as well as in the rest of the New Testament. The triune family cooperates as one in bringing the lost person home again into a redeemed family of believers.

The most distinctive characteristic of the persons of the triune family is their selfless love for one another. Each esteems and defers to the other in a way that makes the original family of the trinity a model for the Christian family of believers in the church.

The Father gives all authority to the Son and bears witness to Him, as does Jesus to Himself (John 8:18). Yet the Son claims nothing for Himself; He gives all glory to the Father who has sent Him (John 12:49–50). The key to unlocking the mystery of the trinity is to observe how the persons of the triune family give themselves to one another in selfless love. They are always at one another's disposal.

The Father serves the Son; the Son serves the Father; Father and Son defer to the Holy Spirit, who in turn, serves and defers to the Father and Son in a oneness that is eternally dynamic and inexhaustible. The mutual love of the triune persons spills over into the creation and is seen in their generous cooperation in saving the lost (John 14:15–17, 25–26).

Since God is the original family-in-unity, so Christians are urged by Jesus and the apostles to imitate the divine family in the believing fellowship, as Jesus taught so clearly when He washed the disciples' feet (John 13:14–15). The principal trait of the triune family is speaking the truth in love; this encourages a spirit of generosity among Christians as they reflect the divine family in calling the lost to come home.

The Trinity was at work in the incarnation of Jesus, the Son of the Most High, as He was conceived in the womb of Mary by the power of the Holy Spirit (Luke 1:30–35). At His baptism Jesus the Son received approval from the Father in the presence of the Holy Spirit (Luke 3:21–22), fulfilling two Old Testament prophetic passages (Ps. 2:7; Is. 42:1). The Trinity was also present in the temptation, as Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, was led by the Spirit for forty days in the wilderness. The devil recognized Jesus as the Son of God (Luke 4:3), but he tried to destroy the faithful relationship of the divine family.

In His preaching in the synagogue at Nazareth Jesus fulfilled Isaiah 61:1–2, claiming that "the Spirit of the Lord is upon Me" (Luke 4:18) and indicating that the triune family was at work in Him as the servant Son. At the transfiguration, the voice of the Father spoke again in approval of Jesus the Son to the innermost circle of disciples (Luke 9:35).

Jesus rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and in the Father who had delivered all things to the Son (Luke 10:21–22). He claimed to be acting in the place of God and through the Holy Spirit's power, which is the "finger" of God (Matt. 12:28; Luke 11:20). Jesus' cleansing of the temple was a claim of identification with the house of God His Father (Luke 19:45–46) that paralleled His concern for being in His Father's house at a much younger age (Luke 2:41–51).

Jesus witnessed further to His authority as He sent forth the disciples, following His resurrection, with the words, "Behold, I send the promise of My Father upon you" (Luke 24:49). He also told them to wait until they were empowered by the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:5, 8). Jesus claimed His Sonship not only from David but from David's Lord (Matt. 22:42–45), indicating His deity.

Following His resurrection, Jesus sent the disciples to baptize "in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" (Matt. 28:19). The fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy as spokesman for the Father and the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:4–8) occurred at Pentecost. This continued throughout the Book of Acts when the Holy Spirit inspired Peter and the apostles to preach a trinitarian gospel of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit (Acts 2:32–33; 5:29–32; 10:38).

Paul wrote from a sense of the triune family in Galatians, speaking often of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit (Gal. 3:13–14; 4:6; 5:5–6, 22–24). In Romans he used a threefold, trinitarian pattern to describe the plan of salvation (Rom. 1:18—3:20; 3:21—8:1; 8:2–30). All the remaining New Testament books contain Trinity teaching except James and 3 John.

The triune family is God's revelation of Himself as the ultimate truth about reality. This family is the original pattern from which God creates all the families of earth with their unity and diversity. The family of mankind, after losing its intimate relationship with the divine family at the Fall, is restored to fellowship by God's action. This happens when its members acknowledge the generosity originating in the Father, expressed by the Son, and energized by the Holy Spirit.

TRIPOLIS, MEN OF [TRIP oh lihs]—a form of TARPELITES.

TRIUMPH—the joy or exultation of victory. In the Bible the word “triumph” usually refers to God’s triumph—in the Old Testament His triumph over Israel’s enemies and in the New Testament His victory through Christ on the cross. Examples of God’s triumph over Israel’s enemies are described in the song of Moses and Miriam (Ex. 15:1–21). In the Old Testament the word “triumph” is found most often in the Book of Psalms (25:2; 60:8; 108:9).

In the New Testament the Greek verb that means “to make a show or spectacle of” is twice translated as “triumph” (2 Cor. 2:14; Col. 2:15). The figure of speech is drawn from the ceremony that greeted a Roman general who had won a decisive victory over a foreign enemy. This ceremony usually featured a display of captives and spoil following the general’s chariot.

The apostle Paul used such a triumphal procession as an analogy of Christ’s victory on the cross. By His triumph He conquered supernatural foes and “made a public spectacle of them” (Col. 2:15). Through Christ we also can claim the victory: “Now thanks be to God who always leads us in triumph in Christ” (2 Cor. 2:14).

TROAS [TROW as]—an important city on the coast of MYSIA (see Map 7, C–2), in northwest Asia Minor (modern Turkey), visited at least three times by the apostle Paul (Acts 16:8, 11; 20:5–6; 2 Cor. 2:12; 2 Tim. 4:13). Troas was situated about 16 kilometers (10 miles) southwest of Hissarlik, the ruins of ancient Troy.

At Troas, on his second missionary journey, the apostle Paul saw a vision of a “man of Macedonia” inviting him to preach the gospel of Christ in Europe (Acts 16:8–9). After ministering in Greece (Acts 20:2), Paul returned to Troas. Here he restored to life a young man named Eutychus, who had fallen from a third-story window while Paul preached late into the night (Acts 20:5–12).

• Ruins of Roman baths at Troas—the city where Paul received a vision to evangelize Macedonia (Acts 16:6–10).

TROGYLLIUM [troe JIL ee uhm]—a city near the foot of Mount Mycale opposite the island of Samos in CARIA. The apostle Paul stayed at Trogyllium on his return to Jerusalem after his third missionary journey (Acts 20:15). Trogyllium was about 32 kilometers (20 miles) south of Ephesus.

TROPHIMUS [TROF ih muss]—a Gentile Christian who lived in Ephesus and who accompanied Paul to Jerusalem at the end of Paul’s third missionary journey (Acts 20:4). When certain Jews from Asia saw Trophimus the Ephesian with Paul in Jerusalem, they supposed that Paul had brought “Greeks” (uncircumcised Gentiles) into the Court of Israel (an inner court beyond the Court of the Gentiles), defiling the temple (Acts 21:28–29).

The people seized Paul, dragged him out of the temple, and tried to kill him. But Paul was rescued by the commander of the Roman garrison and sent to Rome for trial.

Apparently Trophimus accompanied Paul on the trip toward Rome. In his Second Epistle to Timothy, Paul revealed, “Trophimus I have left in Miletus sick” (2 Tim. 4:20).

TROUSERS—a distinctive item of dress worn by the priests of the nation of Israel. These trousers were similar to a loincloth that covered their hips and thighs (Ex. 28:32). Other versions translate the Hebrew word as breeches and girdle. Also see PRIEST, HIGH.

TRUMPET (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

TRUMPETS, FEAST OF (see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS).

TRUSTEE (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

TRUTH—conformity to fact or actuality; faithfulness to an original or to a standard.

In the Old and New Testaments, truth is a fundamental moral and personal quality of God. God proclaimed that He is “merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abounding in goodness and truth” (Ex. 34:6). He is a “God of truth . . . without injustice” (Deut. 32:4). Furthermore, all of His paths are “mercy and truth” (Ps. 25:10). Frequently in the psalms, God’s mercy and His truth are joined together (Ps. 57:3; 89:14; 115:1). All of God’s works, precepts, and judgments are done in righteousness and truth (Ps. 96:13; 111:8).

Truth is a moral and personal characteristic of God: He is “the God of truth” (Is. 65:16). The psalmist declared, “Your law is truth” (119:142), “all Your commandments are truth” (119:151), and “the entirety of Your word is truth” (119:160). Because of His perfect nature and will, God has to speak and act in truth; He cannot lie (1 Sam. 15:29; Heb. 6:18; James 1:17–18).

Jesus is the Word of God who became flesh, “the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth” (John 1:14). All Jesus said was true, because He told the truth He heard from God (John 8:40). He promised His disciples that He would send “the Spirit of truth” (John 14:17; 15:26; 16:13)—a Helper who would abide in Christians forever (John 14:16), testify about Jesus (John 15:26), guide Christians into all truth (John 16:13), and glorify Jesus (John 16:14).

God is truth; the Spirit is truth; and Jesus is truth. Jesus said, “I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me” (John 14:6). Jesus and the revelation the Spirit of truth gave through His apostles are the final, ultimate revelation and definition of truth about God, people, redemption, history, and the world. “The law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ” (John 1:17).

TRYPHAENA [trigh FEE nuh]—a form of TRYPHENA.

TRYPHENA [trigh FEE nuh]—a woman at Rome to whom the apostle Paul sent greetings (Rom. 16:12; Tryphaena, NRSV, REB, NASB). Tryphena is mentioned with another woman, Tryphosa. They may have been sisters, twins, or perhaps fellow deaconesses. Paul described them as women “who have labored in the Lord.”

Also see TRYPHOSA.

TRYPHOSA [trigh FOE suh]—a woman in Rome to whom the apostle Paul sent greetings (Rom. 16:12), along with another woman, TRYPHENA.

TSADDE [SOD dy]—the eighteenth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:137–144. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter tsadde.

Also see ACROSTIC.

TUBAL [TOO buhl]—the name of a man and a country or people in the Old Testament:

1. The fifth son of Japheth and grandson of Noah (Gen. 10:2; 1 Chr. 1:5).
2. A people who lived in the Cappadocian region of eastern Asia Minor (modern Turkey). The prophet Isaiah mentions Tubal along with JAVAN (Is. 66:19), and Ezekiel mentions Tubal, Javan, and MESHECH as some of those who traded with Tyre (Ezek. 27:13).

TUBAL–CAIN [too buhl KANE] (Tubal the smith)—a son of Lamech and Zillah. Tubal–Cain was the “father” of all metalworkers (Gen. 4:22).

TUMOR (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

TUNIC (see DRESS OF THE BIBLE).

TUNNEL—an underground passage. King Hezekiah of Judah stopped the water outlet of Upper Gihon, thereby making a pool, and brought the water of this pool by tunnel to the west side of Jerusalem (2 Kin. 20:20; 2 Chr. 32:30).

Also see HEZEKIAH'S TUNNEL.

TURBAN—a long piece of linen cloth wound around the head and fastened in the back to form a type of headdress worn by men in Bible times (Job 29:14). Such a turban was a distinctive form of headdress worn by the priests of the nation of Israel (Ex. 28:39). The Hebrew word for turban is rendered as tire, bonnet, and mitre by some English translations of the Bible.

Also see DRESS OF THE BIBLE.

TURQUOISE (see JEWELS AND PRECIOUS STONES).

TURTLE, TURTLEDOVE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

TUSK—a long tooth, usually one of a pair, that extends outside the mouth of certain animals, such as the elephant, walrus, or wild boar. The merchants of Tyre received ivory tusks and ebony as payment for their wares (Ezek. 27:15; horns of ivory, KJV).

TUTOR—a trusted slave among wealthy Greek and Roman families whose responsibility was to supervise their son's activities, acting as his guide and guardian. When the boy reached 16 he was considered to be of age and no longer needed his tutor.

The apostle Paul compared the law to a tutor, because it guided people to Christ (Gal. 3:24–25; schoolmaster, KJV; disciplinarian, NRSV; put in charge, NIV). Until Christ came the law confined us and kept us in custody. But when Christ came, we attained the freedom and maturity of faith. Those who live under the law thus have an inferior status to those who live by faith—"for the law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ" (John 1:17).

TWELVE (see NUMBER).

TWELVE, THE—a term for the band of Jesus' closest disciples (Mark 4:10). Early in His ministry Jesus selected twelve of His followers and named them "apostles" (Luke 6:12–16). They are also referred to as the "twelve disciples" (Matt. 10:1). Jesus appointed them to travel with Him, preach, heal, and cast out demons (Mark 3:14–15).

Although the terms disciple and apostle may refer to someone other than one of the Twelve (John 8:31; 1 Cor. 15:9), the Twelve appears to be a term restricted to the original dozen selected by Jesus, and to Matthias who took the place of Judas (Acts 1:15–26). There was a symbolic significance to the Twelve, similar to that of the twelve sons of Israel (1 Cor. 15:5; Rev. 21:14), whose descendants became the twelve tribes of the Hebrew nation.

TWIN BROTHERS, THE—the figurehead of an Alexandrian ship that took the apostle Paul from Malta to Puteoli (Acts 28:11). In Greek mythology, Castor and Polydeuces (Latin Pollux) were sons of Zeus and Leda; they were protectors of sailors and were hostile to pirates. The Greek word translated "the Twin Brothers," or "Castor and Pollux" (KJV), is dioskourois (from dios kouroi, "sons of Zeus"). The Dioscuri were identified with the constellation Gemini (the Twins), which is the third sign of the Zodiac. Castor and Pollux, the Twin Brothers, are the brightest stars of this constellation. Also see GODS, PAGAN.

TWO (see NUMBER).

TYCHICUS [TIKE ih kuhs]—a Christian of the province of ASIA (Acts 20:4). Tychicus was a faithful friend, fellow worker, and messenger of the apostle Paul (Eph. 6:21–22; Col. 4:7–8). Along with other disciples, Tychicus traveled ahead of Paul from Macedonia to Troas, where he waited for the apostle's arrival (Acts 20:4).

Paul also sent Tychicus to Ephesus to deliver and perhaps to read his epistle to the Christians in that city (Eph. 6:21). He did the same with the Epistle to the Colossians (Col. 4:7). Paul sent him as a messenger to Titus in Crete (Titus 3:12) and afterward to Ephesus (2 Tim. 4:12).

TYPE—a figure, representation, or symbol of something to come, as an event in the Old Testament foreshadows another in the New Testament.

Types generally find their fulfillment in the person and ministry of Christ, but they sometimes relate to God, His people, or some other reality.

Scholars using typology range over a wide spectrum of interpretation. On the one extreme is the method that makes practically every item in the Old Testament find a greater fulfillment in the New Testament. At the other extreme are those scholars who insist on the word "type" being explicitly mentioned in the New Testament before they recognize any Old Testament type. Between those extremes, many scholars feel that there are some Old Testament correspondences to New Testament truths that are indeed typical, although the word "type" is not specifically used.

For instance, Melchizedek, the king-priest of Salem (Gen. 14:18–20 and Ps. 110:4), is said to be typical of Christ (Heb. 6:20). Jesus said the bronze serpent in the wilderness (Num. 21:4–9) was in some sense typical of His own crucifixion (John 3:14–15). The writer of Hebrews (Hebrews 9–10) pointed out that the tabernacle typically foreshadowed the person and work of Jesus Christ.

The NKJV uses the word "type" in only one place; in Romans 5:14 the apostle Paul mentions Adam as "a type of Him [Jesus] who was to come" (pattern, NIV).

Also see ANTITYPE.

TYRANNUS [tigh RAN uhs] (tyrant)—a man of Ephesus who owned a school or lecture hall at which the apostle Paul reasoned daily for two years (Acts 19:9–10). Tyrannus was either a teacher of rhetoric and philosophy or a Jewish rabbi who taught the law in his private synagogue. He allowed Paul to speak of Jesus so that people from throughout the province of Asia heard of Him.

TYRE [tire] (rock)—an ancient seaport city of the Phoenicians situated north of Israel (see Map 3, B–1). Tyre was the principal seaport of the Phoenician coast, about 40 kilometers (25 miles) south of Sidon and 56 kilometers (35 miles) north of Carmel. It consisted of two cities: a rocky coastal city on the mainland and a small island city. The island city was just off the shore. The mainland city was on a coastal plain, a strip only 24 kilometers (15 miles) long and 3 kilometers (2 miles) wide.

Behind the plain of Tyre stood the rocky mountains of Lebanon. Tyre was easily defended because it had the sea on the west, the mountains on the east, and several other rocky cliffs (one the famous “Ladder of Tyre”) around it, making it difficult to invade.

History. Tyre was an ancient city. According to one tradition, it was founded about 2750 B.C. However, SIDON—Tyre’s sister city—was probably older (Gen. 10:15), perhaps even the mother city (Is. 23:2, 12). The Greek poet Homer mentioned “Sidonian wares,” without reference to Tyre. This seems to confirm that Sidon was older. About 1400 B.C. Sidon successfully besieged the city of Tyre and maintained supremacy over it. However, when sea raiders left Sidon in ruins about 1200 B.C., many people migrated to Tyre. The increasing greatness of Tyre over Sidon, and its closer location to Israel, caused the order of mentioning Tyre first and then Sidon to be established by biblical writers (Jer. 47:4; Mark 3:8).

The period from 1200 to 870 B.C. was largely one of independence for Phoenicia. This enabled Tyre to realize her expansionist dreams. Hiram I, the ruler of Tyre (980–947 B.C.), apparently began a colony at Tarshish in Spain. He fortified Tyre’s two harbors, one on the north of the city and one on the south. Tyrian ships began to dominate Mediterranean commerce. Their merchants were princes, the honorable of the earth (Is. 23:8). In the ninth century B.C. a colony from Tyre founded the city of Carthage on the north coast of Africa.

The most celebrated product of Tyrian commerce was the famous purple dye made from mollusks found in the waters near Tyre. This dye became a source of great wealth for Tyrians. In addition they produced metal work and glassware, shipping their products to and buying wares from peoples in remote parts of the earth (1 Kin. 9:28).

Friendly relations existed between the Hebrews and the Tyrians. Hiram was on excellent terms with both David and Solomon, aiding them with materials for the building of David’s palace (1 Kin. 5:1; 1 Chr. 14:1), Solomon’s temple, and other buildings (1 Kin. 4:1; 9:10–14; 2 Chr. 2:3, 11). Hiram and Solomon engaged in joint commercial ventures (1 Kin. 9:26–28).

The dynasty of Hiram came to an end earlyin the ninth century B.C. when a priest named Ethbaal revolted and assumed the throne. Still, cordial relations between the Tyrians and Israelites continued. Ethbaal’s daughter Jezebel married Ahab of Israel (1 Kin. 16:31). From this union Baal worship and other idolatrous practices were introduced into Israel.

While the people of Tyre were mostly interested in sea voyages, colonization, manufacturing, and commerce, they were frequently forced into war. Phoenician independence ended with the reign of Ashurnasirpal II (883–859 B.C.) of Assyria. More than a century later Shalmaneser V laid siege to Tyre and it fell to his successor, Sargon II. With the decline of Assyria after the middle of the seventh century B.C. Tyre again prospered.

Tyre in Prophecy. Several prophets of the Old Testament prophesied against Tyre. They condemned the Tyrians for delivering Israelites to the Edomites (Amos 1:9) and for selling them as slaves to the Greeks (Joel 3:5–6). Jeremiah prophesied Tyre's defeat (Jer. 27:1–11). But the classic prophecy against Tyre was given by Ezekiel.

Ezekiel prophesied the destruction of Tyre (Ezek. 26:3–21). The first stage of this prophecy came true when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, besieged the mainland city of Tyre for thirteen years (585–572 B.C.) and apparently destroyed it. However, Nebuchadnezzar had no navy; so he could not flatten the island city. But losing the mainland city was devastating to Tyre. This destroyed Tyre's influence in the world and reduced her commercial activities severely.

The second stage of Ezekiel's prophecy was fulfilled in 332 B.C., when Alexander the Great besieged the island city of Tyre for seven months. He finally captured it when he built a causeway from the mainland to the island. Hauling cedars from the mountains of Lebanon, he drove them as piles into the floor of the sea between the mainland and the island. Then he used the debris and timber of the ruined mainland city as solid material for the causeway. Hence, the remarkable prophecy of Ezekiel was completely fulfilled.

Tyre in the New Testament. During the Roman period Tyre again was rebuilt, eventually achieving a degree of prosperity. A Roman colony was established at the city. Herod I rebuilt the main temple, which would have been standing when Jesus visited the coasts of Tyre and Sidon (Matt. 15:21–28; Mark 7:24–31). People of Tyre listened to Jesus as He taught (Mark 3:8; Luke 6:17). The Lord Jesus even cited Tyre as a heathen city that would bear less judgment than the Galilaean towns in which He had invested so much of His ministry (Matt. 11:21–22; Luke 10:13–14).

In the New Testament period a Christian community flourished at Tyre. At the close of Paul's third missionary journey he stopped at Tyre and stayed with the believers there for a week (Acts 21:1–7).

TYROPOEON VALLEY [tie ROW pih un] (valley of the cheesemakers)—a small valley in the city of Jerusalem that divides the hill of Ophel—site of the original City of David—from the site known as the Western Hill, or Upper City. This valley, not mentioned by name in the Bible, exists today only as a slight depression because it has been filled in by debris and waste throughout the centuries.

U

UCAL [YOU cal]—an unknown person to whom Agur addressed his proverbs along with Ithiel (Prov. 30:1). Some scholars, however, do not believe Ithiel and Ucal are proper names. Therefore, “to Ithiel—to Ithiel and Ucal” (Prov. 30:1, NKJV) becomes “I am weary, O God, I am weary and worn out” (REB).

UEL [YOU ehl]—a son of Bani who married a pagan wife and then divorced her after the captivity (Ezra 10:34).

UGARIT [YOU guh rit]—an ancient Canaanite city (modern RAS SHAMRA) in western Syria. Ugarit was situated about 40 kilometers (25 miles) southwest of Antioch, about one-half mile from the Mediterranean Sea and directly east of the island of Cyprus. Although Ugarit is not mentioned in the Bible, it is important to Bible students because of the archaeological discoveries made at this site.

The excavation of Ugarit began in 1929 under the direction of Claude F. A. Schaeffer. Although interrupted by World War II, the excavation resumed in 1948. These excavations reveal that the city of Ugarit reached the height of its importance between the time of Abraham and David (2000 to 1000 B.C.).

The discoveries at Ugarit have had a great impact on the understanding of the Old Testament. The language of Ugarit is similar to biblical Hebrew. The Ugaritic myths describe the false religion of Baal that the prophets of Israel condemned. Several of the religious institutions in Ugarit are similar to those found in the Bible.

These details are known because the archaeologists discovered a library containing a large number of clay tablets written in several ancient Near Eastern languages. The texts in the Ugaritic language contain many words, grammatical forms, and idioms that are common to the Hebrew language. The poetic texts are especially similar to the style and imagery of the Book of Psalms.

One of the Ugaritic texts is a myth about the struggles of the gods to gain control of the earth. Mot, the god of death and the dry season, struggles with Baal, the god of life and the wet season. Baal worshipers hoped to encourage Baal to bless their crops with rain and fertility by offering sacrifices to Baal and by their involvement with the sacred prostitutes at the Baal temples and high places. The drought that God sent during the time of Elijah (1 Kin. 17:1, 7) proved that the God of Israel, not Baal, was in charge of fertility and rain. Later Elijah prayed and God sent the rain (1 Kin. 18:41–45). Baal worship was especially encouraged by Ahab and Jezebel who built an altar and temple for Baal in Samaria (1 Kin. 16:29–33), and Athaliah and Manasseh who built altars to Baal in Jerusalem (2 Kin. 11:13–20; 21:1–4).

The prophets condemned the Israelites for their worship of Baal, but the Israelites never listened. God destroyed both Israel (2 Kin. 17:1–20) and Judah (2 Chr. 36:9–21) because of their sinful worship of this false god.

UKNAZ [UHK naz]—the marginal reading of 1 Chronicles 4:15 (KJV; Kenaz, NKJV). Also see KENAZ.

ULAI [YOU lie]—a wide, artificial irrigation canal near SHUSHAN (Susa), a winter capital of the Persians. The classical Greek writers called it Eulaeus, and it is known today as Karun. Some scholars, however, are skeptical of a positive identification because of centuries of erosion and shifting of the waterways. On the banks of the River Ulai the prophet Daniel received his vision of the ram and the male goat (Dan. 8:2, 16).

ULAM [YOU lamm]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Sheresh, of the tribe of Manasseh (1 Chr. 7:16–17).
2. A son of Eshek, of the tribe of Benjamin (1 Chr. 8:39). The sons of Ulam were "mighty men of valor—archers" (1 Chr. 8:40).

ULCER (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

ULLA [UHL uh] (burden, yoke)—a descendant of Asher who became the father of three tribal leaders: Arah, Haniel, and Rizia (1 Chr. 7:39).

UMMAH [UHM uh] (kindred)—a city in the territory allotted to the tribe of Asher, near Aphek and Rehob (Josh. 19:30).

UNBELIEF—lack of belief or faith in God and His provision. While unbelief does not hinder God's faithfulness (Rom. 3:3), it does affect the individual's capacity to receive the benefits of that faithfulness. The unbelief of many Israelites, for example, kept them from seeing the Promised Land (Heb. 3:19). The unbelief of the Nazarenes prevented them from witnessing Christ's miracles (Matt. 13:58). Doubting skeptics are limited in what they might see or know, while "all things are possible to him who believes" (Mark 9:23).

UNCHASTITY (see ADULTERY; FORNICATION).

UNCIRCUMCISED—a word with several different meanings in the Bible:

1. Not circumcised; a man who has not gone through the Jewish rite of CIRCUMCISION.
2. Not Jewish; Gentile (Ex. 12:48).

3. Spiritually impure; a heathen; one who has closed his ears and heart to God’s call (Acts 7:51).

   The issue is not whether a man has been circumcised but whether he has faith in Christ (1 Cor. 7:18–19).

UNCLE—the brother of a person’s father or mother. In Hebrew society, an uncle could redeem a nephew who had sold himself into slavery, because of poverty, to a stranger or sojourner (Lev. 25:49). Uncles mentioned in the Bible include Laban, uncle of Jacob (Gen. 24:29); Abner, uncle of Saul (1 Sam. 10:14–16); and Abraham, uncle of Lot (Gen. 11:27, 31). Also see FAMILY.

UNCLEAN, UNCLEANNESS—defiled, foul, unfit. To be unclean refers to foods that are unfit, to defilement of a moral or religious character, and to spiritual impurity. The Old Testament distinguishes between what is clean and helpful and what is unclean and unacceptable (Lev. 10:10; 11:47). The priest was to teach the people the difference (Ezek. 44:23).

The teaching about uncleanness springs from the concept of God’s holiness (Lev. 11:44–45). Freedom from uncleanness and guilt is possible through God’s gracious work (Ps. 51:7). Holiness within, purity of heart, is possible through the exercise of faith in Christ’s redemption (Titus 2:14; 1 Pet. 1:2) and obedience to His word of truth (John 15:3; 17:17; 1 Pet. 1:22).

There were different kinds of uncleanness. One type was unclean food. Several kinds of birds—such as ravens and vultures—and certain animals—such as swine, camels, and hares—were labeled unclean (Lev. 11:1–19). Besides foods, persons were designated unclean under certain conditions. Through a discharge or because of menstruation, men and women were considered unclean (Lev. 15:2–13, 19–24). Body emissions from open sores also rendered the person unclean. A leprous person was unclean (Lev. 13:11).

Serious uncleanness was connected with dead bodies, including both humans and animals (Lev. 11:25–31). Anything on which a dead thing fell would become unclean (Lev. 11:32). Severe defilement came from a dead human body: “He who touches the dead body of anyone shall be unclean seven days” (Num. 19:11). Indeed, when a person died in a tent, the whole tent was regarded as unclean (Num. 19:14). To be unclean was to be disqualified for divine worship.

The land could be defiled through idolatry (Ezek. 36:18) or through the sacrifice of innocent children (Ps. 106:38). God's temple was defiled because of the entry of pagans (Ps. 79:1). The prophet Haggai used the notion of uncleanness of things to speak of immoral behavior of people (Hag. 2:13–14).

In the gospels, the word "unclean" describes those who are possessed by undesirable or even demonic spirits. Jesus exercised command over these unclean spirits (Luke 4:36) and effectively rebuked them (Luke 9:42). The disciples were also given power over unclean spirits (Mark 6:7; Acts 5:16). Jesus often cast out unclean spirits (Mark 1:23, 26–27; 5:2).

The word defilement described a sinful and unfit condition (Is. 6:5). Because of sin, "we are all like an unclean thing" (Is. 64:6). The New Testament lists uncleanness or moral defilement along with fornication and other sins, such as covetousness, as works of the flesh (Gal. 5:19; Col. 3:5). Believers are not called to uncleanness, but they are to live in holiness (1 Thess. 4:7). They are not to yield their members to uncleanness but to righteousness and holiness (Rom. 6:19).

Unclean things and people can be purified. Temple articles were purified through sprinkling of blood (Lev. 16:19). For those who touched dead bodies, washing with water provided cleansing (Lev. 15:27). Sprinkling with hyssop and water made clean the tent in which someone had died (Num. 19:18). For a woman with an issue of blood, a priest could offer sacrifice and make atonement (Lev. 15:30).

The uncleanness of sin to which the prophet Isaiah referred (Is. 6:5) is an uncleanness that is removed through God's actions. To Isaiah's lips the angel applied coals of fire and said, "Your iniquity is taken away" (Is. 6:7). John explained that the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanses us from the defilement of sin (1 John 1:7). God fully provides for the cleansing of that which is unclean.

The reason why food and other things were designated unclean is not always fully clear. But there was a connection between the regulations about uncleanness and God's holiness. Following the list of unclean foods, God declared, "You shall be holy; for I am holy" (Lev. 11:44).

The great concern for dead things causing uncleanness may point to the notion that dead things were the very opposite of God. He is the living God. Death and dead things are opposite to who God is and what He desires. Thus, to be in contact with dead bodies was to be defiled. The human corpse represents an absence of life, and thus an absence of God. The laws about uncleanness are a powerful statement of the living God of the universe. Those made clean through His provision, however, will enjoy eternal life.

- The law of Moses made clear distinctions between clean and unclean animals. The vulture was considered unclean because it was a scavenger (Lev. 11:13).

UNCLEAN DEMON, UNCLEAN SPIRIT (see DEMONIAC).

UNCTION—KJV word for the act of anointing, referring to the gift of the Holy Spirit (1 John 2:20; anointing, NKJV, NIV, NASB; have been anointed, NRSV). In the Old Testament, kings (1 Sam. 10:1), priests

(Num. 35:25), and prophets (1 Kin. 19:16) were anointed with holy oil; in the New Testament believers were anointed with the Holy Spirit.

UNDEFILED—unstained, unsoiled, not tainted with evil; clean, pure, faultless. The word undefiled is used of the sinless Christ (Heb. 7:26), of sex in marriage (Heb. 13:4), of a pure and faultless religion (James 1:27), and of our incorruptible inheritance in heaven (1 Pet. 1:4).

UNDERSETTERS—KJV word for the supports at the four corners of each of the ten bronze lavers in King Solomon's temple (1 Kin. 7:30, 34; supports, NKJV).

UNICORN (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

UNITY—oneness, harmony, agreement. Unity was apparent on the day of Pentecost when the believers "were all with one accord in one place" (Acts 2:1). The church is a unity in diversity, a fellowship of faith, hope, and love that binds believers together (Eph. 4:3, 13).

UNKNOWN GOD (see GOD, UNKNOWN).

UNLEAVENED BREAD—bread baked from unfermented dough, or dough without yeast or "leaven" (Gen. 19:3; Josh. 5:11; 1 Sam. 28:24). Unleavened bread was the flat bread used in the PASSOVER celebration and the priestly rituals (Lev. 23:4–8). The tradition of eating unleavened bread goes back to the time of the Exodus, when the Hebrews left Egypt in such haste that they had no time to bake their bread (Ex. 12:8, 15–20, 34, 39; 13:6–7). Leaven was produced by the souring of bread dough. Its exclusion from ceremonial breads probably symbolized purity.

UNLEAVENED BREAD, FEAST OF (see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS).

UNNI [UHN eye]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A Levite musician who accompanied the ARK OF THE COVENANT brought by David to Jerusalem (1 Chr. 15:18, 20).
2. A Levite who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Neh. 12:9; Unno, NRSV).

UNNO [UHN oh]—a form of UNNI.

UNPARDONABLE SIN (see SIN, UNPARDONABLE).

UPHARSIN (see MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN).

UPHAZ [YOU faz]—a place from where gold was brought (Jer. 10:9). Some scholars believe Uphaz is a misspelling of OPHIR, a famous gold-bearing region.

UPPER CHAMBER (see CHAMBER).

UPPER GATE (see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE).

UR—Abraham's native city in southern Mesopotamia; an important metropolis of the ancient world situated on the Euphrates River. Strategically situated about halfway between the head of the Persian Gulf and Baghdad, in present-day Iraq, Ur was the capital of Sumer for two centuries until the Elamites captured the city. The city came to be known as "Ur of the Chaldeans" after the Chaldeans entered southern Babylonia after 1000 B.C. References to "Ur of the Chaldeans" in connection with Abraham are thus examples of later editorial updating.

Abraham lived in the city of Ur (Gen. 11:28, 31) at the height of its splendor. The city was a prosperous center of religion and industry. Thousands of recovered clay documents attest to thriving business activity. Excavations of the royal cemetery, which dates from about 2900 to 2500 B.C., have revealed a surprisingly advanced culture. Uncovered were beautiful jewelry and art treasures, including headwear, personal jewelry, and exquisite dishes and cups.

The Babylonians worshiped many gods, but the moon god Sin was supreme. Accordingly, the city of Ur was a kind of theocracy centered in the moon deity. Ur-Nammu, the founder of the strong Third Dynasty of Ur (around 2070–1960 B.C.), built the famous ZIGGURATS, a system of terraced platforms on which temples were erected. The Tower of BABEL (Gen. 11:3–4) was probably a ziggurat made of brick. It is a miracle of God's providence that Abraham resisted Ur's polluted atmosphere and set out on a journey of faith to Canaan that would bless all mankind.

Ur's glory was suddenly destroyed about 1900 B.C. Foreigners stormed down from the surrounding hills and captured the reigning king, reducing the city to ruins. So complete was the destruction that the city was buried in oblivion until it was excavated centuries later by archaeologists.

• Ruins of ancient Ur on the Euphrates River in Mesopotamia—the city from which Abraham migrated (Gen. 11:31).

URBANE [UHR bain]—a form of URBANUS.

URBANUS [uhr BAIN us] (refined, polite)—a Christian in Rome to whom the apostle Paul sent greetings as “a fellow worker in Christ” (Rom. 16:9; Urbane, KJV).

URI [YOU rye] ([God is] my light)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Hur and father of Bezaleel (Ex. 31:2). Bezaleel was the chief artisan of the tabernacle.
2. The father of Geber (1 Kin. 4:19). Geber was one of 12 governors in charge of providing food for Solomon and his household.
3. A gatekeeper who, at Ezra’s urging, divorced the wife whom he had married during the captivity (Ezra 10:24).

URIAH [you RYE uh] (the Lord is my light)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A Hittite married to Bathsheba. Uriah was one of David’s mighty men (2 Sam. 11:3–26; 12:9–10, 15; 1 Kin. 15:5; Matt. 1:6; Urias, KJV).

   Judging from the usual interpretation of his name and good conduct, Uriah was a worshiper of God. David’s adultery with Uriah’s wife, Bathsheba, occurred while Uriah was engaged in war at Rabbah, the Ammonite capital. Uriah was immediately recalled to Jerusalem to hide what had happened, but his sense of duty and loyalty only frustrated the king. Failing to use Uriah as a shield to cover his sin with Bathsheba, David ordered this valiant soldier to the front line of battle, where he was killed.
2. A priest, the son of Koz and father of Meremoth. Uriah helped rebuild the wall of Jerusalem under Nehemiah. He stood with Ezra the scribe as Ezra read the law and addressed the people (Ezra 8:33). The NKJV spells his name Urijah in Nehemiah 3:4, 21; 8:4.
3. A priest, one of two faithful witnesses to a scroll written by the prophet Isaiah (Is. 8:2).

URIEL [YOU rih ehl] (God is my light)—the name of two or three men in the Old Testament:

1. A Levite of the family of Kohath (1 Chr. 6:24).
2. A chief of the Kohathites (1 Chr. 15:5, 11). Uriel was one of many priests employed by David when the ARK OF THE COVENANT was brought to Jerusalem from the house of Obed-Edom. He may be the same as No. 1.
3. A man of Gibeah and father of a daughter named Michaiah (2 Chr. 13:2).

URIJAH [you RYE jah] (the Lord is my light)—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A priest in Jerusalem who built an altar according to the pattern provided by King Ahaz (2 Kin. 16:10–16). When the wicked Ahaz sought help from the Assyrian King Tiglath-Pileser, he embraced pagan worship at an Assyrian altar and instructed Urijah to build a replica for his worship in Jerusalem. The priest fashioned the heathen altar, placing it in the court of the temple in the place of the bronze altar of God. Without protest, he complied with Ahaz's instructions, offering all sacrifices and offering on the new altar.

2. A prophet, the son of Shemaiah of Kirjath Jearim and a contemporary of Jeremiah (Jer. 26:20–23). Like Jeremiah, this prophet of God was faithful to the Word of God, prophesying against Jerusalem and Judah. When King Jehoiakim tried to kill him, he sought asylum in Egypt. The king, however, had Urijah returned to Jerusalem, where he was killed.
3. Another form of URIAH No. 2.

URIM AND THUMMIM [YOU rim, THUME em]—gems or stones carried by the high priest and used by him to determine God's will in certain matters. Many scholars believe these gems were lots that were cast, much as dice are thrown, to aid the high priest in making important decisions.

The Urim and Thummim were either on, by, or in the high priest's breastplate. For this reason the breastplate is often called the breastplate of judgment, or decision. In the instructions for making the breastplate, the linen was to be doubled to form a square (Ex. 28:16). If the top edge was not stitched together, the breastplate would be an envelope or pouch. Many scholars believe the Urim and Thummim were kept in this pouch and were stones or gems with engraved symbols that signified yes-no or true-false. By these the high priest reached a decision, according to this theory.

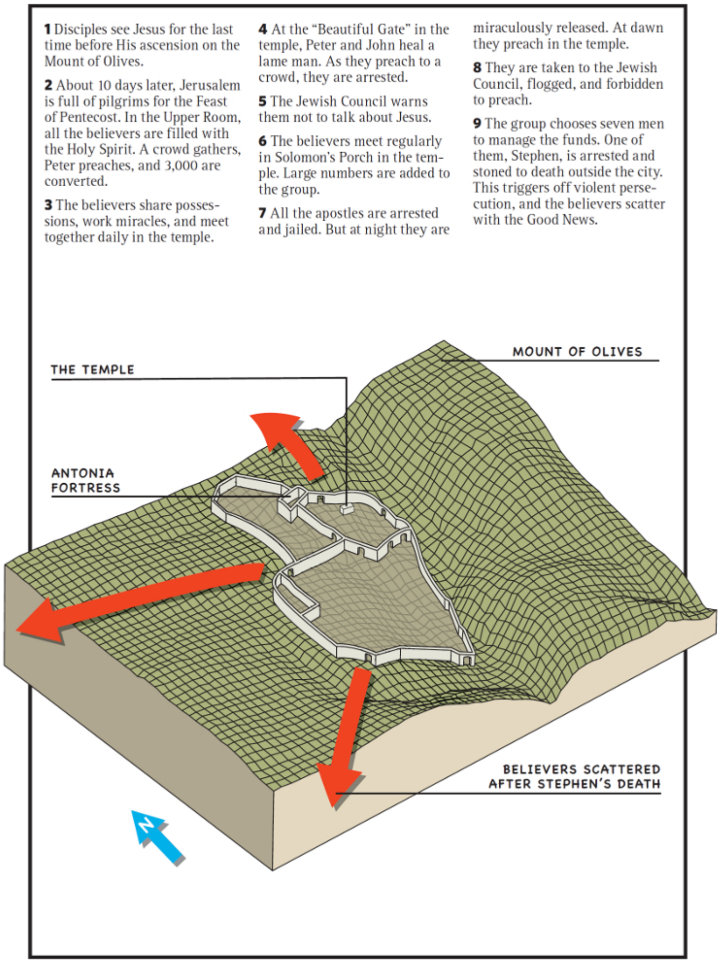
The Jewish historian Josephus (about A.D. 37–100), a contemporary of the apostle John, believed that the Urim and Thummim had to do with the flashing of the precious stones in the breastplate. Later Jewish writers believed that the letters in the names of the twelve tribes of Israel engraved on the stones stood out or flashed in succession to spell out God's answer. This theory does imply that the Urim and Thummim could produce answers to questions that called for more than a mere yes or no reply. Another theory is that by staring at the Urim and Thummim, the high priest went into a state of ecstasy or trance during which God spoke to him.

The student or Bible teacher should bear in mind that all of these theories are pure guesswork. No one knows the exact nature of the Urim and Thummim or precisely how they were used.

There are few allusions to the Urim and Thummim in the Bible. They are first mentioned in the description of the breastplate of judgment (Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8). When Joshua succeeded Moses, he was to have answers from the Urim through Eleazar the priest (Num. 27:21). They are next mentioned in Moses' dying blessing upon Levi (Deut. 33:8). There are places in the Bible where Urim and Thummim may be implied but are not named (Josh. 7:14–18; 1 Sam. 14:37–45; 2 Sam. 21:1).

Saul sought direction from the witch of Endor when he could receive no answer from the Lord, "either by dreams or by Urim or by the prophets" (1 Sam. 28:6). Another interesting reference to the Urim and Thummim occurred during the period after the return of the Jewish people from their years in captivity by the Babylonians. The Persian governor of Jerusalem denied the people permission to observe some of their ancient Jewish food laws until "a priest could consult with the Urim and Thummim" (Ezra 2:63).

THE JERUSALEM BELIEVERS



1 Disciples see Jesus for the last time before His ascension on the Mount of Olives.

2 About 10 days later, Jerusalem is full of pilgrims for the Feast of Pentecost. In the Upper Room, all the believers are filled with the Holy Spirit. A crowd gathers, Peter preaches, and 3,000 are converted.

3 The believers share possessions, work miracles, and meet together daily in the temple.

4 At the "Beautiful Gate" in the temple, Peter and John heal a lame man. As they preach to a crowd, they are arrested.

5 The Jewish Council warns them not to talk about Jesus.

6 The believers meet regularly in Solomon's Porch in the temple. Large numbers are added to the group.

7 All the apostles are arrested and jailed. But at night they are miraculously released. At dawn they preach in the temple.

8 They are taken to the Jewish Council, flogged, and forbidden to preach.

9 The group chooses seven men to manage the funds. One of them, Stephen, is arrested and stoned to death outside the city. This triggers off violent persecution, and the believers scatter with the Good News.

USURY [YOU zhu ree]—interest paid on borrowed money. In the Bible the word usury does not necessarily have the negative connotations of our modern meaning of lending money at an excessive interest rate. Instead, it usually means the charging of interest on money that has been loaned.

The Old Testament prohibited charging usury to fellow Israelites; their need was not to become an opportunity for profit (Ex. 22:25; Deut. 23:19–20; Neh. 5:1–13). However, foreigners were often traders and merchants, and usury was a part of their everyday lives. Thus they could be charged usury (Deut. 23:20).

By the time of the New Testament, Israel's economy had changed so much from Old Testament days that usury was common practice, even among God's people. Therefore, Jesus did not condemn receiving usury. But He did insist that the rates be fair and justly applied (Matt. 25:27; Luke 19:23). Usury, as all other aspects of life, was to be handled in a spirit of love and genuine concern for the welfare of others (Luke 6:31).

UTHAI [YOU thigh]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Ammihud of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 9:4). Uthai lived in Jerusalem after the captivity.
2. A son of Bigvai (Ezra 8:14). With his brother Zabbud and seventy males, Uthai returned to Jerusalem with Ezra.

UZ [uhz]—the name of four men and a place in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Aram and grandson of Shem (Gen. 10:23). The name may refer to an Aramean tribe or people.
2. A son of Nahor and Milcah (Gen. 22:21, NASB, NIV, NRSV; Huz, KJV, NKJV).
3. A son of Dishan, a Horite in the land of Edom (Gen. 36:28).
4. One of the sons (or descendants) of Shem (1 Chr. 1:17).
5. The land where Job lived (Job 1:11). Two possible locations are Hauran, south of Damascus, and the area between Edom and northern Arabia. The exact location of the land of Uz is unknown, but it was probably east of the Jordan River in the Syrian or Arabian desert.

UZAI [YOU zie]—the father of Palal. Palal helped rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. "Palal the son of Uzai made repairs opposite the buttress, and on the tower" (Neh. 3:25).

UZAL [YOU zal]—a son of Joktan (Gen. 10:27). The name Uzal may refer to an Arabian tribe or settlement (Ezek. 27:19, NRSV). Recent scholarship identifies Uzal with a town named Azalla, in the neighborhood of Medina.

UZZA, UZZAH [UHZ uh] (strength)—the name of five men in the Old Testament:

1. A man who was struck dead by God because he touched the ARK OF THE COVENANT (2 Sam. 6:3–8; 1 Chr. 13:7–11).
2. A person in whose garden Manasseh, king of Judah, and Amon (Manasseh's son), also king of Judah, were buried (2 Kin. 21:18, 26).
3. A Levite of the family of Merari (1 Chr. 6:29).
4. A descendant of Ehud mentioned in the family tree of King Saul (1 Chr. 8:7).
5. An ancestor of a family of NETHINIM (temple servants) who returned with Zerubbabel from the captivity (Ezra 2:49; Neh. 7:51).

UZZEN SHEERAH [UHZ en SHE uh rah]—a town or village built by Sheerah (1 Chr. 7:24; Uzzensherah, KJV), a female descendant of Ephraim. She also built Lower and Upper Beth Horon. The site of Uzzen Sheerah is still uncertain, although some scholars identify it with Beit Sira, about 21 kilometers (13 miles) northwest of Jerusalem.

UZZI [UHZ eye] ([God is] my strength)—the name of several men in the Old Testament:

1. A high priest descended from Aaron, Eleazar, and Phinehas (1 Chr. 6:5–6, 51). Uzzi was an ancestor of Ezra (Ezra 7:4).
2. A grandson of Issachar and father of Izrahiah (1 Chr. 7:2–3).
3. A son of Bela (1 Chr. 7:7).
4. The father of Elah, a Benjamite (1 Chr. 9:8). He may be the same person as No. 3.
5. An overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 11:22).
6. A priest, head of the house of Jedaiah in the days of the high priest Joiakim (Neh. 12:19).
7. A priest who helped dedicate the rebuilt walls of Jerusalem (Neh. 12:42). He may be the same person as No. 6.

UZZIA [you ZIE ah] (the Lord is my strength)—a native of Ashtaroth, an ancient city of Bashan, and one of David's mighty men (1 Chr. 11:44).

UZZIAH [you ZIE uh] (the Lord is my strength)—the name of five men in the Old Testament:

1. The son of Amaziah and Jecholiah; ninth king of Judah and father of Jotham (2 Kin. 15:1–7; 2 Chr. 26). Uzziah is also called Azariah (2 Kin. 14:21; 15:1–7).

   Uzziah ascended the throne at age sixteen and reigned longer than any previous king of Judah or Israel—fifty-two years. He probably co-reigned with his father and had his son Jotham as his co-regent during his final years as a leper. A wise, pious, and powerful king, he extended Judah's territory and brought the nation to a time of great prosperity. In the south he maintained control over Edom and rebuilt port facilities at Elath on the Gulf of Aqaba. To the west he warred against the Philistines, seizing several cities. He also apparently defeated and subdued the Ammonites.

   The foolishness of Uzziah's father Amaziah in fighting Joash, the king of Israel, had left the city of Jerusalem in a vulnerable position (2 Chr. 25:23). So Uzziah focused his attention on securing the defenses of both his capital and his country. He reinforced the towers of the city gates. On these towers and walls he placed huge catapults capable of shooting arrows and hurling stones at the enemy (2 Chr. 26:15). He also maintained a well-equipped army and fortified strategic places in the desert. His successes were directly related to his spiritual sensitivity, because he sought the Lord through a prophet who encouraged him to honor and obey God (2 Chr. 26:5).

   However, Uzziah's heart was lifted up in pride. No longer satisfied to be a mortal king, he desired to be like some of his contemporaries—a divine king. He entered the temple to burn incense. When Azariah the high priest and eighty associates confronted him, he responded in anger instead of repentance. God judged him by striking him with leprosy. Uzziah was forced to live the rest of his life in a separate place, with his son Jotham probably acting as king. At Uzziah's death the prophet Isaiah had a transforming vision of the Lord, high and lifted up on a throne (Is. 1:1; 6:1–13; 7:1).
2. A Levite of the family of Kohath, Uzziah was the son of Uriel and the father of Shaul (1 Chr. 6:24).
3. The father of Jehonathan (1 Chr. 27:25). Jehonathan was an officer of David over the storehouses.

4. A priest commanded by Ezra to divorce his pagan wife (Ezra 10:21).
5. The father of Athaiah (Neh. 11:4).

UZZIEL [uh ZEYE el] (God is my strength)—the name of six men in the Old Testament:

1. A Levite, son of Kohath, and founder of a tribal family (Ex. 6:18; Lev. 10:4). Uzziel was the ancestor of the UZZIELITES (Num. 3:27; 1 Chr. 26:23).
2. One of four sons of Ishi, of the tribe of Simeon (1 Chr. 4:42).
3. A son of Bela and grandson of Benjamin (1 Chr. 7:7).
4. One of the sons of Heman (1 Chr. 25:4).
5. A Levite, son of Jeduthun (2 Chr. 29:14). Uzziel helped cleanse the temple during King Hezekiah’s religious reformation.
6. The son of Harhaiah (Neh. 3:8). Uzziel was a goldsmith who helped repair a part of the damaged wall of Jerusalem.

UZZIELITES [uh ZEYE el ights]—members of the tribal family of UZZIEL (Num. 3:27; 1 Chr. 26:23).

V

VAGABOND—one who moves from place to place without a permanent home; an aimless wanderer (Ps. 109:10).

VAIN (see VANITY).

VAINGLORY (see PRIDE).

VAJEZATHA [vah JEZ ah thah]—one of the ten sons of Haman, all of whom were hanged like their father after he tried to destroy all the Jews in the Persian Empire (Esth. 9:9–10, 13).

VALE (see VALLEY).

VALLEY—a depression in the earth’s surface between ranges of mountains, hills, or other uplands. In the NKJV the word “valley” is the translation of several different Hebrew and Greek words.

1. One Hebrew word refers to a split or cleft place, more like a plain than a valley. This word is used of the valleys of Aven (Amos 1:5), Jericho (Deut. 34:3), Lebanon (Josh. 11:17), Megiddo (2 Chr. 35:22), and Mizpah (Josh. 11:8).
2. Another Hebrew word, meaning “deep place,” refers to a long, broad sweep of land between parallel hill or mountain ranges. In the NKJV this particular Hebrew word is used of several valleys, including Achor (Josh. 7:24, 26), Hebron (Gen. 37:14), and Succoth (Ps. 60:6; 108:7).
3. Another Hebrew word, meaning “gorge,” refers to a deep, narrow ravine, usually with a stream at the bottom. Some of the valleys to which this word applies are Hamon Gog (Ezek. 39:11, 15) and Hinnom (Josh. 15:8; Neh. 11:30).
4. A fourth Hebrew word, which means “ravine,” refers to the bed or channel of a stream that is usually dry except during the rainy season, when it may become a rushing torrent. Some of the “valleys” to which this word applies are the Arabah (Amos 6:14), Gerar (Gen. 26:17), and Sorek (Judg. 16:4).
5. A Greek word translated as valley means “precipice.” This word occurs only once in the New Testament of the NKJV: “Every valley shall be filled and every mountain and hill brought low" (Luke 3:5).

The valleys of Palestine vary considerably in shape and size. Some are deep canyons or narrow gorges, while others are broad, fertile plains.

VALLEY GATE (see GATES OF JERUSALEM AND THE TEMPLE).

VALLEY OF SLAUGHTER—a variant translation of TOPHET.

VANIAH [vah NIE ah]—one of the sons of Bani who divorced his pagan wife after returning from the captivity (Ezra 10:36).

VANITY—emptiness, worthlessness, or futility. The word occurs about thirty-seven times in the Old Testament (NKJV), most frequently in Ecclesiastes. The word "vanity" as used in the Bible does not mean conceit or a "superiority complex," like the modern meaning of the term. When applied to persons, it means emptiness or futility of natural human life (Job 7:3; Eccl. 1:2; 2:1; 4:4; 1:10).

When applied to things, vanity is especially used to describe idols, because there is no spiritual reality to them (Is. 41:29). Believers are urged to stay away from vain things and to live their lives in the reality of their relationship to Christ. Anything short of God Himself that people trust to meet their deepest needs is vanity (Eph. 4:17–24).

VASHNI [VASH nie]—KJV word for the firstborn son of Samuel the prophet (1 Chr. 6:28). Most modern versions, however, have Joel instead of Vashni.

VASHTI [VASH tie]—the beautiful queen of King Ahasuerus (Xerxes I, reigned 486–465 B.C.) who was banished from court for refusing the king's command to exhibit herself during a period of drunken feasting (Esth. 1:11). Her departure allowed Esther to become Ahasuerus' new queen and to be used as God's instrument in saving the Jewish people from destruction.

VASSAL—a slave or a person in a subservient position. Hoshea, king of Israel, became the vassal of Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, and paid him tribute money (2 Kin. 17:3). Jehoiakim, king of Judah, became the vassal of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, for three years (2 Kin. 24:1).

VEIL—1. a woman's head covering (Gen. 24:65; 38:14; Is. 3:23); 2. a curtain in the tabernacle or temple that separated the Holy Place from the Holy of Holies (or Most Holy Place). Also see CURTAIN.

VENGEANCE—punishment in retaliation for an injury or offense; repayment for a wrong suffered. The Levitical law prescribed, "You shall not take vengeance" (Lev. 19:18). Only God was qualified to take vengeance, because His acts were based on His holiness, righteousness, and justice, which punishes sin and vindicates the oppressed and the poor in spirit (Deut. 32:35; Rom. 12:19).

VENISON—wild game of any kind taken in hunting (Gen. 25:28; 27:3; game, NKJV).

VENOM—a poisonous secretion transmitted by the bite or sting of an animal, such as a snake, spider, or scorpion (Deut. 32:33; Job 20:14).

VERILY—KJV word for truly (Gen. 42:21; Gal. 3:21), surely (Jer. 15:11), actually (2 Kin. 4:14), certainly (Ps. 66:19), assuredly (Matt. 5:18), indeed (Acts 16:37), and yes (Luke 11:51).

VERMILION (see COLORS OF THE BIBLE; MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

VESSEL—any kind of container or receptacle. The vessels of the Hebrew people were usually earthenware. But vessels of glass, metal, leather, wicker, and stone were not uncommon. They were used to hold everything from documents (Jer. 32:14) to wine, fruits, and oil (Jer. 40:10).

In a broader sense, ships are sometimes referred to as vessels (Is. 18:2) since they are the receptacles of people. In an even broader sense, vessel refers to people who carry within them the knowledge of God (2 Cor. 4:6–7). Just as any clay vessel reflects the craftsmanship of its potter, so people reflect the craftsmanship of God. We are in God's hands and are formed in accordance with His plan (Rom. 9:21–23).

VESTIBULE (see ARCHWAY).

VIA DOLOROSA (way of sorrows)—the traditional route taken by our Lord Jesus on His way from Pilate's judgment hall to GOLGOTHA, or CALVARY, the place of crucifixion. Although tradition marks out fourteen stations of the cross, or the events that transpired during that exhausting journey, it is almost impossible to locate the exact route taken because the ancient streets of Jerusalem were destroyed several years after the crucifixion by the Roman army. The Via Dolorosa is not mentioned by name in the Bible.

VIAL—KJV word for juglet, a vessel that held oil for the anointing of a king (1 Sam. 10:1; 1 Kin. 9:1, 3; flask, NKJV). The word is also used for a broad, shallow bowl, mentioned in the Book of Revelation, that held the wrath of God (Rev. 15:7; bowl, NKJV).

VICE—wicked or depraved conduct. The apostle Peter said that Christians are free from the law, but not free to do wrong. We should not use our Christian freedom “as a cloak for vice” (1 Pet. 2:16).

VICEROY (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

VIGIL—a time of watchfulness during the normal hours of sleeping (Job 21:32).

VILLAGE—a settlement larger than a hamlet and smaller than a town. A village may be distinguished from a city by its smaller size and its lack of defenses, particularly a wall (Ezek. 38:11). Villages were located in open spaces, but usually a city was situated nearby. When a region was threatened by hostile troops, the inhabitants of the local villages would seek refuge within the walls of a nearby city.

Villages were primarily centers for agriculture, but the term “village” could also refer to what is known as suburbs today. Villages were ruled on a local level by ELDERS (Ruth 4:2).

Also see CITY.

VINE, VINEYARD (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

VINE-DRESSER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

VINE OF SODOM—an unknown plant. Scholars disagree on whether the single reference to the plant (Deut. 32:32) should be understood literally or symbolically. Most interpret it symbolically as a reference to the bitterness and unfruitfulness of pagan gods and religious practices. If the reference is to a real fruit, its identification remains obscure. The most likely suggestions are either the solanum, an orange-colored, inedible fruit, or the colocynth, a wild gourd with bitter fruit that grows on sandy ground near the Dead Sea.

VINEGAR—a drink made from wine that had been soured or overfermented. In accordance with their vow, the NAZIRITES separated themselves from any product of the grapevine, including vinegar (Num. 6:3). The psalmist complained that his enemies had given him gall for food and vinegar to drink (Ps. 69:21). Vinegar was used by farm families as a relish in which to dip parched grain (Ruth 2:14; wine vinegar, NIV; vinegar, REB).

In the New Testament, the word “vinegar” is used only in reference to Jesus’ crucifixion (Matt. 27:34, 48; Mark 15:36; Luke 23:36; John 19:29–30, KJV; sour wine, NKJV). Before Jesus was nailed to the cross, “they gave Him sour wine mingled with gall to drink” (Matt. 27:34). After Jesus had hung on the cross for three hours, and shortly before He yielded up His spirit, He was again offered sour wine, which He received (Matt. 27:48; Mark 15:36; Luke 23:36; John 19:29–30).

VIOL (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

VIOLENCE—the use of physical force, usually with an intent to violate or destroy. Violence is a violation of God’s perfect order. Thus the Greek word translated as “violent force” applies to the disorderly mob of Acts 21:35. But if godly people are subject to the human instability that causes violence, they also have the hope of seeking refuge in God’s stability (2 Sam. 22:3). Faith in Him can lead to a quenching of the violence of fire (Heb. 11:34).

VIPER (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

VIRGIN—a person who has not had sexual intercourse. Leviticus 21:7, 14 specified that a priest must not marry a widow, a divorced woman, or a prostitute, but only a virgin. The term was sometimes used to describe the nation of Israel (Is. 37:22; Jer. 31:4) to emphasize its purity and holiness as the CHOSEN PEOPLE of God.

But the most important use of the word “virgin” is as a description of the mother of Jesus. The prophet Isaiah foretold that the mother of the one to be known as Immanuel (“God with us”) would be a virgin (Is. 7:14). The Hebrew word for virgin used by Isaiah (almah), although different from that usually used for virgin in the Old Testament (bethulah), nonetheless means a young woman not yet married. When Mary, a virgin (Luke 1:27), conceived Jesus, the prophecy of Isaiah 7:14 was fulfilled, “Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and bear a son,” (Matt. 1:23).

The doctrine of the virgin birth of Christ is also found in other New Testament passages (Matt. 1:18, 20, 25; Luke 1:34–35).

Also see VIRGIN BIRTH.

VIRGIN BIRTH—the theological doctrine that Jesus was miraculously begotten by God and born of Mary, who was a virgin. The term "virgin birth" explains the way in which the Son of God entered human existence; it means that Mary had not had sexual relations with any man when she conceived Jesus.

This unparalleled act of God is described beautifully in Luke 1:26–38. The angel of God appeared to a virgin who was engaged to Joseph. In those days engagement was a legal arrangement in which a woman was betrothed, or pledged, to a man. But engagement did not permit sexual relations.

Since Mary had not "known" Joseph sexually, she wondered how she could bear a child. The angel explained that this would be encouraged by "the power of the Highest" as the Holy Spirit would "overshadow her." There was nothing physical about this divine act; this is emphasized by the statement that the child would be the "Holy One" (Luke 1:35).

The angel also declared that the child would be called "the Son of God." This clearly teaches that it was only through the virgin birth that Jesus, a human being, could also be properly identified as the Son of God. The one person, Jesus, has two natures—divine and human. The eternal, divine nature of the Son of God was joined, in Mary's womb, with a human nature by the direct act of God.

The parallel account in Matthew 1:18–25 views the virgin birth from Joseph's perspective. Because of the legal nature of engagement, a man who found his fiancee pregnant would normally divorce her. Because Joseph was a fair and just man, he did not want to shame Mary by divorcing her publicly; so he decided to do so privately. But the angel prevented this by assuring him that Mary was still a virgin. Her child was conceived by the Holy Spirit, as predicted in Isaiah 7:14.

After this revelation, Joseph took Mary as his wife but did not unite with her sexually until Jesus was born. This implies (but does not prove) that Joseph and Mary later united sexually and had other children.

Some scholars claim that the reference in Luke 2:27, 33, and 41 to Jesus' parents (Joseph and Mary) implies that the virgin birth was not a part of early Christian tradition. But these words were written by the same writer who described the annunciation of the virgin birth in Luke

1:26–38. Some Bible students also express concern over the lack of reference to the virgin birth elsewhere in the New Testament. However, the other gospels say nothing about Jesus' birth, so it is not strange that they do not speak of the virgin birth. Since the gospel message concerns the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ (1 Cor. 15:1–3), the virgin birth is not a natural part of its proclamation. But the virgin birth is a wonderful and personal truth that clearly belongs to Christian doctrine.

VIRTUE—moral excellence or goodness (Phil. 4:8). Virtue is considered a necessary ingredient in the exercise of faith (2 Pet. 1:3, 5). Sometimes the Greek word for virtue is used to express the idea of power or strength (Luke 6:19).

VISIONS—experiences similar to dreams through which supernatural insight or awareness is given by revelation. But the difference between a dream and a vision is that dreams occur only during sleep, while visions can happen while a person is awake (Dan. 10:7).

In the Bible, people who had visions were filled with a special consciousness of God. The most noteworthy examples in the Old Testament of recipients of visions are Ezekiel and Daniel. Visions in the New Testament are most prominent in the Gospel of Luke, the Book of Acts, and the Book of Revelation.

The purpose of visions was to give guidance and direction to God's servants and to foretell the future. Daniel's vision, for example, told of the coming of the Messiah (Dan. 8:1, 17).

Also see DREAMS.

VOCATION—a call or an invitation to a profession or way of life. But in theological discussions, the word "vocation" is not used in reference to the professional trade one pursues. Vocation refers to the invitation God has given to all people to become His children through Christ's work. This vocation, or calling, does not come to people because they deserve it; it comes strictly as a result of God's GRACE (2 Tim. 1:9). However, it is up to people themselves to decide whether they will accept and act upon the vocation.

Just as excellence in any professional vocation requires faithful study and work, so God requires that Christians labor to be worthy of their divine vocation (Eph. 4:1). If people accept the Christian vocation and labor in it, they can expect—just as they might expect from their professional vocations—a great reward (Eph. 1:18).

VOID—an emptiness; a great desolation. When the earth was first created, it was void and formless (Gen. 1:2). This means it was a desolate place, not yet filled with the plants and creatures that God later created. In a similar vein, the prophet Jeremiah envisioned an earth "without form, and void" (Jer. 4:23), indicating that invading armies would turn the nation of Israel into an uninhabited wasteland.

Since the word "chaos" is often used to describe what the Bible means by void, it should be noted that only the original meaning of the Greek word chaos (vast space) applies. Our modern understanding of chaos as confusion is not the meaning intended by the biblical writers.

VOPHSI [VAHF sigh]—the father of Nahbi, of the tribe of Naphtali (Num. 13:14).

VOW—a solemn promise or pledge that binds a person to perform a specified act or to behave in a certain manner. The first mention of a vow in the Bible is of Jacob at Bethel (Gen. 28:20–22; 31:13). Other people who made a vow are Jephthah (Judg. 11:30–31, 39), Hannah (1 Sam. 1:11), David (Ps. 132:2–5), and Absalom (2 Sam. 15:7–8).

In the New Testament the apostle Paul, probably at the end of a thirty-day period of abstinence from meat and wine, had his hair cut off at Cenchrea, "for he had taken a vow" (Acts 18:18). The vow that Paul had taken may have been the NAZIRITE vow (Num. 6:1–21). Samson was an Old Testament hero for whom the Nazirite vow was taken before his birth (Judg. 13:5, 7; 16:17).

All vows were made to God as a promise in expectation of His favor (Gen. 28:20) or in thanksgiving for His blessings (Ps. 116:12–14). Vowing might be a part of everyday devotion (Ps. 61:8) or the annual festivals (1 Sam. 1:21). Vows must be paid to God in the congregation at the tabernacle or temple (Deut. 12:6, 11; Ps. 22:25).

Vowing was voluntary. But after a vow was made, it had to be performed (Deut. 23:21–23; Eccl. 5:4–6). Vows, therefore, were to be made only after careful consideration (Prov. 20:25) and in keeping with what pleased God (Lev. 27:9–27). Sinful people do not know what will please God; they need God's direction in making vows.

Vowing is joyful worship in faith and love (Ps. 61:4–5, 8), often associated with the proclamation of God's salvation (Ps. 22:22–27; 66:13–20). For this reason, deception in vowing is an affront to God and brings His curse (Mal. 1:14).

VULGATE (see BIBLE VERSIONS AND TRANSLATIONS).

VULTURE (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

W

WADI [WAH dih]—a valley, ravine, or riverbed that usually remains dry except during the rainy season; a stream that flows through such a channel. While the word “wadi” does not occur in most translations, they are often called by other names, such as brook (Josh. 15:47; 2 Kin. 23:12) and torrent (Judg. 5:21).

At the conclusion of the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus probably had a wadi in mind when He told the parable of the two builders and the houses they built (Matt. 7:24–27; Luke 6:47–49). In Palestine the pleasant, bone-dry valley of summertime frequently becomes an angry, turbulent flood that demolishes everything in its path during the winter rains.

• The Wadi Zered, marking the boundary between Moab and Edom. The Israelites crossed this wadi on the way to the Promised Land (Num. 21:12).

WAFERS—the thin cakes of unleavened bread prepared by the Levites for the cereal offering. Wafers were used in the consecration of Aaron and his sons to the priesthood (Ex. 29:2, 23; Lev. 8:26), in the sacrifice of the peace offering (Lev. 2:4; 7:12), and in the consecration of the Nazirite (Num. 6:15, 19). As with the unleavened bread of PASSOVER, these wafers probably symbolized a person's separation from sin.

WAGES—compensation for performing work or service. In Bible times, wages were often paid in the form of property or privileges, not money. Such "in kind" payment for tasks completed especially suited the nomadic peoples of the Old Testament.

For instance, Jacob worked for Laban seven years to earn the hand of Rachel. Instead, he was tricked into a marriage with her sister Leah. But he willingly accepted this, toiling another seven years to win Rachel as well (Gen. 29:15–20). He also labored six years to earn a flock of goats and sheep (Gen. 31:41). Because of Jacob's efforts, Laban prospered; but when wage disputes occurred between them, God directed Jacob to depart (Gen. 31:7, 41).

This sort of concern for full, prompt wages is a recurring legal and ethical theme in the Bible. Mosaic Law required payment each evening: "You shall not cheat your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all night until morning" (Lev. 19:13). Frequently prophets and religious leaders severely denounced those who withheld wages.

In Jesus' parable of the vineyard workers, a landowner agreed to pay the laborers one denarius a day. Even workers who had served only an hour received a full day's wages, thanks to the landowner's generosity. This parable illustrates God's grace. He rewards all believers far more than they deserve.

The term "wages" also denotes the consequences of a person's acts or deeds, as in Paul's immortal declaration, "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23).

WAGON—a vehicle of two or four wheels used for hauling. The wagons mentioned in the Bible had wheels of wood; and they were drawn usually by oxen, although sometimes by horses. Wagons were used to transport people (Gen. 45:19; carts, NKJV) or supplies, occasionally military supplies (Ezek. 23:24). Also see CART.

WAHEB [WAY heb]—an unknown place near the border of Moab and close by "the brooks of the Arnon" (Num. 21:14).

WAIL—a mournful cry of grief, sorrow, or lamentation. In ancient funeral processions, wailing relatives, often accompanied by professional mourners and musicians, preceded the body to the grave. The prophet Jeremiah called for "the mourning women" and "skillful wailing women" (Jer. 9:17) to cry because of the coming destruction of Jerusalem as a punishment for the people's idolatry. On the DAY OF THE LORD, declared Amos, "There shall be wailing in all streets" (Amos 5:16). Also see MOURN.

WAIT—to remain in readiness or expectation. In Scripture, the word “wait” normally suggests the anxious, yet confident, expectation by God’s people that the Lord will intervene on their behalf. Such waiting may be for answers to prayer (Ps. 25:5), for the coming of the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:4), for salvation (Gen. 49:18), or especially for the coming of the Messiah to bring salvation to His people and to establish His kingdom on earth (Ps. 37:34; Luke 12:36; Rom. 8:23; 1 Thess. 1:10). Waiting, therefore, is the working out of hope.

WALK—to move at a pace slower than a run; one’s conduct of life. The literal sense predominates in the Old Testament, but the figurative meaning of the word does occur (Gen. 5:24; 6:9; Eccl. 11:9). In the New Testament the word usually is used literally in the gospels, while it is usually used figuratively in Paul and John’s letters.

The figurative sense has decidedly spiritual overtones. One either walks (conducts his life) as a Christian or as a non-Christian (Rom. 8:4; Eph. 2:2, 10; 1 John 1:6–7). The believer can walk “in darkness” or “in the light,” and constantly is urged to choose the latter; only such a path is “worthy of the calling with which you were called” (Eph. 4:1).

WALKWAYS—passages for walking, especially those connecting various areas of a building. Solomon made walkways of algum wood for the temple and his palace (2 Chr. 9:11).

WALL—a thick, high, continuous structure of stones or brick that formed a defensive barricade around an ancient city. Interior walls of houses in Palestine were also made of bricks or stones, but these were usually plastered over to give them a smooth surface.

The walls of public buildings and royal palaces were often made of squared stone blocks, cut by craftsmen and carefully fitted together. Solomon employed 80,000 workmen to cut and place the stones for the temple in Jerusalem (1 Kin. 5:15).

WANDERINGS OF ISRAEL—the activities of the Israelite tribes during the period between their departure from Egypt under Moses and the time when they were encamped by the Jordan River, ready to be led into Canaan by Joshua. The period of time covered by these events is traditionally forty years, much of which was spent in the area of KADESH–BARNEA.

The Israelite journeyings are commonly spoken of as “wilderness wanderings,” because they took the people through some areas that were known as wilderness. In order to understand the nature of the wanderings, it is important to realize the difference between a wilderness and a desert. A desert is best imagined as a barren expanse of sand dunes or a rocky area that does not support any vegetation.

Although a wilderness may also have barren areas, it has grassy upland plains, oases, springs, and vegetation such as flowers, shrubs, and trees that can support a surprising variety of animal life. The Sinai Mountain range where the Hebrew people wandered appears rugged and inhospitable when viewed from the air. But when approached by land, it shows it has a few grassy areas and upland plains.

Even the central Sinai area is not completely lacking in surface water. The Wadi el-Arish, which is most probably the Old Testament “brook of Egypt,” is a seasonal watercourse. South and west of that wadi is another prominent watercourse, the Wadi Feiran, which leads to the best oasis in Sinai. It sustains a considerable amount of vegetation. Thus, it was possible for the Israelites to survive and feed their flocks under wilderness conditions.

The wanderings of the Hebrew people began with the crossing of the Red Sea, a papyrus-reed marsh probably situated in the region of the Bitter Lakes. Immediately thereafter they entered the Wilderness of Shur, an area in northwest Sinai lying south of the coastal road from Egypt to Philistia and bounded on the east by the Wadi el-Arish. This was the first stage of the journey to Mount Sinai (Ex. 15:22), which was probably followed in a southeasterly direction along the east coast of the Gulf of Suez. In this region the water table is high and many springs and wells are available. In spite of this, the Israelites experienced many difficulties (Ex. 15:23–25). They were relieved when they arrived at the oasis of Elim.

It is extremely difficult to identify most of the encampments of the wilderness period. This is partly because many of the names may have been given to the locations by the Israelites themselves as a result of specific happenings (for example, Marah, Ex. 15:23; Taberah, Num. 11:3), and not because those were the local names. Even if they had been named before the Hebrews arrived, only the most important of them would have survived in modern Arabic. An example of one place name that has survived is Jebel Musa (“Mountain of Moses”) as one possible location of Mount Sinai. This imposing peak in the Sinai range is the traditional site of the covenant with Israel, although two other locations, Jebel Serbal and Ras es-Safsafeh, have also been suggested.

The Israelites encamped in the Wilderness of Sin at Rephidim, possibly the Wadi Refayid in southwest Sinai, and drove off an Amalekite attack (Ex. 17:8–16) before reaching Mount Sinai. There they received the Law and settled for nearly a year (Num. 1:1; 10:11) while Moses worked at organizing the new nation. At this stage of the wanderings the construction of the tabernacle and the regulations governing its use were given careful attention because of their importance for the future life of the Israelites.

Even these precautions, however, were not enough to stop dissatisfaction among the wandering Israelites as they traveled toward Kadesh. The people complained about the lack of food in the wilderness. Even when God provided manna, they soon began to dislike it. To punish them God sent a flock of quail for food, which made the people ill and caused many deaths (Num. 11:32–33).

From the Wilderness of Paran Moses sent spies into Canaan, but they returned with discouraging reports about the inhabitants (Num. 13:32–33). The people then refused to enter Canaan and rebelled against their leaders. God was angry with them. With the exception of Joshua and Caleb, all the people alive at that time were condemned to spend the rest of their lives in the wilderness. Korah, Dathan, and Abiram accused Moses and Aaron of assuming too much priestly authority. They were punished by being swallowed up in a spectacular earthquake (Num. 16:32–33). The Israelites became angry at this, and God would have killed them all if Moses had not interceded on their behalf.

Because of an act of disobedience at Kadesh (Num. 20:8–12), Moses and Aaron were forbidden to enter the Promised Land. Nevertheless, they and the Israelites attempted to go to Canaan along the King’s Highway which passed through Edomite territory. But they were refused permission. The people then journeyed to Mount Hor on the border of Edom, where Aaron died (Num. 20:28). A skirmish with the Canaanite king of Arad took place before the Hebrews moved toward the wilderness area east of Moab (Num. 21:1–3). When the Amorite King Sihon refused them access to the King's Highway, he was defeated in battle (Num. 21:21–32). Shortly afterwards Og, king of Bashan, suffered the same fate (Num. 21:33–35).

The Israelites now occupied a large area of territory in Transjordan. This alarmed Balak, king of Moab. He hired Balaam, a Mesopotamian soothsayer, to curse the Israelites, but by divine intervention he blessed them instead (Numbers 22–24). Unfortunately the Israelites committed sin with the Moabite women, and this was to prove an indication of what lay ahead in Canaan.

While the people were in the plains of Moab, across the Jordan River from Jericho, a second census of the people was taken, apparently in preparation for the crossing into Canaan, for which Joshua was appointed leader (Num. 27:18–23). Perhaps because of the immorality with the Moabite women, Moses proclaimed a series of regulations involving offerings and festivals that would be observed once the Israelites were in Canaan (Numbers 28–29).

The hold of the Israelites on Transjordanian territory was consolidated by a successful attack upon the Midianites. This resulted in a great deal of plunder. The conquered lands were ideal for raising herds and flocks, so the tribes of Gad and Reuben and half of the tribe of Manasseh were given that territory as their own. Moses then issued instructions for the conquest of Canaan, and appointed leaders who would divide the land among the tribes.

After reviewing Israel's wilderness wanderings (Num. 33:1–49) and composing a victory song (Deut. 32:1–43), Moses climbed Mount Nebo to see the land that he had been forbidden to enter. With a final blessing upon Israel, Moses died on Mount Nebo. With his death the wilderness wanderings ended and the occupation of Canaan began.

WAR, WARFARE—armed conflict with an opposing military force. From the perspective of the Hebrew people, a holy war was one that God Himself declared, led, and won. The concept was at its height during the period of the judges. By the time of the United Kingdom under David and Solomon, however, political concerns began to cloud the concept of holy war. The prophets saw war as God's judgment against Israel. Those looking for a violent end to human existence saw war as a sign of the end times, both in the Old and New Testaments. Jesus emphasized peace instead of war, and the New Testament church saw war as a spiritual battle between good and evil.

The concept of holy war required that God declare the war (Ex. 17:16; Num. 31:3). Every warrior considered himself consecrated to God (Is. 13:3). Before and during a war, soldiers abstained from certain activities to sanctify themselves (Judg. 20:26; 2 Sam. 11:11). Those who fought under a divinely ordained leader (Judg. 6:34) had to be singleminded in their devotion to God. Those who were frightened, newly married, or beset by domestic or financial problems were asked to go home (Deut. 20:5–9). The ARK OF THE COVENANT, the symbol of God's presence, went with Israel's army into battle (2 Sam. 11:11).

The Israelites determined the right moment to enter into battle and sought guidance in battle by casting the sacred lot or by heeding the words of a prophet (Judg. 1:1; 1 Sam. 23:2; 1 Kin. 22:5). King Ahab was killed when he failed to heed the warning of Micaiah, the Lord's prophet (2 Chronicles 18).

In Numbers 21:14, Moses mentioned a book that has remained a mystery to biblical scholars—"the Book of the Wars of the Lord." This was probably a collection of records or songs celebrating the victories of Israel over its enemies. The Old Testament contains many references to God's role in battle against Israel's foes (Ex. 15:3; Ps. 24:8). God struck Israel's enemies with terror, overtaking and killing all fugitives (Ex. 15:1–27; Josh. 10:10–11). The judge Deborah cursed those who did not come to the Lord's aid against mighty Sisera (Judg. 5:23). As Israel's king, David fought "the Lord's battles" (1 Sam. 18:17). Jeremiah cursed those who refused to fight the Lord's battles (Jer. 48:10).

According to 2 Samuel 11:1, wars were usually waged "in the spring of the year." In springtime, the land dries out after the winter rains and therefore does not impede the movement of troops and chariots. In addition, armies can live off the land as the early grain crops begin to ripen. The trumpet or ram's horn, symbolic of the voice of God, called Israel into battle (Judg. 3:27; 1 Sam. 13:3). The number of soldiers whom Israel mustered for battle made no difference, for God fought alongside them (Judges 7; 1 Sam. 14:6). Indeed, the Israelites were forced to wander forty years in the wilderness because they did not believe God could help them win over the Canaanites, who outnumbered the Israelites in both manpower and equipment (Num. 14:1–12).

The tactics of war were simple. They included surprise, ambush, pretended flight, and surrounding the enemy (Gen. 14:15; Josh. 8:2–7; 2 Sam. 5:23). On occasion a representative of each army met in combat (1 Samuel 17).

According to Deuteronomy 20:10–20, three outcomes of a holy war were possible. If the besieged city surrendered, the occupants' lives were spared, but all were enslaved. If the city refused to agree to peace terms and had to be taken by force, all males were killed by the sword. An exception to both these policies occurred when the captured city lay within Israel's boundaries. Then all occupants and their possessions were utterly destroyed. Known as the ban, this custom was intended to keep Israel free of any heathen influence (Josh. 6:17; 1 Sam. 15:3).

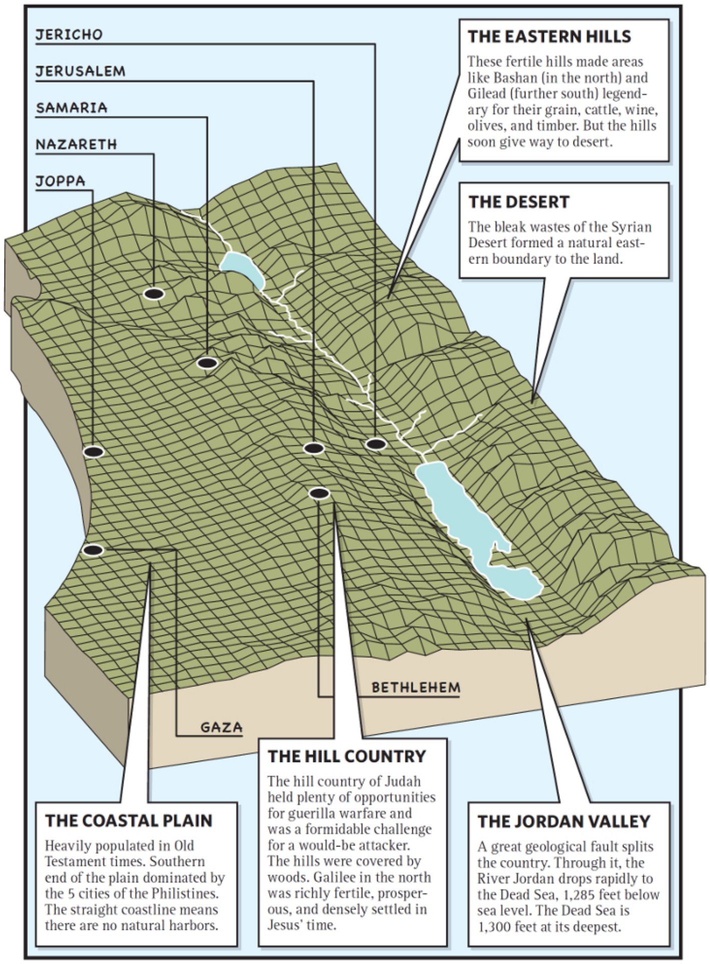
Besieging a city required elaborate planning. If possible, the city's water supply was cut off. Often the towers and gates of the city were set on fire (Judg. 9:52). In order for armies to use their battering rams and catapults that propelled arrows or stones, ramps were built to raise the weapons to appropriate height. From the ramps, scaling ladders were laid against the wall so soldiers could get inside the city. All the while, the city's defenders were using their own similar weapons to kill the enemy and destroy their war machinery (2 Sam. 11:21, 24; 2 Chr. 26:15).

A famous battle using these techniques was the Roman siege of Masada, a rock fortress about 1.6 kilometers (1 mile) west of the Dead Sea. Masada had been considered impregnable. In fact, it took the Romans nearly three years to gain entry into Masada, only to find its some 960 inhabitants dead as a result of a suicide pact.

By the time of Solomon, warfare was the result of national policy set by the ruling king who supposedly was acting at God's direction. Court prophets, when asked about the advisability of entering into war, rarely went against the king's wishes—although Micaiah the son of Imlah did so (1 Kin. 22:8–28; 2 Chr. 18:7–27). Israel entered into international treaties with the great earthly powers rather than relying on God's strength for security (1 Kin. 15:18–19; 2 Kin. 17:4). After the captivity, the concept of holy war was applied to any revolt against the current ruling power.

The early prophets accepted the holy war concept and even stirred up war. But the later prophets often condemned war, because they felt Israel's wars did not meet the qualifications for a holy war.

THE SHAPE OF THE LAND



THE EASTERN HILLS
These fertile hills made areas like Bashan (in the north) and Gilead (further south) legendary for their grain, cattle, wine, olives, and timber. But the hills soon give way to desert.

THE DESERT
The bleak wastes of the Syrian Desert formed a natural eastern boundary to the land.

THE COASTAL PLAIN
Heavily populated in Old Testament times. Southern end of the plain dominated by the 5 cities of the Philistines. The straight coastline means there are no natural harbors.

THE HILL COUNTRY
The hill country of Judah held plenty of opportunities for guerilla warfare and was a formidable challenge for a would-be attacker. The hills were covered by woods. Galilee in the north was richly fertile, prosperous, and densely settled in Jesus' time.

THE JORDAN VALLEY
A great geological fault splits the country. Through it, the River Jordan drops rapidly to the Dead Sea, 1,285 feet below sea level. The Dead Sea is 1,300 feet at its deepest.

WAR CLUB (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

WASHING (see ABLUTION).

WASHPOT—a pot used for washing or bathing. The psalmist declared, “Moab is my washpot” (Ps. 60:8; 108:9; washbasin, NIV, NRSV; washbowl, NASB, REB). The meaning is that Moab (with its sea, the Dead Sea) is to be despised and held in contempt, like a washpot in which soiled hands and feet are washed.

WASP (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

WASTING DISEASE (see DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

WATCH—either a group of soldiers or others posted to keep guard (Neh. 4:9; 7:3; 12:25) or one of the units of time into which the night was divided (Ps. 63:6; Lam. 2:19; Luke 12:38).

Because of the mention of the "middle watch" (Judg. 7:19), there must have been three such units in the Old Testament period. The "beginning of the watches" (Lam. 2:19) was apparently the first of these and the "morning watch" was the third (Ex. 14:24; 1 Sam. 11:11). However, by the New Testament period the Roman system of four watches had been adopted (Matt. 14:25; Mark 6:48). These were apparently named as follows: evening, midnight, cockcrow (NRSV; the crowing of the rooster, NKJV), and morning (Mark 13:35).

Also see TIME.

WATCHTOWER—an observation tower upon which a guard or lookout was stationed to keep watch; an elevated structure offering an extensive view (2 Kin. 17:9; 18:8; Is. 21:8). Also see TOWER.

WATER OF BITTERNESS—part of a ceremonial test, or trial by ordeal, of a woman accused of adultery (Num. 5:11–31). When a Hebrew man suspected his wife of infidelity but he had no proof, he would bring her before the priest with the charge. The priest would mix "holy water"—probably water from a sacred spring—with dust from the tabernacle floor and curses scraped from a book. This potion, known as the water of bitterness, would be drunk by the woman after she had sworn her innocence under oath.

If the woman had lied to the priest and to God, this potion would turn bitter in her mouth and cause her belly to swell and her thigh to rot. If she was not guilty, the mixture would not harm her.

WATERPOOLS—reservoirs that hold water for irrigation purposes (Eccl. 2:6). Solomon's pools were part of an elaborate irrigation system built by the king to store water for Jerusalem.

• A plentiful source of water was crucial for the survival of an ancient city. This massive pool at Gibeon was cut through more than 30 feet of solid rock.

WATERPOT—a jar for carrying or storing water. These vessels ranged from those large enough to hold thirty gallons (John 2:6–7) to those small enough for a woman to carry on her shoulder or head (John 4:28).

WATERS OF MEROM (see MEROM).

WATERSPOUTS—KJV word for a descent of water over a steep surface (Ps. 42:7; waterfalls, NASB, NIV, NKJV; cataracts, REB, NRSV). The psalmist, apparently an exile from the temple (vv. 2–3), compares the roaring waters of snowcapped Mount Hermon with the anguish of his own soul.

WAVE OFFERING (see SACRIFICIAL OFFERINGS).

WAW [waw]—the sixth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:41–48. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter waw.

Also see ACROSTIC.

WAX—a sticky substance secreted by bees to build the honeycomb, also called beeswax. The wicked melt like wax before God’s judgment (Ps. 68:2).

WAY—a thoroughfare for travel, such as a path, road, or highway. Figuratively, the word “way” is used in the Old Testament as a synonym for the manner of life of righteous or wicked people (Ps. 1:6). In the New Testament, the word is often used as a metaphor for moral behavior (Matt. 7:13–14; 2 Pet. 2:15).

Jesus reminded His disciples that the single road to God was through Himself: “I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me” (John 14:6). In the Book of Acts, the phrase “the Way” was a scornful label for the early Christian movement used by the enemies of the church. Like the word “Christian,” this term of derision was borne with pride by the followers of Jesus (Acts 9:2; 24:14, 22).

WEALTH—an abundance of possessions or resources. During the times of the PATRIARCHS, wealth was measured largely in livestock—sheep, goats, cattle, donkeys, and camels. This was true of Abraham (Gen. 13:2), Isaac (Gen. 26:12–14), and Jacob (Gen. 30:43; 32:5). People of the ancient world also measured wealth in terms of land, houses, servants, slaves, and precious metals. The prime example is King Solomon, whose great wealth is described in 1 Kings 10:14–29.

Wealth is a major theme in the WISDOM LITERATURE of the Bible (Prov. 10:15; 13:11; 19:4). The most important observation of these writings is that wealth comes from God (Prov. 3:9–10). The possession of wealth is not always the sign of God’s favor. “Why does the way of the wicked prosper?” (Jer. 12:1) became a familiar theme to the writers of the Old Testament. The popular view that wickedness brings poverty and goodness brings wealth is strongly opposed by the Book of Job.

The prophet Amos thundered against the rich and prosperous inhabitants of Israel, who sold “the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of sandals” (Amos 2:6). Their wealth was corrupt and under a curse because it was founded on exploitation of the poor.

In the New Testament, many warnings are given of the dangers of letting money and things possess a person’s heart. In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus spoke of “treasures on earth” and “treasures in heaven” and called upon His followers to be careful of which treasure they chose (Matt. 6:19–21, 24).

Many of Jesus’ parables, such as the rich fool (Luke 12:13–21) and the rich man and Lazarus (Luke 16:19–31), deal with people who made the wrong choice, choosing earthly wealth over heavenly wealth. But the only true and lasting wealth is the spiritual riches of God’s grace (Matt. 13:44–46).

WEAPONS (see ARMS, ARMOR OF THE BIBLE).

WEASEL (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

WEATHER—the state of the atmosphere, which varies from time to time in temperature, moisture, and wind velocity. Palestine’s climate varies between three zones: the coastal area along the Mediterranean Sea, the hills, and the desert. Winters are warmest near the oceans and coldest on the Lebanon mountains. But virtually everywhere in Palestine the summers are painfully hot. Searing winds often blow in from the south (Job 37:9–11; Luke 12:55).

In spite of the severity of the elements in Palestine, the Israelites endured worse in their forty years of wandering in the desert before they entered the land of Canaan. No wonder this new land appeared to be “a land flowing with milk and honey” (Num. 16:13).

WEAVER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

WEAVING—the skill of making cloth from threads. Egyptian paintings from as early as 2000 B.C. depict weaving as an advanced skill. This skill was widely practiced throughout the ancient world long before this time. About 2500 B.C. the city of Ebla boasted a highly developed textile industry, and weavers of this city traded their goods widely. The Hebrews practiced weaving probably as early as Abraham’s time, about 2000 B.C. The great skill required to weave the tabernacle curtains (Exodus 26) and priestly garments (35:35) was probably learned in Egypt.

Ancient families often manufactured all their own cloth, although professionals labored in the urban areas. Family looms were primitive and inefficient, requiring much of a woman's time. According to the Book of Proverbs, the godly woman spends a lot of time at the weaving task (31:13–24). In forbidding the Israelites to mix two different kinds of materials, God taught them the necessity of keeping the faith pure (Lev. 19:19; Deut. 22:11).

WEB—a word in the Old Testament with two distinct meanings:

1. A textile fabric, especially one woven on a loom. Delilah wove the seven locks of Samson's head into the web of a loom, hoping to trap him. But Samson easily broke free from the web (Judg. 16:13–14).
2. A pattern of threadlike filaments, characteristically spun by spiders (Job 8:14; Is. 59:5).

WEDDING—a marriage ceremony with its accompanying festivities (Luke 12:36; 14:8). Among the Israelites a wedding was a festive occasion in which the whole community participated.

When the day for the wedding arrived, the bride put on white robes (often richly embroidered), decked herself with jewels, fastened a bridal girdle about her waist, covered herself with a veil, and placed a garland on her head. The bridegroom, dressed in his best clothes, with a handsome headdress on his head, set out for the house of the bride's parents. He was accompanied by his friends, by musicians and singers, and by persons bearing torches if the procession moved at night.

The groom received his bride from her parents with their blessings and the good wishes of friends. Then he conducted the whole party back to his own house or his father's house with song, music, and dancing. On the way back they were joined by additional friends of the bride and groom. A feast was served and celebrated with great joy and merrymaking. In the evening the bride was escorted to the nuptial chamber by her parents, and the groom by his companions or the bride's parents. On the next day the festivities were resumed, continuing for seven days.

WEEK—any seven consecutive days; the interval between two sabbaths (Lev. 12:5; Jer. 5:24; Luke 18:12). The Hebrew people observed the seventh day of the week, from Friday evening (beginning at sunset) to Saturday evening, as their SABBATH, or day of rest and worship (Ex. 16:23–27).

The early Christians, to commemorate the resurrection of Christ, worshiped not on the old Jewish Sabbath, but on the Lord’s Day (the first day of the week, or Sunday), which became the new Christian “sabbath” (Mark 16:2, 9; Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 16:2).

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES OF THE BIBLE Early in the development of society, people learned to measure, weigh, and exchange commodities. At first this trade was simple barter, the exchange of one type of goods for another type. As society became more complex, the need for standardized trade values became apparent. Yet each city set up its own standards of weights and measures, thus creating great confusion in trade between different peoples and cultures.

Weighing (pounds) and measuring (volume, length, and area) are two distinct functions in the Bible. The various units by which these two functions were expressed in Bible times are discussed in this article under these two major divisions.

Weights

The balance was an early method of determining weight. The balance consisted of a beam supported in the middle with a pan suspended by cords on each end. A known quantity of weight would be placed in the pan on one side of the balance and the object to be weighed on the other side. By adding or removing known weights until each side was equal, the weight of the object could be determined.

Most of the weights in the ancient world were made of stone or metal. The weights appeared in many forms, such as cubes, spheres, cones, cylinders, domes, or animal shapes. Some of these weights were inscribed with the amount of their weight, but most were not. Since these weights varied from one place to the next, many people carried pouches which contained their own weights (Deut. 25:13; Prov. 16:11), so they could see if they were receiving just value.

These ancient weights were sometimes used as money. Instead of referring to a talent of gold or silver or a shekel of gold or silver, people would merely refer to a talent or a shekel (2 Kin. 7:1; Matt. 25:15–28).

In Canaan, both the Canaanites and the Israelites used the Mesopotamian weight system. Each level of weight had four separate standards—the common, the heavy (twice the common weight), the common royal (5 percent heavier than the common weight), and the heavy royal (5 percent heavier than the heavy weight). Several of these weights are mentioned in the Bible.

Talent—The heaviest unit of weight in the Hebrew system. The talent was used to weigh gold (2 Sam. 12:30), silver (1 Kin. 20:39), iron (1 Chr. 29:7), bronze (Ex. 38:29), and many other commodities. The common talent weighed about 3000 shekels or the full weight that a man could carry (2 Kin. 5:23). In Revelation 16:21 giant heavenly hailstones are described as heavy as a talent.

Kesitah—A unit of unknown weight and value (Gen. 33:19, piece of money; Josh. 24:32, piece of silver). Since the root meaning of the word is "lamb," this particular weight may have been shaped like a lamb. Jacob paid Hamor of Shechem a hundred kesitah for a parcel of land (Gen. 33:19; sheep, REB). At the end of Job's encounter with God, his friends brought him a kesitah and a ring of gold (Job 42:11).

Mina—A weight equal to about fifty common shekels, similar to the Canaanite system (1 Kin. 10:17; Ezra 2:69; pound, KJV). Ezekiel 45:12 seeks to redefine the weight (maneh, KJV, NASB), to equal sixty shekels, as in the Mesopotamian system. In Daniel 5:25 the words Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin may be interpreted as a play on monetary values of that day ("Mina, mina, shekel, and half shekels"). The phrase, then, may refer to the Babylonian rulers Nebuchadnezzar, Nabonidus, and Belshazzar, implying that they were decreasing in importance.

The mina is used in Luke 19:13, 16 (pound, NRSV, NEB) to refer to approximately a pound of money. "So he called ten of his servants, delivered to them ten minas, and said to them, 'Do business till I come' " (v. 13).

Pound—A Roman weight of about 340 grams, or 12 ounces (John 12:3). This term is used in the NKJV to designate the pound of precious ointments used to anoint Christ. The same word is also used to describe the amount of myrrh and aloes used to anoint the body of Christ in John 19:39.

Shekel—The most common weight in the Hebrew system (Josh. 7:21; Ezek. 4:10). The shekel weighed about 11.4 grams, or less than half an ounce. Its use was so common that in Genesis 20:16, the Hebrew text states “a thousand pieces of silver” without even bothering to specify shekel.

The shekel of the sanctuary (Ex. 30:13; Ezek. 45:12) was said to weigh twenty gerahs, the same weight as the common shekel. It is possible that the standard for the common shekel was kept at the sanctuary and became known as the sanctuary shekel. There is no clear reference to the use of the heavy shekel in Israel, but the shekel of the king’s standard (the royal shekel) is referred to in 2 Samuel 14:26.

Pim—A weight that apparently weighed about two-thirds of a shekel (1 Sam. 13:21). This verse is difficult to translate accurately, but it probably should read “and the charge . . . was a pim for the ploughshares.” This charge is not mentioned in the KJV.

Bekah—One-half shekel. The bekah was the weight in silver that was paid by each Israelite as a religious tax (Ex. 30:13; 38:26). The bekah, spelled beka in some translations, is named only once in English translations (Ex. 38:26), but is referred to more often (Gen. 24:22; Ex. 30:13, 15).

Gerah—The smallest of the Israelite weights. The Bible defines it as one-twentieth of a shekel (Ex. 30:13; Lev. 27:25).

Measures

Measurements recorded in the Bible are of three types: (1) measures of volume, which told the amount of dry commodity (for example, flour) or liquid (for example, oil) that could be contained in a vessel; (2) measures of length, for height, width, and depth of an object or person; and (3) measures of total area, which described the size of a building, field, or city.

Measures of Volume. Measurements of volume were originally made by estimated handfuls. Eventually containers (jars, baskets, etc.), which held an agreed upon number of handfuls, were used as the standard measure. The terms used for such measures were frequently taken from the name of the containers.

The Israelites adapted the Mesopotamian system of measure of volume from the Canaanites. Their system contained several major designations for measuring dry volume.

Homer—The standard unit for dry measure (Ezek. 45:11–14; Hos. 3:2). This unit contained about 220 liters (6¹/₄ bushels). It was a large measure weighing the equivalent of the normal load a donkey could carry (the Hebrew word for “donkey” is hamor). In Leviticus 27:16, a homer of barley is worth fifty shekels of silver. In Numbers 11:32 God provided quail so generously for his people that they could gather ten homers of them. Isaiah’s prophecy of only an ephah of wheat from a homer of seed was a sign of God’s judgment (Is. 5:10).

Kor—The same size as the homer (Ezek. 45:14, cor; measure, KJV). The kor was used to measure flour (1 Kin. 4:22), wheat, and barley (2 Chr. 2:10; 27:5).

Ephah—a unit equal to one-tenth of a homer (Ex. 29:40; deal, KJV; Is. 5:10).

Seah—a unit of uncertain capacity, but one-third of an ephah is probably correct (1 Sam. 25:18; 1 Kin. 7:1; measure, KJV, NRSV, REB, NASB).

Omer—a unit equal to one-tenth of an ephah (Ex. 16:36). The Hebrew word, issaron, “one-tenth of an ephah” (Ex. 29:40; Lev. 14:10; Num. 15:4), was a dry measure of similar size to the omer.

Kab—a unit containing about 1.2 liters or 1.16 quarts. The kab is mentioned only once in the Bible (2 Kin. 6:25). During the Syrian siege of Samaria, prices were inflated so badly that one-fourth of a kab of dove’s dung was sold for five pieces of silver.

The New Testament contains four major designations for measuring dry capacity. These Greek words are not mentioned in the English translations of the New Testament.

Koros (Luke 16:7; measure, NKJV, KJV, NRSV, NASB; bushel, REB, NIV), was a measure of wheat equal to about 453 liters (13 bushels).

Modios (Matt. 5:15; Mark 4:21; Luke 11:33; basket, NKJV; bushel, KJV, NRSV), contained about 9 liters (1/4 bushel).

Saton (Matt. 13:33; Luke 13:21; measure, NKJV, KJV, NRSV; bushel, REB; peck, NASB; large amount, NIV) contained about 13 liters (3/8 bushel).

Choinix (Rev. 6:6; quart, NKJV; measure, KJV) contained about 1.1 liters (1 quart).

The Old Testament contained five major designations for liquid measure. The homer (Ezek. 45:11–14), containing ten baths, was the largest liquid measure. The kor was the same size as the homer (Ezek. 45:14). The bath was the equivalent in liquid measure to the ephah in dry measure (Ezek. 45:11, 14). It was the standard liquid measure, equaling about 22 liters (5.83 gallons). It was used to measure water (1 Kin. 7:26), wine (Is. 5:10), and oil (2 Chr. 2:10). The hin, equal to one-sixth of a bath, was used to measure water (Ezek. 4:11), oil (Ex. 29:40), and wine (Lev. 23:13). One-sixth of a hin was considered the daily ration of water (Ezek. 4:11). The log, found only in Leviticus 14:10–24, was a measure of oil in the ceremony for the purification of a leper. The log was equal to one-twelfth of a hin.

The New Testament contains three major terms for liquid measure. These words appear in Greek manuscripts but are translated by different words in English versions of the Bible.

The largest of these measures was the metretes (John 2:6; gallon, NKJV; firkin, KJV; water-jar, REB). Batos (Luke 16:6; measures, NKJV, KJV; gallons, REB, NIV) was the next smaller measure. Xestes (Mark 7:4, 8; pitcher, NKJV; pot, KJV; copper pot, NASB; hundred jars, REB; kettles, NIV; bronze kettles, NRSV) was the smallest unit of liquid measure.

Measures of Length. Linear measure, as with other units of measure, was originally based upon parts of the body, such as the hand, arm, or foot. Sometimes the unit was named for the part of the body it represented (palm, finger, etc.). Early linear distances were also based upon common but difficult-to-define objects, such as the step, bowshot, or a day’s journey. By New Testament times, the Greek and Roman influences had caused these measures to be defined quite clearly.

Lengths were measured by various devices, including the measuring line (Zech. 2:1), measuring rod or measuring reed (Ezek. 40:5) and the meteyard (Lev. 19:35, KJV).

Several units expressing measurements of length are mentioned in the Bible.

Cubit—The distance from the elbow to the finger tip—about 45 centimeters (18 inches). The cubit was the standard unit of length. It was the common designation of the height of a man (1 Sam. 17:4) or an object (Ezek. 40:5). There was more than one size cubit, for the bed of Og, king of Bashan, is described “according to the standard cubit” (Deut. 3:11), while Ezekiel’s measuring rod extended “six cubits long, each being a cubit and a handbreadth” (Ezek. 40:5). The long cubit was probably 51.8 centimeters (20.4 inches). The cubit is mentioned several times in the New Testament (Luke 12:25; Rev. 21:17). In each case it probably refers to the common cubit.

Rod/Reed—Units of measure equal to six cubits. The rod (Ezek. 40:5) and the reed (Ezek. 29:6) appear to be interchangeable. (Ezekiel 40:5 specifies that this measure is according to the long cubit.)

Span—The distance between the extended thumb and the little finger (1 Sam. 17:4). The span was equivalent to one-half cubit.

Handbreadth—The width of the hand at the base of the four fingers (1 Kin. 7:26; 2 Chr. 4:5). The handbreadth was considered to be one-sixth of a cubit.

Finger—The smallest subdivision of the cubit, equal to one-fourth of a handbreadth (Jer. 52:21). The finger is also called the cubit.

Fathom—A Greek unit equal to the length of the outstretched arms, about 1.8 meters (6 feet), or 4 cubits (Acts 27:28).

Furlong—A distance equal to about 200 meters, or $^1/_8$ of a mile (Rev. 14:20; two hundred miles, NRSV).

Mile—A Roman measurement of 1000 paces (5 Roman feet to the pace), equaling about 1,477.5 meters, or 1,616 yards (Matt. 5:41).

Several less definite distances are expressed in the Bible. Before the Babylonian captivity, distance was expressed variously as “a bowshot” (Gen. 21:16), “the area plowed by a yoke (of oxen in a day)” (1 Sam. 14:14, footnote), “a day’s journey” (Num. 11:31; 1 Kin. 19:4), “three days’ journey” (Gen. 30:36; Ex. 3:18; 8:27; “a journey of three days,” (Num. 10:33), “seven days’ journey” (Gen. 31:23), or even “eleven days’ journey” (Deut. 1:2). No one knows for sure the amount of these distances, but a “day’s journey” has been estimated to be approximately 32 to 40 kilometers (20 to 25 miles).

The “Sabbath day’s journey” (Acts 1:12) was the product of rabbinical exegesis of Exodus 16:29 and Numbers 35:5. The rabbis fixed the legal distance for travel on the Sabbath at 2,000 cubits.

Many modern English translations of the Bible often use modern measurements of length, such as feet and inches (Gen. 6:15–16, NIV), and yards (John 21:8, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV).

Measures of Area. Measures of area are not well defined in the Bible. Sometimes an area was determined by the amount of land a pair of oxen could plow in a day (1 Sam. 14:14). According to the NKJV, this was considered to be about one-half of an acre. Another method of designating area was to estimate the space by the amount of seed required to sow it (Lev. 27:16).

• Ancient weights were frequently cast in the shapes of animals such as turtles, ducks, and lions to make them easily recognizable and easy to handle.

WELL—a pit or hole sunk into the earth to provide water. References in English versions of the Bible sometimes confuse wells, natural springs, and cisterns. Many different types of wells are mentioned in the Bible. These include a cistern dug in the ground (Gen. 16:14; 2 Sam. 17:18); a spring (Ps. 84:6); a fountain, also called a living spring (Neh. 2:13); and a pit or hole (John 4:11–12).

Wells in Palestine were dug from solid limestone rock. Sometimes they were furnished with descending steps that allowed a person to dip directly from the pool of water (Gen. 24:16). The brims of still other wells had a curb or low wall of stone that often bore the marks of the furrows worn over the years by ropes in drawing water. Jesus sat on a curb of this sort when he talked to the woman of Samaria (John 4:6).

There is no information on how biblical wells were dug. But the process must have been very difficult, because only crude tools were available. Isaac (Gen. 26:18–22) and Uzziah (2 Chr. 26:10) are the most active well diggers mentioned in the Bible. Many ancient wells descended to a great depth. Jacob's Well is still seventy-five feet deep and at one time it may have been twice as deep. These deep wells were necessary because of the problem of shallow wells running dry in the summer.

Even in very favorable locations, the water in Palestine almost vanishes during the summer drought. Some wells are not covered because the soil in the area is not likely to drift and fill them up, but desert wells are always covered. They taper to a point so that the opening is easily closed.

Wells were often situated outside towns, where they became local landmarks and meeting places (Gen. 24:11, 20; John 4:6–8). Sometimes they were in isolated locations, enabling livestock to be grazed nearby (Gen. 29:3, 8–10; Ex. 2:15–18). Both the ownership and the use of wells could become matters of dispute (Gen. 21:25; Ex. 2:17–19). Occasionally, old dry wells were used as prisons (Gen. 27:24; Jer. 38:6).

The Bible's most famous wells were at Bethlehem, for whose water David longed (2 Sam. 23:15–16), and at Sychar in Samaria, where Jesus spoke about His free gift of unfailing living water.

WHEAT (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

WHEEL—a sturdy rim connected by spokes to a hub, designed to turn around on an axle passed through the center. Wheels are first mentioned in Exodus 14:25, a reference to the chariot wheels of the Egyptians.

The original wheels were probably pieces cut from wooden logs. Illustrations from Ur about 2500 B.C. show large wheels made from solid pieces of wood pegged together with crosspieces on either side of the axle. Sometimes these had a leather strip around the rim. Later, solid metal rims were used.

By about 1500 B.C., war chariots from Canaan and Egypt were equipped with spoked wheels.

The wheels of the Assyrian chariots about 900 B.C. were of much heavier construction. In order to carry the weight of an armor-bearer in addition to the driver and the armed soldier, six- and eight-spoked wheels were developed and the rims were thickened considerably over the Egyptian types. These heavy vehicles were more cumbersome to operate than the lighter models. The noise of these heavy wheels rumbling over the ground and raising huge clouds of dust signaled the approach of the enemy forces (Jer. 47:3; Nah. 3:2).

The word "wheels" is also used in reference to the four bronze wheels on each of the ten bronze carts in Solomon's temple. On each of the ten carts was a laver containing 40 baths, or about 250 gallons. First Kings 7:33 states: "The workmanship of the wheels was like the workmanship of a chariot wheel; their axle pins, their rims, their spokes, and their hubs were all of cast bronze."

WHELP—a young offspring of various carnivorous mammals, such as a dog, wolf, or lion; a puppy or cub. In the Bible the word "whelp" always refers to a lion cub and is always used figuratively, for instance, of the tribes of Judah (Gen. 49:9) and Dan (Deut. 33:22).

WHIP—an instrument for flogging, usually consisting of a rod with a lash on one end. The whip was used for driving animals or administering corporal punishment. Jesus made a whip of cords and used it to drive the moneychangers out of the temple (John 2:15). Also see SCOURGE.

WHIRLWIND—any violent storm or destructive wind. Windstorms are common in Palestine, especially in the northern Jordan River Valley and around the Sea of Galilee, because of the proximity of these bodies of water to the hot desert.

The Lord took Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind (1 Kings 2:1, 11) and answered Job out of the whirlwind (Job 38:1; 40:6). The whirlwind is often symbolic of God's wrath and destructive fury visited upon the wicked (Ps. 58:9; Nah. 1:3).

WHITE (see COLORS OF THE BIBLE).

WHITEWASH (see MINERALS OF THE BIBLE).

WHORE (see HARLOT).

WICKED ONE, THE—another name for SATAN or the DEVIL (1 John 2:13–14; 3:12; 5:18–19). In Jesus' parable of the sower, Satan (Mark 4:15) is equated with the devil (Luke 8:12) and the wicked one (Matt. 13:19). The apostle Paul also equates "the devil" (Eph. 6:11) with the wicked one (Eph. 6:16).

WICK-TRIMMER—a gold tong used to snuff out the wicks of the lamps in the tabernacle and temple (Ex. 25:38; 2 Chr. 4:21; tongs, KJV).

WIDOW—a woman whose husband has died and who has not remarried. If a man died in Bible times, his widow often suffered at the hands of the powerful (Job 24:21). This was especially true if she had no family to provide for her and her children.

God was concerned about the plight of the widow (Ps. 68:5; 146:9). Through the Mosaic Law, God provided her with the opportunity to glean in the fields, orchards, and vineyards after the harvesters had taken most of the crop (Deut. 24:19–22). She shared with the Levite in the third-year tithe (Deut. 26:12).

True believers followed the model that God had established. Job noted that he had shared his food with widows (Job 31:16). James wrote: "Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27).

WIFE—a man's marriage partner. After God created Adam, He declared, "It is not good that man should live alone" (Gen. 2:18). Then He created woman and united the couple and they became "one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). The wife is to honor her husband (Eph. 5:22), and the husband is to love his wife as Christ loved the church (Eph. 5:25–33). Also see FAMILY.

WILD ASS, WILD BEASTS, WILD BOAR, WILD DONKEY, WILD GOAT, WILD OX (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

WILDERNESS—a land not suited for farming. Wilderness land was too dry, rough, or rocky to be cultivated, but it was sufficient for grazing (Gen. 14:6; Ex. 3:18). Occasionally, the word wilderness means "desert." John the Baptist preached in the wilderness of Judea (Matt. 3:1; Luke 3:2–4), and Jesus was in the wilderness when He was tempted by the devil (Mark 1:12; Luke 4:2). In both instances a desert area is intended.

WILE—a trick or strategy intended to entice or deceive. The apostle Paul warned Christian believers to beware of "the wiles of the devil" (Eph. 6:11; schemes, NASB, NIV).

WILL—a word with two distinct meanings in the Bible:

1. Wishing, desiring, or choosing especially in reference to the will of God. In the gospels, primarily in John, Jesus is said to be acting not according to His own will, but according to the will of the heavenly Father (John 5:30; 6:38). Indeed, doing the will of the Father is Jesus' nourishment (John 4:34), and Jesus does nothing apart from the Father's will (John 5:19). Luke confirms this when he quotes Jesus' statement in the Garden of Gethsemane: "Father, if it is Your will, remove this cup from Me; nevertheless not My will, but Yours, be done" (Luke 22:42).
2. A legal declaration of how a person wishes his possessions to be disposed after his death. No written Israelite wills existed until the first century B.C. They were unnecessary because of the strict inheritance customs of the Hebrew people. Land belonged to the family, and it was passed on to the sons, the oldest receiving a double portion. If there were no sons, the land passed in the following order—daughters, brothers, father's brothers, and next of kin (Num. 27:8–11).

WILLOW (see PLANTS OF THE BIBLE).

WILLOWS, BROOK OF THE—a brook or stream mentioned by the prophet Isaiah in his proclamation against Moab (Is. 15:7). This brook was near Zoar (Is. 15:5), a city at the southern end of the Dead Sea, and was at or near the boundary between Moab and Edom. Isaiah warned that when the people of Moab fled their land, they would carry their wealth with them to this brook.

WIMPLE—KJV word for a cloth covering wound around the head, framing the face, and drawn into folds beneath the chin (Is. 3:22). Other translations are veil (KJV), mantle (NRSV), and shawl (NKJV, NIV). Also see DRESS.

WIND—the natural movement of air as a part of the weather pattern. The hot, dry climate of Palestine made the winds very important to the Hebrew people. The winds of this region included cool daytime winds, evening sea breezes bearing essential moisture, and hot blasts from the desert.

The dry north wind is the coldest wind in Palestine, blowing from June until September. Today the Arabs call this wind the simoom (from samm or “poison”). Its combined cold, wind, and heat cause headache, fever, and neuralgia. The “north wind” of Proverbs 25:23 that “brings forth rain” is really the northwest wind.

The violent east wind blows from the desert. This is the wind most often mentioned in the Bible. It scorched the grain (Gen. 41:6, 23, 27), withered the vine (Ezek. 17:9), and parched the fruit (Jon. 4:8). The east wind also brought the plague of locusts (Gen. 10:13). Blowing “from the wilderness,” it dried up the springs of water (Hos. 13:15).

Generally, all such violent gusts of wind were attributed to the east. These winds were also called winds of the wilderness. The blast that struck the home of Job’s sons and killed them was probably the east wind (Job 1:19). An east wind from God parted the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21) and shattered the ships of Tarshish (Ps. 48:7). Probably it was an east wind that wrecked Paul’s ship (Acts 27:14).

The west wind carries moisture from the Mediterranean Sea over Palestine between November and February. A west wind drove off the locusts in Egypt (Ex. 10:19). The rain-bearing west wind also ended a severe drought in the days of the prophet Elijah (1 Kin. 18:43–44).

The south wind blew Paul’s ship gently (Acts 27:13), before a fiercer wind demolished his ship. God “quiets the earth” with the south wind (Job 37:17). The Arabs call the south wind off the desert sirocco. It blows for about one day at a time during the spring (February-June).

Winds were used to separate the grain from the chaff in the winnowing process (Job 21:18; Ps. 1–4). A wind from God brought quail to Moses and his people (Num. 1:31). Squalls from the Sea of Galilee are also mentioned (Mark 4:37; Luke 8:23). But this wind and the raging waters were stilled by Jesus.

In a figurative sense, war is compared to the east wind (Jer. 18:17). The wind, or breath, is used as a metaphor for the brevity of life. Persons of uncertain faith are said to be tossed about on “every wind of doctrine” (Eph. 4:14).

WINDOW—an opening in the wall of a building. Windows varied in size, ornamentation, and style. They usually were protected by wooden latticework or grills. Some windows were large enough for a person to go through (Josh. 2:15; 1 Sam. 19:12). Windows were often spoken of symbolically in the Bible, as at the time of the flood when “the windows of heaven were opened” (Gen. 7:11). Also see HOUSE.

WINE—the fermented juice of grapes. Wine is first mentioned in the Bible when Noah became intoxicated after the Flood (Gen. 9:20–21). Wine was a common commodity in Hebrew life and was regularly included in summaries of agricultural products (Gen. 27:28; 2 Kin. 18:32; Jer. 31:12).

In Palestine, grape harvesting occurred in September and was accompanied by great celebration. The ripe fruit was gathered in baskets (Jer. 6:9) and carried to winepresses. The grapes were placed in the upper one of two vats that formed the winepress. Then the grapes were trampled or “treaded.” The treading was done by one or more people, according to the size of the vat. These grape treaders encouraged one another with shouts (Is. 16:9–10; Jer. 25:30; 48:33).

Sometimes the juice from the grapes was served in an unfermented state, but generally it was bottled after fermentation. If the wine was to be kept for some time, a substance was added to give it body (Is. 25:6). Consequently, the wine was always strained before it was served (Is. 25:6).

A watchtower, or leaf-covered wooden booth, was often built on a high place overlooking the vineyard (Mark 12:1). This booth was occupied by members of the family during the growing season to protect their crop (Job 27:18) and sometimes by a watchman during the winter. Often a cottage or hut was built in the vineyard. The family lived here during the summer to protect the grapes but abandoned the hut in the winter (Is. 1:8).

Wine was stored in either clay jars or wineskins, which were made by tying up the holes of skins taken from goats. Old wineskins could not be used a second time because the fermentation process would cause the old skins to burst and the wine would be lost (Matt. 9:17; Mark 2:22; Luke 5:36–38).

Uses of Wine. Wine was a significant trade item in Palestine. Solomon offered Hiram 20,000 baths of wine in exchange for timber (2 Chr. 2:10, 15). Damascus was a market for the “wine of Helbon” (Ezek. 27:18). Fines were sometimes paid with wine (Amos 2:8).

Wine was also used in worship. Libations to false gods were condemned (Deut. 32:27–38; Is. 57:6; 65:11; Jer. 7:18; 19:13), but the drink offering prescribed by the Law of Moses was a libation of wine offered to the Lord. The daily offering (Ex. 29:40; Num. 28:7), the offering of the FIRSTFRUITS (Lev. 23:13), the burnt offering, and the freewill offering (Num. 15:4) required one-fourth of a hin of wine. The sacrifice of a ram was accompanied by a hin of wine (Num. 15:6–7). In the temple organization set up by David, Levites were appointed to supervise these wine offerings (1 Chr. 9:29).

Wine was also used as a common beverage, or drink, in Palestine. A part of the daily fare of the Hebrew people, wine was a creation of the Lord to cheer the heart (Ps. 104:15), a gift given by Him and not by Baal (Hos. 2:8), as the idol worshiper thought.

Wisdom is said to have mixed her wine (Prov. 9:2) in furnishing her table. Wine might be drunk with milk (Song 5:1). Melchizedek brought wine and bread to Abraham when Abraham returned from battle (Gen. 14:18). Wine was offered by the old man of Gibeah to the traveling Levite (Judg. 19:19). Jesse sent David with bread, a skin of wine, and a young goat as a present when Saul was fighting the Philistines (1 Sam. 16:20). Abigail brought David two skins of wine (1 Sam. 25:18).

The tribes of Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali brought wine to David (1 Chr. 12:40) when David was made king. Ziba brought David wine as he fled from Absalom (2 Sam. 16:1–2). Job's children were drinking wine at their brother's house when disaster struck (Job 1:13, 18). Wine was on the list of supplies that the Persians furnished the captive Jewish people when they returned to Jerusalem (Ezra 6:9; 7:22). "And whatever they need . . . wheat, salt, wine, and oil according to the request of the priests who are in Jerusalem . . ." (6:9).

Wine was also used as medicine. It was said to revive the faint (2 Sam. 16:2) and was suitable as a sedative for people in distress (Prov. 31:6). Mixed with a drug, it was used to ease suffering (Matt. 27:34; Mark 15:23). The Samaritan poured oil and wine on the wounds of the injured traveler (Luke 10:34). The apostle Paul charged Timothy, "No longer drink only water, but use a little wine for your stomach's sake" (1 Tim. 5:23).

Misuses of Wine. The dangers of drunkenness are abundantly recognized in the Bible (Prov. 20:1; 23:29–35). Wine often enslaved the heart (Hos. 4:11). The prophets accused Israel of being overcome with wine (Is. 28:1), of drinking wine by bowlfuls (Amos 6:6), and of wanting prophets who spoke of wine (Mic. 2:11). Leaders were interested in drinking and were not concerned about the ruin of the country (Is. 5:11–12; 22:13). The list of those drunken with wine in the Bible begins with Noah and includes Lot, Nabal, and Amnon (Gen. 9:21; 1 Sam. 25:36–37; 2 Sam. 13:28).

While the use of wine continued in New Testament times, Paul admonished his readers to be filled with the Holy Spirit rather than with wine (Eph. 5:18). Wine was a basic commodity in biblical times. But there is no biblical justification for the heavy liquor traffic of modern times.

WINEBIBBERS—those who drink too much wine. The Bible warns against associating with such persons (Prov. 23:20). Jesus' enemies accused Him of being a winebibber (Matt. 11:19; Luke 7:34; drunkard, NIV). Unlike John the Baptist, who "came neither eating bread nor drinking wine" (Luke 7:33), Jesus "came eating and drinking" (Matt. 11:18). His association with those who ate and drank freely brought the rebuke of the religious leaders who had decided to get rid of Him. Also see DRUNKENNESS; WINE.

WINEPRESS—a vat in which the juice is pressed from grapes in the process of making wine (Deut. 16:13; Judg. 6:11). A winepress was made by digging a square basin in the rock (Neh. 13:15). At a slightly lower level on the slope was a second basin where the juice could be collected in clay jars or in WINESKINS for storage. Digging a winepress was a fixed part of the preparation of a vineyard (Is. 5:2; Matt. 21:33; Mark 12:1). Winepresses were owned by common people (Num. 18:27, 30; Deut. 15:14), as well as kings (Judg. 7:25; Zech. 14:10).

The time for making wine in Palestine was August and September. This was a time of joy, and the work of treading the winepress was lightened by shouts of joy (Jer. 48:33).

Egyptian art depicts men treading the winepress. In figurative language, treading the winepress was a picture of God's judgment (Lam. 1:15; Joel 3:13). The Lord is presented as coming from Edom after treading down the peoples, leaving His clothing splattered with their blood (Is. 63:2–3). This same figure occurs in the Book of Revelation. The Word of God "treads the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God" (Rev. 19:15).

Also see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE.

WINESKIN—a bag for holding and dispensing WINE, made from the skin of a goat or another animal (Job 32:19). In Bible times, wineskins were manufactured from whole animal hides.

Jesus used the analogy of wineskins to show that the Jewish legalism of the Old Testament was inflexible and outdated: "No one puts new wine into old wineskins; or else the new wine bursts the wineskins, the wine is spilled, and the wineskins are ruined" (Matt. 9:17; Mark 2:22; Luke 5:37–38). The "old wineskins" of Judaism could not contain the dynamic new faith of Christianity.

WING—a specialized organ of flight in a bird. But the word is generally used in a symbolic sense in the Bible. God is described as protecting His people "under [His] wings" (Ruth 2:12; Ps. 17:8). Jeremiah describes God's judgment of Moab in terms of a great bird of prey, an eagle swooping down on its target (Jer. 48:40; 49:22). God brought His people out of Egypt on eagle's wings (Ex. 19:4; Deut. 32:11). In the same way He will lift up the weary faithful returning from the years of CAPTIVITY in Babylon, giving them renewed strength (Is. 40:31).

WINNOWING—the process of separating the kernels of threshed grain, such as wheat or barley, from the CHAFF with a current of air. The grain and its mixture of straw and husks were thrown into the air. The kernels of wheat or barley would fall into a pile on the THRESHING

FLOOR; and the chaff, or refuse, would be blown away by the wind (Ps. 1:4). Also see AGRICULTURE.

WINNOWING FORK (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

WINTER—the season between autumn and spring. In Palestine winters usually were short and mild, but snow and hail sometimes occurred in higher elevations (Jer. 18:14). Winter is also known as the rainy season in Palestine (Song 2:11).

WINTER HOUSE—a section of the palace of King Jehoiakim exposed to the sun and used in wintertime because of its warmth (Jer. 36:22; winter apartments, REB, NIV).

WISDOM—ability to judge correctly and to follow the best course of action, based on knowledge and understanding. The apostle Paul declared that the message of the cross is foolishness to the Greeks and a stumbling block to the Jews. But to those who believe, said Paul, this "foolishness of God" is "the wisdom of God" (1 Cor. 1:18–25).

Against the wisdom of God Paul contrasted "the wisdom of this world" (1 Cor. 1:20; 3:19), "human wisdom" (1 Cor. 2:4), "the wisdom of men" (1 Cor. 2:5), "the wisdom of this age" (1 Cor. 2:6), and "man's wisdom" (1 Cor. 2:13).

The biblical concept of wisdom, therefore, is quite different from the classical view of wisdom, which sought through philosophy and human rational thought to determine the mysteries of existence and the universe. The first principle of biblical wisdom is that people should humble themselves before God in reverence and worship, obedient to His commands. This idea is found especially in the WISDOM LITERATURE: the books of Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes.

In the Old Testament, the best example of a "wise man" is King Solomon (1 Kin. 10:4, 6–8; 2 Chr. 1:7–12). And yet the same book that heaps such lavish, warm, and glowing praise upon Solomon for his reputed wisdom (1 Kin. 4:29–34) also points out how Solomon's heart turned away from the Lord (1 Kin. 11:1–13).

WISDOM LITERATURE—a type of literature, common to the peoples of the ancient world, that included ethical and philosophical works. The wisdom literature of the Old Testament consists of the books of Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes, and certain of the psalms (Psalm 1; 19; 37; 49; 104; 107; 112; 119; 127; 128; 133; 147; 148).

In general, two principal types of wisdom are found in the wisdom literature of the Old Testament—practical and speculative. Practical wisdom consists mainly of wise sayings that offer guidelines for a successful and happy life. These are maxims of commonsense insight and observation about how intelligent people should conduct themselves.

The Book of Proverbs is a good example of practical wisdom; it encourages the pursuit of wisdom and the practice of strict discipline, hard work, and high moral standards as the way to happiness and success. Proverbs is an optimistic book. It assumes that wisdom is attainable by all who seek and follow it. The book also declares that those who keep God's moral and ethical laws will be rewarded with long life, health, possessions, respect, security, and self-control.

Speculative wisdom, such as that found in the books of Job and Ecclesiastes, goes beyond practical maxims about daily conduct. It reflects upon the deeper issues of the meaning of life, the worth and value of life, and the existence of evil in the world.

The Book of Job seeks to explain the ways of God to humankind. One of the themes of the book is the suffering of the righteous and the apparent prosperity of the wicked. The answer to such questions is that the prosperity of the wicked is brief and illusory (Job 15:21–29; 24:24) while the righteous, although presently suffering, will eventually receive God's reward.

Like the Book of Proverbs, the Book of Ecclesiastes also contains rules for living and sayings of practical wisdom. But Ecclesiastes is more than a collection of discourses and observations designed to instruct people on how to conduct their lives. Because of its skeptical and pessimistic tone, the Book of Ecclesiastes is the most "philosophical" book of the Bible. As such, it must be classified among the works of speculative wisdom.

The wisdom psalms are similar in tone and content to the books of Job and Proverbs. Some of these psalms struggle with the problem of evil and sin in the world. Others give practical advice for daily living.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON (see APOCRYPHA).

WISE MEN—the men from the East who were led by a star to come to Palestine to worship the infant Christ (Matt. 2:1, 7, 16). The Greek word for wise men in this account (magoi) is rendered as “astrologers” where it occurs in the SEPTUAGINT, the Greek translation of the Old Testament (Dan. 1:20; 2:2) and as “sorcerer” in its other occurrences in the New Testament (Acts 13:6, 8).

The Greek historian Herodotus, writing in the fifth century B.C., identified the Magi as a caste of Medes who had a priestly function in the Persian Empire. In the Book of Daniel the “astrologers” (magoi) are grouped with magicians, sorcerers, and Chaldeans as advisers to the court of Babylon with responsibility for interpreting dreams.

The role of the star in Matthew 2 suggests a connection with astrology. These astrologers, pursuing their observations of the stars in the heavens, encountered a sign of God (Matt. 24:29–30). God broke through their misguided system to make the great event known.

The joy, rejoicing, worship, and gifts that mark the response of these wise men to the birth of Jesus is quite a contrast to the troubled state and murderous intent of Herod and his advisers in Jerusalem (Matt. 2:1–12).

WITCH, WITCHCRAFT (see MAGIC, SORCERY, AND DIVINATION).

WITHERED HAND (see DISABILITIES AND DEFORMITIES).

WITNESS—a person who gives testimony; testimony given for or against someone, often in a law-court setting, where there is considerable concern for the truth of the testimony. “You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor” (Ex. 20:16; Deut. 17:6; Prov. 25:18).

A witness can also be a guarantee of the accuracy of a transaction (Jer. 32:10, 12, 25, 44). The Old Testament prophets often pictured God either as bearing witness against Israel (Mic. 1:2) or as challenging Israel to bear witness against Him (Mic. 6:3). God is also seen in the Old Testament as witnessing covenants between individuals (Gen. 31:50) as well as covenants between Himself and the nation of Israel or individuals (Deut. 31:19–26).

In addition to these general uses, witness is also used in connection with the distinctively religious message of the Bible. God witnesses to the believer about His assurance of salvation: “The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God” (Rom. 8:16).

The Bible also declares that God has not left Himself without witness (Acts 14:17). Witness to Christ is borne by the prophets (Acts 10:43), John the Baptist (John 1:7), the Father (John 5:37; 8:18), the works of Christ (John 5:36; 10:37–38), and Christ Himself (John 8:18).

The believer’s life and word also serve as a witness to the world. Sometimes this witness to the world is represented in the witness of the apostles, who are Christ’s special witnesses—witnesses of His resurrection (Acts 1:22; 2:32; 10:41; 13:31). However, the command to witness in Acts 1:8 has implications for all believers. It applies to the new Christian community the similar command that was given to ancient Israel (Is. 43:10, 12). The believer’s model in witness is none other than Christ Himself (1 Tim. 6:13; Rev. 1:5).

WIZARD (see MAGIC, SORCERY, AND DIVINATION).

WOE—deep sorrow, grief, or affliction. The word “woe” is often used by the Old Testament prophets, as an exclamation expressing dismay or misfortune (Is. 3:9, 11; Jer. 10:19; Amos 5:18). In the New Testament Jesus pronounced woes on the cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida (Matt. 11:21), on the scribes, Pharisees, and lawyers (Luke 11:42–44), and on the one who betrayed Him (Mark 14:21).

WOLF (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE).

WOMAN—a female adult. However, the word “woman” is sometimes used in the Bible to refer to a weak and helpless man (Is. 3:12; 19:16).

In order to understand the Old Testament view of woman, one must turn to the Book of Genesis. When God created mankind, He created both “male and female” (Gen. 1:27; 5:2). Both were created in God’s image and both were given the responsibility of exercising authority over God’s creation. The man was created before the woman. Because the man needed companionship and a helper, God caused the man to sleep. From him He created a woman, “a helper comparable to him” (Gen. 2:18, 20). Man is incomplete without woman. Because she is called a “helper” does not imply that she is inferior to man. The same Hebrew word translated as helper is used of God in His relationship to Israel (Ps. 33:20; 70:5).

The culture that developed around the Israelites in ancient times did not always have this perspective of woman. Certain Old Testament passages tend to reflect an attitude that woman was little more than a thing and that a woman should be entirely subordinate to a man. This tendency became pronounced before the coming of Christ. One of the Jewish prayers that dated from that era declared, “I thank Thee that I am not a woman.”

Jesus lived and taught a better way—the way of love. He invited women to accompany Him and His disciples on their journeys (Luke 8:1–3). He talked with the Samaritan woman at Jacob’s Well and led her to a conversion experience (John 4). Jesus did not think it strange that Mary sat at His feet, assuming the role of a disciple; in fact, He suggested to Martha that she should do likewise (Luke 10:38–42). Although the Jews segregated the women in both temple and synagogue, the early church did not separate the congregation by sex (Acts 12:1–17; 1 Cor. 11:2–16).

The apostle Paul wrote, “There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus” (Gal. 3:28). Within the writings of Paul, however, other statements restrict women from participating in church leadership as freely as men. Women were to keep silent in church; they were to be submissive to the male leaders (1 Cor. 14:34–35; 1 Tim. 2:11–12).

How does one reconcile these two seemingly opposing views? In Galatians Paul was stating a general principle that men and women were equal, just as the slaves are equal to their masters in the sight of God. However, Paul did not require or teach that the slaveholder had to release his slaves. In the same manner, Paul requested the women to be submissive to their husbands—to preserve order within the church and to be a witness to outsiders.

Some of the finest leaders in Israel were women, in spite of the fact that the culture was male-dominated. Military victories were sometimes won because of the courage of one woman (Judges 4–5; 9:54; Esth. 4:16). God revealed His Word through PROPHETESSES (Judg. 4:4; Luke 2:36; Acts 21:9). God used Priscilla and her husband Aquila to explain “the way of God more accurately” to Apollos the preacher (Acts 18:26). The heroes of faith mentioned in Hebrews 11 include Sarah (v. 11), Moses’ mother (v. 23), and Rahab the harlot (v. 31).

WOODCUTTER, WOODWORKER (see OCCUPATIONS AND TRADES).

WOODEN IMAGES—images or idols or false gods. The Hebrew word the NKJV translates as wooden image (Ex. 34:13; Deut. 7:5; grove, KJV) is asherah. Asherah was the name the Canaanites gave to their goddess of fertility. Thus, the wooden images were idols erected in honor of her. Usually these images were tree trunks or simple poles placed next to the altar of the storm god, Baal.

The disobedience and wickedness of the Israelites is shown in their repeated opposition to the Lord’s will by bowing down to these images (1 Kin. 16:33; 2 Chr. 33:3). Their idolatry, however, did not go unpunished (1 Kin. 14:15). God’s wrath at this form of disobedience should remind His people of the necessity of tearing down all images that hinder the proper worship of the one true God.

WOOL—the thick, soft hair forming the fleece, or coat, of sheep and certain other mammals, valued as a fabric for making cloth (Deut. 22:11; Is. 51:8; Heb. 9:19). Gideon placed a fleece of wool on the threshing floor to receive a sign from the Lord (Judg. 6:37). In a country where snow was seldom seen, wool became the common symbol for whiteness and purity (Ps. 147:16). “Though your sins are like scarlet,” wrote the prophet Isaiah, “they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall be as wool” (Is. 1:18). Also see CLOTH.

WORD, THE—a theological phrase that expresses the absolute, eternal, and ultimate being of Jesus Christ (John 1:1–14; 1 John 1:1; Rev. 19:13). The Old Testament spoke of the word of God as the divine agent in the creation of the universe: “By the word of the Lord the heavens were made” (Ps. 33:6). In the New Testament, the Gospel of John declared, “And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us” (John 1:14). Through the incarnation of Christ, God has come to dwell in our midst. Through the life and ministry of Jesus, a unique and final revelation of God has been given—one superior to the revelation given through the Law and the Prophets. In Christ, the Word of God, God’s plan and purpose for mankind is clearly revealed (2 Cor. 4:4; Heb. 1:1–3). Also see LOGOS.

WORD OF GOD—the means by which God makes Himself known, declares His will, and brings about His purposes. Phrases such as “word of God,” and “word of the Lord” are applied to the commanding word of God that brought creation into existence (Genesis 1; 2 Pet. 3:5) and also destroyed that same world through the waters of the Flood (2 Pet. 3:6); to God’s announcement of an impending or future act of judgment (Ex. 9:20–21; 1 Kin. 2:27); to the word that declares God’s commitment and promises His blessing (Gen. 15:1, 4); and to a particular instruction from God (Josh. 8:27).

The term “word of God” is also used of the Ten Commandments given from Mount Sinai (Deut. 5:5); of the whole Mosaic Law (Is. 2:3); of specific parts of the Old Testament (Rom. 9:6; 1 Tim. 4:5); of a more personal communication from God (1 Sam. 3:21; 15:10); of the directive of God that set in motion John the Baptist's ministry (Luke 3:2); of Jesus' message of the kingdom of God (Luke 8:11); of the gospel as preached in the early church (Acts 4:31); and finally of the Lord Jesus Christ Himself (Rev. 19:13).

God's word is the primary means by which He is present and working in the world. He is not Himself part of this world, but He acts in it by means of His word. He becomes personally known through His word (1 Sam. 3:21). His word is powerfully creative (Ezek. 37:4) and its purposes are irresistible (Is. 55:11; Jer. 23:29). God's word is totally dependable; it represents His permanent commitment (Is. 40:8). When heard and responded to, His word meets deep needs in the human heart and provides joy, satisfaction, and confident direction that can be achieved in no other manner (Deut. 8:3; Ps. 119:162; Jer. 15:16). God's word has the power to penetrate all pretense and discern "the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12).

God's speaking of His word reaches a culmination in the sending of His Son (John 1:1, 14; Heb. 1:1–2). All that is true of God's earlier word is supremely true of Jesus. The gospel of Jesus Christ is, in a special way, the word of God as it makes known and brings into operation the reconciliation with God that is His purpose for mankind (2 Cor. 5:18–19). So central is the gospel to the purpose of God in this world that the successful spread of the gospel is the growth of the word of God (Acts 12:24).

Not only Jesus' message but also all that He is communicates God to us. He Himself is described as the Word of God (John 1:1; Rev. 19:13). Jesus brings the presence of God to a new level—the personal presence of God in the world in a human life.

WORK—physical or mental activity directed toward the accomplishment of a task; the labor by which people earn their livelihoods.

Man as created was intended to work. One of his primary tasks in the Garden of Eden was to "till [work] the ground" (Gen. 2:5). Although work was ordained by God as a blessing, it became a curse as a result of the FALL (Gen. 3:17–19). Man would now have to work for his food, and much of his produce would be frustration. The Book of Ecclesiastes teaches that work, no matter how noble and diligently pursued, is rendered meaningless in a world cursed at the Fall (Eccl. 4:4). Work in a fallen world is frequently reduced to exploitation and oppression.

Nevertheless, through redemption, work finds meaning. God ordained that six days be spent in work with one day of rest (Ex. 20:9). The people of God in the Old Testament are frequently encountered performing works in service to God, for instance, in the building of the tabernacle in the wilderness (Exodus 26) and the temple (1 Chr. 28:10). Much of the WISDOM LITERATURE of the Old Testament praises hard work (Prov. 14:23; 31:27), while it condemns and ridicules laziness (Prov. 6:6–11; 21:25). The same attitude is found in the New Testament. Paul and his associates worked (1 Cor. 4:12; 9:6), and they expected other believers to work and earn their own support (2 Thess. 3:10).

In the Bible God's mighty acts are called works. Creation (Ps. 8:3, 6; 19:1; 102:25), redemptive acts in history like the Exodus (Judg. 2:7, 10), and even wrath (Is. 28:21) are referred to as God's work. Jesus Christ's work was given to Him by His Father. His task was to accomplish redemption for us on the cross (John 4:34; 5:36; 9:4; 10:38; 15:24; 17:4).

Also see WORKS.

WORKS—acts or deeds. God's works are praised often in the Book of Psalms (Ps. 33:4; 92:5; 104:24), and Christ's works are thoroughly discussed in the Gospel of John (John 10:25–38). Human works are either good or bad, and these two categories are often mentioned together (Rom. 13:3, 12; Heb. 6:1, 10). Christians are taught to display good works (Matt. 5:16; Rev. 3:8).

On the other hand, works are viewed negatively when they are either bad in themselves, works of darkness (Rom. 13:12; Eph. 5:11), works of the flesh (Gal. 5:19), idolatry (Acts 7:41), hypocrisy (Matt. 23:3–5), or works of the law. Although works of the law are good in themselves, they do not bring salvation (Rom. 4:2, 6; Gal. 2:16). Romans 4:2 (Abraham not justified by works) and James 2:21 (Abraham justified by works) are not contradictory but complementary; works were the evidence of Abraham's faith (James 2:14–26).

Also see WORK.

WORLD—the heavens and the earth that form the universe and the place where people and animals live. Among both the Hebrew people and the Greeks the terms “world” and “earth” were used interchangeably to mean the created universe, the fruitful and habitable earth. The biblical declaration, “The earth is the Lord’s, and all its fullness, the world and those who dwell therein” (Ps. 24:1), denotes the whole of created nature.

According to the New Testament, the world was created by God’s Word, identified with Christ in John 1:1–14. John says of Christ in John 1:10, “He was in the world, and the world was made through Him.”

“World” is also associated with mankind. Christ said of His disciples, “You are the light of the world” (Matt. 5:14a). Often world is used to indicate “the men of this world” who are said to lie in wickedness (Eph. 2:2; 1 John 5:19). The men are called “the world,” not only because they compose the greater part of the world’s population, but mainly because they pursue and cherish the things of this world. The Psalmist describes these men “as having their portion in this life” (Ps. 17:14).

“World” may also denote the fleeting character of life’s riches and pleasures and the folly of making them of central importance in life. “Will a person gain anything if he wins the whole world, but loses his life?” (Matt. 16:26).

Jesus states, “You belong to the world here below but I come from above” (John 8:23). Jesus was living in this world as a sphere of habitation, but He was separated from its atmosphere that was temporal and worldly. The term “world” also denotes the condition of human affairs, with people alienated from and opposed to God. Jesus wants His followers to live in the world to serve and to witness but not get caught up in the godless pleasures and perversities of life. “I do not ask you to keep them out of the world, but I do ask you to keep them safe from the Evil One” (John 17:15).

The Old Testament world extended from Spain to Persia and from Greece to Ethiopia. The New Testament world also included the southern portions of the Roman Empire. Our world has expanded greatly since biblical times, but the final commands of Jesus to His disciples are as urgent and relevant as ever: “Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations” (Matt. 28:19–20).

WORM, WORMS (see ANIMALS OF THE BIBLE; DISEASES OF THE BIBLE).

WORMWOOD—any of several aromatic plants that yield a bitter, dark green oil (Deut. 29:18; Rev. 8:11).

WORSHIP—reverent devotion and allegiance pledged to God; the rituals or ceremonies by which this reverence is expressed. The English word "worship" comes from the Old English word "worthship," a word that denotes the worthiness of the one receiving the special honor or devotion.

In Old Testament times Abraham built altars to the Lord and called on His name (Gen. 12:8; 13:18). This worship of God required no elaborate priesthood or ritual.

After God's appearance to Moses and the deliverance of the Israelites from slavery in Egypt, the foundations of Israelite ritual were laid. This worship took place in the light of history, especially the Exodus of the Hebrew people from Egypt. Through Moses, God established the form and principles of Israelite worship (Exodus 25–31; 35–40).

After the occupation of the Promised Land, Israel's exposure to Canaanite worship affected the nation's own worship. The Old Testament reveals clearly that Israel adopted some of the practices of the pagan people around them. At various times God's people lapsed into idolatry. Some idols were placed on pedestals, and sometimes they were adorned or fastened with silver chains (Is. 40:19) or fastened with pegs lest they totter and fall (Is. 41:7). Shrines and altars were sometimes erected to these pagan gods. But such idolatry was condemned by God and His special spokesmen, the PROPHETS of the Old Testament.

New Testament worship was characterized by joy and thanksgiving because of God's gracious redemption in Christ. This early Christian worship focused on God's saving work in Jesus Christ. True worship was that which occurred under the inspiration of God's Spirit (John 4:23–24; Phil. 3:3).

The Jewish Sabbath was quickly replaced by the first day of the week as the time for weekly public worship (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 16:2); it was called the Lord's Day (Rev. 1:10). This was the occasion for celebration of the resurrection of Jesus, since He arose on the first day of the week (Mark 16:2).

At first worship services were conducted in private houses. Possibly for a time the first Christians worshiped in the synagogues as well as private homes. Some scholars believe the Jewish Christians would go to the synagogues on Saturday and to their own meeting on Sunday.

Many early Christians of Jewish background continued to follow the law and customs of their people. They observed the Sabbath and the Jewish holy days, such as the great annual festivals. However, the apostle Paul held himself free from any obligation to these and never laid an obligation to observe them on his converts (Col. 2:16). The New Testament itself contains no references to any yearly Christian festivals. The KJV mention of Easter (Acts 12:4) is a mistranslation; the NKJV has Passover.

Although the New Testament does not instruct worshipers in a specific procedure to follow in their services, several elements appear regularly in the worship practices of the early church.

Prayer apparently had a leading place in Christian worship. The letters of Paul regularly open with references to prayer for fellow Christians who are instructed to "pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17). Praise, either by individuals or in hymns sung in common, reflects the frequent use of psalms in the synagogue. Also, possible fragments of Christian hymns appear scattered through the New Testament (Acts 4:24–30; Eph. 5:14; 1 Tim. 3:16; Rev. 4:8, 11; 5:9–10, 12–13).

Lessons from the Bible to be read and studied were another part of the worship procedure of the New Testament church. Emphasis was probably given to the messianic prophecies that had been fulfilled in Jesus Christ. His teachings also received a primary place.

Prophecy, inspired preaching by one filled with the Holy Spirit, helped build up the church, the body of Christ (Ro. 12:6). Contributions were also collected on the first day of each week (1 Cor. 16:2). Other details about the worship procedures of the early Christians in New Testament times are spotty. But these elements must have been regularly included in the weekly worship service.

WORSHIP, EMPEROR (see EMPEROR WORSHIP).

WRANGLINGS—angry, noisy, or prolonged disputes or quarrels. The apostle Paul advised Timothy to withdraw from association with those given to "useless wranglings" (1 Tim. 6:5; disputings, KJV; friction, NASB, NIV). In contrast, godliness expresses itself in peace, gentleness, and contentment.

WRATH—the personal manifestation of God’s holy, moral character in judgment against sin. Wrath is neither an impersonal process nor irrational and fitful like anger. It is in no way vindictive or malicious. It is holy indignation—God’s anger directed against sin.

God’s wrath is an expression of His holy love. If God is not a God of wrath, His love is no more than frail, worthless sentimentality; the concept of mercy is meaningless; and the cross was a cruel and unnecessary experience for His Son.

The Bible declares that all people are “by nature children of wrath” (Eph. 2:3) and that “the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who suppress the truth in unrighteousness” (Rom. 1:18). Since Christians have been “justified by His blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him” (Rom. 5:9). The magnitude of God’s love is manifested in the cross, where God’s only Son experienced wrath on our behalf.

“The day of the Lord’s wrath” (Zeph. 1:18) is identical with “the great day of the Lord” (Zeph. 1:14). These terms refer to “the wrath of the Lamb” (Rev. 6:16), Jesus Christ, that will fall on the ungodly at His Second Coming.

WRITING—language symbols or characters written or imprinted on a surface with a marking instrument. Archaeological discoveries of the last century or so have revolutionized our knowledge of ancient writing methods and the materials that were used.

Development of Writing. The art of writing was practiced in the ancient world as early as 3300 B.C. This art developed through a number of stages before the use of a written alphabet emerged. Early Egyptian writing was done in HIEROGLYPHICS, or the use of symbols and pictures to represent words.

Early alphabetic inscriptions, although fragmentary and damaged, were discovered in temple ruins at Serabit el-Khadem in the Sinaitic Peninsula. These were dated at about 1500 B.C. The text was the work of laborers who had been employed to work an Egyptian turquoise mine.

Many of the signs used in this writing show a distinct resemblance to Egyptian picture writing. The signs are too few in number to serve as a full alphabet.

Later excavations at GEZER and SHECHEM yielded POTSHERDS belonging to the same period or slightly earlier. Digging at LACHISH produced inscriptions on a dagger blade. The writing had many of the same letters that were discovered at Serabit in the Sinai Peninsula. Four pieces of pottery found at Lachish, dated at about 1250 B.C., bore the same kind of writing.

From Byblos (Gebal) on the coast north of Beirut came inscriptions about kings who lived there from the thirteenth to the ninth centuries B.C.

All this evidence indicates that alphabetic writing, with a recognizable continuous script, was in use in and near Palestine at about the same time that Egyptian hieroglyphics and Babylonian cuneiform were also being used.

A calendar from the archaeological dig at Gezer is the oldest important Israelite document as well as the earliest completely intelligible Hebrew text found on Palestinian soil. It presents a “farmer’s almanac” of agricultural operations by months. This calendar has been dated to the tenth century B.C.

Another celebrated discovery was the MOABITE STONE. When it was found (1868), it was the earliest known example of the Phoenician alphabetic script. This small stela of black basalt records the story of Mesha’s wars against the kings of Israel and Judah. It is virtually the only surviving record of the ancient MOABITES and their kingdoms.

The SILOAM Inscription, carved in the tunnel connecting the Gihon Spring with the Pool of Siloam in Jerusalem, comes from the reign of King Hezekiah of Judah (about 700 B.C.). Discovered in 1880, it describes the successful junction made when opposite ends of the work were joined.

Finally, there are the LACHISH Letters discovered in 1935 and 1938. These were potsherds containing part of the military correspondence between the governor of Lachish and an officer of an Israelite outpost when Babylon’s army was overrunning the ancient world in 587–586 B.C.

The Canaanite or Old Semitic (Phoenician) alphabet was widely used among the countries between the Nile and the Euphrates Rivers. The model on which it was built probably came from Egypt. The Phoenicians exploited and perfected this alphabet, then carried it to Greece in their shipping and trading activities.

Several significant archaeological finds have yielded valuable information about ancient writing and how it developed.

The Ras Shamra Tablets. Ras Shamra is a site on the coast of northwest Syria opposite Cyprus. The site was identified as the ancient city of UGARIT, a Canaanite city that served as a gateway of commerce between Asia and the Mediterranean lands as early as about 2000 B.C. Among its buildings was an extensive library of clay tablets of cuneiform writing. The building also included a writing school for scribes. The language of most of the texts found was similar to the Hebrew language.

Several items found at this site were dictionaries and lexicons, including some written in Sumerian-Babylonian (Akkadian) and Hurrian (Horite) vocabularies. In that day Sumerian was used only by scholars; Babylonian was the diplomatic and commercial language. Inscriptions in Egyptian hieroglyphics, Hittite and Cypriot were also discovered. Commercial, medical, legal, diplomatic, and private documents were discovered, although the greatest part of the find consisted of religious writings.

The religious tablets were written in an alphabetic script of twenty-nine or thirty letters. The words are written from left to right. This evidence shows the Ugaritic alphabet was invented by people who were aware of the Phoenician or a similar alphabetic system. They adapted this system into an alphabet.

The Dead Sea Scrolls. These scrolls are the greatest archaeological discovery about the text of the Bible ever made. The earliest of them have been dated at about three centuries before Christ. The first find included two scrolls of Isaiah, the Manual of Discipline of the ESSENE community, the Habakkuk Commentary, The War Scroll, and Thanksgiving Psalms. Later finds yielded a palimpsest written in Phoenician script, fragments of the Minor Prophets, phylacteries, and parts of two letters from the Jewish revolutionary Simon Bar Kochba. In addition a copper scroll and thousands of manuscript fragments were found. Their importance includes a firsthand view of what a Hebrew scroll looked like at the beginning of the Christian era.

The Nag Hammadi Documents. An entire library of papyrus documents was accidentally discovered by peasants north of Luxor, Egypt, in 1946. These manuscripts were written in the Sahidic dialect of the Coptic language. The leather covers in which they were wrapped probably account for their excellent preservation. The find included thirteen codices with nearly 1,000 pages. They have been dated to the third and fourth centuries A.D.

Originally produced by a sect known as the GNOSTICS, these manuscripts represent a wide variety of literature, including a number of otherwise unrecorded sayings of Jesus. Many quotations are genuinely biblical. These writings show familiarity with the New Testament, but they contain little of abiding spiritual or moral value. Their understanding of the person and work of Christ is not in agreement with the teaching of the New Testament.

The Eblaite Discoveries. A group of tablets discovered beginning in 1974 represents the royal archives in a civilization that flourished in northwestern Syria around 2500 B.C. Seventy-five percent of their contents deal with economic and administrative matters. This culture rivaled those of Egypt and Sumer during the same period. The language was apparently an early form of Canaanite belonging to the same linguistic branch as Hebrew. They used the characters of Sumerian but wrote in an old Phoenician language. This discovery has helped Old Testament scholars determine the meaning of certain words in the Hebrew texts of the Old Testament.

These tablets also show that the world of the 25th century B.C. was not primitive but highly urbanized, cosmopolitan, and literate.

Study of all these ancient writings reinforces our confidence in the history and culture of the Old Testament.

WRITING MATERIALS—ancient surfaces, such as animal skins and stone, on which information was recorded in Bible times. The earliest writing materials were clay tablets or stone (Ex. 32:16; Job 19:23–24). An engraving tool or a chisel was used to write on stone, bricks, and tablets (Is. 8:1). A reed pen (3 John 13), a metal pen, or a brushlike tool was used to write on softer materials (Job 19:24; Jer. 17:1).

The ink used was black, sometimes of metallic content. Usually it was made of soot, mixed with oil and gum of balsam. This permitted erasure by a water-bearing sponge. Inkhorns were carried by scribes. Inkwells discovered at QUMRAN were of brass and earthenware.

Many materials were used throughout the ancient world to receive writing—stone, ivory, leaves, bark, wood, metals, linen, baked clay, wax, and potsherds. But the three main materials on which the text of the Bible was written were skins, papyrus, and vellum. Prepared skins were used to record state documents as early as 3000 B.C. The ancient Persians used leather as a writing material; so did the Assyrians in the eighth century B.C. Jeremiah's scroll, cut up by King Jehoiakim, was leather (Jer. 36:23).

Papyrus met the needs of the Greco-Roman world for nearly a thousand years. The Phoenicians used Egyptian papyrus in the tenth century B.C. It was easily obtained, relatively inexpensive, and durable. Unfortunately, it becomes brittle with age. The first papyrus document, an employee list, was not found until 1778. The bulk of papyrus discoveries took place near the turn of this century.

Vellum (parchment) is a material prepared from the skin of cattle, sheep, goats, and sometimes deer. However, papyrus was the preferred material for books until vellum replaced it in the fourth century A.D. (2 Tim. 4:13).

Christian Scriptures in Greek were written in capital letters, separately formed often without spaces between words. These were called uncial letters. The word uncial probably means "inch high." In the ninth century A.D. a new style known as miniscule, or cursive, came into general use. The letters were smaller and often more quickly formed than the uncial characters. The Scriptures continued to be reproduced in this smaller script until the invention of printing.

XERXES [ZURK sees]—the Greek name of AHASUERUS, the king mentioned in the Book of Esther (Esth. 1:1; 2:1; 3:1, NIV). Known as Xerxes the Great, he was the king of Persia from 486–465 B.C.

YAH [yah]—an abbreviation or contraction of JEHOVAH (Ps. 68:4; Jah, KJV).

YAHWEH, YAHWEH ELOHIM [YAH way, ell oh HEEM] (see GOD, NAMES OF).

YARMUK [YAHR muck]—a river, or WADI, on the eastern side of the Jordan River valley close to the southern end of the Sea of Galilee. The Yarmuk is not mentioned in the Bible, although numerous biblical events happened in its vicinity.

• The Yarmuk, a dry stream bed on the eastern side of the Jordan River, close to the southern end of the Sea of Galilee.

YARN—a continuous strand of twisted threads used to form cloth. In Bible times, yarn was spun on a simple hand spindle from linen and wool fiber as well as the hair of camels and goats (Ex. 35:25–26).

Lamb's wool was considered the finest for yarn, although wool from sheep kept clean from dirt and manure was especially valued for the sparkling white yarn it produced. Woolen yarn was also rubbed and bleached, and even dyed. Linen yarn was made from flax (Ex. 9:31; Judg. 2:1, 6) and was made especially into inner garments.

Most of the references to yarn in the Bible refer to the furnishings of the tabernacle—the curtains, veils, and screens—and to the clothes of the priests (Ex. 25:4; 26:36; 27:16; 38:23).

YEA—an obsolete or poetic word meaning "yes, indeed, truly" (Ps. 23:4). The word is also used to introduce a more explicit or emphatic phrase: not only so but (Ps. 19:10; 137:1).

YEAR—the period of time required for the earth to complete a single revolution around the sun. The year of the Hebrew people consisted of 12 months (1 Kin. 4:7; 1 Chr. 27:1–5). These months were based on the changing cycles of the moon. Such a year would contain about 354 days. Periodically a 13th month had to be added to the Hebrew calendar to make up for this discrepancy of time.

YEAR OF JUBILEE (see FEASTS AND FESTIVALS).

YHWH—the Hebrew name of the God of Israel, probably originally pronounced Yahweh. Eventually the Jews gave up pronouncing it, considering the name too holy for human lips. Instead they said Adonai or "Lord." This oral tradition came to be reflected in the written Greek translation of the Old Testament as kurios or "Lord," and it is often so quoted in the New Testament (Mark 1:3; Rom. 4:8). English versions of the Old Testament also tend to translate this word as "LORD." There is also a shorter form, YAH (Ps. 68:4; Is. 12:2; 26:4; 38:11). In Exodus 3:14–16 YHWH is linked with the verb hayah, "to be," probably referring to the presence of God with His people (Ex. 3:12).

YIRON [HIHR on]—a form of IRON.

YOD [yode]—the tenth letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:73–80. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter yod. The English word "jot" (Matt. 5:18) and the Greek word iota are derived from Hebrew yod. Also see ACROSTIC.

YOKE (see TOOLS OF THE BIBLE).

YOKEFELLOW—a fellow laborer of the apostle Paul (Phil. 4:3, NIV, KJV; companion, NKJV; coworkers, NRSV). The word implies one who is yoked in harness with another—the two working as a team. Various persons have been suggested as Paul's yokefellow: Luke, Epaphroditus, Barnabas, Silas, Timothy, or even Paul's wife. But the actual identity of this person is unknown.

ZAANAIM [zay ah NAY ihm]—a form of ZAANANNIM.

ZAANAN [ZAY ah nan]—a city that was apparently situated in the lowland plain of western Judah (Mic. 1:11). Also see ZENAN.

ZAANANNIM [zay uh NAN ihm]—a place on the southeastern border of the territory of Naphtali (Josh. 19:33), the same place as Zaanaim (Judg. 4:11). Near the terebinth tree at Zaanannim, which is beside Kedesh, Heber the Kenite pitched his tent. When Sisera, the commander of the army of Jabin, king of Canaan, went to sleep in the Kenite's tent, he was killed by Jael, Heber's wife, who drove a tent peg into his head (Judg. 4:21).

ZAAVAN [ZAY ah van]—a son of Ezer the Horite (Gen. 36:27).

ZABAD [ZAY bad] (gift, endowment)—the name of seven men in the Old Testament:

1. A Judahite of the family of Hezron, of the house of Jerahmeel (1 Chr. 2:36–37). Zabad was a son of Nathan and the father of Ephlal.
2. An Ephraimite of the family of Shuthelah (1 Chr. 7:21). Zabad was a son of Tahath and the father of Shuthelah.
3. One of David's mighty men (1 Chr. 11:41) and a son of Ahlai.
4. One of two servants of King Joash of Judah who conspired against their king and murdered him (2 Chr. 24:26). Zabad was the son of Shimeath the Ammonitess. He is also called Jozachar (2 Kin. 12:21).

5, 6, 7. Three Jews who were persuaded by Ezra to divorce their pagan wives (Ezra 10:27, 33, 43).

ZABBAI [ZAB ay eye]—the name of one or two men in the Old Testament:

1. One of the sons, or descendants, of Bebai (Ezra 10:28). Zabbai divorced his pagan wife after the captivity.
2. The father of a certain Baruch (Neh. 3:20). Baruch helped repair the wall of Jerusalem after the captivity. Zabbai may be the same person as Zaccai (Ezra 2:9; Neh. 7:14) or the same person as Zabbai No. 1.

ZABBUD [ZAB uhd]—one of the sons, or descendants, of Bigvai (Ezra 8:14; Zaccur, NIV). Zabbud returned from the captivity with Ezra.

ZABDI [ZAB die] (gift [of the Lord])—the name of four men in the Old Testament:

1. The grandfather of Achan (Josh. 7:1, 17–18). Achan took spoils of battle from Jericho and was responsible for Israel's defeat at AI in the days of Joshua. Zabdi is also called Zimri (1 Chr. 2:6).
2. A Benjamite mentioned in the family tree of King Saul (1 Chr. 8:19).
3. A state official in David's administration. Zabdi was custodian of the royal wine cellars (1 Chr. 27:27).
4. The grandfather of Mattaniah (Neh. 11:17). Mattaniah led a prayer of thanksgiving after the return from the captivity. Zabdi is also called Zichri (1 Chr. 9:15).

ZABDIEL [ZAB dih ehl] (my gift is God)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The father of Jashobeam, a descendant of Perez of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 27:2).

ZACCAI [ZACK cay eye]—a person whose descendants returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:9; Neh. 7:14). Also see ZABBAI No. 2.

ZACCHAEUS [zack KEY us] (pure)—a chief tax collector of Jericho who had grown rich by overtaxing the people. When Jesus visited Jericho, Zacchaeus climbed a tree in order to see Jesus (Luke 19:3). Jesus asked him to come down and then went to visit Zacchaeus as a guest. As a result of Jesus' visit, Zacchaeus became a follower of the Lord, repented of his sins, and made restitution for his wrongdoing. He gave half of his goods to the poor and restored fourfold those whom he had cheated. In associating with people like Zacchaeus, Jesus showed that He came to call sinners to repentance.

ZACHARIAH [zack ah RYE uh]—a form of ZECHARIAH.

ZACHARIAS [zack ah RYE us] (the Lord has remembered)—the name of two men in the New Testament:

1. The prophet whom the Jews "murdered between the temple and the altar" (Matt. 23:35, KJV) because he rebuked them for breaking God's commandments (Luke 11:51, KJV). This may be a reference to Zechariah, who was stoned to death in the court of the house of the Lord (2 Chr. 24:20–22).
2. The father of John the Baptist (Luke 1:13; 3:2). Zacharias was a priest of the division of Abijah. His wife, Elizabeth, was one "of the daughters of Aaron" (Luke 1:5), meaning she also was of priestly descent.

Also see ZECHARIAH.

ZADOK [ZAY dock] (just, righteous)—the name of several men in the Bible:

1. A high priest in the time of David. Zadok was a son of Ahitub (2 Sam. 8:17) and a descendant of Aaron through Eleazar (1 Chr. 24:3). During David's reign he served jointly as high priest with Abiathar (2 Sam. 8:17).

   Both Zadok and Abiathar fled from Jerusalem with David when the King's son Absalom attempted to take over the throne. They brought the ARK OF THE COVENANT out with them. After Absalom had been killed, David asked Zadok and Abiathar to urge the people to recall David to the throne (2 Sam. 19:11).

When David was dying, another of his sons, Adonijah, tried to take the throne. This time only Zadok remained faithful to the king. When David heard of the plot, he ordered Zadok and the prophet Nathan to anoint Solomon king (1 Kin. 1:7–8, 32–45).

Consequently, Abiathar was deposed and Zadok held the high priesthood alone (1 Kin. 2:26–27). In this way the high priesthood was restored to the line of Eleazar, son of Aaron.

2. The grandfather of Jotham, king of Judah (2 Kin. 15:33; 2 Chr. 27:1).
3. A high priest in Solomon's temple (1 Chr. 6:12; 9:11).
4. A valiant warrior who joined David's army at Hebron (1 Chr. 12:28).
5. A son of Baana who helped repair part of the Jerusalem wall after the captivity (Neh. 3:4). He may be the same person as No. 7.
6. A son of Immer who helped repair Jerusalem's wall (Neh. 3:29). He may be the same person as No. 9.
7. An Israelite who sealed the covenant with Nehemiah (Neh. 10:21). He may be the same person as No. 5.
8. A son of Meraioth (Neh. 11:11).
9. A scribe in the time of Nehemiah (Neh. 13:13). Zadok was appointed a treasurer over the storehouse.
10. An ancestor of Jesus (Matt. 1:14; Sadoc, KJV).

ZAIR [ZAY ihr]—a place in or near Edom where King Joram (Jehoram) of Judah camped before attacking the Edomites (2 Kin. 8:21).

ZALAPH [ZAY lahf]—the father of Hanun (Neh. 3:30). Hanun helped repair a section of the wall of Jerusalem in the time of Nehemiah.

ZALMON [ZAL muhn]—the name of a man and two mountains in the Old Testament:

1. A wooded mountain near Shechem in Samaria where Abimelech and his men cut branches from trees to burn the stronghold, or tower, of Shechem (Judg. 9:48). It may have been the southern peak of Mount Gerizim, now called Jebel Sulman.

2. One of David’s mighty men (2 Sam. 23:28). He is also called Ilai (1 Chr. 11:29).
3. A hill covered with snow where kings who were enemies of Israel were defeated (Ps. 68:14; Salmon, KJV).

ZALMONAH [zal MOAN nah]—the first desert camp of the Israelites after Mount Hor and before they reached Punon (Num. 33:41–42). Zalmonah was probably one of the desert wells or oases south of Punon, about 40 kilometers (25 miles) south of the Dead Sea.

ZALMUNNA [zal MUN nah] (see ZEBAH, ZALMUNNA).

ZAMZUMMIM [zam ZUM mem]—the Ammonite name for the people called REPHAIM (giants) by the Israelites in their narrative of the conquest of Canaan (Deut. 2:20; Zamzummims, KJV). The Zamzummin inhabited the region east of the Jordan River until they were driven out by the Ammonites.

ZANOAH [zah NO ah]—the name of two cities in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the Shephelah, or low hill country, of Judah (Josh. 15:34; Neh. 11:30), whose inhabitants repaired the wall of Jerusalem (Neh. 3:13). It has been identified as Khirbet Zanu or Zanuh, about 5 kilometers (3 miles) southeast of Beth Shemesh.
2. A city in the highlands of Judah (Josh. 15:56). Some scholars locate it about 2 kilometers (1.3 miles) northwest of Yatta (Juttah).

ZAPHNATH-PAANEAH [ZAF nath pay ah NEE ah]—the Hebrew form of the Egyptian name given to Joseph by Pharaoh when the king of Egypt raised Joseph to the rank of “prime minister” of the kingdom (Gen. 41:45; Zaphenath-paneah, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV).

ZAPHON [ZAY fun] (north)—a city situated east of the Jordan River (see Map 3, C–3), in the territory of Gad (Josh. 13:27; Judg. 12:1; northward, KJV). It is also called Shophan (Num. 32:35). Zaphon was probably a shrine of Baal-zephon, one of the chief Canaanite gods, before the city was annexed by the Hebrews.

ZARA, ZARAH [ZAY rah]—forms of ZERAH.

ZAREATHITES [ZARE ih uh thites]—a form of ZORATHITES.

ZARED [ZAY rehd]—a form of ZERED.

ZAREPHATH [ZAR eh fath]—a Phoenician coastal city situated between Tyre and Sidon (see Map 4, B–2), where the prophet Elijah lodged with a widow (1 Kin. 17:9–10; Obad. 20; Luke 4:26; Sarepta, KJV).

The widow of Zarephath showed great faith in feeding Elijah during a time of severe drought and famine. Her faith was rewarded, for her "bin of flour was not used up, nor did the jar of oil run dry" (1 Kin. 17:16).

ZARETAN [ZAR eh tan]—a city situated east of the Jordan River valley, apparently in the territory of Manasseh—although some scholars believe it was west of the river, in the territory of Ephraim (Josh. 3:16; 1 Kin. 4:12; Zartanah, KJV; 1 Kin. 7:46, Zarethan, KJV).

At Zaretan the waters of the Jordan River rose up in a heap so the people could cross over toward Jericho (Josh. 3:16).

ZARETH–SHAHAR [zay RETH SHAY hahr]—a form of ZERETH SHAHAR.

ZARETHAN [ZAHR eh than]—a form of ZARETAN.

ZARHITES [ZAR heights]—the name of two families in the Old Testament:

1. A family of Simeonites (Num. 26:13; Zerahites, NRSV).
2. A family of Judahites (Num. 26:20; Zerahites, NRSV). Achan (Josh. 7:17) and two of David's mighty men belonged to this family (1 Chr. 27:11).

ZARTANAH [ZAHR tay nah]—a form of ZARETAN.

ZATTU [ZAT two]—the founder of a family of Israelites who returned from the captivity with Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:8; Neh. 7:13). Some men of this family had married pagan wives, but Ezra convinced them to divorce these women (Ezra 10:27). The leader of this family signed the pledge of reform in Nehemiah's time (Neh. 10:14).

ZAYIN [ZIE yin]—the seventh letter of the Hebrew alphabet, used as a heading over Psalm 119:49–56. In the original Hebrew language, each of these eight verses began with the letter zayin. Also see ACROSTIC.

ZAZA [ZAY zah]—a son of Jonathan and descendant of Jerahmeel, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:33).

ZEAL, ZEALOUS—enthusiastic devotion; eager desire; single-minded allegiance (2 Sam. 21:2; 2 Kin. 10:16; 19:31). The psalmist wrote, "Zeal for Your house has eaten me up" (Ps. 69:9). When Jesus cleansed the temple, His zeal reminded the disciples of the psalmist's words (John 2:17). Even before he became a Christian, Paul was zealous toward God and the law of Moses (Acts 22:3; Phil. 3:6).

ZEALOT [ZELL uht] (devoted supporter)—a nickname given to Simon, one of Jesus' twelve apostles (Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13), perhaps to distinguish him from Simon Peter. Simon the Zealot is also called Simon the Canaanite (Matt. 10:4; Mark 3:18; Cananaean, NRSV; Simon the Zealot, REB). The Aramaic form of the name means "to be jealous" or "zealous."

Simon was given this name probably because he had been a member of a Jewish political party known as the Zealots. A Zealot was a member of a fanatical Jewish sect that militantly opposed the Roman domination of Palestine during the first century A.D. When the Jews rebelled against the Romans in A.D. 66 and tried to gain their independence, the "Zealots" were in the forefront of the revolt. They thought of themselves as following in the footsteps of men like Simeon and Levi (Gen. 34:1–31), Phinehas (Num. 25:1–13), and Elijah (1 Kin. 18:40; 19:10–14) who were devoted supporters of the Lord and His laws and who were ready to fight for them.

Like the PHARISEES, the Zealots were devoted to the Jewish law and religion. But unlike most Pharisees, they thought it was treason against God to pay tribute to the Roman emperor, since God alone was Israel's king. They were willing to fight to the death for Jewish independence.

The Zealots eventually degenerated into a group of assassins known as SICARII (Latin, daggermen). Their increasing fanaticism was one factor that provoked the Roman-Jewish war. The Zealots took control of Jerusalem in A.D. 66, a move that led to the siege of Jerusalem and its fall in A.D. 70. The last stronghold of the Zealots, the fortress of Masada, fell to the Romans in A.D. 73. Also see ZELOTES.

ZEBADIAH [zebb ah DIE ah] (the Lord has given)—the name of nine men in the Old Testament:

1. A Benjamite, one of the sons of Beriah (1 Chr. 8:15).
2. A Benjamite, one of the sons of Elpaal (1 Chr. 8:17).

3. A son of Jeroham of Gedor (1 Chr. 12:7). With his brother, Zebadiah joined David at Ziklag.
4. A gatekeeper of the sanctuary in David’s time (1 Chr. 26:2).
5. A captain of the fourth division of David’s army (1 Chr. 27:7). Zebadiah took command of this division after Asahel was killed by Abner.
6. A leader sent by King Jehoshaphat to teach the Law in the cities of Judah (2 Chr. 17:7–8).
7. A son of Ishmael in the time of King Jehoshaphat (2 Chr. 19:11).
8. A son of Michael who returned with Ezra from the captivity (Ezra 8:8).
9. A priest of the house of Immer (Ezra 10:20) who divorced his foreign wife.

ZEBAH, ZALMUNNA [ZEE bah, zal MUN nah]—two Midianite kings who were killed by the army of GIDEON (Judg. 8:5–21; Ps. 83:11). The execution of Zebah and Zalmunna was a blood revenge, because these Midianite kings had previously killed Gideon’s brothers at Tabor (Judg. 8:18–19). Gideon’s victory over Zebah and Zalmunna was a turning point for the Israelites in their struggle against the Midianites. It was long remembered in Israel (Ps. 83:11; Is. 9:4; 10:26).

ZEBAIM [zeh BAY em] (gazelles)—the home of Pochereth, whose descendants returned from the captivity (Ezra 2:57; Neh. 7:59).

ZEBEDEE [ZEBB uh dee] (gift [of the Lord])—the father of James and John, (Matt. 4:21–22; Mark 1:19–20). Apparently Zebedee’s wife was named Salome (Matt. 20:20; Mark 15:40). He was a fisherman on the Sea of Galilee, perhaps living in Capernaum or Bethsaida. Zebedee was probably wealthy since he had “hired servants” (Mark 1:20). In later references to Zebedee, he appears in the phrase “sons [or son] of Zebedee” (Matt. 10:2; Mark 10:35; Luke 5:10; John 21:2).

ZEBIDAH [zeh BUY dah]—a form of ZEBUDAH.

ZEBINA [zeh BUY nah]—a descendant of Nebo who divorced his foreign wife after the captivity (Ezra 10:43).

ZEBOIIM [zeh BOY yim]—one of the five cities of the plain in the Valley of Siddim destroyed along with Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 10:19; 14:2). The prophet Hosea used Admah and Zeboiim (Hos. 11:8; Zeboim, KJV) as examples of God's judgment on wicked cities. Many scholars believe Zeboiim was situated near the southern end of the Dead Sea in an area presently covered by water. Others believe it was located near the eastern shore of the Dead Sea.

ZEBOIM [zeh BOY yim]—the name of a town and a valley in the Old Testament:

1. A valley in Benjamite territory southeast of Michmash toward the wilderness (1 Sam. 13:18).
2. One of the towns occupied by the Benjamites after the return from the captivity (Neh. 11:34). Although the exact site is not known, it probably was in the hills bordering the Plain of Sharon, north of Lydda. Also see ZEBOIIM.

ZEBUDAH [zeh BOO dah] (gift)—the mother of Jehoiakim, king of Judah (2 Kin. 23:36; Zebidah, NASB, REB, NIV, NRSV). Zebudah was a daughter of Pedaiah of Rumah and the wife of Josiah, king of Judah.

ZEBUL [ZEE buhl]—the ruler of the city of Shechem under Abimelech (Judg. 9:28–41). When Zebul warned Abimelech of a plot to seize control of the city, Abimelech destroyed Shechem and killed its entire population. He then sowed the city's ruins with salt.

ZEBULUN [ZEBB you lun]—the name of a man and a territory in the Old Testament:

1. The tenth of Jacob's twelve sons; the sixth and last son of Leah (Gen. 30:19–20; 35:23; 1 Chr. 2:1). Zebulun had three sons: Sered, Elon, and Jahleel (Gen. 46:14; Num. 26:26–27). These are the only details about Zebulun that appear in the Bible.
2. The territory in which the tribe of Zebulun lived. The land allotted to Zebulun after the conquest of Canaan was bounded by Issachar and Manasseh on the south, by Asher on the west, and by Naphtali on the north and east (Josh. 19:10–16, 27, 34). Zebulun was fertile. It included part of the mountainous area of lower Galilee and the northwest corner of the fertile Plain of Esdraelon (Valley of Jezreel).

ZEBULUN, TRIBE OF—the tribe that sprang from Zebulun, son of Jacob (Num. 1:9; Deut. 27:13; Josh. 19:10, 16; Judg. 1:30). The tribe was divided into three great families headed by Zebulun's three sons (Num. 26:26–27). At the first census taken in the wilderness, the tribe numbered 57,400 fighting men (Num. 1:30–31). The second census included 60,500 members of the tribe of Zebulun (Num. 26:27).

Zebulun played an important role in Israel's history during the period of the JUDGES. Its fighting men were an important part of Barak's force against Sisera (Judg. 4:6–10; 5:14, 18) and of Gideon's army against the Midianites (Judg. 6:35). ELON the Zebulunite judged Israel for ten years (Judg. 12:12). At Hebron, 50,000 Zebulunites joined the other tribes in proclaiming David king (1 Chr. 12:33, 40).

Although Zebulun suffered during the Assyrian wars, when Tiglath-Pileser carried away captives to Assyria (2 Kin. 15:29), Isaiah prophesied that in the future Zebulun would be greatly blessed: "The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali . . . in Galilee of the Gentiles. The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light; those who dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them a light has shined" (Is. 9:1–2). According to the Gospel of Matthew, this prophecy was fulfilled when Jesus began His Galilean ministry (Matt. 4:12–17). Nazareth, Jesus' hometown, and Cana, where He performed His first miracle, both lay in the territory of Zebulun.

ZEBULUNITE [ZEBB you lunn ite]—a member of the tribe of ZEBULUN, or one who lived within its territory. Elon the Zebulunite judged Israel for ten years (Judg. 12:11–12; Zebulonite, KJV). In the second census of Israel in the wilderness "the families of the Zebulunites" numbered 60,500 (Num. 26:27).

ZECHARIAH [zeck ah RIE a] (the Lord remembers)—the name of about thirty men in the Bible:

1. The fifteenth king of Israel (2 Kin. 14:29; 15:8, 11; Zachariah, KJV), the last of the house of Jehu. The son of Jeroboam II,

Zechariah became king when his father died. He reigned only six months (about 753/52 B.C.) before being assassinated by Shallum.

2. The father of Abi or Abijah, mother of Hezekiah (2 Kin. 18:2; Zachariah, KJV; 2 Chr. 29:1).
3. A chief of the tribe of Reuben (1 Chr. 5:7).

5. A son of Jeiel, of the tribe of Benjamin (1 Chr. 9:37), also called Zecher (1 Chr. 8:31).
6. A Levite musician in the days of David (1 Chr. 15:18).
7. A priest and musician in the days of David (1 Chr. 15:24).
8. A descendant of Levi through Kohath (1 Chr. 24:25).
9. A descendant of Levi through Merari (1 Chr. 26:11).
10. A Manassite of Gilead and the father of Iddo (1 Chr. 27:21).
11. A leader sent by King Jehoshaphat to teach the people of Judah (2 Chr. 17:7).
12. The father of Jahaziel, a Levite who encouraged Jehoshaphat against Moab (2 Chr. 20:14).
13. A son of King Jehoshaphat (2 Chr. 21:2).
14. A son of Jehoiada (2 Chr. 24:20). This Zechariah was stoned to death at the command of Joash, king of Judah (v. 21).
15. A prophet in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah (2 Chr. 26:5).
16. A Levite who helped cleanse the temple during the reign of King Hezekiah of Judah (2 Chr. 29:13).
17. A Levite who supervised temple repairs during Josiah’s reign (2 Chr. 34:12).
18. A prince of Judah in the days of Josiah (2 Chr. 35:8).
19. A prophet in the days of Ezra (Ezra 5:1; 6:14; Zech. 1:1, 7; 7:1, 8) and author of the Book of Zechariah. A leader in the restoration of the nation of Israel following the captivity, Zechariah was a contemporary of the prophet Haggai, the governor Zerubbabel, and the high priest Joshua. Zechariah himself was an important person during the period of the restoration of the community of Israel in the land of Palestine after the captivity.

The Book of Zechariah begins with a note concerning the prophet. He is named as a grandson of Iddo, one of the heads of the priestly families who returned with Zerubbabel from Babylon (Zech. 1:1, 7; also Ezra 5:1; 6:14). This means that Zechariah himself was probably a priest and that his prophetic activity was in close association with the religious center of the nation. His vision of Joshua the high priest (Zech. 3:1–5) takes on added importance, since he served as a priest in association with Joshua. Zechariah began his ministry while still a young man (Zech. 2:4) in 520 B.C., two months after Haggai completed the prophecies that are recorded in the Book of Haggai. Also see ZECHARIAH, BOOK OF.

20. A leader of the Jews who returned to Palestine with Ezra after the captivity (Ezra 8:3).
21. A son of Bebai who returned with Ezra from the captivity (Ezra 8:11).
22. A leader of Israel after the captivity (Ezra 8:16). He may be the same person as No. 20 or No. 21.
23. An Israelite who divorced his pagan wife after the return from the captivity (Ezra 10:26).
24. A man who stood with Ezra at the public reading of the law (Neh. 8:4).
25. A descendant of Perez, of the tribe of Judah (Neh. 11:4).
26. A person whose descendants lived in Jerusalem after the captivity (Neh. 11:5).
27. A priest descended from Pashhur (Neh. 11:12).
28. A Levite who led a group of musicians at the dedication of the rebuilt wall of Jerusalem (Neh. 12:35–36).
29. A priest who took part in the dedication ceremony for the rebuilt wall of Jerusalem (Neh. 12:41).
30. A son of Jeberechiah (Is. 8:2) and a witness who recorded a prophecy given to Isaiah.
31. A prophet whom the Jews stoned (Matt. 23:35; Luke 11:51). He may be the same as No. 14.

ZECHARIAH, BOOK OF—an Old Testament prophetic book that portrays the coming glory of the MESSIAH. Many scholars describe Zechariah as “the most Messianic of all the Old Testament books” because it contains eight specific references to the Messiah in its brief fourteen chapters.

Structure of the Book. The fourteen chapters of Zechariah fall naturally into two major sections: chapters 1–8, the prophet’s encouragement to the people to finish the work of rebuilding the temple, and chapters 9–14, Zechariah’s picture of Israel’s glorious future and the coming of the Messiah.

In the first section, Zechariah introduces himself as God’s prophet and calls the people to repent and turn from their evil ways. Part of their sin was their failure to finish the work of rebuilding the temple after returning from the captivity in Babylon. In a series of eight symbolic night visions that came to the prophet (1:7—6:8), Zechariah encourages the people to finish this important task. These visions are followed by a coronation scene (6:9–15), in which a high priest named Joshua is crowned as priest and king, symbolizing the Messiah who is to come. This is considered one of the classic messianic prophecies of the Old Testament.

Chapters 7 and 8 also continue another important element of the messianic hope: the One to come will reign in justice from Zion, the city of Jerusalem (8:3, 15–16).

The second major section of Zechariah's book, chapters 9–14, contains God's promises for the new age to come. Chapter 9 has a remarkable description of the manner in which the ruling Messiah will enter the city of Jerusalem: "Behold, your King is coming to you; He is just and having salvation, lowly and riding on a donkey, a colt, the foal of a donkey" (9:9). These were the words used by Matthew and John to describe Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem more than 500 years after Zechariah made this startling prediction (Matt. 21:5; John 12:15).

Other promises for the future in this section of the book include the restoration of the nation of Israel (chap. 10) and Jerusalem's deliverance from her enemies (chap. 12), as well as her purification as the holy city (chap. 13). Like the Book of Revelation, Zechariah closes on the theme of the universal reign of God. All nations will come to worship Him as He extends His rule throughout the world (chap. 14).

Authorship and Date. Most conservative scholars agree that the entire book of Zechariah was written by the prophet of that name, who identifies himself in the book's introduction as "the son of Berechiah" (1:1). But some scholars insist the second major section of the book, chapters 9–14, was written by an unknown author. These scholars believe this section was added to the book about thirty or forty years after Zechariah the prophet wrote chapters 1–8.

It is true that these two sections of the Book have their own unique characteristics. In the first section Zechariah encourages the people to finish the temple, while in the second section he is more concerned about the glorious age of the future. The language and style of these two sections of Zechariah are also quite different. And the prophecies in these two sections seem to be set in different times.

Chapters 1–8, Zechariah tells us, were delivered as prophecies "in the eighth month of the second year of Darius" (1:1), and "in the fourth year of King Darius" (7:1). These references to Darius I of Persia (ruled 522–486 B.C.) date these prophecies clearly from 520 to 518 B.C. But chapters 9–14 contain a reference to Greece (9:13), probably indicating it was written after 480 B.C., when the balance of world power was shifting from the Persians to the Greeks. How can these major differences between these two sections of the book be explained unless we accept the theory that they were written by two different people?

One possible explanation is that Zechariah was a young man when he delivered his prophecies in the first section of the book. The book itself contains a clue that this may have been the case. In one of his visions, two angels speak to one another about the prophet, referring to him as “this young man” (2:4). Thus, it is quite possible that Zechariah could have encouraged the Jewish captives in Jerusalem in the early part of his ministry and could have delivered the messages about the future, contained in the second section of the book during his final years as a prophet.

After all the evidence is examined, there is no convincing reason to dispute the traditional view that Zechariah the prophet wrote the entire book that bears his name. These prophecies were first delivered and then reduced to writing over a period of about 45 years—from 520 to 475 B.C.

As for the prophet himself, very little is known about him beyond the few facts he reveals in his book. He was a descendant, perhaps the grandson, of Iddo the priest (1:1)—one of the family leaders who returned from the captivity in Babylon (Neh. 12:16). This means that Zechariah probably was a priest as well as a prophet—an unusual circumstance because most of the prophets of Israel spoke out against the priestly class. Since he was a young man when he began to prophesy in 520 B.C., Zechariah was probably born in Babylonia while the Jewish people were in captivity. He probably returned with his family with the first wave of captives who reached Jerusalem under Zerubbabel about 538 B.C.

Historical Setting. The setting at the beginning of the Book is the same as the setting of the Book of Haggai. The prophet Haggai spoke directly to the issue of the rebuilding of the temple, encouraging those who returned from captivity in Babylon to finish the task. Zechariah spoke to that issue as well, according to the Book of Ezra (Ezra 5:1). But Zechariah wished to bring about a complete spiritual renewal through faith and hope in God. He spoke about the nature of God's Law and of the hope that God promised to those who were faithful to Him.

The second portion of Zechariah was written in the period between the times of the prophets Haggai (520 B.C.) and Malachi (450 B.C.). The Persian Empire was ruled by two great kings during these years, Darius I (522–486 B.C.) and Xerxes I (485–465 B.C.). This was a period when the Jewish people in Jerusalem were settled in their new land with a walled city and their beloved temple. But they were unhappy and dissatisfied. Some of the people had expected that Zerubbabel, governor of Jerusalem, might be the Messiah, but this had proven to be false. The people needed a new word concerning God's future for them. This message from God was given in a most dramatic fashion by the great prophet Zechariah.

Theological Contribution. One of the greatest contributions of the Book of Zechariah is the merger of the best from the priestly and prophetic elements in Israel's history. Zechariah realized the need for both these elements in an authentic faith. He called the people to turn from their sins. He also realized that the temple and religious ritual played an important role in keeping the people close to God. Because he brought these elements together in his own ministry, Zechariah helped prepare the way for the Christian community's understanding of Christ as both priest and prophet.

Zechariah is also noted for his development of an apocalyptic-prophetic style—highly symbolized and visionary language concerning the events of the end-time. In this, his writing resembles the Books of Daniel and Revelation. The visions of lampstands and olive trees, horsemen and chariots, measuring lines and horns place him and these other two books in a class by themselves. Zechariah also has a great deal to say about the concept of God as warrior. While this was a well-established image among biblical writers, Zechariah ties this idea to the concept of the Day of the Lord (see Joel 2). His description of the return of Christ to earth as the great Warrior in the Day of the Lord (14:1–9) is one of the most stirring prophecies of the Old Testament.

On that day, according to Zechariah, Christ will place His feet on the Mount of Olives, causing violent changes throughout the land (14:3–4). The day will be changed to darkness and the darkness to light (14:5–8).

The entire world will worship Him as the Lord spreads His rule as King "over all the earth" (14:9).

Special Considerations. Zechariah 12:10 is a remarkable verse that speaks of the response of the nation of Israel to Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. It describes a day in the future when the Jewish people (the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem) will recognize the significance of the death of Jesus. This recognition will lead to mourning, repentance, and salvation (compare Rom. 11:25–27).

But the most startling thing about this verse is the phrase, "Then they will look on Me whom they have pierced." In speaking through the prophet Zechariah, the Lord identifies Himself as the one who will be pierced. Along with Psalm 22 and Isaiah 53, these words are a wonder of inspiration as they describe the result of Jesus' death as well as the manner in which He died to deliver us from our sins. ZECHER [ZEE ker]—a form of ZECHARIAH.

ZEDAD [ZEE dad]—a place, probably a tower, on the northern boundary of Palestine (Num. 34:8; Ezek. 47:15). It has been identified with the ruins of Sadad, about 105 kilometers (65 miles) northeast of Damascus.

ZEDEKIAH [zedd eh KIE ah] (the Lord my righteousness)—the name of five men in the Old Testament:

1. A false prophet, son of Chenaanah, who advised King Ahab of Israel to attack the Syrian army at Ramoth Gilead (1 Kin. 22:11). Zedekiah's flattery and unfounded optimism proved to be lies; the king was mortally wounded in the battle.
2. The last king of Judah (597–586 B.C.). The son of Josiah, Zedekiah was successor to Jehoiachin as king (2 Kin. 24:17–20; 25:1–7; 2 Chr. 36:10–13). After Jehoiachin had reigned only three months, he was deposed and carried off to Babylonia. Nebuchadnezzar installed Zedekiah on the throne as a puppet king and made him swear an oath that he would remain loyal (2 Chr. 36:13; Ezek. 17:13). Zedekiah's original name was Mattaniah, but Nebuchadnezzar renamed him to demonstrate his authority over him and his ownership of him (2 Kin. 24:17). Although Zedekiah reigned in Jerusalem for eleven years, he was never fully accepted as their king by the people of Judah.

   Because Zedekiah was a weak and indecisive ruler, he faced constant political unrest. Almost from the first he appeared restless about his oath of loyalty to Babylon, although he reaffirmed that commitment in the fourth year of this reign (Jer. 51:59). However, he was under constant pressure from his advisors to revolt and look to Egypt for help. A new coalition composed of Edom, Moab, Ammon, and Phoenicia was forming against Babylonia and they urged Judah to join (Jer. 27:3). Adding to the general unrest was the message of false prophets who declared that the yoke of Babylon had been broken (Jeremiah 28).

In his ninth year Zedekiah revolted against Babylonia. King Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah and besieged Jerusalem. While Jerusalem was under siege, other Judean cities were falling to the Babylonians (Jer. 34:7).

The final months of the siege were desperate times for Zedekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. The king made frequent calls on the prophet Jeremiah, seeking an encouraging word from the Lord. Jeremiah's message consistently offered only one alternative: Surrender to Nebuchadnezzar in order to live in peace and save Jerusalem. To his credit, Zedekiah was not arrogant and heartless (Jer. 36:22–23). But he regarded God's prophetic word superstitiously and "did not humble himself before Jeremiah the prophet, who spoke from the mouth of the Lord" (2 Chr. 36:12).

In 586 B.C. the wall of Jerusalem was breached, and Zedekiah fled the city. The army of the Babylonians pursued the king, overtaking him in the plains of Jericho. He was brought before Nebuchadnezzar and forced to watch the slaying of his sons. Then his own eyes were put out and he was led away to Babylonia (2 Kin. 25:6–7). Zedekiah died during the years of the CAPTIVITY of the Jewish people in Babylon. His reign marked the end of the nation of Judah as an independent, self-governing country.

3. A prominent Jewish official who sealed the covenant with Nehemiah after returning from the captivity (Neh. 10:1; Zidkijah, KJV).
4. A false prophet denounced by the prophet Jeremiah (Jer. 29:21).
5. A prince of Judah, son of Hananiah, in the days of the prophet Jeremiah and Jehoiakim, king of Judah (Jer. 36:12).

ZEEB [ZEE ebb] (a wolf)—one of two princes of the Midianites defeated by the army of Gideon. The men of Ephraim beheaded Oreb and Zeeb and brought their heads to Gideon on the other side of the Jordan River (Judg. 7:25; 8:3).

ZELAH [ZEE lah]—a town in the territory of Benjamin (Josh. 18:28). Zelah was the site of the tomb of Kish, the father of King Saul. The site of this town is not known, but it probably was in the hill country northwest of Jerusalem (Josh. 18:25–28).

ZELEK [ZEE lehk]—an Ammonite, one of David's mighty men (2 Sam. 23:37; 1 Chr. 11:39).

ZELOPHEHAD [zeh LOW fee had]—a man of the tribe of Manasseh who died during the wilderness wandering, leaving five daughters. Because Zelophehad had no male heirs, his daughters—Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah—went to Moses and requested that they inherit their father's property. Moses allowed this, with one stipulation; they were to marry within their father's tribe (Num. 26:33; 27:1–11; 36:2–11).

ZELOTES [zeh LOW tees] (full of zeal)—a nickname of Simon, one of the twelve apostles of Jesus (Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13, KJV), to distinguish him from Simon Peter. Modern versions translate as the Zealot.

Also see SIMON; ZEALOT.

ZELZAH [ZEHL zah]—an unidentified site in the territory of Benjamin, near Rachel's tomb (1 Sam. 10:2). Samuel the prophet told Saul that he would receive the first of three signs from the Lord at Zelzah (1 Sam. 10:1–9). These would confirm his selection as king of Israel.

ZEMARAIM [zim ah RAY im]—the name of a city and a mountain in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the territory of Benjamin (Josh. 18:22).
2. A mountain in the hill country of Ephraim (2 Chr. 13:4). Mount Zemaraim was where Abijah, king of Judah, stood when he addressed the army of Jeroboam, king of Israel, before defeating Israel (2 Chr. 13:4–12).

ZEMARITES [ZEM ah rights]—a Canaanite tribe (Gen. 10:18; 1 Chr. 1:16), probably living in northern Phoenicia in a town now called Sumra. This town is situated on the Mediterranean coast between Arvad and Tripolis.

ZEMER [ZEE mehr]—a Phoenician city mentioned only in the NRSV (Ezek. 27:8).

ZEMIRAH [zeh MY rah]—a Benjamite of the family of Becher (1 Chr. 7:8; Zemira, KJV, REB).

ZENAN [ZEE nan]—a city of Judah in the SHEPHELAH of Lachish (Josh. 15:37). It may be the same place as Zaanan (Mic. 1:11).

ZENAS [ZEE nahs]—a Christian missionary who worked with Titus on the island of Crete (Titus 3:13). The apostle Paul called Zenas a lawyer, or a man skilled in the Jewish law, an expert in the TORAH.

According to church tradition, Zenas was the first bishop of Diospolis (Lydda) in Palestine and the author of the apocryphal Acts of Titus.

ZEPHANIAH [zeff ah NIE ah] (the Lord has hidden)—the name of four men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Maaseiah (2 Kin. 25:18; Jer. 21:1; 29:25, 29; 37:3).
2. A Levite of the family of Kohath (1 Chr. 6:36).
3. An Old Testament prophet and the author of the Book of Zephaniah (Zeph. 1:1). As God's spokesman to the southern kingdom of Judah, Zephaniah began his ministry about 627 B.C., the same year as the great prophet JEREMIAH. Zephaniah was a member of the royal house of Judah, since he traced his ancestry back to King Hezekiah. He prophesied during the reign of King Josiah (ruled 640–609 B.C.). One theme of his message was that through His judgment God would preserve a remnant, a small group of people who would continue to serve as His faithful servants in the world (Zeph. 3:8–13). Also see ZEPHANIAH, BOOK OF.
4. Father of Josiah (Zech. 6:10).

ZEPHANIAH, BOOK OF—a brief prophetic book of the Old Testament that emphasizes the certainty of God's judgment and the preservation of a remnant, a small group of people who will continue to serve as God's faithful servants in the world. The book takes its title from its author, the prophet Zephaniah, whose name means "the Lord has hidden."

Structure of the Book. Zephaniah contains only three short chapters, but these chapters are filled with some of the most vivid pictures of God's judgment to be found in the Bible. After a brief introduction of himself as God's spokesman, the prophet launches immediately into a description of God's approaching wrath. He portrays this great "day of the Lord" as a time of "trouble and distress," "darkness and gloominess," "trumpet and alarm" (1:14–15).

Zephaniah's prophecy makes it clear that the nation of Judah, as well as surrounding countries, will feel the sting of God's wrath. Judah's capital city, Jerusalem, is soundly condemned for its wickedness, rebellion, and injustice. The prophet even portrays God with searchlamps as He exposes the corruption of the city and marks it for His certain judgment (1:12).

In spite of its underlying theme of judgment and punishment, the Book of Zephaniah closes on a positive note. After God judges the wayward nations, the prophet announces He will raise up a remnant of the faithful who will continue to serve as His Covenant People in the world. The book ends with a glorious promise for the future, a time when God will "quiet you in His love" and "rejoice over you with singing" (3:17).

Authorship and Date. Scholars are in general agreement that Zephaniah the prophet wrote this book that bears his name. In his introduction (1:1), the author traces his ancestry back four generations to Hezekiah, a former king of Judah noted for his faithfulness to God. Zephaniah must have been proud that he was the great-great-grandson of this beloved ruler, who had led his people back to worship of the one true God.

The book also tells how Zephaniah the prophet ministered during the days of Josiah, a godly king who reigned over the nation of Judah from about 640 to about 609 B.C. Most scholars place the writing of the book at about 627 B.C.

Historical Setting. This book belongs to a dark period in Judah's history. About 100 years before Zephaniah's time, Judah's sister nation, the northern kingdom of Israel, had fallen to a foreign power because of its sin and idolatry. Zephaniah sensed that the same thing was about to happen to the southern kingdom of Judah—and for precisely the same reason.

Under the leadership of two successive evil kings, Manasseh and Amon, the people of Judah had fallen into worship of false gods. Zephaniah delivered his prophecy and wrote this book to warn the people of God's approaching wrath and judgment. As Zephaniah predicted, God punished His people and the surrounding pagan nations through a superior foreign power. Not even a brief religious renewal under the good king Josiah was enough to turn the tide of paganism and false worship that carried Judah toward certain destruction. Judgment came to the nation in 586 B.C., when the invading Babylonians destroyed the city of Jerusalem and carried its leading citizens into CAPTIVITY in Babylon.

Theological Contribution. The judgment of the Lord portrayed by the prophet Zephaniah springs from His nature as a God of holiness. Because God demands holiness and righteousness in His people, He will judge those who continue to sin and rebel (1:17). But the Lord also is merciful and faithful to His promise. To the committed remnant He offers encouragement and protection from the approaching dark day (2:1–3). And to the righteous He promises the final realization of the covenant He sealed with Abraham hundreds of years earlier. People of all nations will gather to worship the Lord (2:11; 3:9). His own people will be renewed in righteousness (3:11–13). And the King of kings Himself will rule in their midst (3:15).

Special Considerations. The prophet Zephaniah shows keen familiarity with the city of Jerusalem (1:10–11). Since he was a member of the royal line, he was probably a resident of Jerusalem. It must have troubled him deeply to pronounce God's prophecies of judgment against his beloved city.

One of the most beautiful passages in the book is the description of the joy of the Lord (3:8–20). His song of joy will join the happy singing of His people. The dark day of doom will not last. A happy day is coming for those who, like Zephaniah, are "hidden in the day of the Lord's anger" (2:3).

ZEPHATHAH [ZEFF ah thah] (watchtower)—a valley in the territory of Judah, near Mareshah (2 Chr. 14:10), where Asa crushed Zerah the Cushite and his army (2 Chr. 14:9–13).

ZEPHI, ZEPHO [ZEE fie, ZEE foe] (watchtower)—the third son of Eliphaz the Edomite, descended from Esau (Zepho, Gen. 36:11; Zephi, 1 Chr. 1:36).

ZEPHON [ZEE fun]—one of the seven sons of Gad and founder of a tribal family, the ZEPHONITES (Num. 26:15). He is also called Ziphion (Gen. 46:16).

ZEPHONITES [ZEFF oh nights]—a Gadite family descended from ZEPHON (Num. 26:15).

ZER [zehr] (flint, rock)—a walled city west of the Sea of Galilee (Josh. 19:35). Some scholars believe Zer was the Israelite name for Madon (Josh. 11:1; 12:19), but this is uncertain.

ZERAH [ZEE ruh] (sprout)—the name of seven men in the Old Testament:

1. An Edomite chief descended from Esau and also from Ishmael (Gen. 36:13, 17; 1 Chr. 1:37).
2. The father of Jobab (Gen. 36:33; 1 Chr. 1:44). Jobab was one of the early kings of Edom.
3. One of the twins born to Judah by Tamar, his daughter-in-law (Gen. 38:30; 46:12, Zarah, KJV; Matt. 1:3, Zara, KJV). He founded a tribal family of Judah, the ZARHITES (Num. 26:20).
4. A son of Simeon, second son of Jacob and Leah (Num. 26:13; 1 Chr. 4:24), also called Zohar (Gen. 46:10; Ex. 6:15). He was the founder of a tribal family, the ZARHITES (Num. 26:13).
5. A Gershonite Levite (1 Chr. 6:21).
6. The father of Ethni, a Levite (1 Chr. 6:41).
7. A Cushite (2 Chr. 14:9, NIV, REB), or Ethiopian (KJV, NKJV, NRSV, NASB), who led a large army against King Asa of Judah. Zerah's warriors were defeated by Asa's smaller army.

ZERAHIAH [zehr ah HIGH ah] (the Lord shines forth)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Uzzi and father of Meraioth (1 Chr. 6:6, 51–52; Ezra 7:3–4). A priest, Zerahiah was a descendant of Phinehas and an ancestor of Ezra.
2. The father of Elihoenai (Ezra 8:4).

ZERAHITES [ZEE rah heights]—a form of ZARHITES.

ZERED [ZEE red]—a brook and a valley (see Map 2, C–1) that ends at the southeastern corner of the Dead Sea (Num. 21:12; Zared, KJV; Deut. 2:13–14). Zered was south of the River Arnon, probably the Wadi el-Hesa, and was the boundary between Moab and Edom. When the Israelites crossed the Zered, they marked an end to their years of wandering in the wilderness.

ZEREDA [ZEHR eh dah]—a city of Mount Ephraim. Zereda was the birthplace or hometown of Jeroboam I, the first ruler of the northern kingdom of Israel (1 Kin. 11:26; Zeredah, NRSV, NIV, NASB).

ZEREDAH [ZEHR eh dah]—a city in the Jordan River valley where Solomon erected foundaries and where Huram (or Hiram, 1 Kin. 7:13) of Tyre, a master craftsman in metallurgy, made the great castings of bronze for Solomon’s temple (2 Chr. 4:17; Zeredathah, KJV). Also see ZEREDA.

ZERERAH [ZER eh rah]—a town in the Jordan River valley through which the Midianite army fled when defeated by Gideon and his band of 300 men (Judg. 7:22; Zererath, KJV).

ZERERATH [ZER ih rath]—a form of ZERARAH.

ZERESH [ZEE resh]—the wife of HAMAN the Agagite (Esth. 5:10, 14; 6:13). Zeresh advised Haman to satisfy his hatred for the Jews by building a gallows for Mordecai (Esth. 5:14). Later, however, when she learned that Mordecai was of Jewish descent, she warned Haman that Mordecai would prevail. She predicted Haman’s downfall.

ZERETH [ZEE reth]—the first son of Helah, the wife of Asshur (1 Chr. 4:5, 7).

ZERETH SHAHAR [zee RETH SHAY har] (splendor of the dawn)—a town in the territory of Reuben (Josh. 13:19; Zarethshahar, KJV).

ZERI [ZEE rye]—one of the ���sons of Jeduthun,” a group of Levitical singers established during the reign of David. Apparently Zeri was the head of this family after the return from the captivity (1 Chr. 25:3).

ZEROR [ZEE rohr]—an ancestor of King Saul (1 Sam. 9:1).

ZERUAH [zeh ROO ah]—the mother of Jeroboam, the first king of the northern kingdom of Israel, and wife of Nebat (1 Kin. 11:26).

ZERUBBABEL [zeh RUB uh buhl] (offspring of Babylon)—head of the tribe of Judah at the time of the return from the Babylonian CAPTIVITY; prime builder of the second temple.

Zerubbabel is a shadowy figure who emerges as the political and spiritual head of the tribe of Judah at the time of the Babylonian captivity. Zerubbabel led the first group of captives back to Jerusalem and set about rebuilding the temple on the old site. For some 20 years he was closely associated with prophets, priests, and kings until the new temple was dedicated and the Jewish sacrificial system was reestablished.

As a child of the captivity, Zerubbabel's name literally means "offspring of Babylon." He was the son of Shealtiel or Salathiel (Ezra 3:2, 8; Hag. 1:1; Matt. 1:12) and the grandson of Jehoiachin, the captive king of Judah (1 Chr. 3:17). Zerubbabel was probably Shealtiel's adopted or levirate son (1 Chr. 3:19). Whatever his blood relationship to King Jehoiachin, Zerubbabel was Jehoiachin's legal successor and heir.

A descendant of David, Zerubbabel was in the direct line of the ancestry of Jesus (Luke 3:27; Matt. 1:12). Zerubbabel apparently attained considerable status with his captors while living in Babylon. During the early reign of Darius, he was recognized as a "prince of Judah" (Ezra 1:8). Zerubbabel was probably in the king's service since he had been appointed by the Persians as governor of Judah (Hag. 1:1).

With the blessings of Cyrus (Ezra 1:1–2), Zerubbabel and Jeshua the high priest led the first band of captives back to Jerusalem (Ezra 2:2). They also returned the gold and silver vessels that NEBUCHADNEZZAR had removed from the ill-fated temple (Ezra 1:11). Almost immediately they set up an altar for burnt offerings, kept the Feast of Tabernacles, and took steps to rebuild the temple (Ezra 3:2–3, 8).

After rebuilding the temple foundation the first two years, construction came to a standstill for seventeen years. This delay came principally because of opposition from settlers in Samaria who wanted to help with the building (Ezra 4:1–2). When the offer was refused because of the Samaritans' association with heathen worship, the Samaritans disrupted the building project (Ezra 4:4). Counselors were hired who misrepresented the captives in court (Ezra 4:5), causing the Persian king to withdraw his support (Ezra 4:21). The delay in building also was due to the preoccupation of Zerubbabel and other captives with building houses for themselves (Hag. 1:2–4).

Urged by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (Ezra 5:1–2), Zerubbabel diligently resumed work on the temple in the second year of the reign of Darius Hystaspes of Persia (Hag. 1:14). This renewed effort to build the temple was a model of cooperation involving the captives, the prophets, and Persian kings (Ezra 6:14). Zerubbabel received considerable grants of money and materials from Persia (Ezra 6:5) and continuing encouragement from the prophets HAGGAI and ZECHARIAH (Ezra 5:2).

The temple was finished in four years (516/515 B.C.) and dedicated with great pomp and rejoicing (Ezra 6:16). The celebration was climaxed with the observance of the Passover (Ezra 6:19). If there was a discordant note, it likely came from older Jews who had earlier wept because the new temple lacked the splendor of Solomon's temple (Ezra 3:12).

For some mysterious reason, Zerubbabel is not mentioned in connection with the temple dedication. Neither is he mentioned after this time. Perhaps he died or retired from public life upon completion of the temple. His influence was so great, however, that historians designate the second temple as "Zerubbabel's temple."

God was apparently pleased with Zerubbabel's role in bringing the captives home and reestablishing temple worship (Ezra 3:10). On God's instructions, Haggai promised Zerubbabel a special blessing: "I will take you, Zerubbabel My servant, the son of Shealtiel, says the Lord, and will make you as a signet ring; for I have chosen you" (Hag. 2:23).

ZERUIAH [zeh roo EYE ah]—a sister, or perhaps half sister, of David (1 Chr. 2:16). Her three sons—Abishai, Joab, and Asahel—were commanders in David's army. One of her sons, ASAHEL, was killed by Abner (2 Sam. 2:17–23). Most of the references to Zeruiah, therefore, are as the mother of JOAB (2 Sam. 2:13, 8:16) and ABISHAI (1 Sam. 26:6; 2 Sam. 16:9).

ZETHAM [ZEE tham] (olive tree)—a Gershonite Levite, a descendant of Laadan (1 Chr. 23:8; 26:22).

ZETHAR [ZEE thar]—one of the seven eunuchs, or household servants, who had charge of the harem of King Ahasuerus (Xerxes) of Persia (Esth. 1:10).

ZEUS [zoose]—the principal god of the ancient Greeks, considered ruler of the heavens and father of other gods. The Romans equated Zeus with their own supreme god, Jupiter. Barnabas was called Zeus by the people after the apostle Paul performed a miraculous healing at Lystra (Acts 14:12–13; 19:35; Jupiter, KJV). The temple of Zeus at Athens was the largest in Greece. His statue at Olympia was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

ZIBA [ZIE bah]—a servant of King Saul (2 Sam. 9:2–4, 9–12; 16:1–4; 19:17, 29). When Saul and Jonathan were killed by the Philistines at Mount Gilboa, David wished to remember his promise to Jonathan and asked if any descendants of Saul still lived. Ziba answered that a son of Jonathan, Mephibosheth, lived in the house of Machir in Lo Debar (2 Sam. 9:3–6). David brought Mephibosheth to Jerusalem and decreed that he should eat bread at the king's table (vv. 10–11). He also commanded Ziba to work the land for Mephibosheth.

Years later, when Absalom revolted against David, Ziba met David with much-needed provisions. David rewarded Ziba for his faithfulness by giving him part of Mephibosheth's land (2 Sam. 19:24–30).

ZIBEON [ZIHB eh uhn]—the name of one or two men in the Old Testament:

1. A Hivite, grandfather of Aholibamah, one of Esau's wives (Gen. 36:2).
2. One of the sons of Seir the Horite (Gen. 36:20, 24, 29; 1 Chr. 1:38, 40). Zibeon was the father of two sons: Ajah and Anah (Gen. 36:24; 1 Chr. 1:40). This Zibeon may be the same person as No. 1.

ZIBIA [ZIB ih ah] (gazelle)—one of the seven sons of Shaharaim and his wife Hodesh (1 Chr. 8:9).

ZIBIAH [ZIB ih ah] (gazelle)—a woman of Beersheba who became the wife of AHAZIAH and the mother of JEHOASH or Joash—both kings of Judah (2 Kin. 12:1; 2 Chr. 24:1).

ZICHRI [ZICK rih] ([God] has remembered me)—the name of twelve men in the Old Testament:

1. One of the three sons of Izhar (Ex. 6:21).
2. The son of Shimei (1 Chr. 8:19).
3. The son of Shashak (1 Chr. 8:23).
4. The son of Jeroham (1 Chr. 8:27).
5. A Levite who lived in Jerusalem after the captivity (1 Chr. 9:15). Zichri is believed to be the same person as Zabdi (Neh. 11:17).
6. A Levite descended from Moses' son, Eliezer (1 Chr. 26:25). Zichri and his kinsmen were responsible for the treasuries in David's time (v. 26).
7. The father of Eliezer (1 Chr. 27:16). Eliezer was the officer over the Reubenites during the days of David.
8. A man of the tribe of Judah and father of Amasiah (2 Chr. 17:16). Amasiah was a captain in the army of King Jehoshaphat.
9. The father of Elishaphat (2 Chr. 23:1).
10. A "mighty man of Ephraim" who killed Maaseiah the king's son during the reign of Ahaz, king of Judah (2 Chr. 28:7).

ZIGGURAT [ZIG guh rat]—an ancient Mesopotamian temple tower consisting of a lofty pyramid-like structure built in successive stages with outside staircases and a shrine at the top.

The ziggurat was an architectural form common to the Sumerians, Babylonians, and Assyrians from about 2000 to 600 B.C. The ancient ziggurat at UR is typical of others built in this part of the world. It is a massive, solid structure with a mud-brick core and fired-brick shell. This tower originally stood to a height of about 21 meters (70 feet) above the plain, although only about 15 meters (50 feet) of the lowest platform now remains. At the summit was a shrine of Nannar, the moon god.

The ziggurat was thought to symbolize a mountain, with the temple on top bridging the gap that separates humanity from the gods. The Tower of Babel (Gen. 11:1–9) is thought by many scholars to be a ziggurat. Also see BABEL, TOWER OF.

ZIHA [ZIE hah]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. The founder or head of a family of NETHINIM (temple servants) who returned with Zerubbabel from Babylon to Palestine (Ezra 2:43; Neh. 7:46).
2. An overseer of the Nethinim in Jerusalem (Neh. 11:21).

ZIKLAG [ZIKK lag]—a city in the NEGEV (see Map 4, A–4), or southern Judah (Josh. 15:1, 31), assigned to the tribe of Simeon (Josh. 19:5; 1 Chr. 4:30). When David was pursued by Saul, he and his 600 men fled to the land of the Philistines and found sanctuary with Achish, king of Gath. Achish gave the city of Ziklag to David and his men, and it became David's military base for raids against the nomadic tribes of the Negev (1 Sam. 27:1–12). Many of Saul's followers defected to David and joined David at Ziklag (1 Chr. 12:1–22).

Ziklag is probably Tell esh-Sheriah, about 33 kilometers (20 miles) southwest of Gaza.

ZILLAH [ZIHL lah] (shadow)—the second wife of Lamech (Gen. 4:19, 22–23). She bore a son, Tubal-Cain, who was the originator of metal-working. Zillah also bore a daughter, Naamah.

ZILLETHAI [ZIHL eh thigh]—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Shimei listed in the family tree of King Saul (1 Chr. 8:20; Zilthai, KJV).
2. A captain of the tribe of Manasseh who defected to David at Ziklag (1 Chr. 12:20; Zilthai, KJV).

ZILPAH [ZILL pah]—the mother of Gad and Asher (Gen. 30:9–13; 35:26). Zilpah was one of the female slaves of Laban, the father of Leah and Rachel. When Leah married Jacob, Laban gave her Zilpah to serve as her maid (Gen. 29:24; 46:18). Later, Leah gave Zilpah to Jacob as a CONCUBINE (Gen. 30:9).

ZILTHAI [ZILL thigh]—a form of ZILLETHAI.

2. A Gershonite Levite, the father of Joah (2 Chr. 29:12).

ZIMRI [ZIMM rye] ([God is] my protection)—the name of four men and a tribe or district in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Salu, a Simeonite prince (Num. 25:14). In an outrageous move, Zimri brought a Midianite woman, COZBI, into the camp while Israel was repenting for having worshiped Baal. When PHINEHAS, the son of Eleazar, saw Zimri take her to his tent, he was enraged, took a javelin in his hand, went into Zimri’s tent, and thrust both of them through.
2. The fifth king of Israel (1 Kin. 16:8–20). Before he became king, Zimri was a servant of King Elah and commander of half of his chariots. One day, Zimri killed the drunken Elah and proclaimed himself king. When Omri, the commander of Elah’s army, heard about the assassination, he abandoned the siege of Gibbethon and besieged Tirzah, the capital city. When Zimri saw that the city was taken, he “burned the king’s house down upon himself” (1 Kin. 16:18). Zimri’s reign lasted only seven days (1 Kin. 16:15).
3. The oldest of the five sons of Zerah (1 Chr. 2:6).
   Also see ZABDI No. 1.
4. A Benjamite, son of Jehoaddah (1 Chr. 8:36) or Jarah (1 Chr. 9:42). Zimri was a descendant of King Saul and of King Saul’s son, Jonathan.
5. An unknown place or people (Jer. 25:25).

ZIN [zihn]—a wilderness (see Map 2, C–1) through which the Israelites passed on their journey to Canaan (Num. 13:21; 20:1). The Wilderness of Zin stretched along the extreme southern limits of the Promised Land (Num. 13:21).

ZINA [ZIE nah]—the second son of Shimei, a Gershonite Levite (1 Chr. 23:10; Ziza, REB, NIV). He is also called Zizah (1 Chr. 23:11).

ZION [ZIE un]—the city of David and the city of God. The designation of Zion underwent a distinct progression in its usage throughout the Bible.

The first mention of Zion in the Bible is in 2 Samuel 5:7: "David took the stronghold of Zion (that is, the City of David)." Zion, therefore, was the name of the ancient JEBUSITE fortress situated on the southeast hill of Jerusalem at the junction of the Kidron Valley and the Tyropoeon Valley. The name came to stand not only for the fortress but also for the hill on which the fortress stood. After David captured "the stronghold of Zion" by defeating the Jebusites, he called Zion "the City of David" (1 Kin. 8:1; 1 Chr. 11:5; 2 Chr. 5:2).

When Solomon built the temple on MOUNT MORIAH (a hill distinct and separate from Mount Zion), and moved the ark of the covenant there, the word "Zion" expanded in meaning to include also the temple and the temple area (Ps. 2:6; 48:2, 11–12; 132:13). It was only a short step until Zion was used as a name for the city of Jerusalem, the land of Judah, and the people of Israel as a whole (Is. 40:9; Jer. 31:12). The prophet Zechariah spoke of the sons of Zion (Zech. 9:13). By this time the word "Zion" had come to mean the entire nation of Israel.

The most important use of the word "Zion" is in a religious or theological sense. Zion is used figuratively of Israel as the people of God (Is. 60:14). The spiritual meaning of Zion is continued in the New Testament, where it is given the Christian meaning of God's spiritual kingdom, the church of God, the heavenly Jerusalem (Heb. 12:22; Rev. 14:1; Sion, KJV).

ZIOR [ZIE or]—a city in the hill country of Judah, near Hebron (Josh. 15:54).

ZIPH [ziff]—the name of two cities and two men in the Old Testament:

1. A city in the NEGEV of Judah, "toward the border of Edom in the south" (Josh. 15:24). It has been identified as present-day Khirbet ez-Zeifeh, about 40 to 48 kilometers (25 to 30 miles) southwest of the Dead Sea.
2. A city in the Maon district of Judah (Josh. 15:55). It is Tell Zif, about 6 kilometers (4 miles) southeast of Hebron. David hid from Saul in the Wilderness of Ziph, the barren desert region surrounding this city (1 Sam. 23:14–24; 26:2). Psalm 54 has traditionally been associated with this time in David's life.

3. A son of Mesha of the family of Caleb, tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:42).
4. The oldest of the four sons of Jahaleleel (1 Chr. 4:16).

ZIPHAH [ZIE fah]—a son of Jahaleleel, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:16).

ZIPHIM [ZIFF ihm]—the inhabitants of ZIPH No. 2 (Ps. 54, title, KJV).

Also see ZIPHITES.

ZIPHITES [ZIFF ights]—the inhabitants of ZIPH No. 2 (1 Sam. 23:19; 26:1; Ps. 54, title).

ZIPHRON [ZIFF run] (a stench or odor)—the northern boundary of the Promised Land, near Hazar Enan (Num. 34:9).

ZIPPOR [ZIP or] (bird, sparrow)—the father of Balak (Num. 22:2; Josh. 24:9). Balak was the king of Moab who hired BALAAM the soothsayer (Josh. 13:22) to curse Israel.

ZIPPORAH [zip POE rah] (female bird)—a daughter of Jethro, priest of Midian, and wife of Moses (Ex. 2:21–22; 4:25; 18:2–4). Their sons were Gershom and Eliezer. When the Lord sought to kill Moses because Eliezer had not been circumcised, Zipporah grabbed a sharp stone and immediately circumcised the child. She and the two sons must have returned to Jethro rather than continuing on to Egypt with Moses, because she is not mentioned again until after the EXODUS. Along with Jethro, she and her two sons visited Moses in the wilderness after the Hebrew people left Egypt (Ex. 18:1–5).

ZITHER (see MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS OF THE BIBLE).

ZITHRI [ZITH rye]—a son of Uzziel, a descendant of Levi through Kohath (Ex. 6:22; Sithri, NRSV, NIV, REB, NASB). Zithri was a cousin of Moses.

ZIV [zihv]—the eighth month of the civil year and the second month of the sacred year in the Hebrew CALENDAR (1 Kin. 6:1, 37; Zif, KJV).

ZIZ, ASCENT OF [zihz]—a steep ascent in a pass that runs from the western shore of the Dead Sea, at a point slightly north of En Gedi, into the Wilderness of Judah, toward Tekoa. Through the ascent of Ziz (2 Chr. 20:16) the allied forces of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir made their journey from En Gedi to attack the army of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah.

ZIZA [ZIE zah]—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. A son of Shiphi (1 Chr. 4:37). Ziza was one of the leaders who participated in the expansion of the tribe of Simeon toward Gedor during the reign of Hezekiah, king of Judah.
2. A son of Rehoboam, king of Judah (2 Chr. 11:20).
3. A Gershonite Levite, second son of Shimei (1 Chr. 23:10–11, REB, NIV).

Also see ZINA.

ZIZAH [ZIE zah]—a Gershonite Levite, the second son of Shimei (1 Chr. 23:11; Ziza, REB, NIV). He is also called Zina (1 Chr. 23:10).

ZOAN [ZOE ann]—an ancient city in Egypt that dates back to the time of Abraham. Built seven years after Hebron (Num. 13:22), Zoan has often been identified with one of the royal cities in northern Egypt. The Greek translation of the Old Testament identified Zoan with Tanis, a city that is sometimes associated with an ancient capital of Egypt, RAMSES (Ex. 1:11). Now many scholars identify Ramses with Qantir, while Zoan is probably the nearby San el-Hagar.

ZOAR [ZOE ahr] (little)—an ancient city (see Map 2, C–1) apparently situated on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea (Gen. 13:10), and also known as Bela (Gen. 14:2, 8). It was one of five city-states in the area, each with its own king.

Zoar figures prominently in the story of Lot and the destruction of the wicked “cities of the plain” (Gen. 13:12; 19:29). Warned to flee to the mountains, Lot sought further mercy by asking to go instead to Zoar. His reasoning was that Zoar is only a “little” city (hence its name). His request was granted and Zoar was spared, while the four other cities (Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim) were destroyed (Gen. 19:22–23, 30).

Many scholars believe the site of Zoar to be es-Safi, at the foot of the mountains of Moab, about 7 kilometers (4.5 miles) up the River Zered from where it empties into the Dead Sea.

ZOBA, ZOBAH [ZOE bah]—an Aramean kingdom situated in Syria, south of Hamath, northeast of Damascus, and east of Byblos in the Bekaa Valley between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon Mountains (see Map 4, C–1). Generally speaking, Zobah was the land between the Orontes River and the Euphrates River.

Saul fought successfully against the kings of Zobah (1 Sam. 14:47). David clashed with Hadadezer, king of Zobah (2 Sam. 8:3; 1 Chr. 18:3). When the Syrians of Damascus tried to aid Hadadezer, David slaughtered them (2 Sam. 8:5; 1 Chr. 18:5).

David took much bronze as booty from Berothai, Betah (or Tibhath), and Chun, cities of Zobah (2 Sam. 8:8; 1 Chr. 18:8). When Israel battled the Ammonites, the Ammonites hired mercenaries from Zobah (2 Sam. 10:6). Israel was caught between the Ammonites and the Syrians (2 Sam. 10:8). Israel overcame the fighting on two fronts (2 Sam. 10:9–14). The Syrians of Zobah rallied their forces under Hadadezer’s commander, Shobach, but were defeated (2 Sam. 10:15–19).

The historical background of Psalm 60 is David’s struggle against Zobah “To the Chief Musician. Set to ‘Lily of the Testimony.’ A Michtam of David. For teaching. When he fought against Mesopotamia and Syria of Zobah, and Joab returned and killed twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt.”

Later, God used Rezon, “who had fled from his lord, Hadadezer king of Zobah” (1 Kin. 11:23), to chastise Solomon (vv. 24–25).

ZOBEBAH [zoe BEE bah]—a son of Koz, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:8).

ZOHAR [ZOE har]—the name of three men in the Old Testament:

1. The father of Ephron (Gen. 23:8; 25:9), a Hittite prince from whom Abraham purchased the cave of Machpelah.
2. A son of Simeon and grandson of Jacob (Gen. 46:10). He is also called Zerah (Num. 26:13).
3. A son of Helah, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 4:7; Jezoar, KJV, REB; Izhar, NRSV, NASB).

ZOHELETH, STONE OF [ZOE heh leth]—apparently a sacred stone near EN ROGEL in Jerusalem (1 Kin. 1:9; Stone of Zoheleth, NRSV), a spring situated south of Jerusalem, just below the junction of the Kidron Valley and the Valley of Hinnom. By this Zoheleth, Adonijah, the son of David, prepared a great celebration in anticipation of being proclaimed king to succeed his father. Adonijah's ambition failed, because David named Solomon king instead.

ZOHETH [ZOE heth]—a son of Ishi (1 Chr. 4:20) and head of a family in the tribe of Judah.

ZOPHAH [ZOE fah]—a son of Helem, of the tribe of Asher (1 Chr. 7:35–36).

ZOPHAI [ZOE fie]—a son of Elkanah, a Kohathite Levite (1 Chr. 6:26). Zophai is called Zuph in 1 Samuel 1:1 and 1 Chronicles 6:35.

ZOPHAR [ZOE fer]—the third of the "friends" of Job to speak. He is called a NAAMATHITE (Job 2:11; 11:1; 20:1; 42:9), indicating he was from Naamah, in northern Arabia. Zophar's two discourses are found in Job 11:1–20 and 20:1–29. He accused Job of wickedness and hypocrisy, urged Job to turn from his rebellion, and charged that God was punishing Job far less than his sins deserved (Job 11:6).

Also see BILDAD; ELIHU; ELIPHAZ.

ZOPHIM [ZOE fihm] (watchers)—a HIGH PLACE in Moab near the northeastern end of the Dead Sea. Balak brought Balaam the soothsayer to Zophim so he could view the Israelites and curse them (Num. 23:14).

ZORAH [ZOE rah]—a city in the Shephelah, or lowland, of Judah (Josh. 15:33; Zoreah, KJV), allotted to the tribe of Dan (Josh. 19:41).

Zorah was the home of Manoah, the father of Samson (Judg. 13:2). In the time of the judges five Danites from Zorah and Eshtaol were sent to spy out Laish, a city later captured by the Danites and renamed Dan (Judges 18). Later Rehoboam strengthened the walls of Zorah (2 Chr. 11:5–12).

ZORATHITES [ZOE rath ites]—natives or inhabitants of ZORATH, a Danite city in the territory of Judah near Eshtaol (1 Chr. 2:53; Zareathites, KJV, 1 Chr. 4:2).

ZOREAH [ZOE reh ah]—a form of ZORAH.

ZORITES [ZORE ites]—descendants of Salma, of the tribe of Judah (1 Chr. 2:54). They were either the same as ZORATHITES (1 Chr. 2:53; 4:2) or inhabitants of some unknown place.

ZOROASTRIANISM [zoe roh ASS tree un ism]—the religious system founded in Persia by the prophet Zoroaster, or Zarathustra (sixth century B.C.) and set forth in the Avesta, or Zend-Avesta, but with many additions. Zoroastrianism is characterized by worship of Ahura Mazda (also known as Ormazd or Ormuzd), the Supreme Being represented as a spirit of light, truth, and goodness.

Ahura Mazda is opposed by an archrival, Ahriman (or Angra Mainyu), a spirit of darkness, falsehood, and evil. Thus the human soul becomes a seat of war between the dualistic forces of good and evil. Ahura Mazda requires people’s good deeds for help in this cosmic struggle against Ahriman. The struggle is desperate and bitter—the children of light against the children of darkness. Zoroaster taught, however, that eventually Ahura Mazda will defeat Ahriman and good will triumph over evil.

Zoroastrianism has barely survived in its homeland. Fewer than 10,000 persons in Iran (ancient Persia) practice the religion today. A larger group has survived in India under the name Parseeism. The present-day Parsees of India are descendants of Persians who moved there from Persia several centuries before the birth of Christ.

ZUAR [ZOU er]—the father of Nethaneel (Num. 1:8). Nethaneel was leader of the tribe of Issachar at the time of the Exodus.

ZUPH [zuff]—the name of a man and a district in the Old Testament:

1. An Ephraimite, an ancestor of the prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 1:1). Also see ZOPHAI.
2. A land or district northwest of Jerusalem where Saul searched for his father's lost donkeys (1 Sam. 9:5). The exact location of the land of Zuph is not known, but scholars believe this district was in the territory of EPHRAIM. The land of Zuph probably received its name from the family of No. 1 who settled in this area.

ZUR [zuhr] (rock)—the name of two men in the Old Testament:

1. A Midianite leader, the father of Cozbi (Num. 25:15). Zur was one of the five kings of Midian killed in a battle against the Hebrew people under Moses (Num. 31:8; Josh. 13:21).
2. A Benjamite, the brother of Kish, King Saul's father (1 Chr. 8:30; 9:36).

ZURIEL [ZOU rih ehl] (my rock is God)—a son of Abihail (Num. 3:35). A Levite, Zuriel was chief of the house of Merari at the time of the Exodus.

ZURISHADDAI [zou rih SHAD die] (the Almighty is my rock)—the father of Shelumiel (Num. 1:6; 2:12; 7:36, 41; 10:19). Shelumiel was the leader of the tribe of Simeon at the time of the Exodus.

ZUZIM, ZUZIMS [ZOU zim]—a primitive tribe who lived in HAM, a place east of the Jordan River between Bashan and Moab. The Zuzim were conquered by the Elamite king CHEDORLAOMER (Gen. 14:5; Zuzims, KJV). Some scholars identify the Zuzim with the Zamzummim (Deut. 2:20), a tribe of the REPHAIM living in the region later occupied by the Ammonites, but this is uncertain.

Place names are usually given as shown on the maps; sometimes they are followed by alternate names and spellings, which are set in parentheses. If a place name is not given as shown on the map, it is followed, in parentheses, by the alternate name or spelling that does appear on the map (example: Melita (Malta on map)). Where a place name refers to a large area, the index gives the location of the name. Where a name refers to a river, the index gives the source and mouth of the river.

In the index to Maps 1 through 4 and 6 through 9, major political divisions, such as countries and regions, are shown in capital letters (examples: EGYPT, PALESTINE). Cities are shown in upper and lower case as usual (example: Hebron). Geographical features are shown in italics (example: Jordan River).

The Old Testament

The First Book of Moses Called
Genesis

Genesis 1

The History of Creation

[1]In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.

[2]The earth was without form, and void; and darkness was on the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God was hovering over the face of the waters.

[3]Then God said, “Let there be light”; and there was light.

[4]And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness.

[5]God called the light Day, and the darkness He called Night. So the evening and the morning were the first day.

[6]Then God said, “Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.”

[7]Thus God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament; and it was so.

[8]And God called the firmament Heaven. So the evening and the morning were the second day.

[9]Then God said, “Let the waters under the heavens be gathered together into one place, and let the dry land appear”; and it was so.

[10]And God called the dry land Earth, and the gathering together of the waters He called Seas. And God saw that it was good.

[11]Then God said, “Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb that yields seed, and the fruit tree that yields fruit according to its kind, whose seed is in itself, on the earth”; and it was so.

[12]And the earth brought forth grass, the herb that yields seed according to its kind, and the tree that yields fruit, whose seed is in itself according to its kind. And God saw that it was good.

[13]So the evening and the morning were the third day.

[14]Then God said, “Let there be lights in the firmament of the heavens to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs and seasons, and for days and years;

[15]"and let them be for lights in the firmament of the heavens to give light on the earth"; and it was so.

[16]Then God made two great lights: the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night. He made the stars also.

[17]God set them in the firmament of the heavens to give light on the earth,

[18]and to rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness. And God saw that it was good.

[19]So the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

[20]Then God said, "Let the waters abound with an abundance of living creatures, and let birds fly above the earth across the face of the firmament of the heavens."

[21]So God created great sea creatures and every living thing that moves, with which the waters abounded, according to their kind, and every winged bird according to its kind. And God saw that it was good.

[22]And God blessed them, saying, "Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let birds multiply on the earth."

[23]So the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

[24]Then God said, "Let the earth bring forth the living creature according to its kind: cattle and creeping thing and beast of the earth, each according to its kind"; and it was so.

[25]And God made the beast of the earth according to its kind, cattle according to its kind, and everything that creeps on the earth according to its kind. And God saw that it was good.

[26]Then God said, "Let Us make man in Our image, according to Our likeness; let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over the cattle, over all the earth and over every creeping thing that creeps on the earth."

[27]So God created man in His own image; in the image of God He created him; male and female He created them.

[28]Then God blessed them, and God said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply; fill the earth and subdue it; have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over every living thing that moves on the earth."

[29]And God said, “See, I have given you every herb that yields seed which is on the face of all the earth, and every tree whose fruit yields seed; to you it shall be for food.

[30]“Also, to every beast of the earth, to every bird of the air, and to everything that creeps on the earth, in which there is life, I have given every green herb for food”; and it was so.

[31]Then God saw everything that He had made, and indeed it was very good. So the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

Genesis 2

[1]Thus the heavens and the earth, and all the host of them, were finished.

[2]And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had done, and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had done.

[3]Then God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because in it He rested from all His work which God had created and made.

4This is the history of the heavens and the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens,

[5]before any plant of the field was in the earth and before any herb of the field had grown. For the LORD God had not caused it to rain on the earth, and there was no man to till the ground;

[6]but a mist went up from the earth and watered the whole face of the ground.

[7]And the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being.

Life in God's Garden

8The LORD God planted a garden eastward in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed.

[9]And out of the ground the LORD God made every tree grow that is pleasant to the sight and good for food. The tree of life was also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

10Now a river went out of Eden to water the garden, and from there it parted and became four riverheads.

[11]The name of the first is Pishon; it is the one which skirts the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold.

[12]And the gold of that land is good. Bdellium and the onyx stone are there.

[13]The name of the second river is Gihon; it is the one which goes around the whole land of Cush.

[14]The name of the third river is Hiddekel; it is the one which goes toward the east of Assyria. The fourth river is the Euphrates.

15Then the LORD God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to tend and keep it.

16And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, “Of every tree of the garden you may freely eat;

17“but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil you shall not eat, for in the day that you eat of it you shall surely die.”

18And the LORD God said, “It is not good that man should be alone; I will make him a helper comparable to him.”

19Out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field and every bird of the air, and brought them to Adam to see what he would call them. And whatever Adam called each living creature, that was its name.

20So Adam gave names to all cattle, to the birds of the air, and to every beast of the field. But for Adam there was not found a helper comparable to him.

21And the LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall on Adam, and he slept; and He took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh in its place.

22Then the rib which the LORD God had taken from man He made into a woman, and He brought her to the man.

23And Adam said:

“This is now bone of my bones
And flesh of my flesh;
She shall be called Woman,
Because she was taken out of Man.”

24Therefore a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh.

25And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

Genesis 3

The Temptation and Fall of Man

[1]Now the serpent was more cunning than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said to the woman, “Has God indeed said, ‘You shall not eat of every tree of the garden’?”

[2]And the woman said to the serpent, “We may eat the fruit of the trees of the garden;

[3]“but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God has said, ‘You shall not eat it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die.” ’

[4]Then the serpent said to the woman, “You will not surely die.

[5]“For God knows that in the day you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil.”

[6]So when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree desirable to make one wise, she took of its fruit and ate. She also gave to her husband with her, and he ate.

[7]Then the eyes of both of them were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves coverings.

[8]And they heard the sound of the LORD God walking in the garden in the cool of the day, and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the LORD God among the trees of the garden.

[9]Then the LORD God called to Adam and said to him, “Where are you?”

[10]So he said, “I heard Your voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked; and I hid myself.”

[11]And He said, “Who told you that you were naked? Have you eaten from the tree of which I commanded you that you should not eat?”

[12]Then the man said, “The woman whom You gave to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I ate.”

[13]And the LORD God said to the woman, “What is this you have done?” The woman said, “The serpent deceived me, and I ate.”

[14]So the LORD God said to the serpent:

“Because you have done this,
You are cursed more than all cattle,
And more than every beast of the field;
On your belly you shall go,
And you shall eat dust
All the days of your life.
[15]And I will put enmity
Between you and the woman,
And between your seed and her Seed;
He shall bruise your head,
And you shall bruise His heel.”

[16]To the woman He said:

“I will greatly multiply your sorrow and your conception;
In pain you shall bring forth children;
Your desire shall be for your husband,
And he shall rule over you.”

[17]Then to Adam He said, “Because you have heeded the voice of your wife, and have eaten from the tree of which I commanded you, saying, ‘You shall not eat of it’:

“Cursed is the ground for your sake;
In toil you shall eat of it
All the days of your life.
[18]Both thorns and thistles it shall bring forth for you,
And you shall eat the herb of the field.
[19]In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread
Till you return to the ground,
For out of it you were taken;
For dust you are,
And to dust you shall return.”

[20]And Adam called his wife’s name Eve, because she was the mother of all living.

[21]Also for Adam and his wife the LORD God made tunics of skin, and clothed them.

[22]Then the LORD God said, “Behold, the man has become like one of Us, to know good and evil. And now, lest he put out his hand and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever”—

[23]therefore the LORD God sent him out of the garden of Eden to till the ground from which he was taken.

[24]So He drove out the man; and He placed cherubim at the east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to guard the way to the tree of life.

Genesis 4

Cain Murders Abel

[1]Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain, and said, “I have acquired a man from the LORD.”

[2]Then she bore again, this time his brother Abel. Now Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

[3]And in the process of time it came to pass that Cain brought an offering of the fruit of the ground to the LORD.

[4]Abel also brought of the firstborn of his flock and of their fat. And the LORD respected Abel and his offering,

[5]but He did not respect Cain and his offering. And Cain was very angry, and his countenance fell.

[6]So the LORD said to Cain, “Why are you angry? And why has your countenance fallen?

[7]“If you do well, will you not be accepted? And if you do not do well, sin lies at the door. And its desire is for you, but you should rule over it.”

[8]Now Cain talked with Abel his brother; and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother and killed him.

[9]Then the LORD said to Cain, “Where is Abel your brother?” He said, “I do not know. Am I my brother’s keeper?”

[10]And He said, “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood cries out to Me from the ground.

[11]“So now you are cursed from the earth, which has opened its mouth to receive your brother’s blood from your hand.

[12]“When you till the ground, it shall no longer yield its strength to you. A fugitive and a vagabond you shall be on the earth.”

[13]And Cain said to the LORD, “My punishment is greater than I can bear!

[14]“Surely You have driven me out this day from the face of the ground; I shall be hidden from Your face; I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond on the earth, and it will happen that anyone who finds me will kill me."

[15]And the LORD said to him, "Therefore, whoever kills Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold." And the LORD set a mark on Cain, lest anyone finding him should kill him.

The Family of Cain

[16]Then Cain went out from the presence of the LORD and dwelt in the land of Nod on the east of Eden.

[17]And Cain knew his wife, and she conceived and bore Enoch. And he built a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son—Enoch.

[18]To Enoch was born Irad; and Irad begot Mehujael, and Mehujael begot Methushael, and Methushael begot Lamech.

[19]Then Lamech took for himself two wives: the name of one was Adah, and the name of the second was Zillah.

[20]And Adah bore Jabal. He was the father of those who dwell in tents and have livestock.

[21]His brother's name was Jubal. He was the father of all those who play the harp and flute.

[22]And as for Zillah, she also bore Tubal-Cain, an instructor of every craftsman in bronze and iron. And the sister of Tubal-Cain was Naamah.

[23]Then Lamech said to his wives:

"Adah and Zillah, hear my voice;
Wives of Lamech, listen to my speech!
For I have killed a man for wounding me,
Even a young man for hurting me.
[24]If Cain shall be avenged sevenfold,
Then Lamech seventy-sevenfold."

A New Son

[25]And Adam knew his wife again, and she bore a son and named him Seth, "For God has appointed another seed for me instead of Abel, whom Cain killed."

[26]And as for Seth, to him also a son was born; and he named him Enosh. Then men began to call on the name of the LORD.

Genesis 5

The Family of Adam

[1]This is the book of the genealogy of Adam. In the day that God created man, He made him in the likeness of God.

[2]He created them male and female, and blessed them and called them Mankind in the day they were created.

[3]And Adam lived one hundred and thirty years, and begot a son in his own likeness, after his image, and named him Seth.

[4]After he begot Seth, the days of Adam were eight hundred years; and he had sons and daughters.

[5]So all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died.

[6]Seth lived one hundred and five years, and begot Enosh.

[7]After he begot Enosh, Seth lived eight hundred and seven years, and had sons and daughters.

[8]So all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years; and he died.

[9]Enosh lived ninety years, and begot Cainan.

[10]After he begot Cainan, Enosh lived eight hundred and fifteen years, and had sons and daughters.

[11]So all the days of Enosh were nine hundred and five years; and he died.

[12]Cainan lived seventy years, and begot Mahalalel.

[13]After he begot Mahalalel, Cainan lived eight hundred and forty years, and had sons and daughters.

[14]So all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years; and he died.

[15]Mahalalel lived sixty-five years, and begot Jared.

[16]After he begot Jared, Mahalalel lived eight hundred and thirty years, and had sons and daughters.

[17]So all the days of Mahalalel were eight hundred and ninety-five years; and he died.

18Jared lived one hundred and sixty-two years, and begot Enoch.

19After he begot Enoch, Jared lived eight hundred years, and had sons and daughters.

20So all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years; and he died.

21Enoch lived sixty-five years, and begot Methuselah.

22After he begot Methuselah, Enoch walked with God three hundred years, and had sons and daughters.

23So all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty-five years.

24And Enoch walked with God; and he was not, for God took him.

25Methuselah lived one hundred and eighty-seven years, and begot Lamech.

26After he begot Lamech, Methuselah lived seven hundred and eighty-two years, and had sons and daughters.

27So all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred and sixty-nine years; and he died.

28Lamech lived one hundred and eighty-two years, and had a son.

29And he called his name Noah, saying, “This one will comfort us concerning our work and the toil of our hands, because of the ground which the LORD has cursed.”

30After he begot Noah, Lamech lived five hundred and ninety-five years, and had sons and daughters.

31So all the days of Lamech were seven hundred and seventy-seven years; and he died.

32And Noah was five hundred years old, and Noah begot Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Genesis 6

The Wickedness and Judgment of Man

[1]Now it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born to them,

[2]that the sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful; and they took wives for themselves of all whom they chose.

[3]And the LORD said, "My Spirit shall not strive with man forever, for he is indeed flesh; yet his days shall be one hundred and twenty years."

[4]There were giants on the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God came in to the daughters of men and they bore children to them. Those were the mighty men who were of old, men of renown.

[5]Then the LORD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every intent of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.

[6]And the LORD was sorry that He had made man on the earth, and He was grieved in His heart.

[7]So the LORD said, "I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth, both man and beast, creeping thing and birds of the air, for I am sorry that I have made them."

[8]But Noah found grace in the eyes of the LORD.

Noah Pleases God

[9]This is the genealogy of Noah. Noah was a just man, perfect in his generations. Noah walked with God.

[10]And Noah begot three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

[11]The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence.

[12]So God looked upon the earth, and indeed it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted their way on the earth.

The Ark Prepared

[13]And God said to Noah, "The end of all flesh has come before Me, for the earth is filled with violence through them; and behold, I will destroy them with the earth.

[14]"Make yourself an ark of gopherwood; make rooms in the ark, and cover it inside and outside with pitch.

[15]"And this is how you shall make it: The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, its width fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits.

[16]"You shall make a window for the ark, and you shall finish it to a cubit from above; and set the door of the ark in its side. You shall make it with lower, second, and third decks.

[17]"And behold, I Myself am bringing floodwaters on the earth, to destroy from under heaven all flesh in which is the breath of life; everything that is on the earth shall die.

[18]"But I will establish My covenant with you; and you shall go into the ark—you, your sons, your wife, and your sons' wives with you.

[19]"And of every living thing of all flesh you shall bring two of every sort into the ark, to keep them alive with you; they shall be male and female.

[20]"Of the birds after their kind, of animals after their kind, and of every creeping thing of the earth after its kind, two of every kind will come to you to keep them alive.

[21]"And you shall take for yourself of all food that is eaten, and you shall gather it to yourself; and it shall be food for you and for them."

[22]Thus Noah did; according to all that God commanded him, so he did.

Genesis 7

The Great Flood

[1]Then the LORD said to Noah, "Come into the ark, you and all your household, because I have seen that you are righteous before Me in this generation.

[2]"You shall take with you seven each of every clean animal, a male and his female; two each of animals that are unclean, a male and his female;

[3]"also seven each of birds of the air, male and female, to keep the species alive on the face of all the earth.

[4]"For after seven more days I will cause it to rain on the earth forty days and forty nights, and I will destroy from the face of the earth all living things that I have made."

[5]And Noah did according to all that the LORD commanded him.

[6]Noah was six hundred years old when the floodwaters were on the earth.

[7]So Noah, with his sons, his wife, and his sons' wives, went into the ark because of the waters of the flood.

[8]Of clean animals, of animals that are unclean, of birds, and of everything that creeps on the earth,

[9]two by two they went into the ark to Noah, male and female, as God had commanded Noah.

[10]And it came to pass after seven days that the waters of the flood were on the earth.

[11]In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, on that day all the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened.

[12]And the rain was on the earth forty days and forty nights.

[13]On the very same day Noah and Noah's sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, and Noah's wife and the three wives of his sons with them, entered the ark—

[14]they and every beast after its kind, all cattle after their kind, every creeping thing that creeps on the earth after its kind, and every bird after its kind, every bird of every sort.

[15]And they went into the ark to Noah, two by two, of all flesh in which is the breath of life.

[16]So those that entered, male and female of all flesh, went in as God had commanded him; and the LORD shut him in.

[17]Now the flood was on the earth forty days. The waters increased and lifted up the ark, and it rose high above the earth.

[18]The waters prevailed and greatly increased on the earth, and the ark moved about on the surface of the waters.

[19]And the waters prevailed exceedingly on the earth, and all the high hills under the whole heaven were covered.

[20]The waters prevailed fifteen cubits upward, and the mountains were covered.

[21]And all flesh died that moved on the earth: birds and cattle and beasts and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth, and every man.

[22]All in whose nostrils was the breath of the spirit of life, all that was on the dry land, died.

[23]So He destroyed all living things which were on the face of the ground: both man and cattle, creeping thing and bird of the air. They were destroyed from the earth. Only Noah and those who were with him in the ark remained alive.

[24]And the waters prevailed on the earth one hundred and fifty days.

Genesis 8

Noah's Deliverance

[1]Then God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the animals that were with him in the ark. And God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters subsided.

[2]The fountains of the deep and the windows of heaven were also stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained.

[3]And the waters receded continually from the earth. At the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters decreased.

[4]Then the ark rested in the seventh month, the seventeenth day of the month, on the mountains of Ararat.

[5]And the waters decreased continually until the tenth month. In the tenth month, on the first day of the month, the tops of the mountains were seen.

[6]So it came to pass, at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made.

[7]Then he sent out a raven, which kept going to and fro until the waters had dried up from the earth.

[8]He also sent out from himself a dove, to see if the waters had receded from the face of the ground.

[9]But the dove found no resting place for the sole of her foot, and she returned into the ark to him, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth. So he put out his hand and took her, and drew her into the ark to himself.

[10]And he waited yet another seven days, and again he sent the dove out from the ark.

[11]Then the dove came to him in the evening, and behold, a freshly plucked olive leaf was in her mouth; and Noah knew that the waters had receded from the earth.

[12]So he waited yet another seven days and sent out the dove, which did not return again to him anymore.

[13]And it came to pass in the six hundred and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, that the waters were dried up from the earth; and Noah removed the covering of the ark and looked, and indeed the surface of the ground was dry.

[14]And in the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth was dried.

[15]Then God spoke to Noah, saying,

[16]“Go out of the ark, you and your wife, and your sons and your sons’ wives with you.

[17]“Bring out with you every living thing of all flesh that is with you: birds and cattle and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth, so that they may abound on the earth, and be fruitful and multiply on the earth.”

[18]So Noah went out, and his sons and his wife and his sons’ wives with him.

[19]Every animal, every creeping thing, every bird, and whatever creeps on the earth, according to their families, went out of the ark.

God’s Covenant with Creation

[20]Then Noah built an altar to the LORD, and took of every clean animal and of every clean bird, and offered burnt offerings on the altar.

[21]And the LORD smelled a soothing aroma. Then the LORD said in His heart, “I will never again curse the ground for man’s sake, although the imagination of man’s heart is evil from his youth; nor will I again destroy every living thing as I have done.

> [22]“While the earth remains,
> Seedtime and harvest,
> Cold and heat,
> Winter and summer,
> And day and night
> Shall not cease.”

Genesis 9

[1]So God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them: “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth.

[2]“And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be on every beast of the earth, on every bird of the air, on all that move on the earth, and on all the fish of the sea. They are given into your hand.

[3]“Every moving thing that lives shall be food for you. I have given you all things, even as the green herbs.

[4]“But you shall not eat flesh with its life, that is, its blood.

[5]“Surely for your lifeblood I will demand a reckoning; from the hand of every beast I will require it, and from the hand of man. From the hand of every man’s brother I will require the life of man.

> [6]“Whoever sheds man’s blood,
> By man his blood shall be shed;
> For in the image of God
> He made man.
> [7]And as for you, be fruitful and multiply;
> Bring forth abundantly in the earth
> And multiply in it.”

8Then God spoke to Noah and to his sons with him, saying:

[9]“And as for Me, behold, I establish My covenant with you and with your descendants after you,

[10]“and with every living creature that is with you: the birds, the cattle, and every beast of the earth with you, of all that go out of the ark, every beast of the earth.

[11]“Thus I establish My covenant with you: Never again shall all flesh be cut off by the waters of the flood; never again shall there be a flood to destroy the earth.”

[12]And God said: “This is the sign of the covenant which I make between Me and you, and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

[13]"I set My rainbow in the cloud, and it shall be for the sign of the covenant between Me and the earth.

[14]"It shall be, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the rainbow shall be seen in the cloud;

[15]"and I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you and every living creature of all flesh; the waters shall never again become a flood to destroy all flesh.

[16]"The rainbow shall be in the cloud, and I will look on it to remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is on the earth."

[17]And God said to Noah, "This is the sign of the covenant which I have established between Me and all flesh that is on the earth."

Noah and His Sons

[18]Now the sons of Noah who went out of the ark were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham was the father of Canaan.

[19]These three were the sons of Noah, and from these the whole earth was populated.

[20]And Noah began to be a farmer, and he planted a vineyard.

[21]Then he drank of the wine and was drunk, and became uncovered in his tent.

[22]And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brothers outside.

[23]But Shem and Japheth took a garment, laid it on both their shoulders, and went backward and covered the nakedness of their father. Their faces were turned away, and they did not see their father's nakedness.

[24]So Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done to him.

[25]Then he said:

> "Cursed be Canaan;
> A servant of servants
> He shall be to his brethren."

[26]And he said:

“Blessed be the LORD,
The God of Shem,
And may Canaan be his servant.
[27]May God enlarge Japheth,
And may he dwell in the tents of Shem;
And may Canaan be his servant.”

28And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years.

[29]So all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years; and he died.

Genesis 10

Nations Descended from Noah

[1]Now this is the genealogy of the sons of Noah: Shem, Ham, and Japheth. And sons were born to them after the flood.

[2]The sons of Japheth were Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras.

[3]The sons of Gomer were Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah.

[4]The sons of Javan were Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim.

[5]From these the coastland peoples of the Gentiles were separated into their lands, everyone according to his language, according to their families, into their nations.

[6]The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan.

[7]The sons of Cush were Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabtechah; and the sons of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan.

[8]Cush begot Nimrod; he began to be a mighty one on the earth.

[9]He was a mighty hunter before the LORD; therefore it is said, “Like Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.”

[10]And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar.

[11]From that land he went to Assyria and built Nineveh, Rehoboth Ir, Calah, [12]and Resen between Nineveh and Calah (that is the principal city).

[13]Mizraim begot Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim,

[14]Pathrusim, and Casluhim (from whom came the Philistines and Caphtorim).

[15]Canaan begot Sidon his firstborn, and Heth;

[16]the Jebusite, the Amorite, and the Girgashite;

[17]the Hivite, the Arkite, and the Sinite;

[18]the Arvadite, the Zemarite, and the Hamathite. Afterward the families of the Canaanites were dispersed.

[19]And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon as you go toward Gerar, as far as Gaza; then as you go toward Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim, as far as Lasha.

[20]These were the sons of Ham, according to their families, according to their languages, in their lands and in their nations.

[21]And children were born also to Shem, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder.

[22]The sons of Shem were Elam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud, and Aram.

[23]The sons of Aram were Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash.

[24]Arphaxad begot Salah, and Salah begot Eber.

[25]To Eber were born two sons: the name of one was Peleg, for in his days the earth was divided; and his brother's name was Joktan.

[26]Joktan begot Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah,

[27]Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah,

[28]Obal, Abimael, Sheba,

[29]Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab. All these were the sons of Joktan.

[30]And their dwelling place was from Mesha as you go toward Sephar, the mountain of the east.

[31]These were the sons of Shem, according to their families, according to their languages, in their lands, according to their nations.

[32]These were the families of the sons of Noah, according to their generations, in their nations; and from these the nations were divided on the earth after the flood.

Genesis 11

The Tower of Babel

[1]Now the whole earth had one language and one speech.

[2]And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and they dwelt there.

[3]Then they said to one another, “Come, let us make bricks and bake them thoroughly.” They had brick for stone, and they had asphalt for mortar.

[4]And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city, and a tower whose top is in the heavens; let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered abroad over the face of the whole earth.”

[5]But the LORD came down to see the city and the tower which the sons of men had built.

[6]And the LORD said, “Indeed the people are one and they all have one language, and this is what they begin to do; now nothing that they propose to do will be withheld from them.

[7]“Come, let Us go down and there confuse their language, that they may not understand one another’s speech.”

[8]So the LORD scattered them abroad from there over the face of all the earth, and they ceased building the city.

[9]Therefore its name is called Babel, because there the LORD confused the language of all the earth; and from there the LORD scattered them abroad over the face of all the earth.

Shem’s Descendants

[10]This is the genealogy of Shem: Shem was one hundred years old, and begot Arphaxad two years after the flood.

[11]After he begot Arphaxad, Shem lived five hundred years, and begot sons and daughters.

[12]Arphaxad lived thirty-five years, and begot Salah.

[13]After he begot Salah, Arphaxad lived four hundred and three years, and begot sons and daughters.

[14]Salah lived thirty years, and begot Eber.

[15]After he begot Eber, Salah lived four hundred and three years, and begot sons and daughters.

[16]Eber lived thirty-four years, and begot Peleg.

[17]After he begot Peleg, Eber lived four hundred and thirty years, and begot sons and daughters.

[18]Peleg lived thirty years, and begot Reu.

[19]After he begot Reu, Peleg lived two hundred and nine years, and begot sons and daughters.

[20]Reu lived thirty-two years, and begot Serug.

[21]After he begot Serug, Reu lived two hundred and seven years, and begot sons and daughters.

[22]Serug lived thirty years, and begot Nahor.

[23]After he begot Nahor, Serug lived two hundred years, and begot sons and daughters.

[24]Nahor lived twenty-nine years, and begot Terah.

[25]After he begot Terah, Nahor lived one hundred and nineteen years, and begot sons and daughters.

[26]Now Terah lived seventy years, and begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

Terah's Descendants

[27]This is the genealogy of Terah: Terah begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran. Haran begot Lot.

[28]And Haran died before his father Terah in his native land, in Ur of the Chaldeans.

[29]Then Abram and Nahor took wives: the name of Abram's wife was Sarai, and the name of Nahor's wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran the father of Milcah and the father of Iscah.

[30]But Sarai was barren; she had no child.

[31]And Terah took his son Abram and his grandson Lot, the son of Haran, and his daughter-in-law Sarai, his son Abram's wife, and they went out with them from Ur of the Chaldeans to go to the land of Canaan; and they came to Haran and dwelt there.

[32]So the days of Terah were two hundred and five years, and Terah died in Haran.

Genesis 12

Promises to Abram

[1]Now the LORD had said to Abram:

> “Get out of your country,
> From your family
> And from your father’s house,
> To a land that I will show you.
> [2]I will make you a great nation;
> I will bless you
> And make your name great;
> And you shall be a blessing.
> [3]I will bless those who bless you,
> And I will curse him who curses you;
> And in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.”

[4]So Abram departed as the LORD had spoken to him, and Lot went with him. And Abram was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran.

[5]Then Abram took Sarai his wife and Lot his brother’s son, and all their possessions that they had gathered, and the people whom they had acquired in Haran, and they departed to go to the land of Canaan. So they came to the land of Canaan.

[6]Abram passed through the land to the place of Shechem, as far as the terebinth tree of Moreh. And the Canaanites were then in the land.

[7]Then the LORD appeared to Abram and said, “To your descendants I will give this land.” And there he built an altar to the LORD, who had appeared to him.

[8]And he moved from there to the mountain east of Bethel, and he pitched his tent with Bethel on the west and Ai on the east; there he built an altar to the LORD and called on the name of the LORD.

[9]So Abram journeyed, going on still toward the South.

Abram in Egypt

10Now there was a famine in the land, and Abram went down to Egypt to dwell there, for the famine was severe in the land.

11And it came to pass, when he was close to entering Egypt, that he said to Sarai his wife, “Indeed I know that you are a woman of beautiful countenance.

12“Therefore it will happen, when the Egyptians see you, that they will say, ‘This is his wife’; and they will kill me, but they will let you live.

13“Please say you are my sister, that it may be well with me for your sake, and that I may live because of you.”

14So it was, when Abram came into Egypt, that the Egyptians saw the woman, that she was very beautiful.

15The princes of Pharaoh also saw her and commended her to Pharaoh. And the woman was taken to Pharaoh’s house.

16He treated Abram well for her sake. He had sheep, oxen, male donkeys, male and female servants, female donkeys, and camels.

17But the LORD plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram’s wife.

18And Pharaoh called Abram and said, “What is this you have done to me? Why did you not tell me that she was your wife?

19“Why did you say, ‘She is my sister’? I might have taken her as my wife. Now therefore, here is your wife; take her and go your way.”

20So Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him; and they sent him away, with his wife and all that he had.

Genesis 13

Abram Inherits Canaan

[1]Then Abram went up from Egypt, he and his wife and all that he had, and Lot with him, to the South.

[2]Abram was very rich in livestock, in silver, and in gold.

[3]And he went on his journey from the South as far as Bethel, to the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Bethel and Ai,

[4]to the place of the altar which he had made there at first. And there Abram called on the name of the LORD.

[5]Lot also, who went with Abram, had flocks and herds and tents.

[6]Now the land was not able to support them, that they might dwell together, for their possessions were so great that they could not dwell together.

[7]And there was strife between the herdsmen of Abram's livestock and the herdsmen of Lot's livestock. The Canaanites and the Perizzites then dwelt in the land.

[8]So Abram said to Lot, "Please let there be no strife between you and me, and between my herdsmen and your herdsmen; for we are brethren.

[9]"Is not the whole land before you? Please separate from me. If you take the left, then I will go to the right; or, if you go to the right, then I will go to the left."

[10]And Lot lifted his eyes and saw all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere (before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah) like the garden of the LORD, like the land of Egypt as you go toward Zoar.

[11]Then Lot chose for himself all the plain of Jordan, and Lot journeyed east. And they separated from each other.

[12]Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelt in the cities of the plain and pitched his tent even as far as Sodom.

[13]But the men of Sodom were exceedingly wicked and sinful against the LORD.

[14]And the LORD said to Abram, after Lot had separated from him: "Lift your eyes now and look from the place where you are—northward, southward, eastward, and westward;

[15]"for all the land which you see I give to you and your descendants forever.

[16]"And I will make your descendants as the dust of the earth; so that if a man could number the dust of the earth, then your descendants also could be numbered.

[17]"Arise, walk in the land through its length and its width, for I give it to you."

[18]Then Abram moved his tent, and went and dwelt by the terebinth trees of Mamre, which are in Hebron, and built an altar there to the LORD.

Genesis 14

Lot's Captivity and Rescue

[1]And it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of nations,

[2]that they made war with Bera king of Sodom, Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar).

[3]All these joined together in the Valley of Siddim (that is, the Salt Sea).

[4]Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

[5]In the fourteenth year Chedorlaomer and the kings that were with him came and attacked the Rephaim in Ashteroth Karnaim, the Zuzim in Ham, the Emim in Shaveh Kiriathaim,

[6]and the Horites in their mountain of Seir, as far as El Paran, which is by the wilderness.

[7]Then they turned back and came to En Mishpat (that is, Kadesh), and attacked all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites who dwelt in Hazezon Tamar.

[8]And the king of Sodom, the king of Gomorrah, the king of Admah, the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar) went out and joined together in battle in the Valley of Siddim

[9]against Chedorlaomer king of Elam, Tidal king of nations, Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar—four kings against five.

[10]Now the Valley of Siddim was full of asphalt pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled; some fell there, and the remainder fled to the mountains.

[11]Then they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their provisions, and went their way.

[12]They also took Lot, Abram's brother's son who dwelt in Sodom, and his goods, and departed.

[13]Then one who had escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew, for he dwelt by the terebinth trees of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and brother of Aner; and they were allies with Abram.

[14]Now when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his three hundred and eighteen trained servants who were born in his own house, and went in pursuit as far as Dan.

[15]He divided his forces against them by night, and he and his servants attacked them and pursued them as far as Hobah, which is north of Damascus.

[16]So he brought back all the goods, and also brought back his brother Lot and his goods, as well as the women and the people.

[17]And the king of Sodom went out to meet him at the Valley of Shaveh (that is, the King's Valley), after his return from the defeat of Chedorlaomer and the kings who were with him.

Abram and Melchizedek

[18]Then Melchizedek king of Salem brought out bread and wine; he was the priest of God Most High.

[19]And he blessed him and said:

"Blessed be Abram of God Most High,
Possessor of heaven and earth;
[20]And blessed be God Most High,
Who has delivered your enemies into your hand."

And he gave him a tithe of all.

[21]Now the king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the persons, and take the goods for yourself."

[22]But Abram said to the king of Sodom, "I have raised my hand to the LORD, God Most High, the Possessor of heaven and earth,

[23]"that I will take nothing, from a thread to a sandal strap, and that I will not take anything that is yours, lest you should say, 'I have made Abram rich'—

[24]"except only what the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men who went with me: Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; let them take their portion."

Genesis 15

God's Covenant with Abram

[1]After these things the word of the LORD came to Abram in a vision, saying, "Do not be afraid, Abram. I am your shield, your exceedingly great reward."

[2]But Abram said, "Lord GOD, what will You give me, seeing I go childless, and the heir of my house is Eliezer of Damascus?"

[3]Then Abram said, "Look, You have given me no offspring; indeed one born in my house is my heir!"

[4]And behold, the word of the LORD came to him, saying, "This one shall not be your heir, but one who will come from your own body shall be your heir."

[5]Then He brought him outside and said, "Look now toward heaven, and count the stars if you are able to number them." And He said to him, "So shall your descendants be."

[6]And he believed in the LORD, and He accounted it to him for righteousness.

[7]Then He said to him, "I am the LORD, who brought you out of Ur of the Chaldeans, to give you this land to inherit it."

[8]And he said, "Lord GOD, how shall I know that I will inherit it?"

[9]So He said to him, "Bring Me a three-year-old heifer, a three-year-old female goat, a three-year-old ram, a turtledove, and a young pigeon."

[10]Then he brought all these to Him and cut them in two, down the middle, and placed each piece opposite the other; but he did not cut the birds in two.

[11]And when the vultures came down on the carcasses, Abram drove them away.

[12]Now when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and behold, horror and great darkness fell upon him.

[13]Then He said to Abram: "Know certainly that your descendants will be strangers in a land that is not theirs, and will serve them, and they will afflict them four hundred years.

[14]“And also the nation whom they serve I will judge; afterward they shall come out with great possessions.

[15]“Now as for you, you shall go to your fathers in peace; you shall be buried at a good old age.

[16]“But in the fourth generation they shall return here, for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete.”

[17]And it came to pass, when the sun went down and it was dark, that behold, there appeared a smoking oven and a burning torch that passed between those pieces.

[18]On the same day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying:

“To your descendants I have given this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the River Euphrates—

[19]“the Kenites, the Kenezzites, the Kadmonites,

[20]“the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim,

[21]“the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.”

Genesis 16

Hagar and Ishmael

[1]Now Sarai, Abram's wife, had borne him no children. And she had an Egyptian maidservant whose name was Hagar.

[2]So Sarai said to Abram, "See now, the LORD has restrained me from bearing children. Please, go in to my maid; perhaps I shall obtain children by her." And Abram heeded the voice of Sarai.

[3]Then Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar her maid, the Egyptian, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan.

[4]So he went in to Hagar, and she conceived. And when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress became despised in her eyes.

[5]Then Sarai said to Abram, "My wrong be upon you! I gave my maid into your embrace; and when she saw that she had conceived, I became despised in her eyes. The LORD judge between you and me."

[6]So Abram said to Sarai, "Indeed your maid is in your hand; do to her as you please." And when Sarai dealt harshly with her, she fled from her presence.

[7]Now the Angel of the LORD found her by a spring of water in the wilderness, by the spring on the way to Shur.

[8]And He said, "Hagar, Sarai's maid, where have you come from, and where are you going?" She said, "I am fleeing from the presence of my mistress Sarai."

[9]The Angel of the LORD said to her, "Return to your mistress, and submit yourself under her hand."

[10]Then the Angel of the LORD said to her, "I will multiply your descendants exceedingly, so that they shall not be counted for multitude."

[11]And the Angel of the LORD said to her:

"Behold, you are with child,
And you shall bear a son.
You shall call his name Ishmael,

Because the LORD has heard your affliction.
[12]He shall be a wild man;
His hand shall be against every man,
And every man’s hand against him.
And he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.”

[13]Then she called the name of the LORD who spoke to her, You-Are-the-God-Who-Sees; for she said, “Have I also here seen Him who sees me?”

[14]Therefore the well was called Beer Lahai Roi; observe, it is between Kadesh and Bered.

[15]So Hagar bore Abram a son; and Abram named his son, whom Hagar bore, Ishmael.

[16]Abram was eighty-six years old when Hagar bore Ishmael to Abram.

Genesis 17

The Sign of the Covenant

[1]When Abram was ninety-nine years old, the LORD appeared to Abram and said to him, "I am Almighty God; walk before Me and be blameless.

[2]"And I will make My covenant between Me and you, and will multiply you exceedingly."

[3]Then Abram fell on his face, and God talked with him, saying:

[4]"As for Me, behold, My covenant is with you, and you shall be a father of many nations.

[5]"No longer shall your name be called Abram, but your name shall be Abraham; for I have made you a father of many nations.

[6]"I will make you exceedingly fruitful; and I will make nations of you, and kings shall come from you.

[7]"And I will establish My covenant between Me and you and your descendants after you in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be God to you and your descendants after you.

[8]"Also I give to you and your descendants after you the land in which you are a stranger, all the land of Canaan, as an everlasting possession; and I will be their God."

[9]And God said to Abraham: "As for you, you shall keep My covenant, you and your descendants after you throughout their generations.

[10]"This is My covenant which you shall keep, between Me and you and your descendants after you: Every male child among you shall be circumcised;

[11]"and you shall be circumcised in the flesh of your foreskins, and it shall be a sign of the covenant between Me and you.

[12]"He who is eight days old among you shall be circumcised, every male child in your generations, he who is born in your house or bought with money from any foreigner who is not your descendant.

[13]"He who is born in your house and he who is bought with your money must be circumcised, and My covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant.

[14]"And the uncircumcised male child, who is not circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin, that person shall be cut off from his people; he has broken My covenant."

15Then God said to Abraham, "As for Sarai your wife, you shall not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall be her name.

[16]"And I will bless her and also give you a son by her; then I will bless her, and she shall be a mother of nations; kings of peoples shall be from her."

[17]Then Abraham fell on his face and laughed, and said in his heart, "Shall a child be born to a man who is one hundred years old? And shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, bear a child?"

[18]And Abraham said to God, "Oh, that Ishmael might live before You!"

[19]Then God said: "No, Sarah your wife shall bear you a son, and you shall call his name Isaac; I will establish My covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his descendants after him.

[20]"And as for Ishmael, I have heard you. Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly. He shall beget twelve princes, and I will make him a great nation.

[21]"But My covenant I will establish with Isaac, whom Sarah shall bear to you at this set time next year."

[22]Then He finished talking with him, and God went up from Abraham.

23So Abraham took Ishmael his son, all who were born in his house and all who were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house, and circumcised the flesh of their foreskins that very same day, as God had said to him.

[24]Abraham was ninety-nine years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

[25]And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

[26]That very same day Abraham was circumcised, and his son Ishmael;

[27]and all the men of his house, born in the house or bought with money from a foreigner, were circumcised with him.

Genesis 18

The Son of Promise

[1]Then the LORD appeared to him by the terebinth trees of Mamre, as he was sitting in the tent door in the heat of the day.

[2]So he lifted his eyes and looked, and behold, three men were standing by him; and when he saw them, he ran from the tent door to meet them, and bowed himself to the ground,

[3]and said, "My Lord, if I have now found favor in Your sight, do not pass on by Your servant.

[4]"Please let a little water be brought, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree.

[5]"And I will bring a morsel of bread, that you may refresh your hearts. After that you may pass by, inasmuch as you have come to your servant." They said, "Do as you have said."

[6]So Abraham hurried into the tent to Sarah and said, "Quickly, make ready three measures of fine meal; knead it and make cakes."

[7]And Abraham ran to the herd, took a tender and good calf, gave it to a young man, and he hastened to prepare it.

[8]So he took butter and milk and the calf which he had prepared, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree as they ate.

[9]Then they said to him, "Where is Sarah your wife?" So he said, "Here, in the tent."

[10]And He said, "I will certainly return to you according to the time of life, and behold, Sarah your wife shall have a son." (Sarah was listening in the tent door which was behind him.)

[11]Now Abraham and Sarah were old, well advanced in age; and Sarah had passed the age of childbearing.

[12]Therefore Sarah laughed within herself, saying, "After I have grown old, shall I have pleasure, my lord being old also?"

[13]And the LORD said to Abraham, "Why did Sarah laugh, saying, 'Shall I surely bear a child, since I am old?'

[14]"Is anything too hard for the LORD? At the appointed time I will return to you, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son."

[15]But Sarah denied it, saying, “I did not laugh,” for she was afraid. And He said, “No, but you did laugh!”

Abraham Intercedes for Sodom

[16]Then the men rose from there and looked toward Sodom, and Abraham went with them to send them on the way.

[17]And the LORD said, “Shall I hide from Abraham what I am doing, [18]“since Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him?

[19]“For I have known him, in order that he may command his children and his household after him, that they keep the way of the LORD, to do righteousness and justice, that the LORD may bring to Abraham what He has spoken to him.”

[20]And the LORD said, “Because the outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grave,

[21]“I will go down now and see whether they have done altogether according to the outcry against it that has come to Me; and if not, I will know.”

[22]Then the men turned away from there and went toward Sodom, but Abraham still stood before the LORD.

[23]And Abraham came near and said, “Would You also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

[24]“Suppose there were fifty righteous within the city; would You also destroy the place and not spare it for the fifty righteous that were in it?

[25]“Far be it from You to do such a thing as this, to slay the righteous with the wicked, so that the righteous should be as the wicked; far be it from You! Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?”

[26]So the LORD said, “If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.”

[27]Then Abraham answered and said, “Indeed now, I who am but dust and ashes have taken it upon myself to speak to the Lord:

[28]“Suppose there were five less than the fifty righteous; would You destroy all of the city for lack of five?” So He said, “If I find there forty-five, I will not destroy it.”

[29]And he spoke to Him yet again and said, “Suppose there should be forty found there?” So He said, “I will not do it for the sake of forty.”

[30]Then he said, “Let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak: Suppose thirty should be found there?” So He said, “I will not do it if I find thirty there.”

[31]And he said, “Indeed now, I have taken it upon myself to speak to the Lord: Suppose twenty should be found there?” So He said, “I will not destroy it for the sake of twenty.”

[32]Then he said, “Let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak but once more: Suppose ten should be found there?” And He said, “I will not destroy it for the sake of ten.”

[33]So the LORD went His way as soon as He had finished speaking with Abraham; and Abraham returned to his place.

Genesis 19

Sodom's Depravity

[1]Now the two angels came to Sodom in the evening, and Lot was sitting in the gate of Sodom. When Lot saw them, he rose to meet them, and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground.

[2]And he said, "Here now, my lords, please turn in to your servant's house and spend the night, and wash your feet; then you may rise early and go on your way." And they said, "No, but we will spend the night in the open square."

[3]But he insisted strongly; so they turned in to him and entered his house. Then he made them a feast, and baked unleavened bread, and they ate.

[4]Now before they lay down, the men of the city, the men of Sodom, both old and young, all the people from every quarter, surrounded the house.

[5]And they called to Lot and said to him, "Where are the men who came to you tonight? Bring them out to us that we may know them carnally."

[6]So Lot went out to them through the doorway, shut the door behind him,

[7]and said, "Please, my brethren, do not do so wickedly!

[8]"See now, I have two daughters who have not known a man; please, let me bring them out to you, and you may do to them as you wish; only do nothing to these men, since this is the reason they have come under the shadow of my roof."

[9]And they said, "Stand back!" Then they said, "This one came in to stay here, and he keeps acting as a judge; now we will deal worse with you than with them." So they pressed hard against the man Lot, and came near to break down the door.

[10]But the men reached out their hands and pulled Lot into the house with them, and shut the door.

[11]And they struck the men who were at the doorway of the house with blindness, both small and great, so that they became weary trying to find the door.

Sodom and Gomorrah Destroyed

12Then the men said to Lot, “Have you anyone else here? Son-in-law, your sons, your daughters, and whomever you have in the city—take them out of this place!

13“For we will destroy this place, because the outcry against them has grown great before the face of the LORD, and the LORD has sent us to destroy it.”

14So Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law, who had married his daughters, and said, “Get up, get out of this place; for the LORD will destroy this city!” But to his sons-in-law he seemed to be joking.

15When the morning dawned, the angels urged Lot to hurry, saying, “Arise, take your wife and your two daughters who are here, lest you be consumed in the punishment of the city.”

16And while he lingered, the men took hold of his hand, his wife’s hand, and the hands of his two daughters, the LORD being merciful to him, and they brought him out and set him outside the city.

17So it came to pass, when they had brought them outside, that he said, “Escape for your life! Do not look behind you nor stay anywhere in the plain. Escape to the mountains, lest you be destroyed.”

18Then Lot said to them, “Please, no, my lords!

19“Indeed now, your servant has found favor in your sight, and you have increased your mercy which you have shown me by saving my life; but I cannot escape to the mountains, lest some evil overtake me and I die.

20“See now, this city is near enough to flee to, and it is a little one; please let me escape there (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.”

21And he said to him, “See, I have favored you concerning this thing also, in that I will not overthrow this city for which you have spoken.

22“Hurry, escape there. For I cannot do anything until you arrive there.” Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.

23The sun had risen upon the earth when Lot entered Zoar.

[24]Then the LORD rained brimstone and fire on Sodom and Gomorrah, from the LORD out of the heavens.

[25]So He overthrew those cities, all the plain, all the inhabitants of the cities, and what grew on the ground.

[26]But his wife looked back behind him, and she became a pillar of salt.

[27]And Abraham went early in the morning to the place where he had stood before the LORD.

[28]Then he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain; and he saw, and behold, the smoke of the land which went up like the smoke of a furnace.

[29]And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when He overthrew the cities in which Lot had dwelt.

The Descendants of Lot

[30]Then Lot went up out of Zoar and dwelt in the mountains, and his two daughters were with him; for he was afraid to dwell in Zoar. And he and his two daughters dwelt in a cave.

[31]Now the firstborn said to the younger, “Our father is old, and there is no man on the earth to come in to us as is the custom of all the earth.

[32]“Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve the lineage of our father.”

[33]So they made their father drink wine that night. And the firstborn went in and lay with her father, and he did not know when she lay down or when she arose.

[34]It happened on the next day that the firstborn said to the younger, “Indeed I lay with my father last night; let us make him drink wine tonight also, and you go in and lie with him, that we may preserve the lineage of our father.”

[35]Then they made their father drink wine that night also. And the younger arose and lay with him, and he did not know when she lay down or when she arose.

[36]Thus both the daughters of Lot were with child by their father.

[37]The firstborn bore a son and called his name Moab; he is the father of the Moabites to this day.

[38]And the younger, she also bore a son and called his name Ben-Ammi; he is the father of the people of Ammon to this day.

Genesis 20

Abraham and Abimelech

[1]And Abraham journeyed from there to the South, and dwelt between Kadesh and Shur, and stayed in Gerar.

[2]Now Abraham said of Sarah his wife, “She is my sister.” And Abimelech king of Gerar sent and took Sarah.

[3]But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, “Indeed you are a dead man because of the woman whom you have taken, for she is a man’s wife.”

[4]But Abimelech had not come near her; and he said, “Lord, will You slay a righteous nation also?

[5]“Did he not say to me, ‘She is my sister’? And she, even she herself said, ‘He is my brother.’ In the integrity of my heart and innocence of my hands I have done this.”

[6]And God said to him in a dream, “Yes, I know that you did this in the integrity of your heart. For I also withheld you from sinning against Me; therefore I did not let you touch her.

[7]“Now therefore, restore the man’s wife; for he is a prophet, and he will pray for you and you shall live. But if you do not restore her, know that you shall surely die, you and all who are yours.”

[8]So Abimelech rose early in the morning, called all his servants, and told all these things in their hearing; and the men were very much afraid.

[9]And Abimelech called Abraham and said to him, “What have you done to us? How have I offended you, that you have brought on me and on my kingdom a great sin? You have done deeds to me that ought not to be done.”

[10]Then Abimelech said to Abraham, “What did you have in view, that you have done this thing?”

[11]And Abraham said, “Because I thought, surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will kill me on account of my wife.

[12]“But indeed she is truly my sister. She is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife.

[13]“And it came to pass, when God caused me to wander from my father’s house, that I said to her, ‘This is your kindness that you should do for me: in every place, wherever we go, say of me, “He is my brother.” ’

[14]Then Abimelech took sheep, oxen, and male and female servants, and gave them to Abraham; and he restored Sarah his wife to him.

[15]And Abimelech said, “See, my land is before you; dwell where it pleases you.”

[16]Then to Sarah he said, “Behold, I have given your brother a thousand pieces of silver; indeed this vindicates you before all who are with you and before everybody.” Thus she was rebuked.

[17]So Abraham prayed to God; and God healed Abimelech, his wife, and his female servants. Then they bore children;

[18]for the LORD had closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech because of Sarah, Abraham’s wife.

Genesis 21

Isaac Is Born

[1]And the LORD visited Sarah as He had said, and the LORD did for Sarah as He had spoken.

[2]For Sarah conceived and bore Abraham a son in his old age, at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

[3]And Abraham called the name of his son who was born to him—whom Sarah bore to him—Isaac.

[4]Then Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old, as God had commanded him.

[5]Now Abraham was one hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him.

[6]And Sarah said, "God has made me laugh, and all who hear will laugh with me."

[7]She also said, "Who would have said to Abraham that Sarah would nurse children? For I have borne him a son in his old age."

Hagar and Ishmael Depart

[8]So the child grew and was weaned. And Abraham made a great feast on the same day that Isaac was weaned.

[9]And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, whom she had borne to Abraham, scoffing.

[10]Therefore she said to Abraham, "Cast out this bondwoman and her son; for the son of this bondwoman shall not be heir with my son, namely with Isaac."

[11]And the matter was very displeasing in Abraham's sight because of his son.

[12]But God said to Abraham, "Do not let it be displeasing in your sight because of the lad or because of your bondwoman. Whatever Sarah has said to you, listen to her voice; for in Isaac your seed shall be called.

[13]"Yet I will also make a nation of the son of the bondwoman, because he is your seed."

[14]So Abraham rose early in the morning, and took bread and a skin of water; and putting it on her shoulder, he gave it and the boy to Hagar, and sent her away. Then she departed and wandered in the Wilderness of Beersheba.

[15]And the water in the skin was used up, and she placed the boy under one of the shrubs.

[16]Then she went and sat down across from him at a distance of about a bowshot; for she said to herself, “Let me not see the death of the boy.” So she sat opposite him, and lifted her voice and wept.

[17]And God heard the voice of the lad. Then the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said to her, “What ails you, Hagar? Fear not, for God has heard the voice of the lad where he is.

[18]“Arise, lift up the lad and hold him with your hand, for I will make him a great nation.”

[19]Then God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water. And she went and filled the skin with water, and gave the lad a drink.

[20]So God was with the lad; and he grew and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer.

[21]He dwelt in the Wilderness of Paran; and his mother took a wife for him from the land of Egypt.

A Covenant with Abimelech

[22]And it came to pass at that time that Abimelech and Phichol, the commander of his army, spoke to Abraham, saying, “God is with you in all that you do.

[23]“Now therefore, swear to me by God that you will not deal falsely with me, with my offspring, or with my posterity; but that according to the kindness that I have done to you, you will do to me and to the land in which you have dwelt.”

[24]And Abraham said, “I will swear.”

[25]Then Abraham rebuked Abimelech because of a well of water which Abimelech’s servants had seized.

[26]And Abimelech said, “I do not know who has done this thing; you did not tell me, nor had I heard of it until today.”

[27]So Abraham took sheep and oxen and gave them to Abimelech, and the two of them made a covenant.

[28]And Abraham set seven ewe lambs of the flock by themselves.

[29]Then Abimelech asked Abraham, “What is the meaning of these seven ewe lambs which you have set by themselves?”

[30]And he said, “You will take these seven ewe lambs from my hand, that they may be my witness that I have dug this well.”

[31]Therefore he called that place Beersheba, because the two of them swore an oath there.

[32]Thus they made a covenant at Beersheba. So Abimelech rose with Phichol, the commander of his army, and they returned to the land of the Philistines.

[33]Then Abraham planted a tamarisk tree in Beersheba, and there called on the name of the LORD, the Everlasting God.

[34]And Abraham stayed in the land of the Philistines many days.

Genesis 22

Abraham's Faith Confirmed

[1]Now it came to pass after these things that God tested Abraham, and said to him, "Abraham!" And he said, "Here I am."

[2]Then He said, "Take now your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains of which I shall tell you."

[3]So Abraham rose early in the morning and saddled his donkey, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son; and he split the wood for the burnt offering, and arose and went to the place of which God had told him.

[4]Then on the third day Abraham lifted his eyes and saw the place afar off.

[5]And Abraham said to his young men, "Stay here with the donkey; the lad and I will go yonder and worship, and we will come back to you."

[6]So Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering and laid it on Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife, and the two of them went together.

[7]But Isaac spoke to Abraham his father and said, "My father!" And he said, "Here I am, my son." Then he said, "Look, the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?"

[8]And Abraham said, "My son, God will provide for Himself the lamb for a burnt offering." So the two of them went together.

[9]Then they came to the place of which God had told him. And Abraham built an altar there and placed the wood in order; and he bound Isaac his son and laid him on the altar, upon the wood.

[10]And Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to slay his son.

[11]But the Angel of the LORD called to him from heaven and said, "Abraham, Abraham!" So he said, "Here I am."

[12]And He said, "Do not lay your hand on the lad, or do anything to him; for now I know that you fear God, since you have not withheld your son, your only son, from Me."

[13]Then Abraham lifted his eyes and looked, and there behind him was a ram caught in a thicket by its horns. So Abraham went and took the ram, and offered it up for a burnt offering instead of his son.

[14]And Abraham called the name of the place, The-LORD-Will-Provide; as it is said to this day, "In the Mount of the LORD it shall be provided."

15Then the Angel of the LORD called to Abraham a second time out of heaven,

[16]and said: "By Myself I have sworn, says the LORD, because you have done this thing, and have not withheld your son, your only son—

[17]"blessing I will bless you, and multiplying I will multiply your descendants as the stars of the heaven and as the sand which is on the seashore; and your descendants shall possess the gate of their enemies.

[18]"In your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, because you have obeyed My voice."

[19]So Abraham returned to his young men, and they rose and went together to Beersheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beersheba.

The Family of Nahor

20Now it came to pass after these things that it was told Abraham, saying, "Indeed Milcah also has borne children to your brother Nahor:

[21]"Huz his firstborn, Buz his brother, Kemuel the father of Aram,

[22]"Chesed, Hazo, Pildash, Jidlaph, and Bethuel."

[23]And Bethuel begot Rebekah. These eight Milcah bore to Nahor, Abraham's brother.

[24]His concubine, whose name was Reumah, also bore Tebah, Gaham, Thahash, and Maachah.

Genesis 23

Sarah's Death and Burial

[1]Sarah lived one hundred and twenty-seven years; these were the years of the life of Sarah.

[2]So Sarah died in Kirjath Arba (that is, Hebron) in the land of Canaan, and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her.

[3]Then Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spoke to the sons of Heth, saying,

[4]"I am a foreigner and a visitor among you. Give me property for a burial place among you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight."

[5]And the sons of Heth answered Abraham, saying to him,

[6]"Hear us, my lord: You are a mighty prince among us; bury your dead in the choicest of our burial places. None of us will withhold from you his burial place, that you may bury your dead."

[7]Then Abraham stood up and bowed himself to the people of the land, the sons of Heth.

[8]And he spoke with them, saying, "If it is your wish that I bury my dead out of my sight, hear me, and meet with Ephron the son of Zohar for me,

[9]"that he may give me the cave of Machpelah which he has, which is at the end of his field. Let him give it to me at the full price, as property for a burial place among you."

[10]Now Ephron dwelt among the sons of Heth; and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the presence of the sons of Heth, all who entered at the gate of his city, saying,

[11]"No, my lord, hear me: I give you the field and the cave that is in it; I give it to you in the presence of the sons of my people. I give it to you. Bury your dead!"

[12]Then Abraham bowed himself down before the people of the land;

[13]and he spoke to Ephron in the hearing of the people of the land, saying, "If you will give it, please hear me. I will give you money for the field; take it from me and I will bury my dead there."

[14]And Ephron answered Abraham, saying to him,

[15]“My lord, listen to me; the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver. What is that between you and me? So bury your dead.”

[16]And Abraham listened to Ephron; and Abraham weighed out the silver for Ephron which he had named in the hearing of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, currency of the merchants.

[17]So the field of Ephron which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field and the cave which was in it, and all the trees that were in the field, which were within all the surrounding borders, were deeded

[18]to Abraham as a possession in the presence of the sons of Heth, before all who went in at the gate of his city.

[19]And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre (that is, Hebron) in the land of Canaan.

[20]So the field and the cave that is in it were deeded to Abraham by the sons of Heth as property for a burial place.

Genesis 24

A Bride for Isaac

[1]Now Abraham was old, well advanced in age; and the LORD had blessed Abraham in all things.

[2]So Abraham said to the oldest servant of his house, who ruled over all that he had, “Please, put your hand under my thigh,

[3]“and I will make you swear by the LORD, the God of heaven and the God of the earth, that you will not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell;

[4]“but you shall go to my country and to my family, and take a wife for my son Isaac.”

[5]And the servant said to him, “Perhaps the woman will not be willing to follow me to this land. Must I take your son back to the land from which you came?”

[6]But Abraham said to him, “Beware that you do not take my son back there.

[7]“The LORD God of heaven, who took me from my father’s house and from the land of my family, and who spoke to me and swore to me, saying, ‘To your descendants I give this land,’ He will send His angel before you, and you shall take a wife for my son from there.

[8]“And if the woman is not willing to follow you, then you will be released from this oath; only do not take my son back there.”

[9]So the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and swore to him concerning this matter.

[10]Then the servant took ten of his master’s camels and departed, for all his master’s goods were in his hand. And he arose and went to Mesopotamia, to the city of Nahor.

[11]And he made his camels kneel down outside the city by a well of water at evening time, the time when women go out to draw water.

[12]Then he said, “O LORD God of my master Abraham, please give me success this day, and show kindness to my master Abraham.

[13]“Behold, here I stand by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of the city are coming out to draw water.

[14]“Now let it be that the young woman to whom I say, ‘Please let down your pitcher that I may drink,’ and she says, ‘Drink, and I will also give your camels a drink’—let her be the one You have appointed for Your servant Isaac. And by this I will know that You have shown kindness to my master.”

[15]And it happened, before he had finished speaking, that behold, Rebekah, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham’s brother, came out with her pitcher on her shoulder.

[16]Now the young woman was very beautiful to behold, a virgin; no man had known her. And she went down to the well, filled her pitcher, and came up.

[17]And the servant ran to meet her and said, “Please let me drink a little water from your pitcher.”

[18]So she said, “Drink, my lord.” Then she quickly let her pitcher down to her hand, and gave him a drink.

[19]And when she had finished giving him a drink, she said, “I will draw water for your camels also, until they have finished drinking.”

[20]Then she quickly emptied her pitcher into the trough, ran back to the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

[21]And the man, wondering at her, remained silent so as to know whether the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

[22]So it was, when the camels had finished drinking, that the man took a golden nose ring weighing half a shekel, and two bracelets for her wrists weighing ten shekels of gold,

[23]and said, “Whose daughter are you? Tell me, please, is there room in your father’s house for us to lodge?”

[24]So she said to him, “I am the daughter of Bethuel, Milcah’s son, whom she bore to Nahor.”

[25]Moreover she said to him, “We have both straw and feed enough, and room to lodge.”

[26]Then the man bowed down his head and worshiped the LORD.

[27]And he said, “Blessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who has not forsaken His mercy and His truth toward my master. As for me, being on the way, the LORD led me to the house of my master’s brethren.”

[28]So the young woman ran and told her mother's household these things.

[29]Now Rebekah had a brother whose name was Laban, and Laban ran out to the man by the well.

[30]So it came to pass, when he saw the nose ring, and the bracelets on his sister's wrists, and when he heard the words of his sister Rebekah, saying, "Thus the man spoke to me," that he went to the man. And there he stood by the camels at the well.

[31]And he said, "Come in, O blessed of the LORD! Why do you stand outside? For I have prepared the house, and a place for the camels."

[32]Then the man came to the house. And he unloaded the camels, and provided straw and feed for the camels, and water to wash his feet and the feet of the men who were with him.

[33]Food was set before him to eat, but he said, "I will not eat until I have told about my errand." And he said, "Speak on."

[34]So he said, "I am Abraham's servant.

[35]"The LORD has blessed my master greatly, and he has become great; and He has given him flocks and herds, silver and gold, male and female servants, and camels and donkeys.

[36]"And Sarah my master's wife bore a son to my master when she was old; and to him he has given all that he has.

[37]"Now my master made me swear, saying, 'You shall not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell;

[38]'but you shall go to my father's house and to my family, and take a wife for my son.'

[39]"And I said to my master, 'Perhaps the woman will not follow me.'

[40]"But he said to me, 'The LORD, before whom I walk, will send His angel with you and prosper your way; and you shall take a wife for my son from my family and from my father's house.

[41]'You will be clear from this oath when you arrive among my family; for if they will not give her to you, then you will be released from my oath.'

[42]"And this day I came to the well and said, 'O LORD God of my master Abraham, if You will now prosper the way in which I go,

[43]‘behold, I stand by the well of water; and it shall come to pass that when the virgin comes out to draw water, and I say to her, “Please give me a little water from your pitcher to drink,”

[44]‘and she says to me, “Drink, and I will draw for your camels also,”—let her be the woman whom the LORD has appointed for my master’s son.’

[45]“But before I had finished speaking in my heart, there was Rebekah, coming out with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down to the well and drew water. And I said to her, ‘Please let me drink.’

[46]“And she made haste and let her pitcher down from her shoulder, and said, ‘Drink, and I will give your camels a drink also.’ So I drank, and she gave the camels a drink also.

[47]“Then I asked her, and said, ‘Whose daughter are you?’ And she said, ‘The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor’s son, whom Milcah bore to him.’ So I put the nose ring on her nose and the bracelets on her wrists.

[48]“And I bowed my head and worshiped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, who had led me in the way of truth to take the daughter of my master’s brother for his son.

[49]“Now if you will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me. And if not, tell me, that I may turn to the right hand or to the left.”

[50]Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, “The thing comes from the LORD; we cannot speak to you either bad or good.

[51]“Here is Rebekah before you; take her and go, and let her be your master’s son’s wife, as the LORD has spoken.”

[52]And it came to pass, when Abraham’s servant heard their words, that he worshiped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

[53]Then the servant brought out jewelry of silver, jewelry of gold, and clothing, and gave them to Rebekah. He also gave precious things to her brother and to her mother.

[54]And he and the men who were with him ate and drank and stayed all night. Then they arose in the morning, and he said, “Send me away to my master.”

[55]But her brother and her mother said, “Let the young woman stay with us a few days, at least ten; after that she may go.”

[56]And he said to them, “Do not hinder me, since the LORD has prospered my way; send me away so that I may go to my master.”

[57]So they said, “We will call the young woman and ask her personally.”

[58]Then they called Rebekah and said to her, “Will you go with this man?” And she said, “I will go.”

[59]So they sent away Rebekah their sister and her nurse, and Abraham’s servant and his men.

[60]And they blessed Rebekah and said to her:

> “Our sister, may you become
> The mother of thousands of ten thousands;
> And may your descendants possess
> The gates of those who hate them.”

61Then Rebekah and her maids arose, and they rode on the camels and followed the man. So the servant took Rebekah and departed.

[62]Now Isaac came from the way of Beer Lahai Roi, for he dwelt in the South.

[63]And Isaac went out to meditate in the field in the evening; and he lifted his eyes and looked, and there, the camels were coming.

[64]Then Rebekah lifted her eyes, and when she saw Isaac she dismounted from her camel;

[65]for she had said to the servant, “Who is this man walking in the field to meet us?” The servant said, “It is my master.” So she took a veil and covered herself.

[66]And the servant told Isaac all the things that he had done.

[67]Then Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah’s tent; and he took Rebekah and she became his wife, and he loved her. So Isaac was comforted after his mother’s death.

Genesis 25

Abraham and Keturah

[1]Abraham again took a wife, and her name was Keturah.

[2]And she bore him Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah.

[3]Jokshan begot Sheba and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, Letushim, and Leummim.

[4]And the sons of Midian were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

[5]And Abraham gave all that he had to Isaac.

[6]But Abraham gave gifts to the sons of the concubines which Abraham had; and while he was still living he sent them eastward, away from Isaac his son, to the country of the east.

Abraham's Death and Burial

[7]This is the sum of the years of Abraham's life which he lived: one hundred and seventy-five years.

[8]Then Abraham breathed his last and died in a good old age, an old man and full of years, and was gathered to his people.

[9]And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, which is before Mamre, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite,

[10]the field which Abraham purchased from the sons of Heth. There Abraham was buried, and Sarah his wife.

[11]And it came to pass, after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac. And Isaac dwelt at Beer Lahai Roi.

The Families of Ishmael and Isaac

[12]Now this is the genealogy of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's maidservant, bore to Abraham.

[13]And these were the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: The firstborn of Ishmael, Nebajoth; then Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam,

[14]Mishma, Dumah, Massa,

[15]Hadar, Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah.

[16]These were the sons of Ishmael and these were their names, by their towns and their settlements, twelve princes according to their nations.

[17]These were the years of the life of Ishmael: one hundred and thirty-seven years; and he breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people.

[18](They dwelt from Havilah as far as Shur, which is east of Egypt as you go toward Assyria.) He died in the presence of all his brethren.

[19]This is the genealogy of Isaac, Abraham’s son. Abraham begot Isaac.

[20]Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah as wife, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan Aram, the sister of Laban the Syrian.

[21]Now Isaac pleaded with the LORD for his wife, because she was barren; and the LORD granted his plea, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

[22]But the children struggled together within her; and she said, “If all is well, why am I like this?” So she went to inquire of the LORD.

[23]And the LORD said to her:

> “Two nations are in your womb,
> Two peoples shall be separated from your body;
> One people shall be stronger than the other,
> And the older shall serve the younger.”

[24]So when her days were fulfilled for her to give birth, indeed there were twins in her womb.

[25]And the first came out red. He was like a hairy garment all over; so they called his name Esau.

[26]Afterward his brother came out, and his hand took hold of Esau’s heel; so his name was called Jacob. Isaac was sixty years old when she bore them.

[27]So the boys grew. And Esau was a skillful hunter, a man of the field; but Jacob was a mild man, dwelling in tents.

[28]And Isaac loved Esau because he ate of his game, but Rebekah loved Jacob.

Esau Sells His Birthright

[29]Now Jacob cooked a stew; and Esau came in from the field, and he was weary.
[30]And Esau said to Jacob, "Please feed me with that same red stew, for I am weary." Therefore his name was called Edom.
[31]But Jacob said, "Sell me your birthright as of this day."
[32]And Esau said, "Look, I am about to die; so what is this birthright to me?"
[33]Then Jacob said, "Swear to me as of this day." So he swore to him, and sold his birthright to Jacob.
[34]And Jacob gave Esau bread and stew of lentils; then he ate and drank, arose, and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright.

Genesis 26

Isaac and Abimelech

[1]There was a famine in the land, besides the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went to Abimelech king of the Philistines, in Gerar.

[2]Then the LORD appeared to him and said: “Do not go down to Egypt; live in the land of which I shall tell you.

[3]“Dwell in this land, and I will be with you and bless you; for to you and your descendants I give all these lands, and I will perform the oath which I swore to Abraham your father.

[4]“And I will make your descendants multiply as the stars of heaven; I will give to your descendants all these lands; and in your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed;

[5]“because Abraham obeyed My voice and kept My charge, My commandments, My statutes, and My laws.”

[6]So Isaac dwelt in Gerar.

[7]And the men of the place asked about his wife. And he said, “She is my sister”; for he was afraid to say, “She is my wife,” because he thought, “lest the men of the place kill me for Rebekah, because she is beautiful to behold.”

[8]Now it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked through a window, and saw, and there was Isaac, showing endearment to Rebekah his wife.

[9]Then Abimelech called Isaac and said, “Quite obviously she is your wife; so how could you say, ‘She is my sister’?” Isaac said to him, “Because I said, ‘Lest I die on account of her.” ’

[10]And Abimelech said, “What is this you have done to us? One of the people might soon have lain with your wife, and you would have brought guilt on us.”

[11]So Abimelech charged all his people, saying, “He who touches this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.”

[12]Then Isaac sowed in that land, and reaped in the same year a hundredfold; and the LORD blessed him.

[13]The man began to prosper, and continued prospering until he became very prosperous;

[14]for he had possessions of flocks and possessions of herds and a great number of servants. So the Philistines envied him.

[15]Now the Philistines had stopped up all the wells which his father's servants had dug in the days of Abraham his father, and they had filled them with earth.

[16]And Abimelech said to Isaac, "Go away from us, for you are much mightier than we."

17Then Isaac departed from there and pitched his tent in the Valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

[18]And Isaac dug again the wells of water which they had dug in the days of Abraham his father, for the Philistines had stopped them up after the death of Abraham. He called them by the names which his father had called them.

[19]Also Isaac's servants dug in the valley, and found a well of running water there.

[20]But the herdsmen of Gerar quarreled with Isaac's herdsmen, saying, "The water is ours." So he called the name of the well Esek, because they quarreled with him.

[21]Then they dug another well, and they quarreled over that one also. So he called its name Sitnah.

[22]And he moved from there and dug another well, and they did not quarrel over it. So he called its name Rehoboth, because he said, "For now the LORD has made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land."

23Then he went up from there to Beersheba.

[24]And the LORD appeared to him the same night and said, "I am the God of your father Abraham; do not fear, for I am with you. I will bless you and multiply your descendants for My servant Abraham's sake."

[25]So he built an altar there and called on the name of the LORD, and he pitched his tent there; and there Isaac's servants dug a well.

26Then Abimelech came to him from Gerar with Ahuzzath, one of his friends, and Phichol the commander of his army.

[27]And Isaac said to them, “Why have you come to me, since you hate me and have sent me away from you?”

[28]But they said, “We have certainly seen that the LORD is with you. So we said, ‘Let there now be an oath between us, between you and us; and let us make a covenant with you,

[29]‘that you will do us no harm, since we have not touched you, and since we have done nothing to you but good and have sent you away in peace. You are now the blessed of the LORD.” ’

[30]So he made them a feast, and they ate and drank.

[31]Then they arose early in the morning and swore an oath with one another; and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

[32]It came to pass the same day that Isaac’s servants came and told him about the well which they had dug, and said to him, “We have found water.”

[33]So he called it Shebah. Therefore the name of the city is Beersheba to this day.

[34]When Esau was forty years old, he took as wives Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Basemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite.

[35]And they were a grief of mind to Isaac and Rebekah.

Genesis 27

Isaac Blesses Jacob

[1]Now it came to pass, when Isaac was old and his eyes were so dim that he could not see, that he called Esau his older son and said to him, “My son.” And he answered him, “Here I am.”

[2]Then he said, “Behold now, I am old. I do not know the day of my death.

[3]“Now therefore, please take your weapons, your quiver and your bow, and go out to the field and hunt game for me.

[4]“And make me savory food, such as I love, and bring it to me that I may eat, that my soul may bless you before I die.”

[5]Now Rebekah was listening when Isaac spoke to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt game and to bring it.

[6]So Rebekah spoke to Jacob her son, saying, “Indeed I heard your father speak to Esau your brother, saying,

[7]‘Bring me game and make savory food for me, that I may eat it and bless you in the presence of the LORD before my death.’

[8]“Now therefore, my son, obey my voice according to what I command you.

[9]“Go now to the flock and bring me from there two choice kids of the goats, and I will make savory food from them for your father, such as he loves.

[10]“Then you shall take it to your father, that he may eat it, and that he may bless you before his death.”

[11]And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, “Look, Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth-skinned man.

[12]“Perhaps my father will feel me, and I shall seem to be a deceiver to him; and I shall bring a curse on myself and not a blessing.”

[13]But his mother said to him, “Let your curse be on me, my son; only obey my voice, and go, get them for me.”

[14]And he went and got them and brought them to his mother, and his mother made savory food, such as his father loved.

[15]Then Rebekah took the choice clothes of her elder son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them on Jacob her younger son.

[16]And she put the skins of the kids of the goats on his hands and on the smooth part of his neck.

[17]Then she gave the savory food and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

[18]So he went to his father and said, “My father.” And he said, “Here I am. Who are you, my son?”

[19]Jacob said to his father, “I am Esau your firstborn; I have done just as you told me; please arise, sit and eat of my game, that your soul may bless me.”

[20]But Isaac said to his son, “How is it that you have found it so quickly, my son?” And he said, “Because the LORD your God brought it to me.”

[21]Then Isaac said to Jacob, “Please come near, that I may feel you, my son, whether you are really my son Esau or not.”

[22]So Jacob went near to Isaac his father, and he felt him and said, “The voice is Jacob’s voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.”

[23]And he did not recognize him, because his hands were hairy like his brother Esau’s hands; so he blessed him.

[24]Then he said, “Are you really my son Esau?” He said, “I am.”

[25]He said, “Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son’s game, so that my soul may bless you.” So he brought it near to him, and he ate; and he brought him wine, and he drank.

[26]Then his father Isaac said to him, “Come near now and kiss me, my son.”

[27]And he came near and kissed him; and he smelled the smell of his clothing, and blessed him and said:

> “Surely, the smell of my son
> Is like the smell of a field
> Which the LORD has blessed.
> [28]Therefore may God give you
> Of the dew of heaven,
> Of the fatness of the earth,
> And plenty of grain and wine.

[29]Let peoples serve you,
And nations bow down to you.
Be master over your brethren,
And let your mother’s sons bow down to you.
Cursed be everyone who curses you,
And blessed be those who bless you!”

Esau’s Lost Hope

[30]Now it happened, as soon as Isaac had finished blessing Jacob, and Jacob had scarcely gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

[31]He also had made savory food, and brought it to his father, and said to his father, “Let my father arise and eat of his son’s game, that your soul may bless me.”

[32]And his father Isaac said to him, “Who are you?” So he said, “I am your son, your firstborn, Esau.”

[33]Then Isaac trembled exceedingly, and said, “Who? Where is the one who hunted game and brought it to me? I ate all of it before you came, and I have blessed him—and indeed he shall be blessed.”

[34]When Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with an exceedingly great and bitter cry, and said to his father, “Bless me—me also, O my father!”

[35]But he said, “Your brother came with deceit and has taken away your blessing.”

[36]And Esau said, “Is he not rightly named Jacob? For he has supplanted me these two times. He took away my birthright, and now look, he has taken away my blessing!” And he said, “Have you not reserved a blessing for me?”

[37]Then Isaac answered and said to Esau, “Indeed I have made him your master, and all his brethren I have given to him as servants; with grain and wine I have sustained him. What shall I do now for you, my son?”

[38]And Esau said to his father, “Have you only one blessing, my father? Bless me—me also, O my father!” And Esau lifted up his voice and wept.

[39]Then Isaac his father answered and said to him:

“Behold, your dwelling shall be of the fatness of the earth,
And of the dew of heaven from above.
[40]By your sword you shall live,
And you shall serve your brother;
And it shall come to pass, when you become restless,
That you shall break his yoke from your neck.”

Jacob Escapes from Esau

[41]So Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing with which his father blessed him, and Esau said in his heart, “The days of mourning for my father are at hand; then I will kill my brother Jacob.”

[42]And the words of Esau her older son were told to Rebekah. So she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said to him, “Surely your brother Esau comforts himself concerning you by intending to kill you.

[43]“Now therefore, my son, obey my voice: arise, flee to my brother Laban in Haran.

[44]“And stay with him a few days, until your brother’s fury turns away,

[45]“until your brother’s anger turns away from you, and he forgets what you have done to him; then I will send and bring you from there. Why should I be bereaved also of you both in one day?”

[46]And Rebekah said to Isaac, “I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth; if Jacob takes a wife of the daughters of Heth, like these who are the daughters of the land, what good will my life be to me?”

Genesis 28

[1]Then Isaac called Jacob and blessed him, and charged him, and said to him: “You shall not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan.

[2]“Arise, go to Padan Aram, to the house of Bethuel your mother’s father; and take yourself a wife from there of the daughters of Laban your mother’s brother.

> [3]“May God Almighty bless you,
> And make you fruitful and multiply you,
> That you may be an assembly of peoples;
> [4]And give you the blessing of Abraham,
> To you and your descendants with you,
> That you may inherit the land
> In which you are a stranger,
> Which God gave to Abraham.”

[5]So Isaac sent Jacob away, and he went to Padan Aram, to Laban the son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, the mother of Jacob and Esau.

Esau Marries Mahalath

[6]Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him away to Padan Aram to take himself a wife from there, and that as he blessed him he gave him a charge, saying, “You shall not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan,”

[7]and that Jacob had obeyed his father and his mother and had gone to Padan Aram.

[8]Also Esau saw that the daughters of Canaan did not please his father Isaac.

[9]So Esau went to Ishmael and took Mahalath the daughter of Ishmael, Abraham’s son, the sister of Nebajoth, to be his wife in addition to the wives he had.

Jacob’s Vow at Bethel

10Now Jacob went out from Beersheba and went toward Haran.

[11]So he came to a certain place and stayed there all night, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of that place and put it at his head, and he lay down in that place to sleep.

[12]Then he dreamed, and behold, a ladder was set up on the earth, and its top reached to heaven; and there the angels of God were ascending and descending on it.

[13]And behold, the LORD stood above it and said: "I am the LORD God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac; the land on which you lie I will give to you and your descendants.

[14]"Also your descendants shall be as the dust of the earth; you shall spread abroad to the west and the east, to the north and the south; and in you and in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed.

[15]"Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land; for I will not leave you until I have done what I have spoken to you."

[16]Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, "Surely the LORD is in this place, and I did not know it."

[17]And he was afraid and said, "How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven!"

18Then Jacob rose early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put at his head, set it up as a pillar, and poured oil on top of it.

[19]And he called the name of that place Bethel; but the name of that city had been Luz previously.

[20]Then Jacob made a vow, saying, "If God will be with me, and keep me in this way that I am going, and give me bread to eat and clothing to put on,

[21]"so that I come back to my father's house in peace, then the LORD shall be my God.

[22]"And this stone which I have set as a pillar shall be God's house, and of all that You give me I will surely give a tenth to You."

Genesis 29

Jacob Meets Rachel

[1]So Jacob went on his journey and came to the land of the people of the East.

[2]And he looked, and saw a well in the field; and behold, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks. A large stone was on the well's mouth.

[3]Now all the flocks would be gathered there; and they would roll the stone from the well's mouth, water the sheep, and put the stone back in its place on the well's mouth.

[4]And Jacob said to them, "My brethren, where are you from?" And they said, "We are from Haran."

[5]Then he said to them, "Do you know Laban the son of Nahor?" And they said, "We know him."

[6]So he said to them, "Is he well?" And they said, "He is well. And look, his daughter Rachel is coming with the sheep."

[7]Then he said, "Look, it is still high day; it is not time for the cattle to be gathered together. Water the sheep, and go and feed them."

[8]But they said, "We cannot until all the flocks are gathered together, and they have rolled the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

[9]Now while he was still speaking with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep, for she was a shepherdess.

[10]And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near and rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

[11]Then Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice and wept.

[12]And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's relative and that he was Rebekah's son. So she ran and told her father.

[13]Then it came to pass, when Laban heard the report about Jacob his sister's son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him and kissed him, and brought him to his house. So he told Laban all these things.

[14]And Laban said to him, “Surely you are my bone and my flesh.” And he stayed with him for a month.

Jacob Marries Leah and Rachel

[15]Then Laban said to Jacob, “Because you are my relative, should you therefore serve me for nothing? Tell me, what should your wages be?”

[16]Now Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

[17]Leah’s eyes were delicate, but Rachel was beautiful of form and appearance.

[18]Now Jacob loved Rachel; so he said, “I will serve you seven years for Rachel your younger daughter.”

[19]And Laban said, “It is better that I give her to you than that I should give her to another man. Stay with me.”

[20]So Jacob served seven years for Rachel, and they seemed only a few days to him because of the love he had for her.

[21]Then Jacob said to Laban, “Give me my wife, for my days are fulfilled, that I may go in to her.”

[22]And Laban gathered together all the men of the place and made a feast.

[23]Now it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter and brought her to Jacob; and he went in to her.

[24]And Laban gave his maid Zilpah to his daughter Leah as a maid.

[25]So it came to pass in the morning, that behold, it was Leah. And he said to Laban, “What is this you have done to me? Was it not for Rachel that I served you? Why then have you deceived me?”

[26]And Laban said, “It must not be done so in our country, to give the younger before the firstborn.

[27]“Fulfill her week, and we will give you this one also for the service which you will serve with me still another seven years.”

[28]Then Jacob did so and fulfilled her week. So he gave him his daughter Rachel as wife also.

[29]And Laban gave his maid Bilhah to his daughter Rachel as a maid.

[30]Then Jacob also went in to Rachel, and he also loved Rachel more than Leah. And he served with Laban still another seven years.

The Children of Jacob

[31]When the LORD saw that Leah was unloved, He opened her womb; but Rachel was barren.

[32]So Leah conceived and bore a son, and she called his name Reuben; for she said, "The LORD has surely looked on my affliction. Now therefore, my husband will love me."

[33]Then she conceived again and bore a son, and said, "Because the LORD has heard that I am unloved, He has therefore given me this son also." And she called his name Simeon.

[34]She conceived again and bore a son, and said, "Now this time my husband will become attached to me, because I have borne him three sons." Therefore his name was called Levi.

[35]And she conceived again and bore a son, and said, "Now I will praise the LORD." Therefore she called his name Judah. Then she stopped bearing.

Genesis 30

[1]Now when Rachel saw that she bore Jacob no children, Rachel envied her sister, and said to Jacob, “Give me children, or else I die!”

[2]And Jacob’s anger was aroused against Rachel, and he said, “Am I in the place of God, who has withheld from you the fruit of the womb?”

[3]So she said, “Here is my maid Bilhah; go in to her, and she will bear a child on my knees, that I also may have children by her.”

[4]Then she gave him Bilhah her maid as wife, and Jacob went in to her.

[5]And Bilhah conceived and bore Jacob a son.

[6]Then Rachel said, “God has judged my case; and He has also heard my voice and given me a son.” Therefore she called his name Dan.

[7]And Rachel’s maid Bilhah conceived again and bore Jacob a second son.

[8]Then Rachel said, “With great wrestlings I have wrestled with my sister, and indeed I have prevailed.” So she called his name Naphtali.

[9]When Leah saw that she had stopped bearing, she took Zilpah her maid and gave her to Jacob as wife.

[10]And Leah’s maid Zilpah bore Jacob a son.

[11]Then Leah said, “A troop comes!” So she called his name Gad.

[12]And Leah’s maid Zilpah bore Jacob a second son.

[13]Then Leah said, “I am happy, for the daughters will call me blessed.” So she called his name Asher.

[14]Now Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest and found mandrakes in the field, and brought them to his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, “Please give me some of your son’s mandrakes.”

[15]But she said to her, “Is it a small matter that you have taken away my husband? Would you take away my son’s mandrakes also?” And Rachel said, “Therefore he will lie with you tonight for your son’s mandrakes.”

[16]When Jacob came out of the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him and said, “You must come in to me, for I have surely hired you with my son’s mandrakes.” And he lay with her that night.

[17]And God listened to Leah, and she conceived and bore Jacob a fifth son.

[18]Leah said, “God has given me my wages, because I have given my maid to my husband.” So she called his name Issachar.

[19]Then Leah conceived again and bore Jacob a sixth son.

[20]And Leah said, “God has endowed me with a good endowment; now my husband will dwell with me, because I have borne him six sons.” So she called his name Zebulun.

[21]Afterward she bore a daughter, and called her name Dinah.

[22]Then God remembered Rachel, and God listened to her and opened her womb.

[23]And she conceived and bore a son, and said, “God has taken away my reproach.”

[24]So she called his name Joseph, and said, “The LORD shall add to me another son.”

Jacob’s Agreement with Laban

[25]And it came to pass, when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Jacob said to Laban, “Send me away, that I may go to my own place and to my country.

[26]“Give me my wives and my children for whom I have served you, and let me go; for you know my service which I have done for you.”

[27]And Laban said to him, “Please stay, if I have found favor in your eyes, for I have learned by experience that the LORD has blessed me for your sake.”

[28]Then he said, “Name me your wages, and I will give it.”

[29]So Jacob said to him, “You know how I have served you and how your livestock has been with me.

[30]“For what you had before I came was little, and it has increased to a great amount; the LORD has blessed you since my coming. And now, when shall I also provide for my own house?”

[31]So he said, “What shall I give you?” And Jacob said, “You shall not give me anything. If you will do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep your flocks:

[32]“Let me pass through all your flock today, removing from there all the speckled and spotted sheep, and all the brown ones among the lambs, and the spotted and speckled among the goats; and these shall be my wages.

[33]“So my righteousness will answer for me in time to come, when the subject of my wages comes before you: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the lambs, will be considered stolen, if it is with me.”

[34]And Laban said, “Oh, that it were according to your word!”

[35]So he removed that day the male goats that were speckled and spotted, all the female goats that were speckled and spotted, every one that had some white in it, and all the brown ones among the lambs, and gave them into the hand of his sons.

[36]Then he put three days’ journey between himself and Jacob, and Jacob fed the rest of Laban’s flocks.

[37]Now Jacob took for himself rods of green poplar and of the almond and chestnut trees, peeled white strips in them, and exposed the white which was in the rods.

[38]And the rods which he had peeled, he set before the flocks in the gutters, in the watering troughs where the flocks came to drink, so that they should conceive when they came to drink.

[39]So the flocks conceived before the rods, and the flocks brought forth streaked, speckled, and spotted.

[40]Then Jacob separated the lambs, and made the flocks face toward the streaked and all the brown in the flock of Laban; but he put his own flocks by themselves and did not put them with Laban’s flock.

[41]And it came to pass, whenever the stronger livestock conceived, that Jacob placed the rods before the eyes of the livestock in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

[42]But when the flocks were feeble, he did not put them in; so the feebler were Laban’s and the stronger Jacob’s.

[43]Thus the man became exceedingly prosperous, and had large flocks, female and male servants, and camels and donkeys.

Genesis 31

Jacob Flees from Laban

[1]Now Jacob heard the words of Laban’s sons, saying, “Jacob has taken away all that was our father’s, and from what was our father’s he has acquired all this wealth.”

[2]And Jacob saw the countenance of Laban, and indeed it was not favorable toward him as before.

[3]Then the LORD said to Jacob, “Return to the land of your fathers and to your family, and I will be with you.”

[4]So Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field, to his flock,

[5]and said to them, “I see your father’s countenance, that it is not favorable toward me as before; but the God of my father has been with me.

[6]“And you know that with all my might I have served your father.

[7]“Yet your father has deceived me and changed my wages ten times, but God did not allow him to hurt me.

[8]“If he said thus: ‘The speckled shall be your wages,’ then all the flocks bore speckled. And if he said thus: ‘The streaked shall be your wages,’ then all the flocks bore streaked.

[9]“So God has taken away the livestock of your father and given them to me.

[10]“And it happened, at the time when the flocks conceived, that I lifted my eyes and saw in a dream, and behold, the rams which leaped upon the flocks were streaked, speckled, and gray-spotted.

[11]“Then the Angel of God spoke to me in a dream, saying, ‘Jacob.’ And I said, ‘Here I am.’

[12]“And He said, ‘Lift your eyes now and see, all the rams which leap on the flocks are streaked, speckled, and gray-spotted; for I have seen all that Laban is doing to you.

[13]‘I am the God of Bethel, where you anointed the pillar and where you made a vow to Me. Now arise, get out of this land, and return to the land of your family.” ’

[14]Then Rachel and Leah answered and said to him, “Is there still any portion or inheritance for us in our father’s house?

[15]“Are we not considered strangers by him? For he has sold us, and also completely consumed our money.

[16]“For all these riches which God has taken from our father are really ours and our children’s; now then, whatever God has said to you, do it.”

[17]Then Jacob rose and set his sons and his wives on camels.

[18]And he carried away all his livestock and all his possessions which he had gained, his acquired livestock which he had gained in Padan Aram, to go to his father Isaac in the land of Canaan.

[19]Now Laban had gone to shear his sheep, and Rachel had stolen the household idols that were her father’s.

[20]And Jacob stole away, unknown to Laban the Syrian, in that he did not tell him that he intended to flee.

[21]So he fled with all that he had. He arose and crossed the river, and headed toward the mountains of Gilead.

Laban Pursues Jacob

[22]And Laban was told on the third day that Jacob had fled.

[23]Then he took his brethren with him and pursued him for seven days’ journey, and he overtook him in the mountains of Gilead.

[24]But God had come to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said to him, “Be careful that you speak to Jacob neither good nor bad.”

[25]So Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mountains, and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mountains of Gilead.

[26]And Laban said to Jacob: “What have you done, that you have stolen away unknown to me, and carried away my daughters like captives taken with the sword?

[27]“Why did you flee away secretly, and steal away from me, and not tell me; for I might have sent you away with joy and songs, with timbrel and harp?

[28]“And you did not allow me to kiss my sons and my daughters. Now you have done foolishly in so doing.

[29]“It is in my power to do you harm, but the God of your father spoke to me last night, saying, ‘Be careful that you speak to Jacob neither good nor bad.’

[30]“And now you have surely gone because you greatly long for your father’s house, but why did you steal my gods?”

[31]Then Jacob answered and said to Laban, “Because I was afraid, for I said, ‘Perhaps you would take your daughters from me by force.’

[32]“With whomever you find your gods, do not let him live. In the presence of our brethren, identify what I have of yours and take it with you.” For Jacob did not know that Rachel had stolen them.

[33]And Laban went into Jacob’s tent, into Leah’s tent, and into the two maids’ tents, but he did not find them. Then he went out of Leah’s tent and entered Rachel’s tent.

[34]Now Rachel had taken the household idols, put them in the camel’s saddle, and sat on them. And Laban searched all about the tent but did not find them.

[35]And she said to her father, “Let it not displease my lord that I cannot rise before you, for the manner of women is with me.” And he searched but did not find the household idols.

[36]Then Jacob was angry and rebuked Laban, and Jacob answered and said to Laban: “What is my trespass? What is my sin, that you have so hotly pursued me?

[37]“Although you have searched all my things, what part of your household things have you found? Set it here before my brethren and your brethren, that they may judge between us both!

[38]“These twenty years I have been with you; your ewes and your female goats have not miscarried their young, and I have not eaten the rams of your flock.

[39]“That which was torn by beasts I did not bring to you; I bore the loss of it. You required it from my hand, whether stolen by day or stolen by night.

[40]“There I was! In the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night, and my sleep departed from my eyes.

[41]“Thus I have been in your house twenty years; I served you fourteen years for your two daughters, and six years for your flock, and you have changed my wages ten times.

[42]"Unless the God of my father, the God of Abraham and the Fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely now you would have sent me away empty-handed. God has seen my affliction and the labor of my hands, and rebuked you last night."

Laban's Covenant with Jacob

[43]And Laban answered and said to Jacob, "These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and this flock is my flock; all that you see is mine. But what can I do this day to these my daughters or to their children whom they have borne?

[44]"Now therefore, come, let us make a covenant, you and I, and let it be a witness between you and me."

[45]So Jacob took a stone and set it up as a pillar.

[46]Then Jacob said to his brethren, "Gather stones." And they took stones and made a heap, and they ate there on the heap.

[47]Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Galeed.

[48]And Laban said, "This heap is a witness between you and me this day." Therefore its name was called Galeed, [49]also Mizpah, because he said, "May the LORD watch between you and me when we are absent one from another.

[50]"If you afflict my daughters, or if you take other wives besides my daughters, although no man is with us—see, God is witness between you and me!"

[51]Then Laban said to Jacob, "Here is this heap and here is this pillar, which I have placed between you and me.

[52]"This heap is a witness, and this pillar is a witness, that I will not pass beyond this heap to you, and you will not pass beyond this heap and this pillar to me, for harm.

[53]"The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the God of their father judge between us." And Jacob swore by the Fear of his father Isaac.

[54]Then Jacob offered a sacrifice on the mountain, and called his brethren to eat bread. And they ate bread and stayed all night on the mountain.

[55]And early in the morning Laban arose, and kissed his sons and daughters and blessed them. Then Laban departed and returned to his place.

Genesis 32

Esau Comes to Meet Jacob

[1]So Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him.

[2]When Jacob saw them, he said, “This is God’s camp.” And he called the name of that place Mahanaim.

[3]Then Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother in the land of Seir, the country of Edom.

[4]And he commanded them, saying, “Speak thus to my lord Esau, ‘Thus your servant Jacob says: “I have dwelt with Laban and stayed there until now.

[5]“I have oxen, donkeys, flocks, and male and female servants; and I have sent to tell my lord, that I may find favor in your sight.” ’ ”

[6]Then the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, “We came to your brother Esau, and he also is coming to meet you, and four hundred men are with him.”

[7]So Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed; and he divided the people that were with him, and the flocks and herds and camels, into two companies.

[8]And he said, “If Esau comes to the one company and attacks it, then the other company which is left will escape.”

[9]Then Jacob said, “O God of my father Abraham and God of my father Isaac, the LORD who said to me, ‘Return to your country and to your family, and I will deal well with you’:

[10]“I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies and of all the truth which You have shown Your servant; for I crossed over this Jordan with my staff, and now I have become two companies.

[11]“Deliver me, I pray, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau; for I fear him, lest he come and attack me and the mother with the children.

[12]“For You said, ‘I will surely treat you well, and make your descendants as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.” ’

13So he lodged there that same night, and took what came to his hand as a present for Esau his brother:

14two hundred female goats and twenty male goats, two hundred ewes and twenty rams,

15thirty milk camels with their colts, forty cows and ten bulls, twenty female donkeys and ten foals.

16Then he delivered them to the hand of his servants, every drove by itself, and said to his servants, “Pass over before me, and put some distance between successive droves.”

17And he commanded the first one, saying, “When Esau my brother meets you and asks you, saying, ‘To whom do you belong, and where are you going? Whose are these in front of you?’

18“then you shall say, ‘They are your servant Jacob’s. It is a present sent to my lord Esau; and behold, he also is behind us.” ’

19So he commanded the second, the third, and all who followed the droves, saying, “In this manner you shall speak to Esau when you find him;

20“and also say, ‘Behold, your servant Jacob is behind us.” ’ For he said, “I will appease him with the present that goes before me, and afterward I will see his face; perhaps he will accept me.”

21So the present went on over before him, but he himself lodged that night in the camp.

Wrestling with God

22And he arose that night and took his two wives, his two female servants, and his eleven sons, and crossed over the ford of Jabbok.

23He took them, sent them over the brook, and sent over what he had.

24Then Jacob was left alone; and a Man wrestled with him until the breaking of day.

25Now when He saw that He did not prevail against him, He touched the socket of his hip; and the socket of Jacob’s hip was out of joint as He wrestled with him.

26And He said, “Let Me go, for the day breaks.” But he said, “I will not let You go unless You bless me!”

27So He said to him, “What is your name?” He said, “Jacob.”

[28]And He said, “Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel; for you have struggled with God and with men, and have prevailed.”

[29]Then Jacob asked, saying, “Tell me Your name, I pray.” And He said, “Why is it that you ask about My name?” And He blessed him there.

[30]So Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: “For I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.”

[31]Just as he crossed over Penuel the sun rose on him, and he limped on his hip.

[32]Therefore to this day the children of Israel do not eat the muscle that shrank, which is on the hip socket, because He touched the socket of Jacob’s hip in the muscle that shrank.

Genesis 33

Jacob and Esau Meet

[1]Now Jacob lifted his eyes and looked, and there, Esau was coming, and with him were four hundred men. So he divided the children among Leah, Rachel, and the two maidservants.

[2]And he put the maidservants and their children in front, Leah and her children behind, and Rachel and Joseph last.

[3]Then he crossed over before them and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

[4]But Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck and kissed him, and they wept.

[5]And he lifted his eyes and saw the women and children, and said, "Who are these with you?" So he said, "The children whom God has graciously given your servant."

[6]Then the maidservants came near, they and their children, and bowed down.

[7]And Leah also came near with her children, and they bowed down. Afterward Joseph and Rachel came near, and they bowed down.

[8]Then Esau said, "What do you mean by all this company which I met?" And he said, "These are to find favor in the sight of my lord."

[9]But Esau said, "I have enough, my brother; keep what you have for yourself."

[10]And Jacob said, "No, please, if I have now found favor in your sight, then receive my present from my hand, inasmuch as I have seen your face as though I had seen the face of God, and you were pleased with me.

[11]"Please, take my blessing that is brought to you, because God has dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough." So he urged him, and he took it.

[12]Then Esau said, "Let us take our journey; let us go, and I will go before you."

[13]But Jacob said to him, "My lord knows that the children are weak, and the flocks and herds which are nursing are with me. And if the men should drive them hard one day, all the flock will die.

[14]"Please let my lord go on ahead before his servant. I will lead on slowly at a pace which the livestock that go before me, and the children, are able to endure, until I come to my lord in Seir."

15And Esau said, "Now let me leave with you some of the people who are with me." But he said, "What need is there? Let me find favor in the sight of my lord."

[16]So Esau returned that day on his way to Seir.

[17]And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, built himself a house, and made booths for his livestock. Therefore the name of the place is called Succoth.

Jacob Comes to Canaan

18Then Jacob came safely to the city of Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan Aram; and he pitched his tent before the city.

[19]And he bought the parcel of land, where he had pitched his tent, from the children of Hamor, Shechem's father, for one hundred pieces of money.

[20]Then he erected an altar there and called it El Elohe Israel.

Genesis 34

The Dinah Incident

[1]Now Dinah the daughter of Leah, whom she had borne to Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land.

[2]And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her and lay with her, and violated her.

[3]His soul was strongly attracted to Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the young woman and spoke kindly to the young woman.

[4]So Shechem spoke to his father Hamor, saying, "Get me this young woman as a wife."

[5]And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter. Now his sons were with his livestock in the field; so Jacob held his peace until they came.

[6]Then Hamor the father of Shechem went out to Jacob to speak with him.

[7]And the sons of Jacob came in from the field when they heard it; and the men were grieved and very angry, because he had done a disgraceful thing in Israel by lying with Jacob's daughter, a thing which ought not to be done.

[8]But Hamor spoke with them, saying, "The soul of my son Shechem longs for your daughter. Please give her to him as a wife.

[9]"And make marriages with us; give your daughters to us, and take our daughters to yourselves.

[10]"So you shall dwell with us, and the land shall be before you. Dwell and trade in it, and acquire possessions for yourselves in it."

[11]Then Shechem said to her father and her brothers, "Let me find favor in your eyes, and whatever you say to me I will give.

[12]"Ask me ever so much dowry and gift, and I will give according to what you say to me; but give me the young woman as a wife."

[13]But the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father, and spoke deceitfully, because he had defiled Dinah their sister.

[14]And they said to them, "We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one who is uncircumcised, for that would be a reproach to us.

[15]"But on this condition we will consent to you: If you will become as we are, if every male of you is circumcised, [16]"then we will give our daughters to you, and we will take your daughters to us; and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

[17]"But if you will not heed us and be circumcised, then we will take our daughter and be gone."

18And their words pleased Hamor and Shechem, Hamor's son.

[19]So the young man did not delay to do the thing, because he delighted in Jacob's daughter. He was more honorable than all the household of his father.

[20]And Hamor and Shechem his son came to the gate of their city, and spoke with the men of their city, saying:

[21]"These men are at peace with us. Therefore let them dwell in the land and trade in it. For indeed the land is large enough for them. Let us take their daughters to us as wives, and let us give them our daughters.

[22]"Only on this condition will the men consent to dwell with us, to be one people: if every male among us is circumcised as they are circumcised.

[23]"Will not their livestock, their property, and every animal of theirs be ours? Only let us consent to them, and they will dwell with us."

[24]And all who went out of the gate of his city heeded Hamor and Shechem his son; every male was circumcised, all who went out of the gate of his city.

25Now it came to pass on the third day, when they were in pain, that two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brothers, each took his sword and came boldly upon the city and killed all the males.

[26]And they killed Hamor and Shechem his son with the edge of the sword, and took Dinah from Shechem's house, and went out.

[27]The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and plundered the city, because their sister had been defiled.

[28]They took their sheep, their oxen, and their donkeys, what was in the city and what was in the field,

[29]and all their wealth. All their little ones and their wives they took captive; and they plundered even all that was in the houses.

[30]Then Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, “You have troubled me by making me obnoxious among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites and the Perizzites; and since I am few in number, they will gather themselves together against me and kill me. I shall be destroyed, my household and I.”

[31]But they said, “Should he treat our sister like a harlot?”

Genesis 35

Jacob's Return to Bethel

[1]Then God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there; and make an altar there to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother."

[2]And Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, "Put away the foreign gods that are among you, purify yourselves, and change your garments.

[3]"Then let us arise and go up to Bethel; and I will make an altar there to God, who answered me in the day of my distress and has been with me in the way which I have gone."

[4]So they gave Jacob all the foreign gods which were in their hands, and the earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the terebinth tree which was by Shechem.

[5]And they journeyed, and the terror of God was upon the cities that were all around them, and they did not pursue the sons of Jacob.

[6]So Jacob came to Luz (that is, Bethel), which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people who were with him.

[7]And he built an altar there and called the place El Bethel, because there God appeared to him when he fled from the face of his brother.

[8]Now Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried below Bethel under the terebinth tree. So the name of it was called Allon Bachuth.

[9]Then God appeared to Jacob again, when he came from Padan Aram, and blessed him.

[10]And God said to him, "Your name is Jacob; your name shall not be called Jacob anymore, but Israel shall be your name." So He called his name Israel.

[11]Also God said to him: "I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall proceed from you, and kings shall come from your body.

[12]"The land which I gave Abraham and Isaac I give to you; and to your descendants after you I give this land."

[13]Then God went up from him in the place where He talked with him.

[14]So Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He talked with him, a pillar of stone; and he poured a drink offering on it, and he poured oil on it.

[15]And Jacob called the name of the place where God spoke with him, Bethel.

Death of Rachel

[16]Then they journeyed from Bethel. And when there was but a little distance to go to Ephrath, Rachel labored in childbirth, and she had hard labor.

[17]Now it came to pass, when she was in hard labor, that the midwife said to her, "Do not fear; you will have this son also."

[18]And so it was, as her soul was departing (for she died), that she called his name Ben-Oni; but his father called him Benjamin.

[19]So Rachel died and was buried on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem).

[20]And Jacob set a pillar on her grave, which is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day.

[21]Then Israel journeyed and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Eder.

[22]And it happened, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine; and Israel heard about it.

Jacob's Twelve Sons

Now the sons of Jacob were twelve:

[23]the sons of Leah were Reuben, Jacob's firstborn, and Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun;

[24]the sons of Rachel were Joseph and Benjamin;

[25]the sons of Bilhah, Rachel's maidservant, were Dan and Naphtali;

[26]and the sons of Zilpah, Leah's maidservant, were Gad and Asher. These were the sons of Jacob who were born to him in Padan Aram.

Death of Isaac

[27]Then Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, or Kirjath Arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had dwelt.

[28]Now the days of Isaac were one hundred and eighty years.

[29]So Isaac breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people, being old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Genesis 36

The Family of Esau

[1]Now this is the genealogy of Esau, who is Edom.

[2]Esau took his wives from the daughters of Canaan: Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite; Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite;

[3]and Basemath, Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebajoth.

[4]Now Adah bore Eliphaz to Esau, and Basemath bore Reuel.

[5]And Aholibamah bore Jeush, Jaalam, and Korah. These were the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Canaan.

[6]Then Esau took his wives, his sons, his daughters, and all the persons of his household, his cattle and all his animals, and all his goods which he had gained in the land of Canaan, and went to a country away from the presence of his brother Jacob.

[7]For their possessions were too great for them to dwell together, and the land where they were strangers could not support them because of their livestock.

[8]So Esau dwelt in Mount Seir. Esau is Edom.

[9]And this is the genealogy of Esau the father of the Edomites in Mount Seir.

[10]These were the names of Esau's sons: Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of Esau, and Reuel the son of Basemath the wife of Esau.

[11]And the sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, and Kenaz.

[12]Now Timna was the concubine of Eliphaz, Esau's son, and she bore Amalek to Eliphaz. These were the sons of Adah, Esau's wife.

[13]These were the sons of Reuel: Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah. These were the sons of Basemath, Esau's wife.

[14]These were the sons of Aholibamah, Esau's wife, the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon. And she bore to Esau: Jeush, Jaalam, and Korah.

The Chiefs of Edom

[15]These were the chiefs of the sons of Esau. The sons of Eliphaz, the firstborn son of Esau, were Chief Teman, Chief Omar, Chief Zepho, Chief Kenaz, [16]Chief Korah, Chief Gatam, and Chief Amalek. These were the chiefs of Eliphaz in the land of Edom. They were the sons of Adah.

[17]These were the sons of Reuel, Esau's son: Chief Nahath, Chief Zerah, Chief Shammah, and Chief Mizzah. These were the chiefs of Reuel in the land of Edom. These were the sons of Basemath, Esau's wife.

[18]And these were the sons of Aholibamah, Esau's wife: Chief Jeush, Chief Jaalam, and Chief Korah. These were the chiefs who descended from Aholibamah, Esau's wife, the daughter of Anah.

[19]These were the sons of Esau, who is Edom, and these were their chiefs.

The Sons of Seir

[20]These were the sons of Seir the Horite who inhabited the land: Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, [21]Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan. These were the chiefs of the Horites, the sons of Seir, in the land of Edom.

[22]And the sons of Lotan were Hori and Hemam. Lotan's sister was Timna.

[23]These were the sons of Shobal: Alvan, Manahath, Ebal, Shepho, and Onam.

[24]These were the sons of Zibeon: both Ajah and Anah. This was the Anah who found the water in the wilderness as he pastured the donkeys of his father Zibeon.

[25]These were the children of Anah: Dishon and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah.

[26]These were the sons of Dishon: Hemdan, Eshban, Ithran, and Cheran.

[27]These were the sons of Ezer: Bilhan, Zaavan, and Akan.

[28]These were the sons of Dishan: Uz and Aran.

[29]These were the chiefs of the Horites: Chief Lotan, Chief Shobal, Chief Zibeon, Chief Anah, [30]Chief Dishon, Chief Ezer, and Chief Dishan. These were the chiefs of the Horites, according to their chiefs in the land of Seir.

The Kings of Edom

[31]Now these were the kings who reigned in the land of Edom before any king reigned over the children of Israel:

[32]Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom, and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

[33]And when Bela died, Jobab the son of Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his place.

[34]When Jobab died, Husham of the land of the Temanites reigned in his place.

[35]And when Husham died, Hadad the son of Bedad, who attacked Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his place. And the name of his city was Avith.

[36]When Hadad died, Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his place.

[37]And when Samlah died, Saul of Rehoboth-by-the-River reigned in his place.

[38]When Saul died, Baal-Hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his place.

[39]And when Baal-Hanan the son of Achbor died, Hadar reigned in his place; and the name of his city was Pau. His wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.

The Chiefs of Esau

[40]And these were the names of the chiefs of Esau, according to their families and their places, by their names: Chief Timnah, Chief Alvah, Chief Jetheth,

[41]Chief Aholibamah, Chief Elah, Chief Pinon,

[42]Chief Kenaz, Chief Teman, Chief Mibzar,

[43]Chief Magdiel, and Chief Iram. These were the chiefs of Edom, according to their dwelling places in the land of their possession. Esau was the father of the Edomites.

Genesis 37

Joseph Dreams of Greatness

[1]Now Jacob dwelt in the land where his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

[2]This is the history of Jacob. Joseph, being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brothers. And the lad was with the sons of Bilhah and the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives; and Joseph brought a bad report of them to his father.

[3]Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age. Also he made him a tunic of many colors.

[4]But when his brothers saw that their father loved him more than all his brothers, they hated him and could not speak peaceably to him.

[5]Now Joseph had a dream, and he told it to his brothers; and they hated him even more.

[6]So he said to them, "Please hear this dream which I have dreamed:

[7]"There we were, binding sheaves in the field. Then behold, my sheaf arose and also stood upright; and indeed your sheaves stood all around and bowed down to my sheaf."

[8]And his brothers said to him, "Shall you indeed reign over us? Or shall you indeed have dominion over us?" So they hated him even more for his dreams and for his words.

[9]Then he dreamed still another dream and told it to his brothers, and said, "Look, I have dreamed another dream. And this time, the sun, the moon, and the eleven stars bowed down to me."

[10]So he told it to his father and his brothers; and his father rebuked him and said to him, "What is this dream that you have dreamed? Shall your mother and I and your brothers indeed come to bow down to the earth before you?"

[11]And his brothers envied him, but his father kept the matter in mind.

Joseph Sold by His Brothers

[12]Then his brothers went to feed their father's flock in Shechem.

[13]And Israel said to Joseph, “Are not your brothers feeding the flock in Shechem? Come, I will send you to them.” So he said to him, “Here I am.”

[14]Then he said to him, “Please go and see if it is well with your brothers and well with the flocks, and bring back word to me.” So he sent him out of the Valley of Hebron, and he went to Shechem.

[15]Now a certain man found him, and there he was, wandering in the field. And the man asked him, saying, “What are you seeking?”

[16]So he said, “I am seeking my brothers. Please tell me where they are feeding their flocks.”

[17]And the man said, “They have departed from here, for I heard them say, ‘Let us go to Dothan.” ’ So Joseph went after his brothers and found them in Dothan.

[18]Now when they saw him afar off, even before he came near them, they conspired against him to kill him.

[19]Then they said to one another, “Look, this dreamer is coming!

[20]“Come therefore, let us now kill him and cast him into some pit; and we shall say, ‘Some wild beast has devoured him.’ We shall see what will become of his dreams!”

[21]But Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands, and said, “Let us not kill him.”

[22]And Reuben said to them, “Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit which is in the wilderness, and do not lay a hand on him”—that he might deliver him out of their hands, and bring him back to his father.

[23]So it came to pass, when Joseph had come to his brothers, that they stripped Joseph of his tunic, the tunic of many colors that was on him.

[24]Then they took him and cast him into a pit. And the pit was empty; there was no water in it.

[25]And they sat down to eat a meal. Then they lifted their eyes and looked, and there was a company of Ishmaelites, coming from Gilead with their camels, bearing spices, balm, and myrrh, on their way to carry them down to Egypt.

[26]So Judah said to his brothers, “What profit is there if we kill our brother and conceal his blood?

[27]“Come and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him, for he is our brother and our flesh.” And his brothers listened.

[28]Then Midianite traders passed by; so the brothers pulled Joseph up and lifted him out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaelites for twenty shekels of silver. And they took Joseph to Egypt.

[29]Then Reuben returned to the pit, and indeed Joseph was not in the pit; and he tore his clothes.

[30]And he returned to his brothers and said, “The lad is no more; and I, where shall I go?”

[31]So they took Joseph’s tunic, killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the tunic in the blood.

[32]Then they sent the tunic of many colors, and they brought it to their father and said, “We have found this. Do you know whether it is your son’s tunic or not?”

[33]And he recognized it and said, “It is my son’s tunic. A wild beast has devoured him. Without doubt Joseph is torn to pieces.”

[34]Then Jacob tore his clothes, put sackcloth on his waist, and mourned for his son many days.

[35]And all his sons and all his daughters arose to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted, and he said, “For I shall go down into the grave to my son in mourning.” Thus his father wept for him.

[36]Now the Midianites had sold him in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh and captain of the guard.

Genesis 38

Judah and Tamar

[1]It came to pass at that time that Judah departed from his brothers, and visited a certain Adullamite whose name was Hirah.

[2]And Judah saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite whose name was Shua, and he married her and went in to her.

[3]So she conceived and bore a son, and he called his name Er.

[4]She conceived again and bore a son, and she called his name Onan.

[5]And she conceived yet again and bore a son, and called his name Shelah. He was at Chezib when she bore him.

[6]Then Judah took a wife for Er his firstborn, and her name was Tamar.

[7]But Er, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the LORD, and the LORD killed him.

[8]And Judah said to Onan, "Go in to your brother's wife and marry her, and raise up an heir to your brother."

[9]But Onan knew that the heir would not be his; and it came to pass, when he went in to his brother's wife, that he emitted on the ground, lest he should give an heir to his brother.

[10]And the thing which he did displeased the LORD; therefore He killed him also.

[11]Then Judah said to Tamar his daughter-in-law, "Remain a widow in your father's house till my son Shelah is grown." For he said, "Lest he also die like his brothers." And Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

[12]Now in the process of time the daughter of Shua, Judah's wife, died; and Judah was comforted, and went up to his sheepshearers at Timnah, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

[13]And it was told Tamar, saying, "Look, your father-in-law is going up to Timnah to shear his sheep."

[14]So she took off her widow's garments, covered herself with a veil and wrapped herself, and sat in an open place which was on the way to Timnah; for she saw that Shelah was grown, and she was not given to him as a wife.

[15]When Judah saw her, he thought she was a harlot, because she had covered her face.

[16]Then he turned to her by the way, and said, “Please let me come in to you”; for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. So she said, “What will you give me, that you may come in to me?”

[17]And he said, “I will send a young goat from the flock.” So she said, “Will you give me a pledge till you send it?”

[18]Then he said, “What pledge shall I give you?” So she said, “Your signet and cord, and your staff that is in your hand.” Then he gave them to her, and went in to her, and she conceived by him.

[19]So she arose and went away, and laid aside her veil and put on the garments of her widowhood.

[20]And Judah sent the young goat by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the woman’s hand, but he did not find her.

[21]Then he asked the men of that place, saying, “Where is the harlot who was openly by the roadside?” And they said, “There was no harlot in this place.”

[22]So he returned to Judah and said, “I cannot find her. Also, the men of the place said there was no harlot in this place.”

[23]Then Judah said, “Let her take them for herself, lest we be shamed; for I sent this young goat and you have not found her.”

[24]And it came to pass, about three months after, that Judah was told, saying, “Tamar your daughter-in-law has played the harlot; furthermore she is with child by harlotry.” So Judah said, “Bring her out and let her be burned!”

[25]When she was brought out, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, “By the man to whom these belong, I am with child.” And she said, “Please determine whose these are—the signet and cord, and staff.”

[26]So Judah acknowledged them and said, “She has been more righteous than I, because I did not give her to Shelah my son.” And he never knew her again.

[27]Now it came to pass, at the time for giving birth, that behold, twins were in her womb.

[28]And so it was, when she was giving birth, that the one put out his hand; and the midwife took a scarlet thread and bound it on his hand, saying, “This one came out first.”

[29]Then it happened, as he drew back his hand, that his brother came out unexpectedly; and she said, “How did you break through? This breach be upon you!” Therefore his name was called Perez.

[30]Afterward his brother came out who had the scarlet thread on his hand. And his name was called Zerah.

Genesis 39

Joseph a Slave in Egypt

[1]Now Joseph had been taken down to Egypt. And Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him from the Ishmaelites who had taken him down there.

[2]The LORD was with Joseph, and he was a successful man; and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

[3]And his master saw that the LORD was with him and that the LORD made all he did to prosper in his hand.

[4]So Joseph found favor in his sight, and served him. Then he made him overseer of his house, and all that he had he put under his authority.

[5]So it was, from the time that he had made him overseer of his house and all that he had, that the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the LORD was on all that he had in the house and in the field.

[6]Thus he left all that he had in Joseph's hand, and he did not know what he had except for the bread which he ate. Now Joseph was handsome in form and appearance.

[7]And it came to pass after these things that his master's wife cast longing eyes on Joseph, and she said, "Lie with me."

[8]But he refused and said to his master's wife, "Look, my master does not know what is with me in the house, and he has committed all that he has to my hand.

[9]"There is no one greater in this house than I, nor has he kept back anything from me but you, because you are his wife. How then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?"

[10]So it was, as she spoke to Joseph day by day, that he did not heed her, to lie with her or to be with her.

[11]But it happened about this time, when Joseph went into the house to do his work, and none of the men of the house was inside,

[12]that she caught him by his garment, saying, "Lie with me." But he left his garment in her hand, and fled and ran outside.

[13]And so it was, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand and fled outside,

[14]that she called to the men of her house and spoke to them, saying, “See, he has brought in to us a Hebrew to mock us. He came in to me to lie with me, and I cried out with a loud voice.

[15]“And it happened, when he heard that I lifted my voice and cried out, that he left his garment with me, and fled and went outside.”

[16]So she kept his garment with her until his master came home.

[17]Then she spoke to him with words like these, saying, “The Hebrew servant whom you brought to us came in to me to mock me;

[18]“so it happened, as I lifted my voice and cried out, that he left his garment with me and fled outside.”

[19]So it was, when his master heard the words which his wife spoke to him, saying, “Your servant did to me after this manner,” that his anger was aroused.

[20]Then Joseph’s master took him and put him into the prison, a place where the king’s prisoners were confined. And he was there in the prison.

[21]But the LORD was with Joseph and showed him mercy, and He gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

[22]And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph’s hand all the prisoners who were in the prison; whatever they did there, it was his doing.

[23]The keeper of the prison did not look into anything that was under Joseph’s authority, because the LORD was with him; and whatever he did, the LORD made it prosper.

Genesis 40

The Prisoners' Dreams

[1]It came to pass after these things that the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt offended their lord, the king of Egypt.

[2]And Pharaoh was angry with his two officers, the chief butler and the chief baker.

[3]So he put them in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, in the prison, the place where Joseph was confined.

[4]And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them; so they were in custody for a while.

[5]Then the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, who were confined in the prison, had a dream, both of them, each man's dream in one night and each man's dream with its own interpretation.

[6]And Joseph came in to them in the morning and looked at them, and saw that they were sad.

[7]So he asked Pharaoh's officers who were with him in the custody of his lord's house, saying, "Why do you look so sad today?"

[8]And they said to him, "We each have had a dream, and there is no interpreter of it." So Joseph said to them, "Do not interpretations belong to God? Tell them to me, please."

[9]Then the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, "Behold, in my dream a vine was before me,

[10]"and in the vine were three branches; it was as though it budded, its blossoms shot forth, and its clusters brought forth ripe grapes.

[11]"Then Pharaoh's cup was in my hand; and I took the grapes and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and placed the cup in Pharaoh's hand."

[12]And Joseph said to him, "This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days.

[13]"Now within three days Pharaoh will lift up your head and restore you to your place, and you will put Pharaoh's cup in his hand according to the former manner, when you were his butler.

[14]"But remember me when it is well with you, and please show kindness to me; make mention of me to Pharaoh, and get me out of this house.

[15]“For indeed I was stolen away from the land of the Hebrews; and also I have done nothing here that they should put me into the dungeon.”

[16]When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said to Joseph, “I also was in my dream, and there were three white baskets on my head.

[17]“In the uppermost basket were all kinds of baked goods for Pharaoh, and the birds ate them out of the basket on my head.”

[18]So Joseph answered and said, “This is the interpretation of it: The three baskets are three days.

[19]“Within three days Pharaoh will lift off your head from you and hang you on a tree; and the birds will eat your flesh from you.”

[20]Now it came to pass on the third day, which was Pharaoh’s birthday, that he made a feast for all his servants; and he lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

[21]Then he restored the chief butler to his butlership again, and he placed the cup in Pharaoh’s hand.

[22]But he hanged the chief baker, as Joseph had interpreted to them.

[23]Yet the chief butler did not remember Joseph, but forgot him.

Genesis 41

Pharaoh's Dreams

[1]Then it came to pass, at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh had a dream; and behold, he stood by the river.

[2]Suddenly there came up out of the river seven cows, fine looking and fat; and they fed in the meadow.

[3]Then behold, seven other cows came up after them out of the river, ugly and gaunt, and stood by the other cows on the bank of the river.

[4]And the ugly and gaunt cows ate up the seven fine looking and fat cows. So Pharaoh awoke.

[5]He slept and dreamed a second time; and suddenly seven heads of grain came up on one stalk, plump and good.

[6]Then behold, seven thin heads, blighted by the east wind, sprang up after them.

[7]And the seven thin heads devoured the seven plump and full heads. So Pharaoh awoke, and indeed, it was a dream.

[8]Now it came to pass in the morning that his spirit was troubled, and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt and all its wise men. And Pharaoh told them his dreams, but there was no one who could interpret them for Pharaoh.

[9]Then the chief butler spoke to Pharaoh, saying: "I remember my faults this day.

[10]"When Pharaoh was angry with his servants, and put me in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, both me and the chief baker, [11]"we each had a dream in one night, he and I. Each of us dreamed according to the interpretation of his own dream.

[12]"Now there was a young Hebrew man with us there, a servant of the captain of the guard. And we told him, and he interpreted our dreams for us; to each man he interpreted according to his own dream.

[13]"And it came to pass, just as he interpreted for us, so it happened. He restored me to my office, and he hanged him."

[14]Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they brought him quickly out of the dungeon; and he shaved, changed his clothing, and came to Pharaoh.

[15]And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “I have had a dream, and there is no one who can interpret it. But I have heard it said of you that you can understand a dream, to interpret it.”

[16]So Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, “It is not in me; God will give Pharaoh an answer of peace.”

[17]Then Pharaoh said to Joseph: “Behold, in my dream I stood on the bank of the river.

[18]“Suddenly seven cows came up out of the river, fine looking and fat; and they fed in the meadow.

[19]“Then behold, seven other cows came up after them, poor and very ugly and gaunt, such ugliness as I have never seen in all the land of Egypt.

[20]“And the gaunt and ugly cows ate up the first seven, the fat cows.

[21]“When they had eaten them up, no one would have known that they had eaten them, for they were just as ugly as at the beginning. So I awoke.

[22]“Also I saw in my dream, and suddenly seven heads came up on one stalk, full and good.

[23]“Then behold, seven heads, withered, thin, and blighted by the east wind, sprang up after them.

[24]“And the thin heads devoured the seven good heads. So I told this to the magicians, but there was no one who could explain it to me.”

[25]Then Joseph said to Pharaoh, “The dreams of Pharaoh are one; God has shown Pharaoh what He is about to do:

[26]“The seven good cows are seven years, and the seven good heads are seven years; the dreams are one.

[27]“And the seven thin and ugly cows which came up after them are seven years, and the seven empty heads blighted by the east wind are seven years of famine.

[28]“This is the thing which I have spoken to Pharaoh. God has shown Pharaoh what He is about to do.

[29]“Indeed seven years of great plenty will come throughout all the land of Egypt;

[30]“but after them seven years of famine will arise, and all the plenty will be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine will deplete the land.

[31]“So the plenty will not be known in the land because of the famine following, for it will be very severe.

[32]“And the dream was repeated to Pharaoh twice because the thing is established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass.

[33]“Now therefore, let Pharaoh select a discerning and wise man, and set him over the land of Egypt.

[34]“Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, to collect one-fifth of the produce of the land of Egypt in the seven plentiful years.

[35]“And let them gather all the food of those good years that are coming, and store up grain under the authority of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

[36]“Then that food shall be as a reserve for the land for the seven years of famine which shall be in the land of Egypt, that the land may not perish during the famine.”

Joseph’s Rise to Power

[37]So the advice was good in the eyes of Pharaoh and in the eyes of all his servants.

[38]And Pharaoh said to his servants, “Can we find such a one as this, a man in whom is the Spirit of God?”

[39]Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Inasmuch as God has shown you all this, there is no one as discerning and wise as you.

[40]“You shall be over my house, and all my people shall be ruled according to your word; only in regard to the throne will I be greater than you.”

[41]And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “See, I have set you over all the land of Egypt.”

[42]Then Pharaoh took his signet ring off his hand and put it on Joseph’s hand; and he clothed him in garments of fine linen and put a gold chain around his neck.

[43]And he had him ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried out before him, “Bow the knee!” So he set him over all the land of Egypt.

[44]Pharaoh also said to Joseph, “I am Pharaoh, and without your consent no man may lift his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.”

[45]And Pharaoh called Joseph’s name Zaphnath-Paaneah. And he gave him as a wife Asenath, the daughter of Poti-Pherah priest of On. So Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

[46]Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

[47]Now in the seven plentiful years the ground brought forth abundantly.

[48]So he gathered up all the food of the seven years which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities; he laid up in every city the food of the fields which surrounded them.

[49]Joseph gathered very much grain, as the sand of the sea, until he stopped counting, for it was immeasurable.

[50]And to Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, whom Asenath, the daughter of Poti-Pherah priest of On, bore to him.

[51]Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh: “For God has made me forget all my toil and all my father’s house.”

[52]And the name of the second he called Ephraim: “For God has caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.”

[53]Then the seven years of plenty which were in the land of Egypt ended,

[54]and the seven years of famine began to come, as Joseph had said. The famine was in all lands, but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

[55]So when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread. Then Pharaoh said to all the Egyptians, “Go to Joseph; whatever he says to you, do.”

[56]The famine was over all the face of the earth, and Joseph opened all the storehouses and sold to the Egyptians. And the famine became severe in the land of Egypt.

[57]So all countries came to Joseph in Egypt to buy grain, because the famine was severe in all lands.

Genesis 42

Joseph's Brothers Go to Egypt

[1]When Jacob saw that there was grain in Egypt, Jacob said to his sons, "Why do you look at one another?"

[2]And he said, "Indeed I have heard that there is grain in Egypt; go down to that place and buy for us there, that we may live and not die."

[3]So Joseph's ten brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt.

[4]But Jacob did not send Joseph's brother Benjamin with his brothers, for he said, "Lest some calamity befall him."

[5]And the sons of Israel went to buy grain among those who journeyed, for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

[6]Now Joseph was governor over the land; and it was he who sold to all the people of the land. And Joseph's brothers came and bowed down before him with their faces to the earth.

[7]Joseph saw his brothers and recognized them, but he acted as a stranger to them and spoke roughly to them. Then he said to them, "Where do you come from?" And they said, "From the land of Canaan to buy food."

[8]So Joseph recognized his brothers, but they did not recognize him.

[9]Then Joseph remembered the dreams which he had dreamed about them, and said to them, "You are spies! You have come to see the nakedness of the land!"

[10]And they said to him, "No, my lord, but your servants have come to buy food.

[11]"We are all one man's sons; we are honest men; your servants are not spies."

[12]But he said to them, "No, but you have come to see the nakedness of the land."

[13]And they said, "Your servants are twelve brothers, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and in fact, the youngest is with our father today, and one is no more."

[14]But Joseph said to them, "It is as I spoke to you, saying, 'You are spies!'

[15]"In this manner you shall be tested: By the life of Pharaoh, you shall not leave this place unless your youngest brother comes here.

[16]"Send one of you, and let him bring your brother; and you shall be kept in prison, that your words may be tested to see whether there is any truth in you; or else, by the life of Pharaoh, surely you are spies!"

[17]So he put them all together in prison three days.

[18]Then Joseph said to them the third day, "Do this and live, for I fear God:

[19]"If you are honest men, let one of your brothers be confined to your prison house; but you, go and carry grain for the famine of your houses.

[20]"And bring your youngest brother to me; so your words will be verified, and you shall not die." And they did so.

[21]Then they said to one another, "We are truly guilty concerning our brother, for we saw the anguish of his soul when he pleaded with us, and we would not hear; therefore this distress has come upon us."

[22]And Reuben answered them, saying, "Did I not speak to you, saying, 'Do not sin against the boy'; and you would not listen? Therefore behold, his blood is now required of us."

[23]But they did not know that Joseph understood them, for he spoke to them through an interpreter.

[24]And he turned himself away from them and wept. Then he returned to them again, and talked with them. And he took Simeon from them and bound him before their eyes.

The Brothers Return to Canaan

[25]Then Joseph gave a command to fill their sacks with grain, to restore every man's money to his sack, and to give them provisions for the journey. Thus he did for them.

[26]So they loaded their donkeys with the grain and departed from there.

[27]But as one of them opened his sack to give his donkey feed at the encampment, he saw his money; and there it was, in the mouth of his sack.

[28]So he said to his brothers, "My money has been restored, and there it is, in my sack!" Then their hearts failed them and they were afraid, saying to one another, “What is this that God has done to us?”

[29]Then they went to Jacob their father in the land of Canaan and told him all that had happened to them, saying:

[30]“The man who is lord of the land spoke roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

[31]“But we said to him, ‘We are honest men; we are not spies.

[32]‘We are twelve brothers, sons of our father; one is no more, and the youngest is with our father this day in the land of Canaan.’

[33]“Then the man, the lord of the country, said to us, ‘By this I will know that you are honest men: Leave one of your brothers here with me, take food for the famine of your households, and be gone.

[34]‘And bring your youngest brother to me; so I shall know that you are not spies, but that you are honest men. I will grant your brother to you, and you may trade in the land.” ’

[35]Then it happened as they emptied their sacks, that surprisingly each man’s bundle of money was in his sack; and when they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

[36]And Jacob their father said to them, “You have bereaved me: Joseph is no more, Simeon is no more, and you want to take Benjamin. All these things are against me.”

[37]Then Reuben spoke to his father, saying, “Kill my two sons if I do not bring him back to you; put him in my hands, and I will bring him back to you.”

[38]But he said, “My son shall not go down with you, for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. If any calamity should befall him along the way in which you go, then you would bring down my gray hair with sorrow to the grave.”

Genesis 43

Joseph's Brothers Return with Benjamin

[1]Now the famine was severe in the land.

[2]And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the grain which they had brought from Egypt, that their father said to them, "Go back, buy us a little food."

[3]But Judah spoke to him, saying, "The man solemnly warned us, saying, 'You shall not see my face unless your brother is with you.'

[4]"If you send our brother with us, we will go down and buy you food.

[5]"But if you will not send him, we will not go down; for the man said to us, 'You shall not see my face unless your brother is with you." '

[6]And Israel said, "Why did you deal so wrongfully with me as to tell the man whether you had still another brother?"

[7]But they said, "The man asked us pointedly about ourselves and our family, saying, 'Is your father still alive? Have you another brother?' And we told him according to these words. Could we possibly have known that he would say, 'Bring your brother down'?"

[8]Then Judah said to Israel his father, "Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go, that we may live and not die, both we and you and also our little ones.

[9]"I myself will be surety for him; from my hand you shall require him. If I do not bring him back to you and set him before you, then let me bear the blame forever.

[10]"For if we had not lingered, surely by now we would have returned this second time."

[11]And their father Israel said to them, "If it must be so, then do this: Take some of the best fruits of the land in your vessels and carry down a present for the man—a little balm and a little honey, spices and myrrh, pistachio nuts and almonds.

[12]"Take double money in your hand, and take back in your hand the money that was returned in the mouth of your sacks; perhaps it was an oversight.

[13]"Take your brother also, and arise, go back to the man.

[14]"And may God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may release your other brother and Benjamin. If I am bereaved, I am bereaved!"

15So the men took that present and Benjamin, and they took double money in their hand, and arose and went down to Egypt; and they stood before Joseph.

[16]When Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the steward of his house, "Take these men to my home, and slaughter an animal and make ready; for these men will dine with me at noon."

[17]Then the man did as Joseph ordered, and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

[18]Now the men were afraid because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, "It is because of the money, which was returned in our sacks the first time, that we are brought in, so that he may make a case against us and seize us, to take us as slaves with our donkeys."

[19]When they drew near to the steward of Joseph's house, they talked with him at the door of the house,

[20]and said, "O sir, we indeed came down the first time to buy food;

[21]"but it happened, when we came to the encampment, that we opened our sacks, and there, each man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight; so we have brought it back in our hand.

[22]"And we have brought down other money in our hands to buy food. We do not know who put our money in our sacks."

[23]But he said, "Peace be with you, do not be afraid. Your God and the God of your father has given you treasure in your sacks; I had your money." Then he brought Simeon out to them.

[24]So the man brought the men into Joseph's house and gave them water, and they washed their feet; and he gave their donkeys feed.

[25]Then they made the present ready for Joseph's coming at noon, for they heard that they would eat bread there.

26And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and bowed down before him to the earth.

[27]Then he asked them about their well-being, and said, "Is your father well, the old man of whom you spoke? Is he still alive?"

[28]And they answered, “Your servant our father is in good health; he is still alive.” And they bowed their heads down and prostrated themselves.

[29]Then he lifted his eyes and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother’s son, and said, “Is this your younger brother of whom you spoke to me?” And he said, “God be gracious to you, my son.”

[30]Now his heart yearned for his brother; so Joseph made haste and sought somewhere to weep. And he went into his chamber and wept there.

[31]Then he washed his face and came out; and he restrained himself, and said, “Serve the bread.”

[32]So they set him a place by himself, and them by themselves, and the Egyptians who ate with him by themselves; because the Egyptians could not eat food with the Hebrews, for that is an abomination to the Egyptians.

[33]And they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright and the youngest according to his youth; and the men looked in astonishment at one another.

[34]Then he took servings to them from before him, but Benjamin’s serving was five times as much as any of theirs. So they drank and were merry with him.

Genesis 44

Joseph's Cup

[1]And he commanded the steward of his house, saying, "Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put each man's money in the mouth of his sack.

[2]"Also put my cup, the silver cup, in the mouth of the sack of the youngest, and his grain money." So he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

[3]As soon as the morning dawned, the men were sent away, they and their donkeys.

[4]When they had gone out of the city, and were not yet far off, Joseph said to his steward, "Get up, follow the men; and when you overtake them, say to them, 'Why have you repaid evil for good?

[5]'Is not this the one from which my lord drinks, and with which he indeed practices divination? You have done evil in so doing." '

[6]So he overtook them, and he spoke to them these same words.

[7]And they said to him, "Why does my lord say these words? Far be it from us that your servants should do such a thing.

[8]"Look, we brought back to you from the land of Canaan the money which we found in the mouth of our sacks. How then could we steal silver or gold from your lord's house?

[9]"With whomever of your servants it is found, let him die, and we also will be my lord's slaves."

[10]And he said, "Now also let it be according to your words; he with whom it is found shall be my slave, and you shall be blameless."

[11]Then each man speedily let down his sack to the ground, and each opened his sack.

[12]So he searched. He began with the oldest and left off with the youngest; and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

[13]Then they tore their clothes, and each man loaded his donkey and returned to the city.

[14]So Judah and his brothers came to Joseph's house, and he was still there; and they fell before him on the ground.

[15]And Joseph said to them, “What deed is this you have done? Did you not know that such a man as I can certainly practice divination?”

[16]Then Judah said, “What shall we say to my lord? What shall we speak? Or how shall we clear ourselves? God has found out the iniquity of your servants; here we are, my lord’s slaves, both we and he also with whom the cup was found.”

[17]But he said, “Far be it from me that I should do so; the man in whose hand the cup was found, he shall be my slave. And as for you, go up in peace to your father.”

Judah Intercedes for Benjamin

[18]Then Judah came near to him and said: “O my lord, please let your servant speak a word in my lord’s hearing, and do not let your anger burn against your servant; for you are even like Pharaoh.

[19]“My lord asked his servants, saying, ‘Have you a father or a brother?’

[20]“And we said to my lord, ‘We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, who is young; his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother’s children, and his father loves him.’

[21]“Then you said to your servants, ‘Bring him down to me, that I may set my eyes on him.’

[22]“And we said to my lord, ‘The lad cannot leave his father, for if he should leave his father, his father would die.’

[23]“But you said to your servants, ‘Unless your youngest brother comes down with you, you shall see my face no more.’

[24]“So it was, when we went up to your servant my father, that we told him the words of my lord.

[25]“And our father said, ‘Go back and buy us a little food.’

[26]“But we said, ‘We cannot go down; if our youngest brother is with us, then we will go down; for we may not see the man’s face unless our youngest brother is with us.’

[27]“Then your servant my father said to us, ‘You know that my wife bore me two sons;

[28]‘and the one went out from me, and I said, “Surely he is torn to pieces”; and I have not seen him since.

[29]‘But if you take this one also from me, and calamity befalls him, you shall bring down my gray hair with sorrow to the grave.’

[30]“Now therefore, when I come to your servant my father, and the lad is not with us, since his life is bound up in the lad’s life, [31]“it will happen, when he sees that the lad is not with us, that he will die. So your servants will bring down the gray hair of your servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

[32]“For your servant became surety for the lad to my father, saying, ‘If I do not bring him back to you, then I shall bear the blame before my father forever.’

[33]“Now therefore, please let your servant remain instead of the lad as a slave to my lord, and let the lad go up with his brothers.

[34]“For how shall I go up to my father if the lad is not with me, lest perhaps I see the evil that would come upon my father?”

Genesis 45

Joseph Revealed to His Brothers

[1]Then Joseph could not restrain himself before all those who stood by him, and he cried out, “Make everyone go out from me!” So no one stood with him while Joseph made himself known to his brothers.

[2]And he wept aloud, and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard it.

[3]Then Joseph said to his brothers, “I am Joseph; does my father still live?” But his brothers could not answer him, for they were dismayed in his presence.

[4]And Joseph said to his brothers, “Please come near to me.” So they came near. Then he said: “I am Joseph your brother, whom you sold into Egypt.

[5]“But now, do not therefore be grieved or angry with yourselves because you sold me here; for God sent me before you to preserve life.

[6]“For these two years the famine has been in the land, and there are still five years in which there will be neither plowing nor harvesting.

[7]“And God sent me before you to preserve a posterity for you in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.

[8]“So now it was not you who sent me here, but God; and He has made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

[9]“Hurry and go up to my father, and say to him, ‘Thus says your son Joseph: “God has made me lord of all Egypt; come down to me, do not tarry.

[10]“You shall dwell in the land of Goshen, and you shall be near to me, you and your children, your children’s children, your flocks and your herds, and all that you have.

[11]“There I will provide for you, lest you and your household, and all that you have, come to poverty; for there are still five years of famine.” ’

[12]“And behold, your eyes and the eyes of my brother Benjamin see that it is my mouth that speaks to you.

[13]“So you shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that you have seen; and you shall hurry and bring my father down here.”

[14]Then he fell on his brother Benjamin’s neck and wept, and Benjamin wept on his neck.

[15]Moreover he kissed all his brothers and wept over them, and after that his brothers talked with him.

[16]Now the report of it was heard in Pharaoh’s house, saying, “Joseph’s brothers have come.” So it pleased Pharaoh and his servants well.

[17]And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Say to your brothers, ‘Do this: Load your animals and depart; go to the land of Canaan.

[18]‘Bring your father and your households and come to me; I will give you the best of the land of Egypt, and you will eat the fat of the land.

[19]‘Now you are commanded—do this: Take carts out of the land of Egypt for your little ones and your wives; bring your father and come.

[20]‘Also do not be concerned about your goods, for the best of all the land of Egypt is yours.’ ”

[21]Then the sons of Israel did so; and Joseph gave them carts, according to the command of Pharaoh, and he gave them provisions for the journey.

[22]He gave to all of them, to each man, changes of garments; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver and five changes of garments.

[23]And he sent to his father these things: ten donkeys loaded with the good things of Egypt, and ten female donkeys loaded with grain, bread, and food for his father for the journey.

[24]So he sent his brothers away, and they departed; and he said to them, “See that you do not become troubled along the way.”

[25]Then they went up out of Egypt, and came to the land of Canaan to Jacob their father.

[26]And they told him, saying, “Joseph is still alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt.” And Jacob’s heart stood still, because he did not believe them.

[27]But when they told him all the words which Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the carts which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived.

[28]Then Israel said, “It is enough. Joseph my son is still alive. I will go and see him before I die.”

Genesis 46

Jacob's Journey to Egypt

[1]So Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beersheba, and offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac.

[2]Then God spoke to Israel in the visions of the night, and said, "Jacob, Jacob!" And he said, "Here I am."

[3]So He said, "I am God, the God of your father; do not fear to go down to Egypt, for I will make of you a great nation there.

[4]"I will go down with you to Egypt, and I will also surely bring you up again; and Joseph will put his hand on your eyes."

[5]Then Jacob arose from Beersheba; and the sons of Israel carried their father Jacob, their little ones, and their wives, in the carts which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

[6]So they took their livestock and their goods, which they had acquired in the land of Canaan, and went to Egypt, Jacob and all his descendants with him.

[7]His sons and his sons' sons, his daughters and his sons' daughters, and all his descendants he brought with him to Egypt.

[8]Now these were the names of the children of Israel, Jacob and his sons, who went to Egypt: Reuben was Jacob's firstborn.

[9]The sons of Reuben were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.

[10]The sons of Simeon were Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul, the son of a Canaanite woman.

[11]The sons of Levi were Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

[12]The sons of Judah were Er, Onan, Shelah, Perez, and Zerah (but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan). The sons of Perez were Hezron and Hamul.

[13]The sons of Issachar were Tola, Puvah, Job, and Shimron.

[14]The sons of Zebulun were Sered, Elon, and Jahleel.

[15]These were the sons of Leah, whom she bore to Jacob in Padan Aram, with his daughter Dinah. All the persons, his sons and his daughters, were thirty-three.

16The sons of Gad were Ziphion, Haggi, Shuni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi, and Areli.

17The sons of Asher were Jimnah, Ishuah, Isui, Beriah, and Serah, their sister. And the sons of Beriah were Heber and Malchiel.

18These were the sons of Zilpah, whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter; and these she bore to Jacob: sixteen persons.

19The sons of Rachel, Jacob's wife, were Joseph and Benjamin.

20And to Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, whom Asenath, the daughter of Poti-Pherah priest of On, bore to him.

21The sons of Benjamin were Belah, Becher, Ashbel, Gera, Naaman, Ehi, Rosh, Muppim, Huppim, and Ard.

22These were the sons of Rachel, who were born to Jacob: fourteen persons in all.

23The son of Dan was Hushim.

24The sons of Naphtali were Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Shillem.

25These were the sons of Bilhah, whom Laban gave to Rachel his daughter, and she bore these to Jacob: seven persons in all.

26All the persons who went with Jacob to Egypt, who came from his body, besides Jacob's sons' wives, were sixty-six persons in all.

27And the sons of Joseph who were born to him in Egypt were two persons. All the persons of the house of Jacob who went to Egypt were seventy.

Jacob Settles in Goshen

28Then he sent Judah before him to Joseph, to point out before him the way to Goshen. And they came to the land of Goshen.

29So Joseph made ready his chariot and went up to Goshen to meet his father Israel; and he presented himself to him, and fell on his neck and wept on his neck a good while.

30And Israel said to Joseph, "Now let me die, since I have seen your face, because you are still alive."

31Then Joseph said to his brothers and to his father's household, "I will go up and tell Pharaoh, and say to him, 'My brothers and those of my father's house, who were in the land of Canaan, have come to me.

[32]‘And the men are shepherds, for their occupation has been to feed livestock; and they have brought their flocks, their herds, and all that they have.’

[33]“So it shall be, when Pharaoh calls you and says, ‘What is your occupation?’

[34]“that you shall say, ‘Your servants’ occupation has been with livestock from our youth even till now, both we and also our fathers,’ that you may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination to the Egyptians.”

Genesis 47

[1]Then Joseph went and told Pharaoh, and said, “My father and my brothers, their flocks and their herds and all that they possess, have come from the land of Canaan; and indeed they are in the land of Goshen.”

[2]And he took five men from among his brothers and presented them to Pharaoh.

[3]Then Pharaoh said to his brothers, “What is your occupation?” And they said to Pharaoh, “Your servants are shepherds, both we and also our fathers.”

[4]And they said to Pharaoh, “We have come to dwell in the land, because your servants have no pasture for their flocks, for the famine is severe in the land of Canaan. Now therefore, please let your servants dwell in the land of Goshen.”

[5]Then Pharaoh spoke to Joseph, saying, “Your father and your brothers have come to you.

[6]“The land of Egypt is before you. Have your father and brothers dwell in the best of the land; let them dwell in the land of Goshen. And if you know any competent men among them, then make them chief herdsmen over my livestock.”

[7]Then Joseph brought in his father Jacob and set him before Pharaoh; and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

[8]Pharaoh said to Jacob, “How old are you?”

[9]And Jacob said to Pharaoh, “The days of the years of my pilgrimage are one hundred and thirty years; few and evil have been the days of the years of my life, and they have not attained to the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.”

[10]So Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

[11]And Joseph situated his father and his brothers, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.

[12]Then Joseph provided his father, his brothers, and all his father’s household with bread, according to the number in their families.

Joseph Deals with the Famine

13Now there was no bread in all the land; for the famine was very severe, so that the land of Egypt and the land of Canaan languished because of the famine.

14And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, for the grain which they bought; and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

15So when the money failed in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came to Joseph and said, "Give us bread, for why should we die in your presence? For the money has failed."

16Then Joseph said, "Give your livestock, and I will give you bread for your livestock, if the money is gone."

17So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for the horses, the flocks, the cattle of the herds, and for the donkeys. Thus he fed them with bread in exchange for all their livestock that year.

18When that year had ended, they came to him the next year and said to him, "We will not hide from my lord that our money is gone; my lord also has our herds of livestock. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our bodies and our lands.

19"Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants of Pharaoh; give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land may not be desolate."

20Then Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for every man of the Egyptians sold his field, because the famine was severe upon them. So the land became Pharaoh's.

21And as for the people, he moved them into the cities, from one end of the borders of Egypt to the other end.

22Only the land of the priests he did not buy; for the priests had rations allotted to them by Pharaoh, and they ate their rations which Pharaoh gave them; therefore they did not sell their lands.

23Then Joseph said to the people, "Indeed I have bought you and your land this day for Pharaoh. Look, here is seed for you, and you shall sow the land.

[24]“And it shall come to pass in the harvest that you shall give one-fifth to Pharaoh. Four-fifths shall be your own, as seed for the field and for your food, for those of your households and as food for your little ones.”

[25]So they said, “You have saved our lives; let us find favor in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh’s servants.”

[26]And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt to this day, that Pharaoh should have one-fifth, except for the land of the priests only, which did not become Pharaoh’s.

Joseph’s Vow to Jacob

[27]So Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions there and grew and multiplied exceedingly.

[28]And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years. So the length of Jacob’s life was one hundred and forty-seven years.

[29]When the time drew near that Israel must die, he called his son Joseph and said to him, “Now if I have found favor in your sight, please put your hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me. Please do not bury me in Egypt,

[30]“but let me lie with my fathers; you shall carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their burial place.” And he said, “I will do as you have said.”

[31]Then he said, “Swear to me.” And he swore to him. So Israel bowed himself on the head of the bed.

Genesis 48

Jacob Blesses Joseph's Sons

[1]Now it came to pass after these things that Joseph was told, "Indeed your father is sick"; and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

[2]And Jacob was told, "Look, your son Joseph is coming to you"; and Israel strengthened himself and sat up on the bed.

[3]Then Jacob said to Joseph: "God Almighty appeared to me at Luz in the land of Canaan and blessed me,

[4]"and said to me, 'Behold, I will make you fruitful and multiply you, and I will make of you a multitude of people, and give this land to your descendants after you as an everlasting possession.'

[5]"And now your two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, who were born to you in the land of Egypt before I came to you in Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

[6]"Your offspring whom you beget after them shall be yours; they will be called by the name of their brothers in their inheritance.

[7]"But as for me, when I came from Padan, Rachel died beside me in the land of Canaan on the way, when there was but a little distance to go to Ephrath; and I buried her there on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem)."

[8]Then Israel saw Joseph's sons, and said, "Who are these?"

[9]Joseph said to his father, "They are my sons, whom God has given me in this place." And he said, "Please bring them to me, and I will bless them."

[10]Now the eyes of Israel were dim with age, so that he could not see. Then Joseph brought them near him, and he kissed them and embraced them.

[11]And Israel said to Joseph, "I had not thought to see your face; but in fact, God has also shown me your offspring!"

[12]So Joseph brought them from beside his knees, and he bowed down with his face to the earth.

[14]Then Israel stretched out his right hand and laid it on Ephraim’s head, who was the younger, and his left hand on Manasseh’s head, guiding his hands knowingly, for Manasseh was the firstborn.

[15]And he blessed Joseph, and said:

“God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac walked,
The God who has fed me all my life long to this day,
[16]The Angel who has redeemed me from all evil,
Bless the lads;
Let my name be named upon them,
And the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac;
And let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.”

[17]Now when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, it displeased him; so he took hold of his father’s hand to remove it from Ephraim’s head to Manasseh’s head.

[18]And Joseph said to his father, “Not so, my father, for this one is the firstborn; put your right hand on his head.”

[19]But his father refused and said, “I know, my son, I know. He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great; but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his descendants shall become a multitude of nations.”

[20]So he blessed them that day, saying, “By you Israel will bless, saying, ‘May God make you as Ephraim and as Manasseh!’ ” And thus he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

[21]Then Israel said to Joseph, “Behold, I am dying, but God will be with you and bring you back to the land of your fathers.

[22]“Moreover I have given to you one portion above your brothers, which I took from the hand of the Amorite with my sword and my bow.”

Genesis 49

Jacob's Last Words to His Sons

[1]And Jacob called his sons and said, "Gather together, that I may tell you what shall befall you in the last days:

[2]"Gather together and hear, you sons of Jacob,
And listen to Israel your father.

[3]"Reuben, you are my firstborn,
My might and the beginning of my strength,
The excellency of dignity and the excellency of power.
[4]Unstable as water, you shall not excel,
Because you went up to your father's bed;
Then you defiled it—
He went up to my couch.

[5]"Simeon and Levi are brothers;
Instruments of cruelty are in their dwelling place.
[6]Let not my soul enter their council;
Let not my honor be united to their assembly;
For in their anger they slew a man,
And in their self-will they hamstrung an ox.
[7]Cursed be their anger, for it is fierce;
And their wrath, for it is cruel!
I will divide them in Jacob
And scatter them in Israel.

[8]"Judah, you are he whom your brothers shall praise;
Your hand shall be on the neck of your enemies;
Your father's children shall bow down before you.
[9]Judah is a lion's whelp;
From the prey, my son, you have gone up.
He bows down, he lies down as a lion;
And as a lion, who shall rouse him?
[10]The scepter shall not depart from Judah,

Nor a lawgiver from between his feet,
Until Shiloh comes;
And to Him shall be the obedience of the people.
[11]Binding his donkey to the vine,
And his donkey's colt to the choice vine,
He washed his garments in wine,
And his clothes in the blood of grapes.
[12]His eyes are darker than wine,
And his teeth whiter than milk.

[13]"Zebulun shall dwell by the haven of the sea;
He shall become a haven for ships,
And his border shall adjoin Sidon.

[14]"Issachar is a strong donkey,
Lying down between two burdens;
[15]He saw that rest was good,
And that the land was pleasant;
He bowed his shoulder to bear a burden,
And became a band of slaves.

[16]"Dan shall judge his people
As one of the tribes of Israel.
[17]Dan shall be a serpent by the way,
A viper by the path,
That bites the horse's heels
So that its rider shall fall backward.
[18]I have waited for your salvation, O LORD!

[19]"Gad, a troop shall tramp upon him,
But he shall triumph at last.

[20]"Bread from Asher shall be rich,
And he shall yield royal dainties.

[21]"Naphtali is a deer let loose;
He uses beautiful words.

[22]“Joseph is a fruitful bough,
A fruitful bough by a well;
His branches run over the wall.
[23]The archers have bitterly grieved him,
Shot at him and hated him.
[24]But his bow remained in strength,
And the arms of his hands were made strong
By the hands of the Mighty God of Jacob
(From there is the Shepherd, the Stone of Israel),
[25]By the God of your father who will help you,
And by the Almighty who will bless you
With blessings of heaven above,
Blessings of the deep that lies beneath,
Blessings of the breasts and of the womb.
[26]The blessings of your father
Have excelled the blessings of my ancestors,
Up to the utmost bound of the everlasting hills.
They shall be on the head of Joseph,
And on the crown of the head of him who was separate from his brothers.

[27]“Benjamin is a ravenous wolf;
In the morning he shall devour the prey,
And at night he shall divide the spoil.”

[28]All these are the twelve tribes of Israel, and this is what their father spoke to them. And he blessed them; he blessed each one according to his own blessing.

Jacob’s Death and Burial

[29]Then he charged them and said to them: “I am to be gathered to my people; bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite,

[30]“in the cave that is in the field of Machpelah, which is before Mamre in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite as a possession for a burial place.

[31]“There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife, there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife, and there I buried Leah.

[32]“The field and the cave that is there were purchased from the sons of Heth.”

[33]And when Jacob had finished commanding his sons, he drew his feet up into the bed and breathed his last, and was gathered to his people.

Genesis 50

[1]Then Joseph fell on his father’s face and wept over him, and kissed him.

[2]And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father. So the physicians embalmed Israel.

[3]Forty days were required for him, for such are the days required for those who are embalmed; and the Egyptians mourned for him seventy days.

[4]Now when the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spoke to the household of Pharaoh, saying, “If now I have found favor in your eyes, please speak in the hearing of Pharaoh, saying,

[5]‘My father made me swear, saying, “Behold, I am dying; in my grave which I dug for myself in the land of Canaan, there you shall bury me.” Now therefore, please let me go up and bury my father, and I will come back.’ ”

[6]And Pharaoh said, “Go up and bury your father, as he made you swear.”

[7]So Joseph went up to bury his father; and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt,

[8]as well as all the house of Joseph, his brothers, and his father’s house. Only their little ones, their flocks, and their herds they left in the land of Goshen.

[9]And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen, and it was a very great gathering.

[10]Then they came to the threshing floor of Atad, which is beyond the Jordan, and they mourned there with a great and very solemn lamentation. He observed seven days of mourning for his father.

[11]And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning at the threshing floor of Atad, they said, “This is a deep mourning of the Egyptians.” Therefore its name was called Abel Mizraim, which is beyond the Jordan.

[12]So his sons did for him just as he had commanded them.

[13]For his sons carried him to the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre, which Abraham bought with the field from Ephron the Hittite as property for a burial place.

[14]And after he had buried his father, Joseph returned to Egypt, he and his brothers and all who went up with him to bury his father.

Joseph Reassures His Brothers

15When Joseph's brothers saw that their father was dead, they said, "Perhaps Joseph will hate us, and may actually repay us for all the evil which we did to him."

[16]So they sent messengers to Joseph, saying, "Before your father died he commanded, saying,

[17]'Thus you shall say to Joseph: "I beg you, please forgive the trespass of your brothers and their sin; for they did evil to you.' " Now, please, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of your father." And Joseph wept when they spoke to him.

[18]Then his brothers also went and fell down before his face, and they said, "Behold, we are your servants."

[19]Joseph said to them, "Do not be afraid, for am I in the place of God?

[20]"But as for you, you meant evil against me; but God meant it for good, in order to bring it about as it is this day, to save many people alive.

[21]"Now therefore, do not be afraid; I will provide for you and your little ones." And he comforted them and spoke kindly to them.

Death of Joseph

22So Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he and his father's household. And Joseph lived one hundred and ten years.

[23]Joseph saw Ephraim's children to the third generation. The children of Machir, the son of Manasseh, were also brought up on Joseph's knees.

[24]And Joseph said to his brethren, "I am dying; but God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land to the land of which He swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob."

[25]Then Joseph took an oath from the children of Israel, saying, “God will surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones from here.”

[26]So Joseph died, being one hundred and ten years old; and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

The Second Book of Moses Called

Exodus

Exodus 1

Israel's Suffering in Egypt

[1]Now these are the names of the children of Israel who came to Egypt; each man and his household came with Jacob:

[2]Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah;

[3]Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin;

[4]Dan, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

[5]All those who were descendants of Jacob were seventy persons (for Joseph was in Egypt already).

[6]And Joseph died, all his brothers, and all that generation.

[7]But the children of Israel were fruitful and increased abundantly, multiplied and grew exceedingly mighty; and the land was filled with them.

[8]Now there arose a new king over Egypt, who did not know Joseph.

[9]And he said to his people, "Look, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we;

[10]"come, let us deal shrewdly with them, lest they multiply, and it happen, in the event of war, that they also join our enemies and fight against us, and so go up out of the land."

[11]Therefore they set taskmasters over them to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh supply cities, Pithom and Raamses.

[12]But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were in dread of the children of Israel.

[13]So the Egyptians made the children of Israel serve with rigor.

[14]And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage—in mortar, in brick, and in all manner of service in the field. All their service in which they made them serve was with rigor.

[15]Then the king of Egypt spoke to the Hebrew midwives, of whom the name of one was Shiphrah and the name of the other Puah;

[16]and he said, "When you do the duties of a midwife for the Hebrew women, and see them on the birthstools, if it is a son, then you shall kill him; but if it is a daughter, then she shall live."

[17]But the midwives feared God, and did not do as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the male children alive.

[18]So the king of Egypt called for the midwives and said to them, “Why have you done this thing, and saved the male children alive?”

[19]And the midwives said to Pharaoh, “Because the Hebrew women are not like the Egyptian women; for they are lively and give birth before the midwives come to them.”

[20]Therefore God dealt well with the midwives, and the people multiplied and grew very mighty.

[21]And so it was, because the midwives feared God, that He provided households for them.

[22]So Pharaoh commanded all his people, saying, “Every son who is born you shall cast into the river, and every daughter you shall save alive.”

Exodus 2

Moses Is Born

[1]And a man of the house of Levi went and took as wife a daughter of Levi.

[2]So the woman conceived and bore a son. And when she saw that he was a beautiful child, she hid him three months.

[3]But when she could no longer hide him, she took an ark of bulrushes for him, daubed it with asphalt and pitch, put the child in it, and laid it in the reeds by the river's bank.

[4]And his sister stood afar off, to know what would be done to him.

[5]Then the daughter of Pharaoh came down to bathe at the river. And her maidens walked along the riverside; and when she saw the ark among the reeds, she sent her maid to get it.

[6]And when she opened it, she saw the child, and behold, the baby wept. So she had compassion on him, and said, "This is one of the Hebrews' children."

[7]Then his sister said to Pharaoh's daughter, "Shall I go and call a nurse for you from the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for you?"

[8]And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, "Go." So the maiden went and called the child's mother.

[9]Then Pharaoh's daughter said to her, "Take this child away and nurse him for me, and I will give you your wages." So the woman took the child and nursed him.

[10]And the child grew, and she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. So she called his name Moses, saying, "Because I drew him out of the water."

Moses Flees to Midian

[11]Now it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out to his brethren and looked at their burdens. And he saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew, one of his brethren.

[12]So he looked this way and that way, and when he saw no one, he killed the Egyptian and hid him in the sand.

[13]And when he went out the second day, behold, two Hebrew men were fighting, and he said to the one who did the wrong, “Why are you striking your companion?”

[14]Then he said, “Who made you a prince and a judge over us? Do you intend to kill me as you killed the Egyptian?” So Moses feared and said, “Surely this thing is known!”

[15]When Pharaoh heard of this matter, he sought to kill Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh and dwelt in the land of Midian; and he sat down by a well.

[16]Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters. And they came and drew water, and they filled the troughs to water their father’s flock.

[17]Then the shepherds came and drove them away; but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

[18]When they came to Reuel their father, he said, “How is it that you have come so soon today?”

[19]And they said, “An Egyptian delivered us from the hand of the shepherds, and he also drew enough water for us and watered the flock.”

[20]So he said to his daughters, “And where is he? Why is it that you have left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread.”

[21]Then Moses was content to live with the man, and he gave Zipporah his daughter to Moses.

[22]And she bore him a son. He called his name Gershom, for he said, “I have been a stranger in a foreign land.”

[23]Now it happened in the process of time that the king of Egypt died. Then the children of Israel groaned because of the bondage, and they cried out; and their cry came up to God because of the bondage.

[24]So God heard their groaning, and God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

[25]And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God acknowledged them.

Exodus 3

Moses at the Burning Bush

[1]Now Moses was tending the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian. And he led the flock to the back of the desert, and came to Horeb, the mountain of God.

[2]And the Angel of the LORD appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush. So he looked, and behold, the bush was burning with fire, but the bush was not consumed.

[3]Then Moses said, “I will now turn aside and see this great sight, why the bush does not burn.”

[4]So when the LORD saw that he turned aside to look, God called to him from the midst of the bush and said, “Moses, Moses!” And he said, “Here I am.”

[5]Then He said, “Do not draw near this place. Take your sandals off your feet, for the place where you stand is holy ground.”

[6]Moreover He said, “I am the God of your father—the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look upon God.

[7]And the LORD said: “I have surely seen the oppression of My people who are in Egypt, and have heard their cry because of their taskmasters, for I know their sorrows.

[8]“So I have come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up from that land to a good and large land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites.

[9]“Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel has come to Me, and I have also seen the oppression with which the Egyptians oppress them.

[10]“Come now, therefore, and I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring My people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt.”

[11]But Moses said to God, “Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh, and that I should bring the children of Israel out of Egypt?”

[12]So He said, “I will certainly be with you. And this shall be a sign to you that I have sent you: When you have brought the people out of Egypt, you shall serve God on this mountain.”

[13]Then Moses said to God, “Indeed, when I come to the children of Israel and say to them, ‘The God of your fathers has sent me to you,’ and they say to me, ‘What is His name?’ what shall I say to them?”

[14]And God said to Moses, “I AM WHO I AM.” And He said, “Thus you shall say to the children of Israel, ‘I AM has sent me to you.’ ”

[15]Moreover God said to Moses, “Thus you shall say to the children of Israel: ‘The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has sent me to you. This is My name forever, and this is My memorial to all generations.’

[16]“Go and gather the elders of Israel together, and say to them, ‘The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared to me, saying, “I have surely visited you and seen what is done to you in Egypt;

[17]“and I have said I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt to the land of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, to a land flowing with milk and honey.” ’

[18]“Then they will heed your voice; and you shall come, you and the elders of Israel, to the king of Egypt; and you shall say to him, ‘The LORD God of the Hebrews has met with us; and now, please, let us go three days’ journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.’

[19]“But I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, no, not even by a mighty hand.

[20]“So I will stretch out My hand and strike Egypt with all My wonders which I will do in its midst; and after that he will let you go.

[21]“And I will give this people favor in the sight of the Egyptians; and it shall be, when you go, that you shall not go empty-handed.

[22]“But every woman shall ask of her neighbor, namely, of her who dwells near her house, articles of silver, articles of gold, and clothing; and you shall put them on your sons and on your daughters. So you shall plunder the Egyptians.”

Exodus 4

Miraculous Signs for Pharaoh

[1]Then Moses answered and said, “But suppose they will not believe me or listen to my voice; suppose they say, ‘The LORD has not appeared to you.’ ”

[2]So the LORD said to him, “What is that in your hand?” He said, “A rod.”

[3]And He said, “Cast it on the ground.” So he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from it.

[4]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Reach out your hand and take it by the tail” (and he reached out his hand and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand),

[5]“that they may believe that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has appeared to you.”

[6]Furthermore the LORD said to him, “Now put your hand in your bosom.” And he put his hand in his bosom, and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous, like snow.

[7]And He said, “Put your hand in your bosom again.” So he put his hand in his bosom again, and drew it out of his bosom, and behold, it was restored like his other flesh.

[8]“Then it will be, if they do not believe you, nor heed the message of the first sign, that they may believe the message of the latter sign.

[9]“And it shall be, if they do not believe even these two signs, or listen to your voice, that you shall take water from the river and pour it on the dry land. The water which you take from the river will become blood on the dry land.”

[10]Then Moses said to the LORD, “O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither before nor since You have spoken to Your servant; but I am slow of speech and slow of tongue.”

[11]So the LORD said to him, “Who has made man’s mouth? Or who makes the mute, the deaf, the seeing, or the blind? Have not I, the LORD?

[12]"Now therefore, go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you shall say."

[13]But he said, "O my Lord, please send by the hand of whomever else You may send."

[14]So the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and He said: "Is not Aaron the Levite your brother? I know that he can speak well. And look, he is also coming out to meet you. When he sees you, he will be glad in his heart.

[15]"Now you shall speak to him and put the words in his mouth. And I will be with your mouth and with his mouth, and I will teach you what you shall do.

[16]"So he shall be your spokesman to the people. And he himself shall be as a mouth for you, and you shall be to him as God.

[17]"And you shall take this rod in your hand, with which you shall do the signs."

Moses Goes to Egypt

[18]So Moses went and returned to Jethro his father-in-law, and said to him, "Please let me go and return to my brethren who are in Egypt, and see whether they are still alive." And Jethro said to Moses, "Go in peace."

[19]Now the LORD said to Moses in Midian, "Go, return to Egypt; for all the men who sought your life are dead."

[20]Then Moses took his wife and his sons and set them on a donkey, and he returned to the land of Egypt. And Moses took the rod of God in his hand.

[21]And the LORD said to Moses, "When you go back to Egypt, see that you do all those wonders before Pharaoh which I have put in your hand. But I will harden his heart, so that he will not let the people go.

[22]"Then you shall say to Pharaoh, 'Thus says the LORD: "Israel is My son, My firstborn.

[23]"So I say to you, let My son go that he may serve Me. But if you refuse to let him go, indeed I will kill your son, your firstborn." ' "

[24]And it came to pass on the way, at the encampment, that the LORD met him and sought to kill him.

[25]Then Zipporah took a sharp stone and cut off the foreskin of her son and cast it at Moses' feet, and said, "Surely you are a husband of blood to me!"

[26]So He let him go. Then she said, "You are a husband of blood!"—because of the circumcision.

[27]And the LORD said to Aaron, "Go into the wilderness to meet Moses." So he went and met him on the mountain of God, and kissed him.

[28]So Moses told Aaron all the words of the LORD who had sent him, and all the signs which He had commanded him.

[29]Then Moses and Aaron went and gathered together all the elders of the children of Israel.

[30]And Aaron spoke all the words which the LORD had spoken to Moses. Then he did the signs in the sight of the people.

[31]So the people believed; and when they heard that the LORD had visited the children of Israel and that He had looked on their affliction, then they bowed their heads and worshiped.

Exodus 5

First Encounter with Pharaoh

[1]Afterward Moses and Aaron went in and told Pharaoh, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ‘Let My people go, that they may hold a feast to Me in the wilderness.’ ”

[2]And Pharaoh said, “Who is the LORD, that I should obey His voice to let Israel go? I do not know the LORD, nor will I let Israel go.”

[3]So they said, “The God of the Hebrews has met with us. Please, let us go three days’ journey into the desert and sacrifice to the LORD our God, lest He fall upon us with pestilence or with the sword.”

[4]Then the king of Egypt said to them, “Moses and Aaron, why do you take the people from their work? Get back to your labor.”

[5]And Pharaoh said, “Look, the people of the land are many now, and you make them rest from their labor!”

[6]So the same day Pharaoh commanded the taskmasters of the people and their officers, saying,

[7]“You shall no longer give the people straw to make brick as before. Let them go and gather straw for themselves.

[8]“And you shall lay on them the quota of bricks which they made before. You shall not reduce it. For they are idle; therefore they cry out, saying, ‘Let us go and sacrifice to our God.’

[9]“Let more work be laid on the men, that they may labor in it, and let them not regard false words.”

[10]And the taskmasters of the people and their officers went out and spoke to the people, saying, “Thus says Pharaoh: ‘I will not give you straw.

[11]‘Go, get yourselves straw where you can find it; yet none of your work will be reduced.’ ”

[12]So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw.

[13]And the taskmasters forced them to hurry, saying, “Fulfill your work, your daily quota, as when there was straw.”

[14]Also the officers of the children of Israel, whom Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten and were asked, "Why have you not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and today, as before?"

[15]Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried out to Pharaoh, saying, "Why are you dealing thus with your servants?

[16]"There is no straw given to your servants, and they say to us, 'Make brick!' And indeed your servants are beaten, but the fault is in your own people."

[17]But he said, "You are idle! Idle! Therefore you say, 'Let us go and sacrifice to the LORD.'

[18]"Therefore go now and work; for no straw shall be given you, yet you shall deliver the quota of bricks."

[19]And the officers of the children of Israel saw that they were in trouble after it was said, "You shall not reduce any bricks from your daily quota."

[20]Then, as they came out from Pharaoh, they met Moses and Aaron who stood there to meet them.

[21]And they said to them, "Let the LORD look on you and judge, because you have made us abhorrent in the sight of Pharaoh and in the sight of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to kill us."

Israel's Deliverance Assured

[22]So Moses returned to the LORD and said, "Lord, why have You brought trouble on this people? Why is it You have sent me?

[23]"For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in Your name, he has done evil to this people; neither have You delivered Your people at all."

Exodus 6

[1]Then the LORD said to Moses, "Now you shall see what I will do to Pharaoh. For with a strong hand he will let them go, and with a strong hand he will drive them out of his land."

[2]And God spoke to Moses and said to him: "I am the LORD.

[3]"I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, as God Almighty, but by My name LORD I was not known to them.

[4]"I have also established My covenant with them, to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, in which they were strangers.

[5]"And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel whom the Egyptians keep in bondage, and I have remembered My covenant.

[6]"Therefore say to the children of Israel: 'I am the LORD; I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, I will rescue you from their bondage, and I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and with great judgments.

[7]'I will take you as My people, and I will be your God. Then you shall know that I am the LORD your God who brings you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

[8]'And I will bring you into the land which I swore to give to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and I will give it to you as a heritage: I am the LORD.' "

[9]So Moses spoke thus to the children of Israel; but they did not heed Moses, because of anguish of spirit and cruel bondage.

[10]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[11]"Go in, tell Pharaoh king of Egypt to let the children of Israel go out of his land."

[12]And Moses spoke before the LORD, saying, "The children of Israel have not heeded me. How then shall Pharaoh heed me, for I am of uncircumcised lips?"

[13]Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, and gave them a command for the children of Israel and for Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

The Family of Moses and Aaron

14These are the heads of their fathers' houses: The sons of Reuben, the firstborn of Israel, were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. These are the families of Reuben.

15And the sons of Simeon were Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanite woman. These are the families of Simeon.

16These are the names of the sons of Levi according to their generations: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. And the years of the life of Levi were one hundred and thirty-seven.

17The sons of Gershon were Libni and Shimi according to their families.

18And the sons of Kohath were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. And the years of the life of Kohath were one hundred and thirty-three.

19The sons of Merari were Mahli and Mushi. These are the families of Levi according to their generations.

20Now Amram took for himself Jochebed, his father's sister, as wife; and she bore him Aaron and Moses. And the years of the life of Amram were one hundred and thirty-seven.

21The sons of Izhar were Korah, Nepheg, and Zichri.

22And the sons of Uzziel were Mishael, Elzaphan, and Zithri.

23Aaron took to himself Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab, sister of Nahshon, as wife; and she bore him Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

24And the sons of Korah were Assir, Elkanah, and Abiasaph. These are the families of the Korahites.

25Eleazar, Aaron's son, took for himself one of the daughters of Putiel as wife; and she bore him Phinehas. These are the heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites according to their families.

26These are the same Aaron and Moses to whom the LORD said, "Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt according to their armies."

27These are the ones who spoke to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt. These are the same Moses and Aaron.

Aaron Is Moses' Spokesman

28And it came to pass, on the day the LORD spoke to Moses in the land of Egypt,

29that the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, "I am the LORD. Speak to Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say to you."

30But Moses said before the LORD, "Behold, I am of uncircumcised lips, and how shall Pharaoh heed me?"

Exodus 7

[1]So the LORD said to Moses: “See, I have made you as God to Pharaoh, and Aaron your brother shall be your prophet.

[2]“You shall speak all that I command you. And Aaron your brother shall tell Pharaoh to send the children of Israel out of his land.

[3]“And I will harden Pharaoh’s heart, and multiply My signs and My wonders in the land of Egypt.

[4]“But Pharaoh will not heed you, so that I may lay My hand on Egypt and bring My armies and My people, the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt by great judgments.

[5]“And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I stretch out My hand on Egypt and bring out the children of Israel from among them.”

[6]Then Moses and Aaron did so; just as the LORD commanded them, so they did.

[7]And Moses was eighty years old and Aaron eighty-three years old when they spoke to Pharaoh.

Aaron’s Miraculous Rod

8Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying,

[9]“When Pharaoh speaks to you, saying, ‘Show a miracle for yourselves,’ then you shall say to Aaron, ‘Take your rod and cast it before Pharaoh, and let it become a serpent.’ ”

[10]So Moses and Aaron went in to Pharaoh, and they did so, just as the LORD commanded. And Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh and before his servants, and it became a serpent.

[11]But Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers; so the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments.

[12]For every man threw down his rod, and they became serpents. But Aaron’s rod swallowed up their rods.

[13]And Pharaoh’s heart grew hard, and he did not heed them, as the LORD had said.

The First Plague: Waters Become Blood

14So the LORD said to Moses: "Pharaoh's heart is hard; he refuses to let the people go.

15"Go to Pharaoh in the morning, when he goes out to the water, and you shall stand by the river's bank to meet him; and the rod which was turned to a serpent you shall take in your hand.

16"And you shall say to him, 'The LORD God of the Hebrews has sent me to you, saying, "Let My people go, that they may serve Me in the wilderness"; but indeed, until now you would not hear!

17'Thus says the LORD: "By this you shall know that I am the LORD. Behold, I will strike the waters which are in the river with the rod that is in my hand, and they shall be turned to blood.

18"And the fish that are in the river shall die, the river shall stink, and the Egyptians will loathe to drink the water of the river." ' "

19Then the LORD spoke to Moses, "Say to Aaron, 'Take your rod and stretch out your hand over the waters of Egypt, over their streams, over their rivers, over their ponds, and over all their pools of water, that they may become blood. And there shall be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in buckets of wood and pitchers of stone.' "

20And Moses and Aaron did so, just as the LORD commanded. So he lifted up the rod and struck the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh and in the sight of his servants. And all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood.

21The fish that were in the river died, the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink the water of the river. So there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

22Then the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments; and Pharaoh's heart grew hard, and he did not heed them, as the LORD had said.

23And Pharaoh turned and went into his house. Neither was his heart moved by this.

24So all the Egyptians dug all around the river for water to drink, because they could not drink the water of the river.

25And seven days passed after the LORD had struck the river.

Exodus 8

The Second Plague: Frogs

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, “Go to Pharaoh and say to him, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Let My people go, that they may serve Me.

[2]“But if you refuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all your territory with frogs.

[3]“So the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into your house, into your bedroom, on your bed, into the houses of your servants, on your people, into your ovens, and into your kneading bowls.

[4]“And the frogs shall come up on you, on your people, and on all your servants.” ’ ”

[5]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, “Say to Aaron, ‘Stretch out your hand with your rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up on the land of Egypt.’ ”

[6]So Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt, and the frogs came up and covered the land of Egypt.

[7]And the magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs on the land of Egypt.

[8]Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, “Entreat the LORD that He may take away the frogs from me and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may sacrifice to the LORD.”

[9]And Moses said to Pharaoh, “Accept the honor of saying when I shall intercede for you, for your servants, and for your people, to destroy the frogs from you and your houses, that they may remain in the river only.”

[10]So he said, “Tomorrow.” And he said, “Let it be according to your word, that you may know that there is no one like the LORD our God.

[11]“And the frogs shall depart from you, from your houses, from your servants, and from your people. They shall remain in the river only.”

[12]Then Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh. And Moses cried out to the LORD concerning the frogs which He had brought against Pharaoh.

[13]So the LORD did according to the word of Moses. And the frogs died out of the houses, out of the courtyards, and out of the fields.

[14]They gathered them together in heaps, and the land stank.

[15]But when Pharaoh saw that there was relief, he hardened his heart and did not heed them, as the LORD had said.

The Third Plague: Lice

[16]So the LORD said to Moses, “Say to Aaron, ‘Stretch out your rod, and strike the dust of the land, so that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.’ ”

[17]And they did so. For Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod and struck the dust of the earth, and it became lice on man and beast. All the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

[18]Now the magicians so worked with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but they could not. So there were lice on man and beast.

[19]Then the magicians said to Pharaoh, “This is the finger of God.” But Pharaoh’s heart grew hard, and he did not heed them, just as the LORD had said.

The Fourth Plague: Flies

[20]And the LORD said to Moses, “Rise early in the morning and stand before Pharaoh as he comes out to the water. Then say to him, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Let My people go, that they may serve Me.

[21]“Or else, if you will not let My people go, behold, I will send swarms of flies on you and your servants, on your people and into your houses. The houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground on which they stand.

[22]“And in that day I will set apart the land of Goshen, in which My people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there, in order that you may know that I am the LORD in the midst of the land.

[23]“I will make a difference between My people and your people. Tomorrow this sign shall be.” ’ ”

[24]And the LORD did so. Thick swarms of flies came into the house of Pharaoh, into his servants’ houses, and into all the land of Egypt. The land was corrupted because of the swarms of flies.

25Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, “Go, sacrifice to your God in the land.”

26And Moses said, “It is not right to do so, for we would be sacrificing the abomination of the Egyptians to the LORD our God. If we sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, then will they not stone us?

27“We will go three days’ journey into the wilderness and sacrifice to the LORD our God as He will command us.”

28So Pharaoh said, “I will let you go, that you may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only you shall not go very far away. Intercede for me.”

29Then Moses said, “Indeed I am going out from you, and I will entreat the LORD, that the swarms of flies may depart tomorrow from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people. But let Pharaoh not deal deceitfully anymore in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.”

30So Moses went out from Pharaoh and entreated the LORD.

31And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; He removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people. Not one remained.

32But Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also; neither would he let the people go.

Exodus 9

The Fifth Plague: Livestock Diseased

[1]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh and tell him, ‘Thus says the LORD God of the Hebrews: “Let My people go, that they may serve Me.

[2]“For if you refuse to let them go, and still hold them,

[3]“behold, the hand of the LORD will be on your cattle in the field, on the horses, on the donkeys, on the camels, on the oxen, and on the sheep—a very severe pestilence.

[4]“And the LORD will make a difference between the livestock of Israel and the livestock of Egypt. So nothing shall die of all that belongs to the children of Israel.” ’ ”

[5]Then the LORD appointed a set time, saying, “Tomorrow the LORD will do this thing in the land.”

[6]So the LORD did this thing on the next day, and all the livestock of Egypt died; but of the livestock of the children of Israel, not one died.

[7]Then Pharaoh sent, and indeed, not even one of the livestock of the Israelites was dead. But the heart of Pharaoh became hard, and he did not let the people go.

The Sixth Plague: Boils

[8]So the LORD said to Moses and Aaron, “Take for yourselves handfuls of ashes from a furnace, and let Moses scatter it toward the heavens in the sight of Pharaoh.

[9]“And it will become fine dust in all the land of Egypt, and it will cause boils that break out in sores on man and beast throughout all the land of Egypt.”

[10]Then they took ashes from the furnace and stood before Pharaoh, and Moses scattered them toward heaven. And they caused boils that break out in sores on man and beast.

[11]And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils, for the boils were on the magicians and on all the Egyptians.

[12]But the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh; and he did not heed them, just as the LORD had spoken to Moses.

The Seventh Plague: Hail

[13]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Rise early in the morning and stand before Pharaoh, and say to him, ‘Thus says the LORD God of the Hebrews: “Let My people go, that they may serve Me,

[14]“for at this time I will send all My plagues to your very heart, and on your servants and on your people, that you may know that there is none like Me in all the earth.

[15]“Now if I had stretched out My hand and struck you and your people with pestilence, then you would have been cut off from the earth.

[16]“But indeed for this purpose I have raised you up, that I may show My power in you, and that My name may be declared in all the earth.

[17]“As yet you exalt yourself against My people in that you will not let them go.

[18]“Behold, tomorrow about this time I will cause very heavy hail to rain down, such as has not been in Egypt since its founding until now.

[19]“Therefore send now and gather your livestock and all that you have in the field, for the hail shall come down on every man and every animal which is found in the field and is not brought home; and they shall die.” ’ ”

[20]He who feared the word of the LORD among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his livestock flee to the houses.

[21]But he who did not regard the word of the LORD left his servants and his livestock in the field.

[22]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt—on man, on beast, and on every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.”

[23]And Moses stretched out his rod toward heaven; and the LORD sent thunder and hail, and fire darted to the ground. And the LORD rained hail on the land of Egypt.

[24]So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, so very heavy that there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.

[25]And the hail struck throughout the whole land of Egypt, all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail struck every herb of the field and broke every tree of the field.

[26]Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, there was no hail.

[27]And Pharaoh sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and said to them, "I have sinned this time. The LORD is righteous, and my people and I are wicked.

[28]"Entreat the LORD, that there may be no more mighty thundering and hail, for it is enough. I will let you go, and you shall stay no longer."

[29]So Moses said to him, "As soon as I have gone out of the city, I will spread out my hands to the LORD; the thunder will cease, and there will be no more hail, that you may know that the earth is the LORD's.

[30]"But as for you and your servants, I know that you will not yet fear the LORD God."

[31]Now the flax and the barley were struck, for the barley was in the head and the flax was in bud.

[32]But the wheat and the spelt were not struck, for they are late crops.

[33]So Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh and spread out his hands to the LORD; then the thunder and the hail ceased, and the rain was not poured on the earth.

[34]And when Pharaoh saw that the rain, the hail, and the thunder had ceased, he sinned yet more; and he hardened his heart, he and his servants.

[35]So the heart of Pharaoh was hard; neither would he let the children of Israel go, as the LORD had spoken by Moses.

Exodus 10

The Eighth Plague: Locusts

[1]Now the LORD said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh; for I have hardened his heart and the hearts of his servants, that I may show these signs of Mine before him,

[2]“and that you may tell in the hearing of your son and your son’s son the mighty things I have done in Egypt, and My signs which I have done among them, that you may know that I am the LORD.”

[3]So Moses and Aaron came in to Pharaoh and said to him, “Thus says the LORD God of the Hebrews: ‘How long will you refuse to humble yourself before Me? Let My people go, that they may serve Me.

[4]‘Or else, if you refuse to let My people go, behold, tomorrow I will bring locusts into your territory.

[5]‘And they shall cover the face of the earth, so that no one will be able to see the earth; and they shall eat the residue of what is left, which remains to you from the hail, and they shall eat every tree which grows up for you out of the field.

[6]‘They shall fill your houses, the houses of all your servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians—which neither your fathers nor your fathers’ fathers have seen, since the day that they were on the earth to this day.’ ” And he turned and went out from Pharaoh.

[7]Then Pharaoh’s servants said to him, “How long shall this man be a snare to us? Let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God. Do you not yet know that Egypt is destroyed?”

[8]So Moses and Aaron were brought again to Pharaoh, and he said to them, “Go, serve the LORD your God. Who are the ones that are going?”

[9]And Moses said, “We will go with our young and our old; with our sons and our daughters, with our flocks and our herds we will go, for we must hold a feast to the LORD.”

[10]Then he said to them, “The LORD had better be with you when I let you and your little ones go! Beware, for evil is ahead of you.

[11]“Not so! Go now, you who are men, and serve the LORD, for that is what you desired.” And they were driven out from Pharaoh’s presence.

[12]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land—all that the hail has left.”

[13]So Moses stretched out his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind on the land all that day and all that night. When it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

[14]And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt and rested on all the territory of Egypt. They were very severe; previously there had been no such locusts as they, nor shall there be such after them.

[15]For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they ate every herb of the land and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left. So there remained nothing green on the trees or on the plants of the field throughout all the land of Egypt.

[16]Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and said, “I have sinned against the LORD your God and against you.

[17]“Now therefore, please forgive my sin only this once, and entreat the LORD your God, that He may take away from me this death only.”

[18]So he went out from Pharaoh and entreated the LORD.

[19]And the LORD turned a very strong west wind, which took the locusts away and blew them into the Red Sea. There remained not one locust in all the territory of Egypt.

[20]But the LORD hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not let the children of Israel go.

The Ninth Plague: Darkness

[21]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, darkness which may even be felt.”

[22]So Moses stretched out his hand toward heaven, and there was thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days.

[23]They did not see one another; nor did anyone rise from his place for three days. But all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

[24]Then Pharaoh called to Moses and said, “Go, serve the LORD; only let your flocks and your herds be kept back. Let your little ones also go with you.”

[25]But Moses said, “You must also give us sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.

[26]“Our livestock also shall go with us; not a hoof shall be left behind. For we must take some of them to serve the LORD our God, and even we do not know with what we must serve the LORD until we arrive there.”

[27]But the LORD hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he would not let them go.

[28]Then Pharaoh said to him, “Get away from me! Take heed to yourself and see my face no more! For in the day you see my face you shall die!”

[29]So Moses said, “You have spoken well. I will never see your face again.”

Exodus 11

Death of the Firstborn Announced

[1]And the LORD said to Moses, “I will bring one more plague on Pharaoh and on Egypt. Afterward he will let you go from here. When he lets you go, he will surely drive you out of here altogether.

[2]“Speak now in the hearing of the people, and let every man ask from his neighbor and every woman from her neighbor, articles of silver and articles of gold.”

[3]And the LORD gave the people favor in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover the man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh’s servants and in the sight of the people.

[4]Then Moses said, “Thus says the LORD: ‘About midnight I will go out into the midst of Egypt;

[5]‘and all the firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sits on his throne, even to the firstborn of the female servant who is behind the handmill, and all the firstborn of the animals.

[6]‘Then there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as was not like it before, nor shall be like it again.

[7]‘But against none of the children of Israel shall a dog move its tongue, against man or beast, that you may know that the LORD does make a difference between the Egyptians and Israel.’

[8]“And all these your servants shall come down to me and bow down to me, saying, ‘Get out, and all the people who follow you!’ After that I will go out.” Then he went out from Pharaoh in great anger.

[9]But the LORD said to Moses, “Pharaoh will not heed you, so that My wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.”

[10]So Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh; and the LORD hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

Exodus 12

The Passover Instituted

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

[2]“This month shall be your beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year to you.

[3]“Speak to all the congregation of Israel, saying: ‘On the tenth of this month every man shall take for himself a lamb, according to the house of his father, a lamb for a household.

[4]‘And if the household is too small for the lamb, let him and his neighbor next to his house take it according to the number of the persons; according to each man’s need you shall make your count for the lamb.

[5]‘Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year. You may take it from the sheep or from the goats.

[6]‘Now you shall keep it until the fourteenth day of the same month. Then the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it at twilight.

[7]‘And they shall take some of the blood and put it on the two doorposts and on the lintel of the houses where they eat it.

[8]‘Then they shall eat the flesh on that night; roasted in fire, with unleavened bread and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

[9]‘Do not eat it raw, nor boiled at all with water, but roasted in fire—its head with its legs and its entrails.

[10]‘You shall let none of it remain until morning, and what remains of it until morning you shall burn with fire.

[11]‘And thus you shall eat it: with a belt on your waist, your sandals on your feet, and your staff in your hand. So you shall eat it in haste. It is the LORD’s Passover.

[12]‘For I will pass through the land of Egypt on that night, and will strike all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD.

[13]‘Now the blood shall be a sign for you on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you; and the plague shall not be on you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt.

[14]‘So this day shall be to you a memorial; and you shall keep it as a feast to the LORD throughout your generations. You shall keep it as a feast by an everlasting ordinance.

[15]‘Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread. On the first day you shall remove leaven from your houses. For whoever eats leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that person shall be cut off from Israel.

[16]‘On the first day there shall be a holy convocation, and on the seventh day there shall be a holy convocation for you. No manner of work shall be done on them; but that which everyone must eat—that only may be prepared by you.

[17]‘So you shall observe the Feast of Unleavened Bread, for on this same day I will have brought your armies out of the land of Egypt. Therefore you shall observe this day throughout your generations as an everlasting ordinance.

[18]‘In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at evening, you shall eat unleavened bread, until the twenty-first day of the month at evening.

[19]‘For seven days no leaven shall be found in your houses, since whoever eats what is leavened, that same person shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he is a stranger or a native of the land.

[20]‘You shall eat nothing leavened; in all your dwellings you shall eat unleavened bread.’ ”

[21]Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel and said to them, “Pick out and take lambs for yourselves according to your families, and kill the Passover lamb.

[22]“And you shall take a bunch of hyssop, dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and strike the lintel and the two doorposts with the blood that is in the basin. And none of you shall go out of the door of his house until morning.

[23]“For the LORD will pass through to strike the Egyptians; and when He sees the blood on the lintel and on the two doorposts, the LORD will pass over the door and not allow the destroyer to come into your houses to strike you.

[24]“And you shall observe this thing as an ordinance for you and your sons forever.

[25]“It will come to pass when you come to the land which the LORD will give you, just as He promised, that you shall keep this service.

[26]“And it shall be, when your children say to you, ‘What do you mean by this service?’

[27]“that you shall say, ‘It is the Passover sacrifice of the LORD, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt when He struck the Egyptians and delivered our households.’ ” So the people bowed their heads and worshiped.

[28]Then the children of Israel went away and did so; just as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so they did.

The Tenth Plague: Death of the Firstborn

[29]And it came to pass at midnight that the LORD struck all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sat on his throne to the firstborn of the captive who was in the dungeon, and all the firstborn of livestock.

[30]So Pharaoh rose in the night, he, all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt, for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

The Exodus

[31]Then he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said, “Rise, go out from among my people, both you and the children of Israel. And go, serve the LORD as you have said.

[32]“Also take your flocks and your herds, as you have said, and be gone; and bless me also.”

[33]And the Egyptians urged the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste. For they said, “We shall all be dead.”

[34]So the people took their dough before it was leavened, having their kneading bowls bound up in their clothes on their shoulders.

[35]Now the children of Israel had done according to the word of Moses, and they had asked from the Egyptians articles of silver, articles of gold, and clothing.

[36]And the LORD had given the people favor in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they granted them what they requested. Thus they plundered the Egyptians.

[37]Then the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand men on foot, besides children.

[38]A mixed multitude went up with them also, and flocks and herds—a great deal of livestock.

[39]And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they had brought out of Egypt; for it was not leavened, because they were driven out of Egypt and could not wait, nor had they prepared provisions for themselves.

[40]Now the sojourn of the children of Israel who lived in Egypt was four hundred and thirty years.

[41]And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years—on that very same day—it came to pass that all the armies of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

[42]It is a night of solemn observance to the LORD for bringing them out of the land of Egypt. This is that night of the LORD, a solemn observance for all the children of Israel throughout their generations.

Passover Regulations

[43]And the LORD said to Moses and Aaron, “This is the ordinance of the Passover: No foreigner shall eat it.

[44]“But every man’s servant who is bought for money, when you have circumcised him, then he may eat it.

[45]“A sojourner and a hired servant shall not eat it.

[46]“In one house it shall be eaten; you shall not carry any of the flesh outside the house, nor shall you break one of its bones.

[47]“All the congregation of Israel shall keep it.

[48]“And when a stranger dwells with you and wants to keep the Passover to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as a native of the land. For no uncircumcised person shall eat it.

[49]"One law shall be for the native-born and for the stranger who dwells among you."

[50]Thus all the children of Israel did; as the LORD commanded Moses and Aaron, so they did.

[51]And it came to pass, on that very same day, that the LORD brought the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt according to their armies.

Exodus 13

The Firstborn Consecrated

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Consecrate to Me all the firstborn, whatever opens the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and beast; it is Mine.”

The Feast of Unleavened Bread

[3]And Moses said to the people: “Remember this day in which you went out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for by strength of hand the LORD brought you out of this place. No leavened bread shall be eaten.

[4]“On this day you are going out, in the month Abib.

[5]“And it shall be, when the LORD brings you into the land of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, which He swore to your fathers to give you, a land flowing with milk and honey, that you shall keep this service in this month.

[6]“Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a feast to the LORD.

[7]“Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days. And no leavened bread shall be seen among you, nor shall leaven be seen among you in all your quarters.

[8]“And you shall tell your son in that day, saying, ‘This is done because of what the LORD did for me when I came up from Egypt.’

[9]“It shall be as a sign to you on your hand and as a memorial between your eyes, that the LORD’s law may be in your mouth; for with a strong hand the LORD has brought you out of Egypt.

[10]“You shall therefore keep this ordinance in its season from year to year.

The Law of the Firstborn

[11]“And it shall be, when the LORD brings you into the land of the Canaanites, as He swore to you and your fathers, and gives it to you,

[12]“that you shall set apart to the LORD all that open the womb, that is, every firstborn that comes from an animal which you have; the males shall be the LORD’s.

[13]“But every firstborn of a donkey you shall redeem with a lamb; and if you will not redeem it, then you shall break its neck. And all the firstborn of man among your sons you shall redeem.

[14]“So it shall be, when your son asks you in time to come, saying, ‘What is this?’ that you shall say to him, ‘By strength of hand the LORD brought us out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

[15]‘And it came to pass, when Pharaoh was stubborn about letting us go, that the LORD killed all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both the firstborn of man and the firstborn of beast. Therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all males that open the womb, but all the firstborn of my sons I redeem.’

[16]“It shall be as a sign on your hand and as frontlets between your eyes, for by strength of hand the LORD brought us out of Egypt.”

The Wilderness Way

[17]Then it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God did not lead them by way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, “Lest perhaps the people change their minds when they see war, and return to Egypt.”

[18]So God led the people around by way of the wilderness of the Red Sea. And the children of Israel went up in orderly ranks out of the land of Egypt.

[19]And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him, for he had placed the children of Israel under solemn oath, saying, “God will surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones from here with you.”

[20]So they took their journey from Succoth and camped in Etham at the edge of the wilderness.

[21]And the LORD went before them by day in a pillar of cloud to lead the way, and by night in a pillar of fire to give them light, so as to go by day and night.

[22]He did not take away the pillar of cloud by day or the pillar of fire by night from before the people.

Exodus 14

The Red Sea Crossing

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, that they turn and camp before Pi Hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, opposite Baal Zephon; you shall camp before it by the sea.

[3]“For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, ‘They are bewildered by the land; the wilderness has closed them in.’

[4]“Then I will harden Pharaoh’s heart, so that he will pursue them; and I will gain honor over Pharaoh and over all his army, that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD.” And they did so.

[5]Now it was told the king of Egypt that the people had fled, and the heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against the people; and they said, “Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?”

[6]So he made ready his chariot and took his people with him.

[7]Also, he took six hundred choice chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt with captains over every one of them.

[8]And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued the children of Israel; and the children of Israel went out with boldness.

[9]So the Egyptians pursued them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, his horsemen and his army, and overtook them camping by the sea beside Pi Hahiroth, before Baal Zephon.

[10]And when Pharaoh drew near, the children of Israel lifted their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians marched after them. So they were very afraid, and the children of Israel cried out to the LORD.

[11]Then they said to Moses, “Because there were no graves in Egypt, have you taken us away to die in the wilderness? Why have you so dealt with us, to bring us up out of Egypt?

[12]“Is this not the word that we told you in Egypt, saying, ‘Let us alone that we may serve the Egyptians’? For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than that we should die in the wilderness.”

[13]And Moses said to the people, “Do not be afraid. Stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which He will accomplish for you today. For the Egyptians whom you see today, you shall see again no more forever.

[14]“The LORD will fight for you, and you shall hold your peace.”

[15]And the LORD said to Moses, “Why do you cry to Me? Tell the children of Israel to go forward.

[16]“But lift up your rod, and stretch out your hand over the sea and divide it. And the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

[17]“And I indeed will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them. So I will gain honor over Pharaoh and over all his army, his chariots, and his horsemen.

[18]“Then the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gained honor for Myself over Pharaoh, his chariots, and his horsemen.”

[19]And the Angel of God, who went before the camp of Israel, moved and went behind them; and the pillar of cloud went from before them and stood behind them.

[20]So it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel. Thus it was a cloud and darkness to the one, and it gave light by night to the other, so that the one did not come near the other all that night.

[21]Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea into dry land, and the waters were divided.

[22]So the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea on the dry ground, and the waters were a wall to them on their right hand and on their left.

[23]And the Egyptians pursued and went after them into the midst of the sea, all Pharaoh’s horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

[24]Now it came to pass, in the morning watch, that the LORD looked down upon the army of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and cloud, and He troubled the army of the Egyptians.

[25]And He took off their chariot wheels, so that they drove them with difficulty; and the Egyptians said, “Let us flee from the face of Israel, for the LORD fights for them against the Egyptians.”

[26]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand over the sea, that the waters may come back upon the Egyptians, on their chariots, and on their horsemen.”

[27]And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and when the morning appeared, the sea returned to its full depth, while the Egyptians were fleeing into it. So the LORD overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea.

[28]Then the waters returned and covered the chariots, the horsemen, and all the army of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them. Not so much as one of them remained.

[29]But the children of Israel had walked on dry land in the midst of the sea, and the waters were a wall to them on their right hand and on their left.

[30]So the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the seashore.

[31]Thus Israel saw the great work which the LORD had done in Egypt; so the people feared the LORD, and believed the LORD and His servant Moses.

Exodus 15

The Song of Moses

[1]Then Moses and the children of Israel sang this song to the LORD, and spoke, saying:

“I will sing to the LORD,
For He has triumphed gloriously!
The horse and its rider
He has thrown into the sea!
[2]The LORD is my strength and song,
And He has become my salvation;
He is my God, and I will praise Him;
My father’s God, and I will exalt Him.
[3]The LORD is a man of war;
The LORD is His name.
[4]Pharaoh’s chariots and his army He has cast into the sea;
His chosen captains also are drowned in the Red Sea.
[5]The depths have covered them;
They sank to the bottom like a stone.

[6]“Your right hand, O LORD, has become glorious in power;
Your right hand, O LORD, has dashed the enemy in pieces.
[7]And in the greatness of Your excellence
You have overthrown those who rose against You;
You sent forth Your wrath;
It consumed them like stubble.
[8]And with the blast of Your nostrils
The waters were gathered together;
The floods stood upright like a heap;
The depths congealed in the heart of the sea.
[9]The enemy said, ‘I will pursue,
I will overtake,
I will divide the spoil;
My desire shall be satisfied on them.

I will draw my sword,
My hand shall destroy them.’
[10]You blew with Your wind,
The sea covered them;
They sank like lead in the mighty waters.

[11]“Who is like You, O LORD, among the gods?
Who is like You, glorious in holiness,
Fearful in praises, doing wonders?
[12]You stretched out Your right hand;
The earth swallowed them.
[13]You in Your mercy have led forth
The people whom You have redeemed;
You have guided them in Your strength
To Your holy habitation.

[14]“The people will hear and be afraid;
Sorrow will take hold of the inhabitants of Philistia.
[15]Then the chiefs of Edom will be dismayed;
The mighty men of Moab,
Trembling will take hold of them;
All the inhabitants of Canaan will melt away.
[16]Fear and dread will fall on them;
By the greatness of Your arm
They will be as still as a stone,
Till Your people pass over, O LORD,
Till the people pass over
Whom You have purchased.
[17]You will bring them in and plant them
In the mountain of Your inheritance,
In the place, O LORD, which You have made
For Your own dwelling,
The sanctuary, O Lord, which Your hands have established.

[18]“The LORD shall reign forever and ever.”

[19]For the horses of Pharaoh went with his chariots and his horsemen into the sea, and the LORD brought back the waters of the sea upon them. But the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

The Song of Miriam

20Then Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took the timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances.

21And Miriam answered them:

“Sing to the LORD,
For He has triumphed gloriously!
The horse and its rider
He has thrown into the sea!”

Bitter Waters Made Sweet

22So Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea; then they went out into the Wilderness of Shur. And they went three days in the wilderness and found no water.

23Now when they came to Marah, they could not drink the waters of Marah, for they were bitter. Therefore the name of it was called Marah.

24And the people complained against Moses, saying, “What shall we drink?”

25So he cried out to the LORD, and the LORD showed him a tree. When he cast it into the waters, the waters were made sweet. There He made a statute and an ordinance for them, and there He tested them,

26and said, “If you diligently heed the voice of the LORD your God and do what is right in His sight, give ear to His commandments and keep all His statutes, I will put none of the diseases on you which I have brought on the Egyptians. For I am the LORD who heals you.”

27Then they came to Elim, where there were twelve wells of water and seventy palm trees; so they camped there by the waters.

Exodus 16

Bread from Heaven

[1]And they journeyed from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came to the Wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after they departed from the land of Egypt.

[2]Then the whole congregation of the children of Israel complained against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness.

[3]And the children of Israel said to them, “Oh, that we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the pots of meat and when we ate bread to the full! For you have brought us out into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger.”

[4]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you. And the people shall go out and gather a certain quota every day, that I may test them, whether they will walk in My law or not.

[5]“And it shall be on the sixth day that they shall prepare what they bring in, and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.”

[6]Then Moses and Aaron said to all the children of Israel, “At evening you shall know that the LORD has brought you out of the land of Egypt.

[7]“And in the morning you shall see the glory of the LORD; for He hears your complaints against the LORD. But what are we, that you complain against us?”

[8]Also Moses said, “This shall be seen when the LORD gives you meat to eat in the evening, and in the morning bread to the full; for the LORD hears your complaints which you make against Him. And what are we? Your complaints are not against us but against the LORD.”

[9]Then Moses spoke to Aaron, “Say to all the congregation of the children of Israel, ‘Come near before the LORD, for He has heard your complaints.’ ”

[10]Now it came to pass, as Aaron spoke to the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and behold, the glory of the LORD appeared in the cloud.

[11]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[12]"I have heard the complaints of the children of Israel. Speak to them, saying, 'At twilight you shall eat meat, and in the morning you shall be filled with bread. And you shall know that I am the LORD your God.' "

13So it was that quails came up at evening and covered the camp, and in the morning the dew lay all around the camp.

[14]And when the layer of dew lifted, there, on the surface of the wilderness, was a small round substance, as fine as frost on the ground.

[15]So when the children of Israel saw it, they said to one another, "What is it?" For they did not know what it was. And Moses said to them, "This is the bread which the LORD has given you to eat.

[16]"This is the thing which the LORD has commanded: 'Let every man gather it according to each one's need, one omer for each person, according to the number of persons; let every man take for those who are in his tent.' "

[17]Then the children of Israel did so and gathered, some more, some less.

[18]So when they measured it by omers, he who gathered much had nothing left over, and he who gathered little had no lack. Every man had gathered according to each one's need.

[19]And Moses said, "Let no one leave any of it till morning."

[20]Notwithstanding they did not heed Moses. But some of them left part of it until morning, and it bred worms and stank. And Moses was angry with them.

[21]So they gathered it every morning, every man according to his need. And when the sun became hot, it melted.

22And so it was, on the sixth day, that they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for each one. And all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

[23]Then he said to them, "This is what the LORD has said: 'Tomorrow is a Sabbath rest, a holy Sabbath to the LORD. Bake what you will bake today, and boil what you will boil; and lay up for yourselves all that remains, to be kept until morning.' "

[24]So they laid it up till morning, as Moses commanded; and it did not stink, nor were there any worms in it.

[25]Then Moses said, “Eat that today, for today is a Sabbath to the LORD; today you will not find it in the field.

[26]“Six days you shall gather it, but on the seventh day, the Sabbath, there will be none.”

[27]Now it happened that some of the people went out on the seventh day to gather, but they found none.

[28]And the LORD said to Moses, “How long do you refuse to keep My commandments and My laws?

[29]“See! For the LORD has given you the Sabbath; therefore He gives you on the sixth day bread for two days. Let every man remain in his place; let no man go out of his place on the seventh day.”

[30]So the people rested on the seventh day.

[31]And the house of Israel called its name Manna. And it was like white coriander seed, and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

[32]Then Moses said, “This is the thing which the LORD has commanded: ‘Fill an omer with it, to be kept for your generations, that they may see the bread with which I fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you out of the land of Egypt.’ ”

[33]And Moses said to Aaron, “Take a pot and put an omer of manna in it, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.”

[34]As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the Testimony, to be kept.

[35]And the children of Israel ate manna forty years, until they came to an inhabited land; they ate manna until they came to the border of the land of Canaan.

[36]Now an omer is one-tenth of an ephah.

Exodus 17

Water from the Rock

[1]Then all the congregation of the children of Israel set out on their journey from the Wilderness of Sin, according to the commandment of the LORD, and camped in Rephidim; but there was no water for the people to drink.

[2]Therefore the people contended with Moses, and said, “Give us water, that we may drink.” So Moses said to them, “Why do you contend with me? Why do you tempt the LORD?”

[3]And the people thirsted there for water, and the people complained against Moses, and said, “Why is it you have brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst?”

[4]So Moses cried out to the LORD, saying, “What shall I do with this people? They are almost ready to stone me!”

[5]And the LORD said to Moses, “Go on before the people, and take with you some of the elders of Israel. Also take in your hand your rod with which you struck the river, and go.

[6]“Behold, I will stand before you there on the rock in Horeb; and you shall strike the rock, and water will come out of it, that the people may drink.” And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

[7]So he called the name of the place Massah and Meribah, because of the contention of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORD, saying, “Is the LORD among us or not?”

Victory over the Amalekites

[8]Now Amalek came and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

[9]And Moses said to Joshua, “Choose us some men and go out, fight with Amalek. Tomorrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in my hand.”

[10]So Joshua did as Moses said to him, and fought with Amalek. And Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill.

[11]And so it was, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

[12]But Moses' hands became heavy; so they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat on it. And Aaron and Hur supported his hands, one on one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

[13]So Joshua defeated Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

[14]Then the LORD said to Moses, "Write this for a memorial in the book and recount it in the hearing of Joshua, that I will utterly blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven."

[15]And Moses built an altar and called its name, The-LORD-Is-My-Banner;

[16]for he said, "Because the LORD has sworn: the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation."

Exodus 18

Jethro's Advice

[1]And Jethro, the priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, heard of all that God had done for Moses and for Israel His people—that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt.

[2]Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her back,

[3]with her two sons, of whom the name of one was Gershom (for he said, "I have been a stranger in a foreign land")

[4]and the name of the other was Eliezer (for he said, "The God of my father was my help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh");

[5]and Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife to Moses in the wilderness, where he was encamped at the mountain of God.

[6]Now he had said to Moses, "I, your father-in-law Jethro, am coming to you with your wife and her two sons with her."

[7]So Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, bowed down, and kissed him. And they asked each other about their well-being, and they went into the tent.

[8]And Moses told his father-in-law all that the LORD had done to Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, all the hardship that had come upon them on the way, and how the LORD had delivered them.

[9]Then Jethro rejoiced for all the good which the LORD had done for Israel, whom He had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

[10]And Jethro said, "Blessed be the LORD, who has delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians and out of the hand of Pharaoh, and who has delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

[11]"Now I know that the LORD is greater than all the gods; for in the very thing in which they behaved proudly, He was above them."

[12]Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took a burnt offering and other sacrifices to offer to God. And Aaron came with all the elders of Israel to eat bread with Moses' father-in-law before God.

13And so it was, on the next day, that Moses sat to judge the people; and the people stood before Moses from morning until evening.

14So when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did for the people, he said, "What is this thing that you are doing for the people? Why do you alone sit, and all the people stand before you from morning until evening?"

15And Moses said to his father-in-law, "Because the people come to me to inquire of God.

16"When they have a difficulty, they come to me, and I judge between one and another; and I make known the statutes of God and His laws."

17So Moses' father-in-law said to him, "The thing that you do is not good.

18"Both you and these people who are with you will surely wear yourselves out. For this thing is too much for you; you are not able to perform it by yourself.

19"Listen now to my voice; I will give you counsel, and God will be with you: Stand before God for the people, so that you may bring the difficulties to God.

20"And you shall teach them the statutes and the laws, and show them the way in which they must walk and the work they must do.

21"Moreover you shall select from all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them to be rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

22"And let them judge the people at all times. Then it will be that every great matter they shall bring to you, but every small matter they themselves shall judge. So it will be easier for you, for they will bear the burden with you.

23"If you do this thing, and God so commands you, then you will be able to endure, and all this people will also go to their place in peace."

24So Moses heeded the voice of his father-in-law and did all that he had said.

25And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people: rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

[26]So they judged the people at all times; the hard cases they brought to Moses, but they judged every small case themselves.

[27]Then Moses let his father-in-law depart, and he went his way to his own land.

Exodus 19

Israel at Mount Sinai

[1]In the third month after the children of Israel had gone out of the land of Egypt, on the same day, they came to the Wilderness of Sinai.

[2]For they had departed from Rephidim, had come to the Wilderness of Sinai, and camped in the wilderness. So Israel camped there before the mountain.

[3]And Moses went up to God, and the LORD called to him from the mountain, saying, “Thus you shall say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel:

[4]‘You have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I bore you on eagles’ wings and brought you to Myself.

[5]‘Now therefore, if you will indeed obey My voice and keep My covenant, then you shall be a special treasure to Me above all people; for all the earth is Mine.

[6]‘And you shall be to Me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.’ These are the words which you shall speak to the children of Israel.”

[7]So Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before them all these words which the LORD commanded him.

[8]Then all the people answered together and said, “All that the LORD has spoken we will do.” So Moses brought back the words of the people to the LORD.

[9]And the LORD said to Moses, “Behold, I come to you in the thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with you, and believe you forever.” So Moses told the words of the people to the LORD.

[10]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Go to the people and consecrate them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their clothes.

[11]“And let them be ready for the third day. For on the third day the LORD will come down upon Mount Sinai in the sight of all the people.

[12]“You shall set bounds for the people all around, saying, ‘Take heed to yourselves that you do not go up to the mountain or touch its base. Whoever touches the mountain shall surely be put to death.

[13]‘Not a hand shall touch him, but he shall surely be stoned or shot with an arrow; whether man or beast, he shall not live.’ When the trumpet sounds long, they shall come near the mountain.”

[14]So Moses went down from the mountain to the people and sanctified the people, and they washed their clothes.

[15]And he said to the people, “Be ready for the third day; do not come near your wives.”

[16]Then it came to pass on the third day, in the morning, that there were thunderings and lightnings, and a thick cloud on the mountain; and the sound of the trumpet was very loud, so that all the people who were in the camp trembled.

[17]And Moses brought the people out of the camp to meet with God, and they stood at the foot of the mountain.

[18]Now Mount Sinai was completely in smoke, because the LORD descended upon it in fire. Its smoke ascended like the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mountain quaked greatly.

[19]And when the blast of the trumpet sounded long and became louder and louder, Moses spoke, and God answered him by voice.

[20]Then the LORD came down upon Mount Sinai, on the top of the mountain. And the LORD called Moses to the top of the mountain, and Moses went up.

[21]And the LORD said to Moses, “Go down and warn the people, lest they break through to gaze at the LORD, and many of them perish.

[22]“Also let the priests who come near the LORD consecrate themselves, lest the LORD break out against them.”

[23]But Moses said to the LORD, “The people cannot come up to Mount Sinai; for You warned us, saying, ‘Set bounds around the mountain and consecrate it.’ ”

[24]Then the LORD said to him, “Away! Get down and then come up, you and Aaron with you. But do not let the priests and the people break through to come up to the LORD, lest He break out against them.”

[25]So Moses went down to the people and spoke to them.

Exodus 20

The Ten Commandments

[1]And God spoke all these words, saying:

[2]"I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

[3]"You shall have no other gods before Me.

[4]"You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth;

[5]you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me,

[6]but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.

[7]"You shall not take the name of the LORD your God in vain, for the LORD will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain.

[8]"Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy.

[9]Six days you shall labor and do all your work,

[10]but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the LORD your God. In it you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your male servant, nor your female servant, nor your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates.

[11]For in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it.

[12]"Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the LORD your God is giving you.

[13]"You shall not murder.

[14]"You shall not commit adultery.

[15]"You shall not steal.

16“You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.

17“You shall not covet your neighbor’s house; you shall not covet your neighbor’s wife, nor his male servant, nor his female servant, nor his ox, nor his donkey, nor anything that is your neighbor’s.”

The People Afraid of God’s Presence

18Now all the people witnessed the thunderings, the lightning flashes, the sound of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking; and when the people saw it, they trembled and stood afar off.

19Then they said to Moses, “You speak with us, and we will hear; but let not God speak with us, lest we die.”

20And Moses said to the people, “Do not fear; for God has come to test you, and that His fear may be before you, so that you may not sin.”

21So the people stood afar off, but Moses drew near the thick darkness where God was.

The Law of the Altar

22Then the LORD said to Moses, “Thus you shall say to the children of Israel: ‘You have seen that I have talked with you from heaven.

23‘You shall not make anything to be with Me—gods of silver or gods of gold you shall not make for yourselves.

24‘An altar of earth you shall make for Me, and you shall sacrifice on it your burnt offerings and your peace offerings, your sheep and your oxen. In every place where I record My name I will come to you, and I will bless you.

25‘And if you make Me an altar of stone, you shall not build it of hewn stone; for if you use your tool on it, you have profaned it.

26‘Nor shall you go up by steps to My altar, that your nakedness may not be exposed on it.’

Exodus 21

The Law Concerning Servants

[1]“Now these are the judgments which you shall set before them:

[2]“If you buy a Hebrew servant, he shall serve six years; and in the seventh he shall go out free and pay nothing.

[3]“If he comes in by himself, he shall go out by himself; if he comes in married, then his wife shall go out with him.

[4]“If his master has given him a wife, and she has borne him sons or daughters, the wife and her children shall be her master’s, and he shall go out by himself.

[5]“But if the servant plainly says, ‘I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free,’

[6]“then his master shall bring him to the judges. He shall also bring him to the door, or to the doorpost, and his master shall pierce his ear with an awl; and he shall serve him forever.

[7]“And if a man sells his daughter to be a female slave, she shall not go out as the male slaves do.

[8]“If she does not please her master, who has betrothed her to himself, then he shall let her be redeemed. He shall have no right to sell her to a foreign people, since he has dealt deceitfully with her.

[9]“And if he has betrothed her to his son, he shall deal with her according to the custom of daughters.

[10]“If he takes another wife, he shall not diminish her food, her clothing, and her marriage rights.

[11]“And if he does not do these three for her, then she shall go out free, without paying money.

The Law Concerning Violence

[12]“He who strikes a man so that he dies shall surely be put to death.

[13]“However, if he did not lie in wait, but God delivered him into his hand, then I will appoint for you a place where he may flee.

[14]“But if a man acts with premeditation against his neighbor, to kill him by treachery, you shall take him from My altar, that he may die.

15“And he who strikes his father or his mother shall surely be put to death.

16“He who kidnaps a man and sells him, or if he is found in his hand, shall surely be put to death.

17“And he who curses his father or his mother shall surely be put to death.

18“If men contend with each other, and one strikes the other with a stone or with his fist, and he does not die but is confined to his bed,

19“if he rises again and walks about outside with his staff, then he who struck him shall be acquitted. He shall only pay for the loss of his time, and shall provide for him to be thoroughly healed.

20“And if a man beats his male or female servant with a rod, so that he dies under his hand, he shall surely be punished.

21“Notwithstanding, if he remains alive a day or two, he shall not be punished; for he is his property.

22“If men fight, and hurt a woman with child, so that she gives birth prematurely, yet no harm follows, he shall surely be punished accordingly as the woman’s husband imposes on him; and he shall pay as the judges determine.

23“But if any harm follows, then you shall give life for life,

24“eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot,

25“burn for burn, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26“If a man strikes the eye of his male or female servant, and destroys it, he shall let him go free for the sake of his eye.

27“And if he knocks out the tooth of his male or female servant, he shall let him go free for the sake of his tooth.

Animal Control Laws

28“If an ox gores a man or a woman to death, then the ox shall surely be stoned, and its flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be acquitted.

29“But if the ox tended to thrust with its horn in times past, and it has been made known to his owner, and he has not kept it confined, so that it has killed a man or a woman, the ox shall be stoned and its owner also shall be put to death.

[30]“If there is imposed on him a sum of money, then he shall pay to redeem his life, whatever is imposed on him.

[31]“Whether it has gored a son or gored a daughter, according to this judgment it shall be done to him.

[32]“If the ox gores a male or female servant, he shall give to their master thirty shekels of silver, and the ox shall be stoned.

[33]“And if a man opens a pit, or if a man digs a pit and does not cover it, and an ox or a donkey falls in it, [34]“the owner of the pit shall make it good; he shall give money to their owner, but the dead animal shall be his.

[35]“If one man’s ox hurts another’s, so that it dies, then they shall sell the live ox and divide the money from it; and the dead ox they shall also divide.

[36]“Or if it was known that the ox tended to thrust in time past, and its owner has not kept it confined, he shall surely pay ox for ox, and the dead animal shall be his own.

Exodus 22

Responsibility for Property

[1]“If a man steals an ox or a sheep, and slaughters it or sells it, he shall restore five oxen for an ox and four sheep for a sheep.

[2]“If the thief is found breaking in, and he is struck so that he dies, there shall be no guilt for his bloodshed.

[3]“If the sun has risen on him, there shall be guilt for his bloodshed. He should make full restitution; if he has nothing, then he shall be sold for his theft.

[4]“If the theft is certainly found alive in his hand, whether it is an ox or donkey or sheep, he shall restore double.

[5]“If a man causes a field or vineyard to be grazed, and lets loose his animal, and it feeds in another man’s field, he shall make restitution from the best of his own field and the best of his own vineyard.

[6]“If fire breaks out and catches in thorns, so that stacked grain, standing grain, or the field is consumed, he who kindled the fire shall surely make restitution.

[7]“If a man delivers to his neighbor money or articles to keep, and it is stolen out of the man’s house, if the thief is found, he shall pay double.

[8]“If the thief is not found, then the master of the house shall be brought to the judges to see whether he has put his hand into his neighbor’s goods.

[9]“For any kind of trespass, whether it concerns an ox, a donkey, a sheep, or clothing, or for any kind of lost thing which another claims to be his, the cause of both parties shall come before the judges; and whomever the judges condemn shall pay double to his neighbor.

[10]“If a man delivers to his neighbor a donkey, an ox, a sheep, or any animal to keep, and it dies, is hurt, or driven away, no one seeing it,

[11]“then an oath of the LORD shall be between them both, that he has not put his hand into his neighbor’s goods; and the owner of it shall accept that, and he shall not make it good.

[12]“But if, in fact, it is stolen from him, he shall make restitution to the owner of it.

[13]“If it is torn to pieces by a beast, then he shall bring it as evidence, and he shall not make good what was torn.

[14]“And if a man borrows anything from his neighbor, and it becomes injured or dies, the owner of it not being with it, he shall surely make it good.

[15]“If its owner was with it, he shall not make it good; if it was hired, it came for its hire.

Moral and Ceremonial Principles

[16]“If a man entices a virgin who is not betrothed, and lies with her, he shall surely pay the bride-price for her to be his wife.

[17]“If her father utterly refuses to give her to him, he shall pay money according to the bride-price of virgins.

[18]“You shall not permit a sorceress to live.

[19]“Whoever lies with an animal shall surely be put to death.

[20]“He who sacrifices to any god, except to the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed.

[21]“You shall neither mistreat a stranger nor oppress him, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt.

[22]“You shall not afflict any widow or fatherless child.

[23]“If you afflict them in any way, and they cry at all to Me, I will surely hear their cry;

[24]“and My wrath will become hot, and I will kill you with the sword; your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

[25]“If you lend money to any of My people who are poor among you, you shall not be like a moneylender to him; you shall not charge him interest.

[26]“If you ever take your neighbor’s garment as a pledge, you shall return it to him before the sun goes down.

[27]“For that is his only covering, it is his garment for his skin. What will he sleep in? And it will be that when he cries to Me, I will hear, for I am gracious.

[28]“You shall not revile God, nor curse a ruler of your people.

29“You shall not delay to offer the first of your ripe produce and your juices. The firstborn of your sons you shall give to Me.

30“Likewise you shall do with your oxen and your sheep. It shall be with its mother seven days; on the eighth day you shall give it to Me.

31“And you shall be holy men to Me: you shall not eat meat torn by beasts in the field; you shall throw it to the dogs.

Exodus 23

Justice for All

[1]“You shall not circulate a false report. Do not put your hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

[2]“You shall not follow a crowd to do evil; nor shall you testify in a dispute so as to turn aside after many to pervert justice.

[3]“You shall not show partiality to a poor man in his dispute.

[4]“If you meet your enemy’s ox or his donkey going astray, you shall surely bring it back to him again.

[5]“If you see the donkey of one who hates you lying under its burden, and you would refrain from helping it, you shall surely help him with it.

[6]“You shall not pervert the judgment of your poor in his dispute.

[7]“Keep yourself far from a false matter; do not kill the innocent and righteous. For I will not justify the wicked.

[8]“And you shall take no bribe, for a bribe blinds the discerning and perverts the words of the righteous.

[9]“Also you shall not oppress a stranger, for you know the heart of a stranger, because you were strangers in the land of Egypt.

The Law of Sabbaths

[10]“Six years you shall sow your land and gather in its produce, [11]“but the seventh year you shall let it rest and lie fallow, that the poor of your people may eat; and what they leave, the beasts of the field may eat. In like manner you shall do with your vineyard and your olive grove.

[12]“Six days you shall do your work, and on the seventh day you shall rest, that your ox and your donkey may rest, and the son of your female servant and the stranger may be refreshed.

[13]“And in all that I have said to you, be circumspect and make no mention of the name of other gods, nor let it be heard from your mouth.

Three Annual Feasts

[14]“Three times you shall keep a feast to Me in the year:

[15]“You shall keep the Feast of Unleavened Bread (you shall eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded you, at the time appointed in the month of Abib, for in it you came out of Egypt; none shall appear before Me empty);

[16]“and the Feast of Harvest, the firstfruits of your labors which you have sown in the field; and the Feast of Ingathering at the end of the year, when you have gathered in the fruit of your labors from the field.

[17]“Three times in the year all your males shall appear before the Lord GOD.

[18]“You shall not offer the blood of My sacrifice with leavened bread; nor shall the fat of My sacrifice remain until morning.

[19]“The first of the firstfruits of your land you shall bring into the house of the LORD your God. You shall not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk.

The Angel and the Promises

[20]“Behold, I send an Angel before you to keep you in the way and to bring you into the place which I have prepared.

[21]“Beware of Him and obey His voice; do not provoke Him, for He will not pardon your transgressions; for My name is in Him.

[22]“But if you indeed obey His voice and do all that I speak, then I will be an enemy to your enemies and an adversary to your adversaries.

[23]“For My Angel will go before you and bring you in to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites; and I will cut them off.

[24]“You shall not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do according to their works; but you shall utterly overthrow them and completely break down their sacred pillars.

[25]“So you shall serve the LORD your God, and He will bless your bread and your water. And I will take sickness away from the midst of you.

[26]“No one shall suffer miscarriage or be barren in your land; I will fulfill the number of your days.

[27]“I will send My fear before you, I will cause confusion among all the people to whom you come, and will make all your enemies turn their backs to you.

[28]“And I will send hornets before you, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite from before you.

[29]“I will not drive them out from before you in one year, lest the land become desolate and the beasts of the field become too numerous for you.

[30]“Little by little I will drive them out from before you, until you have increased, and you inherit the land.

[31]“And I will set your bounds from the Red Sea to the sea, Philistia, and from the desert to the River. For I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand, and you shall drive them out before you.

[32]“You shall make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

[33]“They shall not dwell in your land, lest they make you sin against Me. For if you serve their gods, it will surely be a snare to you.”

Exodus 24

Israel Affirms the Covenant

[1]Now He said to Moses, "Come up to the LORD, you and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel, and worship from afar.

[2]"And Moses alone shall come near the LORD, but they shall not come near; nor shall the people go up with him."

[3]So Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD and all the judgments. And all the people answered with one voice and said, "All the words which the LORD has said we will do."

[4]And Moses wrote all the words of the LORD. And he rose early in the morning, and built an altar at the foot of the mountain, and twelve pillars according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

[5]Then he sent young men of the children of Israel, who offered burnt offerings and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen to the LORD.

[6]And Moses took half the blood and put it in basins, and half the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

[7]Then he took the Book of the Covenant and read in the hearing of the people. And they said, "All that the LORD has said we will do, and be obedient."

[8]And Moses took the blood, sprinkled it on the people, and said, "This is the blood of the covenant which the LORD has made with you according to all these words."

On the Mountain with God

[9]Then Moses went up, also Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel,

[10]and they saw the God of Israel. And there was under His feet as it were a paved work of sapphire stone, and it was like the very heavens in its clarity.

[11]But on the nobles of the children of Israel He did not lay His hand. So they saw God, and they ate and drank.

[12]Then the LORD said to Moses, "Come up to Me on the mountain and be there; and I will give you tablets of stone, and the law and commandments which I have written, that you may teach them.”

[13]So Moses arose with his assistant Joshua, and Moses went up to the mountain of God.

[14]And he said to the elders, “Wait here for us until we come back to you. Indeed, Aaron and Hur are with you. If any man has a difficulty, let him go to them.”

[15]Then Moses went up into the mountain, and a cloud covered the mountain.

[16]Now the glory of the LORD rested on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days. And on the seventh day He called to Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

[17]The sight of the glory of the LORD was like a consuming fire on the top of the mountain in the eyes of the children of Israel.

[18]So Moses went into the midst of the cloud and went up into the mountain. And Moses was on the mountain forty days and forty nights.

Exodus 25

Offerings for the Sanctuary

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, that they bring Me an offering. From everyone who gives it willingly with his heart you shall take My offering.

[3]“And this is the offering which you shall take from them: gold, silver, and bronze;

[4]“blue, purple, and scarlet thread, fine linen, and goats’ hair;

[5]“ram skins dyed red, badger skins, and acacia wood;

[6]“oil for the light, and spices for the anointing oil and for the sweet incense;

[7]“onyx stones, and stones to be set in the ephod and in the breastplate.

[8]“And let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them.

[9]“According to all that I show you, that is, the pattern of the tabernacle and the pattern of all its furnishings, just so you shall make it.

The Ark of the Testimony

10“And they shall make an ark of acacia wood; two and a half cubits shall be its length, a cubit and a half its width, and a cubit and a half its height.

[11]“And you shall overlay it with pure gold, inside and out you shall overlay it, and shall make on it a molding of gold all around.

[12]“You shall cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in its four corners; two rings shall be on one side, and two rings on the other side.

[13]“And you shall make poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with gold.

[14]“You shall put the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark, that the ark may be carried by them.

[15]“The poles shall be in the rings of the ark; they shall not be taken from it.

[16]“And you shall put into the ark the Testimony which I will give you.

[17]“You shall make a mercy seat of pure gold; two and a half cubits shall be its length and a cubit and a half its width.

[18]“And you shall make two cherubim of gold; of hammered work you shall make them at the two ends of the mercy seat.

[19]“Make one cherub at one end, and the other cherub at the other end; you shall make the cherubim at the two ends of it of one piece with the mercy seat.

[20]“And the cherubim shall stretch out their wings above, covering the mercy seat with their wings, and they shall face one another; the faces of the cherubim shall be toward the mercy seat.

[21]“You shall put the mercy seat on top of the ark, and in the ark you shall put the Testimony that I will give you.

[22]“And there I will meet with you, and I will speak with you from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubim which are on the ark of the Testimony, about everything which I will give you in commandment to the children of Israel.

The Table for the Showbread

[23]“You shall also make a table of acacia wood; two cubits shall be its length, a cubit its width, and a cubit and a half its height.

[24]“And you shall overlay it with pure gold, and make a molding of gold all around.

[25]“You shall make for it a frame of a handbreadth all around, and you shall make a gold molding for the frame all around.

[26]“And you shall make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings on the four corners that are at its four legs.

[27]“The rings shall be close to the frame, as holders for the poles to bear the table.

[28]“And you shall make the poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be carried with them.

[29]“You shall make its dishes, its pans, its pitchers, and its bowls for pouring. You shall make them of pure gold.

[30]“And you shall set the showbread on the table before Me always.

The Gold Lampstand

[31]"You shall also make a lampstand of pure gold; the lampstand shall be of hammered work. Its shaft, its branches, its bowls, its ornamental knobs, and flowers shall be of one piece.

[32]"And six branches shall come out of its sides: three branches of the lampstand out of one side, and three branches of the lampstand out of the other side.

[33]"Three bowls shall be made like almond blossoms on one branch, with an ornamental knob and a flower, and three bowls made like almond blossoms on the other branch, with an ornamental knob and a flower—and so for the six branches that come out of the lampstand.

[34]"On the lampstand itself four bowls shall be made like almond blossoms, each with its ornamental knob and flower.

[35]"And there shall be a knob under the first two branches of the same, a knob under the second two branches of the same, and a knob under the third two branches of the same, according to the six branches that extend from the lampstand.

[36]"Their knobs and their branches shall be of one piece; all of it shall be one hammered piece of pure gold.

[37]"You shall make seven lamps for it, and they shall arrange its lamps so that they give light in front of it.

[38]"And its wick-trimmers and their trays shall be of pure gold.

[39]"It shall be made of a talent of pure gold, with all these utensils.

[40]"And see to it that you make them according to the pattern which was shown you on the mountain.

Exodus 26

The Tabernacle

[1]“Moreover you shall make the tabernacle with ten curtains of fine woven linen, and blue, purple, and scarlet thread; with artistic designs of cherubim you shall weave them.

[2]“The length of each curtain shall be twenty-eight cubits, and the width of each curtain four cubits. And every one of the curtains shall have the same measurements.

[3]“Five curtains shall be coupled to one another, and the other five curtains shall be coupled to one another.

[4]“And you shall make loops of blue yarn on the edge of the curtain on the selvedge of one set, and likewise you shall do on the outer edge of the other curtain of the second set.

[5]“Fifty loops you shall make in the one curtain, and fifty loops you shall make on the edge of the curtain that is on the end of the second set, that the loops may be clasped to one another.

[6]“And you shall make fifty clasps of gold, and couple the curtains together with the clasps, so that it may be one tabernacle.

[7]“You shall also make curtains of goats’ hair, to be a tent over the tabernacle. You shall make eleven curtains.

[8]“The length of each curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the width of each curtain four cubits; and the eleven curtains shall all have the same measurements.

[9]“And you shall couple five curtains by themselves and six curtains by themselves, and you shall double over the sixth curtain at the forefront of the tent.

[10]“You shall make fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that is outermost in one set, and fifty loops on the edge of the curtain of the second set.

[11]“And you shall make fifty bronze clasps, put the clasps into the loops, and couple the tent together, that it may be one.

[12]“The remnant that remains of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remains, shall hang over the back of the tabernacle.

[13]"And a cubit on one side and a cubit on the other side, of what remains of the length of the curtains of the tent, shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle, on this side and on that side, to cover it.

[14]"You shall also make a covering of ram skins dyed red for the tent, and a covering of badger skins above that.

15"And for the tabernacle you shall make the boards of acacia wood, standing upright.

[16]"Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the width of each board.

[17]"Two tenons shall be in each board for binding one to another. Thus you shall make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

[18]"And you shall make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards for the south side.

[19]"You shall make forty sockets of silver under the twenty boards: two sockets under each of the boards for its two tenons.

[20]"And for the second side of the tabernacle, the north side, there shall be twenty boards [21]"and their forty sockets of silver: two sockets under each of the boards.

[22]"For the far side of the tabernacle, westward, you shall make six boards.

[23]"And you shall also make two boards for the two back corners of the tabernacle.

[24]"They shall be coupled together at the bottom and they shall be coupled together at the top by one ring. Thus it shall be for both of them. They shall be for the two corners.

[25]"So there shall be eight boards with their sockets of silver—sixteen sockets—two sockets under each of the boards.

26"And you shall make bars of acacia wood: five for the boards on one side of the tabernacle, [27]"five bars for the boards on the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle, for the far side westward.

[28]"The middle bar shall pass through the midst of the boards from end to end.

[29]“You shall overlay the boards with gold, make their rings of gold as holders for the bars, and overlay the bars with gold.

[30]“And you shall raise up the tabernacle according to its pattern which you were shown on the mountain.

[31]“You shall make a veil woven of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen. It shall be woven with an artistic design of cherubim.

[32]“You shall hang it upon the four pillars of acacia wood overlaid with gold. Their hooks shall be gold, upon four sockets of silver.

[33]“And you shall hang the veil from the clasps. Then you shall bring the ark of the Testimony in there, behind the veil. The veil shall be a divider for you between the holy place and the Most Holy.

[34]“You shall put the mercy seat upon the ark of the Testimony in the Most Holy.

[35]“You shall set the table outside the veil, and the lampstand across from the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south; and you shall put the table on the north side.

[36]“You shall make a screen for the door of the tabernacle, woven of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen, made by a weaver.

[37]“And you shall make for the screen five pillars of acacia wood, and overlay them with gold; their hooks shall be gold, and you shall cast five sockets of bronze for them.

Exodus 27

The Altar of Burnt Offering

[1]“You shall make an altar of acacia wood, five cubits long and five cubits wide—the altar shall be square—and its height shall be three cubits.

[2]“You shall make its horns on its four corners; its horns shall be of one piece with it. And you shall overlay it with bronze.

[3]“Also you shall make its pans to receive its ashes, and its shovels and its basins and its forks and its firepans; you shall make all its utensils of bronze.

[4]“You shall make a grate for it, a network of bronze; and on the network you shall make four bronze rings at its four corners.

[5]“You shall put it under the rim of the altar beneath, that the network may be midway up the altar.

[6]“And you shall make poles for the altar, poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with bronze.

[7]“The poles shall be put in the rings, and the poles shall be on the two sides of the altar to bear it.

[8]“You shall make it hollow with boards; as it was shown you on the mountain, so shall they make it.

The Court of the Tabernacle

[9]“You shall also make the court of the tabernacle. For the south side there shall be hangings for the court made of fine woven linen, one hundred cubits long for one side.

[10]“And its twenty pillars and their twenty sockets shall be bronze. The hooks of the pillars and their bands shall be silver.

[11]“Likewise along the length of the north side there shall be hangings one hundred cubits long, with its twenty pillars and their twenty sockets of bronze, and the hooks of the pillars and their bands of silver.

[12]“And along the width of the court on the west side shall be hangings of fifty cubits, with their ten pillars and their ten sockets.

[13]“The width of the court on the east side shall be fifty cubits.

[14]“The hangings on one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and their three sockets.

[15]“And on the other side shall be hangings of fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and their three sockets.

[16]“For the gate of the court there shall be a screen twenty cubits long, woven of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen, made by a weaver. It shall have four pillars and four sockets.

[17]“All the pillars around the court shall have bands of silver; their hooks shall be of silver and their sockets of bronze.

[18]“The length of the court shall be one hundred cubits, the width fifty throughout, and the height five cubits, made of fine woven linen, and its sockets of bronze.

[19]“All the utensils of the tabernacle for all its service, all its pegs, and all the pegs of the court, shall be of bronze.

The Care of the Lampstand

[20]“And you shall command the children of Israel that they bring you pure oil of pressed olives for the light, to cause the lamp to burn continually.

[21]“In the tabernacle of meeting, outside the veil which is before the Testimony, Aaron and his sons shall tend it from evening until morning before the LORD. It shall be a statute forever to their generations on behalf of the children of Israel.

Exodus 28

Garments for the Priesthood

[1]“Now take Aaron your brother, and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, that he may minister to Me as priest, Aaron and Aaron’s sons: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

[2]“And you shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother, for glory and for beauty.

[3]“So you shall speak to all who are gifted artisans, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron’s garments, to consecrate him, that he may minister to Me as priest.

[4]“And these are the garments which they shall make: a breastplate, an ephod, a robe, a skillfully woven tunic, a turban, and a sash. So they shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother and his sons, that he may minister to Me as priest.

The Ephod

[5]“They shall take the gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and the fine linen,

[6]“and they shall make the ephod of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen, artistically worked.

[7]“It shall have two shoulder straps joined at its two edges, and so it shall be joined together.

[8]“And the intricately woven band of the ephod, which is on it, shall be of the same workmanship, made of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen.

[9]“Then you shall take two onyx stones and engrave on them the names of the sons of Israel:

[10]“six of their names on one stone and six names on the other stone, in order of their birth.

[11]“With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, you shall engrave the two stones with the names of the sons of Israel. You shall set them in settings of gold.

[12]"And you shall put the two stones on the shoulders of the ephod as memorial stones for the sons of Israel. So Aaron shall bear their names before the LORD on his two shoulders as a memorial.

[13]"You shall also make settings of gold,

[14]"and you shall make two chains of pure gold like braided cords, and fasten the braided chains to the settings.

The Breastplate

[15]"You shall make the breastplate of judgment. Artistically woven according to the workmanship of the ephod you shall make it: of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen, you shall make it.

[16]"It shall be doubled into a square: a span shall be its length, and a span shall be its width.

[17]"And you shall put settings of stones in it, four rows of stones: The first row shall be a sardius, a topaz, and an emerald; this shall be the first row;

[18]"the second row shall be a turquoise, a sapphire, and a diamond;

[19]"the third row, a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst;

[20]"and the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. They shall be set in gold settings.

[21]"And the stones shall have the names of the sons of Israel, twelve according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, each one with its own name; they shall be according to the twelve tribes.

[22]"You shall make chains for the breastplate at the end, like braided cords of pure gold.

[23]"And you shall make two rings of gold for the breastplate, and put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate.

[24]"Then you shall put the two braided chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breastplate;

[25]"and the other two ends of the two braided chains you shall fasten to the two settings, and put them on the shoulder straps of the ephod in the front.

[26]"You shall make two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, on the edge of it, which is on the inner side of the ephod.

[27]"And two other rings of gold you shall make, and put them on the two shoulder straps, underneath the ephod toward its front, right at the seam above the intricately woven band of the ephod.

[28]"They shall bind the breastplate by means of its rings to the rings of the ephod, using a blue cord, so that it is above the intricately woven band of the ephod, and so that the breastplate does not come loose from the ephod.

[29]"So Aaron shall bear the names of the sons of Israel on the breastplate of judgment over his heart, when he goes into the holy place, as a memorial before the LORD continually.

[30]"And you shall put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim, and they shall be over Aaron's heart when he goes in before the LORD. So Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel over his heart before the LORD continually.

Other Priestly Garments

[31]"You shall make the robe of the ephod all of blue.

[32]"There shall be an opening for his head in the middle of it; it shall have a woven binding all around its opening, like the opening in a coat of mail, so that it does not tear.

[33]"And upon its hem you shall make pomegranates of blue, purple, and scarlet, all around its hem, and bells of gold between them all around:

[34]"a golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe all around.

[35]"And it shall be upon Aaron when he ministers, and its sound will be heard when he goes into the holy place before the LORD and when he comes out, that he may not die.

[36]"You shall also make a plate of pure gold and engrave on it, like the engraving of a signet:

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

[37]"And you shall put it on a blue cord, that it may be on the turban; it shall be on the front of the turban.

[38]“So it shall be on Aaron’s forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things which the children of Israel hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall always be on his forehead, that they may be accepted before the LORD.

[39]“You shall skillfully weave the tunic of fine linen thread, you shall make the turban of fine linen, and you shall make the sash of woven work.

[40]“For Aaron’s sons you shall make tunics, and you shall make sashes for them. And you shall make hats for them, for glory and beauty.

[41]“So you shall put them on Aaron your brother and on his sons with him. You shall anoint them, consecrate them, and sanctify them, that they may minister to Me as priests.

[42]“And you shall make for them linen trousers to cover their nakedness; they shall reach from the waist to the thighs.

[43]“They shall be on Aaron and on his sons when they come into the tabernacle of meeting, or when they come near the altar to minister in the holy place, that they do not incur iniquity and die. It shall be a statute forever to him and his descendants after him.

Exodus 29

Aaron and His Sons Consecrated

[1]"And this is what you shall do to them to hallow them for ministering to Me as priests: Take one young bull and two rams without blemish,

[2]"and unleavened bread, unleavened cakes mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil (you shall make them of wheat flour).

[3]"You shall put them in one basket and bring them in the basket, with the bull and the two rams.

[4]"And Aaron and his sons you shall bring to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and you shall wash them with water.

[5]"Then you shall take the garments, put the tunic on Aaron, and the robe of the ephod, the ephod, and the breastplate, and gird him with the intricately woven band of the ephod.

[6]"You shall put the turban on his head, and put the holy crown on the turban.

[7]"And you shall take the anointing oil, pour it on his head, and anoint him.

[8]"Then you shall bring his sons and put tunics on them.

[9]"And you shall gird them with sashes, Aaron and his sons, and put the hats on them. The priesthood shall be theirs for a perpetual statute. So you shall consecrate Aaron and his sons.

[10]"You shall also have the bull brought before the tabernacle of meeting, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands on the head of the bull.

[11]"Then you shall kill the bull before the LORD, by the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[12]"You shall take some of the blood of the bull and put it on the horns of the altar with your finger, and pour all the blood beside the base of the altar.

[13]"And you shall take all the fat that covers the entrails, the fatty lobe attached to the liver, and the two kidneys and the fat that is on them, and burn them on the altar.

[14]“But the flesh of the bull, with its skin and its offal, you shall burn with fire outside the camp. It is a sin offering.

[15]“You shall also take one ram, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands on the head of the ram;

[16]“and you shall kill the ram, and you shall take its blood and sprinkle it all around on the altar.

[17]“Then you shall cut the ram in pieces, wash its entrails and its legs, and put them with its pieces and with its head.

[18]“And you shall burn the whole ram on the altar. It is a burnt offering to the LORD; it is a sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[19]“You shall also take the other ram, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands on the head of the ram.

[20]“Then you shall kill the ram, and take some of its blood and put it on the tip of the right ear of Aaron and on the tip of the right ear of his sons, on the thumb of their right hand and on the big toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood all around on the altar.

[21]“And you shall take some of the blood that is on the altar, and some of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it on Aaron and on his garments, on his sons and on the garments of his sons with him; and he and his garments shall be hallowed, and his sons and his sons’ garments with him.

[22]“Also you shall take the fat of the ram, the fat tail, the fat that covers the entrails, the fatty lobe attached to the liver, the two kidneys and the fat on them, the right thigh (for it is a ram of consecration),

[23]“one loaf of bread, one cake made with oil, and one wafer from the basket of the unleavened bread that is before the LORD;

[24]“and you shall put all these in the hands of Aaron and in the hands of his sons, and you shall wave them as a wave offering before the LORD.

[25]“You shall receive them back from their hands and burn them on the altar as a burnt offering, as a sweet aroma before the LORD. It is an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[26]“Then you shall take the breast of the ram of Aaron’s consecration and wave it as a wave offering before the LORD; and it shall be your portion.

[27]“And from the ram of the consecration you shall consecrate the breast of the wave offering which is waved, and the thigh of the heave offering which is raised, of that which is for Aaron and of that which is for his sons.

[28]“It shall be from the children of Israel for Aaron and his sons by a statute forever. For it is a heave offering; it shall be a heave offering from the children of Israel from the sacrifices of their peace offerings, that is, their heave offering to the LORD.

[29]“And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sons’ after him, to be anointed in them and to be consecrated in them.

[30]“That son who becomes priest in his place shall put them on for seven days, when he enters the tabernacle of meeting to minister in the holy place.

[31]“And you shall take the ram of the consecration and boil its flesh in the holy place.

[32]“Then Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[33]“They shall eat those things with which the atonement was made, to consecrate and to sanctify them; but an outsider shall not eat them, because they are holy.

[34]“And if any of the flesh of the consecration offerings, or of the bread, remains until the morning, then you shall burn the remainder with fire. It shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

[35]“Thus you shall do to Aaron and his sons, according to all that I have commanded you. Seven days you shall consecrate them.

[36]“And you shall offer a bull every day as a sin offering for atonement. You shall cleanse the altar when you make atonement for it, and you shall anoint it to sanctify it.

[37]“Seven days you shall make atonement for the altar and sanctify it. And the altar shall be most holy. Whatever touches the altar must be holy.

The Daily Offerings

38“Now this is what you shall offer on the altar: two lambs of the first year, day by day continually.

39“One lamb you shall offer in the morning, and the other lamb you shall offer at twilight.

40“With the one lamb shall be one-tenth of an ephah of flour mixed with one-fourth of a hin of pressed oil, and one-fourth of a hin of wine as a drink offering.

41“And the other lamb you shall offer at twilight; and you shall offer with it the grain offering and the drink offering, as in the morning, for a sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

42“This shall be a continual burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the LORD, where I will meet you to speak with you.

43“And there I will meet with the children of Israel, and the tabernacle shall be sanctified by My glory.

44“So I will consecrate the tabernacle of meeting and the altar. I will also consecrate both Aaron and his sons to minister to Me as priests.

45“I will dwell among the children of Israel and will be their God.

46“And they shall know that I am the LORD their God, who brought them up out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them. I am the LORD their God.

Exodus 30

The Altar of Incense

[1]"You shall make an altar to burn incense on; you shall make it of acacia wood.

[2]"A cubit shall be its length and a cubit its width—it shall be square—and two cubits shall be its height. Its horns shall be of one piece with it.

[3]"And you shall overlay its top, its sides all around, and its horns with pure gold; and you shall make for it a molding of gold all around.

[4]"Two gold rings you shall make for it, under the molding on both its sides. You shall place them on its two sides, and they will be holders for the poles with which to bear it.

[5]"You shall make the poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with gold.

[6]"And you shall put it before the veil that is before the ark of the Testimony, before the mercy seat that is over the Testimony, where I will meet with you.

[7]"Aaron shall burn on it sweet incense every morning; when he tends the lamps, he shall burn incense on it.

[8]"And when Aaron lights the lamps at twilight, he shall burn incense on it, a perpetual incense before the LORD throughout your generations.

[9]"You shall not offer strange incense on it, or a burnt offering, or a grain offering; nor shall you pour a drink offering on it.

[10]"And Aaron shall make atonement upon its horns once a year with the blood of the sin offering of atonement; once a year he shall make atonement upon it throughout your generations. It is most holy to the LORD."

The Ransom Money

[11]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[12]"When you take the census of the children of Israel for their number, then every man shall give a ransom for himself to the LORD, when you number them, that there may be no plague among them when you number them.

[13]"This is what everyone among those who are numbered shall give: half a shekel according to the shekel of the sanctuary (a shekel is twenty gerahs). The half-shekel shall be an offering to the LORD.

[14]"Everyone included among those who are numbered, from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering to the LORD.

[15]"The rich shall not give more and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel, when you give an offering to the LORD, to make atonement for yourselves.

[16]"And you shall take the atonement money of the children of Israel, and shall appoint it for the service of the tabernacle of meeting, that it may be a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD, to make atonement for yourselves."

The Bronze Laver

17Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[18]"You shall also make a laver of bronze, with its base also of bronze, for washing. You shall put it between the tabernacle of meeting and the altar. And you shall put water in it,

[19]"for Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet in water from it.

[20]"When they go into the tabernacle of meeting, or when they come near the altar to minister, to burn an offering made by fire to the LORD, they shall wash with water, lest they die.

[21]"So they shall wash their hands and their feet, lest they die. And it shall be a statute forever to them—to him and his descendants throughout their generations."

The Holy Anointing Oil

22Moreover the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[23]"Also take for yourself quality spices—five hundred shekels of liquid myrrh, half as much sweet-smelling cinnamon (two hundred and fifty shekels), two hundred and fifty shekels of sweet-smelling cane, [24]“five hundred shekels of cassia, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, and a hin of olive oil.

[25]“And you shall make from these a holy anointing oil, an ointment compounded according to the art of the perfumer. It shall be a holy anointing oil.

[26]“With it you shall anoint the tabernacle of meeting and the ark of the Testimony;

[27]“the table and all its utensils, the lampstand and its utensils, and the altar of incense;

[28]“the altar of burnt offering with all its utensils, and the laver and its base.

[29]“You shall consecrate them, that they may be most holy; whatever touches them must be holy.

[30]“And you shall anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister to Me as priests.

[31]“And you shall speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘This shall be a holy anointing oil to Me throughout your generations.

[32]‘It shall not be poured on man’s flesh; nor shall you make any other like it, according to its composition. It is holy, and it shall be holy to you.

[33]‘Whoever compounds any like it, or whoever puts any of it on an outsider, shall be cut off from his people.’ ”

The Incense

[34]And the LORD said to Moses: “Take sweet spices, stacte and onycha and galbanum, and pure frankincense with these sweet spices; there shall be equal amounts of each.

[35]“You shall make of these an incense, a compound according to the art of the perfumer, salted, pure, and holy.

[36]“And you shall beat some of it very fine, and put some of it before the Testimony in the tabernacle of meeting where I will meet with you. It shall be most holy to you.

[37]“But as for the incense which you shall make, you shall not make any for yourselves, according to its composition. It shall be to you holy for the LORD.

[38]“Whoever makes any like it, to smell it, he shall be cut off from his people.”

Exodus 31

Artisans for Building the Tabernacle

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“See, I have called by name Bezalel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah.

[3]“And I have filled him with the Spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship,

[4]“to design artistic works, to work in gold, in silver, in bronze,

[5]“in cutting jewels for setting, in carving wood, and to work in all manner of workmanship.

[6]“And I, indeed I, have appointed with him Aholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan; and I have put wisdom in the hearts of all the gifted artisans, that they may make all that I have commanded you:

[7]“the tabernacle of meeting, the ark of the Testimony and the mercy seat that is on it, and all the furniture of the tabernacle—

[8]“the table and its utensils, the pure gold lampstand with all its utensils, the altar of incense,

[9]“the altar of burnt offering with all its utensils, and the laver and its base—

[10]“the garments of ministry, the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments of his sons, to minister as priests,

[11]“and the anointing oil and sweet incense for the holy place. According to all that I have commanded you they shall do.”

The Sabbath Law

[12]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[13]“Speak also to the children of Israel, saying: ‘Surely My Sabbaths you shall keep, for it is a sign between Me and you throughout your generations, that you may know that I am the LORD who sanctifies you.

[14]‘You shall keep the Sabbath, therefore, for it is holy to you. Everyone who profanes it shall surely be put to death; for whoever does any work on it, that person shall be cut off from among his people.

[15]‘Work shall be done for six days, but the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the LORD. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death.

[16]‘Therefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations as a perpetual covenant.

[17]‘It is a sign between Me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, and on the seventh day He rested and was refreshed.’ ”

18And when He had made an end of speaking with him on Mount Sinai, He gave Moses two tablets of the Testimony, tablets of stone, written with the finger of God.

Exodus 32

The Gold Calf

[1]Now when the people saw that Moses delayed coming down from the mountain, the people gathered together to Aaron, and said to him, “Come, make us gods that shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.”

[2]And Aaron said to them, “Break off the golden earrings which are in the ears of your wives, your sons, and your daughters, and bring them to me.”

[3]So all the people broke off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them to Aaron.

[4]And he received the gold from their hand, and he fashioned it with an engraving tool, and made a molded calf. Then they said, “This is your god, O Israel, that brought you out of the land of Egypt!”

[5]So when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it. And Aaron made a proclamation and said, “Tomorrow is a feast to the LORD.”

[6]Then they rose early on the next day, offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

[7]And the LORD said to Moses, “Go, get down! For your people whom you brought out of the land of Egypt have corrupted themselves.

[8]“They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them. They have made themselves a molded calf, and worshiped it and sacrificed to it, and said, ‘This is your god, O Israel, that brought you out of the land of Egypt!’ ”

[9]And the LORD said to Moses, “I have seen this people, and indeed it is a stiff-necked people!

[10]“Now therefore, let Me alone, that My wrath may burn hot against them and I may consume them. And I will make of you a great nation.”

[11]Then Moses pleaded with the LORD his God, and said: “LORD, why does Your wrath burn hot against Your people whom You have brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and with a mighty hand?

[12]"Why should the Egyptians speak, and say, 'He brought them out to harm them, to kill them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth'? Turn from Your fierce wrath, and relent from this harm to Your people.

[13]"Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, Your servants, to whom You swore by Your own self, and said to them, 'I will multiply your descendants as the stars of heaven; and all this land that I have spoken of I give to your descendants, and they shall inherit it forever.' "

[14]So the LORD relented from the harm which He said He would do to His people.

[15]And Moses turned and went down from the mountain, and the two tablets of the Testimony were in his hand. The tablets were written on both sides; on the one side and on the other they were written.

[16]Now the tablets were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God engraved on the tablets.

[17]And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said to Moses, "There is a noise of war in the camp."

[18]But he said:

> "It is not the noise of the shout of victory,
> Nor the noise of the cry of defeat,
> But the sound of singing I hear."

[19]So it was, as soon as he came near the camp, that he saw the calf and the dancing. So Moses' anger became hot, and he cast the tablets out of his hands and broke them at the foot of the mountain.

[20]Then he took the calf which they had made, burned it in the fire, and ground it to powder; and he scattered it on the water and made the children of Israel drink it.

[21]And Moses said to Aaron, "What did this people do to you that you have brought so great a sin upon them?"

[22]So Aaron said, "Do not let the anger of my lord become hot. You know the people, that they are set on evil.

[23]“For they said to me, ‘Make us gods that shall go before us; as for this Moses, the man who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.’

[24]“And I said to them, ‘Whoever has any gold, let them break it off.’ So they gave it to me, and I cast it into the fire, and this calf came out.”

[25]Now when Moses saw that the people were unrestrained (for Aaron had not restrained them, to their shame among their enemies),

[26]then Moses stood in the entrance of the camp, and said, “Whoever is on the LORD’s side—come to me!” And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together to him.

[27]And he said to them, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ‘Let every man put his sword on his side, and go in and out from entrance to entrance throughout the camp, and let every man kill his brother, every man his companion, and every man his neighbor.’ ”

[28]So the sons of Levi did according to the word of Moses. And about three thousand men of the people fell that day.

[29]Then Moses said, “Consecrate yourselves today to the LORD, that He may bestow on you a blessing this day, for every man has opposed his son and his brother.”

[30]Now it came to pass on the next day that Moses said to the people, “You have committed a great sin. So now I will go up to the LORD; perhaps I can make atonement for your sin.”

[31]Then Moses returned to the LORD and said, “Oh, these people have committed a great sin, and have made for themselves a god of gold!

[32]“Yet now, if You will forgive their sin—but if not, I pray, blot me out of Your book which You have written.”

[33]And the LORD said to Moses, “Whoever has sinned against Me, I will blot him out of My book.

[34]“Now therefore, go, lead the people to the place of which I have spoken to you. Behold, My Angel shall go before you. Nevertheless, in the day when I visit for punishment, I will visit punishment upon them for their sin.”

[35]So the LORD plagued the people because of what they did with the calf which Aaron made.

Exodus 33

The Command to Leave Sinai

[1]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Depart and go up from here, you and the people whom you have brought out of the land of Egypt, to the land of which I swore to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying, ‘To your descendants I will give it.’

[2]“And I will send My Angel before you, and I will drive out the Canaanite and the Amorite and the Hittite and the Perizzite and the Hivite and the Jebusite.

[3]“Go up to a land flowing with milk and honey; for I will not go up in your midst, lest I consume you on the way, for you are a stiff-necked people.”

[4]And when the people heard this bad news, they mourned, and no one put on his ornaments.

[5]For the LORD had said to Moses, “Say to the children of Israel, ‘You are a stiff-necked people. I could come up into your midst in one moment and consume you. Now therefore, take off your ornaments, that I may know what to do to you.’ ”

[6]So the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by Mount Horeb.

Moses Meets with the LORD

[7]Moses took his tent and pitched it outside the camp, far from the camp, and called it the tabernacle of meeting. And it came to pass that everyone who sought the LORD went out to the tabernacle of meeting which was outside the camp.

[8]So it was, whenever Moses went out to the tabernacle, that all the people rose, and each man stood at his tent door and watched Moses until he had gone into the tabernacle.

[9]And it came to pass, when Moses entered the tabernacle, that the pillar of cloud descended and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

[10]All the people saw the pillar of cloud standing at the tabernacle door, and all the people rose and worshiped, each man in his tent door.

[11]So the LORD spoke to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his friend. And he would return to the camp, but his servant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not depart from the tabernacle.

The Promise of God's Presence

[12]Then Moses said to the LORD, "See, You say to me, 'Bring up this people.' But You have not let me know whom You will send with me. Yet You have said, 'I know you by name, and you have also found grace in My sight.'

[13]"Now therefore, I pray, if I have found grace in Your sight, show me now Your way, that I may know You and that I may find grace in Your sight. And consider that this nation is Your people."

[14]And He said, "My Presence will go with you, and I will give you rest."

[15]Then he said to Him, "If Your Presence does not go with us, do not bring us up from here.

[16]"For how then will it be known that Your people and I have found grace in Your sight, except You go with us? So we shall be separate, Your people and I, from all the people who are upon the face of the earth."

[17]So the LORD said to Moses, "I will also do this thing that you have spoken; for you have found grace in My sight, and I know you by name."

[18]And he said, "Please, show me Your glory."

[19]Then He said, "I will make all My goodness pass before you, and I will proclaim the name of the LORD before you. I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion."

[20]But He said, "You cannot see My face; for no man shall see Me, and live."

[21]And the LORD said, "Here is a place by Me, and you shall stand on the rock.

[22]“So it shall be, while My glory passes by, that I will put you in the cleft of the rock, and will cover you with My hand while I pass by.

[23]“Then I will take away My hand, and you shall see My back; but My face shall not be seen.”

Exodus 34

Moses Makes New Tablets

[1]And the LORD said to Moses, "Cut two tablets of stone like the first ones, and I will write on these tablets the words that were on the first tablets which you broke.

[2]"So be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning to Mount Sinai, and present yourself to Me there on the top of the mountain.

[3]"And no man shall come up with you, and let no man be seen throughout all the mountain; let neither flocks nor herds feed before that mountain."

[4]So he cut two tablets of stone like the first ones. Then Moses rose early in the morning and went up Mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him; and he took in his hand the two tablets of stone.

[5]Now the LORD descended in the cloud and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the LORD.

[6]And the LORD passed before him and proclaimed, "The LORD, the LORD God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abounding in goodness and truth,

[7]"keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, by no means clearing the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children and the children's children to the third and the fourth generation."

[8]So Moses made haste and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshiped.

[9]Then he said, "If now I have found grace in Your sight, O Lord, let my Lord, I pray, go among us, even though we are a stiff-necked people; and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us as Your inheritance."

The Covenant Renewed

[10]And He said: "Behold, I make a covenant. Before all your people I will do marvels such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation; and all the people among whom you are shall see the work of the LORD. For it is an awesome thing that I will do with you.

[11]“Observe what I command you this day. Behold, I am driving out from before you the Amorite and the Canaanite and the Hittite and the Perizzite and the Hivite and the Jebusite.

[12]“Take heed to yourself, lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land where you are going, lest it be a snare in your midst.

[13]“But you shall destroy their altars, break their sacred pillars, and cut down their wooden images

[14]“(for you shall worship no other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God),

[15]“lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they play the harlot with their gods and make sacrifice to their gods, and one of them invites you and you eat of his sacrifice, [16]“and you take of his daughters for your sons, and his daughters play the harlot with their gods and make your sons play the harlot with their gods.

[17]“You shall make no molded gods for yourselves.

[18]“The Feast of Unleavened Bread you shall keep. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, as I commanded you, in the appointed time of the month of Abib; for in the month of Abib you came out from Egypt.

[19]“All that open the womb are Mine, and every male firstborn among your livestock, whether ox or sheep.

[20]“But the firstborn of a donkey you shall redeem with a lamb. And if you will not redeem him, then you shall break his neck. All the firstborn of your sons you shall redeem. And none shall appear before Me empty-handed.

[21]“Six days you shall work, but on the seventh day you shall rest; in plowing time and in harvest you shall rest.

[22]“And you shall observe the Feast of Weeks, of the firstfruits of wheat harvest, and the Feast of Ingathering at the year’s end.

[23]“Three times in the year all your men shall appear before the Lord, the LORD God of Israel.

[24]“For I will cast out the nations before you and enlarge your borders; neither will any man covet your land when you go up to appear before the LORD your God three times in the year.

[25]“You shall not offer the blood of My sacrifice with leaven, nor shall the sacrifice of the Feast of the Passover be left until morning.

[26]“The first of the firstfruits of your land you shall bring to the house of the LORD your God. You shall not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk.”

[27]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Write these words, for according to the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with you and with Israel.”

[28]So he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he neither ate bread nor drank water. And He wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments.

The Shining Face of Moses

[29]Now it was so, when Moses came down from Mount Sinai (and the two tablets of the Testimony were in Moses’ hand when he came down from the mountain), that Moses did not know that the skin of his face shone while he talked with Him.

[30]So when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid to come near him.

[31]Then Moses called to them, and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned to him; and Moses talked with them.

[32]Afterward all the children of Israel came near, and he gave them as commandments all that the LORD had spoken with him on Mount Sinai.

[33]And when Moses had finished speaking with them, he put a veil on his face.

[34]But whenever Moses went in before the LORD to speak with Him, he would take the veil off until he came out; and he would come out and speak to the children of Israel whatever he had been commanded.

[35]And whenever the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses’ face shone, then Moses would put the veil on his face again, until he went in to speak with Him.

Exodus 35

Sabbath Regulations

[1]Then Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said to them, “These are the words which the LORD has commanded you to do:

[2]“Work shall be done for six days, but the seventh day shall be a holy day for you, a Sabbath of rest to the LORD. Whoever does any work on it shall be put to death.

[3]“You shall kindle no fire throughout your dwellings on the Sabbath day.”

Offerings for the Tabernacle

4And Moses spoke to all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, “This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying:

[5]‘Take from among you an offering to the LORD. Whoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it as an offering to the LORD: gold, silver, and bronze;

[6]‘blue, purple, and scarlet thread, fine linen, and goats’ hair;

[7]‘ram skins dyed red, badger skins, and acacia wood;

[8]‘oil for the light, and spices for the anointing oil and for the sweet incense;

[9]‘onyx stones, and stones to be set in the ephod and in the breastplate.

Articles of the Tabernacle

10‘All who are gifted artisans among you shall come and make all that the LORD has commanded:

[11]‘the tabernacle, its tent, its covering, its clasps, its boards, its bars, its pillars, and its sockets;

[12]‘the ark and its poles, with the mercy seat, and the veil of the covering;

[13]‘the table and its poles, all its utensils, and the showbread;

[14]‘also the lampstand for the light, its utensils, its lamps, and the oil for the light;

[15]‘the incense altar, its poles, the anointing oil, the sweet incense, and the screen for the door at the entrance of the tabernacle;

[16]‘the altar of burnt offering with its bronze grating, its poles, all its utensils, and the laver and its base;

[17]‘the hangings of the court, its pillars, their sockets, and the screen for the gate of the court;

[18]‘the pegs of the tabernacle, the pegs of the court, and their cords;

[19]‘the garments of ministry, for ministering in the holy place—the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments of his sons, to minister as priests.’ ”

The Tabernacle Offerings Presented

20And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.

[21]Then everyone came whose heart was stirred, and everyone whose spirit was willing, and they brought the LORD’s offering for the work of the tabernacle of meeting, for all its service, and for the holy garments.

[22]They came, both men and women, as many as had a willing heart, and brought earrings and nose rings, rings and necklaces, all jewelry of gold, that is, every man who made an offering of gold to the LORD.

[23]And every man, with whom was found blue, purple, and scarlet thread, fine linen, and goats’ hair, red skins of rams, and badger skins, brought them.

[24]Everyone who offered an offering of silver or bronze brought the LORD’s offering. And everyone with whom was found acacia wood for any work of the service, brought it.

[25]All the women who were gifted artisans spun yarn with their hands, and brought what they had spun, of blue, purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

[26]And all the women whose hearts stirred with wisdom spun yarn of goats’ hair.

[27]The rulers brought onyx stones, and the stones to be set in the ephod and in the breastplate,

[28]and spices and oil for the light, for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.

[29]The children of Israel brought a freewill offering to the LORD, all the men and women whose hearts were willing to bring material for all kinds of work which the LORD, by the hand of Moses, had commanded to be done.

The Artisans Called by God

30And Moses said to the children of Israel, “See, the LORD has called by name Bezalel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah;

[31]“and He has filled him with the Spirit of God, in wisdom and understanding, in knowledge and all manner of workmanship,

[32]“to design artistic works, to work in gold and silver and bronze,

[33]“in cutting jewels for setting, in carving wood, and to work in all manner of artistic workmanship.

[34]“And He has put in his heart the ability to teach, in him and Aholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.

[35]“He has filled them with skill to do all manner of work of the engraver and the designer and the tapestry maker, in blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine linen, and of the weaver—those who do every work and those who design artistic works.

Exodus 36

[1]“And Bezalel and Aholiab, and every gifted artisan in whom the LORD has put wisdom and understanding, to know how to do all manner of work for the service of the sanctuary, shall do according to all that the LORD has commanded.”

The People Give More than Enough

[2]Then Moses called Bezalel and Aholiab, and every gifted artisan in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, everyone whose heart was stirred, to come and do the work.

[3]And they received from Moses all the offering which the children of Israel had brought for the work of the service of making the sanctuary. So they continued bringing to him freewill offerings every morning.

[4]Then all the craftsmen who were doing all the work of the sanctuary came, each from the work he was doing,

[5]and they spoke to Moses, saying, “The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work which the LORD commanded us to do.”

[6]So Moses gave a commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, “Let neither man nor woman do any more work for the offering of the sanctuary.” And the people were restrained from bringing,

[7]for the material they had was sufficient for all the work to be done—indeed too much.

Building the Tabernacle

[8]Then all the gifted artisans among them who worked on the tabernacle made ten curtains woven of fine linen, and of blue, purple, and scarlet thread; with artistic designs of cherubim they made them.

[9]The length of each curtain was twenty-eight cubits, and the width of each curtain four cubits; the curtains were all the same size.

[10]And he coupled five curtains to one another, and the other five curtains he coupled to one another.

[11]He made loops of blue yarn on the edge of the curtain on the selvedge of one set; likewise he did on the outer edge of the other curtain of the second set.

[12]Fifty loops he made on one curtain, and fifty loops he made on the edge of the curtain on the end of the second set; the loops held one curtain to another.

[13]And he made fifty clasps of gold, and coupled the curtains to one another with the clasps, that it might be one tabernacle.

[14]He made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle; he made eleven curtains.

[15]The length of each curtain was thirty cubits, and the width of each curtain four cubits; the eleven curtains were the same size.

[16]He coupled five curtains by themselves and six curtains by themselves.

[17]And he made fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that is outermost in one set, and fifty loops he made on the edge of the curtain of the second set.

[18]He also made fifty bronze clasps to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

[19]Then he made a covering for the tent of ram skins dyed red, and a covering of badger skins above that.

[20]For the tabernacle he made boards of acacia wood, standing upright.

[21]The length of each board was ten cubits, and the width of each board a cubit and a half.

[22]Each board had two tenons for binding one to another. Thus he made for all the boards of the tabernacle.

[23]And he made boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards for the south side.

[24]Forty sockets of silver he made to go under the twenty boards: two sockets under each of the boards for its two tenons.

[25]And for the other side of the tabernacle, the north side, he made twenty boards

[26]and their forty sockets of silver: two sockets under each of the boards.

[27]For the west side of the tabernacle he made six boards.

[28]He also made two boards for the two back corners of the tabernacle.

[29]And they were coupled at the bottom and coupled together at the top by one ring. Thus he made both of them for the two corners.

[30]So there were eight boards and their sockets—sixteen sockets of silver—two sockets under each of the boards.

[31]And he made bars of acacia wood: five for the boards on one side of the tabernacle,

[32]five bars for the boards on the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle on the far side westward.

[33]And he made the middle bar to pass through the boards from one end to the other.

[34]He overlaid the boards with gold, made their rings of gold to be holders for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

[35]And he made a veil of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen; it was worked with an artistic design of cherubim.

[36]He made for it four pillars of acacia wood, and overlaid them with gold, with their hooks of gold; and he cast four sockets of silver for them.

[37]He also made a screen for the tabernacle door, of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and fine woven linen, made by a weaver,

[38]and its five pillars with their hooks. And he overlaid their capitals and their rings with gold, but their five sockets were bronze.

Exodus 37

Making the Ark of the Testimony

[1]Then Bezalel made the ark of acacia wood; two and a half cubits was its length, a cubit and a half its width, and a cubit and a half its height.

[2]He overlaid it with pure gold inside and outside, and made a molding of gold all around it.

[3]And he cast for it four rings of gold to be set in its four corners: two rings on one side, and two rings on the other side of it.

[4]He made poles of acacia wood, and overlaid them with gold.

[5]And he put the poles into the rings at the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

[6]He also made the mercy seat of pure gold; two and a half cubits was its length and a cubit and a half its width.

[7]He made two cherubim of beaten gold; he made them of one piece at the two ends of the mercy seat:

[8]one cherub at one end on this side, and the other cherub at the other end on that side. He made the cherubim at the two ends of one piece with the mercy seat.

[9]The cherubim spread out their wings above, and covered the mercy seat with their wings. They faced one another; the faces of the cherubim were toward the mercy seat.

Making the Table for the Showbread

[10]He made the table of acacia wood; two cubits was its length, a cubit its width, and a cubit and a half its height.

[11]And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made a molding of gold all around it.

[12]Also he made a frame of a handbreadth all around it, and made a molding of gold for the frame all around it.

[13]And he cast for it four rings of gold, and put the rings on the four corners that were at its four legs.

[14]The rings were close to the frame, as holders for the poles to bear the table.

[15]And he made the poles of acacia wood to bear the table, and overlaid them with gold.

[16]He made of pure gold the utensils which were on the table: its dishes, its cups, its bowls, and its pitchers for pouring.

Making the Gold Lampstand

[17]He also made the lampstand of pure gold; of hammered work he made the lampstand. Its shaft, its branches, its bowls, its ornamental knobs, and its flowers were of the same piece.

[18]And six branches came out of its sides: three branches of the lampstand out of one side, and three branches of the lampstand out of the other side.

[19]There were three bowls made like almond blossoms on one branch, with an ornamental knob and a flower, and three bowls made like almond blossoms on the other branch, with an ornamental knob and a flower—and so for the six branches coming out of the lampstand.

[20]And on the lampstand itself were four bowls made like almond blossoms, each with its ornamental knob and flower.

[21]There was a knob under the first two branches of the same, a knob under the second two branches of the same, and a knob under the third two branches of the same, according to the six branches extending from it.

[22]Their knobs and their branches were of one piece; all of it was one hammered piece of pure gold.

[23]And he made its seven lamps, its wick-trimmers, and its trays of pure gold.

[24]Of a talent of pure gold he made it, with all its utensils.

Making the Altar of Incense

[25]He made the incense altar of acacia wood. Its length was a cubit and its width a cubit—it was square—and two cubits was its height. Its horns were of one piece with it.

[26]And he overlaid it with pure gold: its top, its sides all around, and its horns. He also made for it a molding of gold all around it.

[27]He made two rings of gold for it under its molding, by its two corners on both sides, as holders for the poles with which to bear it.

[28]And he made the poles of acacia wood, and overlaid them with gold.

Making the Anointing Oil and the Incense

[29]He also made the holy anointing oil and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the perfumer.

Exodus 38

Making the Altar of Burnt Offering

[1]He made the altar of burnt offering of acacia wood; five cubits was its length and five cubits its width—it was square—and its height was three cubits.

[2]He made its horns on its four corners; the horns were of one piece with it. And he overlaid it with bronze.

[3]He made all the utensils for the altar: the pans, the shovels, the basins, the forks, and the firepans; all its utensils he made of bronze.

[4]And he made a grate of bronze network for the altar, under its rim, midway from the bottom.

[5]He cast four rings for the four corners of the bronze grating, as holders for the poles.

[6]And he made the poles of acacia wood, and overlaid them with bronze.

[7]Then he put the poles into the rings on the sides of the altar, with which to bear it. He made the altar hollow with boards.

Making the Bronze Laver

[8]He made the laver of bronze and its base of bronze, from the bronze mirrors of the serving women who assembled at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

Making the Court of the Tabernacle

[9]Then he made the court on the south side; the hangings of the court were of fine woven linen, one hundred cubits long.

[10]There were twenty pillars for them, with twenty bronze sockets. The hooks of the pillars and their bands were silver.

[11]On the north side the hangings were one hundred cubits long, with twenty pillars and their twenty bronze sockets. The hooks of the pillars and their bands were silver.

[12]And on the west side there were hangings of fifty cubits, with ten pillars and their ten sockets. The hooks of the pillars and their bands were silver.

[13]For the east side the hangings were fifty cubits.

[14]The hangings of one side of the gate were fifteen cubits long, with their three pillars and their three sockets,

[15]and the same for the other side of the court gate; on this side and that were hangings of fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and their three sockets.

[16]All the hangings of the court all around were of fine woven linen.

[17]The sockets for the pillars were bronze, the hooks of the pillars and their bands were silver, and the overlay of their capitals was silver; and all the pillars of the court had bands of silver.

[18]The screen for the gate of the court was woven of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and of fine woven linen. The length was twenty cubits, and the height along its width was five cubits, corresponding to the hangings of the court.

[19]And there were four pillars with their four sockets of bronze; their hooks were silver, and the overlay of their capitals and their bands was silver.

[20]All the pegs of the tabernacle, and of the court all around, were bronze.

Materials of the Tabernacle

[21]This is the inventory of the tabernacle, the tabernacle of the Testimony, which was counted according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites, by the hand of Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest.

[22]Bezalel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD had commanded Moses.

[23]And with him was Aholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver and designer, a weaver of blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and of fine linen.

[24]All the gold that was used in all the work of the holy place, that is, the gold of the offering, was twenty-nine talents and seven hundred and thirty shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary.

[25]And the silver from those who were numbered of the congregation was one hundred talents and one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary:

[26]a bekah for each man (that is, half a shekel, according to the shekel of the sanctuary), for everyone included in the numbering from twenty years old and above, for six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty men.

[27]And from the hundred talents of silver were cast the sockets of the sanctuary and the bases of the veil: one hundred sockets from the hundred talents, one talent for each socket.

[28]Then from the one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels he made hooks for the pillars, overlaid their capitals, and made bands for them.

[29]The offering of bronze was seventy talents and two thousand four hundred shekels.

[30]And with it he made the sockets for the door of the tabernacle of meeting, the bronze altar, the bronze grating for it, and all the utensils for the altar,

[31]the sockets for the court all around, the bases for the court gate, all the pegs for the tabernacle, and all the pegs for the court all around.

Exodus 39

Making the Garments of the Priesthood

[1]Of the blue, purple, and scarlet thread they made garments of ministry, for ministering in the holy place, and made the holy garments for Aaron, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Ephod

[2]He made the ephod of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and of fine woven linen.

[3]And they beat the gold into thin sheets and cut it into threads, to work it in with the blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and the fine linen, into artistic designs.

[4]They made shoulder straps for it to couple it together; it was coupled together at its two edges.

[5]And the intricately woven band of his ephod that was on it was of the same workmanship, woven of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and of fine woven linen, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[6]And they set onyx stones, enclosed in settings of gold; they were engraved, as signets are engraved, with the names of the sons of Israel.

[7]He put them on the shoulders of the ephod as memorial stones for the sons of Israel, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Breastplate

[8]And he made the breastplate, artistically woven like the workmanship of the ephod, of gold, blue, purple, and scarlet thread, and of fine woven linen.

[9]They made the breastplate square by doubling it; a span was its length and a span its width when doubled.

[10]And they set in it four rows of stones: a row with a sardius, a topaz, and an emerald was the first row;

[11]the second row, a turquoise, a sapphire, and a diamond;

[12]the third row, a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst;

[13]the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. They were enclosed in settings of gold in their mountings.

[14]There were twelve stones according to the names of the sons of Israel: according to their names, engraved like a signet, each one with its own name according to the twelve tribes.

[15]And they made chains for the breastplate at the ends, like braided cords of pure gold.

[16]They also made two settings of gold and two gold rings, and put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate.

[17]And they put the two braided chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breastplate.

[18]The two ends of the two braided chains they fastened in the two settings, and put them on the shoulder straps of the ephod in the front.

[19]And they made two rings of gold and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, on the edge of it, which was on the inward side of the ephod.

[20]They made two other gold rings and put them on the two shoulder straps, underneath the ephod toward its front, right at the seam above the intricately woven band of the ephod.

[21]And they bound the breastplate by means of its rings to the rings of the ephod with a blue cord, so that it would be above the intricately woven band of the ephod, and that the breastplate would not come loose from the ephod, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Other Priestly Garments

[22]He made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

[23]And there was an opening in the middle of the robe, like the opening in a coat of mail, with a woven binding all around the opening, so that it would not tear.

[24]They made on the hem of the robe pomegranates of blue, purple, and scarlet, and of fine woven linen.

[25]And they made bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates on the hem of the robe all around between the pomegranates:

[26]a bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, all around the hem of the robe to minister in, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[27]They made tunics, artistically woven of fine linen, for Aaron and his sons,

[28]a turban of fine linen, exquisite hats of fine linen, short trousers of fine woven linen,

[29]and a sash of fine woven linen with blue, purple, and scarlet thread, made by a weaver, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[30]Then they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote on it an inscription like the engraving of a signet:

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

[31]And they tied to it a blue cord, to fasten it above on the turban, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

The Work Completed

[32]Thus all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting was finished. And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD had commanded Moses; so they did.

[33]And they brought the tabernacle to Moses, the tent and all its furnishings: its clasps, its boards, its bars, its pillars, and its sockets;

[34]the covering of ram skins dyed red, the covering of badger skins, and the veil of the covering;

[35]the ark of the Testimony with its poles, and the mercy seat;

[36]the table, all its utensils, and the showbread;

[37]the pure gold lampstand with its lamps (the lamps set in order), all its utensils, and the oil for light;

[38]the gold altar, the anointing oil, and the sweet incense; the screen for the tabernacle door;

[39]the bronze altar, its grate of bronze, its poles, and all its utensils; the laver with its base;

[40]the hangings of the court, its pillars and its sockets, the screen for the court gate, its cords, and its pegs; all the utensils for the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of meeting;

[41]and the garments of ministry, to minister in the holy place: the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons’ garments, to minister as priests.

[42]According to all that the LORD had commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did all the work.

[43]Then Moses looked over all the work, and indeed they had done it; as the LORD had commanded, just so they had done it. And Moses blessed them.

Exodus 40

The Tabernacle Erected and Arranged

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“On the first day of the first month you shall set up the tabernacle of the tent of meeting.

[3]“You shall put in it the ark of the Testimony, and partition off the ark with the veil.

[4]“You shall bring in the table and arrange the things that are to be set in order on it; and you shall bring in the lampstand and light its lamps.

[5]“You shall also set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the Testimony, and put up the screen for the door of the tabernacle.

[6]“Then you shall set the altar of the burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting.

[7]“And you shall set the laver between the tabernacle of meeting and the altar, and put water in it.

[8]“You shall set up the court all around, and hang up the screen at the court gate.

[9]“And you shall take the anointing oil, and anoint the tabernacle and all that is in it; and you shall hallow it and all its utensils, and it shall be holy.

[10]“You shall anoint the altar of the burnt offering and all its utensils, and consecrate the altar. The altar shall be most holy.

[11]“And you shall anoint the laver and its base, and consecrate it.

[12]“Then you shall bring Aaron and his sons to the door of the tabernacle of meeting and wash them with water.

[13]“You shall put the holy garments on Aaron, and anoint him and consecrate him, that he may minister to Me as priest.

[14]“And you shall bring his sons and clothe them with tunics.

[15]“You shall anoint them, as you anointed their father, that they may minister to Me as priests; for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood throughout their generations.”

[16]Thus Moses did; according to all that the LORD had commanded him, so he did.

[17]And it came to pass in the first month of the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was raised up.

[18]So Moses raised up the tabernacle, fastened its sockets, set up its boards, put in its bars, and raised up its pillars.

[19]And he spread out the tent over the tabernacle and put the covering of the tent on top of it, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[20]He took the Testimony and put it into the ark, inserted the poles through the rings of the ark, and put the mercy seat on top of the ark.

[21]And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, hung up the veil of the covering, and partitioned off the ark of the Testimony, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[22]He put the table in the tabernacle of meeting, on the north side of the tabernacle, outside the veil;

[23]and he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[24]He put the lampstand in the tabernacle of meeting, across from the table, on the south side of the tabernacle;

[25]and he lit the lamps before the LORD, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[26]He put the gold altar in the tabernacle of meeting in front of the veil;

[27]and he burned sweet incense on it, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[28]He hung up the screen at the door of the tabernacle.

[29]And he put the altar of burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting, and offered upon it the burnt offering and the grain offering, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[30]He set the laver between the tabernacle of meeting and the altar, and put water there for washing;

[31]and Moses, Aaron, and his sons would wash their hands and their feet with water from it.

[32]Whenever they went into the tabernacle of meeting, and when they came near the altar, they washed, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[33]And he raised up the court all around the tabernacle and the altar, and hung up the screen of the court gate. So Moses finished the work.

The Cloud and the Glory

[34]Then the cloud covered the tabernacle of meeting, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

[35]And Moses was not able to enter the tabernacle of meeting, because the cloud rested above it, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

[36]Whenever the cloud was taken up from above the tabernacle, the children of Israel would go onward in all their journeys.

[37]But if the cloud was not taken up, then they did not journey till the day that it was taken up.

[38]For the cloud of the LORD was above the tabernacle by day, and fire was over it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

The Third Book of Moses Called

Leviticus

Leviticus 1

The Burnt Offering

[1]Now the LORD called to Moses, and spoke to him from the tabernacle of meeting, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘When any one of you brings an offering to the LORD, you shall bring your offering of the livestock—of the herd and of the flock.

[3]‘If his offering is a burnt sacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male without blemish; he shall offer it of his own free will at the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the LORD.

[4]‘Then he shall put his hand on the head of the burnt offering, and it will be accepted on his behalf to make atonement for him.

[5]‘He shall kill the bull before the LORD; and the priests, Aaron’s sons, shall bring the blood and sprinkle the blood all around on the altar that is by the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[6]‘And he shall skin the burnt offering and cut it into its pieces.

[7]‘The sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire on the altar, and lay the wood in order on the fire.

[8]‘Then the priests, Aaron’s sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat in order on the wood that is on the fire upon the altar;

[9]‘but he shall wash its entrails and its legs with water. And the priest shall burn all on the altar as a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[10]‘If his offering is of the flocks—of the sheep or of the goats—as a burnt sacrifice, he shall bring a male without blemish.

[11]‘He shall kill it on the north side of the altar before the LORD; and the priests, Aaron’s sons, shall sprinkle its blood all around on the altar.

[12]‘And he shall cut it into its pieces, with its head and its fat; and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire upon the altar;

[13]‘but he shall wash the entrails and the legs with water. Then the priest shall bring it all and burn it on the altar; it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

14‘And if the burnt sacrifice of his offering to the LORD is of birds, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves or young pigeons.

15‘The priest shall bring it to the altar, wring off its head, and burn it on the altar; its blood shall be drained out at the side of the altar.

16‘And he shall remove its crop with its feathers and cast it beside the altar on the east side, into the place for ashes.

17‘Then he shall split it at its wings, but shall not divide it completely; and the priest shall burn it on the altar, on the wood that is on the fire. It is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

Leviticus 2

The Grain Offering

[1]‘When anyone offers a grain offering to the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour. And he shall pour oil on it, and put frankincense on it.

[2]‘He shall bring it to Aaron’s sons, the priests, one of whom shall take from it his handful of fine flour and oil with all the frankincense. And the priest shall burn it as a memorial on the altar, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[3]‘The rest of the grain offering shall be Aaron’s and his sons’. It is most holy of the offerings to the LORD made by fire.

[4]‘And if you bring as an offering a grain offering baked in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mixed with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil.

[5]‘But if your offering is a grain offering baked in a pan, it shall be of fine flour, unleavened, mixed with oil.

[6]‘You shall break it in pieces and pour oil on it; it is a grain offering.

[7]‘If your offering is a grain offering baked in a covered pan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

[8]‘You shall bring the grain offering that is made of these things to the LORD. And when it is presented to the priest, he shall bring it to the altar.

[9]‘Then the priest shall take from the grain offering a memorial portion, and burn it on the altar. It is an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[10]‘And what is left of the grain offering shall be Aaron’s and his sons’. It is most holy of the offerings to the LORD made by fire.

[11]‘No grain offering which you bring to the LORD shall be made with leaven, for you shall burn no leaven nor any honey in any offering to the LORD made by fire.

[12]‘As for the offering of the firstfruits, you shall offer them to the LORD, but they shall not be burned on the altar for a sweet aroma.

[13]‘And every offering of your grain offering you shall season with salt; you shall not allow the salt of the covenant of your God to be lacking from your grain offering. With all your offerings you shall offer salt.

14‘If you offer a grain offering of your firstfruits to the LORD, you shall offer for the grain offering of your firstfruits green heads of grain roasted on the fire, grain beaten from full heads.

15‘And you shall put oil on it, and lay frankincense on it. It is a grain offering.

16‘Then the priest shall burn the memorial portion: part of its beaten grain and part of its oil, with all the frankincense, as an offering made by fire to the LORD.

Leviticus 3

The Peace Offering

[1]‘When his offering is a sacrifice of a peace offering, if he offers it of the herd, whether male or female, he shall offer it without blemish before the LORD.

[2]‘And he shall lay his hand on the head of his offering, and kill it at the door of the tabernacle of meeting; and Aaron’s sons, the priests, shall sprinkle the blood all around on the altar.

[3]‘Then he shall offer from the sacrifice of the peace offering an offering made by fire to the LORD. The fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails,

[4]‘the two kidneys and the fat that is on them by the flanks, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver above the kidneys, he shall remove;

[5]‘and Aaron’s sons shall burn it on the altar upon the burnt sacrifice, which is on the wood that is on the fire, as an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[6]‘If his offering as a sacrifice of a peace offering to the LORD is of the flock, whether male or female, he shall offer it without blemish.

[7]‘If he offers a lamb as his offering, then he shall offer it before the LORD.

[8]‘And he shall lay his hand on the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of meeting; and Aaron’s sons shall sprinkle its blood all around on the altar.

[9]‘Then he shall offer from the sacrifice of the peace offering, as an offering made by fire to the LORD, its fat and the whole fat tail which he shall remove close to the backbone. And the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails,

[10]‘the two kidneys and the fat that is on them by the flanks, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver above the kidneys, he shall remove;

[11]‘and the priest shall burn them on the altar as food, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[12]‘And if his offering is a goat, then he shall offer it before the LORD.

[13]‘He shall lay his hand on its head and kill it before the tabernacle of meeting; and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle its blood all around on the altar.

[14]‘Then he shall offer from it his offering, as an offering made by fire to the LORD. The fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails,

[15]‘the two kidneys and the fat that is on them by the flanks, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver above the kidneys, he shall remove;

[16]‘and the priest shall burn them on the altar as food, an offering made by fire for a sweet aroma; all the fat is the LORD’s.

[17]‘This shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations in all your dwellings: you shall eat neither fat nor blood.’ ”

Leviticus 4

The Sin Offering

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘If a person sins unintentionally against any of the commandments of the LORD in anything which ought not to be done, and does any of them,

[3]‘if the anointed priest sins, bringing guilt on the people, then let him offer to the LORD for his sin which he has sinned a young bull without blemish as a sin offering.

[4]‘He shall bring the bull to the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the LORD, lay his hand on the bull’s head, and kill the bull before the LORD.

[5]‘Then the anointed priest shall take some of the bull’s blood and bring it to the tabernacle of meeting.

[6]‘The priest shall dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle some of the blood seven times before the LORD, in front of the veil of the sanctuary.

[7]‘And the priest shall put some of the blood on the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the LORD, which is in the tabernacle of meeting; and he shall pour the remaining blood of the bull at the base of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[8]‘He shall take from it all the fat of the bull as the sin offering. The fat that covers the entrails and all the fat which is on the entrails,

[9]‘the two kidneys and the fat that is on them by the flanks, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver above the kidneys, he shall remove,

[10]‘as it was taken from the bull of the sacrifice of the peace offering; and the priest shall burn them on the altar of the burnt offering.

[11]‘But the bull’s hide and all its flesh, with its head and legs, its entrails and offal—

[12]‘the whole bull he shall carry outside the camp to a clean place, where the ashes are poured out, and burn it on wood with fire; where the ashes are poured out it shall be burned.

13‘Now if the whole congregation of Israel sins unintentionally, and the thing is hidden from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done something against any of the commandments of the LORD in anything which should not be done, and are guilty;

14‘when the sin which they have committed becomes known, then the assembly shall offer a young bull for the sin, and bring it before the tabernacle of meeting.

15‘And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands on the head of the bull before the LORD. Then the bull shall be killed before the LORD.

16‘The anointed priest shall bring some of the bull’s blood to the tabernacle of meeting.

17‘Then the priest shall dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, in front of the veil.

18‘And he shall put some of the blood on the horns of the altar which is before the LORD, which is in the tabernacle of meeting; and he shall pour the remaining blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

19‘He shall take all the fat from it and burn it on the altar.

20‘And he shall do with the bull as he did with the bull as a sin offering; thus he shall do with it. So the priest shall make atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21‘Then he shall carry the bull outside the camp, and burn it as he burned the first bull. It is a sin offering for the assembly.

22‘When a ruler has sinned, and done something unintentionally against any of the commandments of the LORD his God in anything which should not be done, and is guilty,

23‘or if his sin which he has committed comes to his knowledge, he shall bring as his offering a kid of the goats, a male without blemish.

24‘And he shall lay his hand on the head of the goat, and kill it at the place where they kill the burnt offering before the LORD. It is a sin offering.

25‘The priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and pour its blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering.

[26]‘And he shall burn all its fat on the altar, like the fat of the sacrifice of the peace offering. So the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

[27]‘If anyone of the common people sins unintentionally by doing something against any of the commandments of the LORD in anything which ought not to be done, and is guilty,

[28]‘or if his sin which he has committed comes to his knowledge, then he shall bring as his offering a kid of the goats, a female without blemish, for his sin which he has committed.

[29]‘And he shall lay his hand on the head of the sin offering, and kill the sin offering at the place of the burnt offering.

[30]‘Then the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and pour all the remaining blood at the base of the altar.

[31]‘He shall remove all its fat, as fat is removed from the sacrifice of the peace offering; and the priest shall burn it on the altar for a sweet aroma to the LORD. So the priest shall make atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

[32]‘If he brings a lamb as his sin offering, he shall bring a female without blemish.

[33]‘Then he shall lay his hand on the head of the sin offering, and kill it as a sin offering at the place where they kill the burnt offering.

[34]‘The priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and pour all the remaining blood at the base of the altar.

[35]‘He shall remove all its fat, as the fat of the lamb is removed from the sacrifice of the peace offering. Then the priest shall burn it on the altar, according to the offerings made by fire to the LORD. So the priest shall make atonement for his sin that he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

Leviticus 5

The Trespass Offering

[1]‘If a person sins in hearing the utterance of an oath, and is a witness, whether he has seen or known of the matter—if he does not tell it, he bears guilt.

[2]‘Or if a person touches any unclean thing, whether it is the carcass of an unclean beast, or the carcass of unclean livestock, or the carcass of unclean creeping things, and he is unaware of it, he also shall be unclean and guilty.

[3]‘Or if he touches human uncleanness—whatever uncleanness with which a man may be defiled, and he is unaware of it—when he realizes it, then he shall be guilty.

[4]‘Or if a person swears, speaking thoughtlessly with his lips to do evil or to do good, whatever it is that a man may pronounce by an oath, and he is unaware of it—when he realizes it, then he shall be guilty in any of these matters.

[5]‘And it shall be, when he is guilty in any of these matters, that he shall confess that he has sinned in that thing;

[6]‘and he shall bring his trespass offering to the LORD for his sin which he has committed, a female from the flock, a lamb or a kid of the goats as a sin offering. So the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his sin.

[7]‘If he is not able to bring a lamb, then he shall bring to the LORD, for his trespass which he has committed, two turtledoves or two young pigeons: one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering.

[8]‘And he shall bring them to the priest, who shall offer that which is for the sin offering first, and wring off its head from its neck, but shall not divide it completely.

[9]‘Then he shall sprinkle some of the blood of the sin offering on the side of the altar, and the rest of the blood shall be drained out at the base of the altar. It is a sin offering.

[10]‘And he shall offer the second as a burnt offering according to the prescribed manner. So the priest shall make atonement on his behalf for his sin which he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

11‘But if he is not able to bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons, then he who sinned shall bring for his offering one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour as a sin offering. He shall put no oil on it, nor shall he put frankincense on it, for it is a sin offering.

12‘Then he shall bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it as a memorial portion, and burn it on the altar according to the offerings made by fire to the LORD. It is a sin offering.

13‘The priest shall make atonement for him, for his sin that he has committed in any of these matters; and it shall be forgiven him. The rest shall be the priest’s as a grain offering.’ ”

Offerings with Restitution

14Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

15“If a person commits a trespass, and sins unintentionally in regard to the holy things of the LORD, then he shall bring to the LORD as his trespass offering a ram without blemish from the flocks, with your valuation in shekels of silver according to the shekel of the sanctuary, as a trespass offering.

16“And he shall make restitution for the harm that he has done in regard to the holy thing, and shall add one-fifth to it and give it to the priest. So the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven him.

17“If a person sins, and commits any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD, though he does not know it, yet he is guilty and shall bear his iniquity.

18“And he shall bring to the priest a ram without blemish from the flock, with your valuation, as a trespass offering. So the priest shall make atonement for him regarding his ignorance in which he erred and did not know it, and it shall be forgiven him.

19“It is a trespass offering; he has certainly trespassed against the LORD.”

Leviticus 6

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“If a person sins and commits a trespass against the LORD by lying to his neighbor about what was delivered to him for safekeeping, or about a pledge, or about a robbery, or if he has extorted from his neighbor,

[3]“or if he has found what was lost and lies concerning it, and swears falsely—in any one of these things that a man may do in which he sins:

[4]“then it shall be, because he has sinned and is guilty, that he shall restore what he has stolen, or the thing which he has extorted, or what was delivered to him for safekeeping, or the lost thing which he found,

[5]“or all that about which he has sworn falsely. He shall restore its full value, add one-fifth more to it, and give it to whomever it belongs, on the day of his trespass offering.

[6]“And he shall bring his trespass offering to the LORD, a ram without blemish from the flock, with your valuation, as a trespass offering, to the priest.

[7]“So the priest shall make atonement for him before the LORD, and he shall be forgiven for any one of these things that he may have done in which he trespasses.”

The Law of the Burnt Offering

[8]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[9]“Command Aaron and his sons, saying, ‘This is the law of the burnt offering: The burnt offering shall be on the hearth upon the altar all night until morning, and the fire of the altar shall be kept burning on it.

[10]‘And the priest shall put on his linen garment, and his linen trousers he shall put on his body, and take up the ashes of the burnt offering which the fire has consumed on the altar, and he shall put them beside the altar.

[11]‘Then he shall take off his garments, put on other garments, and carry the ashes outside the camp to a clean place.

[12]‘And the fire on the altar shall be kept burning on it; it shall not be put out. And the priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt offering in order on it; and he shall burn on it the fat of the peace offerings.

[13]‘A fire shall always be burning on the altar; it shall never go out.

The Law of the Grain Offering

14‘This is the law of the grain offering: The sons of Aaron shall offer it on the altar before the LORD.

[15]‘He shall take from it his handful of the fine flour of the grain offering, with its oil, and all the frankincense which is on the grain offering, and shall burn it on the altar for a sweet aroma, as a memorial to the LORD.

[16]‘And the remainder of it Aaron and his sons shall eat; with unleavened bread it shall be eaten in a holy place; in the court of the tabernacle of meeting they shall eat it.

[17]‘It shall not be baked with leaven. I have given it as their portion of My offerings made by fire; it is most holy, like the sin offering and the trespass offering.

[18]‘All the males among the children of Aaron may eat it. It shall be a statute forever in your generations concerning the offerings made by fire to the LORD. Everyone who touches them must be holy.’ ”

19And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[20]“This is the offering of Aaron and his sons, which they shall offer to the LORD, beginning on the day when he is anointed: one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour as a daily grain offering, half of it in the morning and half of it at night.

[21]“It shall be made in a pan with oil. When it is mixed, you shall bring it in. The baked pieces of the grain offering you shall offer for a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[22]“The priest from among his sons, who is anointed in his place, shall offer it. It is a statute forever to the LORD. It shall be wholly burned.

[23]“For every grain offering for the priest shall be wholly burned. It shall not be eaten.”

The Law of the Sin Offering

24Also the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

25“Speak to Aaron and to his sons, saying, ‘This is the law of the sin offering: In the place where the burnt offering is killed, the sin offering shall be killed before the LORD. It is most holy.

26‘The priest who offers it for sin shall eat it. In a holy place it shall be eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of meeting.

27‘Everyone who touches its flesh must be holy. And when its blood is sprinkled on any garment, you shall wash that on which it was sprinkled, in a holy place.

28‘But the earthen vessel in which it is boiled shall be broken. And if it is boiled in a bronze pot, it shall be both scoured and rinsed in water.

29‘All the males among the priests may eat it. It is most holy.

30‘But no sin offering from which any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of meeting, to make atonement in the holy place, shall be eaten. It shall be burned in the fire.

Leviticus 7

The Law of the Trespass Offering

[1]‘Likewise this is the law of the trespass offering (it is most holy):

[2]‘In the place where they kill the burnt offering they shall kill the trespass offering. And its blood he shall sprinkle all around on the altar.

[3]‘And he shall offer from it all its fat. The fat tail and the fat that covers the entrails,

[4]‘the two kidneys and the fat that is on them by the flanks, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver above the kidneys, he shall remove;

[5]‘and the priest shall burn them on the altar as an offering made by fire to the LORD. It is a trespass offering.

[6]‘Every male among the priests may eat it. It shall be eaten in a holy place. It is most holy.

[7]‘The trespass offering is like the sin offering; there is one law for them both: the priest who makes atonement with it shall have it.

[8]‘And the priest who offers anyone’s burnt offering, that priest shall have for himself the skin of the burnt offering which he has offered.

[9]‘Also every grain offering that is baked in the oven and all that is prepared in the covered pan, or in a pan, shall be the priest’s who offers it.

[10]‘Every grain offering, whether mixed with oil or dry, shall belong to all the sons of Aaron, to one as much as the other.

The Law of Peace Offerings

[11]‘This is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings which he shall offer to the LORD:

[12]‘If he offers it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer, with the sacrifice of thanksgiving, unleavened cakes mixed with oil, unleavened wafers anointed with oil, or cakes of blended flour mixed with oil.

[13]‘Besides the cakes, as his offering he shall offer leavened bread with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace offering.

[14]‘And from it he shall offer one cake from each offering as a heave offering to the LORD. It shall belong to the priest who sprinkles the blood of the peace offering.

15‘The flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offering for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day it is offered. He shall not leave any of it until morning.

16‘But if the sacrifice of his offering is a vow or a voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offers his sacrifice; but on the next day the remainder of it also may be eaten;

17‘the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day must be burned with fire.

18‘And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offering is eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, nor shall it be imputed to him; it shall be an abomination to him who offers it, and the person who eats of it shall bear guilt.

19‘The flesh that touches any unclean thing shall not be eaten. It shall be burned with fire. And as for the clean flesh, all who are clean may eat of it.

20‘But the person who eats the flesh of the sacrifice of the peace offering that belongs to the LORD, while he is unclean, that person shall be cut off from his people.

21‘Moreover the person who touches any unclean thing, such as human uncleanness, an unclean animal, or any abominable unclean thing, and who eats the flesh of the sacrifice of the peace offering that belongs to the LORD, that person shall be cut off from his people.’ ”

Fat and Blood May Not Be Eaten

22And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

23“Speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘You shall not eat any fat, of ox or sheep or goat.

24‘And the fat of an animal that dies naturally, and the fat of what is torn by wild beasts, may be used in any other way; but you shall by no means eat it.

25‘For whoever eats the fat of the animal of which men offer an offering made by fire to the LORD, the person who eats it shall be cut off from his people.

[26]‘Moreover you shall not eat any blood in any of your dwellings, whether of bird or beast.

[27]‘Whoever eats any blood, that person shall be cut off from his people.’ ”

The Portion of Aaron and His Sons

[28]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[29]“Speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘He who offers the sacrifice of his peace offering to the LORD shall bring his offering to the LORD from the sacrifice of his peace offering.

[30]‘His own hands shall bring the offerings made by fire to the LORD. The fat with the breast he shall bring, that the breast may be waved as a wave offering before the LORD.

[31]‘And the priest shall burn the fat on the altar, but the breast shall be Aaron’s and his sons’.

[32]‘Also the right thigh you shall give to the priest as a heave offering from the sacrifices of your peace offerings.

[33]‘He among the sons of Aaron, who offers the blood of the peace offering and the fat, shall have the right thigh for his part.

[34]‘For the breast of the wave offering and the thigh of the heave offering I have taken from the children of Israel, from the sacrifices of their peace offerings, and I have given them to Aaron the priest and to his sons from the children of Israel by a statute forever.’ ”

[35]This is the consecrated portion for Aaron and his sons, from the offerings made by fire to the LORD, on the day when Moses presented them to minister to the LORD as priests.

[36]The LORD commanded this to be given to them by the children of Israel, on the day that He anointed them, by a statute forever throughout their generations.

[37]This is the law of the burnt offering, the grain offering, the sin offering, the trespass offering, the consecrations, and the sacrifice of the peace offering,

[38]which the LORD commanded Moses on Mount Sinai, on the day when He commanded the children of Israel to offer their offerings to the LORD in the Wilderness of Sinai.

Leviticus 8

Aaron and His Sons Consecrated

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the garments, the anointing oil, a bull as the sin offering, two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread;

[3]“and gather all the congregation together at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.”

[4]So Moses did as the LORD commanded him. And the congregation was gathered together at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[5]And Moses said to the congregation, “This is what the LORD commanded to be done.”

6Then Moses brought Aaron and his sons and washed them with water.

[7]And he put the tunic on him, girded him with the sash, clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod on him; and he girded him with the intricately woven band of the ephod, and with it tied the ephod on him.

[8]Then he put the breastplate on him, and he put the Urim and the Thummim in the breastplate.

[9]And he put the turban on his head. Also on the turban, on its front, he put the golden plate, the holy crown, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

10Also Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that was in it, and consecrated them.

[11]He sprinkled some of it on the altar seven times, anointed the altar and all its utensils, and the laver and its base, to consecrate them.

[12]And he poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron’s head and anointed him, to consecrate him.

[13]Then Moses brought Aaron’s sons and put tunics on them, girded them with sashes, and put hats on them, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

14And he brought the bull for the sin offering. Then Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the bull for the sin offering,

[15]and Moses killed it. Then he took the blood, and put some on the horns of the altar all around with his finger, and purified the altar. And he poured the blood at the base of the altar, and consecrated it, to make atonement for it.

[16]Then he took all the fat that was on the entrails, the fatty lobe attached to the liver, and the two kidneys with their fat, and Moses burned them on the altar.

[17]But the bull, its hide, its flesh, and its offal, he burned with fire outside the camp, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[18]Then he brought the ram as the burnt offering. And Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram, [19]and Moses killed it. Then he sprinkled the blood all around on the altar.

[20]And he cut the ram into pieces; and Moses burned the head, the pieces, and the fat.

[21]Then he washed the entrails and the legs in water. And Moses burned the whole ram on the altar. It was a burnt sacrifice for a sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[22]And he brought the second ram, the ram of consecration. Then Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram,

[23]and Moses killed it. Also he took some of its blood and put it on the tip of Aaron’s right ear, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot.

[24]Then he brought Aaron’s sons. And Moses put some of the blood on the tips of their right ears, on the thumbs of their right hands, and on the big toes of their right feet. And Moses sprinkled the blood all around on the altar.

[25]Then he took the fat and the fat tail, all the fat that was on the entrails, the fatty lobe attached to the liver, the two kidneys and their fat, and the right thigh;

[26]and from the basket of unleavened bread that was before the LORD he took one unleavened cake, a cake of bread anointed with oil, and one wafer, and put them on the fat and on the right thigh;

[27]and he put all these in Aaron’s hands and in his sons’ hands, and waved them as a wave offering before the LORD.

[28]Then Moses took them from their hands and burned them on the altar, on the burnt offering. They were consecration offerings for a sweet aroma. That was an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[29]And Moses took the breast and waved it as a wave offering before the LORD. It was Moses’ part of the ram of consecration, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[30]Then Moses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood which was on the altar, and sprinkled it on Aaron, on his garments, on his sons, and on the garments of his sons with him; and he consecrated Aaron, his garments, his sons, and the garments of his sons with him.

[31]And Moses said to Aaron and his sons, “Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and eat it there with the bread that is in the basket of consecration offerings, as I commanded, saying, ‘Aaron and his sons shall eat it.’

[32]“What remains of the flesh and of the bread you shall burn with fire.

[33]“And you shall not go outside the door of the tabernacle of meeting for seven days, until the days of your consecration are ended. For seven days he shall consecrate you.

[34]“As he has done this day, so the LORD has commanded to do, to make atonement for you.

[35]“Therefore you shall stay at the door of the tabernacle of meeting day and night for seven days, and keep the charge of the LORD, so that you may not die; for so I have been commanded.”

[36]So Aaron and his sons did all the things that the LORD had commanded by the hand of Moses.

Leviticus 9

The Priestly Ministry Begins

[1]It came to pass on the eighth day that Moses called Aaron and his sons and the elders of Israel.

[2]And he said to Aaron, “Take for yourself a young bull as a sin offering and a ram as a burnt offering, without blemish, and offer them before the LORD.

[3]“And to the children of Israel you shall speak, saying, ‘Take a kid of the goats as a sin offering, and a calf and a lamb, both of the first year, without blemish, as a burnt offering,

[4]‘also a bull and a ram as peace offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD, and a grain offering mixed with oil; for today the LORD will appear to you.’ ”

[5]So they brought what Moses commanded before the tabernacle of meeting. And all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD.

[6]Then Moses said, “This is the thing which the LORD commanded you to do, and the glory of the LORD will appear to you.”

[7]And Moses said to Aaron, “Go to the altar, offer your sin offering and your burnt offering, and make atonement for yourself and for the people. Offer the offering of the people, and make atonement for them, as the LORD commanded.”

[8]Aaron therefore went to the altar and killed the calf of the sin offering, which was for himself.

[9]Then the sons of Aaron brought the blood to him. And he dipped his finger in the blood, put it on the horns of the altar, and poured the blood at the base of the altar.

[10]But the fat, the kidneys, and the fatty lobe from the liver of the sin offering he burned on the altar, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[11]The flesh and the hide he burned with fire outside the camp.

[12]And he killed the burnt offering; and Aaron’s sons presented to him the blood, which he sprinkled all around on the altar.

[13]Then they presented the burnt offering to him, with its pieces and head, and he burned them on the altar.

[14]And he washed the entrails and the legs, and burned them with the burnt offering on the altar.

[15]Then he brought the people's offering, and took the goat, which was the sin offering for the people, and killed it and offered it for sin, like the first one.

[16]And he brought the burnt offering and offered it according to the prescribed manner.

[17]Then he brought the grain offering, took a handful of it, and burned it on the altar, besides the burnt sacrifice of the morning.

[18]He also killed the bull and the ram as sacrifices of peace offerings, which were for the people. And Aaron's sons presented to him the blood, which he sprinkled all around on the altar,

[19]and the fat from the bull and the ram—the fatty tail, what covers the entrails and the kidneys, and the fatty lobe attached to the liver;

[20]and they put the fat on the breasts. Then he burned the fat on the altar;

[21]but the breasts and the right thigh Aaron waved as a wave offering before the LORD, as Moses had commanded.

[22]Then Aaron lifted his hand toward the people, blessed them, and came down from offering the sin offering, the burnt offering, and peace offerings.

[23]And Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of meeting, and came out and blessed the people. Then the glory of the LORD appeared to all the people,

[24]and fire came out from before the LORD and consumed the burnt offering and the fat on the altar. When all the people saw it, they shouted and fell on their faces.

Leviticus 10

The Profane Fire of Nadab and Abihu

[1]Then Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, each took his censer and put fire in it, put incense on it, and offered profane fire before the LORD, which He had not commanded them.

[2]So fire went out from the LORD and devoured them, and they died before the LORD.

[3]And Moses said to Aaron, "This is what the LORD spoke, saying:

> 'By those who come near Me
> I must be regarded as holy;
> And before all the people
> I must be glorified.' "

So Aaron held his peace.

4Then Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said to them, "Come near, carry your brethren from before the sanctuary out of the camp."

[5]So they went near and carried them by their tunics out of the camp, as Moses had said.

[6]And Moses said to Aaron, and to Eleazar and Ithamar, his sons, "Do not uncover your heads nor tear your clothes, lest you die, and wrath come upon all the people. But let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD has kindled.

[7]"You shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of meeting, lest you die, for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you." And they did according to the word of Moses.

Conduct Prescribed for Priests

8Then the LORD spoke to Aaron, saying:

[9]"Do not drink wine or intoxicating drink, you, nor your sons with you, when you go into the tabernacle of meeting, lest you die. It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations,

[10]“that you may distinguish between holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean,

[11]“and that you may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the LORD has spoken to them by the hand of Moses.”

12And Moses spoke to Aaron, and to Eleazar and Ithamar, his sons who were left: “Take the grain offering that remains of the offerings made by fire to the LORD, and eat it without leaven beside the altar; for it is most holy.

[13]“You shall eat it in a holy place, because it is your due and your sons’ due, of the sacrifices made by fire to the LORD; for so I have been commanded.

[14]“The breast of the wave offering and the thigh of the heave offering you shall eat in a clean place, you, your sons, and your daughters with you; for they are your due and your sons’ due, which are given from the sacrifices of peace offerings of the children of Israel.

[15]“The thigh of the heave offering and the breast of the wave offering they shall bring with the offerings of fat made by fire, to offer as a wave offering before the LORD. And it shall be yours and your sons’ with you, by a statute forever, as the LORD has commanded.”

16Then Moses made careful inquiry about the goat of the sin offering, and there it was—burned up. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron who were left, saying,

[17]“Why have you not eaten the sin offering in a holy place, since it is most holy, and God has given it to you to bear the guilt of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the LORD?

[18]“See! Its blood was not brought inside the holy place; indeed you should have eaten it in a holy place, as I commanded.”

[19]And Aaron said to Moses, “Look, this day they have offered their sin offering and their burnt offering before the LORD, and such things have befallen me! If I had eaten the sin offering today, would it have been accepted in the sight of the LORD?”

[20]So when Moses heard that, he was content.

Leviticus 11

Foods Permitted and Forbidden

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying to them,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, saying, ‘These are the animals which you may eat among all the animals that are on the earth:

[3]‘Among the animals, whatever divides the hoof, having cloven hooves and chewing the cud—that you may eat.

[4]‘Nevertheless these you shall not eat among those that chew the cud or those that have cloven hooves: the camel, because it chews the cud but does not have cloven hooves, is unclean to you;

[5]‘the rock hyrax, because it chews the cud but does not have cloven hooves, is unclean to you;

[6]‘the hare, because it chews the cud but does not have cloven hooves, is unclean to you;

[7]‘and the swine, though it divides the hoof, having cloven hooves, yet does not chew the cud, is unclean to you.

[8]‘Their flesh you shall not eat, and their carcasses you shall not touch. They are unclean to you.

[9]‘These you may eat of all that are in the water: whatever in the water has fins and scales, whether in the seas or in the rivers—that you may eat.

[10]‘But all in the seas or in the rivers that do not have fins and scales, all that move in the water or any living thing which is in the water, they are an abomination to you.

[11]‘They shall be an abomination to you; you shall not eat their flesh, but you shall regard their carcasses as an abomination.

[12]‘Whatever in the water does not have fins or scales—that shall be an abomination to you.

[13]‘And these you shall regard as an abomination among the birds; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, the vulture, the buzzard,

[14]‘the kite, and the falcon after its kind;

[15]‘every raven after its kind,

[16]‘the ostrich, the short-eared owl, the sea gull, and the hawk after its kind;

[17]‘the little owl, the fisher owl, and the screech owl;

[18]‘the white owl, the jackdaw, and the carrion vulture;

[19]‘the stork, the heron after its kind, the hoopoe, and the bat.

[20]‘All flying insects that creep on all fours shall be an abomination to you.

[21]‘Yet these you may eat of every flying insect that creeps on all fours: those which have jointed legs above their feet with which to leap on the earth.

[22]‘These you may eat: the locust after its kind, the destroying locust after its kind, the cricket after its kind, and the grasshopper after its kind.

[23]‘But all other flying insects which have four feet shall be an abomination to you.

Unclean Animals

[24]‘By these you shall become unclean; whoever touches the carcass of any of them shall be unclean until evening;

[25]‘whoever carries part of the carcass of any of them shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening:

[26]‘The carcass of any animal which divides the foot, but is not cloven-hoofed or does not chew the cud, is unclean to you. Everyone who touches it shall be unclean.

[27]‘And whatever goes on its paws, among all kinds of animals that go on all fours, those are unclean to you. Whoever touches any such carcass shall be unclean until evening.

[28]‘Whoever carries any such carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening. It is unclean to you.

[29]‘These also shall be unclean to you among the creeping things that creep on the earth: the mole, the mouse, and the large lizard after its kind;

[30]‘the gecko, the monitor lizard, the sand reptile, the sand lizard, and the chameleon.

[31]‘These are unclean to you among all that creep. Whoever touches them when they are dead shall be unclean until evening.

[32]‘Anything on which any of them falls, when they are dead shall be unclean, whether it is any item of wood or clothing or skin or sack, whatever item it is, in which any work is done, it must be put in water. And it shall be unclean until evening; then it shall be clean.

[33]‘Any earthen vessel into which any of them falls you shall break; and whatever is in it shall be unclean:

[34]‘in such a vessel, any edible food upon which water falls becomes unclean, and any drink that may be drunk from it becomes unclean.

[35]‘And everything on which a part of any such carcass falls shall be unclean; whether it is an oven or cooking stove, it shall be broken down; for they are unclean, and shall be unclean to you.

[36]‘Nevertheless a spring or a cistern, in which there is plenty of water, shall be clean, but whatever touches any such carcass becomes unclean.

[37]‘And if a part of any such carcass falls on any planting seed which is to be sown, it remains clean.

[38]‘But if water is put on the seed, and if a part of any such carcass falls on it, it becomes unclean to you.

[39]‘And if any animal which you may eat dies, he who touches its carcass shall be unclean until evening.

[40]‘He who eats of its carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening. He also who carries its carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening.

[41]‘And every creeping thing that creeps on the earth shall be an abomination. It shall not be eaten.

[42]‘Whatever crawls on its belly, whatever goes on all fours, or whatever has many feet among all creeping things that creep on the earth—these you shall not eat, for they are an abomination.

[43]‘You shall not make yourselves abominable with any creeping thing that creeps; nor shall you make yourselves unclean with them, lest you be defiled by them.

[44]‘For I am the LORD your God. You shall therefore consecrate yourselves, and you shall be holy; for I am holy. Neither shall you defile yourselves with any creeping thing that creeps on the earth.

[45]'For I am the LORD who brings you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God. You shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

[46]'This is the law of the animals and the birds and every living creature that moves in the waters, and of every creature that creeps on the earth,

[47]'to distinguish between the unclean and the clean, and between the animal that may be eaten and the animal that may not be eaten.' "

Leviticus 12

The Ritual After Childbirth

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Speak to the children of Israel, saying: 'If a woman has conceived, and borne a male child, then she shall be unclean seven days; as in the days of her customary impurity she shall be unclean.

[3]'And on the eighth day the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised.

[4]'She shall then continue in the blood of her purification thirty-three days. She shall not touch any hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary until the days of her purification are fulfilled.

[5]'But if she bears a female child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her customary impurity, and she shall continue in the blood of her purification sixty-six days.

[6]'When the days of her purification are fulfilled, whether for a son or a daughter, she shall bring to the priest a lamb of the first year as a burnt offering, and a young pigeon or a turtledove as a sin offering, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[7]'Then he shall offer it before the LORD, and make atonement for her. And she shall be clean from the flow of her blood. This is the law for her who has borne a male or a female.

[8]'And if she is not able to bring a lamb, then she may bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons—one as a burnt offering and the other as a sin offering. So the priest shall make atonement for her, and she will be clean.' "

Leviticus 13

The Law Concerning Leprosy

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying:

[2]“When a man has on the skin of his body a swelling, a scab, or a bright spot, and it becomes on the skin of his body like a leprous sore, then he shall be brought to Aaron the priest or to one of his sons the priests.

[3]“The priest shall examine the sore on the skin of the body; and if the hair on the sore has turned white, and the sore appears to be deeper than the skin of his body, it is a leprous sore. Then the priest shall examine him, and pronounce him unclean.

[4]“But if the bright spot is white on the skin of his body, and does not appear to be deeper than the skin, and its hair has not turned white, then the priest shall isolate the one who has the sore seven days.

[5]“And the priest shall examine him on the seventh day; and indeed if the sore appears to be as it was, and the sore has not spread on the skin, then the priest shall isolate him another seven days.

[6]“Then the priest shall examine him again on the seventh day; and indeed if the sore has faded, and the sore has not spread on the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is only a scab, and he shall wash his clothes and be clean.

[7]“But if the scab should at all spread over the skin, after he has been seen by the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen by the priest again.

[8]“And if the priest sees that the scab has indeed spread on the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is leprosy.

[9]“When the leprous sore is on a person, then he shall be brought to the priest.

[10]“And the priest shall examine him; and indeed if the swelling on the skin is white, and it has turned the hair white, and there is a spot of raw flesh in the swelling,

[11]“it is an old leprosy on the skin of his body. The priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not isolate him, for he is unclean.

12“And if leprosy breaks out all over the skin, and the leprosy covers all the skin of the one who has the sore, from his head to his foot, wherever the priest looks,

13“then the priest shall consider; and indeed if the leprosy has covered all his body, he shall pronounce him clean who has the sore. It has all turned white. He is clean.

14“But when raw flesh appears on him, he shall be unclean.

15“And the priest shall examine the raw flesh and pronounce him to be unclean; for the raw flesh is unclean. It is leprosy.

16“Or if the raw flesh changes and turns white again, he shall come to the priest.

17“And the priest shall examine him; and indeed if the sore has turned white, then the priest shall pronounce him clean who has the sore. He is clean.

18“If the body develops a boil in the skin, and it is healed,

19“and in the place of the boil there comes a white swelling or a bright spot, reddish-white, then it shall be shown to the priest;

20“and if, when the priest sees it, it indeed appears deeper than the skin, and its hair has turned white, the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a leprous sore which has broken out of the boil.

21“But if the priest examines it, and indeed there are no white hairs in it, and it is not deeper than the skin, but has faded, then the priest shall isolate him seven days;

22“and if it should at all spread over the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a leprous sore.

23“But if the bright spot stays in one place, and has not spread, it is the scar of the boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24“Or if the body receives a burn on its skin by fire, and the raw flesh of the burn becomes a bright spot, reddish-white or white,

25“then the priest shall examine it; and indeed if the hair of the bright spot has turned white, and it appears deeper than the skin, it is leprosy broken out in the burn. Therefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a leprous sore.

26“But if the priest examines it, and indeed there are no white hairs in the bright spot, and it is not deeper than the skin, but has faded, then the priest shall isolate him seven days.

[27]“And the priest shall examine him on the seventh day. If it has at all spread over the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a leprous sore.

[28]“But if the bright spot stays in one place, and has not spread on the skin, but has faded, it is a swelling from the burn. The priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is the scar from the burn.

[29]“If a man or woman has a sore on the head or the beard,

[30]“then the priest shall examine the sore; and indeed if it appears deeper than the skin, and there is in it thin yellow hair, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a scaly leprosy of the head or beard.

[31]“But if the priest examines the scaly sore, and indeed it does not appear deeper than the skin, and there is no black hair in it, then the priest shall isolate the one who has the scale seven days.

[32]“And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the sore; and indeed if the scale has not spread, and there is no yellow hair in it, and the scale does not appear deeper than the skin,

[33]“he shall shave himself, but the scale he shall not shave. And the priest shall isolate the one who has the scale another seven days.

[34]“On the seventh day the priest shall examine the scale; and indeed if the scale has not spread over the skin, and does not appear deeper than the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean. He shall wash his clothes and be clean.

[35]“But if the scale should at all spread over the skin after his cleansing, [36]“then the priest shall examine him; and indeed if the scale has spread over the skin, the priest need not seek for yellow hair. He is unclean.

[37]“But if the scale appears to be at a standstill, and there is black hair grown up in it, the scale has healed. He is clean, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

[38]“If a man or a woman has bright spots on the skin of the body, specifically white bright spots,

[39]“then the priest shall look; and indeed if the bright spots on the skin of the body are dull white, it is a white spot that grows on the skin. He is clean.

[40]“As for the man whose hair has fallen from his head, he is bald, but he is clean.

[41]“He whose hair has fallen from his forehead, he is bald on the forehead, but he is clean.

[42]“And if there is on the bald head or bald forehead a reddish-white sore, it is leprosy breaking out on his bald head or his bald forehead.

[43]“Then the priest shall examine it; and indeed if the swelling of the sore is reddish-white on his bald head or on his bald forehead, as the appearance of leprosy on the skin of the body, [44]“he is a leprous man. He is unclean. The priest shall surely pronounce him unclean; his sore is on his head.

[45]“Now the leper on whom the sore is, his clothes shall be torn and his head bare; and he shall cover his mustache, and cry, ‘Unclean! Unclean!’

[46]“He shall be unclean. All the days he has the sore he shall be unclean. He is unclean, and he shall dwell alone; his dwelling shall be outside the camp.

The Law Concerning Leprous Garments

[47]“Also, if a garment has a leprous plague in it, whether it is a woolen garment or a linen garment,

[48]“whether it is in the warp or woof of linen or wool, whether in leather or in anything made of leather, [49]“and if the plague is greenish or reddish in the garment or in the leather, whether in the warp or in the woof, or in anything made of leather, it is a leprous plague and shall be shown to the priest.

[50]“The priest shall examine the plague and isolate that which has the plague seven days.

[51]“And he shall examine the plague on the seventh day. If the plague has spread in the garment, either in the warp or in the woof, in the leather or in anything made of leather, the plague is an active leprosy. It is unclean.

[52]“He shall therefore burn that garment in which is the plague, whether warp or woof, in wool or in linen, or anything of leather, for it is an active leprosy; the garment shall be burned in the fire.

53“But if the priest examines it, and indeed the plague has not spread in the garment, either in the warp or in the woof, or in anything made of leather, 54“then the priest shall command that they wash the thing in which is the plague; and he shall isolate it another seven days.

55“Then the priest shall examine the plague after it has been washed; and indeed if the plague has not changed its color, though the plague has not spread, it is unclean, and you shall burn it in the fire; it continues eating away, whether the damage is outside or inside.

56“If the priest examines it, and indeed the plague has faded after washing it, then he shall tear it out of the garment, whether out of the warp or out of the woof, or out of the leather.

57“But if it appears again in the garment, either in the warp or in the woof, or in anything made of leather, it is a spreading plague; you shall burn with fire that in which is the plague.

58“And if you wash the garment, either warp or woof, or whatever is made of leather, if the plague has disappeared from it, then it shall be washed a second time, and shall be clean.

59“This is the law of the leprous plague in a garment of wool or linen, either in the warp or woof, or in anything made of leather, to pronounce it clean or to pronounce it unclean.”

Leviticus 14

The Ritual for Cleansing Healed Lepers

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“This shall be the law of the leper for the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought to the priest.

[3]“And the priest shall go out of the camp, and the priest shall examine him; and indeed, if the leprosy is healed in the leper,

[4]“then the priest shall command to take for him who is to be cleansed two living and clean birds, cedar wood, scarlet, and hyssop.

[5]“And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water.

[6]“As for the living bird, he shall take it, the cedar wood and the scarlet and the hyssop, and dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water.

[7]“And he shall sprinkle it seven times on him who is to be cleansed from the leprosy, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose in the open field.

[8]“He who is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean. After that he shall come into the camp, and shall stay outside his tent seven days.

[9]“But on the seventh day he shall shave all the hair off his head and his beard and his eyebrows—all his hair he shall shave off. He shall wash his clothes and wash his body in water, and he shall be clean.

[10]“And on the eighth day he shall take two male lambs without blemish, one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish, three-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering, and one log of oil.

[11]“Then the priest who makes him clean shall present the man who is to be made clean, and those things, before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[12]“And the priest shall take one male lamb and offer it as a trespass offering, and the log of oil, and wave them as a wave offering before the LORD.

[13]“Then he shall kill the lamb in the place where he kills the sin offering and the burnt offering, in a holy place; for as the sin offering is the priest’s, so is the trespass offering. It is most holy.

[14]“The priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and the priest shall put it on the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot.

[15]“And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand.

[16]“Then the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle some of the oil with his finger seven times before the LORD.

[17]“And of the rest of the oil in his hand, the priest shall put some on the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot, on the blood of the trespass offering.

[18]“The rest of the oil that is in the priest’s hand he shall put on the head of him who is to be cleansed. So the priest shall make atonement for him before the LORD.

[19]“Then the priest shall offer the sin offering, and make atonement for him who is to be cleansed from his uncleanness. Afterward he shall kill the burnt offering.

[20]“And the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the grain offering on the altar. So the priest shall make atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

[21]“But if he is poor and cannot afford it, then he shall take one male lamb as a trespass offering to be waved, to make atonement for him, one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering, a log of oil,

[22]“and two turtledoves or two young pigeons, such as he is able to afford: one shall be a sin offering and the other a burnt offering.

[23]“He shall bring them to the priest on the eighth day for his cleansing, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, before the LORD.

[24]“And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass offering and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them as a wave offering before the LORD.

[25]“Then he shall kill the lamb of the trespass offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering and put it on the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot.

[26]“And the priest shall pour some of the oil into the palm of his own left hand.

[27]“Then the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD.

[28]“And the priest shall put some of the oil that is in his hand on the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, on the thumb of the right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot, on the place of the blood of the trespass offering.

[29]“The rest of the oil that is in the priest’s hand he shall put on the head of him who is to be cleansed, to make atonement for him before the LORD.

[30]“And he shall offer one of the turtledoves or young pigeons, such as he can afford—

[31]“such as he is able to afford, the one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering, with the grain offering. So the priest shall make atonement for him who is to be cleansed before the LORD.

[32]“This is the law for one who had a leprous sore, who cannot afford the usual cleansing.”

The Law Concerning Leprous Houses

[33]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying:

[34]“When you have come into the land of Canaan, which I give you as a possession, and I put the leprous plague in a house in the land of your possession,

[35]“and he who owns the house comes and tells the priest, saying, ‘It seems to me that there is some plague in the house,’

[36]“then the priest shall command that they empty the house, before the priest goes into it to examine the plague, that all that is in the house may not be made unclean; and afterward the priest shall go in to examine the house.

[37]“And he shall examine the plague; and indeed if the plague is on the walls of the house with ingrained streaks, greenish or reddish, which appear to be deep in the wall, [38]“then the priest shall go out of the house, to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days.

[39]“And the priest shall come again on the seventh day and look; and indeed if the plague has spread on the walls of the house, [40]“then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which is the plague, and they shall cast them into an unclean place outside the city.

[41]“And he shall cause the house to be scraped inside, all around, and the dust that they scrape off they shall pour out in an unclean place outside the city.

[42]“Then they shall take other stones and put them in the place of those stones, and he shall take other mortar and plaster the house.

[43]“Now if the plague comes back and breaks out in the house, after he has taken away the stones, after he has scraped the house, and after it is plastered,

[44]“then the priest shall come and look; and indeed if the plague has spread in the house, it is an active leprosy in the house. It is unclean.

[45]“And he shall break down the house, its stones, its timber, and all the plaster of the house, and he shall carry them outside the city to an unclean place.

[46]“Moreover he who goes into the house at all while it is shut up shall be unclean until evening.

[47]“And he who lies down in the house shall wash his clothes, and he who eats in the house shall wash his clothes.

[48]“But if the priest comes in and examines it, and indeed the plague has not spread in the house after the house was plastered, then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

[49]“And he shall take, to cleanse the house, two birds, cedar wood, scarlet, and hyssop.

[50]“Then he shall kill one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water;

[51]“and he shall take the cedar wood, the hyssop, the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times.

[52]“And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird and the running water and the living bird, with the cedar wood, the hyssop, and the scarlet.

[53]“Then he shall let the living bird loose outside the city in the open field, and make atonement for the house, and it shall be clean.

[54]“This is the law for any leprous sore and scale,

[55]“for the leprosy of a garment and of a house,

[56]“for a swelling and a scab and a bright spot,

[57]“to teach when it is unclean and when it is clean. This is the law of leprosy.”

Leviticus 15

The Law Concerning Bodily Discharges

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘When any man has a discharge from his body, his discharge is unclean.

[3]‘And this shall be his uncleanness in regard to his discharge—whether his body runs with his discharge, or his body is stopped up by his discharge, it is his uncleanness.

[4]‘Every bed is unclean on which he who has the discharge lies, and everything on which he sits shall be unclean.

[5]‘And whoever touches his bed shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[6]‘He who sits on anything on which he who has the discharge sat shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[7]‘And he who touches the body of him who has the discharge shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[8]‘If he who has the discharge spits on him who is clean, then he shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[9]‘Any saddle on which he who has the discharge rides shall be unclean.

[10]‘Whoever touches anything that was under him shall be unclean until evening. He who carries any of those things shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[11]‘And whomever the one who has the discharge touches, and has not rinsed his hands in water, he shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[12]‘The vessel of earth that he who has the discharge touches shall be broken, and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.

[13]‘And when he who has a discharge is cleansed of his discharge, then he shall count for himself seven days for his cleansing, wash his clothes, and bathe his body in running water; then he shall be clean.

[14]‘On the eighth day he shall take for himself two turtledoves or two young pigeons, and come before the LORD, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and give them to the priest.

[15]‘Then the priest shall offer them, the one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering. So the priest shall make atonement for him before the LORD because of his discharge.

[16]‘If any man has an emission of semen, then he shall wash all his body in water, and be unclean until evening.

[17]‘And any garment and any leather on which there is semen, it shall be washed with water, and be unclean until evening.

[18]‘Also, when a woman lies with a man, and there is an emission of semen, they shall bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[19]‘If a woman has a discharge, and the discharge from her body is blood, she shall be set apart seven days; and whoever touches her shall be unclean until evening.

[20]‘Everything that she lies on during her impurity shall be unclean; also everything that she sits on shall be unclean.

[21]‘Whoever touches her bed shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[22]‘And whoever touches anything that she sat on shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[23]‘If anything is on her bed or on anything on which she sits, when he touches it, he shall be unclean until evening.

[24]‘And if any man lies with her at all, so that her impurity is on him, he shall be unclean seven days; and every bed on which he lies shall be unclean.

[25]‘If a woman has a discharge of blood for many days, other than at the time of her customary impurity, or if it runs beyond her usual time of impurity, all the days of her unclean discharge shall be as the days of her customary impurity. She shall be unclean.

[26]‘Every bed on which she lies all the days of her discharge shall be to her as the bed of her impurity; and whatever she sits on shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her impurity.

[27]‘Whoever touches those things shall be unclean; he shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

[28]‘But if she is cleansed of her discharge, then she shall count for herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean.

[29]‘And on the eighth day she shall take for herself two turtledoves or two young pigeons, and bring them to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[30]‘Then the priest shall offer the one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for her before the LORD for the discharge of her uncleanness.

[31]‘Thus you shall separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness, lest they die in their uncleanness when they defile My tabernacle that is among them.

[32]‘This is the law for one who has a discharge, and for him who emits semen and is unclean thereby,

[33]‘and for her who is indisposed because of her customary impurity, and for one who has a discharge, either man or woman, and for him who lies with her who is unclean.’ ”

Leviticus 16

The Day of Atonement

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron, when they offered profane fire before the LORD, and died;

[2]and the LORD said to Moses: "Tell Aaron your brother not to come at just any time into the Holy Place inside the veil, before the mercy seat which is on the ark, lest he die; for I will appear in the cloud above the mercy seat.

[3]"Thus Aaron shall come into the Holy Place: with the blood of a young bull as a sin offering, and of a ram as a burnt offering.

[4]"He shall put the holy linen tunic and the linen trousers on his body; he shall be girded with a linen sash, and with the linen turban he shall be attired. These are holy garments. Therefore he shall wash his body in water, and put them on.

[5]"And he shall take from the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats as a sin offering, and one ram as a burnt offering.

[6]"Aaron shall offer the bull as a sin offering, which is for himself, and make atonement for himself and for his house.

[7]"He shall take the two goats and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[8]"Then Aaron shall cast lots for the two goats: one lot for the LORD and the other lot for the scapegoat.

[9]"And Aaron shall bring the goat on which the LORD's lot fell, and offer it as a sin offering.

[10]"But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make atonement upon it, and to let it go as the scapegoat into the wilderness.

[11]"And Aaron shall bring the bull of the sin offering, which is for himself, and make atonement for himself and for his house, and shall kill the bull as the sin offering which is for himself.

[12]"Then he shall take a censer full of burning coals of fire from the altar before the LORD, with his hands full of sweet incense beaten fine, and bring it inside the veil.

[13]“And he shall put the incense on the fire before the LORD, that the cloud of incense may cover the mercy seat that is on the Testimony, lest he die.

[14]“He shall take some of the blood of the bull and sprinkle it with his finger on the mercy seat on the east side; and before the mercy seat he shall sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times.

15“Then he shall kill the goat of the sin offering, which is for the people, bring its blood inside the veil, do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bull, and sprinkle it on the mercy seat and before the mercy seat.

[16]“So he shall make atonement for the Holy Place, because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions, for all their sins; and so he shall do for the tabernacle of meeting which remains among them in the midst of their uncleanness.

[17]“There shall be no man in the tabernacle of meeting when he goes in to make atonement in the Holy Place, until he comes out, that he may make atonement for himself, for his household, and for all the assembly of Israel.

[18]“And he shall go out to the altar that is before the LORD, and make atonement for it, and shall take some of the blood of the bull and some of the blood of the goat, and put it on the horns of the altar all around.

[19]“Then he shall sprinkle some of the blood on it with his finger seven times, cleanse it, and consecrate it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel.

20“And when he has made an end of atoning for the Holy Place, the tabernacle of meeting, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat.

[21]“Aaron shall lay both his hands on the head of the live goat, confess over it all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions, concerning all their sins, putting them on the head of the goat, and shall send it away into the wilderness by the hand of a suitable man.

[22]“The goat shall bear on itself all their iniquities to an uninhabited land; and he shall release the goat in the wilderness.

23“Then Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of meeting, shall take off the linen garments which he put on when he went into the Holy Place, and shall leave them there.

[24]“And he shall wash his body with water in a holy place, put on his garments, come out and offer his burnt offering and the burnt offering of the people, and make atonement for himself and for the people.

[25]“The fat of the sin offering he shall burn on the altar.

[26]“And he who released the goat as the scapegoat shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp.

[27]“The bull for the sin offering and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the Holy Place, shall be carried outside the camp. And they shall burn in the fire their skins, their flesh, and their offal.

[28]“Then he who burns them shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp.

[29]“This shall be a statute forever for you: In the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, you shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether a native of your own country or a stranger who dwells among you.

[30]“For on that day the priest shall make atonement for you, to cleanse you, that you may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

[31]“It is a sabbath of solemn rest for you, and you shall afflict your souls. It is a statute forever.

[32]“And the priest, who is anointed and consecrated to minister as priest in his father’s place, shall make atonement, and put on the linen clothes, the holy garments;

[33]“then he shall make atonement for the Holy Sanctuary, and he shall make atonement for the tabernacle of meeting and for the altar, and he shall make atonement for the priests and for all the people of the assembly.

[34]“This shall be an everlasting statute for you, to make atonement for the children of Israel, for all their sins, once a year.” And he did as the LORD commanded Moses.

Leviticus 17

The Sanctity of Blood

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to Aaron, to his sons, and to all the children of Israel, and say to them, ‘This is the thing which the LORD has commanded, saying:

[3]“Whatever man of the house of Israel who kills an ox or lamb or goat in the camp, or who kills it outside the camp,

[4]“and does not bring it to the door of the tabernacle of meeting to offer an offering to the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD, the guilt of bloodshed shall be imputed to that man. He has shed blood; and that man shall be cut off from among his people,

[5]“to the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices which they offer in the open field, that they may bring them to the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to the priest, and offer them as peace offerings to the LORD.

[6]“And the priest shall sprinkle the blood on the altar of the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and burn the fat for a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[7]“They shall no more offer their sacrifices to demons, after whom they have played the harlot. This shall be a statute forever for them throughout their generations.” ’

[8]“Also you shall say to them: ‘Whatever man of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who dwell among you, who offers a burnt offering or sacrifice,

[9]‘and does not bring it to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to offer it to the LORD, that man shall be cut off from among his people.

[10]‘And whatever man of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who dwell among you, who eats any blood, I will set My face against that person who eats blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

[11]‘For the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that makes atonement for the soul.’

[12]“Therefore I said to the children of Israel, ‘No one among you shall eat blood, nor shall any stranger who dwells among you eat blood.’

[13]“Whatever man of the children of Israel, or of the strangers who dwell among you, who hunts and catches any animal or bird that may be eaten, he shall pour out its blood and cover it with dust;

[14]“for it is the life of all flesh. Its blood sustains its life. Therefore I said to the children of Israel, ‘You shall not eat the blood of any flesh, for the life of all flesh is its blood. Whoever eats it shall be cut off.’

[15]“And every person who eats what died naturally or what was torn by beasts, whether he is a native of your own country or a stranger, he shall both wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. Then he shall be clean.

[16]“But if he does not wash them or bathe his body, then he shall bear his guilt.”

Leviticus 18

Laws of Sexual Morality

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘I am the LORD your God.

[3]‘According to the doings of the land of Egypt, where you dwelt, you shall not do; and according to the doings of the land of Canaan, where I am bringing you, you shall not do; nor shall you walk in their ordinances.

[4]‘You shall observe My judgments and keep My ordinances, to walk in them: I am the LORD your God.

[5]‘You shall therefore keep My statutes and My judgments, which if a man does, he shall live by them: I am the LORD.

[6]‘None of you shall approach anyone who is near of kin to him, to uncover his nakedness: I am the LORD.

[7]‘The nakedness of your father or the nakedness of your mother you shall not uncover. She is your mother; you shall not uncover her nakedness.

[8]‘The nakedness of your father’s wife you shall not uncover; it is your father’s nakedness.

[9]‘The nakedness of your sister, the daughter of your father, or the daughter of your mother, whether born at home or elsewhere, their nakedness you shall not uncover.

[10]‘The nakedness of your son’s daughter or your daughter’s daughter, their nakedness you shall not uncover; for theirs is your own nakedness.

[11]‘The nakedness of your father’s wife’s daughter, begotten by your father—she is your sister—you shall not uncover her nakedness.

[12]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father’s sister; she is near of kin to your father.

[13]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your mother’s sister, for she is near of kin to your mother.

[14]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father’s brother. You shall not approach his wife; she is your aunt.

[15]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your daughter-in-law—she is your son’s wife—you shall not uncover her nakedness.

[16]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your brother’s wife; it is your brother’s nakedness.

[17]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, nor shall you take her son’s daughter or her daughter’s daughter, to uncover her nakedness. They are near of kin to her. It is wickedness.

[18]‘Nor shall you take a woman as a rival to her sister, to uncover her nakedness while the other is alive.

[19]‘Also you shall not approach a woman to uncover her nakedness as long as she is in her customary impurity.

[20]‘Moreover you shall not lie carnally with your neighbor’s wife, to defile yourself with her.

[21]‘And you shall not let any of your descendants pass through the fire to Molech, nor shall you profane the name of your God: I am the LORD.

[22]‘You shall not lie with a male as with a woman. It is an abomination.

[23]‘Nor shall you mate with any animal, to defile yourself with it. Nor shall any woman stand before an animal to mate with it. It is perversion.

[24]‘Do not defile yourselves with any of these things; for by all these the nations are defiled, which I am casting out before you.

[25]‘For the land is defiled; therefore I visit the punishment of its iniquity upon it, and the land vomits out its inhabitants.

[26]‘You shall therefore keep My statutes and My judgments, and shall not commit any of these abominations, either any of your own nation or any stranger who dwells among you

[27]‘(for all these abominations the men of the land have done, who were before you, and thus the land is defiled),

[28]‘lest the land vomit you out also when you defile it, as it vomited out the nations that were before you.

[29]‘For whoever commits any of these abominations, the persons who commit them shall be cut off from among their people.

[30]‘Therefore you shall keep My ordinance, so that you do not commit any of these abominable customs which were committed before you, and that you do not defile yourselves by them: I am the LORD your God.’ ”

Leviticus 19

Moral and Ceremonial Laws

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘You shall be holy, for I the LORD your God am holy.

[3]‘Every one of you shall revere his mother and his father, and keep My Sabbaths: I am the LORD your God.

[4]‘Do not turn to idols, nor make for yourselves molded gods: I am the LORD your God.

[5]‘And if you offer a sacrifice of a peace offering to the LORD, you shall offer it of your own free will.

[6]‘It shall be eaten the same day you offer it, and on the next day. And if any remains until the third day, it shall be burned in the fire.

[7]‘And if it is eaten at all on the third day, it is an abomination. It shall not be accepted.

[8]‘Therefore everyone who eats it shall bear his iniquity, because he has profaned the hallowed offering of the LORD; and that person shall be cut off from his people.

[9]‘When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not wholly reap the corners of your field, nor shall you gather the gleanings of your harvest.

[10]‘And you shall not glean your vineyard, nor shall you gather every grape of your vineyard; you shall leave them for the poor and the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

[11]‘You shall not steal, nor deal falsely, nor lie to one another.

[12]‘And you shall not swear by My name falsely, nor shall you profane the name of your God: I am the LORD.

[13]‘You shall not cheat your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all night until morning.

[14]‘You shall not curse the deaf, nor put a stumbling block before the blind, but shall fear your God: I am the LORD.

15‘You shall do no injustice in judgment. You shall not be partial to the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty. In righteousness you shall judge your neighbor.

16‘You shall not go about as a talebearer among your people; nor shall you take a stand against the life of your neighbor: I am the LORD.

17‘You shall not hate your brother in your heart. You shall surely rebuke your neighbor, and not bear sin because of him.

18‘You shall not take vengeance, nor bear any grudge against the children of your people, but you shall love your neighbor as yourself: I am the LORD.

19‘You shall keep My statutes. You shall not let your livestock breed with another kind. You shall not sow your field with mixed seed. Nor shall a garment of mixed linen and wool come upon you.

20‘Whoever lies carnally with a woman who is betrothed to a man as a concubine, and who has not at all been redeemed nor given her freedom, for this there shall be scourging; but they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21‘And he shall bring his trespass offering to the LORD, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, a ram as a trespass offering.

22‘The priest shall make atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering before the LORD for his sin which he has committed. And the sin which he has committed shall be forgiven him.

23‘When you come into the land, and have planted all kinds of trees for food, then you shall count their fruit as uncircumcised. Three years it shall be as uncircumcised to you. It shall not be eaten.

24‘But in the fourth year all its fruit shall be holy, a praise to the LORD.

25‘And in the fifth year you may eat its fruit, that it may yield to you its increase: I am the LORD your God.

26‘You shall not eat anything with the blood, nor shall you practice divination or soothsaying.

27‘You shall not shave around the sides of your head, nor shall you disfigure the edges of your beard.

28‘You shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor tattoo any marks on you: I am the LORD.

[29]‘Do not prostitute your daughter, to cause her to be a harlot, lest the land fall into harlotry, and the land become full of wickedness.

[30]‘You shall keep My Sabbaths and reverence My sanctuary: I am the LORD.

[31]‘Give no regard to mediums and familiar spirits; do not seek after them, to be defiled by them: I am the LORD your God.

[32]‘You shall rise before the gray headed and honor the presence of an old man, and fear your God: I am the LORD.

[33]‘And if a stranger dwells with you in your land, you shall not mistreat him.

[34]‘The stranger who dwells among you shall be to you as one born among you, and you shall love him as yourself; for you were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

[35]‘You shall do no injustice in judgment, in measurement of length, weight, or volume.

[36]‘You shall have honest scales, honest weights, an honest ephah, and an honest hin: I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt.

[37]‘Therefore you shall observe all My statutes and all My judgments, and perform them: I am the LORD.’ ”

Leviticus 20

Penalties for Breaking the Law

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Again, you shall say to the children of Israel: 'Whoever of the children of Israel, or of the strangers who dwell in Israel, who gives any of his descendants to Molech, he shall surely be put to death. The people of the land shall stone him with stones.

[3]'I will set My face against that man, and will cut him off from his people, because he has given some of his descendants to Molech, to defile My sanctuary and profane My holy name.

[4]'And if the people of the land should in any way hide their eyes from the man, when he gives some of his descendants to Molech, and they do not kill him,

[5]'then I will set My face against that man and against his family; and I will cut him off from his people, and all who prostitute themselves with him to commit harlotry with Molech.

[6]'And the person who turns to mediums and familiar spirits, to prostitute himself with them, I will set My face against that person and cut him off from his people.

[7]'Consecrate yourselves therefore, and be holy, for I am the LORD your God.

[8]'And you shall keep My statutes, and perform them: I am the LORD who sanctifies you.

[9]'For everyone who curses his father or his mother shall surely be put to death. He has cursed his father or his mother. His blood shall be upon him.

[10]'The man who commits adultery with another man's wife, he who commits adultery with his neighbor's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress, shall surely be put to death.

[11]'The man who lies with his father's wife has uncovered his father's nakedness; both of them shall surely be put to death. Their blood shall be upon them.

[12]‘If a man lies with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death. They have committed perversion. Their blood shall be upon them.

[13]‘If a man lies with a male as he lies with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination. They shall surely be put to death. Their blood shall be upon them.

[14]‘If a man marries a woman and her mother, it is wickedness. They shall be burned with fire, both he and they, that there may be no wickedness among you.

[15]‘If a man mates with an animal, he shall surely be put to death, and you shall kill the animal.

[16]‘If a woman approaches any animal and mates with it, you shall kill the woman and the animal. They shall surely be put to death. Their blood is upon them.

[17]‘If a man takes his sister, his father’s daughter or his mother’s daughter, and sees her nakedness and she sees his nakedness, it is a wicked thing. And they shall be cut off in the sight of their people. He has uncovered his sister’s nakedness. He shall bear his guilt.

[18]‘If a man lies with a woman during her sickness and uncovers her nakedness, he has exposed her flow, and she has uncovered the flow of her blood. Both of them shall be cut off from their people.

[19]‘You shall not uncover the nakedness of your mother’s sister nor of your father’s sister, for that would uncover his near of kin. They shall bear their guilt.

[20]‘If a man lies with his uncle’s wife, he has uncovered his uncle’s nakedness. They shall bear their sin; they shall die childless.

[21]‘If a man takes his brother’s wife, it is an unclean thing. He has uncovered his brother’s nakedness. They shall be childless.

22‘You shall therefore keep all My statutes and all My judgments, and perform them, that the land where I am bringing you to dwell may not vomit you out.

[23]‘And you shall not walk in the statutes of the nation which I am casting out before you; for they commit all these things, and therefore I abhor them.

[24]‘But I have said to you, “You shall inherit their land, and I will give it to you to possess, a land flowing with milk and honey.” I am the LORD your God, who has separated you from the peoples.

[25]‘You shall therefore distinguish between clean animals and unclean, between unclean birds and clean, and you shall not make yourselves abominable by beast or by bird, or by any kind of living thing that creeps on the ground, which I have separated from you as unclean.

[26]‘And you shall be holy to Me, for I the LORD am holy, and have separated you from the peoples, that you should be Mine.

[27]‘A man or a woman who is a medium, or who has familiar spirits, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones. Their blood shall be upon them.’ ”

Leviticus 21

Regulations for Conduct of Priests

[1]And the LORD said to Moses, "Speak to the priests, the sons of Aaron, and say to them: 'None shall defile himself for the dead among his people,

[2]'except for his relatives who are nearest to him: his mother, his father, his son, his daughter, and his brother;

[3]'also his virgin sister who is near to him, who has had no husband, for her he may defile himself.

[4]'Otherwise he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

[5]'They shall not make any bald place on their heads, nor shall they shave the edges of their beards nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

[6]'They shall be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God, for they offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and the bread of their God; therefore they shall be holy.

[7]'They shall not take a wife who is a harlot or a defiled woman, nor shall they take a woman divorced from her husband; for the priest is holy to his God.

[8]'Therefore you shall consecrate him, for he offers the bread of your God. He shall be holy to you, for I the LORD, who sanctify you, am holy.

[9]'The daughter of any priest, if she profanes herself by playing the harlot, she profanes her father. She shall be burned with fire.

[10]'He who is the high priest among his brethren, on whose head the anointing oil was poured and who is consecrated to wear the garments, shall not uncover his head nor tear his clothes;

[11]'nor shall he go near any dead body, nor defile himself for his father or his mother;

[12]'nor shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; for the consecration of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I am the LORD.

[13]'And he shall take a wife in her virginity.

[14]‘A widow or a divorced woman or a defiled woman or a harlot—these he shall not marry; but he shall take a virgin of his own people as wife.

[15]‘Nor shall he profane his posterity among his people, for I the LORD sanctify him.’ ”

16And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[17]“Speak to Aaron, saying: ‘No man of your descendants in succeeding generations, who has any defect, may approach to offer the bread of his God.

[18]‘For any man who has a defect shall not approach: a man blind or lame, who has a marred face or any limb too long,

[19]‘a man who has a broken foot or broken hand,

[20]‘or is a hunchback or a dwarf, or a man who has a defect in his eye, or eczema or scab, or is a eunuch.

[21]‘No man of the descendants of Aaron the priest, who has a defect, shall come near to offer the offerings made by fire to the LORD. He has a defect; he shall not come near to offer the bread of his God.

[22]‘He may eat the bread of his God, both the most holy and the holy;

[23]‘only he shall not go near the veil or approach the altar, because he has a defect, lest he profane My sanctuaries; for I the LORD sanctify them.’ ”

[24]And Moses told it to Aaron and his sons, and to all the children of Israel.

Leviticus 22

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to Aaron and his sons, that they separate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they do not profane My holy name by what they dedicate to Me: I am the LORD.

[3]“Say to them: ‘Whoever of all your descendants throughout your generations, who goes near the holy things which the children of Israel dedicate to the LORD, while he has uncleanness upon him, that person shall be cut off from My presence: I am the LORD.

[4]‘Whatever man of the descendants of Aaron, who is a leper or has a discharge, shall not eat the holy offerings until he is clean. And whoever touches anything made unclean by a corpse, or a man who has had an emission of semen,

[5]‘or whoever touches any creeping thing by which he would be made unclean, or any person by whom he would become unclean, whatever his uncleanness may be—

[6]‘the person who has touched any such thing shall be unclean until evening, and shall not eat the holy offerings unless he washes his body with water.

[7]‘And when the sun goes down he shall be clean; and afterward he may eat the holy offerings, because it is his food.

[8]‘Whatever dies naturally or is torn by beasts he shall not eat, to defile himself with it: I am the LORD.

[9]‘They shall therefore keep My ordinance, lest they bear sin for it and die thereby, if they profane it: I the LORD sanctify them.

[10]‘No outsider shall eat the holy offering; one who dwells with the priest, or a hired servant, shall not eat the holy thing.

[11]‘But if the priest buys a person with his money, he may eat it; and one who is born in his house may eat his food.

[12]‘If the priest’s daughter is married to an outsider, she may not eat of the holy offerings.

[13]‘But if the priest’s daughter is a widow or divorced, and has no child, and has returned to her father’s house as in her youth, she may eat her father's food; but no outsider shall eat it.

[14]'And if a man eats the holy offering unintentionally, then he shall restore a holy offering to the priest, and add one-fifth to it.

[15]'They shall not profane the holy offerings of the children of Israel, which they offer to the LORD,

[16]'or allow them to bear the guilt of trespass when they eat their holy offerings; for I the LORD sanctify them.' "

Offerings Accepted and Not Accepted

[17]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[18]"Speak to Aaron and his sons, and to all the children of Israel, and say to them: 'Whatever man of the house of Israel, or of the strangers in Israel, who offers his sacrifice for any of his vows or for any of his freewill offerings, which they offer to the LORD as a burnt offering—

[19]'you shall offer of your own free will a male without blemish from the cattle, from the sheep, or from the goats.

[20]'Whatever has a defect, you shall not offer, for it shall not be acceptable on your behalf.

[21]'And whoever offers a sacrifice of a peace offering to the LORD, to fulfill his vow, or a freewill offering from the cattle or the sheep, it must be perfect to be accepted; there shall be no defect in it.

[22]'Those that are blind or broken or maimed, or have an ulcer or eczema or scabs, you shall not offer to the LORD, nor make an offering by fire of them on the altar to the LORD.

[23]'Either a bull or a lamb that has any limb too long or too short you may offer as a freewill offering, but for a vow it shall not be accepted.

[24]'You shall not offer to the LORD what is bruised or crushed, or torn or cut; nor shall you make any offering of them in your land.

[25]'Nor from a foreigner's hand shall you offer any of these as the bread of your God, because their corruption is in them, and defects are in them. They shall not be accepted on your behalf.' "

[26]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[27]"When a bull or a sheep or a goat is born, it shall be seven days with its mother; and from the eighth day and thereafter it shall be accepted as an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[28]“Whether it is a cow or ewe, do not kill both her and her young on the same day.

[29]“And when you offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving to the LORD, offer it of your own free will.

[30]“On the same day it shall be eaten; you shall leave none of it until morning: I am the LORD.

[31]“Therefore you shall keep My commandments, and perform them: I am the LORD.

[32]“You shall not profane My holy name, but I will be hallowed among the children of Israel. I am the LORD who sanctifies you,

[33]“who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD.”

Leviticus 23

Feasts of the LORD

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'The feasts of the LORD, which you shall proclaim to be holy convocations, these are My feasts.

The Sabbath

[3]'Six days shall work be done, but the seventh day is a Sabbath of solemn rest, a holy convocation. You shall do no work on it; it is the Sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

The Passover and Unleavened Bread

[4]'These are the feasts of the LORD, holy convocations which you shall proclaim at their appointed times.

[5]'On the fourteenth day of the first month at twilight is the LORD's Passover.

[6]'And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the Feast of Unleavened Bread to the LORD; seven days you must eat unleavened bread.

[7]'On the first day you shall have a holy convocation; you shall do no customary work on it.

[8]'But you shall offer an offering made by fire to the LORD for seven days. The seventh day shall be a holy convocation; you shall do no customary work on it.' "

The Feast of Firstfruits

[9]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[10]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When you come into the land which I give to you, and reap its harvest, then you shall bring a sheaf of the firstfruits of your harvest to the priest.

[11]'He shall wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted on your behalf; on the day after the Sabbath the priest shall wave it.

[12]‘And you shall offer on that day, when you wave the sheaf, a male lamb of the first year, without blemish, as a burnt offering to the LORD.

[13]‘Its grain offering shall be two-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with oil, an offering made by fire to the LORD, for a sweet aroma; and its drink offering shall be of wine, one-fourth of a hin.

[14]‘You shall eat neither bread nor parched grain nor fresh grain until the same day that you have brought an offering to your God; it shall be a statute forever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

The Feast of Weeks

[15]‘And you shall count for yourselves from the day after the Sabbath, from the day that you brought the sheaf of the wave offering: seven Sabbaths shall be completed.

[16]‘Count fifty days to the day after the seventh Sabbath; then you shall offer a new grain offering to the LORD.

[17]‘You shall bring from your dwellings two wave loaves of two-tenths of an ephah. They shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven. They are the firstfruits to the LORD.

[18]‘And you shall offer with the bread seven lambs of the first year, without blemish, one young bull, and two rams. They shall be as a burnt offering to the LORD, with their grain offering and their drink offerings, an offering made by fire for a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[19]‘Then you shall sacrifice one kid of the goats as a sin offering, and two male lambs of the first year as a sacrifice of a peace offering.

[20]‘The priest shall wave them with the bread of the firstfruits as a wave offering before the LORD, with the two lambs. They shall be holy to the LORD for the priest.

[21]‘And you shall proclaim on the same day that it is a holy convocation to you. You shall do no customary work on it. It shall be a statute forever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

[22]‘When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not wholly reap the corners of your field when you reap, nor shall you gather any gleaning from your harvest. You shall leave them for the poor and for the stranger: I am the LORD your God.’ ”

The Feast of Trumpets

[23]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[24]"Speak to the children of Israel, saying: 'In the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you shall have a sabbath-rest, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, a holy convocation.

[25]'You shall do no customary work on it; and you shall offer an offering made by fire to the LORD.' "

The Day of Atonement

[26]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[27]"Also the tenth day of this seventh month shall be the Day of Atonement. It shall be a holy convocation for you; you shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[28]"And you shall do no work on that same day, for it is the Day of Atonement, to make atonement for you before the LORD your God.

[29]"For any person who is not afflicted in soul on that same day shall be cut off from his people.

[30]"And any person who does any work on that same day, that person I will destroy from among his people.

[31]"You shall do no manner of work; it shall be a statute forever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

[32]"It shall be to you a sabbath of solemn rest, and you shall afflict your souls; on the ninth day of the month at evening, from evening to evening, you shall celebrate your sabbath."

The Feast of Tabernacles

[33]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[34]"Speak to the children of Israel, saying: 'The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the Feast of Tabernacles for seven days to the LORD.

[35]'On the first day there shall be a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work on it.

[36]'For seven days you shall offer an offering made by fire to the LORD. On the eighth day you shall have a holy convocation, and you shall offer an offering made by fire to the LORD. It is a sacred assembly, and you shall do no customary work on it.

[37]‘These are the feasts of the LORD which you shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire to the LORD, a burnt offering and a grain offering, a sacrifice and drink offerings, everything on its day—

[38]‘besides the Sabbaths of the LORD, besides your gifts, besides all your vows, and besides all your freewill offerings which you give to the LORD.

[39]‘Also on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you have gathered in the fruit of the land, you shall keep the feast of the LORD for seven days; on the first day there shall be a sabbath-rest, and on the eighth day a sabbath-rest.

[40]‘And you shall take for yourselves on the first day the fruit of beautiful trees, branches of palm trees, the boughs of leafy trees, and willows of the brook; and you shall rejoice before the LORD your God for seven days.

[41]‘You shall keep it as a feast to the LORD for seven days in the year. It shall be a statute forever in your generations. You shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

[42]‘You shall dwell in booths for seven days. All who are native Israelites shall dwell in booths,

[43]‘that your generations may know that I made the children of Israel dwell in booths when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.’ ”

[44]So Moses declared to the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

Leviticus 24

Care of the Tabernacle Lamps

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]"Command the children of Israel that they bring to you pure oil of pressed olives for the light, to make the lamps burn continually.

[3]"Outside the veil of the Testimony, in the tabernacle of meeting, Aaron shall be in charge of it from evening until morning before the LORD continually; it shall be a statute forever in your generations.

[4]"He shall be in charge of the lamps on the pure gold lampstand before the LORD continually.

The Bread of the Tabernacle

5"And you shall take fine flour and bake twelve cakes with it. Two-tenths of an ephah shall be in each cake.

[6]"You shall set them in two rows, six in a row, on the pure gold table before the LORD.

[7]"And you shall put pure frankincense on each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[8]"Every Sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.

[9]"And it shall be for Aaron and his sons, and they shall eat it in a holy place; for it is most holy to him from the offerings of the LORD made by fire, by a perpetual statute."

The Penalty for Blasphemy

10Now the son of an Israelite woman, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel; and this Israelite woman's son and a man of Israel fought each other in the camp.

[11]And the Israelite woman's son blasphemed the name of the LORD and cursed; and so they brought him to Moses. (His mother's name was Shelomith the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan.)

[12]Then they put him in custody, that the mind of the LORD might be shown to them.

13And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

14“Take outside the camp him who has cursed; then let all who heard him lay their hands on his head, and let all the congregation stone him.

15“Then you shall speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘Whoever curses his God shall bear his sin.

16‘And whoever blasphemes the name of the LORD shall surely be put to death. All the congregation shall certainly stone him, the stranger as well as him who is born in the land. When he blasphemes the name of the LORD, he shall be put to death.

17‘Whoever kills any man shall surely be put to death.

18‘Whoever kills an animal shall make it good, animal for animal.

19‘If a man causes disfigurement of his neighbor, as he has done, so shall it be done to him—

20‘fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth; as he has caused disfigurement of a man, so shall it be done to him.

21‘And whoever kills an animal shall restore it; but whoever kills a man shall be put to death.

22‘You shall have the same law for the stranger and for one from your own country; for I am the LORD your God.’ ”

23Then Moses spoke to the children of Israel; and they took outside the camp him who had cursed, and stoned him with stones. So the children of Israel did as the LORD commanded Moses.

Leviticus 25

The Sabbath of the Seventh Year

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘When you come into the land which I give you, then the land shall keep a sabbath to the LORD.

[3]‘Six years you shall sow your field, and six years you shall prune your vineyard, and gather its fruit;

[4]‘but in the seventh year there shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a sabbath to the LORD. You shall neither sow your field nor prune your vineyard.

[5]‘What grows of its own accord of your harvest you shall not reap, nor gather the grapes of your untended vine, for it is a year of rest for the land.

[6]‘And the sabbath produce of the land shall be food for you: for you, your male and female servants, your hired man, and the stranger who dwells with you,

[7]‘for your livestock and the beasts that are in your land—all its produce shall be for food.

The Year of Jubilee

[8]‘And you shall count seven sabbaths of years for yourself, seven times seven years; and the time of the seven sabbaths of years shall be to you forty-nine years.

[9]‘Then you shall cause the trumpet of the Jubilee to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month; on the Day of Atonement you shall make the trumpet to sound throughout all your land.

[10]‘And you shall consecrate the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land to all its inhabitants. It shall be a Jubilee for you; and each of you shall return to his possession, and each of you shall return to his family.

[11]‘That fiftieth year shall be a Jubilee to you; in it you shall neither sow nor reap what grows of its own accord, nor gather the grapes of your untended vine.

[12]‘For it is the Jubilee; it shall be holy to you; you shall eat its produce from the field.

[13]‘In this Year of Jubilee, each of you shall return to his possession.

[14]‘And if you sell anything to your neighbor or buy from your neighbor’s hand, you shall not oppress one another.

[15]‘According to the number of years after the Jubilee you shall buy from your neighbor, and according to the number of years of crops he shall sell to you.

[16]‘According to the multitude of years you shall increase its price, and according to the fewer number of years you shall diminish its price; for he sells to you according to the number of the years of the crops.

[17]‘Therefore you shall not oppress one another, but you shall fear your God; for I am the LORD your God.

Provisions for the Seventh Year

[18]‘So you shall observe My statutes and keep My judgments, and perform them; and you will dwell in the land in safety.

[19]‘Then the land will yield its fruit, and you will eat your fill, and dwell there in safety.

[20]‘And if you say, “What shall we eat in the seventh year, since we shall not sow nor gather in our produce?”

[21]‘Then I will command My blessing on you in the sixth year, and it will bring forth produce enough for three years.

[22]‘And you shall sow in the eighth year, and eat old produce until the ninth year; until its produce comes in, you shall eat of the old harvest.

Redemption of Property

[23]‘The land shall not be sold permanently, for the land is Mine; for you are strangers and sojourners with Me.

[24]‘And in all the land of your possession you shall grant redemption of the land.

[25]‘If one of your brethren becomes poor, and has sold some of his possession, and if his redeeming relative comes to redeem it, then he may redeem what his brother sold.

[26]‘Or if the man has no one to redeem it, but he himself becomes able to redeem it,

[27]‘then let him count the years since its sale, and restore the remainder to the man to whom he sold it, that he may return to his possession.

[28]‘But if he is not able to have it restored to himself, then what was sold shall remain in the hand of him who bought it until the Year of Jubilee; and in the Jubilee it shall be released, and he shall return to his possession.

[29]‘If a man sells a house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold; within a full year he may redeem it.

[30]‘But if it is not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house in the walled city shall belong permanently to him who bought it, throughout his generations. It shall not be released in the Jubilee.

[31]‘However the houses of villages which have no wall around them shall be counted as the fields of the country. They may be redeemed, and they shall be released in the Jubilee.

[32]‘Nevertheless the cities of the Levites, and the houses in the cities of their possession, the Levites may redeem at any time.

[33]‘And if a man purchases a house from the Levites, then the house that was sold in the city of his possession shall be released in the Jubilee; for the houses in the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

[34]‘But the field of the common-land of their cities may not be sold, for it is their perpetual possession.

Lending to the Poor

[35]‘If one of your brethren becomes poor, and falls into poverty among you, then you shall help him, like a stranger or a sojourner, that he may live with you.

[36]‘Take no usury or interest from him; but fear your God, that your brother may live with you.

[37]‘You shall not lend him your money for usury, nor lend him your food at a profit.

[38]‘I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

The Law Concerning Slavery

[39]‘And if one of your brethren who dwells by you becomes poor, and sells himself to you, you shall not compel him to serve as a slave.

[40]‘As a hired servant and a sojourner he shall be with you, and shall serve you until the Year of Jubilee.

[41]‘And then he shall depart from you—he and his children with him—and shall return to his own family. He shall return to the possession of his fathers.

[42]‘For they are My servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves.

[43]‘You shall not rule over him with rigor, but you shall fear your God.

[44]‘And as for your male and female slaves whom you may have—from the nations that are around you, from them you may buy male and female slaves.

[45]‘Moreover you may buy the children of the strangers who dwell among you, and their families who are with you, which they beget in your land; and they shall become your property.

[46]‘And you may take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them as a possession; they shall be your permanent slaves. But regarding your brethren, the children of Israel, you shall not rule over one another with rigor.

[47]‘Now if a sojourner or stranger close to you becomes rich, and one of your brethren who dwells by him becomes poor, and sells himself to the stranger or sojourner close to you, or to a member of the stranger’s family,

[48]‘after he is sold he may be redeemed again. One of his brothers may redeem him;

[49]‘or his uncle or his uncle’s son may redeem him; or anyone who is near of kin to him in his family may redeem him; or if he is able he may redeem himself.

[50]‘Thus he shall reckon with him who bought him: The price of his release shall be according to the number of years, from the year that he was sold to him until the Year of Jubilee; it shall be according to the time of a hired servant for him.

[51]'If there are still many years remaining, according to them he shall repay the price of his redemption from the money with which he was bought.

[52]'And if there remain but a few years until the Year of Jubilee, then he shall reckon with him, and according to his years he shall repay him the price of his redemption.

[53]'He shall be with him as a yearly hired servant, and he shall not rule with rigor over him in your sight.

[54]'And if he is not redeemed in these years, then he shall be released in the Year of Jubilee—he and his children with him.

[55]'For the children of Israel are servants to Me; they are My servants whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

Leviticus 26

Promise of Blessing and Retribution

[1]'You shall not make idols for yourselves;
neither a carved image nor a sacred pillar shall you rear up for yourselves;
nor shall you set up an engraved stone in your land, to bow down to it;
for I am the LORD your God.
[2]You shall keep My Sabbaths and reverence My sanctuary:
I am the LORD.

[3]'If you walk in My statutes and keep My commandments, and perform them,
[4]then I will give you rain in its season, the land shall yield its produce, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.
[5]Your threshing shall last till the time of vintage, and the vintage shall last till the time of sowing;
you shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land safely.
[6]I will give peace in the land, and you shall lie down, and none will make you afraid;
I will rid the land of evil beasts,
and the sword will not go through your land.
[7]You will chase your enemies, and they shall fall by the sword before you.
[8]Five of you shall chase a hundred, and a hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight; your enemies shall fall by the sword before you.

[9]'For I will look on you favorably and make you fruitful, multiply you and confirm My covenant with you.
[10]You shall eat the old harvest, and clear out the old because of the new.
[11]I will set My tabernacle among you, and My soul shall not abhor you.

[12]I will walk among you and be your God, and you shall be My people.
[13]I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, that you should not be their slaves;
I have broken the bands of your yoke and made you walk upright.

14‘But if you do not obey Me, and do not observe all these commandments,
[15]and if you despise My statutes, or if your soul abhors My judgments, so that you do not perform all My commandments, but break My covenant,
[16]I also will do this to you:
I will even appoint terror over you, wasting disease and fever which shall consume the eyes and cause sorrow of heart.
And you shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.
[17]I will set My face against you, and you shall be defeated by your enemies.
Those who hate you shall reign over you, and you shall flee when no one pursues you.

18‘And after all this, if you do not obey Me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins.
[19]I will break the pride of your power;
I will make your heavens like iron and your earth like bronze.
[20]And your strength shall be spent in vain;
for your land shall not yield its produce, nor shall the trees of the land yield their fruit.

21‘Then, if you walk contrary to Me, and are not willing to obey Me, I will bring on you seven times more plagues, according to your sins.
[22]I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, destroy your livestock, and make you few in number;
and your highways shall be desolate.

23‘And if by these things you are not reformed by Me, but walk contrary to Me,
[24]then I also will walk contrary to you, and I will punish you yet seven times for your sins.
[25]And I will bring a sword against you that will execute the vengeance of the covenant;
when you are gathered together within your cities I will send pestilence among you; and you shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.
[26]When I have cut off your supply of bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall bring back your bread by weight, and you shall eat and not be satisfied.

27‘And after all this, if you do not obey Me, but walk contrary to Me,
[28]then I also will walk contrary to you in fury;
and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins.
[29]You shall eat the flesh of your sons, and you shall eat the flesh of your daughters.
[30]I will destroy your high places, cut down your incense altars, and cast your carcasses on the lifeless forms of your idols;
and My soul shall abhor you.
[31]I will lay your cities waste and bring your sanctuaries to desolation, and I will not smell the fragrance of your sweet aromas.
[32]I will bring the land to desolation, and your enemies who dwell in it shall be astonished at it.
[33]I will scatter you among the nations and draw out a sword after you; your land shall be desolate and your cities waste.
[34]Then the land shall enjoy its sabbaths as long as it lies desolate and you are in your enemies’ land;
then the land shall rest and enjoy its sabbaths.
[35]As long as it lies desolate it shall rest—for the time it did not rest on your sabbaths when you dwelt in it.

36‘And as for those of you who are left, I will send faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies;
the sound of a shaken leaf shall cause them to flee;
they shall flee as though fleeing from a sword, and they shall fall when no one pursues.
[37]They shall stumble over one another, as it were before a sword, when no one pursues; and you shall have no power to stand before your enemies.
[38]You shall perish among the nations, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up.
[39]And those of you who are left shall waste away in their iniquity in your enemies’ lands; also in their fathers’ iniquities, which are with them, they shall waste away.

40‘But if they confess their iniquity and the iniquity of their fathers, with their unfaithfulness in which they were unfaithful to Me, and that they also have walked contrary to Me,
[41]and that I also have walked contrary to them and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if their uncircumcised hearts are humbled, and they accept their guilt—
[42]then I will remember My covenant with Jacob, and My covenant with Isaac and My covenant with Abraham I will remember;
I will remember the land.
[43]The land also shall be left empty by them, and will enjoy its sabbaths while it lies desolate without them;
they will accept their guilt, because they despised My judgments and because their soul abhorred My statutes.
[44]Yet for all that, when they are in the land of their enemies, I will not cast them away, nor shall I abhor them, to utterly destroy them and break My covenant with them;
for I am the LORD their God.
[45]But for their sake I will remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations, that I might be their God:

I am the LORD.' "

[46]These are the statutes and judgments and laws which the LORD made between Himself and the children of Israel on Mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

Leviticus 27

Redeeming Persons and Property Dedicated to God

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When a man consecrates by a vow certain persons to the LORD, according to your valuation,

[3]'if your valuation is of a male from twenty years old up to sixty years old, then your valuation shall be fifty shekels of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary.

[4]'If it is a female, then your valuation shall be thirty shekels;

[5]'and if from five years old up to twenty years old, then your valuation for a male shall be twenty shekels, and for a female ten shekels;

[6]'and if from a month old up to five years old, then your valuation for a male shall be five shekels of silver, and for a female your valuation shall be three shekels of silver;

[7]'and if from sixty years old and above, if it is a male, then your valuation shall be fifteen shekels, and for a female ten shekels.

[8]'But if he is too poor to pay your valuation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall set a value for him; according to the ability of him who vowed, the priest shall value him.

[9]'If it is an animal that men may bring as an offering to the LORD, all that anyone gives to the LORD shall be holy.

[10]'He shall not substitute it or exchange it, good for bad or bad for good; and if he at all exchanges animal for animal, then both it and the one exchanged for it shall be holy.

[11]'If it is an unclean animal which they do not offer as a sacrifice to the LORD, then he shall present the animal before the priest;

[12]'and the priest shall set a value for it, whether it is good or bad; as you, the priest, value it, so it shall be.

[13]'But if he wants at all to redeem it, then he must add one-fifth to your valuation.

14‘And when a man dedicates his house to be holy to the LORD, then the priest shall set a value for it, whether it is good or bad; as the priest values it, so it shall stand.

15‘If he who dedicated it wants to redeem his house, then he must add one-fifth of the money of your valuation to it, and it shall be his.

16‘If a man dedicates to the LORD part of a field of his possession, then your valuation shall be according to the seed for it. A homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

17‘If he dedicates his field from the Year of Jubilee, according to your valuation it shall stand.

18‘But if he dedicates his field after the Jubilee, then the priest shall reckon to him the money due according to the years that remain till the Year of Jubilee, and it shall be deducted from your valuation.

19‘And if he who dedicates the field ever wishes to redeem it, then he must add one-fifth of the money of your valuation to it, and it shall belong to him.

20‘But if he does not want to redeem the field, or if he has sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed anymore;

21‘but the field, when it is released in the Jubilee, shall be holy to the LORD, as a devoted field; it shall be the possession of the priest.

22‘And if a man dedicates to the LORD a field which he has bought, which is not the field of his possession,

23‘then the priest shall reckon to him the worth of your valuation, up to the Year of Jubilee, and he shall give your valuation on that day as a holy offering to the LORD.

24‘In the Year of Jubilee the field shall return to him from whom it was bought, to the one who owned the land as a possession.

25‘And all your valuations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: twenty gerahs to the shekel.

26‘But the firstborn of the animals, which should be the LORD’s firstborn, no man shall dedicate; whether it is an ox or sheep, it is the LORD’s.

27‘And if it is an unclean animal, then he shall redeem it according to your valuation, and shall add one-fifth to it; or if it is not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to your valuation.

28‘Nevertheless no devoted offering that a man may devote to the LORD of all that he has, both man and beast, or the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed; every devoted offering is most holy to the LORD.

29‘No person under the ban, who may become doomed to destruction among men, shall be redeemed, but shall surely be put to death.

30‘And all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the LORD’s. It is holy to the LORD.

31‘If a man wants at all to redeem any of his tithes, he shall add one-fifth to it.

32‘And concerning the tithe of the herd or the flock, of whatever passes under the rod, the tenth one shall be holy to the LORD.

33‘He shall not inquire whether it is good or bad, nor shall he exchange it; and if he exchanges it at all, then both it and the one exchanged for it shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.’ ”

34These are the commandments which the LORD commanded Moses for the children of Israel on Mount Sinai.

The Fourth Book of Moses Called

Numbers

The First Census of Israel

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of meeting, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying:

[2]“Take a census of all the congregation of the children of Israel, by their families, by their fathers’ houses, according to the number of names, every male individually,

[3]“from twenty years old and above—all who are able to go to war in Israel. You and Aaron shall number them by their armies.

[4]“And with you there shall be a man from every tribe, each one the head of his father’s house.

[5]“These are the names of the men who shall stand with you: from Reuben, Elizur the son of Shedeur;

[6]“from Simeon, Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai;

[7]“from Judah, Nahshon the son of Amminadab;

[8]“from Issachar, Nethanel the son of Zuar;

[9]“from Zebulun, Eliab the son of Helon;

[10]“from the sons of Joseph: from Ephraim, Elishama the son of Ammihud; from Manasseh, Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur;

[11]“from Benjamin, Abidan the son of Gideoni;

[12]“from Dan, Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai;

[13]“from Asher, Pagiel the son of Ocran;

[14]“from Gad, Eliasaph the son of Deuel;

[15]“from Naphtali, Ahira the son of Enan.”

[16]These were chosen from the congregation, leaders of their fathers’ tribes, heads of the divisions in Israel.

[17]Then Moses and Aaron took these men who had been mentioned by name,

[18]and they assembled all the congregation together on the first day of the second month; and they recited their ancestry by families, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, each one individually.

[19]As the LORD commanded Moses, so he numbered them in the Wilderness of Sinai.

[20]Now the children of Reuben, Israel's oldest son, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, every male individually, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[21]those who were numbered of the tribe of Reuben were forty-six thousand five hundred.

22From the children of Simeon, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, of those who were numbered, according to the number of names, every male individually, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[23]those who were numbered of the tribe of Simeon were fifty-nine thousand three hundred.

24From the children of Gad, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[25]those who were numbered of the tribe of Gad were forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty.

26From the children of Judah, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[27]those who were numbered of the tribe of Judah were seventy-four thousand six hundred.

28From the children of Issachar, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[29]those who were numbered of the tribe of Issachar were fifty-four thousand four hundred.

30From the children of Zebulun, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[31]those who were numbered of the tribe of Zebulun were fifty-seven thousand four hundred.

[32]From the sons of Joseph, the children of Ephraim, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[33]those who were numbered of the tribe of Ephraim were forty thousand five hundred.

[34]From the children of Manasseh, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[35]those who were numbered of the tribe of Manasseh were thirty-two thousand two hundred.

[36]From the children of Benjamin, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[37]those who were numbered of the tribe of Benjamin were thirty-five thousand four hundred.

[38]From the children of Dan, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[39]those who were numbered of the tribe of Dan were sixty-two thousand seven hundred.

[40]From the children of Asher, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[41]those who were numbered of the tribe of Asher were forty-one thousand five hundred.

[42]From the children of Naphtali, their genealogies by their families, by their fathers' house, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war:

[43]those who were numbered of the tribe of Naphtali were fifty-three thousand four hundred.

[44]These are the ones who were numbered, whom Moses and Aaron numbered, with the leaders of Israel, twelve men, each one representing his father's house.

[45]So all who were numbered of the children of Israel, by their fathers' houses, from twenty years old and above, all who were able to go to war in Israel—

[46]all who were numbered were six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty.

[47]But the Levites were not numbered among them by their fathers' tribe;

[48]for the LORD had spoken to Moses, saying:

[49]"Only the tribe of Levi you shall not number, nor take a census of them among the children of Israel;

[50]"but you shall appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of the Testimony, over all its furnishings, and over all things that belong to it; they shall carry the tabernacle and all its furnishings; they shall attend to it and camp around the tabernacle.

[51]"And when the tabernacle is to go forward, the Levites shall take it down; and when the tabernacle is to be set up, the Levites shall set it up. The outsider who comes near shall be put to death.

[52]"The children of Israel shall pitch their tents, everyone by his own camp, everyone by his own standard, according to their armies;

[53]"but the Levites shall camp around the tabernacle of the Testimony, that there may be no wrath on the congregation of the children of Israel; and the Levites shall keep charge of the tabernacle of the Testimony."

[54]Thus the children of Israel did; according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so they did.

Numbers 2

The Tribes and Leaders by Armies

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying:

[2]"Everyone of the children of Israel shall camp by his own standard, beside the emblems of his father's house; they shall camp some distance from the tabernacle of meeting.

[3]"On the east side, toward the rising of the sun, those of the standard of the forces with Judah shall camp according to their armies; and Nahshon the son of Amminadab shall be the leader of the children of Judah."

[4]And his army was numbered at seventy-four thousand six hundred.

[5]"Those who camp next to him shall be the tribe of Issachar, and Nethanel the son of Zuar shall be the leader of the children of Issachar."

[6]And his army was numbered at fifty-four thousand four hundred.

[7]"Then comes the tribe of Zebulun, and Eliab the son of Helon shall be the leader of the children of Zebulun."

[8]And his army was numbered at fifty-seven thousand four hundred.

[9]"All who were numbered according to their armies of the forces with Judah, one hundred and eighty-six thousand four hundred—these shall break camp first.

10"On the south side shall be the standard of the forces with Reuben according to their armies, and the leader of the children of Reuben shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur."

[11]And his army was numbered at forty-six thousand five hundred.

[12]"Those who camp next to him shall be the tribe of Simeon, and the leader of the children of Simeon shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai."

[13]And his army was numbered at fifty-nine thousand three hundred.

[14]"Then comes the tribe of Gad, and the leader of the children of Gad shall be Eliasaph the son of Reuel."

[15]And his army was numbered at forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty.

[16]“All who were numbered according to their armies of the forces with Reuben, one hundred and fifty-one thousand four hundred and fifty—they shall be the second to break camp.

[17]“And the tabernacle of meeting shall move out with the camp of the Levites in the middle of the camps; as they camp, so they shall move out, everyone in his place, by their standards.

18“On the west side shall be the standard of the forces with Ephraim according to their armies, and the leader of the children of Ephraim shall be Elishama the son of Ammihud.”

[19]And his army was numbered at forty thousand five hundred.

[20]“Next to him comes the tribe of Manasseh, and the leader of the children of Manasseh shall be Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.”

[21]And his army was numbered at thirty-two thousand two hundred.

[22]“Then comes the tribe of Benjamin, and the leader of the children of Benjamin shall be Abidan the son of Gideoni.”

[23]And his army was numbered at thirty-five thousand four hundred.

[24]“All who were numbered according to their armies of the forces with Ephraim, one hundred and eight thousand one hundred—they shall be the third to break camp.

25“The standard of the forces with Dan shall be on the north side according to their armies, and the leader of the children of Dan shall be Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.”

[26]And his army was numbered at sixty-two thousand seven hundred.

[27]“Those who camp next to him shall be the tribe of Asher, and the leader of the children of Asher shall be Pagiel the son of Ocran.”

[28]And his army was numbered at forty-one thousand five hundred.

[29]“Then comes the tribe of Naphtali, and the leader of the children of Naphtali shall be Ahira the son of Enan.”

[30]And his army was numbered at fifty-three thousand four hundred.

[31]“All who were numbered of the forces with Dan, one hundred and fifty-seven thousand six hundred—they shall break camp last, with their standards.”

32These are the ones who were numbered of the children of Israel by their fathers’ houses. All who were numbered according to their armies of the forces were six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty.

[33]But the Levites were not numbered among the children of Israel, just as the LORD commanded Moses.

[34]Thus the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses; so they camped by their standards and so they broke camp, each one by his family, according to their fathers’ houses.

Numbers 3

The Sons of Aaron

[1]Now these are the records of Aaron and Moses when the LORD spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai.

[2]And these are the names of the sons of Aaron: Nadab, the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

[3]These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed priests, whom he consecrated to minister as priests.

[4]Nadab and Abihu had died before the LORD when they offered profane fire before the LORD in the Wilderness of Sinai; and they had no children. So Eleazar and Ithamar ministered as priests in the presence of Aaron their father.

The Levites Serve in the Tabernacle

[5]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[6]“Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may serve him.

[7]“And they shall attend to his needs and the needs of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of meeting, to do the work of the tabernacle.

[8]“Also they shall attend to all the furnishings of the tabernacle of meeting, and to the needs of the children of Israel, to do the work of the tabernacle.

[9]“And you shall give the Levites to Aaron and his sons; they are given entirely to him from among the children of Israel.

[10]“So you shall appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall attend to their priesthood; but the outsider who comes near shall be put to death.”

[11]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[12]“Now behold, I Myself have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of every firstborn who opens the womb among the children of Israel. Therefore the Levites shall be Mine,

[13]“because all the firstborn are Mine. On the day that I struck all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, I sanctified to Myself all the firstborn in Israel, both man and beast. They shall be Mine: I am the LORD.”

Census of the Levites Commanded

[14]Then the LORD spoke to Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai, saying:

[15]“Number the children of Levi by their fathers’ houses, by their families; you shall number every male from a month old and above.”

[16]So Moses numbered them according to the word of the LORD, as he was commanded.

[17]These were the sons of Levi by their names: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

[18]And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families: Libni and Shimei.

[19]And the sons of Kohath by their families: Amram, Izehar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

[20]And the sons of Merari by their families: Mahli and Mushi. These are the families of the Levites by their fathers’ houses.

[21]From Gershon came the family of the Libnites and the family of the Shimites; these were the families of the Gershonites.

[22]Those who were numbered, according to the number of all the males from a month old and above—of those who were numbered there were seven thousand five hundred.

[23]The families of the Gershonites were to camp behind the tabernacle westward.

[24]And the leader of the father’s house of the Gershonites was Eliasaph the son of Lael.

[25]The duties of the children of Gershon in the tabernacle of meeting included the tabernacle, the tent with its covering, the screen for the door of the tabernacle of meeting,

[26]the screen for the door of the court, the hangings of the court which are around the tabernacle and the altar, and their cords, according to all the work relating to them.

[27]From Kohath came the family of the Amramites, the family of the Izharites, the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites; these were the families of the Kohathites.

[28]According to the number of all the males, from a month old and above, there were eight thousand six hundred keeping charge of the sanctuary.

[29]The families of the children of Kohath were to camp on the south side of the tabernacle.

[30]And the leader of the fathers' house of the families of the Kohathites was Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

[31]Their duty included the ark, the table, the lampstand, the altars, the utensils of the sanctuary with which they ministered, the screen, and all the work relating to them.

[32]And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest was to be chief over the leaders of the Levites, with oversight of those who kept charge of the sanctuary.

[33]From Merari came the family of the Mahlites and the family of the Mushites; these were the families of Merari.

[34]And those who were numbered, according to the number of all the males from a month old and above, were six thousand two hundred.

[35]The leader of the fathers' house of the families of Merari was Zuriel the son of Abihail. These were to camp on the north side of the tabernacle.

[36]And the appointed duty of the children of Merari included the boards of the tabernacle, its bars, its pillars, its sockets, its utensils, all the work relating to them,

[37]and the pillars of the court all around, with their sockets, their pegs, and their cords.

[38]Moreover those who were to camp before the tabernacle on the east, before the tabernacle of meeting, were Moses, Aaron, and his sons, keeping charge of the sanctuary, to meet the needs of the children of Israel; but the outsider who came near was to be put to death.

[39]All who were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, by their families, all the males from a month old and above, were twenty-two thousand.

Levites Dedicated Instead of the Firstborn

40Then the LORD said to Moses: “Number all the firstborn males of the children of Israel from a month old and above, and take the number of their names.

41“And you shall take the Levites for Me—I am the LORD—instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the livestock of the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the livestock of the children of Israel.”

42So Moses numbered all the firstborn among the children of Israel, as the LORD commanded him.

43And all the firstborn males, according to the number of names from a month old and above, of those who were numbered of them, were twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-three.

44Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

45“Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the livestock of the Levites instead of their livestock. The Levites shall be Mine: I am the LORD.

46“And for the redemption of the two hundred and seventy-three of the firstborn of the children of Israel, who are more than the number of the Levites, 47“you shall take five shekels for each one individually; you shall take them in the currency of the shekel of the sanctuary, the shekel of twenty gerahs.

48“And you shall give the money, with which the excess number of them is redeemed, to Aaron and his sons.”

49So Moses took the redemption money from those who were over and above those who were redeemed by the Levites.

50From the firstborn of the children of Israel he took the money, one thousand three hundred and sixty-five shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary.

51And Moses gave their redemption money to Aaron and his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Numbers 4

Duties of the Sons of Kohath

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying:

[2]"Take a census of the sons of Kohath from among the children of Levi, by their families, by their fathers' house,

[3]"from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, all who enter the service to do the work in the tabernacle of meeting.

4"This is the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of meeting, relating to the most holy things:

[5]"When the camp prepares to journey, Aaron and his sons shall come, and they shall take down the covering veil and cover the ark of the Testimony with it.

[6]"Then they shall put on it a covering of badger skins, and spread over that a cloth entirely of blue; and they shall insert its poles.

[7]"On the table of showbread they shall spread a blue cloth, and put on it the dishes, the pans, the bowls, and the pitchers for pouring; and the showbread shall be on it.

[8]"They shall spread over them a scarlet cloth, and cover the same with a covering of badger skins; and they shall insert its poles.

[9]"And they shall take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand of the light, with its lamps, its wick-trimmers, its trays, and all its oil vessels, with which they service it.

[10]"Then they shall put it with all its utensils in a covering of badger skins, and put it on a carrying beam.

[11]"Over the golden altar they shall spread a blue cloth, and cover it with a covering of badger skins; and they shall insert its poles.

[12]"Then they shall take all the utensils of service with which they minister in the sanctuary, put them in a blue cloth, cover them with a covering of badger skins, and put them on a carrying beam.

[13]"Also they shall take away the ashes from the altar, and spread a purple cloth over it.

[14]"They shall put on it all its implements with which they minister there—the firepans, the forks, the shovels, the basins, and all the utensils of the altar—and they shall spread on it a covering of badger skins, and insert its poles.

[15]“And when Aaron and his sons have finished covering the sanctuary and all the furnishings of the sanctuary, when the camp is set to go, then the sons of Kohath shall come to carry them; but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. These are the things in the tabernacle of meeting which the sons of Kohath are to carry.

[16]“The appointed duty of Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest is the oil for the light, the sweet incense, the daily grain offering, the anointing oil, the oversight of all the tabernacle, of all that is in it, with the sanctuary and its furnishings.”

17Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying:

[18]“Do not cut off the tribe of the families of the Kohathites from among the Levites;

[19]“but do this in regard to them, that they may live and not die when they approach the most holy things: Aaron and his sons shall go in and appoint each of them to his service and his task.

[20]“But they shall not go in to watch while the holy things are being covered, lest they die.”

Duties of the Sons of Gershon

21Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[22]“Also take a census of the sons of Gershon, by their fathers’ house, by their families.

[23]“From thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, you shall number them, all who enter to perform the service, to do the work in the tabernacle of meeting.

[24]“This is the service of the families of the Gershonites, in serving and carrying:

[25]“They shall carry the curtains of the tabernacle and the tabernacle of meeting with its covering, the covering of badger skins that is on it, the screen for the door of the tabernacle of meeting,

[26]“the screen for the door of the gate of the court, the hangings of the court which are around the tabernacle and altar, and their cords, all the furnishings for their service and all that is made for these things: so shall they serve.

[27]"Aaron and his sons shall assign all the service of the sons of the Gershonites, all their tasks and all their service. And you shall appoint to them all their tasks as their duty.

[28]"This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of meeting. And their duties shall be under the authority of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

Duties of the Sons of Merari

29"As for the sons of Merari, you shall number them by their families and by their fathers' house.

[30]"From thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, you shall number them, everyone who enters the service to do the work of the tabernacle of meeting.

[31]"And this is what they must carry as all their service for the tabernacle of meeting: the boards of the tabernacle, its bars, its pillars, its sockets,

[32]"and the pillars around the court with their sockets, pegs, and cords, with all their furnishings and all their service; and you shall assign to each man by name the items he must carry.

[33]"This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, as all their service for the tabernacle of meeting, under the authority of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest."

Census of the Levites

34And Moses, Aaron, and the leaders of the congregation numbered the sons of the Kohathites by their families and by their fathers' house,

[35]from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, everyone who entered the service for work in the tabernacle of meeting;

[36]and those who were numbered by their families were two thousand seven hundred and fifty.

[37]These were the ones who were numbered of the families of the Kohathites, all who might serve in the tabernacle of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

38And those who were numbered of the sons of Gershon, by their families and by their fathers' house,

39from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, everyone who entered the service for work in the tabernacle of meeting—

40those who were numbered by their families, by their fathers' house, were two thousand six hundred and thirty.

41These are the ones who were numbered of the families of the sons of Gershon, of all who might serve in the tabernacle of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the commandment of the LORD.

42Those of the families of the sons of Merari who were numbered, by their families, by their fathers' house,

43from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, everyone who entered the service for work in the tabernacle of meeting—

44those who were numbered by their families were three thousand two hundred.

45These are the ones who were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

46All who were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses, Aaron, and the leaders of Israel numbered, by their families and by their fathers' houses,

47from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, everyone who came to do the work of service and the work of bearing burdens in the tabernacle of meeting—

48those who were numbered were eight thousand five hundred and eighty.

49According to the commandment of the LORD they were numbered by the hand of Moses, each according to his service and according to his task; thus were they numbered by him, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Numbers 5

Ceremonially Unclean Persons Isolated

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Command the children of Israel that they put out of the camp every leper, everyone who has a discharge, and whoever becomes defiled by a corpse.

[3]“You shall put out both male and female; you shall put them outside the camp, that they may not defile their camps in the midst of which I dwell.”

[4]And the children of Israel did so, and put them outside the camp; as the LORD spoke to Moses, so the children of Israel did.

Confession and Restitution

[5]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[6]“Speak to the children of Israel: ‘When a man or woman commits any sin that men commit in unfaithfulness against the LORD, and that person is guilty,

[7]‘then he shall confess the sin which he has committed. He shall make restitution for his trespass in full, plus one-fifth of it, and give it to the one he has wronged.

[8]‘But if the man has no relative to whom restitution may be made for the wrong, the restitution for the wrong must go to the LORD for the priest, in addition to the ram of the atonement with which atonement is made for him.

[9]‘Every offering of all the holy things of the children of Israel, which they bring to the priest, shall be his.

[10]‘And every man’s holy things shall be his; whatever any man gives the priest shall be his.’ ”

Concerning Unfaithful Wives

[11]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[12]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘If any man’s wife goes astray and behaves unfaithfully toward him,

[13]‘and a man lies with her carnally, and it is hidden from the eyes of her husband, and it is concealed that she has defiled herself, and there was no witness against her, nor was she caught—

[14]‘if the spirit of jealousy comes upon him and he becomes jealous of his wife, who has defiled herself; or if the spirit of jealousy comes upon him and he becomes jealous of his wife, although she has not defiled herself—

[15]‘then the man shall bring his wife to the priest. He shall bring the offering required for her, one-tenth of an ephah of barley meal; he shall pour no oil on it and put no frankincense on it, because it is a grain offering of jealousy, an offering for remembering, for bringing iniquity to remembrance.

[16]‘And the priest shall bring her near, and set her before the LORD.

[17]‘The priest shall take holy water in an earthen vessel, and take some of the dust that is on the floor of the tabernacle and put it into the water.

[18]‘Then the priest shall stand the woman before the LORD, uncover the woman’s head, and put the offering for remembering in her hands, which is the grain offering of jealousy. And the priest shall have in his hand the bitter water that brings a curse.

[19]‘And the priest shall put her under oath, and say to the woman, “If no man has lain with you, and if you have not gone astray to uncleanness while under your husband’s authority, be free from this bitter water that brings a curse.

[20]“But if you have gone astray while under your husband’s authority, and if you have defiled yourself and some man other than your husband has lain with you”—

[21]‘then the priest shall put the woman under the oath of the curse, and he shall say to the woman—“the LORD make you a curse and an oath among your people, when the LORD makes your thigh rot and your belly swell;

[22]“and may this water that causes the curse go into your stomach, and make your belly swell and your thigh rot.” Then the woman shall say, “Amen, so be it.”

[23]‘Then the priest shall write these curses in a book, and he shall scrape them off into the bitter water.

[24]‘And he shall make the woman drink the bitter water that brings a curse, and the water that brings the curse shall enter her to become bitter.

[25]‘Then the priest shall take the grain offering of jealousy from the woman’s hand, shall wave the offering before the LORD, and bring it to the altar;

[26]‘and the priest shall take a handful of the offering, as its memorial portion, burn it on the altar, and afterward make the woman drink the water.

[27]‘When he has made her drink the water, then it shall be, if she has defiled herself and behaved unfaithfully toward her husband, that the water that brings a curse will enter her and become bitter, and her belly will swell, her thigh will rot, and the woman will become a curse among her people.

[28]‘But if the woman has not defiled herself, and is clean, then she shall be free and may conceive children.

[29]‘This is the law of jealousy, when a wife, while under her husband’s authority, goes astray and defiles herself,

[30]‘or when the spirit of jealousy comes upon a man, and he becomes jealous of his wife; then he shall stand the woman before the LORD, and the priest shall execute all this law upon her.

[31]‘Then the man shall be free from iniquity, but that woman shall bear her guilt.’ ”

Numbers 6

The Law of the Nazirite

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When either a man or woman consecrates an offering to take the vow of a Nazirite, to separate himself to the LORD,

[3]'he shall separate himself from wine and similar drink; he shall drink neither vinegar made from wine nor vinegar made from similar drink; neither shall he drink any grape juice, nor eat fresh grapes or raisins.

[4]'All the days of his separation he shall eat nothing that is produced by the grapevine, from seed to skin.

[5]'All the days of the vow of his separation no razor shall come upon his head; until the days are fulfilled for which he separated himself to the LORD, he shall be holy. Then he shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

[6]'All the days that he separates himself to the LORD he shall not go near a dead body.

[7]'He shall not make himself unclean even for his father or his mother, for his brother or his sister, when they die, because his separation to God is on his head.

[8]'All the days of his separation he shall be holy to the LORD.

[9]'And if anyone dies very suddenly beside him, and he defiles his consecrated head, then he shall shave his head on the day of his cleansing; on the seventh day he shall shave it.

[10]'Then on the eighth day he shall bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of meeting;

[11]'and the priest shall offer one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering, and make atonement for him, because he sinned in regard to the corpse; and he shall sanctify his head that same day.

[12]'He shall consecrate to the LORD the days of his separation, and bring a male lamb in its first year as a trespass offering; but the former days shall be lost, because his separation was defiled.

13‘Now this is the law of the Nazirite: When the days of his separation are fulfilled, he shall be brought to the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

14‘And he shall present his offering to the LORD: one male lamb in its first year without blemish as a burnt offering, one ewe lamb in its first year without blemish as a sin offering, one ram without blemish as a peace offering,

15‘a basket of unleavened bread, cakes of fine flour mixed with oil, unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and their grain offering with their drink offerings.

16‘Then the priest shall bring them before the LORD and offer his sin offering and his burnt offering;

17‘and he shall offer the ram as a sacrifice of a peace offering to the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread; the priest shall also offer its grain offering and its drink offering.

18‘Then the Nazirite shall shave his consecrated head at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and shall take the hair from his consecrated head and put it on the fire which is under the sacrifice of the peace offering.

19‘And the priest shall take the boiled shoulder of the ram, one unleavened cake from the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and put them upon the hands of the Nazirite after he has shaved his consecrated hair,

20‘and the priest shall wave them as a wave offering before the LORD; they are holy for the priest, together with the breast of the wave offering and the thigh of the heave offering. After that the Nazirite may drink wine.’

21“This is the law of the Nazirite who vows to the LORD the offering for his separation, and besides that, whatever else his hand is able to provide; according to the vow which he takes, so he must do according to the law of his separation.”

The Priestly Blessing

22And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[23]“Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying, ‘This is the way you shall bless the children of Israel. Say to them:

[24]“The LORD bless you and keep you;
[25]The LORD make His face shine upon you,
And be gracious to you;
[26]The LORD lift up His countenance upon you,
And give you peace.” ��

[27]“So they shall put My name on the children of Israel, and I will bless them.”

Numbers 7

Offerings of the Leaders

[1]Now it came to pass, when Moses had finished setting up the tabernacle, that he anointed it and consecrated it and all its furnishings, and the altar and all its utensils; so he anointed them and consecrated them.

[2]Then the leaders of Israel, the heads of their fathers' houses, who were the leaders of the tribes and over those who were numbered, made an offering.

[3]And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered carts and twelve oxen, a cart for every two of the leaders, and for each one an ox; and they presented them before the tabernacle.

[4]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[5]"Accept these from them, that they may be used in doing the work of the tabernacle of meeting; and you shall give them to the Levites, to every man according to his service."

[6]So Moses took the carts and the oxen, and gave them to the Levites.

[7]Two carts and four oxen he gave to the sons of Gershon, according to their service;

[8]and four carts and eight oxen he gave to the sons of Merari, according to their service, under the authority of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

[9]But to the sons of Kohath he gave none, because theirs was the service of the holy things, which they carried on their shoulders.

[75]one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, as a burnt offering;

[76]one kid of the goats as a sin offering;

[77]and as the sacrifice of peace offerings: two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Pagiel the son of Ocran.

78On the twelfth day Ahira the son of Enan, leader of the children of Naphtali, presented an offering.

79His offering was one silver platter, the weight of which was one hundred and thirty shekels, and one silver bowl of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering;

80one gold pan of ten shekels, full of incense;

81one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, as a burnt offering;

82one kid of the goats as a sin offering;

83and as the sacrifice of peace offerings: two oxen, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Ahira the son of Enan.

84This was the dedication offering for the altar from the leaders of Israel, when it was anointed: twelve silver platters, twelve silver bowls, and twelve gold pans.

85Each silver platter weighed one hundred and thirty shekels and each bowl seventy shekels. All the silver of the vessels weighed two thousand four hundred shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary.

86The twelve gold pans full of incense weighed ten shekels apiece, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; all the gold of the pans weighed one hundred and twenty shekels.

87All the oxen for the burnt offering were twelve young bulls, the rams twelve, the male lambs in their first year twelve, with their grain offering, and the kids of the goats as a sin offering twelve.

88And all the oxen for the sacrifice of peace offerings were twenty-four bulls, the rams sixty, the male goats sixty, and the lambs in their first year sixty. This was the dedication offering for the altar after it was anointed.

89Now when Moses went into the tabernacle of meeting to speak with Him, he heard the voice of One speaking to him from above the mercy seat that was on the ark of the Testimony, from between the two cherubim; thus He spoke to him.

Numbers 8

Arrangement of the Lamps

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]"Speak to Aaron, and say to him, 'When you arrange the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light in front of the lampstand.' "

[3]And Aaron did so; he arranged the lamps to face toward the front of the lampstand, as the LORD commanded Moses.

[4]Now this workmanship of the lampstand was hammered gold; from its shaft to its flowers it was hammered work. According to the pattern which the LORD had shown Moses, so he made the lampstand.

Cleansing and Dedication of the Levites

[5]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[6]"Take the Levites from among the children of Israel and cleanse them ceremonially.

[7]"Thus you shall do to them to cleanse them: Sprinkle water of purification on them, and let them shave all their body, and let them wash their clothes, and so make themselves clean.

[8]"Then let them take a young bull with its grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, and you shall take another young bull as a sin offering.

[9]"And you shall bring the Levites before the tabernacle of meeting, and you shall gather together the whole congregation of the children of Israel.

[10]"So you shall bring the Levites before the LORD, and the children of Israel shall lay their hands on the Levites;

[11]"and Aaron shall offer the Levites before the LORD, like a wave offering from the children of Israel, that they may perform the work of the LORD.

[12]"Then the Levites shall lay their hands on the heads of the young bulls, and you shall offer one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering to the LORD, to make atonement for the Levites.

[13]"And you shall stand the Levites before Aaron and his sons, and then offer them like a wave offering to the LORD.

[14]“Thus you shall separate the Levites from among the children of Israel, and the Levites shall be Mine.

[15]“After that the Levites shall go in to service the tabernacle of meeting. So you shall cleanse them and offer them, like a wave offering.

[16]“For they are wholly given to Me from among the children of Israel; I have taken them for Myself instead of all who open the womb, the firstborn of all the children of Israel.

[17]“For all the firstborn among the children of Israel are Mine, both man and beast; on the day that I struck all the firstborn in the land of Egypt I sanctified them to Myself.

[18]“I have taken the Levites instead of all the firstborn of the children of Israel.

[19]“And I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron and his sons from among the children of Israel, to do the work for the children of Israel in the tabernacle of meeting, and to make atonement for the children of Israel, that there be no plague among the children of Israel when the children of Israel come near the sanctuary.”

[20]Thus Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the children of Israel did to the Levites; according to all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so the children of Israel did to them.

[21]And the Levites purified themselves and washed their clothes; then Aaron presented them, like a wave offering before the LORD, and Aaron made atonement for them to cleanse them.

[22]After that the Levites went in to do their work in the tabernacle of meeting before Aaron and his sons; as the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so they did to them.

[23]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[24]“This is what pertains to the Levites: From twenty-five years old and above one may enter to perform service in the work of the tabernacle of meeting;

[25]��and at the age of fifty years they must cease performing this work, and shall work no more.

[26]“They may minister with their brethren in the tabernacle of meeting, to attend to needs, but they themselves shall do no work. Thus you shall do to the Levites regarding their duties.”

Numbers 9

The Second Passover

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying:

[2]“Let the children of Israel keep the Passover at its appointed time.

[3]“On the fourteenth day of this month, at twilight, you shall keep it at its appointed time. According to all its rites and ceremonies you shall keep it.”

[4]So Moses told the children of Israel that they should keep the Passover.

[5]And they kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month, at twilight, in the Wilderness of Sinai; according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did.

[6]Now there were certain men who were defiled by a human corpse, so that they could not keep the Passover on that day; and they came before Moses and Aaron that day.

[7]And those men said to him, “We became defiled by a human corpse. Why are we kept from presenting the offering of the LORD at its appointed time among the children of Israel?”

[8]And Moses said to them, “Stand still, that I may hear what the LORD will command concerning you.”

[9]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[10]“Speak to the children of Israel, saying: ‘If anyone of you or your posterity is unclean because of a corpse, or is far away on a journey, he may still keep the LORD’s Passover.

[11]‘On the fourteenth day of the second month, at twilight, they may keep it. They shall eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

[12]‘They shall leave none of it until morning, nor break one of its bones. According to all the ordinances of the Passover they shall keep it.

[13]‘But the man who is clean and is not on a journey, and ceases to keep the Passover, that same person shall be cut off from among his people, because he did not bring the offering of the LORD at its appointed time; that man shall bear his sin.

[14]'And if a stranger dwells among you, and would keep the LORD's Passover, he must do so according to the rite of the Passover and according to its ceremony; you shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger and the native of the land.' "

The Cloud and the Fire

15Now on the day that the tabernacle was raised up, the cloud covered the tabernacle, the tent of the Testimony; from evening until morning it was above the tabernacle like the appearance of fire.

[16]So it was always: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

[17]Whenever the cloud was taken up from above the tabernacle, after that the children of Israel would journey; and in the place where the cloud settled, there the children of Israel would pitch their tents.

[18]At the command of the LORD the children of Israel would journey, and at the command of the LORD they would camp; as long as the cloud stayed above the tabernacle they remained encamped.

[19]Even when the cloud continued long, many days above the tabernacle, the children of Israel kept the charge of the LORD and did not journey.

[20]So it was, when the cloud was above the tabernacle a few days: according to the command of the LORD they would remain encamped, and according to the command of the LORD they would journey.

[21]So it was, when the cloud remained only from evening until morning: when the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they would journey; whether by day or by night, whenever the cloud was taken up, they would journey.

[22]Whether it was two days, a month, or a year that the cloud remained above the tabernacle, the children of Israel would remain encamped and not journey; but when it was taken up, they would journey.

[23]At the command of the LORD they remained encamped, and at the command of the LORD they journeyed; they kept the charge of the LORD, at the command of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

Numbers 10

Two Silver Trumpets

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Make two silver trumpets for yourself; you shall make them of hammered work; you shall use them for calling the congregation and for directing the movement of the camps.

[3]“When they blow both of them, all the congregation shall gather before you at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[4]“But if they blow only one, then the leaders, the heads of the divisions of Israel, shall gather to you.

[5]“When you sound the advance, the camps that lie on the east side shall then begin their journey.

[6]“When you sound the advance the second time, then the camps that lie on the south side shall begin their journey; they shall sound the call for them to begin their journeys.

[7]“And when the assembly is to be gathered together, you shall blow, but not sound the advance.

[8]“The sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow the trumpets; and these shall be to you as an ordinance forever throughout your generations.

[9]“When you go to war in your land against the enemy who oppresses you, then you shall sound an alarm with the trumpets, and you will be remembered before the LORD your God, and you will be saved from your enemies.

[10]“Also in the day of your gladness, in your appointed feasts, and at the beginning of your months, you shall blow the trumpets over your burnt offerings and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings; and they shall be a memorial for you before your God: I am the LORD your God.”

Departure from Sinai

[11]Now it came to pass on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that the cloud was taken up from above the tabernacle of the Testimony.

[12]And the children of Israel set out from the Wilderness of Sinai on their journeys; then the cloud settled down in the Wilderness of Paran.

[13]So they started out for the first time according to the command of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

[14]The standard of the camp of the children of Judah set out first according to their armies; over their army was Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

[15]Over the army of the tribe of the children of Issachar was Nethanel the son of Zuar.

[16]And over the army of the tribe of the children of Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

[17]Then the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set out, carrying the tabernacle.

[18]And the standard of the camp of Reuben set out according to their armies; over their army was Elizur the son of Shedeur.

[19]Over the army of the tribe of the children of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

[20]And over the army of the tribe of the children of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

[21]Then the Kohathites set out, carrying the holy things. (The tabernacle would be prepared for their arrival.)

[22]And the standard of the camp of the children of Ephraim set out according to their armies; over their army was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

[23]Over the army of the tribe of the children of Manasseh was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

[24]And over the army of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was Abidan the son of Gideoni.

[25]Then the standard of the camp of the children of Dan (the rear guard of all the camps) set out according to their armies; over their army was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

[26]Over the army of the tribe of the children of Asher was Pagiel the son of Ocran.

[27]And over the army of the tribe of the children of Naphtali was Ahira the son of Enan.

[28]Thus was the order of march of the children of Israel, according to their armies, when they began their journey.

[29]Now Moses said to Hobab the son of Reuel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, "We are setting out for the place of which the LORD said, 'I will give it to you.' Come with us, and we will treat you well; for the LORD has promised good things to Israel."

[30]And he said to him, "I will not go, but I will depart to my own land and to my relatives."

[31]So Moses said, "Please do not leave, inasmuch as you know how we are to camp in the wilderness, and you can be our eyes.

[32]"And it shall be, if you go with us—indeed it shall be—that whatever good the LORD will do to us, the same we will do to you."

[33]So they departed from the mountain of the LORD on a journey of three days; and the ark of the covenant of the LORD went before them for the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them.

[34]And the cloud of the LORD was above them by day when they went out from the camp.

[35]So it was, whenever the ark set out, that Moses said:

"Rise up, O LORD!
Let Your enemies be scattered,
And let those who hate You flee before You."

[36]And when it rested, he said:

"Return, O LORD,
To the many thousands of Israel."

Numbers 11

The People Complain

[1]Now when the people complained, it displeased the LORD; for the LORD heard it, and His anger was aroused. So the fire of the LORD burned among them, and consumed some in the outskirts of the camp.

[2]Then the people cried out to Moses, and when Moses prayed to the LORD, the fire was quenched.

[3]So he called the name of the place Taberah, because the fire of the LORD had burned among them.

[4]Now the mixed multitude who were among them yielded to intense craving; so the children of Israel also wept again and said: "Who will give us meat to eat?

[5]"We remember the fish which we ate freely in Egypt, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic;

[6]"but now our whole being is dried up; there is nothing at all except this manna before our eyes!"

[7]Now the manna was like coriander seed, and its color like the color of bdellium.

[8]The people went about and gathered it, ground it on millstones or beat it in the mortar, cooked it in pans, and made cakes of it; and its taste was like the taste of pastry prepared with oil.

[9]And when the dew fell on the camp in the night, the manna fell on it.

[10]Then Moses heard the people weeping throughout their families, everyone at the door of his tent; and the anger of the LORD was greatly aroused; Moses also was displeased.

[11]So Moses said to the LORD, "Why have You afflicted Your servant? And why have I not found favor in Your sight, that You have laid the burden of all these people on me?

[12]"Did I conceive all these people? Did I beget them, that You should say to me, 'Carry them in your bosom, as a guardian carries a nursing child,' to the land which You swore to their fathers?

[13]"Where am I to get meat to give to all these people? For they weep all over me, saying, 'Give us meat, that we may eat.'

[14]“I am not able to bear all these people alone, because the burden is too heavy for me.

[15]“If You treat me like this, please kill me here and now—if I have found favor in Your sight—and do not let me see my wretchedness!”

The Seventy Elders

[16]So the LORD said to Moses: “Gather to Me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom you know to be the elders of the people and officers over them; bring them to the tabernacle of meeting, that they may stand there with you.

[17]“Then I will come down and talk with you there. I will take of the Spirit that is upon you and will put the same upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with you, that you may not bear it yourself alone.

[18]“Then you shall say to the people, ‘Consecrate yourselves for tomorrow, and you shall eat meat; for you have wept in the hearing of the LORD, saying, “Who will give us meat to eat? For it was well with us in Egypt.” Therefore the LORD will give you meat, and you shall eat.

[19]‘You shall eat, not one day, nor two days, nor five days, nor ten days, nor twenty days,

[20]‘but for a whole month, until it comes out of your nostrils and becomes loathsome to you, because you have despised the LORD who is among you, and have wept before Him, saying, “Why did we ever come up out of Egypt?” ’ ”

[21]And Moses said, “The people whom I am among are six hundred thousand men on foot; yet You have said, ‘I will give them meat, that they may eat for a whole month.’

[22]“Shall flocks and herds be slaughtered for them, to provide enough for them? Or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to provide enough for them?”

[23]And the LORD said to Moses, “Has the LORD’s arm been shortened? Now you shall see whether what I say will happen to you or not.”

[24]So Moses went out and told the people the words of the LORD, and he gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people and placed them around the tabernacle.

[25]Then the LORD came down in the cloud, and spoke to him, and took of the Spirit that was upon him, and placed the same upon the seventy elders; and it happened, when the Spirit rested upon them, that they prophesied, although they never did so again.

[26]But two men had remained in the camp: the name of one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad. And the Spirit rested upon them. Now they were among those listed, but who had not gone out to the tabernacle; yet they prophesied in the camp.

[27]And a young man ran and told Moses, and said, “Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp.”

[28]So Joshua the son of Nun, Moses’ assistant, one of his choice men, answered and said, “Moses my lord, forbid them!”

[29]Then Moses said to him, “Are you zealous for my sake? Oh, that all the LORD’s people were prophets and that the LORD would put His Spirit upon them!”

[30]And Moses returned to the camp, both he and the elders of Israel.

The LORD Sends Quail

[31]Now a wind went out from the LORD, and it brought quail from the sea and left them fluttering near the camp, about a day’s journey on this side and about a day’s journey on the other side, all around the camp, and about two cubits above the surface of the ground.

[32]And the people stayed up all that day, all night, and all the next day, and gathered the quail (he who gathered least gathered ten homers); and they spread them out for themselves all around the camp.

[33]But while the meat was still between their teeth, before it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was aroused against the people, and the LORD struck the people with a very great plague.

[34]So he called the name of that place Kibroth Hattaavah, because there they buried the people who had yielded to craving.

[35]From Kibroth Hattaavah the people moved to Hazeroth, and camped at Hazeroth.

Numbers 12

Dissension of Aaron and Miriam

[1]Then Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married; for he had married an Ethiopian woman.

[2]So they said, “Has the LORD indeed spoken only through Moses? Has He not spoken through us also?” And the LORD heard it.

[3](Now the man Moses was very humble, more than all men who were on the face of the earth.)

[4]Suddenly the LORD said to Moses, Aaron, and Miriam, “Come out, you three, to the tabernacle of meeting!” So the three came out.

[5]Then the LORD came down in the pillar of cloud and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam. And they both went forward.

[6]Then He said,

“Hear now My words:
If there is a prophet among you,
I, the LORD, make Myself known to him in a vision;
I speak to him in a dream.
[7]Not so with My servant Moses;
He is faithful in all My house.
[8]I speak with him face to face,
Even plainly, and not in dark sayings;
And he sees the form of the LORD.
Why then were you not afraid
To speak against My servant Moses?”

[9]So the anger of the LORD was aroused against them, and He departed.

[10]And when the cloud departed from above the tabernacle, suddenly Miriam became leprous, as white as snow. Then Aaron turned toward Miriam, and there she was, a leper.

[11]So Aaron said to Moses, “Oh, my lord! Please do not lay this sin on us, in which we have done foolishly and in which we have sinned.

[12]“Please do not let her be as one dead, whose flesh is half consumed when he comes out of his mother’s womb!”

[13]So Moses cried out to the LORD, saying, “Please heal her, O God, I pray!”

[14]Then the LORD said to Moses, “If her father had but spit in her face, would she not be shamed seven days? Let her be shut out of the camp seven days, and afterward she may be received again.”

[15]So Miriam was shut out of the camp seven days, and the people did not journey till Miriam was brought in again.

[16]And afterward the people moved from Hazeroth and camped in the Wilderness of Paran.

Numbers 13

Spies Sent into Canaan

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Send men to spy out the land of Canaan, which I am giving to the children of Israel; from each tribe of their fathers you shall send a man, every one a leader among them."

[3]So Moses sent them from the Wilderness of Paran according to the command of the LORD, all of them men who were heads of the children of Israel.

[4]Now these were their names: from the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur;

[5]from the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori;

[6]from the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh;

[7]from the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph;

[8]from the tribe of Ephraim, Hoshea the son of Nun;

[9]from the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu;

[10]from the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi;

[11]from the tribe of Joseph, that is, from the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Susi;

[12]from the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli;

[13]from the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael;

[14]from the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi;

[15]from the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi.

[16]These are the names of the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called Hoshea the son of Nun, Joshua.

[17]Then Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said to them, "Go up this way into the South, and go up to the mountains,

[18]"and see what the land is like: whether the people who dwell in it are strong or weak, few or many;

[19]"whether the land they dwell in is good or bad; whether the cities they inhabit are like camps or strongholds;

[20]“whether the land is rich or poor; and whether there are forests there or not. Be of good courage. And bring some of the fruit of the land.” Now the time was the season of the first ripe grapes.

[21]So they went up and spied out the land from the Wilderness of Zin as far as Rehob, near the entrance of Hamath.

[22]And they went up through the South and came to Hebron; Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the descendants of Anak, were there. (Now Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

[23]Then they came to the Valley of Eshcol, and there cut down a branch with one cluster of grapes; they carried it between two of them on a pole. They also brought some of the pomegranates and figs.

[24]The place was called the Valley of Eshcol, because of the cluster which the men of Israel cut down there.

[25]And they returned from spying out the land after forty days.

[26]Now they departed and came back to Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the children of Israel in the Wilderness of Paran, at Kadesh; they brought back word to them and to all the congregation, and showed them the fruit of the land.

[27]Then they told him, and said: “We went to the land where you sent us. It truly flows with milk and honey, and this is its fruit.

[28]“Nevertheless the people who dwell in the land are strong; the cities are fortified and very large; moreover we saw the descendants of Anak there.

[29]“The Amalekites dwell in the land of the South; the Hittites, the Jebusites, and the Amorites dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea and along the banks of the Jordan.”

[30]Then Caleb quieted the people before Moses, and said, “Let us go up at once and take possession, for we are well able to overcome it.”

[31]But the men who had gone up with him said, “We are not able to go up against the people, for they are stronger than we.”

[32]And they gave the children of Israel a bad report of the land which they had spied out, saying, “The land through which we have gone as spies is a land that devours its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in it are men of great stature.

[33]“There we saw the giants (the descendants of Anak came from the giants); and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their sight.”

Numbers 14

Israel Refuses to Enter Canaan

[1]So all the congregation lifted up their voices and cried, and the people wept that night.

[2]And all the children of Israel complained against Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregation said to them, “If only we had died in the land of Egypt! Or if only we had died in this wilderness!

[3]“Why has the LORD brought us to this land to fall by the sword, that our wives and children should become victims? Would it not be better for us to return to Egypt?”

[4]So they said to one another, “Let us select a leader and return to Egypt.”

[5]Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

[6]But Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, who were among those who had spied out the land, tore their clothes;

[7]and they spoke to all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying: “The land we passed through to spy out is an exceedingly good land.

[8]“If the LORD delights in us, then He will bring us into this land and give it to us, ‘a land which flows with milk and honey.’

[9]“Only do not rebel against the LORD, nor fear the people of the land, for they are our bread; their protection has departed from them, and the LORD is with us. Do not fear them.”

[10]And all the congregation said to stone them with stones. Now the glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of meeting before all the children of Israel.

Moses Intercedes for the People

[11]Then the LORD said to Moses: “How long will these people reject Me? And how long will they not believe Me, with all the signs which I have performed among them?

[12]“I will strike them with the pestilence and disinherit them, and I will make of you a nation greater and mightier than they.”

13And Moses said to the LORD: “Then the Egyptians will hear it, for by Your might You brought these people up from among them,

[14]“and they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land. They have heard that You, LORD, are among these people; that You, LORD, are seen face to face and Your cloud stands above them, and You go before them in a pillar of cloud by day and in a pillar of fire by night.

[15]“Now if You kill these people as one man, then the nations which have heard of Your fame will speak, saying,

[16]‘Because the LORD was not able to bring this people to the land which He swore to give them, therefore He killed them in the wilderness.’

[17]“And now, I pray, let the power of my Lord be great, just as You have spoken, saying,

[18]‘The LORD is longsuffering and abundant in mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression; but He by no means clears the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children to the third and fourth generation.’

[19]“Pardon the iniquity of this people, I pray, according to the greatness of Your mercy, just as You have forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.”

20Then the LORD said: “I have pardoned, according to your word;

[21]“but truly, as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD—

[22]“because all these men who have seen My glory and the signs which I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, and have put Me to the test now these ten times, and have not heeded My voice, [23]“they certainly shall not see the land of which I swore to their fathers, nor shall any of those who rejected Me see it.

[24]“But My servant Caleb, because he has a different spirit in him and has followed Me fully, I will bring into the land where he went, and his descendants shall inherit it.

[25]“Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwell in the valley; tomorrow turn and move out into the wilderness by the Way of the Red Sea.”

Death Sentence on the Rebels

26And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying,

27“How long shall I bear with this evil congregation who complain against Me? I have heard the complaints which the children of Israel make against Me.

28“Say to them, ‘As I live,’ says the LORD, ‘just as you have spoken in My hearing, so I will do to you:

29‘The carcasses of you who have complained against Me shall fall in this wilderness, all of you who were numbered, according to your entire number, from twenty years old and above.

30‘Except for Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the son of Nun, you shall by no means enter the land which I swore I would make you dwell in.

31‘But your little ones, whom you said would be victims, I will bring in, and they shall know the land which you have despised.

32‘But as for you, your carcasses shall fall in this wilderness.

33‘And your sons shall be shepherds in the wilderness forty years, and bear the brunt of your infidelity, until your carcasses are consumed in the wilderness.

34‘According to the number of the days in which you spied out the land, forty days, for each day you shall bear your guilt one year, namely forty years, and you shall know My rejection.

35‘I the LORD have spoken this. I will surely do so to all this evil congregation who are gathered together against Me. In this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.’ ”

36Now the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land, who returned and made all the congregation complain against him by bringing a bad report of the land,

37those very men who brought the evil report about the land, died by the plague before the LORD.

38But Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephunneh remained alive, of the men who went to spy out the land.

A Futile Invasion Attempt

39Then Moses told these words to all the children of Israel, and the people mourned greatly.

40And they rose early in the morning and went up to the top of the mountain, saying, “Here we are, and we will go up to the place which the LORD has promised, for we have sinned!”

41And Moses said, “Now why do you transgress the command of the LORD? For this will not succeed.

42“Do not go up, lest you be defeated by your enemies, for the LORD is not among you.

43“For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and you shall fall by the sword; because you have turned away from the LORD, the LORD will not be with you.”

44But they presumed to go up to the mountaintop. Nevertheless, neither the ark of the covenant of the LORD nor Moses departed from the camp.

45Then the Amalekites and the Canaanites who dwelt in that mountain came down and attacked them, and drove them back as far as Hormah.

Numbers 15

Laws of Grain and Drink Offerings

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘When you have come into the land you are to inhabit, which I am giving to you,

[3]‘and you make an offering by fire to the LORD, a burnt offering or a sacrifice, to fulfill a vow or as a freewill offering or in your appointed feasts, to make a sweet aroma to the LORD, from the herd or the flock,

[4]‘then he who presents his offering to the LORD shall bring a grain offering of one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour mixed with one-fourth of a hin of oil;

[5]‘and one-fourth of a hin of wine as a drink offering you shall prepare with the burnt offering or the sacrifice, for each lamb.

[6]‘Or for a ram you shall prepare as a grain offering two-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with one-third of a hin of oil;

[7]‘and as a drink offering you shall offer one-third of a hin of wine as a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[8]‘And when you prepare a young bull as a burnt offering, or as a sacrifice to fulfill a vow, or as a peace offering to the LORD,

[9]‘then shall be offered with the young bull a grain offering of three-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with half a hin of oil;

[10]‘and you shall bring as the drink offering half a hin of wine as an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[11]‘Thus it shall be done for each young bull, for each ram, or for each lamb or young goat.

[12]‘According to the number that you prepare, so you shall do with everyone according to their number.

[13]‘All who are native-born shall do these things in this manner, in presenting an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[14]‘And if a stranger dwells with you, or whoever is among you throughout your generations, and would present an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD, just as you do, so shall he do.

[15]‘One ordinance shall be for you of the assembly and for the stranger who dwells with you, an ordinance forever throughout your generations; as you are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.

[16]‘One law and one custom shall be for you and for the stranger who dwells with you.’ ”

[17]Again the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[18]“Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: ‘When you come into the land to which I bring you,

[19]‘then it will be, when you eat of the bread of the land, that you shall offer up a heave offering to the LORD.

[20]‘You shall offer up a cake of the first of your ground meal as a heave offering; as a heave offering of the threshing floor, so shall you offer it up.

[21]‘Of the first of your ground meal you shall give to the LORD a heave offering throughout your generations.

Laws Concerning Unintentional Sin

[22]‘If you sin unintentionally, and do not observe all these commandments which the LORD has spoken to Moses—

[23]‘all that the LORD has commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day the LORD gave commandment and onward throughout your generations—

[24]‘then it will be, if it is unintentionally committed, without the knowledge of the congregation, that the whole congregation shall offer one young bull as a burnt offering, as a sweet aroma to the LORD, with its grain offering and its drink offering, according to the ordinance, and one kid of the goats as a sin offering.

[25]‘So the priest shall make atonement for the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them, for it was unintentional; they shall bring their offering, an offering made by fire to the LORD, and their sin offering before the LORD, for their unintended sin.

[26]‘It shall be forgiven the whole congregation of the children of Israel and the stranger who dwells among them, because all the people did it unintentionally.

27‘And if a person sins unintentionally, then he shall bring a female goat in its first year as a sin offering.

[28]‘So the priest shall make atonement for the person who sins unintentionally, when he sins unintentionally before the LORD, to make atonement for him; and it shall be forgiven him.

[29]‘You shall have one law for him who sins unintentionally, for him who is native-born among the children of Israel and for the stranger who dwells among them.

Law Concerning Presumptuous Sin

30‘But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings reproach on the LORD, and he shall be cut off from among his people.

[31]‘Because he has despised the word of the LORD, and has broken His commandment, that person shall be completely cut off; his guilt shall be upon him.’ ”

Penalty for Violating the Sabbath

32Now while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath day.

[33]And those who found him gathering sticks brought him to Moses and Aaron, and to all the congregation.

[34]They put him under guard, because it had not been explained what should be done to him.

[35]Then the LORD said to Moses, “The man must surely be put to death; all the congregation shall stone him with stones outside the camp.”

[36]So, as the LORD commanded Moses, all the congregation brought him outside the camp and stoned him with stones, and he died.

Tassels on Garments

37Again the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[38]“Speak to the children of Israel: Tell them to make tassels on the corners of their garments throughout their generations, and to put a blue thread in the tassels of the corners.

[39]“And you shall have the tassel, that you may look upon it and remember all the commandments of the LORD and do them, and that you may not follow the harlotry to which your own heart and your own eyes are inclined,

[40]“and that you may remember and do all My commandments, and be holy for your God.

[41]“I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD your God.”

Numbers 16

Rebellion Against Moses and Aaron

[1]Now Korah the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, with Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men;

[2]and they rose up before Moses with some of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty leaders of the congregation, representatives of the congregation, men of renown.

[3]They gathered together against Moses and Aaron, and said to them, "You take too much upon yourselves, for all the congregation is holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the assembly of the LORD?"

[4]So when Moses heard it, he fell on his face;

[5]and he spoke to Korah and all his company, saying, "Tomorrow morning the LORD will show who is His and who is holy, and will cause him to come near to Him. That one whom He chooses He will cause to come near to Him.

[6]"Do this: Take censers, Korah and all your company;

[7]"put fire in them and put incense in them before the LORD tomorrow, and it shall be that the man whom the LORD chooses is the holy one. You take too much upon yourselves, you sons of Levi!"

[8]Then Moses said to Korah, "Hear now, you sons of Levi:

[9]"Is it a small thing to you that the God of Israel has separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to Himself, to do the work of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to serve them;

[10]"and that He has brought you near to Himself, you and all your brethren, the sons of Levi, with you? And are you seeking the priesthood also?

[11]"Therefore you and all your company are gathered together against the LORD. And what is Aaron that you complain against him?"

[12]And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, but they said, "We will not come up!

[13]“Is it a small thing that you have brought us up out of a land flowing with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, that you should keep acting like a prince over us?

[14]“Moreover you have not brought us into a land flowing with milk and honey, nor given us inheritance of fields and vineyards. Will you put out the eyes of these men? We will not come up!”

[15]Then Moses was very angry, and said to the LORD, “Do not respect their offering. I have not taken one donkey from them, nor have I hurt one of them.”

[16]And Moses said to Korah, “Tomorrow, you and all your company be present before the LORD—you and they, as well as Aaron.

[17]“Let each take his censer and put incense in it, and each of you bring his censer before the LORD, two hundred and fifty censers; both you and Aaron, each with his censer.”

[18]So every man took his censer, put fire in it, laid incense on it, and stood at the door of the tabernacle of meeting with Moses and Aaron.

[19]And Korah gathered all the congregation against them at the door of the tabernacle of meeting. Then the glory of the LORD appeared to all the congregation.

[20]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying,

[21]“Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.”

[22]Then they fell on their faces, and said, “O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and You be angry with all the congregation?”

[23]So the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[24]“Speak to the congregation, saying, ‘Get away from the tents of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.’ ”

[25]Then Moses rose and went to Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him.

[26]And he spoke to the congregation, saying, “Depart now from the tents of these wicked men! Touch nothing of theirs, lest you be consumed in all their sins.”

[27]So they got away from around the tents of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram; and Dathan and Abiram came out and stood at the door of their tents, with their wives, their sons, and their little children.

[28]And Moses said: "By this you shall know that the LORD has sent me to do all these works, for I have not done them of my own will.

[29]"If these men die naturally like all men, or if they are visited by the common fate of all men, then the LORD has not sent me.

[30]"But if the LORD creates a new thing, and the earth opens its mouth and swallows them up with all that belongs to them, and they go down alive into the pit, then you will understand that these men have rejected the LORD."

[31]Now it came to pass, as he finished speaking all these words, that the ground split apart under them,

[32]and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, with their households and all the men with Korah, with all their goods.

[33]So they and all those with them went down alive into the pit; the earth closed over them, and they perished from among the assembly.

[34]Then all Israel who were around them fled at their cry, for they said, "Lest the earth swallow us up also!"

[35]And a fire came out from the LORD and consumed the two hundred and fifty men who were offering incense.

[36]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[37]"Tell Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, to pick up the censers out of the blaze, for they are holy, and scatter the fire some distance away.

[38]"The censers of these men who sinned against their own souls, let them be made into hammered plates as a covering for the altar. Because they presented them before the LORD, therefore they are holy; and they shall be a sign to the children of Israel."

[39]So Eleazar the priest took the bronze censers, which those who were burned up had presented, and they were hammered out as a covering on the altar,

[40]to be a memorial to the children of Israel that no outsider, who is not a descendant of Aaron, should come near to offer incense before the LORD, that he might not become like Korah and his companions, just as the LORD had said to him through Moses.

Complaints of the People

[41]On the next day all the congregation of the children of Israel complained against Moses and Aaron, saying, “You have killed the people of the LORD.”

[42]Now it happened, when the congregation had gathered against Moses and Aaron, that they turned toward the tabernacle of meeting; and suddenly the cloud covered it, and the glory of the LORD appeared.

[43]Then Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of meeting.

[44]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[45]“Get away from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.” And they fell on their faces.

[46]So Moses said to Aaron, “Take a censer and put fire in it from the altar, put incense on it, and take it quickly to the congregation and make atonement for them; for wrath has gone out from the LORD. The plague has begun.”

[47]Then Aaron took it as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the assembly; and already the plague had begun among the people. So he put in the incense and made atonement for the people.

[48]And he stood between the dead and the living; so the plague was stopped.

[49]Now those who died in the plague were fourteen thousand seven hundred, besides those who died in the Korah incident.

[50]So Aaron returned to Moses at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, for the plague had stopped.

Numbers 17

The Budding of Aaron's Rod

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]"Speak to the children of Israel, and get from them a rod from each father's house, all their leaders according to their fathers' houses—twelve rods. Write each man's name on his rod.

[3]"And you shall write Aaron's name on the rod of Levi. For there shall be one rod for the head of each father's house.

[4]"Then you shall place them in the tabernacle of meeting before the Testimony, where I meet with you.

[5]"And it shall be that the rod of the man whom I choose will blossom; thus I will rid Myself of the complaints of the children of Israel, which they make against you."

[6]So Moses spoke to the children of Israel, and each of their leaders gave him a rod apiece, for each leader according to their fathers' houses, twelve rods; and the rod of Aaron was among their rods.

[7]And Moses placed the rods before the LORD in the tabernacle of witness.

[8]Now it came to pass on the next day that Moses went into the tabernacle of witness, and behold, the rod of Aaron, of the house of Levi, had sprouted and put forth buds, had produced blossoms and yielded ripe almonds.

[9]Then Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD to all the children of Israel; and they looked, and each man took his rod.

[10]And the LORD said to Moses, "Bring Aaron's rod back before the Testimony, to be kept as a sign against the rebels, that you may put their complaints away from Me, lest they die."

[11]Thus did Moses; just as the LORD had commanded him, so he did.

[12]So the children of Israel spoke to Moses, saying, "Surely we die, we perish, we all perish!

[13]"Whoever even comes near the tabernacle of the LORD must die. Shall we all utterly die?"

Numbers 18

Duties of Priests and Levites

[1]Then the LORD said to Aaron: “You and your sons and your father’s house with you shall bear the iniquity related to the sanctuary, and you and your sons with you shall bear the iniquity associated with your priesthood.

[2]“Also bring with you your brethren of the tribe of Levi, the tribe of your father, that they may be joined with you and serve you while you and your sons are with you before the tabernacle of witness.

[3]“They shall attend to your needs and all the needs of the tabernacle; but they shall not come near the articles of the sanctuary and the altar, lest they die—they and you also.

[4]“They shall be joined with you and attend to the needs of the tabernacle of meeting, for all the work of the tabernacle; but an outsider shall not come near you.

[5]“And you shall attend to the duties of the sanctuary and the duties of the altar, that there may be no more wrath on the children of Israel.

[6]“Behold, I Myself have taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel; they are a gift to you, given by the LORD, to do the work of the tabernacle of meeting.

[7]“Therefore you and your sons with you shall attend to your priesthood for everything at the altar and behind the veil; and you shall serve. I give your priesthood to you as a gift for service, but the outsider who comes near shall be put to death.”

Offerings for Support of the Priests

[8]And the LORD spoke to Aaron: “Here, I Myself have also given you charge of My heave offerings, all the holy gifts of the children of Israel; I have given them as a portion to you and your sons, as an ordinance forever.

[9]“This shall be yours of the most holy things reserved from the fire: every offering of theirs, every grain offering and every sin offering and every trespass offering which they render to Me, shall be most holy for you and your sons.

[10]"In a most holy place you shall eat it; every male shall eat it. It shall be holy to you.

[11]"This also is yours: the heave offering of their gift, with all the wave offerings of the children of Israel; I have given them to you, and your sons and daughters with you, as an ordinance forever. Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it.

[12]"All the best of the oil, all the best of the new wine and the grain, their firstfruits which they offer to the LORD, I have given them to you.

[13]"Whatever first ripe fruit is in their land, which they bring to the LORD, shall be yours. Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it.

[14]"Every devoted thing in Israel shall be yours.

[15]"Everything that first opens the womb of all flesh, which they bring to the LORD, whether man or beast, shall be yours; nevertheless the firstborn of man you shall surely redeem, and the firstborn of unclean animals you shall redeem.

[16]"And those redeemed of the devoted things you shall redeem when one month old, according to your valuation, for five shekels of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, which is twenty gerahs.

[17]"But the firstborn of a cow, the firstborn of a sheep, or the firstborn of a goat you shall not redeem; they are holy. You shall sprinkle their blood on the altar, and burn their fat as an offering made by fire for a sweet aroma to the LORD.

[18]"And their flesh shall be yours, just as the wave breast and the right thigh are yours.

[19]"All the heave offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer to the LORD, I have given to you and your sons and daughters with you as an ordinance forever; it is a covenant of salt forever before the LORD with you and your descendants with you."

[20]Then the LORD said to Aaron: "You shall have no inheritance in their land, nor shall you have any portion among them; I am your portion and your inheritance among the children of Israel.

Tithes for Support of the Levites

21“Behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tithes in Israel as an inheritance in return for the work which they perform, the work of the tabernacle of meeting.

[22]“Hereafter the children of Israel shall not come near the tabernacle of meeting, lest they bear sin and die.

[23]“But the Levites shall perform the work of the tabernacle of meeting, and they shall bear their iniquity; it shall be a statute forever, throughout your generations, that among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

[24]“For the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer up as a heave offering to the LORD, I have given to the Levites as an inheritance; therefore I have said to them, ‘Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.’ ”

The Tithe of the Levites

25Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[26]“Speak thus to the Levites, and say to them: ‘When you take from the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them as your inheritance, then you shall offer up a heave offering of it to the LORD, a tenth of the tithe.

[27]‘And your heave offering shall be reckoned to you as though it were the grain of the threshing floor and as the fullness of the winepress.

[28]‘Thus you shall also offer a heave offering to the LORD from all your tithes which you receive from the children of Israel, and you shall give the LORD’s heave offering from it to Aaron the priest.

[29]‘Of all your gifts you shall offer up every heave offering due to the LORD, from all the best of them, the consecrated part of them.’

[30]“Therefore you shall say to them: ‘When you have lifted up the best of it, then the rest shall be accounted to the Levites as the produce of the threshing floor and as the produce of the winepress.

[31]‘You may eat it in any place, you and your households, for it is your reward for your work in the tabernacle of meeting.

[32]‘And you shall bear no sin because of it, when you have lifted up the best of it. But you shall not profane the holy gifts of the children of Israel, lest you die.’ ”

Numbers 19

Laws of Purification

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying,

[2]"This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD has commanded, saying: 'Speak to the children of Israel, that they bring you a red heifer without blemish, in which there is no defect and on which a yoke has never come.

[3]'You shall give it to Eleazar the priest, that he may take it outside the camp, and it shall be slaughtered before him;

[4]'and Eleazar the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger, and sprinkle some of its blood seven times directly in front of the tabernacle of meeting.

[5]'Then the heifer shall be burned in his sight: its hide, its flesh, its blood, and its offal shall be burned.

[6]'And the priest shall take cedar wood and hyssop and scarlet, and cast them into the midst of the fire burning the heifer.

[7]'Then the priest shall wash his clothes, he shall bathe in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp; the priest shall be unclean until evening.

[8]'And the one who burns it shall wash his clothes in water, bathe in water, and shall be unclean until evening.

[9]'Then a man who is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer, and store them outside the camp in a clean place; and they shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel for the water of purification; it is for purifying from sin.

[10]'And the one who gathers the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until evening. It shall be a statute forever to the children of Israel and to the stranger who dwells among them.

[11]'He who touches the dead body of anyone shall be unclean seven days.

[12]'He shall purify himself with the water on the third day and on the seventh day; then he will be clean. But if he does not purify himself on the third day and on the seventh day, he will not be clean.

[13]‘Whoever touches the body of anyone who has died, and does not purify himself, defiles the tabernacle of the LORD. That person shall be cut off from Israel. He shall be unclean, because the water of purification was not sprinkled on him; his uncleanness is still on him.

[14]‘This is the law when a man dies in a tent: All who come into the tent and all who are in the tent shall be unclean seven days;

[15]‘and every open vessel, which has no cover fastened on it, is unclean.

[16]‘Whoever in the open field touches one who is slain by a sword or who has died, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days.

[17]‘And for an unclean person they shall take some of the ashes of the heifer burnt for purification from sin, and running water shall be put on them in a vessel.

[18]‘A clean person shall take hyssop and dip it in the water, sprinkle it on the tent, on all the vessels, on the persons who were there, or on the one who touched a bone, the slain, the dead, or a grave.

[19]‘The clean person shall sprinkle the unclean on the third day and on the seventh day; and on the seventh day he shall purify himself, wash his clothes, and bathe in water; and at evening he shall be clean.

[20]‘But the man who is unclean and does not purify himself, that person shall be cut off from among the assembly, because he has defiled the sanctuary of the LORD. The water of purification has not been sprinkled on him; he is unclean.

[21]‘It shall be a perpetual statute for them. He who sprinkles the water of purification shall wash his clothes; and he who touches the water of purification shall be unclean until evening.

[22]‘Whatever the unclean person touches shall be unclean; and the person who touches it shall be unclean until evening.’ ”

Numbers 20

Moses' Error at Kadesh

[1]Then the children of Israel, the whole congregation, came into the Wilderness of Zin in the first month, and the people stayed in Kadesh; and Miriam died there and was buried there.

[2]Now there was no water for the congregation; so they gathered together against Moses and Aaron.

[3]And the people contended with Moses and spoke, saying: "If only we had died when our brethren died before the LORD!

[4]"Why have you brought up the assembly of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our animals should die here?

[5]"And why have you made us come up out of Egypt, to bring us to this evil place? It is not a place of grain or figs or vines or pomegranates; nor is there any water to drink."

[6]So Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and they fell on their faces. And the glory of the LORD appeared to them.

[7]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[8]"Take the rod; you and your brother Aaron gather the congregation together. Speak to the rock before their eyes, and it will yield its water; thus you shall bring water for them out of the rock, and give drink to the congregation and their animals."

[9]So Moses took the rod from before the LORD as He commanded him.

[10]And Moses and Aaron gathered the assembly together before the rock; and he said to them, "Hear now, you rebels! Must we bring water for you out of this rock?"

[11]Then Moses lifted his hand and struck the rock twice with his rod; and water came out abundantly, and the congregation and their animals drank.

[12]Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, "Because you did not believe Me, to hallow Me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore you shall not bring this assembly into the land which I have given them.”

[13]This was the water of Meribah, because the children of Israel contended with the LORD, and He was hallowed among them.

Passage Through Edom Refused

[14]Now Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom. “Thus says your brother Israel: ‘You know all the hardship that has befallen us,

[15]‘how our fathers went down to Egypt, and we dwelt in Egypt a long time, and the Egyptians afflicted us and our fathers.

[16]‘When we cried out to the LORD, He heard our voice and sent the Angel and brought us up out of Egypt; now here we are in Kadesh, a city on the edge of your border.

[17]‘Please let us pass through your country. We will not pass through fields or vineyards, nor will we drink water from wells; we will go along the King’s Highway; we will not turn aside to the right hand or to the left until we have passed through your territory.’ ”

[18]Then Edom said to him, “You shall not pass through my land, lest I come out against you with the sword.”

[19]So the children of Israel said to him, “We will go by the Highway, and if I or my livestock drink any of your water, then I will pay for it; let me only pass through on foot, nothing more.”

[20]Then he said, “You shall not pass through.” So Edom came out against them with many men and with a strong hand.

[21]Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his territory; so Israel turned away from him.

Death of Aaron

[22]Now the children of Israel, the whole congregation, journeyed from Kadesh and came to Mount Hor.

[23]And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron in Mount Hor by the border of the land of Edom, saying:

[24]“Aaron shall be gathered to his people, for he shall not enter the land which I have given to the children of Israel, because you rebelled against My word at the water of Meribah.

[25]"Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up to Mount Hor;

[26]"and strip Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son; for Aaron shall be gathered to his people and die there."

[27]So Moses did just as the LORD commanded, and they went up to Mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

[28]Moses stripped Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there on the top of the mountain. Then Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain.

[29]Now when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron thirty days.

Numbers 21

Canaanites Defeated at Hormah

[1]The king of Arad, the Canaanite, who dwelt in the South, heard that Israel was coming on the road to Atharim. Then he fought against Israel and took some of them prisoners.

[2]So Israel made a vow to the LORD, and said, “If You will indeed deliver this people into my hand, then I will utterly destroy their cities.”

[3]And the LORD listened to the voice of Israel and delivered up the Canaanites, and they utterly destroyed them and their cities. So the name of that place was called Hormah.

The Bronze Serpent

[4]Then they journeyed from Mount Hor by the Way of the Red Sea, to go around the land of Edom; and the soul of the people became very discouraged on the way.

[5]And the people spoke against God and against Moses: “Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? For there is no food and no water, and our soul loathes this worthless bread.”

[6]So the LORD sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and many of the people of Israel died.

[7]Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, “We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD and against you; pray to the LORD that He take away the serpents from us.” So Moses prayed for the people.

[8]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Make a fiery serpent, and set it on a pole; and it shall be that everyone who is bitten, when he looks at it, shall live.”

[9]So Moses made a bronze serpent, and put it on a pole; and so it was, if a serpent had bitten anyone, when he looked at the bronze serpent, he lived.

From Mount Hor to Moab

10Now the children of Israel moved on and camped in Oboth.

11And they journeyed from Oboth and camped at Ije Abarim, in the wilderness which is east of Moab, toward the sunrise.

12From there they moved and camped in the Valley of Zered.

13From there they moved and camped on the other side of the Arnon, which is in the wilderness that extends from the border of the Amorites; for the Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

14Therefore it is said in the Book of the Wars of the LORD:

“Waheb in Suphah,
The brooks of the Arnon,
15And the slope of the brooks
That reaches to the dwelling of Ar,
And lies on the border of Moab.”

16From there they went to Beer, which is the well where the LORD said to Moses, “Gather the people together, and I will give them water.”

17Then Israel sang this song:

“Spring up, O well!
All of you sing to it—
18The well the leaders sank,
Dug by the nation’s nobles,
By the lawgiver, with their staves.”

And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah,

19from Mattanah to Nahaliel, from Nahaliel to Bamoth,

20and from Bamoth, in the valley that is in the country of Moab, to the top of Pisgah which looks down on the wasteland.

King Sihon Defeated

21Then Israel sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, saying,

22“Let me pass through your land. We will not turn aside into fields or vineyards; we will not drink water from wells. We will go by the King’s Highway until we have passed through your territory.”

[23]But Sihon would not allow Israel to pass through his territory. So Sihon gathered all his people together and went out against Israel in the wilderness, and he came to Jahaz and fought against Israel.

[24]Then Israel defeated him with the edge of the sword, and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, as far as the people of Ammon; for the border of the people of Ammon was fortified.

[25]So Israel took all these cities, and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon and in all its villages.

[26]For Heshbon was the city of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and had taken all his land from his hand as far as the Arnon.

[27]Therefore those who speak in proverbs say:

“Come to Heshbon, let it be built;
Let the city of Sihon be repaired.

[28]“For fire went out from Heshbon,
A flame from the city of Sihon;
It consumed Ar of Moab,
The lords of the heights of the Arnon.
[29]Woe to you, Moab!
You have perished, O people of Chemosh!
He has given his sons as fugitives,
And his daughters into captivity,
To Sihon king of the Amorites.

[30]“But we have shot at them;
Heshbon has perished as far as Dibon.
Then we laid waste as far as Nophah,
Which reaches to Medeba.”

[31]Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorites.

[32]Then Moses sent to spy out Jazer; and they took its villages and drove out the Amorites who were there.

King Og Defeated

[33]And they turned and went up by the way to Bashan. So Og king of Bashan went out against them, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.

[34]Then the LORD said to Moses, “Do not fear him, for I have delivered him into your hand, with all his people and his land; and you shall do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon.”

[35]So they defeated him, his sons, and all his people, until there was no survivor left him; and they took possession of his land.

Numbers 22

Balak Sends for Balaam

[1]Then the children of Israel moved, and camped in the plains of Moab on the side of the Jordan across from Jericho.

[2]Now Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

[3]And Moab was exceedingly afraid of the people because they were many, and Moab was sick with dread because of the children of Israel.

[4]So Moab said to the elders of Midian, "Now this company will lick up everything around us, as an ox licks up the grass of the field." And Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

[5]Then he sent messengers to Balaam the son of Beor at Pethor, which is near the River in the land of the sons of his people, to call him, saying: "Look, a people has come from Egypt. See, they cover the face of the earth, and are settling next to me!

[6]"Therefore please come at once, curse this people for me, for they are too mighty for me. Perhaps I shall be able to defeat them and drive them out of the land, for I know that he whom you bless is blessed, and he whom you curse is cursed."

[7]So the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the diviner's fee in their hand, and they came to Balaam and spoke to him the words of Balak.

[8]And he said to them, "Lodge here tonight, and I will bring back word to you, as the LORD speaks to me." So the princes of Moab stayed with Balaam.

[9]Then God came to Balaam and said, "Who are these men with you?"

[10]So Balaam said to God, "Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, has sent to me, saying,

[11]'Look, a people has come out of Egypt, and they cover the face of the earth. Come now, curse them for me; perhaps I shall be able to overpower them and drive them out.' "

[12]And God said to Balaam, "You shall not go with them; you shall not curse the people, for they are blessed."

[13]So Balaam rose in the morning and said to the princes of Balak, “Go back to your land, for the LORD has refused to give me permission to go with you.”

[14]And the princes of Moab rose and went to Balak, and said, “Balaam refuses to come with us.”

[15]Then Balak again sent princes, more numerous and more honorable than they.

[16]And they came to Balaam and said to him, “Thus says Balak the son of Zippor: ‘Please let nothing hinder you from coming to me;

[17]‘for I will certainly honor you greatly, and I will do whatever you say to me. Therefore please come, curse this people for me.’ ”

[18]Then Balaam answered and said to the servants of Balak, “Though Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go beyond the word of the LORD my God, to do less or more.

[19]“Now therefore, please, you also stay here tonight, that I may know what more the LORD will say to me.”

[20]And God came to Balaam at night and said to him, “If the men come to call you, rise and go with them; but only the word which I speak to you—that you shall do.”

[21]So Balaam rose in the morning, saddled his donkey, and went with the princes of Moab.

Balaam, the Donkey, and the Angel

[22]Then God’s anger was aroused because he went, and the Angel of the LORD took His stand in the way as an adversary against him. And he was riding on his donkey, and his two servants were with him.

[23]Now the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD standing in the way with His drawn sword in His hand, and the donkey turned aside out of the way and went into the field. So Balaam struck the donkey to turn her back onto the road.

[24]Then the Angel of the LORD stood in a narrow path between the vineyards, with a wall on this side and a wall on that side.

[25]And when the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD, she pushed herself against the wall and crushed Balaam’s foot against the wall; so he struck her again.

[26]Then the Angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place where there was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

[27]And when the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD, she lay down under Balaam; so Balaam’s anger was aroused, and he struck the donkey with his staff.

[28]Then the LORD opened the mouth of the donkey, and she said to Balaam, “What have I done to you, that you have struck me these three times?”

[29]And Balaam said to the donkey, “Because you have abused me. I wish there were a sword in my hand, for now I would kill you!”

[30]So the donkey said to Balaam, “Am I not your donkey on which you have ridden, ever since I became yours, to this day? Was I ever disposed to do this to you?” And he said, “No.”

[31]Then the LORD opened Balaam’s eyes, and he saw the Angel of the LORD standing in the way with His drawn sword in His hand; and he bowed his head and fell flat on his face.

[32]And the Angel of the LORD said to him, “Why have you struck your donkey these three times? Behold, I have come out to stand against you, because your way is perverse before Me.

[33]“The donkey saw Me and turned aside from Me these three times. If she had not turned aside from Me, surely I would also have killed you by now, and let her live.”

[34]And Balaam said to the Angel of the LORD, “I have sinned, for I did not know You stood in the way against me. Now therefore, if it displeases You, I will turn back.”

[35]Then the Angel of the LORD said to Balaam, “Go with the men, but only the word that I speak to you, that you shall speak.” So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

[36]Now when Balak heard that Balaam was coming, he went out to meet him at the city of Moab, which is on the border at the Arnon, the boundary of the territory.

[37]Then Balak said to Balaam, “Did I not earnestly send to you, calling for you? Why did you not come to me? Am I not able to honor you?”

[38]And Balaam said to Balak, “Look, I have come to you! Now, have I any power at all to say anything? The word that God puts in my mouth, that I must speak.”

[39]So Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kirjath Huzoth.

[40]Then Balak offered oxen and sheep, and he sent some to Balaam and to the princes who were with him.

Balaam’s First Prophecy

[41]So it was, the next day, that Balak took Balaam and brought him up to the high places of Baal, that from there he might observe the extent of the people.

Numbers 23

[1]Then Balaam said to Balak, "Build seven altars for me here, and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams."

[2]And Balak did just as Balaam had spoken, and Balak and Balaam offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

[3]Then Balaam said to Balak, "Stand by your burnt offering, and I will go; perhaps the LORD will come to meet me, and whatever He shows me I will tell you." So he went to a desolate height.

[4]And God met Balaam, and he said to Him, "I have prepared the seven altars, and I have offered on each altar a bull and a ram."

[5]Then the LORD put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, "Return to Balak, and thus you shall speak."

[6]So he returned to him, and there he was, standing by his burnt offering, he and all the princes of Moab.

[7]And he took up his oracle and said:

"Balak the king of Moab has brought me from Aram,
From the mountains of the east.
'Come, curse Jacob for me,
And come, denounce Israel!'

[8]"How shall I curse whom God has not cursed?
And how shall I denounce whom the LORD has not denounced?
[9]For from the top of the rocks I see him,
And from the hills I behold him;
There! A people dwelling alone,
Not reckoning itself among the nations.

[10]"Who can count the dust of Jacob,
Or number one-fourth of Israel?
Let me die the death of the righteous,
And let my end be like his!"

11Then Balak said to Balaam, “What have you done to me? I took you to curse my enemies, and look, you have blessed them bountifully!”

12So he answered and said, “Must I not take heed to speak what the LORD has put in my mouth?”

Balaam’s Second Prophecy

13Then Balak said to him, “Please come with me to another place from which you may see them; you shall see only the outer part of them, and shall not see them all; curse them for me from there.”

14So he brought him to the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah, and built seven altars, and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

15And he said to Balak, “Stand here by your burnt offering while I meet the LORD over there.”

16Then the LORD met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, “Go back to Balak, and thus you shall speak.”

17So he came to him, and there he was, standing by his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab were with him. And Balak said to him, “What has the LORD spoken?”

18Then he took up his oracle and said:

“Rise up, Balak, and hear!
Listen to me, son of Zippor!

19“God is not a man, that He should lie,
Nor a son of man, that He should repent.
Has He said, and will He not do?
Or has He spoken, and will He not make it good?
20Behold, I have received a command to bless;
He has blessed, and I cannot reverse it.

21“He has not observed iniquity in Jacob,
Nor has He seen wickedness in Israel.
The LORD his God is with him,
And the shout of a King is among them.
22God brings them out of Egypt;
He has strength like a wild ox.

[23]“For there is no sorcery against Jacob,
Nor any divination against Israel.
It now must be said of Jacob
And of Israel, ‘Oh, what God has done!’
[24]Look, a people rises like a lioness,
And lifts itself up like a lion;
It shall not lie down until it devours the prey,
And drinks the blood of the slain.”

25Then Balak said to Balaam, “Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all!”

[26]So Balaam answered and said to Balak, “Did I not tell you, saying, ‘All that the LORD speaks, that I must do’?”

Balaam’s Third Prophecy

27Then Balak said to Balaam, “Please come, I will take you to another place; perhaps it will please God that you may curse them for me from there.”

[28]So Balak took Balaam to the top of Peor, that overlooks the wasteland.

[29]Then Balaam said to Balak, “Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams.”

[30]And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bull and a ram on every altar.

Numbers 24

[1]Now when Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he did not go as at other times, to seek to use sorcery, but he set his face toward the wilderness.

[2]And Balaam raised his eyes, and saw Israel encamped according to their tribes; and the Spirit of God came upon him.

[3]Then he took up his oracle and said:

“The utterance of Balaam the son of Beor,
The utterance of the man whose eyes are opened,
[4]The utterance of him who hears the words of God,
Who sees the vision of the Almighty,
Who falls down, with eyes wide open:

[5]“How lovely are your tents, O Jacob!
Your dwellings, O Israel!
[6]Like valleys that stretch out,
Like gardens by the riverside,
Like aloes planted by the LORD,
Like cedars beside the waters.
[7]He shall pour water from his buckets,
And his seed shall be in many waters.

“His king shall be higher than Agag,
And his kingdom shall be exalted.

[8]“God brings him out of Egypt;
He has strength like a wild ox;
He shall consume the nations, his enemies;
He shall break their bones
And pierce them with his arrows.
[9]‘He bows down, he lies down as a lion;
And as a lion, who shall rouse him?’

“Blessed is he who blesses you,

And cursed is he who curses you.”

10Then Balak’s anger was aroused against Balaam, and he struck his hands together; and Balak said to Balaam, “I called you to curse my enemies, and look, you have bountifully blessed them these three times!

11“Now therefore, flee to your place. I said I would greatly honor you, but in fact, the LORD has kept you back from honor.”

12So Balaam said to Balak, “Did I not also speak to your messengers whom you sent to me, saying,

13‘If Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go beyond the word of the LORD, to do good or bad of my own will. What the LORD says, that I must speak’?

14“And now, indeed, I am going to my people. Come, I will advise you what this people will do to your people in the latter days.”

Balaam’s Fourth Prophecy

15So he took up his oracle and said:

“The utterance of Balaam the son of Beor,
And the utterance of the man whose eyes are opened;
16The utterance of him who hears the words of God,
And has the knowledge of the Most High,
Who sees the vision of the Almighty,
Who falls down, with eyes wide open:

17“I see Him, but not now;
I behold Him, but not near;
A Star shall come out of Jacob;
A Scepter shall rise out of Israel,
And batter the brow of Moab,
And destroy all the sons of tumult.

18“And Edom shall be a possession;
Seir also, his enemies, shall be a possession,
While Israel does valiantly.
19Out of Jacob One shall have dominion,
And destroy the remains of the city.”

[20]Then he looked on Amalek, and he took up his oracle and said:

“Amalek was first among the nations,
But shall be last until he perishes.”

[21]Then he looked on the Kenites, and he took up his oracle and said:

“Firm is your dwelling place,
And your nest is set in the rock;
[22]Nevertheless Kain shall be burned.
How long until Asshur carries you away captive?”

[23]Then he took up his oracle and said:

“Alas! Who shall live when God does this?
[24]But ships shall come from the coasts of Cyprus,
And they shall afflict Asshur and afflict Eber,
And so shall Amalek, until he perishes.”

[25]So Balaam rose and departed and returned to his place; Balak also went his way.

Numbers 25

Israel's Harlotry in Moab

[1]Now Israel remained in Acacia Grove, and the people began to commit harlotry with the women of Moab.

[2]They invited the people to the sacrifices of their gods, and the people ate and bowed down to their gods.

[3]So Israel was joined to Baal of Peor, and the anger of the LORD was aroused against Israel.

[4]Then the LORD said to Moses, "Take all the leaders of the people and hang the offenders before the LORD, out in the sun, that the fierce anger of the LORD may turn away from Israel."

[5]So Moses said to the judges of Israel, "Every one of you kill his men who were joined to Baal of Peor."

[6]And indeed, one of the children of Israel came and presented to his brethren a Midianite woman in the sight of Moses and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, who were weeping at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.

[7]Now when Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose from among the congregation and took a javelin in his hand;

[8]and he went after the man of Israel into the tent and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the woman through her body. So the plague was stopped among the children of Israel.

[9]And those who died in the plague were twenty-four thousand.

[10]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[11]"Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, has turned back My wrath from the children of Israel, because he was zealous with My zeal among them, so that I did not consume the children of Israel in My zeal.

[12]"Therefore say, 'Behold, I give to him My covenant of peace;

[13]'and it shall be to him and his descendants after him a covenant of an everlasting priesthood, because he was zealous for his God, and made atonement for the children of Israel.' "

14Now the name of the Israelite who was killed, who was killed with the Midianite woman, was Zimri the son of Salu, a leader of a father's house among the Simeonites.

15And the name of the Midianite woman who was killed was Cozbi the daughter of Zur; he was head of the people of a father's house in Midian.

16Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

17"Harass the Midianites, and attack them;

18"for they harassed you with their schemes by which they seduced you in the matter of Peor and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a leader of Midian, their sister, who was killed in the day of the plague because of Peor."

Numbers 26

The Second Census of Israel

[1]And it came to pass, after the plague, that the LORD spoke to Moses and Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, saying:

[2]“Take a census of all the congregation of the children of Israel from twenty years old and above, by their fathers’ houses, all who are able to go to war in Israel.”

[3]So Moses and Eleazar the priest spoke with them in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho, saying:

[4]“Take a census of the people from twenty years old and above, just as the LORD commanded Moses and the children of Israel who came out of the land of Egypt.”

[33]Now Zelophehad the son of Hepher had no sons, but daughters; and the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

[34]These are the families of Manasseh; and those who were numbered of them were fifty-two thousand seven hundred.

[35]These are the sons of Ephraim according to their families: of Shuthelah, the family of the Shuthalhites; of Becher, the family of the Bachrites; of Tahan, the family of the Tahanites.

53"To these the land shall be divided as an inheritance, according to the number of names.

54"To a large tribe you shall give a larger inheritance, and to a small tribe you shall give a smaller inheritance. Each shall be given its inheritance according to those who were numbered of them.

55"But the land shall be divided by lot; they shall inherit according to the names of the tribes of their fathers.

56"According to the lot their inheritance shall be divided between the larger and the smaller."

57And these are those who were numbered of the Levites according to their families: of Gershon, the family of the Gershonites; of Kohath, the family of the Kohathites; of Merari, the family of the Merarites.

58These are the families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, and the family of the Korathites. And Kohath begot Amram.

59The name of Amram's wife was Jochebed the daughter of Levi, who was born to Levi in Egypt; and to Amram she bore Aaron and Moses and their sister Miriam.

[60]To Aaron were born Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

[61]And Nadab and Abihu died when they offered profane fire before the LORD.

[62]Now those who were numbered of them were twenty-three thousand, every male from a month old and above; for they were not numbered among the other children of Israel, because there was no inheritance given to them among the children of Israel.

[63]These are those who were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who numbered the children of Israel in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho.

[64]But among these there was not a man of those who were numbered by Moses and Aaron the priest when they numbered the children of Israel in the Wilderness of Sinai.

[65]For the LORD had said of them, “They shall surely die in the wilderness.” So there was not left a man of them, except Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the son of Nun.

Numbers 27

Inheritance Laws

[1]Then came the daughters of Zelophehad the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, from the families of Manasseh the son of Joseph; and these were the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

[2]And they stood before Moses, before Eleazar the priest, and before the leaders and all the congregation, by the doorway of the tabernacle of meeting, saying:

[3]"Our father died in the wilderness; but he was not in the company of those who gathered together against the LORD, in company with Korah, but he died in his own sin; and he had no sons.

[4]"Why should the name of our father be removed from among his family because he had no son? Give us a possession among our father's brothers."

[5]So Moses brought their case before the LORD.

[6]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[7]"The daughters of Zelophehad speak what is right; you shall surely give them a possession of inheritance among their father's brothers, and cause the inheritance of their father to pass to them.

[8]"And you shall speak to the children of Israel, saying: 'If a man dies and has no son, then you shall cause his inheritance to pass to his daughter.

[9]'If he has no daughter, then you shall give his inheritance to his brothers.

[10]'If he has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to his father's brothers.

[11]'And if his father has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to the relative closest to him in his family, and he shall possess it.' " And it shall be to the children of Israel a statute of judgment, just as the LORD commanded Moses.

Joshua the Next Leader of Israel

12Now the LORD said to Moses: “Go up into this Mount Abarim, and see the land which I have given to the children of Israel.

13“And when you have seen it, you also shall be gathered to your people, as Aaron your brother was gathered.

14“For in the Wilderness of Zin, during the strife of the congregation, you rebelled against My command to hallow Me at the waters before their eyes.” (These are the waters of Meribah, at Kadesh in the Wilderness of Zin.)

15Then Moses spoke to the LORD, saying:

16“Let the LORD, the God of the spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation,

17“who may go out before them and go in before them, who may lead them out and bring them in, that the congregation of the LORD may not be like sheep which have no shepherd.”

18And the LORD said to Moses: “Take Joshua the son of Nun with you, a man in whom is the Spirit, and lay your hand on him;

19“set him before Eleazar the priest and before all the congregation, and inaugurate him in their sight.

20“And you shall give some of your authority to him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.

21“He shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall inquire before the LORD for him by the judgment of the Urim. At his word they shall go out, and at his word they shall come in, he and all the children of Israel with him—all the congregation.”

22So Moses did as the LORD commanded him. He took Joshua and set him before Eleazar the priest and before all the congregation.

23And he laid his hands on him and inaugurated him, just as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

Numbers 28

Daily Offerings

[1]Now the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]“Command the children of Israel, and say to them, ‘My offering, My food for My offerings made by fire as a sweet aroma to Me, you shall be careful to offer to Me at their appointed time.’

[3]“And you shall say to them, ‘This is the offering made by fire which you shall offer to the LORD: two male lambs in their first year without blemish, day by day, as a regular burnt offering.

[4]‘The one lamb you shall offer in the morning, the other lamb you shall offer in the evening,

[5]‘and one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour as a grain offering mixed with one-fourth of a hin of pressed oil.

[6]‘It is a regular burnt offering which was ordained at Mount Sinai for a sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[7]‘And its drink offering shall be one-fourth of a hin for each lamb; in a holy place you shall pour out the drink to the LORD as an offering.

[8]‘The other lamb you shall offer in the evening; as the morning grain offering and its drink offering, you shall offer it as an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the LORD.

Sabbath Offerings

[9]‘And on the Sabbath day two lambs in their first year, without blemish, and two-tenths of an ephah of fine flour as a grain offering, mixed with oil, with its drink offering—

[10]‘this is the burnt offering for every Sabbath, besides the regular burnt offering with its drink offering.

Monthly Offerings

[11]‘At the beginnings of your months you shall present a burnt offering to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, and seven lambs in their first year, without blemish;

[12]‘three-tenths of an ephah of fine flour as a grain offering, mixed with oil, for each bull; two-tenths of an ephah of fine flour as a grain offering, mixed with oil, for the one ram;

[13]‘and one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour, mixed with oil, as a grain offering for each lamb, as a burnt offering of sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

[14]‘Their drink offering shall be half a hin of wine for a bull, one-third of a hin for a ram, and one-fourth of a hin for a lamb; this is the burnt offering for each month throughout the months of the year.

[15]‘Also one kid of the goats as a sin offering to the LORD shall be offered, besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Offerings at Passover

[16]‘On the fourteenth day of the first month is the Passover of the LORD.

[17]‘And on the fifteenth day of this month is the feast; unleavened bread shall be eaten for seven days.

[18]‘On the first day you shall have a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work.

[19]‘And you shall present an offering made by fire as a burnt offering to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, and seven lambs in their first year. Be sure they are without blemish.

[20]‘Their grain offering shall be of fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths of an ephah you shall offer for a bull, and two-tenths for a ram;

[21]‘you shall offer one-tenth of an ephah for each of the seven lambs;

[22]‘also one goat as a sin offering, to make atonement for you.

[23]‘You shall offer these besides the burnt offering of the morning, which is for a regular burnt offering.

[24]‘In this manner you shall offer the food of the offering made by fire daily for seven days, as a sweet aroma to the LORD; it shall be offered besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

[25]‘And on the seventh day you shall have a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work.

Offerings at the Feast of Weeks

26‘Also on the day of the firstfruits, when you bring a new grain offering to the LORD at your Feast of Weeks, you shall have a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work.

27‘You shall present a burnt offering as a sweet aroma to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, and seven lambs in their first year,

28‘with their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths of an ephah for each bull, two-tenths for the one ram,

29‘and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs;

30‘also one kid of the goats, to make atonement for you.

31‘Be sure they are without blemish. You shall present them with their drink offerings, besides the regular burnt offering with its grain offering.

Numbers 29

Offerings at the Feast of Trumpets

[1]‘And in the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you shall have a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work. For you it is a day of blowing the trumpets.

[2]‘You shall offer a burnt offering as a sweet aroma to the LORD: one young bull, one ram, and seven lambs in their first year, without blemish.

[3]‘Their grain offering shall be fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths of an ephah for the bull, two-tenths for the ram,

[4]‘and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs;

[5]‘also one kid of the goats as a sin offering, to make atonement for you;

[6]‘besides the burnt offering with its grain offering for the New Moon, the regular burnt offering with its grain offering, and their drink offerings, according to their ordinance, as a sweet aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

Offerings on the Day of Atonement

[7]‘On the tenth day of this seventh month you shall have a holy convocation. You shall afflict your souls; you shall not do any work.

[8]‘You shall present a burnt offering to the LORD as a sweet aroma: one young bull, one ram, and seven lambs in their first year. Be sure they are without blemish.

[9]‘Their grain offering shall be of fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths of an ephah for the bull, two-tenths for the one ram,

[10]‘and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs;

[11]‘also one kid of the goats as a sin offering, besides the sin offering for atonement, the regular burnt offering with its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

Offerings at the Feast of Tabernacles

12‘On the fifteenth day of the seventh month you shall have a holy convocation. You shall do no customary work, and you shall keep a feast to the LORD seven days.

13‘You shall present a burnt offering, an offering made by fire as a sweet aroma to the LORD: thirteen young bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs in their first year. They shall be without blemish.

14‘Their grain offering shall be of fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths of an ephah for each of the thirteen bulls, two-tenths for each of the two rams,

15‘and one-tenth for each of the fourteen lambs;

16‘also one kid of the goats as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

17‘On the second day present twelve young bulls, two rams, fourteen lambs in their first year without blemish,

18‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

19‘also one kid of the goats as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering with its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

20‘On the third day present eleven bulls, two rams, fourteen lambs in their first year without blemish,

21‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

22‘also one goat as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

23‘On the fourth day present ten bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs in their first year, without blemish,

24‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

25‘also one kid of the goats as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

26‘On the fifth day present nine bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs in their first year without blemish,

[27]‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

[28]‘also one goat as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[29]‘On the sixth day present eight bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs in their first year without blemish,

[30]‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

[31]‘also one goat as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[32]‘On the seventh day present seven bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs in their first year without blemish,

[33]‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

[34]‘also one goat as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[35]‘On the eighth day you shall have a sacred assembly. You shall do no customary work.

[36]‘You shall present a burnt offering, an offering made by fire as a sweet aroma to the LORD: one bull, one ram, seven lambs in their first year without blemish,

[37]‘and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bull, for the ram, and for the lambs, by their number, according to the ordinance;

[38]‘also one goat as a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[39]‘These you shall present to the LORD at your appointed feasts (besides your vowed offerings and your freewill offerings) as your burnt offerings and your grain offerings, as your drink offerings and your peace offerings.’ ”

[40]So Moses told the children of Israel everything, just as the LORD commanded Moses.

Numbers 30

The Law Concerning Vows

[1]Then Moses spoke to the heads of the tribes concerning the children of Israel, saying, “This is the thing which the LORD has commanded:

[2]“If a man makes a vow to the LORD, or swears an oath to bind himself by some agreement, he shall not break his word; he shall do according to all that proceeds out of his mouth.

[3]“Or if a woman makes a vow to the LORD, and binds herself by some agreement while in her father’s house in her youth,

[4]“and her father hears her vow and the agreement by which she has bound herself, and her father holds his peace, then all her vows shall stand, and every agreement with which she has bound herself shall stand.

[5]“But if her father overrules her on the day that he hears, then none of her vows nor her agreements by which she has bound herself shall stand; and the LORD will release her, because her father overruled her.

[6]“If indeed she takes a husband, while bound by her vows or by a rash utterance from her lips by which she bound herself,

[7]“and her husband hears it, and makes no response to her on the day that he hears, then her vows shall stand, and her agreements by which she bound herself shall stand.

[8]“But if her husband overrules her on the day that he hears it, he shall make void her vow which she took and what she uttered with her lips, by which she bound herself, and the LORD will release her.

[9]“Also any vow of a widow or a divorced woman, by which she has bound herself, shall stand against her.

[10]“If she vowed in her husband’s house, or bound herself by an agreement with an oath, [11]“and her husband heard it, and made no response to her and did not overrule her, then all her vows shall stand, and every agreement by which she bound herself shall stand.

[12]“But if her husband truly made them void on the day he heard them, then whatever proceeded from her lips concerning her vows or concerning the agreement binding her, it shall not stand; her husband has made them void, and the LORD will release her.

[13]"Every vow and every binding oath to afflict her soul, her husband may confirm it, or her husband may make it void.

[14]"Now if her husband makes no response whatever to her from day to day, then he confirms all her vows or all the agreements that bind her; he confirms them, because he made no response to her on the day that he heard them.

[15]"But if he does make them void after he has heard them, then he shall bear her guilt."

16These are the statutes which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, and between a father and his daughter in her youth in her father's house.

Numbers 31

Vengeance on the Midianites

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[2]“Take vengeance on the Midianites for the children of Israel. Afterward you shall be gathered to your people.”

[3]So Moses spoke to the people, saying, “Arm some of yourselves for war, and let them go against the Midianites to take vengeance for the LORD on Midian.

[4]“A thousand from each tribe of all the tribes of Israel you shall send to the war.”

[5]So there were recruited from the divisions of Israel one thousand from each tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.

[6]Then Moses sent them to the war, one thousand from each tribe; he sent them to the war with Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, with the holy articles and the signal trumpets in his hand.

[7]And they warred against the Midianites, just as the LORD commanded Moses, and they killed all the males.

[8]They killed the kings of Midian with the rest of those who were killed—Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the five kings of Midian. Balaam the son of Beor they also killed with the sword.

[9]And the children of Israel took the women of Midian captive, with their little ones, and took as spoil all their cattle, all their flocks, and all their goods.

[10]They also burned with fire all the cities where they dwelt, and all their forts.

[11]And they took all the spoil and all the booty—of man and beast.

Return from the War

[12]Then they brought the captives, the booty, and the spoil to Moses, to Eleazar the priest, and to the congregation of the children of Israel, to the camp in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho.

[13]And Moses, Eleazar the priest, and all the leaders of the congregation, went to meet them outside the camp.

[14]But Moses was angry with the officers of the army, with the captains over thousands and captains over hundreds, who had come from the battle.

[15]And Moses said to them: “Have you kept all the women alive?

[16]“Look, these women caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to trespass against the LORD in the incident of Peor, and there was a plague among the congregation of the LORD.

[17]“Now therefore, kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman who has known a man intimately.

[18]“But keep alive for yourselves all the young girls who have not known a man intimately.

[19]“And as for you, remain outside the camp seven days; whoever has killed any person, and whoever has touched any slain, purify yourselves and your captives on the third day and on the seventh day.

[20]“Purify every garment, everything made of leather, everything woven of goats’ hair, and everything made of wood.”

[21]Then Eleazar the priest said to the men of war who had gone to the battle, “This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses:

[22]“Only the gold, the silver, the bronze, the iron, the tin, and the lead,

[23]“everything that can endure fire, you shall put through the fire, and it shall be clean; and it shall be purified with the water of purification. But all that cannot endure fire you shall put through water.

[24]“And you shall wash your clothes on the seventh day and be clean, and afterward you may come into the camp.”

Division of the Plunder

[25]Now the LORD spoke to Moses, saying:

[26]“Count up the plunder that was taken—of man and beast—you and Eleazar the priest and the chief fathers of the congregation;

[27]“and divide the plunder into two parts, between those who took part in the war, who went out to battle, and all the congregation.

[28]“And levy a tribute for the LORD on the men of war who went out to battle: one of every five hundred of the persons, the cattle, the donkeys, and the sheep;

[29]"take it from their half, and give it to Eleazar the priest as a heave offering to the LORD.

[30]"And from the children of Israel's half you shall take one of every fifty, drawn from the persons, the cattle, the donkeys, and the sheep, from all the livestock, and give them to the Levites who keep charge of the tabernacle of the LORD."

[31]So Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

32The booty remaining from the plunder, which the men of war had taken, was six hundred and seventy-five thousand sheep,

[33]seventy-two thousand cattle,

[34]sixty-one thousand donkeys,

[35]and thirty-two thousand persons in all, of women who had not known a man intimately.

[36]And the half, the portion for those who had gone out to war, was in number three hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep;

[37]and the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and seventy-five.

[38]The cattle were thirty-six thousand, of which the LORD's tribute was seventy-two.

[39]The donkeys were thirty thousand five hundred, of which the LORD's tribute was sixty-one.

[40]The persons were sixteen thousand, of which the LORD's tribute was thirty-two persons.

[41]So Moses gave the tribute which was the LORD's heave offering to Eleazar the priest, as the LORD commanded Moses.

42And from the children of Israel's half, which Moses separated from the men who fought—

[43]now the half belonging to the congregation was three hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep,

[44]thirty-six thousand cattle,

[45]thirty thousand five hundred donkeys,

[46]and sixteen thousand persons—

[47]and from the children of Israel's half Moses took one of every fifty, drawn from man and beast, and gave them to the Levites, who kept charge of the tabernacle of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

[48]Then the officers who were over thousands of the army, the captains of thousands and captains of hundreds, came near to Moses;

[49]and they said to Moses, “Your servants have taken a count of the men of war who are under our command, and not a man of us is missing.

[50]“Therefore we have brought an offering for the LORD, what every man found of ornaments of gold: armlets and bracelets and signet rings and earrings and necklaces, to make atonement for ourselves before the LORD.”

[51]So Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from them, all the fashioned ornaments.

[52]And all the gold of the offering that they offered to the LORD, from the captains of thousands and captains of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

[53](The men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

[54]And Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of meeting as a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

Numbers 32

The Tribes Settling East of the Jordan

[1]Now the children of Reuben and the children of Gad had a very great multitude of livestock; and when they saw the land of Jazer and the land of Gilead, that indeed the region was a place for livestock,

[2]the children of Gad and the children of Reuben came and spoke to Moses, to Eleazar the priest, and to the leaders of the congregation, saying,

[3]"Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Shebam, Nebo, and Beon,

[4]"the country which the LORD defeated before the congregation of Israel, is a land for livestock, and your servants have livestock."

[5]Therefore they said, "If we have found favor in your sight, let this land be given to your servants as a possession. Do not take us over the Jordan."

6And Moses said to the children of Gad and to the children of Reuben: "Shall your brethren go to war while you sit here?

[7]"Now why will you discourage the heart of the children of Israel from going over into the land which the LORD has given them?

[8]"Thus your fathers did when I sent them away from Kadesh Barnea to see the land.

[9]"For when they went up to the Valley of Eshcol and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, so that they did not go into the land which the LORD had given them.

[10]"So the LORD's anger was aroused on that day, and He swore an oath, saying,

[11]'Surely none of the men who came up from Egypt, from twenty years old and above, shall see the land of which I swore to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they have not wholly followed Me,

[12]'except Caleb the son of Jephunneh, the Kenizzite, and Joshua the son of Nun, for they have wholly followed the LORD.'

[13]"So the LORD's anger was aroused against Israel, and He made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until all the generation that had done evil in the sight of the LORD was gone.

[14]"And look! You have risen in your fathers' place, a brood of sinful men, to increase still more the fierce anger of the LORD against Israel.

[15]"For if you turn away from following Him, He will once again leave them in the wilderness, and you will destroy all these people."

16Then they came near to him and said: "We will build sheepfolds here for our livestock, and cities for our little ones,

[17]"but we ourselves will be armed, ready to go before the children of Israel until we have brought them to their place; and our little ones will dwell in the fortified cities because of the inhabitants of the land.

[18]"We will not return to our homes until every one of the children of Israel has received his inheritance.

[19]"For we will not inherit with them on the other side of the Jordan and beyond, because our inheritance has fallen to us on this eastern side of the Jordan."

20Then Moses said to them: "If you do this thing, if you arm yourselves before the LORD for the war,

[21]"and all your armed men cross over the Jordan before the LORD until He has driven out His enemies from before Him, [22]"and the land is subdued before the LORD, then afterward you may return and be blameless before the LORD and before Israel; and this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

[23]"But if you do not do so, then take note, you have sinned against the LORD; and be sure your sin will find you out.

[24]"Build cities for your little ones and folds for your sheep, and do what has proceeded out of your mouth."

[25]And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben spoke to Moses, saying: "Your servants will do as my lord commands.

[26]"Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our livestock will be there in the cities of Gilead;

[27]"but your servants will cross over, every man armed for war, before the LORD to battle, just as my lord says."

28So Moses gave command concerning them to Eleazar the priest, to Joshua the son of Nun, and to the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel.

[29]And Moses said to them: “If the children of Gad and the children of Reuben cross over the Jordan with you, every man armed for battle before the LORD, and the land is subdued before you, then you shall give them the land of Gilead as a possession.

[30]“But if they do not cross over armed with you, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.”

[31]Then the children of Gad and the children of Reuben answered, saying: “As the LORD has said to your servants, so we will do.

[32]“We will cross over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, but the possession of our inheritance shall remain with us on this side of the Jordan.”

[33]So Moses gave to the children of Gad, to the children of Reuben, and to half the tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land with its cities within the borders, the cities of the surrounding country.

[34]And the children of Gad built Dibon and Ataroth and Aroer,

[35]Atroth and Shophan and Jazer and Jogbehah,

[36]Beth Nimrah and Beth Haran, fortified cities, and folds for sheep.

[37]And the children of Reuben built Heshbon and Elealeh and Kirjathaim,

[38]Nebo and Baal Meon (their names being changed) and Shibmah; and they gave other names to the cities which they built.

[39]And the children of Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead and took it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it.

[40]So Moses gave Gilead to Machir the son of Manasseh, and he dwelt in it.

[41]Also Jair the son of Manasseh went and took its small towns, and called them Havoth Jair.

[42]Then Nobah went and took Kenath and its villages, and he called it Nobah, after his own name.

Numbers 33

Israel's Journey from Egypt Reviewed

[1]These are the journeys of the children of Israel, who went out of the land of Egypt by their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

[2]Now Moses wrote down the starting points of their journeys at the command of the LORD. And these are their journeys according to their starting points:

[3]They departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the Passover the children of Israel went out with boldness in the sight of all the Egyptians.

[4]For the Egyptians were burying all their firstborn, whom the LORD had killed among them. Also on their gods the LORD had executed judgments.

[5]Then the children of Israel moved from Rameses and camped at Succoth.

[6]They departed from Succoth and camped at Etham, which is on the edge of the wilderness.

[7]They moved from Etham and turned back to Pi Hahiroth, which is east of Baal Zephon; and they camped near Migdol.

[8]They departed from before Hahiroth and passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, went three days' journey in the Wilderness of Etham, and camped at Marah.

[9]They moved from Marah and came to Elim. At Elim were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees; so they camped there.

[10]They moved from Elim and camped by the Red Sea.

[11]They moved from the Red Sea and camped in the Wilderness of Sin.

[12]They journeyed from the Wilderness of Sin and camped at Dophkah.

[13]They departed from Dophkah and camped at Alush.

[14]They moved from Alush and camped at Rephidim, where there was no water for the people to drink.

[15]They departed from Rephidim and camped in the Wilderness of Sinai.

[16]They moved from the Wilderness of Sinai and camped at Kibroth Hattaavah.

[17]They departed from Kibroth Hattaavah and camped at Hazeroth.

[18]They departed from Hazeroth and camped at Rithmah.

[19]They departed from Rithmah and camped at Rimmon Perez.

[20]They departed from Rimmon Perez and camped at Libnah.

[21]They moved from Libnah and camped at Rissah.

[22]They journeyed from Rissah and camped at Kehelathah.

[23]They went from Kehelathah and camped at Mount Shepher.

[24]They moved from Mount Shepher and camped at Haradah.

[25]They moved from Haradah and camped at Makheloth.

[26]They moved from Makheloth and camped at Tahath.

[27]They departed from Tahath and camped at Terah.

[28]They moved from Terah and camped at Mithkah.

[29]They went from Mithkah and camped at Hashmonah.

[30]They departed from Hashmonah and camped at Moseroth.

[31]They departed from Moseroth and camped at Bene Jaakan.

[32]They moved from Bene Jaakan and camped at Hor Hagidgad.

[33]They went from Hor Hagidgad and camped at Jotbathah.

[34]They moved from Jotbathah and camped at Abronah.

[35]They departed from Abronah and camped at Ezion Geber.

[36]They moved from Ezion Geber and camped in the Wilderness of Zin, which is Kadesh.

[37]They moved from Kadesh and camped at Mount Hor, on the boundary of the land of Edom.

[38]Then Aaron the priest went up to Mount Hor at the command of the LORD, and died there in the fortieth year after the children of Israel had come out of the land of Egypt, on the first day of the fifth month.

[39]Aaron was one hundred and twenty-three years old when he died on Mount Hor.

[40]Now the king of Arad, the Canaanite, who dwelt in the South in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the children of Israel.

[41]So they departed from Mount Hor and camped at Zalmonah.

[42]They departed from Zalmonah and camped at Punon.

[43]They departed from Punon and camped at Oboth.

[44]They departed from Oboth and camped at Ije Abarim, at the border of Moab.

[45]They departed from Ijim and camped at Dibon Gad.

[46]They moved from Dibon Gad and camped at Almon Diblathaim.

[47]They moved from Almon Diblathaim and camped in the mountains of Abarim, before Nebo.

[48]They departed from the mountains of Abarim and camped in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho.

[49]They camped by the Jordan, from Beth Jesimoth as far as the Abel Acacia Grove in the plains of Moab.

Instructions for the Conquest of Canaan

[50]Now the LORD spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho, saying,

[51]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When you have crossed the Jordan into the land of Canaan,

[52]'then you shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you, destroy all their engraved stones, destroy all their molded images, and demolish all their high places;

[53]'you shall dispossess the inhabitants of the land and dwell in it, for I have given you the land to possess.

[54]'And you shall divide the land by lot as an inheritance among your families; to the larger you shall give a larger inheritance, and to the smaller you shall give a smaller inheritance; there everyone's inheritance shall be whatever falls to him by lot. You shall inherit according to the tribes of your fathers.

[55]'But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you, then it shall be that those whom you let remain shall be irritants in your eyes and thorns in your sides, and they shall harass you in the land where you dwell.

[56]'Moreover it shall be that I will do to you as I thought to do to them.' "

Numbers 34

The Appointed Boundaries of Canaan

[1]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[2]"Command the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When you come into the land of Canaan, this is the land that shall fall to you as an inheritance—the land of Canaan to its boundaries.

[3]'Your southern border shall be from the Wilderness of Zin along the border of Edom; then your southern border shall extend eastward to the end of the Salt Sea;

[4]'your border shall turn from the southern side of the Ascent of Akrabbim, continue to Zin, and be on the south of Kadesh Barnea; then it shall go on to Hazar Addar, and continue to Azmon;

[5]'the border shall turn from Azmon to the Brook of Egypt, and it shall end at the Sea.

[6]'As for the western border, you shall have the Great Sea for a border; this shall be your western border.

[7]'And this shall be your northern border: From the Great Sea you shall mark out your border line to Mount Hor;

[8]'from Mount Hor you shall mark out your border to the entrance of Hamath; then the direction of the border shall be toward Zedad;

[9]'the border shall proceed to Ziphron, and it shall end at Hazar Enan. This shall be your northern border.

[10]'You shall mark out your eastern border from Hazar Enan to Shepham;

[11]'the border shall go down from Shepham to Riblah on the east side of Ain; the border shall go down and reach to the eastern side of the Sea of Chinnereth;

[12]'the border shall go down along the Jordan, and it shall end at the Salt Sea. This shall be your land with its surrounding boundaries.' "

[13]Then Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying: "This is the land which you shall inherit by lot, which the LORD has commanded to give to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe.

[14]"For the tribe of the children of Reuben according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance; and the half-tribe of Manasseh has received its inheritance.

[15]"The two tribes and the half-tribe have received their inheritance on this side of the Jordan, across from Jericho eastward, toward the sunrise."

The Leaders Appointed to Divide the Land

16And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[17]"These are the names of the men who shall divide the land among you as an inheritance: Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun.

[18]"And you shall take one leader of every tribe to divide the land for the inheritance.

[19]"These are the names of the men: from the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh;

[20]"from the tribe of the children of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud;

[21]"from the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon;

[22]"a leader from the tribe of the children of Dan, Bukki the son of Jogli;

[23]"from the sons of Joseph: a leader from the tribe of the children of Manasseh, Hanniel the son of Ephod, [24]"and a leader from the tribe of the children of Ephraim, Kemuel the son of Shiphtan;

[25]"a leader from the tribe of the children of Zebulun, Elizaphan the son of Parnach;

[26]"a leader from the tribe of the children of Issachar, Paltiel the son of Azzan;

[27]"a leader from the tribe of the children of Asher, Ahihud the son of Shelomi;

[28]"and a leader from the tribe of the children of Naphtali, Pedahel the son of Ammihud."

[29]These are the ones the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance among the children of Israel in the land of Canaan.

Numbers 35

Cities for the Levites

[1]And the LORD spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho, saying:

[2]"Command the children of Israel that they give the Levites cities to dwell in from the inheritance of their possession, and you shall also give the Levites common-land around the cities.

[3]"They shall have the cities to dwell in; and their common-land shall be for their cattle, for their herds, and for all their animals.

[4]"The common-land of the cities which you will give the Levites shall extend from the wall of the city outward a thousand cubits all around.

[5]"And you shall measure outside the city on the east side two thousand cubits, on the south side two thousand cubits, on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits. The city shall be in the middle. This shall belong to them as common-land for the cities.

[6]"Now among the cities which you will give to the Levites you shall appoint six cities of refuge, to which a manslayer may flee. And to these you shall add forty-two cities.

[7]"So all the cities you will give to the Levites shall be forty-eight; these you shall give with their common-land.

[8]"And the cities which you will give shall be from the possession of the children of Israel; from the larger tribe you shall give many, from the smaller you shall give few. Each shall give some of its cities to the Levites, in proportion to the inheritance that each receives."

Cities of Refuge

[9]Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying,

[10]"Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: 'When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan,

[11]'then you shall appoint cities to be cities of refuge for you, that the manslayer who kills any person accidentally may flee there.

[12]‘They shall be cities of refuge for you from the avenger, that the manslayer may not die until he stands before the congregation in judgment.

[13]‘And of the cities which you give, you shall have six cities of refuge.

[14]‘You shall appoint three cities on this side of the Jordan, and three cities you shall appoint in the land of Canaan, which will be cities of refuge.

[15]‘These six cities shall be for refuge for the children of Israel, for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them, that anyone who kills a person accidentally may flee there.

[16]‘But if he strikes him with an iron implement, so that he dies, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death.

[17]‘And if he strikes him with a stone in the hand, by which one could die, and he does die, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death.

[18]‘Or if he strikes him with a wooden hand weapon, by which one could die, and he does die, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death.

[19]‘The avenger of blood himself shall put the murderer to death; when he meets him, he shall put him to death.

[20]‘If he pushes him out of hatred or, while lying in wait, hurls something at him so that he dies,

[21]‘or in enmity he strikes him with his hand so that he dies, the one who struck him shall surely be put to death. He is a murderer. The avenger of blood shall put the murderer to death when he meets him.

[22]‘However, if he pushes him suddenly without enmity, or throws anything at him without lying in wait,

[23]‘or uses a stone, by which a man could die, throwing it at him without seeing him, so that he dies, while he was not his enemy or seeking his harm,

[24]‘then the congregation shall judge between the manslayer and the avenger of blood according to these judgments.

[25]‘So the congregation shall deliver the manslayer from the hand of the avenger of blood, and the congregation shall return him to the city of refuge where he had fled, and he shall remain there until the death of the high priest who was anointed with the holy oil.

[26]‘But if the manslayer at any time goes outside the limits of the city of refuge where he fled,

[27]‘and the avenger of blood finds him outside the limits of his city of refuge, and the avenger of blood kills the manslayer, he shall not be guilty of blood,

[28]‘because he should have remained in his city of refuge until the death of the high priest. But after the death of the high priest the manslayer may return to the land of his possession.

[29]‘And these things shall be a statute of judgment to you throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

[30]‘Whoever kills a person, the murderer shall be put to death on the testimony of witnesses; but one witness is not sufficient testimony against a person for the death penalty.

[31]‘Moreover you shall take no ransom for the life of a murderer who is guilty of death, but he shall surely be put to death.

[32]‘And you shall take no ransom for him who has fled to his city of refuge, that he may return to dwell in the land before the death of the priest.

[33]‘So you shall not pollute the land where you are; for blood defiles the land, and no atonement can be made for the land, for the blood that is shed on it, except by the blood of him who shed it.

[34]‘Therefore do not defile the land which you inhabit, in the midst of which I dwell; for I the LORD dwell among the children of Israel.’ ”

Numbers 36

Marriage of Female Heirs

[1]Now the chief fathers of the families of the children of Gilead the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph, came near and spoke before Moses and before the leaders, the chief fathers of the children of Israel.

[2]And they said: "The LORD commanded my lord Moses to give the land as an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel, and my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of our brother Zelophehad to his daughters.

[3]"Now if they are married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then their inheritance will be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and it will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry; so it will be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

[4]"And when the Jubilee of the children of Israel comes, then their inheritance will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry; so their inheritance will be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers."

[5]Then Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying: "What the tribe of the sons of Joseph speaks is right.

[6]"This is what the LORD commands concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, 'Let them marry whom they think best, but they may marry only within the family of their father's tribe.'

[7]"So the inheritance of the children of Israel shall not change hands from tribe to tribe, for every one of the children of Israel shall keep the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

[8]"And every daughter who possesses an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel shall be the wife of one of the family of her father's tribe, so that the children of Israel each may possess the inheritance of his fathers.

[9]"Thus no inheritance shall change hands from one tribe to another, but every tribe of the children of Israel shall keep its own inheritance."

[10]Just as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad;

[11]for Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married to the sons of their father's brothers.

[12]They were married into the families of the children of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of their father's family.

[13]These are the commandments and the judgments which the LORD commanded the children of Israel by the hand of Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho.

The Fifth Book of Moses Called

Deuteronomy

Deuteronomy 1

The Previous Command to Enter Canaan

[1]These are the words which Moses spoke to all Israel on this side of the Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain opposite Suph, between Paran, Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

[2]It is eleven days' journey from Horeb by way of Mount Seir to Kadesh Barnea.

[3]Now it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spoke to the children of Israel according to all that the LORD had given him as commandments to them,

[4]after he had killed Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and Og king of Bashan, who dwelt at Ashtaroth in Edrei.

[5]On this side of the Jordan in the land of Moab, Moses began to explain this law, saying,

[6]"The LORD our God spoke to us in Horeb, saying: 'You have dwelt long enough at this mountain.

[7]'Turn and take your journey, and go to the mountains of the Amorites, to all the neighboring places in the plain, in the mountains and in the lowland, in the South and on the seacoast, to the land of the Canaanites and to Lebanon, as far as the great river, the River Euphrates.

[8]'See, I have set the land before you; go in and possess the land which the LORD swore to your fathers—to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—to give to them and their descendants after them.'

Tribal Leaders Appointed

[9]"And I spoke to you at that time, saying: 'I alone am not able to bear you.

[10]'The LORD your God has multiplied you, and here you are today, as the stars of heaven in multitude.

[11]'May the LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times more numerous than you are, and bless you as He has promised you!

[12]‘How can I alone bear your problems and your burdens and your complaints?

[13]‘Choose wise, understanding, and knowledgeable men from among your tribes, and I will make them heads over you.’

[14]“And you answered me and said, ‘The thing which you have told us to do is good.’

[15]“So I took the heads of your tribes, wise and knowledgeable men, and made them heads over you, leaders of thousands, leaders of hundreds, leaders of fifties, leaders of tens, and officers for your tribes.

[16]“Then I commanded your judges at that time, saying, ‘Hear the cases between your brethren, and judge righteously between a man and his brother or the stranger who is with him.

[17]‘You shall not show partiality in judgment; you shall hear the small as well as the great; you shall not be afraid in any man’s presence, for the judgment is God’s. The case that is too hard for you, bring to me, and I will hear it.’

[18]“And I commanded you at that time all the things which you should do.

Israel’s Refusal to Enter the Land

[19]“So we departed from Horeb, and went through all that great and terrible wilderness which you saw on the way to the mountains of the Amorites, as the LORD our God had commanded us. Then we came to Kadesh Barnea.

[20]“And I said to you, ‘You have come to the mountains of the Amorites, which the LORD our God is giving us.

[21]‘Look, the LORD your God has set the land before you; go up and possess it, as the LORD God of your fathers has spoken to you; do not fear or be discouraged.’

[22]“And every one of you came near to me and said, ‘Let us send men before us, and let them search out the land for us, and bring back word to us of the way by which we should go up, and of the cities into which we shall come.’

[23]“The plan pleased me well; so I took twelve of your men, one man from each tribe.

[24]“And they departed and went up into the mountains, and came to the Valley of Eshcol, and spied it out.

[25]“They also took some of the fruit of the land in their hands and brought it down to us; and they brought back word to us, saying, ‘It is a good land which the LORD our God is giving us.’

[26]“Nevertheless you would not go up, but rebelled against the command of the LORD your God;

[27]“and you complained in your tents, and said, ‘Because the LORD hates us, He has brought us out of the land of Egypt to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us.

[28]‘Where can we go up? Our brethren have discouraged our hearts, saying, “The people are greater and taller than we; the cities are great and fortified up to heaven; moreover we have seen the sons of the Anakim there.” ’

[29]“Then I said to you, ‘Do not be terrified, or afraid of them.

[30]‘The LORD your God, who goes before you, He will fight for you, according to all He did for you in Egypt before your eyes,

[31]‘and in the wilderness where you saw how the LORD your God carried you, as a man carries his son, in all the way that you went until you came to this place.’

[32]“Yet, for all that, you did not believe the LORD your God,

[33]“who went in the way before you to search out a place for you to pitch your tents, to show you the way you should go, in the fire by night and in the cloud by day.

The Penalty for Israel’s Rebellion

[34]“And the LORD heard the sound of your words, and was angry, and took an oath, saying,

[35]‘Surely not one of these men of this evil generation shall see that good land of which I swore to give to your fathers,

[36]‘except Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it, and to him and his children I am giving the land on which he walked, because he wholly followed the LORD.’

[37]“The LORD was also angry with me for your sakes, saying, ‘Even you shall not go in there.

[38]‘Joshua the son of Nun, who stands before you, he shall go in there. Encourage him, for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

[39]‘Moreover your little ones and your children, who you say will be victims, who today have no knowledge of good and evil, they shall go in there; to them I will give it, and they shall possess it.

[40]‘But as for you, turn and take your journey into the wilderness by the Way of the Red Sea.’

[41]“Then you answered and said to me, ‘We have sinned against the LORD; we will go up and fight, just as the LORD our God commanded us.’ And when everyone of you had girded on his weapons of war, you were ready to go up into the mountain.

[42]“And the LORD said to me, ‘Tell them, “Do not go up nor fight, for I am not among you; lest you be defeated before your enemies.”’

[43]“So I spoke to you; yet you would not listen, but rebelled against the command of the LORD, and presumptuously went up into the mountain.

[44]“And the Amorites who dwelt in that mountain came out against you and chased you as bees do, and drove you back from Seir to Hormah.

[45]“Then you returned and wept before the LORD, but the LORD would not listen to your voice nor give ear to you.

[46]“So you remained in Kadesh many days, according to the days that you spent there.

Deuteronomy 2

The Desert Years

[1]“Then we turned and journeyed into the wilderness of the Way of the Red Sea, as the LORD spoke to me, and we skirted Mount Seir for many days.

[2]“And the LORD spoke to me, saying:

[3]‘You have skirted this mountain long enough; turn northward.

[4]‘And command the people, saying, “You are about to pass through the territory of your brethren, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir; and they will be afraid of you. Therefore watch yourselves carefully.

[5]“Do not meddle with them, for I will not give you any of their land, no, not so much as one footstep, because I have given Mount Seir to Esau as a possession.

[6]“You shall buy food from them with money, that you may eat; and you shall also buy water from them with money, that you may drink.

[7]“For the LORD your God has blessed you in all the work of your hand. He knows your trudging through this great wilderness. These forty years the LORD your God has been with you; you have lacked nothing.” ’

[8]“And when we passed beyond our brethren, the descendants of Esau who dwell in Seir, away from the road of the plain, away from Elath and Ezion Geber, we turned and passed by way of the Wilderness of Moab.

[9]“Then the LORD said to me, ‘Do not harass Moab, nor contend with them in battle, for I will not give you any of their land as a possession, because I have given Ar to the descendants of Lot as a possession.’ ”

[10](The Emim had dwelt there in times past, a people as great and numerous and tall as the Anakim.

[11]They were also regarded as giants, like the Anakim, but the Moabites call them Emim.

[12]The Horites formerly dwelt in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their place, just as Israel did to the land of their possession which the LORD gave them.)

[13]“ ‘Now rise and cross over the Valley of the Zered.’ So we crossed over the Valley of the Zered.

[14]“And the time we took to come from Kadesh Barnea until we crossed over the Valley of the Zered was thirty-eight years, until all the generation of the men of war was consumed from the midst of the camp, just as the LORD had sworn to them.

[15]“For indeed the hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from the midst of the camp until they were consumed.

[16]“So it was, when all the men of war had finally perished from among the people,

[17]“that the LORD spoke to me, saying:

[18]‘This day you are to cross over at Ar, the boundary of Moab.

[19]‘And when you come near the people of Ammon, do not harass them or meddle with them, for I will not give you any of the land of the people of Ammon as a possession, because I have given it to the descendants of Lot as a possession.’ ”

[20](That was also regarded as a land of giants; giants formerly dwelt there. But the Ammonites call them Zamzummim,

[21]a people as great and numerous and tall as the Anakim. But the LORD destroyed them before them, and they dispossessed them and dwelt in their place,

[22]just as He had done for the descendants of Esau, who dwelt in Seir, when He destroyed the Horites from before them. They dispossessed them and dwelt in their place, even to this day.

[23]And the Avim, who dwelt in villages as far as Gaza—the Caphtorim, who came from Caphtor, destroyed them and dwelt in their place.)

[24]“ ‘Rise, take your journey, and cross over the River Arnon. Look, I have given into your hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land. Begin to possess it, and engage him in battle.

[25]‘This day I will begin to put the dread and fear of you upon the nations under the whole heaven, who shall hear the report of you, and shall tremble and be in anguish because of you.’

King Sihon Defeated

26“And I sent messengers from the Wilderness of Kedemoth to Sihon king of Heshbon, with words of peace, saying,

27‘Let me pass through your land; I will keep strictly to the road, and I will turn neither to the right nor to the left.

28‘You shall sell me food for money, that I may eat, and give me water for money, that I may drink; only let me pass through on foot,

29‘just as the descendants of Esau who dwell in Seir and the Moabites who dwell in Ar did for me, until I cross the Jordan to the land which the LORD our God is giving us.’

30“But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass through, for the LORD your God hardened his spirit and made his heart obstinate, that He might deliver him into your hand, as it is this day.

31“And the LORD said to me, ‘See, I have begun to give Sihon and his land over to you. Begin to possess it, that you may inherit his land.’

32“Then Sihon and all his people came out against us to fight at Jahaz.

33“And the LORD our God delivered him over to us; so we defeated him, his sons, and all his people.

34“We took all his cities at that time, and we utterly destroyed the men, women, and little ones of every city; we left none remaining.

35“We took only the livestock as plunder for ourselves, with the spoil of the cities which we took.

36“From Aroer, which is on the bank of the River Arnon, and from the city that is in the ravine, as far as Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us; the LORD our God delivered all to us.

37“Only you did not go near the land of the people of Ammon—anywhere along the River Jabbok, or to the cities of the mountains, or wherever the LORD our God had forbidden us.

Deuteronomy 3

King Og Defeated

[1]“Then we turned and went up the road to Bashan; and Og king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.

[2]“And the LORD said to me, ‘Do not fear him, for I have delivered him and all his people and his land into your hand; you shall do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon.’

[3]“So the LORD our God also delivered into our hands Og king of Bashan, with all his people, and we attacked him until he had no survivors remaining.

[4]“And we took all his cities at that time; there was not a city which we did not take from them: sixty cities, all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

[5]“All these cities were fortified with high walls, gates, and bars, besides a great many rural towns.

[6]“And we utterly destroyed them, as we did to Sihon king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children of every city.

[7]“But all the livestock and the spoil of the cities we took as booty for ourselves.

[8]“And at that time we took the land from the hand of the two kings of the Amorites who were on this side of the Jordan, from the River Arnon to Mount Hermon

[9]“(the Sidonians call Hermon Sirion, and the Amorites call it Senir),

[10]“all the cities of the plain, all Gilead, and all Bashan, as far as Salcah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

[11]“For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of the giants. Indeed his bedstead was an iron bedstead. (Is it not in Rabbah of the people of Ammon?) Nine cubits is its length and four cubits its width, according to the standard cubit.

The Land East of the Jordan Divided

[12]“And this land, which we possessed at that time, from Aroer, which is by the River Arnon, and half the mountains of Gilead and its cities, I gave to the Reubenites and the Gadites.

[13]“The rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to half the tribe of Manasseh. (All the region of Argob, with all Bashan, was called the land of the giants.

[14]“Jair the son of Manasseh took all the region of Argob, as far as the border of the Geshurites and the Maachathites, and called Bashan after his own name, Havoth Jair, to this day.)

[15]“Also I gave Gilead to Machir.

[16]“And to the Reubenites and the Gadites I gave from Gilead as far as the River Arnon, the middle of the river as the border, as far as the River Jabbok, the border of the people of Ammon;

[17]“the plain also, with the Jordan as the border, from Chinnereth as far as the east side of the Sea of the Arabah (the Salt Sea), below the slopes of Pisgah.

[18]“Then I commanded you at that time, saying: ‘The LORD your God has given you this land to possess. All you men of valor shall cross over armed before your brethren, the children of Israel.

[19]‘But your wives, your little ones, and your livestock (I know that you have much livestock) shall stay in your cities which I have given you,

[20]‘until the LORD has given rest to your brethren as to you, and they also possess the land which the LORD your God is giving them beyond the Jordan. Then each of you may return to his possession which I have given you.’

[21]“And I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, ‘Your eyes have seen all that the LORD your God has done to these two kings; so will the LORD do to all the kingdoms through which you pass.

[22]‘You must not fear them, for the LORD your God Himself fights for you.’

Moses Forbidden to Enter the Land

[23]“Then I pleaded with the LORD at that time, saying:

[24]‘O Lord GOD, You have begun to show Your servant Your greatness and Your mighty hand, for what god is there in heaven or on earth who can do anything like Your works and Your mighty deeds?

[25]‘I pray, let me cross over and see the good land beyond the Jordan, those pleasant mountains, and Lebanon.’

[26]“But the LORD was angry with me on your account, and would not listen to me. So the LORD said to me: ‘Enough of that! Speak no more to Me of this matter.

[27]‘Go up to the top of Pisgah, and lift your eyes toward the west, the north, the south, and the east; behold it with your eyes, for you shall not cross over this Jordan.

[28]‘But command Joshua, and encourage him and strengthen him; for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which you will see.’

[29]“So we stayed in the valley opposite Beth Peor.

Deuteronomy 4

Moses Commands Obedience

[1]“Now, O Israel, listen to the statutes and the judgments which I teach you to observe, that you may live, and go in and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers is giving you.

[2]“You shall not add to the word which I command you, nor take from it, that you may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.

[3]“Your eyes have seen what the LORD did at Baal Peor; for the LORD your God has destroyed from among you all the men who followed Baal of Peor.

[4]“But you who held fast to the LORD your God are alive today, every one of you.

[5]“Surely I have taught you statutes and judgments, just as the LORD my God commanded me, that you should act according to them in the land which you go to possess.

[6]“Therefore be careful to observe them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the peoples who will hear all these statutes, and say, ‘Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.’

[7]“For what great nation is there that has God so near to it, as the LORD our God is to us, for whatever reason we may call upon Him?

[8]“And what great nation is there that has such statutes and righteous judgments as are in all this law which I set before you this day?

[9]“Only take heed to yourself, and diligently keep yourself, lest you forget the things your eyes have seen, and lest they depart from your heart all the days of your life. And teach them to your children and your grandchildren,

[10]“especially concerning the day you stood before the LORD your God in Horeb, when the LORD said to me, ‘Gather the people to Me, and I will let them hear My words, that they may learn to fear Me all the days they live on the earth, and that they may teach their children.’

[11]“Then you came near and stood at the foot of the mountain, and the mountain burned with fire to the midst of heaven, with darkness, cloud, and thick darkness.

[12]“And the LORD spoke to you out of the midst of the fire. You heard the sound of the words, but saw no form; you only heard a voice.

[13]“So He declared to you His covenant which He commanded you to perform, the Ten Commandments; and He wrote them on two tablets of stone.

[14]“And the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that you might observe them in the land which you cross over to possess.

Beware of Idolatry

[15]“Take careful heed to yourselves, for you saw no form when the LORD spoke to you at Horeb out of the midst of the fire,

[16]“lest you act corruptly and make for yourselves a carved image in the form of any figure: the likeness of male or female,

[17]“the likeness of any animal that is on the earth or the likeness of any winged bird that flies in the air,

[18]“the likeness of anything that creeps on the ground or the likeness of any fish that is in the water beneath the earth.

[19]“And take heed, lest you lift your eyes to heaven, and when you see the sun, the moon, and the stars, all the host of heaven, you feel driven to worship them and serve them, which the LORD your God has given to all the peoples under the whole heaven as a heritage.

[20]“But the LORD has taken you and brought you out of the iron furnace, out of Egypt, to be His people, an inheritance, as you are this day.

[21]“Furthermore the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and swore that I would not cross over the Jordan, and that I would not enter the good land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance.

[22]“But I must die in this land, I must not cross over the Jordan; but you shall cross over and possess that good land.

[23]“Take heed to yourselves, lest you forget the covenant of the LORD your God which He made with you, and make for yourselves a carved image in the form of anything which the LORD your God has forbidden you.

[24]“For the LORD your God is a consuming fire, a jealous God.

[25]“When you beget children and grandchildren and have grown old in the land, and act corruptly and make a carved image in the form of anything, and do evil in the sight of the LORD your God to provoke Him to anger,

[26]“I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that you will soon utterly perish from the land which you cross over the Jordan to possess; you will not prolong your days in it, but will be utterly destroyed.

[27]“And the LORD will scatter you among the peoples, and you will be left few in number among the nations where the LORD will drive you.

[28]“And there you will serve gods, the work of men’s hands, wood and stone, which neither see nor hear nor eat nor smell.

[29]“But from there you will seek the LORD your God, and you will find Him if you seek Him with all your heart and with all your soul.

[30]“When you are in distress, and all these things come upon you in the latter days, when you turn to the LORD your God and obey His voice

[31]“(for the LORD your God is a merciful God), He will not forsake you nor destroy you, nor forget the covenant of your fathers which He swore to them.

[32]“For ask now concerning the days that are past, which were before you, since the day that God created man on the earth, and ask from one end of heaven to the other, whether any great thing like this has happened, or anything like it has been heard.

[33]“Did any people ever hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as you have heard, and live?

[34]“Or did God ever try to go and take for Himself a nation from the midst of another nation, by trials, by signs, by wonders, by war, by a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, and by great terrors, according to all that the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

[35]“To you it was shown, that you might know that the LORD Himself is God; there is none other besides Him.

[36]“Out of heaven He let you hear His voice, that He might instruct you; on earth He showed you His great fire, and you heard His words out of the midst of the fire.

[37]“And because He loved your fathers, therefore He chose their descendants after them; and He brought you out of Egypt with His Presence, with His mighty power, [38]“driving out from before you nations greater and mightier than you, to bring you in, to give you their land as an inheritance, as it is this day.

[39]“Therefore know this day, and consider it in your heart, that the LORD Himself is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath; there is no other.

[40]“You shall therefore keep His statutes and His commandments which I command you today, that it may go well with you and with your children after you, and that you may prolong your days in the land which the LORD your God is giving you for all time.”

Cities of Refuge East of the Jordan

[41]Then Moses set apart three cities on this side of the Jordan, toward the rising of the sun,

[42]that the manslayer might flee there, who kills his neighbor unintentionally, without having hated him in time past, and that by fleeing to one of these cities he might live:

[43]Bezer in the wilderness on the plateau for the Reubenites, Ramoth in Gilead for the Gadites, and Golan in Bashan for the Manassites.

Introduction to God’s Law

[44]Now this is the law which Moses set before the children of Israel.

[45]These are the testimonies, the statutes, and the judgments which Moses spoke to the children of Israel after they came out of Egypt,

[46]on this side of the Jordan, in the valley opposite Beth Peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the children of Israel defeated after they came out of Egypt.

[47]And they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, who were on this side of the Jordan, toward the rising of the sun,

[48]from Aroer, which is on the bank of the River Arnon, even to Mount Sion (that is, Hermon), [49]and all the plain on the east side of the Jordan as far as the Sea of the Arabah, below the slopes of Pisgah.

Deuteronomy 5

The Ten Commandments Reviewed

[1]And Moses called all Israel, and said to them: “Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your hearing today, that you may learn them and be careful to observe them.

[2]“The LORD our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

[3]“The LORD did not make this covenant with our fathers, but with us, those who are here today, all of us who are alive.

[4]“The LORD talked with you face to face on the mountain from the midst of the fire.

[5]“I stood between the LORD and you at that time, to declare to you the word of the LORD; for you were afraid because of the fire, and you did not go up the mountain. He said:

[6]‘I am the LORD your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

[7]‘You shall have no other gods before Me.

[8]‘You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth;

[9]you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me,

[10]but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.

[11]‘You shall not take the name of the LORD your God in vain, for the LORD will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain.

[12]‘Observe the Sabbath day, to keep it holy, as the LORD your God commanded you.

[13]Six days you shall labor and do all your work,

[14]but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the LORD your God. In it you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your male servant, nor your female servant, nor your ox, nor your donkey, nor any of your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates, that your male servant and your female servant may rest as well as you.

[15]And remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and the LORD your God brought you out from there by a mighty hand and by an outstretched arm; therefore the LORD your God commanded you to keep the Sabbath day.

16‘Honor your father and your mother, as the LORD your God has commanded you, that your days may be long, and that it may be well with you in the land which the LORD your God is giving you.

17‘You shall not murder.

18‘You shall not commit adultery.

19‘You shall not steal.

20‘You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.

21‘You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife; and you shall not desire your neighbor’s house, his field, his male servant, his female servant, his ox, his donkey, or anything that is your neighbor’s.’

22“These words the LORD spoke to all your assembly, in the mountain from the midst of the fire, the cloud, and the thick darkness, with a loud voice; and He added no more. And He wrote them on two tablets of stone and gave them to me.

The People Afraid of God’s Presence

23“So it was, when you heard the voice from the midst of the darkness, while the mountain was burning with fire, that you came near to me, all the heads of your tribes and your elders.

[24]“And you said: ‘Surely the LORD our God has shown us His glory and His greatness, and we have heard His voice from the midst of the fire. We have seen this day that God speaks with man; yet he still lives.

[25]‘Now therefore, why should we die? For this great fire will consume us; if we hear the voice of the LORD our God anymore, then we shall die.

[26]‘For who is there of all flesh who has heard the voice of the living God speaking from the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

[27]‘You go near and hear all that the LORD our God may say, and tell us all that the LORD our God says to you, and we will hear and do it.’

[28]“Then the LORD heard the voice of your words when you spoke to me, and the LORD said to me: ‘I have heard the voice of the words of this people which they have spoken to you. They are right in all that they have spoken.

[29]‘Oh, that they had such a heart in them that they would fear Me and always keep all My commandments, that it might be well with them and with their children forever!

[30]‘Go and say to them, “Return to your tents.”

[31]‘But as for you, stand here by Me, and I will speak to you all the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments which you shall teach them, that they may observe them in the land which I am giving them to possess.’

[32]“Therefore you shall be careful to do as the LORD your God has commanded you; you shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

[33]“You shall walk in all the ways which the LORD your God has commanded you, that you may live and that it may be well with you, and that you may prolong your days in the land which you shall possess.

Deuteronomy 6

The Greatest Commandment

[1]“Now this is the commandment, and these are the statutes and judgments which the LORD your God has commanded to teach you, that you may observe them in the land which you are crossing over to possess,

[2]“that you may fear the LORD your God, to keep all His statutes and His commandments which I command you, you and your son and your grandson, all the days of your life, and that your days may be prolonged.

[3]“Therefore hear, O Israel, and be careful to observe it, that it may be well with you, and that you may multiply greatly as the LORD God of your fathers has promised you—‘a land flowing with milk and honey.’

[4]“Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one!

[5]“You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your strength.

[6]“And these words which I command you today shall be in your heart.

[7]“You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, when you walk by the way, when you lie down, and when you rise up.

[8]“You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes.

[9]“You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates.

Caution Against Disobedience

[10]“So it shall be, when the LORD your God brings you into the land of which He swore to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give you large and beautiful cities which you did not build,

[11]“houses full of all good things, which you did not fill, hewn-out wells which you did not dig, vineyards and olive trees which you did not plant—when you have eaten and are full—

[12]“then beware, lest you forget the LORD who brought you out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

[13]“You shall fear the LORD your God and serve Him, and shall take oaths in His name.

[14]“You shall not go after other gods, the gods of the peoples who are all around you [15]“(for the LORD your God is a jealous God among you), lest the anger of the LORD your God be aroused against you and destroy you from the face of the earth.

16“You shall not tempt the LORD your God as you tempted Him in Massah.

[17]“You shall diligently keep the commandments of the LORD your God, His testimonies, and His statutes which He has commanded you.

[18]“And you shall do what is right and good in the sight of the LORD, that it may be well with you, and that you may go in and possess the good land of which the LORD swore to your fathers, [19]“to cast out all your enemies from before you, as the LORD has spoken.

20“When your son asks you in time to come, saying, ‘What is the meaning of the testimonies, the statutes, and the judgments which the LORD our God has commanded you?’

[21]“then you shall say to your son: ‘We were slaves of Pharaoh in Egypt, and the LORD brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand;

[22]‘and the LORD showed signs and wonders before our eyes, great and severe, against Egypt, Pharaoh, and all his household.

[23]‘Then He brought us out from there, that He might bring us in, to give us the land of which He swore to our fathers.

[24]‘And the LORD commanded us to observe all these statutes, to fear the LORD our God, for our good always, that He might preserve us alive, as it is this day.

[25]‘Then it will be righteousness for us, if we are careful to observe all these commandments before the LORD our God, as He has commanded us.’

Deuteronomy 7

A Chosen People

[1]“When the LORD your God brings you into the land which you go to possess, and has cast out many nations before you, the Hittites and the Girgashites and the Amorites and the Canaanites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, seven nations greater and mightier than you,

[2]“and when the LORD your God delivers them over to you, you shall conquer them and utterly destroy them. You shall make no covenant with them nor show mercy to them.

[3]“Nor shall you make marriages with them. You shall not give your daughter to their son, nor take their daughter for your son.

[4]“For they will turn your sons away from following Me, to serve other gods; so the anger of the LORD will be aroused against you and destroy you suddenly.

[5]“But thus you shall deal with them: you shall destroy their altars, and break down their sacred pillars, and cut down their wooden images, and burn their carved images with fire.

[6]“For you are a holy people to the LORD your God; the LORD your God has chosen you to be a people for Himself, a special treasure above all the peoples on the face of the earth.

[7]“The LORD did not set His love on you nor choose you because you were more in number than any other people, for you were the least of all peoples;

[8]“but because the LORD loves you, and because He would keep the oath which He swore to your fathers, the LORD has brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you from the house of bondage, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt.

[9]“Therefore know that the LORD your God, He is God, the faithful God who keeps covenant and mercy for a thousand generations with those who love Him and keep His commandments;

[10]“and He repays those who hate Him to their face, to destroy them. He will not be slack with him who hates Him; He will repay him to his face.

[11]“Therefore you shall keep the commandment, the statutes, and the judgments which I command you today, to observe them.

Blessings of Obedience

[12]“Then it shall come to pass, because you listen to these judgments, and keep and do them, that the LORD your God will keep with you the covenant and the mercy which He swore to your fathers.

[13]“And He will love you and bless you and multiply you; He will also bless the fruit of your womb and the fruit of your land, your grain and your new wine and your oil, the increase of your cattle and the offspring of your flock, in the land of which He swore to your fathers to give you.

[14]“You shall be blessed above all peoples; there shall not be a male or female barren among you or among your livestock.

[15]“And the LORD will take away from you all sickness, and will afflict you with none of the terrible diseases of Egypt which you have known, but will lay them on all those who hate you.

[16]“Also you shall destroy all the peoples whom the LORD your God delivers over to you; your eye shall have no pity on them; nor shall you serve their gods, for that will be a snare to you.

[17]“If you should say in your heart, ‘These nations are greater than I; how can I dispossess them?’—

[18]“you shall not be afraid of them, but you shall remember well what the LORD your God did to Pharaoh and to all Egypt:

[19]“the great trials which your eyes saw, the signs and the wonders, the mighty hand and the outstretched arm, by which the LORD your God brought you out. So shall the LORD your God do to all the peoples of whom you are afraid.

[20]“Moreover the LORD your God will send the hornet among them until those who are left, who hide themselves from you, are destroyed.

[21]“You shall not be terrified of them; for the LORD your God, the great and awesome God, is among you.

[22]“And the LORD your God will drive out those nations before you little by little; you will be unable to destroy them at once, lest the beasts of the field become too numerous for you.

[23]"But the LORD your God will deliver them over to you, and will inflict defeat upon them until they are destroyed.

[24]"And He will deliver their kings into your hand, and you will destroy their name from under heaven; no one shall be able to stand against you until you have destroyed them.

[25]"You shall burn the carved images of their gods with fire; you shall not covet the silver or gold that is on them, nor take it for yourselves, lest you be snared by it; for it is an abomination to the LORD your God.

[26]"Nor shall you bring an abomination into your house, lest you be doomed to destruction like it. You shall utterly detest it and utterly abhor it, for it is an accursed thing.

Deuteronomy 8

Remember the LORD Your God

[1]“Every commandment which I command you today you must be careful to observe, that you may live and multiply, and go in and possess the land of which the LORD swore to your fathers.

[2]“And you shall remember that the LORD your God led you all the way these forty years in the wilderness, to humble you and test you, to know what was in your heart, whether you would keep His commandments or not.

[3]“So He humbled you, allowed you to hunger, and fed you with manna which you did not know nor did your fathers know, that He might make you know that man shall not live by bread alone; but man lives by every word that proceeds from the mouth of the LORD.

[4]“Your garments did not wear out on you, nor did your foot swell these forty years.

[5]“You should know in your heart that as a man chastens his son, so the LORD your God chastens you.

[6]“Therefore you shall keep the commandments of the LORD your God, to walk in His ways and to fear Him.

[7]“For the LORD your God is bringing you into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and springs, that flow out of valleys and hills;

[8]“a land of wheat and barley, of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of olive oil and honey;

[9]“a land in which you will eat bread without scarcity, in which you will lack nothing; a land whose stones are iron and out of whose hills you can dig copper.

[10]“When you have eaten and are full, then you shall bless the LORD your God for the good land which He has given you.

[11]��Beware that you do not forget the LORD your God by not keeping His commandments, His judgments, and His statutes which I command you today,

[12]"lest—when you have eaten and are full, and have built beautiful houses and dwell in them;

[13]"and when your herds and your flocks multiply, and your silver and your gold are multiplied, and all that you have is multiplied;

[14]"when your heart is lifted up, and you forget the LORD your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

[15]"who led you through that great and terrible wilderness, in which were fiery serpents and scorpions and thirsty land where there was no water; who brought water for you out of the flinty rock;

[16]"who fed you in the wilderness with manna, which your fathers did not know, that He might humble you and that He might test you, to do you good in the end—

[17]"then you say in your heart, 'My power and the might of my hand have gained me this wealth.'

[18]"And you shall remember the LORD your God, for it is He who gives you power to get wealth, that He may establish His covenant which He swore to your fathers, as it is this day.

[19]"Then it shall be, if you by any means forget the LORD your God, and follow other gods, and serve them and worship them, I testify against you this day that you shall surely perish.

[20]"As the nations which the LORD destroys before you, so you shall perish, because you would not be obedient to the voice of the LORD your God.

Deuteronomy 9

Israel's Rebellions Reviewed

[1]"Hear, O Israel: You are to cross over the Jordan today, and go in to dispossess nations greater and mightier than yourself, cities great and fortified up to heaven,

[2]"a people great and tall, the descendants of the Anakim, whom you know, and of whom you heard it said, 'Who can stand before the descendants of Anak?'

[3]"Therefore understand today that the LORD your God is He who goes over before you as a consuming fire. He will destroy them and bring them down before you; so you shall drive them out and destroy them quickly, as the LORD has said to you.

[4]"Do not think in your heart, after the LORD your God has cast them out before you, saying, 'Because of my righteousness the LORD has brought me in to possess this land'; but it is because of the wickedness of these nations that the LORD is driving them out from before you.

[5]"It is not because of your righteousness or the uprightness of your heart that you go in to possess their land, but because of the wickedness of these nations that the LORD your God drives them out from before you, and that He may fulfill the word which the LORD swore to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

[6]"Therefore understand that the LORD your God is not giving you this good land to possess because of your righteousness, for you are a stiff-necked people.

[7]"Remember! Do not forget how you provoked the LORD your God to wrath in the wilderness. From the day that you departed from the land of Egypt until you came to this place, you have been rebellious against the LORD.

[8]"Also in Horeb you provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry enough with you to have destroyed you.

[9]"When I went up into the mountain to receive the tablets of stone, the tablets of the covenant which the LORD made with you, then I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights. I neither ate bread nor drank water.

[10]"Then the LORD delivered to me two tablets of stone written with the finger of God, and on them were all the words which the LORD had spoken to you on the mountain from the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly.

[11]"And it came to pass, at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tablets of stone, the tablets of the covenant.

[12]"Then the LORD said to me, 'Arise, go down quickly from here, for your people whom you brought out of Egypt have acted corruptly; they have quickly turned aside from the way which I commanded them; they have made themselves a molded image.'

13"Furthermore the LORD spoke to me, saying, 'I have seen this people, and indeed they are a stiff-necked people.

[14]'Let Me alone, that I may destroy them and blot out their name from under heaven; and I will make of you a nation mightier and greater than they.'

[15]"So I turned and came down from the mountain, and the mountain burned with fire; and the two tablets of the covenant were in my two hands.

[16]"And I looked, and behold, you had sinned against the LORD your God—had made for yourselves a molded calf! You had turned aside quickly from the way which the LORD had commanded you.

[17]"Then I took the two tablets and threw them out of my two hands and broke them before your eyes.

[18]"And I fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights; I neither ate bread nor drank water, because of all your sin which you committed in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke Him to anger.

[19]"For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure with which the LORD was angry with you, to destroy you. But the LORD listened to me at that time also.

[20]"And the LORD was very angry with Aaron and would have destroyed him; so I prayed for Aaron also at the same time.

[21]“Then I took your sin, the calf which you had made, and burned it with fire and crushed it and ground it very small, until it was as fine as dust; and I threw its dust into the brook that descended from the mountain.

[22]“Also at Taberah and Massah and Kibroth Hattaavah you provoked the LORD to wrath.

[23]“Likewise, when the LORD sent you from Kadesh Barnea, saying, ‘Go up and possess the land which I have given you,’ then you rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and you did not believe Him nor obey His voice.

[24]“You have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

[25]“Thus I prostrated myself before the LORD; forty days and forty nights I kept prostrating myself, because the LORD had said He would destroy you.

[26]“Therefore I prayed to the LORD, and said: ‘O Lord GOD, do not destroy Your people and Your inheritance whom You have redeemed through Your greatness, whom You have brought out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

[27]‘Remember Your servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; do not look on the stubbornness of this people, or on their wickedness or their sin,

[28]‘lest the land from which You brought us should say, “Because the LORD was not able to bring them to the land which He promised them, and because He hated them, He has brought them out to kill them in the wilderness.”

[29]‘Yet they are Your people and Your inheritance, whom You brought out by Your mighty power and by Your outstretched arm.’

Deuteronomy 10

The Second Pair of Tablets

[1]"At that time the LORD said to me, 'Hew for yourself two tablets of stone like the first, and come up to Me on the mountain and make yourself an ark of wood.

[2]'And I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke; and you shall put them in the ark.'

[3]"So I made an ark of acacia wood, hewed two tablets of stone like the first, and went up the mountain, having the two tablets in my hand.

[4]"And He wrote on the tablets according to the first writing, the Ten Commandments, which the LORD had spoken to you in the mountain from the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly; and the LORD gave them to me.

[5]"Then I turned and came down from the mountain, and put the tablets in the ark which I had made; and there they are, just as the LORD commanded me."

[6](Now the children of Israel journeyed from the wells of Bene Jaakan to Moserah, where Aaron died, and where he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered as priest in his stead.

[7]From there they journeyed to Gudgodah, and from Gudgodah to Jotbathah, a land of rivers of water.

[8]At that time the LORD separated the tribe of Levi to bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, to stand before the LORD to minister to Him and to bless in His name, to this day.

[9]Therefore Levi has no portion nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, just as the LORD your God promised him.)

[10]"As at the first time, I stayed in the mountain forty days and forty nights; the LORD also heard me at that time, and the LORD chose not to destroy you.

[11]"Then the LORD said to me, 'Arise, begin your journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land which I swore to their fathers to give them.'

The Essence of the Law

12“And now, Israel, what does the LORD your God require of you, but to fear the LORD your God, to walk in all His ways and to love Him, to serve the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul, 13“and to keep the commandments of the LORD and His statutes which I command you today for your good?

14“Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the LORD your God, also the earth with all that is in it.

15“The LORD delighted only in your fathers, to love them; and He chose their descendants after them, you above all peoples, as it is this day.

16“Therefore circumcise the foreskin of your heart, and be stiff-necked no longer.

17“For the LORD your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and awesome, who shows no partiality nor takes a bribe.

18“He administers justice for the fatherless and the widow, and loves the stranger, giving him food and clothing.

19“Therefore love the stranger, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20“You shall fear the LORD your God; you shall serve Him, and to Him you shall hold fast, and take oaths in His name.

21“He is your praise, and He is your God, who has done for you these great and awesome things which your eyes have seen.

22“Your fathers went down to Egypt with seventy persons, and now the LORD your God has made you as the stars of heaven in multitude.

Deuteronomy 11

Love and Obedience Rewarded

[1]"Therefore you shall love the LORD your God, and keep His charge, His statutes, His judgments, and His commandments always.

[2]"Know today that I do not speak with your children, who have not known and who have not seen the chastening of the LORD your God, His greatness and His mighty hand and His outstretched arm—

[3]"His signs and His acts which He did in the midst of Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to all his land;

[4]"what He did to the army of Egypt, to their horses and their chariots: how He made the waters of the Red Sea overflow them as they pursued you, and how the LORD has destroyed them to this day;

[5]"what He did for you in the wilderness until you came to this place;

[6]"and what He did to Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, their households, their tents, and all the substance that was in their possession, in the midst of all Israel—

[7]"but your eyes have seen every great act of the LORD which He did.

[8]"Therefore you shall keep every commandment which I command you today, that you may be strong, and go in and possess the land which you cross over to possess,

[9]"and that you may prolong your days in the land which the LORD swore to give your fathers, to them and their descendants, 'a land flowing with milk and honey.'

[10]"For the land which you go to possess is not like the land of Egypt from which you have come, where you sowed your seed and watered it by foot, as a vegetable garden;

[11]"but the land which you cross over to possess is a land of hills and valleys, which drinks water from the rain of heaven,

[12]"a land for which the LORD your God cares; the eyes of the LORD your God are always on it, from the beginning of the year to the very end of the year.

[13]‘And it shall be that if you earnestly obey My commandments which I command you today, to love the LORD your God and serve Him with all your heart and with all your soul,

[14]‘then I will give you the rain for your land in its season, the early rain and the latter rain, that you may gather in your grain, your new wine, and your oil.

[15]‘And I will send grass in your fields for your livestock, that you may eat and be filled.’

[16]Take heed to yourselves, lest your heart be deceived, and you turn aside and serve other gods and worship them,

[17]“lest the LORD’s anger be aroused against you, and He shut up the heavens so that there be no rain, and the land yield no produce, and you perish quickly from the good land which the LORD is giving you.

[18]“Therefore you shall lay up these words of mine in your heart and in your soul, and bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes.

[19]“You shall teach them to your children, speaking of them when you sit in your house, when you walk by the way, when you lie down, and when you rise up.

[20]“And you shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates, [21]“that your days and the days of your children may be multiplied in the land of which the LORD swore to your fathers to give them, like the days of the heavens above the earth.

[22]“For if you carefully keep all these commandments which I command you to do—to love the LORD your God, to walk in all His ways, and to hold fast to Him—

[23]“then the LORD will drive out all these nations from before you, and you will dispossess greater and mightier nations than yourselves.

[24]“Every place on which the sole of your foot treads shall be yours: from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the River Euphrates, even to the Western Sea, shall be your territory.

[25]“No man shall be able to stand against you; the LORD your God will put the dread of you and the fear of you upon all the land where you tread, just as He has said to you.

26“Behold, I set before you today a blessing and a curse:

27“the blessing, if you obey the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you today;

28“and the curse, if you do not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside from the way which I command you today, to go after other gods which you have not known.

29“Now it shall be, when the LORD your God has brought you into the land which you go to possess, that you shall put the blessing on Mount Gerizim and the curse on Mount Ebal.

30“Are they not on the other side of the Jordan, toward the setting sun, in the land of the Canaanites who dwell in the plain opposite Gilgal, beside the terebinth trees of Moreh?

31“For you will cross over the Jordan and go in to possess the land which the LORD your God is giving you, and you will possess it and dwell in it.

32“And you shall be careful to observe all the statutes and judgments which I set before you today.

Deuteronomy 12

A Prescribed Place of Worship

[1]"These are the statutes and judgments which you shall be careful to observe in the land which the LORD God of your fathers is giving you to possess, all the days that you live on the earth.

[2]"You shall utterly destroy all the places where the nations which you shall dispossess served their gods, on the high mountains and on the hills and under every green tree.

[3]"And you shall destroy their altars, break their sacred pillars, and burn their wooden images with fire; you shall cut down the carved images of their gods and destroy their names from that place.

[4]"You shall not worship the LORD your God with such things.

[5]"But you shall seek the place where the LORD your God chooses, out of all your tribes, to put His name for His dwelling place; and there you shall go.

[6]"There you shall take your burnt offerings, your sacrifices, your tithes, the heave offerings of your hand, your vowed offerings, your freewill offerings, and the firstborn of your herds and flocks.

[7]"And there you shall eat before the LORD your God, and you shall rejoice in all to which you have put your hand, you and your households, in which the LORD your God has blessed you.

[8]"You shall not at all do as we are doing here today—every man doing whatever is right in his own eyes—

[9]"for as yet you have not come to the rest and the inheritance which the LORD your God is giving you.

[10]"But when you cross over the Jordan and dwell in the land which the LORD your God is giving you to inherit, and He gives you rest from all your enemies round about, so that you dwell in safety, [11]"then there will be the place where the LORD your God chooses to make His name abide. There you shall bring all that I command you: your burnt offerings, your sacrifices, your tithes, the heave offerings of your hand, and all your choice offerings which you vow to the LORD.

[12]“And you shall rejoice before the LORD your God, you and your sons and your daughters, your male and female servants, and the Levite who is within your gates, since he has no portion nor inheritance with you.

[13]“Take heed to yourself that you do not offer your burnt offerings in every place that you see;

[14]“but in the place which the LORD chooses, in one of your tribes, there you shall offer your burnt offerings, and there you shall do all that I command you.

[15]“However, you may slaughter and eat meat within all your gates, whatever your heart desires, according to the blessing of the LORD your God which He has given you; the unclean and the clean may eat of it, of the gazelle and the deer alike.

[16]“Only you shall not eat the blood; you shall pour it on the earth like water.

[17]“You may not eat within your gates the tithe of your grain or your new wine or your oil, of the firstborn of your herd or your flock, of any of your offerings which you vow, of your freewill offerings, or of the heave offering of your hand.

[18]“But you must eat them before the LORD your God in the place which the LORD your God chooses, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant, and the Levite who is within your gates; and you shall rejoice before the LORD your God in all to which you put your hands.

[19]“Take heed to yourself that you do not forsake the Levite as long as you live in your land.

[20]“When the LORD your God enlarges your border as He has promised you, and you say, ‘Let me eat meat,’ because you long to eat meat, you may eat as much meat as your heart desires.

[21]“If the place where the LORD your God chooses to put His name is too far from you, then you may slaughter from your herd and from your flock which the LORD has given you, just as I have commanded you, and you may eat within your gates as much as your heart desires.

[22]“Just as the gazelle and the deer are eaten, so you may eat them; the unclean and the clean alike may eat them.

[23]“Only be sure that you do not eat the blood, for the blood is the life; you may not eat the life with the meat.

[24]“You shall not eat it; you shall pour it on the earth like water.

[25]“You shall not eat it, that it may go well with you and your children after you, when you do what is right in the sight of the LORD.

[26]“Only the holy things which you have, and your vowed offerings, you shall take and go to the place which the LORD chooses.

[27]“And you shall offer your burnt offerings, the meat and the blood, on the altar of the LORD your God; and the blood of your sacrifices shall be poured out on the altar of the LORD your God, and you shall eat the meat.

[28]“Observe and obey all these words which I command you, that it may go well with you and your children after you forever, when you do what is good and right in the sight of the LORD your God.

Beware of False Gods

[29]“When the LORD your God cuts off from before you the nations which you go to dispossess, and you displace them and dwell in their land,

[30]“take heed to yourself that you are not ensnared to follow them, after they are destroyed from before you, and that you do not inquire after their gods, saying, ‘How did these nations serve their gods? I also will do likewise.’

[31]“You shall not worship the LORD your God in that way; for every abomination to the LORD which He hates they have done to their gods; for they burn even their sons and daughters in the fire to their gods.

[32]“Whatever I command you, be careful to observe it; you shall not add to it nor take away from it.

Deuteronomy 13

Punishment of Apostates

[1]“If there arises among you a prophet or a dreamer of dreams, and he gives you a sign or a wonder,

[2]“and the sign or the wonder comes to pass, of which he spoke to you, saying, ‘Let us go after other gods’—which you have not known—‘and let us serve them,’

[3]“you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or that dreamer of dreams, for the LORD your God is testing you to know whether you love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

[4]“You shall walk after the LORD your God and fear Him, and keep His commandments and obey His voice; you shall serve Him and hold fast to Him.

[5]“But that prophet or that dreamer of dreams shall be put to death, because he has spoken in order to turn you away from the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt and redeemed you from the house of bondage, to entice you from the way in which the LORD your God commanded you to walk. So you shall put away the evil from your midst.

[6]“If your brother, the son of your mother, your son or your daughter, the wife of your bosom, or your friend who is as your own soul, secretly entices you, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods,’ which you have not known, neither you nor your fathers,

[7]“of the gods of the people which are all around you, near to you or far off from you, from one end of the earth to the other end of the earth,

[8]“you shall not consent to him or listen to him, nor shall your eye pity him, nor shall you spare him or conceal him;

[9]“but you shall surely kill him; your hand shall be first against him to put him to death, and afterward the hand of all the people.

[10]“And you shall stone him with stones until he dies, because he sought to entice you away from the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

[11]“So all Israel shall hear and fear, and not again do such wickedness as this among you.

[12]“If you hear someone in one of your cities, which the LORD your God gives you to dwell in, saying,

[13]‘Corrupt men have gone out from among you and enticed the inhabitants of their city, saying, “Let us go and serve other gods” ’—which you have not known—

[14]“then you shall inquire, search out, and ask diligently. And if it is indeed true and certain that such an abomination was committed among you, [15]“you shall surely strike the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying it, all that is in it and its livestock—with the edge of the sword.

[16]“And you shall gather all its plunder into the middle of the street, and completely burn with fire the city and all its plunder, for the LORD your God. It shall be a heap forever; it shall not be built again.

[17]“So none of the accursed things shall remain in your hand, that the LORD may turn from the fierceness of His anger and show you mercy, have compassion on you and multiply you, just as He swore to your fathers, [18]“because you have listened to the voice of the LORD your God, to keep all His commandments which I command you today, to do what is right in the eyes of the LORD your God.

Deuteronomy 14

Improper Mourning

[1]"You are the children of the LORD your God; you shall not cut yourselves nor shave the front of your head for the dead.

[2]"For you are a holy people to the LORD your God, and the LORD has chosen you to be a people for Himself, a special treasure above all the peoples who are on the face of the earth.

Clean and Unclean Meat

[3]"You shall not eat any detestable thing.

[4]"These are the animals which you may eat: the ox, the sheep, the goat,

[5]"the deer, the gazelle, the roe deer, the wild goat, the mountain goat, the antelope, and the mountain sheep.

[6]"And you may eat every animal with cloven hooves, having the hoof split into two parts, and that chews the cud, among the animals.

[7]"Nevertheless, of those that chew the cud or have cloven hooves, you shall not eat, such as these: the camel, the hare, and the rock hyrax; for they chew the cud but do not have cloven hooves; they are unclean for you.

[8]"Also the swine is unclean for you, because it has cloven hooves, yet does not chew the cud; you shall not eat their flesh or touch their dead carcasses.

[9]"These you may eat of all that are in the waters: you may eat all that have fins and scales.

[10]"And whatever does not have fins and scales you shall not eat; it is unclean for you.

[11]"All clean birds you may eat.

[12]"But these you shall not eat: the eagle, the vulture, the buzzard, [13]"the red kite, the falcon, and the kite after their kinds;

[14]"every raven after its kind;

[15]“the ostrich, the short-eared owl, the sea gull, and the hawk after their kinds;

[16]“the little owl, the screech owl, the white owl,

[17]“the jackdaw, the carrion vulture, the fisher owl,

[18]“the stork, the heron after its kind, and the hoopoe and the bat.

[19]“Also every creeping thing that flies is unclean for you; they shall not be eaten.

[20]“You may eat all clean birds.

[21]“You shall not eat anything that dies of itself; you may give it to the alien who is within your gates, that he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner; for you are a holy people to the LORD your God. You shall not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk.

Tithing Principles

[22]“You shall truly tithe all the increase of your grain that the field produces year by year.

[23]“And you shall eat before the LORD your God, in the place where He chooses to make His name abide, the tithe of your grain and your new wine and your oil, of the firstborn of your herds and your flocks, that you may learn to fear the LORD your God always.

[24]“But if the journey is too long for you, so that you are not able to carry the tithe, or if the place where the LORD your God chooses to put His name is too far from you, when the LORD your God has blessed you,

[25]“then you shall exchange it for money, take the money in your hand, and go to the place which the LORD your God chooses.

[26]“And you shall spend that money for whatever your heart desires: for oxen or sheep, for wine or similar drink, for whatever your heart desires; you shall eat there before the LORD your God, and you shall rejoice, you and your household.

[27]“You shall not forsake the Levite who is within your gates, for he has no part nor inheritance with you.

[28]“At the end of every third year you shall bring out the tithe of your produce of that year and store it up within your gates.

[29]“And the Levite, because he has no portion nor inheritance with you, and the stranger and the fatherless and the widow who are within your gates, may come and eat and be satisfied, that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work of your hand which you do.

Deuteronomy 15

Debts Canceled Every Seven Years

[1]“At the end of every seven years you shall grant a release of debts.

[2]“And this is the form of the release: Every creditor who has lent anything to his neighbor shall release it; he shall not require it of his neighbor or his brother, because it is called the LORD’s release.

[3]“Of a foreigner you may require it; but you shall give up your claim to what is owed by your brother,

[4]“except when there may be no poor among you; for the LORD will greatly bless you in the land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess as an inheritance—

[5]“only if you carefully obey the voice of the LORD your God, to observe with care all these commandments which I command you today.

[6]“For the LORD your God will bless you just as He promised you; you shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow; you shall reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over you.

Generosity to the Poor

[7]“If there is among you a poor man of your brethren, within any of the gates in your land which the LORD your God is giving you, you shall not harden your heart nor shut your hand from your poor brother,

[8]“but you shall open your hand wide to him and willingly lend him sufficient for his need, whatever he needs.

[9]“Beware lest there be a wicked thought in your heart, saying, ‘The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand,’ and your eye be evil against your poor brother and you give him nothing, and he cry out to the LORD against you, and it become sin among you.

[10]“You shall surely give to him, and your heart should not be grieved when you give to him, because for this thing the LORD your God will bless you in all your works and in all to which you put your hand.

[11]“For the poor will never cease from the land; therefore I command you, saying, ‘You shall open your hand wide to your brother, to your poor and your needy, in your land.’

The Law Concerning Bondservants

12“If your brother, a Hebrew man, or a Hebrew woman, is sold to you and serves you six years, then in the seventh year you shall let him go free from you.

[13]“And when you send him away free from you, you shall not let him go away empty-handed;

[14]“you shall supply him liberally from your flock, from your threshing floor, and from your winepress. From what the LORD has blessed you with, you shall give to him.

[15]“You shall remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and the LORD your God redeemed you; therefore I command you this thing today.

[16]“And if it happens that he says to you, ‘I will not go away from you,’ because he loves you and your house, since he prospers with you,

[17]“then you shall take an awl and thrust it through his ear to the door, and he shall be your servant forever. Also to your female servant you shall do likewise.

[18]“It shall not seem hard to you when you send him away free from you; for he has been worth a double hired servant in serving you six years. Then the LORD your God will bless you in all that you do.

The Law Concerning Firstborn Animals

19“All the firstborn males that come from your herd and your flock you shall sanctify to the LORD your God; you shall do no work with the firstborn of your herd, nor shear the firstborn of your flock.

[20]“You and your household shall eat it before the LORD your God year by year in the place which the LORD chooses.

[21]“But if there is a defect in it, if it is lame or blind or has any serious defect, you shall not sacrifice it to the LORD your God.

[22]“You may eat it within your gates; the unclean and the clean person alike may eat it, as if it were a gazelle or a deer.

[23]“Only you shall not eat its blood; you shall pour it on the ground like water.

Deuteronomy 16

The Passover Reviewed

[1]“Observe the month of Abib, and keep the Passover to the LORD your God, for in the month of Abib the LORD your God brought you out of Egypt by night.

[2]“Therefore you shall sacrifice the Passover to the LORD your God, from the flock and the herd, in the place where the LORD chooses to put His name.

[3]“You shall eat no leavened bread with it; seven days you shall eat unleavened bread with it, that is, the bread of affliction (for you came out of the land of Egypt in haste), that you may remember the day in which you came out of the land of Egypt all the days of your life.

[4]“And no leaven shall be seen among you in all your territory for seven days, nor shall any of the meat which you sacrifice the first day at twilight remain overnight until morning.

[5]“You may not sacrifice the Passover within any of your gates which the LORD your God gives you;

[6]“but at the place where the LORD your God chooses to make His name abide, there you shall sacrifice the Passover at twilight, at the going down of the sun, at the time you came out of Egypt.

[7]“And you shall roast and eat it in the place which the LORD your God chooses, and in the morning you shall turn and go to your tents.

[8]“Six days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a sacred assembly to the LORD your God. You shall do no work on it.

The Feast of Weeks Reviewed

[9]“You shall count seven weeks for yourself; begin to count the seven weeks from the time you begin to put the sickle to the grain.

[10]“Then you shall keep the Feast of Weeks to the LORD your God with the tribute of a freewill offering from your hand, which you shall give as the LORD your God blesses you.

[11]“You shall rejoice before the LORD your God, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant, the Levite who is within your gates, the stranger and the fatherless and the widow who are among you, at the place where the LORD your God chooses to make His name abide.

[12]“And you shall remember that you were a slave in Egypt, and you shall be careful to observe these statutes.

The Feast of Tabernacles Reviewed

[13]“You shall observe the Feast of Tabernacles seven days, when you have gathered from your threshing floor and from your winepress.

[14]“And you shall rejoice in your feast, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant and the Levite, the stranger and the fatherless and the widow, who are within your gates.

[15]“Seven days you shall keep a sacred feast to the LORD your God in the place which the LORD chooses, because the LORD your God will bless you in all your produce and in all the work of your hands, so that you surely rejoice.

[16]“Three times a year all your males shall appear before the LORD your God in the place which He chooses: at the Feast of Unleavened Bread, at the Feast of Weeks, and at the Feast of Tabernacles; and they shall not appear before the LORD empty-handed.

[17]“Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the LORD your God which He has given you.

Justice Must Be Administered

[18]“You shall appoint judges and officers in all your gates, which the LORD your God gives you, according to your tribes, and they shall judge the people with just judgment.

[19]“You shall not pervert justice; you shall not show partiality, nor take a bribe, for a bribe blinds the eyes of the wise and twists the words of the righteous.

[20]“You shall follow what is altogether just, that you may live and inherit the land which the LORD your God is giving you.

[21]“You shall not plant for yourself any tree, as a wooden image, near the altar which you build for yourself to the LORD your God.

[22]“You shall not set up a sacred pillar, which the LORD your God hates.

Deuteronomy 17

[1]“You shall not sacrifice to the LORD your God a bull or sheep which has any blemish or defect, for that is an abomination to the LORD your God.

[2]“If there is found among you, within any of your gates which the LORD your God gives you, a man or a woman who has been wicked in the sight of the LORD your God, in transgressing His covenant,

[3]“who has gone and served other gods and worshiped them, either the sun or moon or any of the host of heaven, which I have not commanded,

[4]“and it is told you, and you hear of it, then you shall inquire diligently. And if it is indeed true and certain that such an abomination has been committed in Israel,

[5]“then you shall bring out to your gates that man or woman who has committed that wicked thing, and shall stone to death that man or woman with stones.

[6]“Whoever is deserving of death shall be put to death on the testimony of two or three witnesses; he shall not be put to death on the testimony of one witness.

[7]“The hands of the witnesses shall be the first against him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people. So you shall put away the evil from among you.

[8]“If a matter arises which is too hard for you to judge, between degrees of guilt for bloodshed, between one judgment or another, or between one punishment or another, matters of controversy within your gates, then you shall arise and go up to the place which the LORD your God chooses.

[9]“And you shall come to the priests, the Levites, and to the judge there in those days, and inquire of them; they shall pronounce upon you the sentence of judgment.

[10]“You shall do according to the sentence which they pronounce upon you in that place which the LORD chooses. And you shall be careful to do according to all that they order you.

[11]“According to the sentence of the law in which they instruct you, according to the judgment which they tell you, you shall do; you shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left from the sentence which they pronounce upon you.

[12]“Now the man who acts presumptuously and will not heed the priest who stands to minister there before the LORD your God, or the judge, that man shall die. So you shall put away the evil from Israel.

[13]“And all the people shall hear and fear, and no longer act presumptuously.

Principles Governing Kings

[14]“When you come to the land which the LORD your God is giving you, and possess it and dwell in it, and say, ‘I will set a king over me like all the nations that are around me,’

[15]“you shall surely set a king over you whom the LORD your God chooses; one from among your brethren you shall set as king over you; you may not set a foreigner over you, who is not your brother.

[16]“But he shall not multiply horses for himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt to multiply horses, for the LORD has said to you, ‘You shall not return that way again.’

[17]“Neither shall he multiply wives for himself, lest his heart turn away; nor shall he greatly multiply silver and gold for himself.

[18]“Also it shall be, when he sits on the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write for himself a copy of this law in a book, from the one before the priests, the Levites.

[19]“And it shall be with him, and he shall read it all the days of his life, that he may learn to fear the LORD his God and be careful to observe all the words of this law and these statutes, [20]“that his heart may not be lifted above his brethren, that he may not turn aside from the commandment to the right hand or to the left, and that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he and his children in the midst of Israel.

Deuteronomy 18

The Portion of the Priests and Levites

[1]“The priests, the Levites—all the tribe of Levi—shall have no part nor inheritance with Israel; they shall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and His portion.

[2]“Therefore they shall have no inheritance among their brethren; the LORD is their inheritance, as He said to them.

[3]“And this shall be the priest’s due from the people, from those who offer a sacrifice, whether it is bull or sheep: they shall give to the priest the shoulder, the cheeks, and the stomach.

[4]“The firstfruits of your grain and your new wine and your oil, and the first of the fleece of your sheep, you shall give him.

[5]“For the LORD your God has chosen him out of all your tribes to stand to minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons forever.

[6]“So if a Levite comes from any of your gates, from where he dwells among all Israel, and comes with all the desire of his mind to the place which the LORD chooses,

[7]“then he may serve in the name of the LORD his God as all his brethren the Levites do, who stand there before the LORD.

[8]“They shall have equal portions to eat, besides what comes from the sale of his inheritance.

Avoid Wicked Customs

[9]“When you come into the land which the LORD your God is giving you, you shall not learn to follow the abominations of those nations.

[10]“There shall not be found among you anyone who makes his son or his daughter pass through the fire, or one who practices witchcraft, or a soothsayer, or one who interprets omens, or a sorcerer, [11]“or one who conjures spells, or a medium, or a spiritist, or one who calls up the dead.

[12]“For all who do these things are an abomination to the LORD, and because of these abominations the LORD your God drives them out from before you.

[13]“You shall be blameless before the LORD your God.

[14]“For these nations which you will dispossess listened to soothsayers and diviners; but as for you, the LORD your God has not appointed such for you.

A New Prophet Like Moses

[15]“The LORD your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your midst, from your brethren. Him you shall hear,

[16]“according to all you desired of the LORD your God in Horeb in the day of the assembly, saying, ‘Let me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, nor let me see this great fire anymore, lest I die.’

[17]“And the LORD said to me: ‘What they have spoken is good.

[18]‘I will raise up for them a Prophet like you from among their brethren, and will put My words in His mouth, and He shall speak to them all that I command Him.

[19]‘And it shall be that whoever will not hear My words, which He speaks in My name, I will require it of him.

[20]‘But the prophet who presumes to speak a word in My name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or who speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet shall die.’

[21]“And if you say in your heart, ‘How shall we know the word which the LORD has not spoken?’—

[22]“when a prophet speaks in the name of the LORD, if the thing does not happen or come to pass, that is the thing which the LORD has not spoken; the prophet has spoken it presumptuously; you shall not be afraid of him.

Deuteronomy 19

Three Cities of Refuge

[1]“When the LORD your God has cut off the nations whose land the LORD your God is giving you, and you dispossess them and dwell in their cities and in their houses,

[2]“you shall separate three cities for yourself in the midst of your land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess.

[3]“You shall prepare roads for yourself, and divide into three parts the territory of your land which the LORD your God is giving you to inherit, that any manslayer may flee there.

[4]“And this is the case of the manslayer who flees there, that he may live: Whoever kills his neighbor unintentionally, not having hated him in time past—

[5]“as when a man goes to the woods with his neighbor to cut timber, and his hand swings a stroke with the ax to cut down the tree, and the head slips from the handle and strikes his neighbor so that he dies—he shall flee to one of these cities and live;

[6]“lest the avenger of blood, while his anger is hot, pursue the manslayer and overtake him, because the way is long, and kill him, though he was not deserving of death, since he had not hated the victim in time past.

[7]“Therefore I command you, saying, ‘You shall separate three cities for yourself.’

[8]“Now if the LORD your God enlarges your territory, as He swore to your fathers, and gives you the land which He promised to give to your fathers,

[9]“and if you keep all these commandments and do them, which I command you today, to love the LORD your God and to walk always in His ways, then you shall add three more cities for yourself besides these three,

[10]“lest innocent blood be shed in the midst of your land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, and thus guilt of bloodshed be upon you.

11“But if anyone hates his neighbor, lies in wait for him, rises against him and strikes him mortally, so that he dies, and he flees to one of these cities, 12“then the elders of his city shall send and bring him from there, and deliver him over to the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13“Your eye shall not pity him, but you shall put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with you.

Property Boundaries

14“You shall not remove your neighbor’s landmark, which the men of old have set, in your inheritance which you will inherit in the land that the LORD your God is giving you to possess.

The Law Concerning Witnesses

15“One witness shall not rise against a man concerning any iniquity or any sin that he commits; by the mouth of two or three witnesses the matter shall be established.

16“If a false witness rises against any man to testify against him of wrongdoing, 17“then both men in the controversy shall stand before the LORD, before the priests and the judges who serve in those days.

18“And the judges shall make careful inquiry, and indeed, if the witness is a false witness, who has testified falsely against his brother, 19“then you shall do to him as he thought to have done to his brother; so you shall put away the evil from among you.

20“And those who remain shall hear and fear, and hereafter they shall not again commit such evil among you.

21“Your eye shall not pity: life shall be for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

Deuteronomy 20

Principles Governing Warfare

[1]“When you go out to battle against your enemies, and see horses and chariots and people more numerous than you, do not be afraid of them; for the LORD your God is with you, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.

[2]“So it shall be, when you are on the verge of battle, that the priest shall approach and speak to the people.

[3]“And he shall say to them, ‘Hear, O Israel: Today you are on the verge of battle with your enemies. Do not let your heart faint, do not be afraid, and do not tremble or be terrified because of them;

[4]‘for the LORD your God is He who goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.’

[5]“Then the officers shall speak to the people, saying: ‘What man is there who has built a new house and has not dedicated it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man dedicate it.

[6]‘Also what man is there who has planted a vineyard and has not eaten of it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man eat of it.

[7]‘And what man is there who is betrothed to a woman and has not married her? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man marry her.’

[8]“The officers shall speak further to the people, and say, ‘What man is there who is fearful and fainthearted? Let him go and return to his house, lest the heart of his brethren faint like his heart.’

[9]“And so it shall be, when the officers have finished speaking to the people, that they shall make captains of the armies to lead the people.

[10]“When you go near a city to fight against it, then proclaim an offer of peace to it.

[11]“And it shall be that if they accept your offer of peace, and open to you, then all the people who are found in it shall be placed under tribute to you, and serve you.

[12]"Now if the city will not make peace with you, but war against you, then you shall besiege it.

[13]"And when the LORD your God delivers it into your hands, you shall strike every male in it with the edge of the sword.

[14]"But the women, the little ones, the livestock, and all that is in the city, all its spoil, you shall plunder for yourself; and you shall eat the enemies' plunder which the LORD your God gives you.

[15]"Thus you shall do to all the cities which are very far from you, which are not of the cities of these nations.

[16]"But of the cities of these peoples which the LORD your God gives you as an inheritance, you shall let nothing that breathes remain alive,

[17]"but you shall utterly destroy them: the Hittite and the Amorite and the Canaanite and the Perizzite and the Hivite and the Jebusite, just as the LORD your God has commanded you,

[18]"lest they teach you to do according to all their abominations which they have done for their gods, and you sin against the LORD your God.

[19]"When you besiege a city for a long time, while making war against it to take it, you shall not destroy its trees by wielding an ax against them; if you can eat of them, do not cut them down to use in the siege, for the tree of the field is man's food.

[20]"Only the trees which you know are not trees for food you may destroy and cut down, to build siegeworks against the city that makes war with you, until it is subdued.

Deuteronomy 21

The Law Concerning Unsolved Murder

[1]“If anyone is found slain, lying in the field in the land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess, and it is not known who killed him,

[2]“then your elders and your judges shall go out and measure the distance from the slain man to the surrounding cities.

[3]“And it shall be that the elders of the city nearest to the slain man will take a heifer which has not been worked and which has not pulled with a yoke.

[4]“The elders of that city shall bring the heifer down to a valley with flowing water, which is neither plowed nor sown, and they shall break the heifer’s neck there in the valley.

[5]“Then the priests, the sons of Levi, shall come near, for the LORD your God has chosen them to minister to Him and to bless in the name of the LORD; by their word every controversy and every assault shall be settled.

[6]“And all the elders of that city nearest to the slain man shall wash their hands over the heifer whose neck was broken in the valley.

[7]“Then they shall answer and say, ‘Our hands have not shed this blood, nor have our eyes seen it.

[8]‘Provide atonement, O LORD, for Your people Israel, whom You have redeemed, and do not lay innocent blood to the charge of Your people Israel.’ And atonement shall be provided on their behalf for the blood.

[9]“So you shall put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you when you do what is right in the sight of the LORD.

Female Captives

[10]“When you go out to war against your enemies, and the LORD your God delivers them into your hand, and you take them captive,

[11]“and you see among the captives a beautiful woman, and desire her and would take her for your wife,

[12]“then you shall bring her home to your house, and she shall shave her head and trim her nails.

[13]“She shall put off the clothes of her captivity, remain in your house, and mourn her father and her mother a full month; after that you may go in to her and be her husband, and she shall be your wife.

[14]“And it shall be, if you have no delight in her, then you shall set her free, but you certainly shall not sell her for money; you shall not treat her brutally, because you have humbled her.

Firstborn Inheritance Rights

[15]“If a man has two wives, one loved and the other unloved, and they have borne him children, both the loved and the unloved, and if the firstborn son is of her who is unloved,

[16]“then it shall be, on the day he bequeaths his possessions to his sons, that he must not bestow firstborn status on the son of the loved wife in preference to the son of the unloved, the true firstborn.

[17]“But he shall acknowledge the son of the unloved wife as the firstborn by giving him a double portion of all that he has, for he is the beginning of his strength; the right of the firstborn is his.

The Rebellious Son

[18]“If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son who will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and who, when they have chastened him, will not heed them,

[19]“then his father and his mother shall take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his city, to the gate of his city.

[20]“And they shall say to the elders of his city, ‘This son of ours is stubborn and rebellious; he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton and a drunkard.’

[21]“Then all the men of his city shall stone him to death with stones; so you shall put away the evil from among you, and all Israel shall hear and fear.

Miscellaneous Laws

22“If a man has committed a sin deserving of death, and he is put to death, and you hang him on a tree, 23“his body shall not remain overnight on the tree, but you shall surely bury him that day, so that you do not defile the land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance; for he who is hanged is accursed of God.

Deuteronomy 22

[1]“You shall not see your brother’s ox or his sheep going astray, and hide yourself from them; you shall certainly bring them back to your brother.

[2]“And if your brother is not near you, or if you do not know him, then you shall bring it to your own house, and it shall remain with you until your brother seeks it; then you shall restore it to him.

[3]“You shall do the same with his donkey, and so shall you do with his garment; with any lost thing of your brother’s, which he has lost and you have found, you shall do likewise; you must not hide yourself.

4“You shall not see your brother’s donkey or his ox fall down along the road, and hide yourself from them; you shall surely help him lift them up again.

5“A woman shall not wear anything that pertains to a man, nor shall a man put on a woman’s garment, for all who do so are an abomination to the LORD your God.

6“If a bird’s nest happens to be before you along the way, in any tree or on the ground, with young ones or eggs, with the mother sitting on the young or on the eggs, you shall not take the mother with the young;

[7]“you shall surely let the mother go, and take the young for yourself, that it may be well with you and that you may prolong your days.

8“When you build a new house, then you shall make a parapet for your roof, that you may not bring guilt of bloodshed on your household if anyone falls from it.

9“You shall not sow your vineyard with different kinds of seed, lest the yield of the seed which you have sown and the fruit of your vineyard be defiled.

10“You shall not plow with an ox and a donkey together.

11“You shall not wear a garment of different sorts, such as wool and linen mixed together.

12“You shall make tassels on the four corners of the clothing with which you cover yourself.

Laws of Sexual Morality

13“If any man takes a wife, and goes in to her, and detests her,

14“and charges her with shameful conduct, and brings a bad name on her, and says, ‘I took this woman, and when I came to her I found she was not a virgin,’

15“then the father and mother of the young woman shall take and bring out the evidence of the young woman’s virginity to the elders of the city at the gate.

16“And the young woman’s father shall say to the elders, ‘I gave my daughter to this man as wife, and he detests her.

17‘Now he has charged her with shameful conduct, saying, “I found your daughter was not a virgin,” and yet these are the evidences of my daughter’s virginity.’ And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18“Then the elders of that city shall take that man and punish him;

19“and they shall fine him one hundred shekels of silver and give them to the father of the young woman, because he has brought a bad name on a virgin of Israel. And she shall be his wife; he cannot divorce her all his days.

20“But if the thing is true, and evidences of virginity are not found for the young woman, 21“then they shall bring out the young woman to the door of her father’s house, and the men of her city shall stone her to death with stones, because she has done a disgraceful thing in Israel, to play the harlot in her father’s house. So you shall put away the evil from among you.

22“If a man is found lying with a woman married to a husband, then both of them shall die—the man that lay with the woman, and the woman; so you shall put away the evil from Israel.

23“If a young woman who is a virgin is betrothed to a husband, and a man finds her in the city and lies with her,

24“then you shall bring them both out to the gate of that city, and you shall stone them to death with stones, the young woman because she did not cry out in the city, and the man because he humbled his neighbor’s wife; so you shall put away the evil from among you.

25“But if a man finds a betrothed young woman in the countryside, and the man forces her and lies with her, then only the man who lay with her shall die.

26“But you shall do nothing to the young woman; there is in the young woman no sin deserving of death, for just as when a man rises against his neighbor and kills him, even so is this matter.

27“For he found her in the countryside, and the betrothed young woman cried out, but there was no one to save her.

28“If a man finds a young woman who is a virgin, who is not betrothed, and he seizes her and lies with her, and they are found out, 29“then the man who lay with her shall give to the young woman’s father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife because he has humbled her; he shall not be permitted to divorce her all his days.

30“A man shall not take his father’s wife, nor uncover his father’s bed.

Deuteronomy 23

Those Excluded from the Congregation

[1]“He who is emasculated by crushing or mutilation shall not enter the assembly of the LORD.

2“One of illegitimate birth shall not enter the assembly of the LORD; even to the tenth generation none of his descendants shall enter the assembly of the LORD.

3“An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter the assembly of the LORD; even to the tenth generation none of his descendants shall enter the assembly of the LORD forever,

[4]“because they did not meet you with bread and water on the road when you came out of Egypt, and because they hired against you Balaam the son of Beor from Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse you.

[5]“Nevertheless the LORD your God would not listen to Balaam, but the LORD your God turned the curse into a blessing for you, because the LORD your God loves you.

[6]“You shall not seek their peace nor their prosperity all your days forever.

7“You shall not abhor an Edomite, for he is your brother. You shall not abhor an Egyptian, because you were an alien in his land.

[8]“The children of the third generation born to them may enter the assembly of the LORD.

Cleanliness of the Campsite

9“When the army goes out against your enemies, then keep yourself from every wicked thing.

[10]“If there is any man among you who becomes unclean by some occurrence in the night, then he shall go outside the camp; he shall not come inside the camp.

[11]“But it shall be, when evening comes, that he shall wash with water; and when the sun sets, he may come into the camp.

[12]“Also you shall have a place outside the camp, where you may go out;

[13]“and you shall have an implement among your equipment, and when you sit down outside, you shall dig with it and turn and cover your refuse.

[14]“For the LORD your God walks in the midst of your camp, to deliver you and give your enemies over to you; therefore your camp shall be holy, that He may see no unclean thing among you, and turn away from you.

Miscellaneous Laws

[15]“You shall not give back to his master the slave who has escaped from his master to you.

[16]“He may dwell with you in your midst, in the place which he chooses within one of your gates, where it seems best to him; you shall not oppress him.

[17]“There shall be no ritual harlot of the daughters of Israel, or a perverted one of the sons of Israel.

[18]“You shall not bring the wages of a harlot or the price of a dog to the house of the LORD your God for any vowed offering, for both of these are an abomination to the LORD your God.

[19]“You shall not charge interest to your brother—interest on money or food or anything that is lent out at interest.

[20]“To a foreigner you may charge interest, but to your brother you shall not charge interest, that the LORD your God may bless you in all to which you set your hand in the land which you are entering to possess.

[21]“When you make a vow to the LORD your God, you shall not delay to pay it; for the LORD your God will surely require it of you, and it would be sin to you.

[22]“But if you abstain from vowing, it shall not be sin to you.

[23]“That which has gone from your lips you shall keep and perform, for you voluntarily vowed to the LORD your God what you have promised with your mouth.

[24]“When you come into your neighbor’s vineyard, you may eat your fill of grapes at your pleasure, but you shall not put any in your container.

[25]“When you come into your neighbor’s standing grain, you may pluck the heads with your hand, but you shall not use a sickle on your neighbor’s standing grain.

Deuteronomy 24

Law Concerning Divorce

[1]"When a man takes a wife and marries her, and it happens that she finds no favor in his eyes because he has found some uncleanness in her, and he writes her a certificate of divorce, puts it in her hand, and sends her out of his house,

[2]"when she has departed from his house, and goes and becomes another man's wife,

[3]"if the latter husband detests her and writes her a certificate of divorce, puts it in her hand, and sends her out of his house, or if the latter husband dies who took her as his wife,

[4]"then her former husband who divorced her must not take her back to be his wife after she has been defiled; for that is an abomination before the LORD, and you shall not bring sin on the land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance.

Miscellaneous Laws

[5]"When a man has taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war or be charged with any business; he shall be free at home one year, and bring happiness to his wife whom he has taken.

[6]"No man shall take the lower or the upper millstone in pledge, for he takes one's living in pledge.

[7]"If a man is found kidnapping any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and mistreats him or sells him, then that kidnapper shall die; and you shall put away the evil from among you.

[8]"Take heed in an outbreak of leprosy, that you carefully observe and do according to all that the priests, the Levites, shall teach you; just as I commanded them, so you shall be careful to do.

[9]"Remember what the LORD your God did to Miriam on the way when you came out of Egypt!

[10]"When you lend your brother anything, you shall not go into his house to get his pledge.

[11]“You shall stand outside, and the man to whom you lend shall bring the pledge out to you.

[12]“And if the man is poor, you shall not keep his pledge overnight.

[13]“You shall in any case return the pledge to him again when the sun goes down, that he may sleep in his own garment and bless you; and it shall be righteousness to you before the LORD your God.

[14]“You shall not oppress a hired servant who is poor and needy, whether one of your brethren or one of the aliens who is in your land within your gates.

[15]“Each day you shall give him his wages, and not let the sun go down on it, for he is poor and has set his heart on it; lest he cry out against you to the LORD, and it be sin to you.

[16]“Fathers shall not be put to death for their children, nor shall children be put to death for their fathers; a person shall be put to death for his own sin.

[17]“You shall not pervert justice due the stranger or the fatherless, nor take a widow’s garment as a pledge.

[18]“But you shall remember that you were a slave in Egypt, and the LORD your God redeemed you from there; therefore I command you to do this thing.

[19]“When you reap your harvest in your field, and forget a sheaf in the field, you shall not go back to get it; it shall be for the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work of your hands.

[20]“When you beat your olive trees, you shall not go over the boughs again; it shall be for the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow.

[21]“When you gather the grapes of your vineyard, you shall not glean it afterward; it shall be for the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow.

[22]“And you shall remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt; therefore I command you to do this thing.

Deuteronomy 25

[1]“If there is a dispute between men, and they come to court, that the judges may judge them, and they justify the righteous and condemn the wicked,

[2]“then it shall be, if the wicked man deserves to be beaten, that the judge will cause him to lie down and be beaten in his presence, according to his guilt, with a certain number of blows.

[3]“Forty blows he may give him and no more, lest he should exceed this and beat him with many blows above these, and your brother be humiliated in your sight.

[4]“You shall not muzzle an ox while it treads out the grain.

Marriage Duty of the Surviving Brother

[5]“If brothers dwell together, and one of them dies and has no son, the widow of the dead man shall not be married to a stranger outside the family; her husband’s brother shall go in to her, take her as his wife, and perform the duty of a husband’s brother to her.

[6]“And it shall be that the firstborn son which she bears will succeed to the name of his dead brother, that his name may not be blotted out of Israel.

[7]“But if the man does not want to take his brother’s wife, then let his brother’s wife go up to the gate to the elders, and say, ‘My husband’s brother refuses to raise up a name to his brother in Israel; he will not perform the duty of my husband’s brother.’

[8]“Then the elders of his city shall call him and speak to him. But if he stands firm and says, ‘I do not want to take her,’

[9]“then his brother’s wife shall come to him in the presence of the elders, remove his sandal from his foot, spit in his face, and answer and say, ‘So shall it be done to the man who will not build up his brother’s house.’

[10]“And his name shall be called in Israel, ‘The house of him who had his sandal removed.’

Miscellaneous Laws

[11]“If two men fight together, and the wife of one draws near to rescue her husband from the hand of the one attacking him, and puts out her hand and seizes him by the genitals, [12]“then you shall cut off her hand; your eye shall not pity her.

[13]“You shall not have in your bag differing weights, a heavy and a light.

[14]“You shall not have in your house differing measures, a large and a small.

[15]“You shall have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure, that your days may be lengthened in the land which the LORD your God is giving you.

[16]“For all who do such things, all who behave unrighteously, are an abomination to the LORD your God.

Destroy the Amalekites

[17]“Remember what Amalek did to you on the way as you were coming out of Egypt, [18]“how he met you on the way and attacked your rear ranks, all the stragglers at your rear, when you were tired and weary; and he did not fear God.

[19]“Therefore it shall be, when the LORD your God has given you rest from your enemies all around, in the land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess as an inheritance, that you will blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven. You shall not forget.

Deuteronomy 26

Offerings of Firstfruits and Tithes

[1]“And it shall be, when you come into the land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, and you possess it and dwell in it,

[2]“that you shall take some of the first of all the produce of the ground, which you shall bring from your land that the LORD your God is giving you, and put it in a basket and go to the place where the LORD your God chooses to make His name abide.

[3]“And you shall go to the one who is priest in those days, and say to him, ‘I declare today to the LORD your God that I have come to the country which the LORD swore to our fathers to give us.’

[4]“Then the priest shall take the basket out of your hand and set it down before the altar of the LORD your God.

[5]“And you shall answer and say before the LORD your God: ‘My father was a Syrian, about to perish, and he went down to Egypt and dwelt there, few in number; and there he became a nation, great, mighty, and populous.

[6]‘But the Egyptians mistreated us, afflicted us, and laid hard bondage on us.

[7]‘Then we cried out to the LORD God of our fathers, and the LORD heard our voice and looked on our affliction and our labor and our oppression.

[8]‘So the LORD brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand and with an outstretched arm, with great terror and with signs and wonders.

[9]‘He has brought us to this place and has given us this land, “a land flowing with milk and honey”;

[10]‘and now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land which you, O LORD, have given me.’ Then you shall set it before the LORD your God, and worship before the LORD your God.

[11]“So you shall rejoice in every good thing which the LORD your God has given to you and your house, you and the Levite and the stranger who is among you.

12“When you have finished laying aside all the tithe of your increase in the third year—the year of tithing—and have given it to the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, so that they may eat within your gates and be filled, 13“then you shall say before the LORD your God: ‘I have removed the holy tithe from my house, and also have given them to the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, according to all Your commandments which You have commanded me; I have not transgressed Your commandments, nor have I forgotten them.

14‘I have not eaten any of it when in mourning, nor have I removed any of it for an unclean use, nor given any of it for the dead. I have obeyed the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that You have commanded me.

15‘Look down from Your holy habitation, from heaven, and bless Your people Israel and the land which You have given us, just as You swore to our fathers, “a land flowing with milk and honey.” ’

A Special People of God

16“This day the LORD your God commands you to observe these statutes and judgments; therefore you shall be careful to observe them with all your heart and with all your soul.

17“Today you have proclaimed the LORD to be your God, and that you will walk in His ways and keep His statutes, His commandments, and His judgments, and that you will obey His voice.

18“Also today the LORD has proclaimed you to be His special people, just as He promised you, that you should keep all His commandments,

19“and that He will set you high above all nations which He has made, in praise, in name, and in honor, and that you may be a holy people to the LORD your God, just as He has spoken.”

Deuteronomy 27

The Law Inscribed on Stones

[1]Now Moses, with the elders of Israel, commanded the people, saying: "Keep all the commandments which I command you today.

[2]"And it shall be, on the day when you cross over the Jordan to the land which the LORD your God is giving you, that you shall set up for yourselves large stones, and whitewash them with lime.

[3]"You shall write on them all the words of this law, when you have crossed over, that you may enter the land which the LORD your God is giving you, 'a land flowing with milk and honey,' just as the LORD God of your fathers promised you.

[4]"Therefore it shall be, when you have crossed over the Jordan, that on Mount Ebal you shall set up these stones, which I command you today, and you shall whitewash them with lime.

[5]"And there you shall build an altar to the LORD your God, an altar of stones; you shall not use an iron tool on them.

[6]"You shall build with whole stones the altar of the LORD your God, and offer burnt offerings on it to the LORD your God.

[7]"You shall offer peace offerings, and shall eat there, and rejoice before the LORD your God.

[8]"And you shall write very plainly on the stones all the words of this law."

[9]Then Moses and the priests, the Levites, spoke to all Israel, saying, "Take heed and listen, O Israel: This day you have become the people of the LORD your God.

[10]"Therefore you shall obey the voice of the LORD your God, and observe His commandments and His statutes which I command you today."

Curses Pronounced from Mount Ebal

[11]And Moses commanded the people on the same day, saying,

[12]"These shall stand on Mount Gerizim to bless the people, when you have crossed over the Jordan: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin;

[13]"and these shall stand on Mount Ebal to curse: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

[14]"And the Levites shall speak with a loud voice and say to all the men of Israel:

[15]'Cursed is the one who makes a carved or molded image, an abomination to the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, and sets it up in secret.'

"And all the people shall answer and say, 'Amen!'

[16]'Cursed is the one who treats his father or his mother with contempt.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[17]'Cursed is the one who moves his neighbor's landmark.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[18]'Cursed is the one who makes the blind to wander off the road.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[19]'Cursed is the one who perverts the justice due the stranger, the fatherless, and widow.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[20]'Cursed is the one who lies with his father's wife, because he has uncovered his father's bed.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[21]'Cursed is the one who lies with any kind of animal.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[22]'Cursed is the one who lies with his sister, the daughter of his father or the daughter of his mother.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[23]'Cursed is the one who lies with his mother-in-law.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[24]'Cursed is the one who attacks his neighbor secretly.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[25]'Cursed is the one who takes a bribe to slay an innocent person.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'

[26]'Cursed is the one who does not confirm all the words of this law.'

"And all the people shall say, 'Amen!'"

Deuteronomy 28

Blessings on Obedience

[1]“Now it shall come to pass, if you diligently obey the voice of the LORD your God, to observe carefully all His commandments which I command you today, that the LORD your God will set you high above all nations of the earth.

[2]“And all these blessings shall come upon you and overtake you, because you obey the voice of the LORD your God:

[3]“Blessed shall you be in the city, and blessed shall you be in the country.

[4]“Blessed shall be the fruit of your body, the produce of your ground and the increase of your herds, the increase of your cattle and the offspring of your flocks.

[5]“Blessed shall be your basket and your kneading bowl.

[6]“Blessed shall you be when you come in, and blessed shall you be when you go out.

[7]“The LORD will cause your enemies who rise against you to be defeated before your face; they shall come out against you one way and flee before you seven ways.

[8]“The LORD will command the blessing on you in your storehouses and in all to which you set your hand, and He will bless you in the land which the LORD your God is giving you.

[9]“The LORD will establish you as a holy people to Himself, just as He has sworn to you, if you keep the commandments of the LORD your God and walk in His ways.

[10]“Then all peoples of the earth shall see that you are called by the name of the LORD, and they shall be afraid of you.

[11]“And the LORD will grant you plenty of goods, in the fruit of your body, in the increase of your livestock, and in the produce of your ground, in the land of which the LORD swore to your fathers to give you.

[12]“The LORD will open to you His good treasure, the heavens, to give the rain to your land in its season, and to bless all the work of your hand. You shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow.

[13]“And the LORD will make you the head and not the tail; you shall be above only, and not be beneath, if you heed the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you today, and are careful to observe them.

[14]“So you shall not turn aside from any of the words which I command you this day, to the right or the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

Curses on Disobedience

[15]“But it shall come to pass, if you do not obey the voice of the LORD your God, to observe carefully all His commandments and His statutes which I command you today, that all these curses will come upon you and overtake you:

[16]“Cursed shall you be in the city, and cursed shall you be in the country.

[17]“Cursed shall be your basket and your kneading bowl.

[18]“Cursed shall be the fruit of your body and the produce of your land, the increase of your cattle and the offspring of your flocks.

[19]“Cursed shall you be when you come in, and cursed shall you be when you go out.

[20]“The LORD will send on you cursing, confusion, and rebuke in all that you set your hand to do, until you are destroyed and until you perish quickly, because of the wickedness of your doings in which you have forsaken Me.

[21]“The LORD will make the plague cling to you until He has consumed you from the land which you are going to possess.

[22]“The LORD will strike you with consumption, with fever, with inflammation, with severe burning fever, with the sword, with scorching, and with mildew; they shall pursue you until you perish.

[23]“And your heavens which are over your head shall be bronze, and the earth which is under you shall be iron.

[24]“The LORD will change the rain of your land to powder and dust; from the heaven it shall come down on you until you are destroyed.

[25]“The LORD will cause you to be defeated before your enemies; you shall go out one way against them and flee seven ways before them; and you shall become troublesome to all the kingdoms of the earth.

[26]“Your carcasses shall be food for all the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth, and no one shall frighten them away.

[27]“The LORD will strike you with the boils of Egypt, with tumors, with the scab, and with the itch, from which you cannot be healed.

[28]“The LORD will strike you with madness and blindness and confusion of heart.

[29]“And you shall grope at noonday, as a blind man gropes in darkness; you shall not prosper in your ways; you shall be only oppressed and plundered continually, and no one shall save you.

[30]“You shall betroth a wife, but another man shall lie with her; you shall build a house, but you shall not dwell in it; you shall plant a vineyard, but shall not gather its grapes.

[31]“Your ox shall be slaughtered before your eyes, but you shall not eat of it; your donkey shall be violently taken away from before you, and shall not be restored to you; your sheep shall be given to your enemies, and you shall have no one to rescue them.

[32]“Your sons and your daughters shall be given to another people, and your eyes shall look and fail with longing for them all day long; and there shall be no strength in your hand.

[33]“A nation whom you have not known shall eat the fruit of your land and the produce of your labor, and you shall be only oppressed and crushed continually.

[34]“So you shall be driven mad because of the sight which your eyes see.

[35]“The LORD will strike you in the knees and on the legs with severe boils which cannot be healed, and from the sole of your foot to the top of your head.

[36]“The LORD will bring you and the king whom you set over you to a nation which neither you nor your fathers have known, and there you shall serve other gods—wood and stone.

[37]“And you shall become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword among all nations where the LORD will drive you.

[38]“You shall carry much seed out to the field but gather little in, for the locust shall consume it.

[39]“You shall plant vineyards and tend them, but you shall neither drink of the wine nor gather the grapes; for the worms shall eat them.

[40]“You shall have olive trees throughout all your territory, but you shall not anoint yourself with the oil; for your olives shall drop off.

[41]“You shall beget sons and daughters, but they shall not be yours; for they shall go into captivity.

[42]“Locusts shall consume all your trees and the produce of your land.

[43]“The alien who is among you shall rise higher and higher above you, and you shall come down lower and lower.

[44]“He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

[45]“Moreover all these curses shall come upon you and pursue and overtake you, until you are destroyed, because you did not obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep His commandments and His statutes which He commanded you.

[46]“And they shall be upon you for a sign and a wonder, and on your descendants forever.

[47]“Because you did not serve the LORD your God with joy and gladness of heart, for the abundance of everything, [48]“therefore you shall serve your enemies, whom the LORD will send against you, in hunger, in thirst, in nakedness, and in need of everything; and He will put a yoke of iron on your neck until He has destroyed you.

[49]“The LORD will bring a nation against you from afar, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flies, a nation whose language you will not understand, [50]“a nation of fierce countenance, which does not respect the elderly nor show favor to the young.

[51]“And they shall eat the increase of your livestock and the produce of your land, until you are destroyed; they shall not leave you grain or new wine or oil, or the increase of your cattle or the offspring of your flocks, until they have destroyed you.

[52]“They shall besiege you at all your gates until your high and fortified walls, in which you trust, come down throughout all your land; and they shall besiege you at all your gates throughout all your land which the LORD your God has given you.

[53]“You shall eat the fruit of your own body, the flesh of your sons and your daughters whom the LORD your God has given you, in the siege and desperate straits in which your enemy shall distress you.

[54]“The sensitive and very refined man among you will be hostile toward his brother, toward the wife of his bosom, and toward the rest of his children whom he leaves behind,

[55]“so that he will not give any of them the flesh of his children whom he will eat, because he has nothing left in the siege and desperate straits in which your enemy shall distress you at all your gates.

[56]“The tender and delicate woman among you, who would not venture to set the sole of her foot on the ground because of her delicateness and sensitivity, will refuse to the husband of her bosom, and to her son and her daughter,

[57]“her placenta which comes out from between her feet and her children whom she bears; for she will eat them secretly for lack of everything in the siege and desperate straits in which your enemy shall distress you at all your gates.

[58]“If you do not carefully observe all the words of this law that are written in this book, that you may fear this glorious and awesome name, THE LORD YOUR GOD, [59]“then the LORD will bring upon you and your descendants extraordinary plagues—great and prolonged plagues—and serious and prolonged sicknesses.

[60]“Moreover He will bring back on you all the diseases of Egypt, of which you were afraid, and they shall cling to you.

[61]“Also every sickness and every plague, which is not written in this Book of the Law, will the LORD bring upon you until you are destroyed.

[62]“You shall be left few in number, whereas you were as the stars of heaven in multitude, because you would not obey the voice of the LORD your God.

[63]“And it shall be, that just as the LORD rejoiced over you to do you good and multiply you, so the LORD will rejoice over you to destroy you and bring you to nothing; and you shall be plucked from off the land which you go to possess.

[64]“Then the LORD will scatter you among all peoples, from one end of the earth to the other, and there you shall serve other gods, which neither you nor your fathers have known—wood and stone.

[65]“And among those nations you shall find no rest, nor shall the sole of your foot have a resting place; but there the LORD will give you a trembling heart, failing eyes, and anguish of soul.

[66]“Your life shall hang in doubt before you; you shall fear day and night, and have no assurance of life.

[67]“In the morning you shall say, ‘Oh, that it were evening!’ And at evening you shall say, ‘Oh, that it were morning!’ because of the fear which terrifies your heart, and because of the sight which your eyes see.

[68]“And the LORD will take you back to Egypt in ships, by the way of which I said to you, ‘You shall never see it again.’ And there you shall be offered for sale to your enemies as male and female slaves, but no one will buy you.”

Deuteronomy 29

The Covenant Renewed in Moab

[1]These are the words of the covenant which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, besides the covenant which He made with them in Horeb.

[2]Now Moses called all Israel and said to them: “You have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh and to all his servants and to all his land—

[3]“the great trials which your eyes have seen, the signs, and those great wonders.

[4]“Yet the LORD has not given you a heart to perceive and eyes to see and ears to hear, to this very day.

[5]“And I have led you forty years in the wilderness. Your clothes have not worn out on you, and your sandals have not worn out on your feet.

[6]“You have not eaten bread, nor have you drunk wine or similar drink, that you may know that I am the LORD your God.

[7]“And when you came to this place, Sihon king of Heshbon and Og king of Bashan came out against us to battle, and we conquered them.

[8]“We took their land and gave it as an inheritance to the Reubenites, to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh.

[9]“Therefore keep the words of this covenant, and do them, that you may prosper in all that you do.

[10]“All of you stand today before the LORD your God: your leaders and your tribes and your elders and your officers, all the men of Israel,

[11]“your little ones and your wives—also the stranger who is in your camp, from the one who cuts your wood to the one who draws your water—

[12]“that you may enter into covenant with the LORD your God, and into His oath, which the LORD your God makes with you today, [13]“that He may establish you today as a people for Himself, and that He may be God to you, just as He has spoken to you, and just as He has sworn to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

[14]“I make this covenant and this oath, not with you alone,

[15]“but with him who stands here with us today before the LORD our God, as well as with him who is not here with us today

[16](for you know that we dwelt in the land of Egypt and that we came through the nations which you passed by,

[17]and you saw their abominations and their idols which were among them—wood and stone and silver and gold);

[18]“so that there may not be among you man or woman or family or tribe, whose heart turns away today from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations, and that there may not be among you a root bearing bitterness or wormwood;

[19]“and so it may not happen, when he hears the words of this curse, that he blesses himself in his heart, saying, ‘I shall have peace, even though I follow the dictates of my heart’—as though the drunkard could be included with the sober.

[20]“The LORD would not spare him; for then the anger of the LORD and His jealousy would burn against that man, and every curse that is written in this book would settle on him, and the LORD would blot out his name from under heaven.

[21]“And the LORD would separate him from all the tribes of Israel for adversity, according to all the curses of the covenant that are written in this Book of the Law,

[22]“so that the coming generation of your children who rise up after you, and the foreigner who comes from a far land, would say, when they see the plagues of that land and the sicknesses which the LORD has laid on it:

[23]‘The whole land is brimstone, salt, and burning; it is not sown, nor does it bear, nor does any grass grow there, like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim, which the LORD overthrew in His anger and His wrath.’

[24]All nations would say, ‘Why has the LORD done so to this land? What does the heat of this great anger mean?’

[25]“Then people would say: ‘Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which He made with them when He brought them out of the land of Egypt;

[26]‘for they went and served other gods and worshiped them, gods that they did not know and that He had not given to them.

[27]‘Then the anger of the LORD was aroused against this land, to bring on it every curse that is written in this book.

[28]‘And the LORD uprooted them from their land in anger, in wrath, and in great indignation, and cast them into another land, as it is this day.’

[29]“The secret things belong to the LORD our God, but those things which are revealed belong to us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law.

Deuteronomy 30

The Blessing of Returning to God

[1]“Now it shall come to pass, when all these things come upon you, the blessing and the curse which I have set before you, and you call them to mind among all the nations where the LORD your God drives you,

[2]“and you return to the LORD your God and obey His voice, according to all that I command you today, you and your children, with all your heart and with all your soul,

[3]“that the LORD your God will bring you back from captivity, and have compassion on you, and gather you again from all the nations where the LORD your God has scattered you.

[4]“If any of you are driven out to the farthest parts under heaven, from there the LORD your God will gather you, and from there He will bring you.

[5]“Then the LORD your God will bring you to the land which your fathers possessed, and you shall possess it. He will prosper you and multiply you more than your fathers.

[6]“And the LORD your God will circumcise your heart and the heart of your descendants, to love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul, that you may live.

[7]“Also the LORD your God will put all these curses on your enemies and on those who hate you, who persecuted you.

[8]“And you will again obey the voice of the LORD and do all His commandments which I command you today.

[9]“The LORD your God will make you abound in all the work of your hand, in the fruit of your body, in the increase of your livestock, and in the produce of your land for good. For the LORD will again rejoice over you for good as He rejoiced over your fathers, [10]“if you obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep His commandments and His statutes which are written in this Book of the Law, and if you turn to the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

The Choice of Life or Death

11“For this commandment which I command you today is not too mysterious for you, nor is it far off.

12“It is not in heaven, that you should say, ‘Who will ascend into heaven for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?’

13“Nor is it beyond the sea, that you should say, ‘Who will go over the sea for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?’

14“But the word is very near you, in your mouth and in your heart, that you may do it.

15“See, I have set before you today life and good, death and evil,

16“in that I command you today to love the LORD your God, to walk in His ways, and to keep His commandments, His statutes, and His judgments, that you may live and multiply; and the LORD your God will bless you in the land which you go to possess.

17“But if your heart turns away so that you do not hear, and are drawn away, and worship other gods and serve them,

18“I announce to you today that you shall surely perish; you shall not prolong your days in the land which you cross over the Jordan to go in and possess.

19“I call heaven and earth as witnesses today against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both you and your descendants may live;

20“that you may love the LORD your God, that you may obey His voice, and that you may cling to Him, for He is your life and the length of your days; and that you may dwell in the land which the LORD swore to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give them.”

Deuteronomy 31

Joshua the New Leader of Israel

[1]Then Moses went and spoke these words to all Israel.

[2]And he said to them: “I am one hundred and twenty years old today. I can no longer go out and come in. Also the LORD has said to me, ‘You shall not cross over this Jordan.’

[3]“The LORD your God Himself crosses over before you; He will destroy these nations from before you, and you shall dispossess them. Joshua himself crosses over before you, just as the LORD has said.

[4]“And the LORD will do to them as He did to Sihon and Og, the kings of the Amorites and their land, when He destroyed them.

[5]“The LORD will give them over to you, that you may do to them according to every commandment which I have commanded you.

[6]“Be strong and of good courage, do not fear nor be afraid of them; for the LORD your God, He is the One who goes with you. He will not leave you nor forsake you.”

[7]Then Moses called Joshua and said to him in the sight of all Israel, “Be strong and of good courage, for you must go with this people to the land which the LORD has sworn to their fathers to give them, and you shall cause them to inherit it.

[8]“And the LORD, He is the One who goes before you. He will be with you, He will not leave you nor forsake you; do not fear nor be dismayed.”

The Law to Be Read Every Seven Years

[9]So Moses wrote this law and delivered it to the priests, the sons of Levi, who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and to all the elders of Israel.

[10]And Moses commanded them, saying: “At the end of every seven years, at the appointed time in the year of release, at the Feast of Tabernacles,

[11]“when all Israel comes to appear before the LORD your God in the place which He chooses, you shall read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

[12]“Gather the people together, men and women and little ones, and the stranger who is within your gates, that they may hear and that they may learn to fear the LORD your God and carefully observe all the words of this law,

[13]“and that their children, who have not known it, may hear and learn to fear the LORD your God as long as you live in the land which you cross the Jordan to possess.”

Prediction of Israel’s Rebellion

14Then the LORD said to Moses, “Behold, the days approach when you must die; call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of meeting, that I may inaugurate him.” So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tabernacle of meeting.

[15]Now the LORD appeared at the tabernacle in a pillar of cloud, and the pillar of cloud stood above the door of the tabernacle.

16And the LORD said to Moses: “Behold, you will rest with your fathers; and this people will rise and play the harlot with the gods of the foreigners of the land, where they go to be among them, and they will forsake Me and break My covenant which I have made with them.

[17]“Then My anger shall be aroused against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide My face from them, and they shall be devoured. And many evils and troubles shall befall them, so that they will say in that day, ‘Have not these evils come upon us because our God is not among us?’

[18]“And I will surely hide My face in that day because of all the evil which they have done, in that they have turned to other gods.

[19]“Now therefore, write down this song for yourselves, and teach it to the children of Israel; put it in their mouths, that this song may be a witness for Me against the children of Israel.

[20]“When I have brought them to the land flowing with milk and honey, of which I swore to their fathers, and they have eaten and filled themselves and grown fat, then they will turn to other gods and serve them; and they will provoke Me and break My covenant.

[21]“Then it shall be, when many evils and troubles have come upon them, that this song will testify against them as a witness; for it will not be forgotten in the mouths of their descendants, for I know the inclination of their behavior today, even before I have brought them to the land of which I swore to give them.”

22Therefore Moses wrote this song the same day, and taught it to the children of Israel.

23Then He inaugurated Joshua the son of Nun, and said, “Be strong and of good courage; for you shall bring the children of Israel into the land of which I swore to them, and I will be with you.”

24So it was, when Moses had completed writing the words of this law in a book, when they were finished,

25that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying:

26“Take this Book of the Law, and put it beside the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there as a witness against you;

27“for I know your rebellion and your stiff neck. If today, while I am yet alive with you, you have been rebellious against the LORD, then how much more after my death?

28“Gather to me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their hearing and call heaven and earth to witness against them.

29“For I know that after my death you will become utterly corrupt, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you. And evil will befall you in the latter days, because you will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke Him to anger through the work of your hands.”

The Song of Moses

30Then Moses spoke in the hearing of all the assembly of Israel the words of this song until they were ended:

Deuteronomy 32

[1]“Give ear, O heavens, and I will speak;
And hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.
[2]Let my teaching drop as the rain,
My speech distill as the dew,
As raindrops on the tender herb,
And as showers on the grass.
[3]For I proclaim the name of the LORD:
Ascribe greatness to our God.
[4]He is the Rock, His work is perfect;
For all His ways are justice,
A God of truth and without injustice;
Righteous and upright is He.

[5]“They have corrupted themselves;
They are not His children,
Because of their blemish:
A perverse and crooked generation.
[6]Do you thus deal with the LORD,
O foolish and unwise people?
Is He not your Father, who bought you?
Has He not made you and established you?

[7]“Remember the days of old,
Consider the years of many generations.
Ask your father, and he will show you;
Your elders, and they will tell you:
[8]When the Most High divided their inheritance to the nations,
When He separated the sons of Adam,
He set the boundaries of the peoples
According to the number of the children of Israel.
[9]For the LORD’s portion is His people;
Jacob is the place of His inheritance.

[10]“He found him in a desert land
And in the wasteland, a howling wilderness;
He encircled him, He instructed him,
He kept him as the apple of His eye.
[11]As an eagle stirs up its nest,
Hovers over its young,
Spreading out its wings, taking them up,
Carrying them on its wings,
[12]So the LORD alone led him,
And there was no foreign god with him.

[13]“He made him ride in the heights of the earth,
That he might eat the produce of the fields;
He made him draw honey from the rock,
And oil from the flinty rock;
[14]Curds from the cattle, and milk of the flock,
With fat of lambs;
And rams of the breed of Bashan, and goats,
With the choicest wheat;
And you drank wine, the blood of the grapes.

[15]“But Jeshurun grew fat and kicked;
You grew fat, you grew thick,
You are obese!
Then he forsook God who made him,
And scornfully esteemed the Rock of his salvation.
[16]They provoked Him to jealousy with foreign gods;
With abominations they provoked Him to anger.
[17]They sacrificed to demons, not to God,
To gods they did not know,
To new gods, new arrivals
That your fathers did not fear.
[18]Of the Rock who begot you, you are unmindful,
And have forgotten the God who fathered you.

[19]“And when the LORD saw it, He spurned them,
Because of the provocation of His sons and His daughters.

[20]And He said: 'I will hide My face from them,
I will see what their end will be,
For they are a perverse generation,
Children in whom is no faith.
[21]They have provoked Me to jealousy by what is not God;
They have moved Me to anger by their foolish idols.
But I will provoke them to jealousy by those who are not a nation;
I will move them to anger by a foolish nation.
[22]For a fire is kindled in My anger,
And shall burn to the lowest hell;
It shall consume the earth with her increase,
And set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23'I will heap disasters on them;
I will spend My arrows on them.
[24]They shall be wasted with hunger,
Devoured by pestilence and bitter destruction;
I will also send against them the teeth of beasts,
With the poison of serpents of the dust.
[25]The sword shall destroy outside;
There shall be terror within
For the young man and virgin,
The nursing child with the man of gray hairs.
[26]I would have said, "I will dash them in pieces,
I will make the memory of them to cease from among men,"
[27]Had I not feared the wrath of the enemy,
Lest their adversaries should misunderstand,
Lest they should say, "Our hand is high;
And it is not the LORD who has done all this." '

28"For they are a nation void of counsel,
Nor is there any understanding in them.
[29]Oh, that they were wise, that they understood this,
That they would consider their latter end!
[30]How could one chase a thousand,

And two put ten thousand to flight,
Unless their Rock had sold them,
And the LORD had surrendered them?
[31]For their rock is not like our Rock,
Even our enemies themselves being judges.
[32]For their vine is of the vine of Sodom
And of the fields of Gomorrah;
Their grapes are grapes of gall,
Their clusters are bitter.
[33]Their wine is the poison of serpents,
And the cruel venom of cobras.

[34]‘Is this not laid up in store with Me,
Sealed up among My treasures?
[35]Vengeance is Mine, and recompense;
Their foot shall slip in due time;
For the day of their calamity is at hand,
And the things to come hasten upon them.’

[36]“For the LORD will judge His people
And have compassion on His servants,
When He sees that their power is gone,
And there is no one remaining, bond or free.
[37]He will say: ‘Where are their gods,
The rock in which they sought refuge?
[38]Who ate the fat of their sacrifices,
And drank the wine of their drink offering?
Let them rise and help you,
And be your refuge.

[39]‘Now see that I, even I, am He,
And there is no God besides Me;
I kill and I make alive;
I wound and I heal;
Nor is there any who can deliver from My hand.
[40]For I raise My hand to heaven,
And say, “As I live forever,

[41]If I whet My glittering sword,
And My hand takes hold on judgment,
I will render vengeance to My enemies,
And repay those who hate Me.
[42]I will make My arrows drunk with blood,
And My sword shall devour flesh,
With the blood of the slain and the captives,
From the heads of the leaders of the enemy.” ’

[43]“Rejoice, O Gentiles, with His people;
For He will avenge the blood of His servants,
And render vengeance to His adversaries;
He will provide atonement for His land and His people.”

44So Moses came with Joshua the son of Nun and spoke all the words of this song in the hearing of the people.

[45]Moses finished speaking all these words to all Israel,

[46]and he said to them: “Set your hearts on all the words which I testify among you today, which you shall command your children to be careful to observe—all the words of this law.

[47]“For it is not a futile thing for you, because it is your life, and by this word you shall prolong your days in the land which you cross over the Jordan to possess.”

Moses to Die on Mount Nebo

48Then the LORD spoke to Moses that very same day, saying:

[49]“Go up this mountain of the Abarim, Mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, across from Jericho; view the land of Canaan, which I give to the children of Israel as a possession;

[50]“and die on the mountain which you ascend, and be gathered to your people, just as Aaron your brother died on Mount Hor and was gathered to his people;

[51]“because you trespassed against Me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah Kadesh, in the Wilderness of Zin, because you did not hallow Me in the midst of the children of Israel.

[52]“Yet you shall see the land before you, though you shall not go there, into the land which I am giving to the children of Israel.”

Deuteronomy 33

Moses' Final Blessing on Israel

[1]Now this is the blessing with which Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

[2]And he said:

"The LORD came from Sinai,
And dawned on them from Seir;
He shone forth from Mount Paran,
And He came with ten thousands of saints;
From His right hand
Came a fiery law for them.
[3]Yes, He loves the people;
All His saints are in Your hand;
They sit down at Your feet;
Everyone receives Your words.
[4]Moses commanded a law for us,
A heritage of the congregation of Jacob.
[5]And He was King in Jeshurun,
When the leaders of the people were gathered,
All the tribes of Israel together.

[6]"Let Reuben live, and not die,
Nor let his men be few."

[7]And this he said of Judah:

"Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah,
And bring him to his people;
Let his hands be sufficient for him,
And may You be a help against his enemies."

[8]And of Levi he said:

"Let Your Thummim and Your Urim be with Your holy one,

Whom You tested at Massah,
And with whom You contended at the waters of Meribah,
[9]Who says of his father and mother,
‘I have not seen them’;
Nor did he acknowledge his brothers,
Or know his own children;
For they have observed Your word
And kept Your covenant.
[10]They shall teach Jacob Your judgments,
And Israel Your law.
They shall put incense before You,
And a whole burnt sacrifice on Your altar.
[11]Bless his substance, LORD,
And accept the work of his hands;
Strike the loins of those who rise against him,
And of those who hate him, that they rise not again.”

[12]Of Benjamin he said:

“The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by Him,
Who shelters him all the day long;
And he shall dwell between His shoulders.”

[13]And of Joseph he said:

“Blessed of the LORD is his land,
With the precious things of heaven, with the dew,
And the deep lying beneath,
[14]With the precious fruits of the sun,
With the precious produce of the months,
[15]With the best things of the ancient mountains,
With the precious things of the everlasting hills,
[16]With the precious things of the earth and its fullness,
And the favor of Him who dwelt in the bush.
Let the blessing come ‘on the head of Joseph,
And on the crown of the head of him who was separate from his brothers.’

[17]His glory is like a firstborn bull,
And his horns like the horns of the wild ox;
Together with them
He shall push the peoples
To the ends of the earth;
They are the ten thousands of Ephraim,
And they are the thousands of Manasseh."

18And of Zebulun he said:

"Rejoice, Zebulun, in your going out,
And Issachar in your tents!
[19]They shall call the peoples to the mountain;
There they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness;
For they shall partake of the abundance of the seas
And of treasures hidden in the sand."

20And of Gad he said:

"Blessed is he who enlarges Gad;
He dwells as a lion,
And tears the arm and the crown of his head.
[21]He provided the first part for himself,
Because a lawgiver's portion was reserved there.
He came with the heads of the people;
He administered the justice of the LORD,
And His judgments with Israel."

22And of Dan he said:

"Dan is a lion's whelp;
He shall leap from Bashan."

23And of Naphtali he said:

"O Naphtali, satisfied with favor,
And full of the blessing of the LORD,
Possess the west and the south."

24And of Asher he said:

“Asher is most blessed of sons;
Let him be favored by his brothers,
And let him dip his foot in oil.
25Your sandals shall be iron and bronze;
As your days, so shall your strength be.

26“There is no one like the God of Jeshurun,
Who rides the heavens to help you,
And in His excellency on the clouds.
27The eternal God is your refuge,
And underneath are the everlasting arms;
He will thrust out the enemy from before you,
And will say, ‘Destroy!’
28Then Israel shall dwell in safety,
The fountain of Jacob alone,
In a land of grain and new wine;
His heavens shall also drop dew.
29Happy are you, O Israel!
Who is like you, a people saved by the LORD,
The shield of your help
And the sword of your majesty!
Your enemies shall submit to you,
And you shall tread down their high places.”

Deuteronomy 34

Moses Dies on Mount Nebo

[1]Then Moses went up from the plains of Moab to Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, which is across from Jericho. And the LORD showed him all the land of Gilead as far as Dan,

[2]all Naphtali and the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, all the land of Judah as far as the Western Sea,

[3]the South, and the plain of the Valley of Jericho, the city of palm trees, as far as Zoar.

[4]Then the LORD said to him, "This is the land of which I swore to give Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying, 'I will give it to your descendants.' I have caused you to see it with your eyes, but you shall not cross over there."

[5]So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

[6]And He buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, opposite Beth Peor; but no one knows his grave to this day.

[7]Moses was one hundred and twenty years old when he died. His eyes were not dim nor his natural vigor diminished.

[8]And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days. So the days of weeping and mourning for Moses ended.

[9]Now Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands on him; so the children of Israel heeded him, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[10]But since then there has not arisen in Israel a prophet like Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face,

[11]in all the signs and wonders which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt, before Pharaoh, before all his servants, and in all his land,

[12]and by all that mighty power and all the great terror which Moses performed in the sight of all Israel.

The Book of

Joshua

Joshua 1

God's Commission to Joshua

[1]After the death of Moses the servant of the LORD, it came to pass that the LORD spoke to Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' assistant, saying:

[2]"Moses My servant is dead. Now therefore, arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, to the land which I am giving to them—the children of Israel.

[3]"Every place that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given you, as I said to Moses.

[4]"From the wilderness and this Lebanon as far as the great river, the River Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and to the Great Sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your territory.

[5]"No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will not leave you nor forsake you.

[6]"Be strong and of good courage, for to this people you shall divide as an inheritance the land which I swore to their fathers to give them.

[7]"Only be strong and very courageous, that you may observe to do according to all the law which Moses My servant commanded you; do not turn from it to the right hand or to the left, that you may prosper wherever you go.

[8]"This Book of the Law shall not depart from your mouth, but you shall meditate in it day and night, that you may observe to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then you will have good success.

[9]"Have I not commanded you? Be strong and of good courage; do not be afraid, nor be dismayed, for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go."

The Order to Cross the Jordan

[10]Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

[11]"Pass through the camp and command the people, saying, 'Prepare provisions for yourselves, for within three days you will cross over this

Jordan, to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God is giving you to possess.' "

12And to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh Joshua spoke, saying,

13"Remember the word which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, 'The LORD your God is giving you rest and is giving you this land.'

14"Your wives, your little ones, and your livestock shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side of the Jordan. But you shall pass before your brethren armed, all your mighty men of valor, and help them,

15"until the LORD has given your brethren rest, as He gave you, and they also have taken possession of the land which the LORD your God is giving them. Then you shall return to the land of your possession and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD's servant gave you on this side of the Jordan toward the sunrise."

16So they answered Joshua, saying, "All that you command us we will do, and wherever you send us we will go.

17"Just as we heeded Moses in all things, so we will heed you. Only the LORD your God be with you, as He was with Moses.

18"Whoever rebels against your command and does not heed your words, in all that you command him, shall be put to death. Only be strong and of good courage."

Joshua 2

Rahab Hides the Spies

[1]Now Joshua the son of Nun sent out two men from Acacia Grove to spy secretly, saying, "Go, view the land, especially Jericho." So they went, and came to the house of a harlot named Rahab, and lodged there.

[2]And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, "Behold, men have come here tonight from the children of Israel to search out the country."

[3]So the king of Jericho sent to Rahab, saying, "Bring out the men who have come to you, who have entered your house, for they have come to search out all the country."

[4]Then the woman took the two men and hid them. So she said, "Yes, the men came to me, but I did not know where they were from.

[5]"And it happened as the gate was being shut, when it was dark, that the men went out. Where the men went I do not know; pursue them quickly, for you may overtake them."

[6](But she had brought them up to the roof and hidden them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order on the roof.)

[7]Then the men pursued them by the road to the Jordan, to the fords. And as soon as those who pursued them had gone out, they shut the gate.

[8]Now before they lay down, she came up to them on the roof,

[9]and said to the men: "I know that the LORD has given you the land, that the terror of you has fallen on us, and that all the inhabitants of the land are fainthearted because of you.

[10]"For we have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt, and what you did to the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom you utterly destroyed.

[11]"And as soon as we heard these things, our hearts melted; neither did there remain any more courage in anyone because of you, for the LORD your God, He is God in heaven above and on earth beneath.

[12]"Now therefore, I beg you, swear to me by the LORD, since I have shown you kindness, that you also will show kindness to my father's house, and give me a true token,

[13]"and spare my father, my mother, my brothers, my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death."

[14]So the men answered her, "Our lives for yours, if none of you tell this business of ours. And it shall be, when the LORD has given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with you."

[15]Then she let them down by a rope through the window, for her house was on the city wall; she dwelt on the wall.

[16]And she said to them, "Get to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you. Hide there three days, until the pursuers have returned. Afterward you may go your way."

[17]So the men said to her: "We will be blameless of this oath of yours which you have made us swear, [18]"unless, when we come into the land, you bind this line of scarlet cord in the window through which you let us down, and unless you bring your father, your mother, your brothers, and all your father's household to your own home.

[19]"So it shall be that whoever goes outside the doors of your house into the street, his blood shall be on his own head, and we will be guiltless. And whoever is with you in the house, his blood shall be on our head if a hand is laid on him.

[20]"And if you tell this business of ours, then we will be free from your oath which you made us swear."

[21]Then she said, "According to your words, so be it." And she sent them away, and they departed. And she bound the scarlet cord in the window.

[22]They departed and went to the mountain, and stayed there three days until the pursuers returned. The pursuers sought them all along the way, but did not find them.

[23]So the two men returned, descended from the mountain, and crossed over; and they came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all that had befallen them.

[24]And they said to Joshua, "Truly the LORD has delivered all the land into our hands, for indeed all the inhabitants of the country are fainthearted because of us."

Joshua 3

Israel Crosses the Jordan

[1]Then Joshua rose early in the morning; and they set out from Acacia Grove and came to the Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they crossed over.

[2]So it was, after three days, that the officers went through the camp;

[3]and they commanded the people, saying, “When you see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, and the priests, the Levites, bearing it, then you shall set out from your place and go after it.

[4]“Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure. Do not come near it, that you may know the way by which you must go, for you have not passed this way before.”

[5]And Joshua said to the people, “Sanctify yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.”

[6]Then Joshua spoke to the priests, saying, “Take up the ark of the covenant and cross over before the people.” So they took up the ark of the covenant and went before the people.

[7]And the LORD said to Joshua, “This day I will begin to exalt you in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with you.

[8]“You shall command the priests who bear the ark of the covenant, saying, ‘When you have come to the edge of the water of the Jordan, you shall stand in the Jordan.’ ”

[9]So Joshua said to the children of Israel, “Come here, and hear the words of the LORD your God.”

[10]And Joshua said, “By this you shall know that the living God is among you, and that He will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Hivites and the Perizzites and the Girgashites and the Amorites and the Jebusites:

[11]“Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth is crossing over before you into the Jordan.

[12]“Now therefore, take for yourselves twelve men from the tribes of Israel, one man from every tribe.

[13]"And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests who bear the ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of the Jordan, that the waters of the Jordan shall be cut off, the waters that come down from upstream, and they shall stand as a heap."

[14]So it was, when the people set out from their camp to cross over the Jordan, with the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people,

[15]and as those who bore the ark came to the Jordan, and the feet of the priests who bore the ark dipped in the edge of the water (for the Jordan overflows all its banks during the whole time of harvest),

[16]that the waters which came down from upstream stood still, and rose in a heap very far away at Adam, the city that is beside Zaretan. So the waters that went down into the Sea of the Arabah, the Salt Sea, failed, and were cut off; and the people crossed over opposite Jericho.

[17]Then the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan; and all Israel crossed over on dry ground, until all the people had crossed completely over the Jordan.

Joshua 4

The Memorial Stones

[1]And it came to pass, when all the people had completely crossed over the Jordan, that the LORD spoke to Joshua, saying:

[2]"Take for yourselves twelve men from the people, one man from every tribe,

[3]"and command them, saying, 'Take for yourselves twelve stones from here, out of the midst of the Jordan, from the place where the priests' feet stood firm. You shall carry them over with you and leave them in the lodging place where you lodge tonight.' "

[4]Then Joshua called the twelve men whom he had appointed from the children of Israel, one man from every tribe;

[5]and Joshua said to them: "Cross over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of the Jordan, and each one of you take up a stone on his shoulder, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel,

[6]"that this may be a sign among you when your children ask in time to come, saying, 'What do these stones mean to you?'

[7]"Then you shall answer them that the waters of the Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it crossed over the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan were cut off. And these stones shall be for a memorial to the children of Israel forever."

[8]And the children of Israel did so, just as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones from the midst of the Jordan, as the LORD had spoken to Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them to the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

[9]Then Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of the Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant stood; and they are there to this day.

[10]So the priests who bore the ark stood in the midst of the Jordan until everything was finished that the LORD had commanded Joshua to speak to the people, according to all that Moses had commanded Joshua; and the people hurried and crossed over.

[11]Then it came to pass, when all the people had completely crossed over, that the ark of the LORD and the priests crossed over in the presence of the people.

[12]And the men of Reuben, the men of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh crossed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses had spoken to them.

[13]About forty thousand prepared for war crossed over before the LORD for battle, to the plains of Jericho.

[14]On that day the LORD exalted Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they had feared Moses, all the days of his life.

[15]Then the LORD spoke to Joshua, saying,

[16]"Command the priests who bear the ark of the Testimony to come up from the Jordan."

[17]Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, "Come up from the Jordan."

[18]And it came to pass, when the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the LORD had come from the midst of the Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet touched the dry land, that the waters of the Jordan returned to their place and overflowed all its banks as before.

[19]Now the people came up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and they camped in Gilgal on the east border of Jericho.

[20]And those twelve stones which they took out of the Jordan, Joshua set up in Gilgal.

[21]Then he spoke to the children of Israel, saying: "When your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, 'What are these stones?'

[22]"then you shall let your children know, saying, 'Israel crossed over this Jordan on dry land';

[23]"for the LORD your God dried up the waters of the Jordan before you until you had crossed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red Sea, which He dried up before us until we had crossed over,

[24]"that all the peoples of the earth may know the hand of the LORD, that it is mighty, that you may fear the LORD your God forever."

Joshua 5

The Second Generation Circumcised

[1]So it was, when all the kings of the Amorites who were on the west side of the Jordan, and all the kings of the Canaanites who were by the sea, heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the children of Israel until we had crossed over, that their heart melted; and there was no spirit in them any longer because of the children of Israel.

[2]At that time the LORD said to Joshua, “Make flint knives for yourself, and circumcise the sons of Israel again the second time.”

[3]So Joshua made flint knives for himself, and circumcised the sons of Israel at the hill of the foreskins.

[4]And this is the reason why Joshua circumcised them: All the people who came out of Egypt who were males, all the men of war, had died in the wilderness on the way, after they had come out of Egypt.

[5]For all the people who came out had been circumcised, but all the people born in the wilderness, on the way as they came out of Egypt, had not been circumcised.

[6]For the children of Israel walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people who were men of war, who came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they did not obey the voice of the LORD��to whom the LORD swore that He would not show them the land which the LORD had sworn to their fathers that He would give us, “a land flowing with milk and honey.”

[7]Then Joshua circumcised their sons whom He raised up in their place; for they were uncircumcised, because they had not been circumcised on the way.

[8]So it was, when they had finished circumcising all the people, that they stayed in their places in the camp till they were healed.

[9]Then the LORD said to Joshua, “This day I have rolled away the reproach of Egypt from you.” Therefore the name of the place is called Gilgal to this day.

10Now the children of Israel camped in Gilgal, and kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the month at twilight on the plains of Jericho.

[11]And they ate of the produce of the land on the day after the Passover, unleavened bread and parched grain, on the very same day.

[12]Then the manna ceased on the day after they had eaten the produce of the land; and the children of Israel no longer had manna, but they ate the food of the land of Canaan that year.

The Commander of the Army of the LORD

13And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted his eyes and looked, and behold, a Man stood opposite him with His sword drawn in His hand. And Joshua went to Him and said to Him, "Are You for us or for our adversaries?"

[14]So He said, "No, but as Commander of the army of the LORD I have now come." And Joshua fell on his face to the earth and worshiped, and said to Him, "What does my Lord say to His servant?"

[15]Then the Commander of the LORD's army said to Joshua, "Take your sandal off your foot, for the place where you stand is holy." And Joshua did so.

Joshua 6

The Destruction of Jericho

[1]Now Jericho was securely shut up because of the children of Israel; none went out, and none came in.

[2]And the LORD said to Joshua: “See! I have given Jericho into your hand, its king, and the mighty men of valor.

[3]“You shall march around the city, all you men of war; you shall go all around the city once. This you shall do six days.

[4]“And seven priests shall bear seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark. But the seventh day you shall march around the city seven times, and the priests shall blow the trumpets.

[5]“It shall come to pass, when they make a long blast with the ram’s horn, and when you hear the sound of the trumpet, that all the people shall shout with a great shout; then the wall of the city will fall down flat. And the people shall go up every man straight before him.”

[6]Then Joshua the son of Nun called the priests and said to them, “Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark of the LORD.”

[7]And he said to the people, “Proceed, and march around the city, and let him who is armed advance before the ark of the LORD.”

[8]So it was, when Joshua had spoken to the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the LORD advanced and blew the trumpets, and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

[9]The armed men went before the priests who blew the trumpets, and the rear guard came after the ark, while the priests continued blowing the trumpets.

[10]Now Joshua had commanded the people, saying, “You shall not shout or make any noise with your voice, nor shall a word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I say to you, ‘Shout!’ Then you shall shout.”

[11]So he had the ark of the LORD circle the city, going around it once. Then they came into the camp and lodged in the camp.

12And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13Then seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually and blew with the trumpets. And the armed men went before them. But the rear guard came after the ark of the LORD, while the priests continued blowing the trumpets.

14And the second day they marched around the city once and returned to the camp. So they did six days.

15But it came to pass on the seventh day that they rose early, about the dawning of the day, and marched around the city seven times in the same manner. On that day only they marched around the city seven times.

16And the seventh time it happened, when the priests blew the trumpets, that Joshua said to the people: "Shout, for the LORD has given you the city!

17"Now the city shall be doomed by the LORD to destruction, it and all who are in it. Only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all who are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers that we sent.

18"And you, by all means abstain from the accursed things, lest you become accursed when you take of the accursed things, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it.

19"But all the silver and gold, and vessels of bronze and iron, are consecrated to the LORD; they shall come into the treasury of the LORD."

20So the people shouted when the priests blew the trumpets. And it happened when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat. Then the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.

21And they utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, ox and sheep and donkey, with the edge of the sword.

22But Joshua had said to the two men who had spied out the country, "Go into the harlot's house, and from there bring out the woman and all that she has, as you swore to her."

[23]And the young men who had been spies went in and brought out Rahab, her father, her mother, her brothers, and all that she had. So they brought out all her relatives and left them outside the camp of Israel.
